Editor's Note. — The concluding words of this section make clear that there is a presumption in favor of the validity of an order or determination of the Commission. The question inevitably and necessarily arises: How strong is the presumption? Can it be overcome by a mere preponderance of evidence? These questions have not yet been definitely answered by the Supreme Court. In a case involving a similar provision of the Interstate Commerce Act, Meeker & Co. v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 236 U. S. 412, 430, 59 L. Ed. 644, 35 S. Ct. 328. Mr. Justice Van Devanter said: "This provision only establishes a rebuttable presumption. It cuts off no defense, interposes no obstacle to a full contestation of all the issues, and takes no question of fact from either court or jury. At most therefore it is merely a rule of evidence. It does not abridge the right of trial by jury or take away any of its incidents. Nor does it in any wise work a denial of due process of law. In principle it is not unlike the statutes in many of the states whereby tax deeds are made prima facie evidence of the regularity of all the proceedings upon which their validity depends."

Parties on Appeal.—In case of an appeal to the courts, the only authorized parties are the State of North Carolina on relation of the Corporation Commission as plaintiff and the railroad or other corporation as defendant. The statute is plain as to who may appeal, viz., the state and the corporation whose legal rights are affected by the decision. No one else can appeal, because there are, and under the statute can be, no other parties, and the right to appeal is of course confined to the parties to the proceeding. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Winston-Salem, etc., R. Co., 170 N. C. 560, 561, 87 S. E. 785.

Any Relevant Evidence Admissible.—On appeal from an order of the Corporation Commission, the trial is de novo by express provision of the statute and tried under the same rules and regulations as are prescribed for the trial of other civil causes; and any relevant evidence may be there introduced, whether it had theretofore been introduced before the Commission or not. State v. Seaboard Air Line, etc., R. Co., 161 N. C. 270, 76 S. E. 554.

Irrelevant Evidence.—In a case wherein a union passenger depot had been ordered by the Commission it was reversible error in the superior court, on appeal from the Commission, for the trial judge to admit evidence as to the effect the relocation would have on property values in a near-by town, where the present station of one of the roads is located. State v. Seaboard Air Line, etc., R. Co., 161 N. C. 270, 76 S. E. 554.

§ 1099. Appeal heard at chambers by consent.—By consent of all parties the appeal may be heard and determined at chambers before any judge of a district through or into which the railroad may extend, or any judge holding court therein, or in which the person or company does business. (Rev., s. 1076; 1899, c. 164, s. 7.)

§ 1100. Appeal to supreme court. — Either party may appeal to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court under the same rules and regulations as are prescribed by law for appeals, except that the state of North Carolina, if it shall appeal, shall not be required to give any undertaking or make any deposit to secure the cost of such appeal, and such court may advance the cause on its docket so as to give the same a speedy hearing. (Rev., s. 1077; 1899, c. 164, s. 7.)

Right Confined to State and Corporation.—The section plainly indicates that the right of appeal is confined to the state and the corporation whose legal rights are affected by the Commission's order. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Winston-Salem, etc., R. Co., 170 N. C. 560, 561, 87 S. E. 785.

Direct Appeal Does Not Lie.—An appeal will not lie directly from the Corporation Commission to the Supreme Court. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Winston-Salem, etc., R. Co., 170 N. C. 560, 87 S. E. 785.

§ 1101. Judgment of superior court not vacated by appeal.—Any freight or passenger rates fixed by the commissioner, when approved or confirmed by the judgment of the superior court, shall be and remain the established rates, and shall be so observed and regarded by an appealing corporation until the same shall be changed, revised or modified by the final judgment of the supreme court, if there shall be an appeal thereto, and until changed by the utilities commissioner. (Rev., s. 1079; 1899, c. 164, s. 7.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1102. Judgment on appeal enforced by mandamus.—In all cases in which, upon appeal, a judgment of the utilities commissioner is affirmed, in whole or in part, the appellate court shall embrace in its decree a mandamus to the appellant to put said order in force, or so much thereof as shall be affirmed. (Rev., s. 1080; 1905, c. 107, s. 2.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to mandamus generally, see secs. 866, 867, and 868.

Performance Compelled by Mandamus.—The state court can compel performance only by resort to the high prerogative writ of mandamus, and that by authority of this section. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Southern R. Co., 151 N. C. 447, 454, 66 S. E. 427.

Under this section, the right to a mandamus to enforce a valid order is given in causes which have been carried to the superior court by appeal. State v. Southern R. Co., 147 N. C. 483, 488, 61 S. E. 271.

§ 1103. Peremptory mandamus to enforce order, when no appeal.—If no appeal is taken from an order or judgment of the utilities commissioner within the time prescribed by law, but the corporation affected thereby fails to put said order in operation, the utilities commissioner may apply to the judge riding the superior court district which embraces Wake County, or to the resident judge of said district at chambers, upon ten days notice, for a peremptory mandamus upon said corporation for the putting in force of said judgment or order; and if said judge shall find that the order of said commissioner was valid and within the scope of his powers, he shall issue such peremptory mandamus. An appeal shall lie to the supreme court in behalf of the utilities commissioner, or the defendant corporation, from the refusal or the granting of such peremptory mandamus. (Rev., s. 1081; 1905, c. 107.)

As to mandamus generally, see secs. 866, 867, and 868.

Mandamus to Enforce Final Order.—Where the Corporation Commission has ordered two railroad companies to erect a union depot at a junction after a hearing upon the petition of the citizens of the town, and the railroads have lost or waived their statutory right to appeal, such order is regarded as a final judgment, and mandamus proceedings to compel the enforcement of the final order upon failure of the railroads to except and appeal therefrom is the remedy authorized by the section. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563.

Independent Proceedings for Mandamus.—Under this section an appeal may be had by independent proceedings for mandamus to enforce a valid order from which no appeal has been taken. State v. Southern R. Co., 147 N. C. 483, 488, 61 S. E. 271.

Orders of Commission Are Not Judgments.—The Commission makes such order as the circumstances of the case justify, but these orders are not judgments of a court. The Commission cannot issue execution to enforce them, they simply serve as the basis for judicial action in the superior court to enforce them or to punish their violation. 2 N. C. L. R. 74. See also, Mayo v. Western Union Teleg. Co., 112 N. C. 343, 16 S. E. 1006.

The Corporation "Affected".—This section also reveals what is meant by the words "any party affected thereby," for it provides, if the corporation "affected" by the order fails to obey, how obedience may be enforced. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Winston-Salem, etc., R. Co., 170 N. C. 560, 561, 87 S. E. 785.

§ 1104. Fiscal year.—The fiscal year for which all reports shall be made which may be required of any railroad or transportation company by the commissioner under this chapter shall end on the thirtieth of June. (Rev., s. 1116; 1899, c. 164, s. 28.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Art. 7. Penalties and Actions

§ 1105. For violating rules.—If any railroad company doing business in this state by its agents or employees shall be guilty of the violation of the rules and regulations provided and prescribed by the commissioner, and if after due notice of such violation given to the principal officer thereof, if residing in the state, or, if not, to the manager or superintendent or secretary or treasurer if residing in the state, or, if not, then to any local agent thereof, ample and full recompense for the wrong or injury done thereby to any person or corporation as may be directed by the commissioner shall not be made within thirty days from the time of such notice, such company shall incur a penalty for each offense of five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1086; 1899, c. 164, s. 15.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Cross References.—As to corporations and businesses within control of the Commission, see sec. 1035; as to public utilities for which the Commission is empowered to fix rates, see sec. 1066.

Section Is Valid.—The section giving authority to the Commission after notice for failure of any railroad company to make full and ample recompense for the violation of such rules and regulations to proceed in the courts, to enforce the penalties to be prescribed herein for such violation is valid without providing in detail the methods of procedure. Atlantic Exp. Co. v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 463, 16 S. E. 393.

Duty to Enforce Rules and Orders.—While the Corporation Commission has no power to render a judgment for the payment of money, etc., it is their duty to enforce their rules and orders, and the power to do so is given by this section. State v. Southern R. Co., 147 N. C. 483, 489, 61 S. E. 271.

Right to Investigate Complaint.—Under this section the commission had the undoubted right and it was eminently proper for them to institute an inquiry and inform themselves as to whether a complaint was grounded in truth. They were not required to institute an action for the penalty simply because a citizen feeling himself aggrieved had made a complaint before them. They did right to investigate the matter for themselves, but the end of such investigation was simply to afford them information and enable them to act intelligently in determining whether they would sue for the penalty of $500 given by the statute. State v. Southern R. Co., 147 N. C. 483, 490, 61 S. E. 271.

§ 1106. Refusing to obey orders of commissioner.—Any railroad or other corporation which violates any of the provisions of this chapter or refuses to conform to or obey any rule, order or regulation of the utilities commissioner shall, in addition to the other penalties prescribed in this chapter, forfeit and pay the sum of five hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered in an action to be instituted in the superior court of Wake County, in the name of the state of North Carolina on the relation of the utilities commissioner; and each day such company continues to violate any provision of this chapter or continues to refuse to obey or perform any rule, order or regulation prescribed by the utilities commissioner shall be a separate offense. (Rev., s. 1087; 1899, c. 164, s. 23.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to meaning of "company", see annotations under subsection one, section 1066.

§ 1107. Discrimination between connecting lines.—All common carriers subject to the provisions of this chapter shall according to their powers afford all reasonable, proper and equal facilities for the interchange of traffic between their respective lines and for the forwarding and delivering of passengers and freights to and from their several lines and those connecting therewith, and shall not discriminate in their rates, routes and charges against such connecting lines, and shall be required to make as close connection as practicable for the convenience of the traveling public. And common carriers shall obey all rules and regulations made by the commissioner relating to trackage. (Rev. s. 1088; 1899, c. 164, s. 21; 1935, c. 258.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to what constitutes discrimination, see annotations under sec. 1054. See also sec. 3418 and notes.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 inserted the word "routes" making the section applicable as to discrimination as to routes.

Declaratory of Common Law.—A similar section in the act creating the Railroad Commission was held, in Atlantic Exp. Co. v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 111 N. C. 463, 16 S. E. 393, to be merely declaratory of the common law, and not to enlarge its scope.

May Require Trains to Make Connection.—The Corporation Commission of the state has power to require a railroad company to have a train arrive at a certain station on its road at a certain schedule time, so as to connect with the train of another company. Corp. Comm. v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 1, 49 S. E. 191.

Express Facilities.—A railroad company is not compelled to furnish express facilities to another to conduct an express business over its road the same as it provides for itself or affords to any other express company. Atlantic Exp. Co. v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 463, 16 S. E. 393.

§ 1108. Failure to make reports.—Every officer, agent or employee of any railroad company, express or telegraph company, who shall willfully neglect or refuse to make and furnish any report required by the commissioner for the purpose of this chapter, or who shall willfully or unlawfully hinder, delay or obstruct the commissioner in the discharge of the duties hereby imposed upon him, shall forfeit and pay five hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered in an action in the name of the state. A delay of ten days to make and furnish such report shall raise the presumption that the same was willful. (Rev., s. 1089; 1899, c. 164, s. 18.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to parties to suits for penalties, see sec. 447.

Construction of Similar Statute.—In construing a statute (Code of 1883, s. 1960.) which provided a similar penalty against corporations for failure to make the returns into the court, in State v. Marietta, etc., Railroad, 108 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 1041, it was held, that it could only be recovered in an action brought by the state. A private relator could not maintain the action. State v. Marietta, etc., Railroad, 108 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 1041.

§ 1109. Offenses by railroads, not otherwise provided for.—If any railroad company shall violate the provisions of this chapter not otherwise provided for, such railroad company shall incur a penalty of one hundred dollars for each violation, to be recovered by the party injured. (Rev., s. 1090; 1899, c. 164, s. 17.)

As to parties to suits for penalties generally, see sec. 447.

Action Ex Contractu.—It would seem that an action for the penalty hereunder is an action ex contractu for breach of an implied contract to perform a statutory duty. State v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 126 N. C. 437, 442, 36 S. E. 14.

Construction of Penal Statute.—The rule that a penal statute must be strictly construed, means no more than that the court, in ascertaining the meaning of such a statute, cannot go beyond the plain meaning of the words and phraseology employed in search of an intention not certainly implied by them, and when there is reasonable doubt as to the meaning of the words used in the statute, the court will not give them such an interpretation as to impose the penalty, nor will the purpose of the statute be extended by implication, so as to embrace cases not clearly within its meaning. Hines v Wilmington. etc.. Railroad, 95 N. C. 434.

§ 1110. Violation of rules, causing injury; damages; limitation.—If any railroad company doing business in this state shall, in violation of any rule or regulation provided by the commissioner, inflict any wrong or injury on any person, such person shall have a right of action and recovery for such wrong or injury, in any court having jurisdiction thereof, and the damages to be recovered shall be the same as in an action between individuals, except that in case of willful violation of law such railroad company shall be liable to exemplary damages: Provided, that all suits under this chapter shall be brought within one year after the commission of the alleged wrong or injury. (Rev., s. 1091; 1899, c. 164, s. 16.)

There is no requirement at common law, and no statute in the state, obliging railroad companies to fence their tracks. Jones v. Western North Carolina Railroad, 95 N. C. 328.

§ 1111. Action for penalty; when and how brought.—An action for the recovery of any penalty under this chapter shall be instituted in the county in which the penalty has been incurred, and shall be instituted in the name of the state of North Carolina on the relation of the utilities commissioner against the company incurring such penalty; or whenever such action is upon the complaint of any injured person or corporation, it shall be instituted in the name of the state of North Carolina on the relation of the utilities commissioner upon the complaint of such injured person or corporation against the company incurring such penalty. Such action shall be instituted and prosecuted by the attorney-general or the solicitor of the judicial district in which such penalty has been incurred, and the judge before whom the same is tried shall determine the amount of compensation to be allowed the attorney-general or such solicitor prosecuting said action for his services, and such compensation so determined shall be taxed as part of the cost. The procedure in such actions, the right of appeal and the rules regulating appeals shall be the same as are now provided by law in other civil actions. (Rev., s. 1092; 1899, c. 164, s. 15.)

Cross References.—As to whether or not the Attorney-General, or solicitor, must turn the compensation provided for in the section over to the State Treasurer, see sec. 3850; as to action for penalty being an action ex contractu, see annotation under section 1109; as to construction of statutes imposing penalties, see sec. 1109; as to parties to suits for penalties generally, see sec. 447. As to substitution of "utilities commissioner" for "corporation commission," see editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1112. Remedies, cumulative.—The remedies given by this chapter to persons injured shall be regarded as cumulative to the remedies now given or which may be given by law against railroad corporations, and this chapter shall not be construed as repealing any statute giving such remedies. (Rev., s. 1093; 1899, c. 164, s. 26.)

Art. 8. Utilities Commissioner

§ 1112(a). Office of utilities commissioner created.—There is hereby created the office of utilities commissioner, who shall have general power and control over the public utilities and public-service corporations of the state, and such supervision as may be necessary to carry into full force and effect the laws regulating the companies, corporations, partnerships, and individuals hereinafter referred to, and to fix and regulate the rates charged the public for service, and to require such efficient service to be given as may be reasonably necessary. (1933, c. 134, s. 2.)

Cross References.—For comment on this and subsequent sections, see 12 N. C. Law Rev., 292, and references therein.

Editor's Note.—The General Assembly of 1891, c. 320, passed and ratified an Act establishing a Railroad Commission, and four days later passed another Act, Laws of 1891, c. 498, making the said Commission a court of record. As was said by Clark, C. J., in Corporation Comm. v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 1, 12, 49 S. E. 191, by the passage of these Acts, "the State made a radical change in its attitude towards railroads. * * * This Act was passed after the fullest discussion for years before the people of the State. It expressed their deliberate conviction that the time had arrived when the State, in the public interest, should supervise and control the charges and the conduct of common carriers, including express companies, telegraphs, telephones, and steamboats." The Amendatory Act of 1897, c. 206, extended very greatly the jurisdiction and powers of the Commission by giving it jurisdiction over street railways, express and telegraph companies, and power to require telephone companies to extend their lines and establish new agencies, to make rules for receiving, forwarding and delivering messages. A penalty was provided for a violation of these laws.

The acts discussed above were repealed by Acts 1933, c. 134. The following cases, decided before the acts were repealed, construed section 1023 as it appeared in Michie's Code of 1931, and are made available to the practitioner as an aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

Legislative Power to Regulate.—The general power of the Legislature to provide reasonable rules and regulations, directly or through a commission, has been held in Atlantic Exp. Co. v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 463, 472, 16 S. E. 393, 32 Am. St. 805; in Corporation Comm. v. Seaboard Air Line System, 127 N. C. 283, 288, 37 S. E. 266, and cases there cited. Among the federal decisions, this was asserted in Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, and has been reiterated in numerous cases since, collected in 9 Rose's Notes, pp. 21-55. And in New York is stated in People v. Budd, 117 N. Y. 1, 5 L. R. A. 566, 51 Am. St. 460. See Corporation Comm. v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 1, 14, 49 S. E. 191.

The power of the Legislature, either directly or through appropriate governmental agencies, to establish reasonable regulations for public-service corporations in matters affecting the public interests is now universally recognized, and the principle has been approved in well considered decisions dealing directly with the question. Atlantic Coast Line Railroad v. Goldsboro, 155 N. C. 356, 71 S. E. 314, affirmed on writ of error to Supreme Court of United States, 232 U. S. 548-558; Corporation Comm. v. Seaboard Air Line Railroad, 140 N. C. 239; 52 S. E. 941; Corporation Comm. v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 1, 49 S. E. 191; In re Southern Public Utilities Co., 179 N. C. 151, 159, 101 S. E. 619.

Does Not Interfere with Interstate Commerce.—The Railroad Commission, established by c. 320, Acts of 1891 existed solely under the Constitution and laws of this State and had no recognition in the laws of the United States, and being concerned solely in domestic affairs and trade, did not interfere with interstate commerce. Caldwell v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 425, 28 S. E. 554.

§ 1112(b). Supervisory powers. — Under the rules and regulations herein prescribed and subject to the limitations hereinafter set forth, the said utilities commissioner shall have general supervision over the rates charged and the service given, as follows, to wit:

(1) By railroads, street railways, steamboats, canals, express and sleeping-car companies, and all persons, firms or corporations engaged in the carrying of freight or passengers or otherwise engaged as common carriers;

(2) By telephone and telegraph companies and all other companies engaged in the transmission of messages, and by all firms and individuals owning or operating telephone or telegraph lines in the state;

(3) By electric light, power, water, and gas companies, and corporations, other than such as are municipally owned or conducted, and all other companies, corporations, or individuals engaged in furnishing electricity, electric light current, power, or in transmitting or selling the same or producing the same from the water courses of this state;

(4) By all water power and hydroelectric companies or corporations now doing business in this state or which may hereafter engage in doing business in this state, whether organized under the laws of this state or under the laws of any other state or country, and such companies and corporations are deemed to be public-service companies and subject to the laws of this state regulating the same;

(5) By flume companies, corporations, other than municipal corporations, or individuals owning or operating public sewerage systems in the state of North Carolina;

And the said utilities commissioner is hereby vested under this section with all power necessary to require and compel any public utility or public-service corporation of the kinds herein designated or any other class of public utility to provide and furnish to the citizens of this state reasonable service of the kind it underakes to furnish and fix and regulate the reasonable rates and charges to be made to the citizens of the state who may be entitled to use the same under such rules and regulations as may be lawfully prescribed. (1933, c. 134, s. 3.)

§ 1112(c). Governor to appoint commissioner; term of office.—On or before the first day of April, 1933, the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint a utilities commissioner who shall enter upon the duties of his office on the first day of January, 1934, and hold his said office until the first day of January, 1935, or until his successor has been elected and qualified.

In the general election in 1934 and quadrennially thereafter, there shall be elected a utilities commissioner whose term of office shall begin on the first day of January, 1935, and quadrennially thereafter, and continue for a term of four years or until his successor has been elected and qualified.

Any vacancy in the office of the utilities commissioner caused by death, resignation, removal, failure to qualify, or any incapacity to perform the duties of his office, or otherwise, shall be filled by appointment by the governor, and the person so appointed shall fill the office until the expiration of the term of office of the person whose vacancy he was appointed to fill, or until the first day of January following the general election, subject to the provisions hereinafter set out.

Should the vacancy occur as hereinbefore set out more than sixty days prior to a general election, then at the next general election there shall be elected a utilities commissioner who shall serve for the unexpired term. In the event the vacancy should occur less than sixty days prior to a general election, the appointee of the governor shall serve until the expiration of the term of the person he was appointed to succeed. (1933, c. 134, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The following cases were decided under section 1027, now repealed, as it appeared in Michie's Code of 1931. That section provided for the removal of the commissioner by the governor. These cases are made available to the practitioner as an aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

No Federal Question Involved.—The procedure provided by a valid state law for the purpose of changing the incumbent of a state office will not in general involve any question for review by the U. S. Supreme Court. A law of that kind provides for the carrying out and enforcement of the policy of a State with reference to its political and internal administration, and a decision of the state court in regard to its construction and validity will generally be conclusive upon the said court. The facts would have to be most rare and exceptional which would give rise in a case of this nature to a federal question. Wilson v. North Carolina, 169 U. S. 586, 593, 43 L. Ed. 865, 18 S. Ct. 435.

In Wilson v. North Carolina, 169 U. S. 586, 594, 43 L. Ed. 865, 18 S. Ct. 435, it was said: "In its internal administration the state (so far as concerns the Federal Government) has entire freedom of choice as to the creation of an office for purely state purposes, and of the terms upon which it shall be held by the person filling the office. And in such matters the decision of the state court, that the procedure by which an officer has been suspended or removed from office was regular and was under a constitutional and valid statute, must generally be conclusive in this court."

Appearance before Governor "Due Process of Law." — Where a railroad commissioner, holding office under a statute which makes it the duty of the Governor of the State to suspend him until the next meeting of the general assembly in case he becomes subject to the disqualifications prescribed in the statute, is cited by the Governor in writing to appear and answer certain charges recited in the notice as to his disqualification and, in response thereto, appears or files an answer, such notice is, in effect, a citation and such appearance in person or by answer filed gives complete jurisdiction to the Governor and the consequent action of the Governor in suspending such commissioner from office, followed by a notification of the suspension and an appointment of his successor, is "due process of law." Caldwell v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 425, 28 S. E. 554.

In this latter case it is said: "The duty of suspension was imposed upon the Governor from the highest motives of public policy, to prevent the danger to the public interests which might arise from leaving such great powers and responsibilities in the hands of men legally disqualified. To leave them in full charge of their office until the next biennial session of the Legislature, or pending litigation which might be continued for years, would destroy the very object of the law. As the Governor was therefore by the very letter and spirit of the law required to act and act promptly, necessarily upon his own findings of fact, we are compelled to hold that such official action was, under the circumstances, due process of law." Quoted with approval by Mr. Justice Peckham in Wilson v. North Carolina, 169 U. S. 586, 592, 43 L. Ed. 865, 18 S. Ct. 435.

Suspension Reported to General Assembly.—Under former § 1027 before there could be any removal, the fact of suspension had to be reported to the next Legislature by the Governor, and unless that body removed the officer the effect was to reinstate him in office, and he then became entitled to the salary during the time of his suspension. Wilson v. North Carolina, 169 U. S. 586, 591, 43 L. Ed. 865, 18 S. Ct. 435.

§ 1112(d). Salary; oath of office. — The utilities commissioner shall receive an annual salary of six thousand ($6000.00) dollars, and before entering upon the duties of his office shall file with the secretary of state his oath of office to support the constitution and laws of the United States and the constitution and laws of the state of North Carolina, and to well and truly perform the duties of his said office as utilities commissioner, and that he is not the agent or attorney of any utility company or public-service corporation, or an employee thereof, and that he has no interest in any such company or corporation. (1933, c. 134, s. 5; 1935, c. 280.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 increased the salary from forty-five hundred to six thousand dollars.

§ 1112(e). Express and implied powers.—The utilities commissioner shall have, exercise, and perform all the functions, powers, and duties and have all the responsibilities conferred by this article, and all such other powers and duties as may be necessary or incident to the proper discharge of the duties of his office. (1933, c. 134, s. 6.)

§ 1112(f). Existing powers of corporation commission devolve upon utilities commissioner.—All the powers, duties, and functions, rights and responsibilities of any statute or law of this state heretofore conferred upon or vested in or exercised by the corporation commission in this state, or any member thereof, are hereby vested in the utilities commissioner, and shall from and after the dates herein specified be assumed, exercised, and performed by the utilities commissioner created by this article and his successor in office subject to the provisions of this article. Wherever and whenever, under any existing law, any report, petition, application, memorial, or communication is required or permitted to be made or addressed to the corporation commission, or any member thereof, concerning any of the matters, things, and subjects over which the said corporation commission may have heretofore exercised control, authority, or direction, such report, petition, application, or communication concerning the same shall be addressed to the utilities commissioner, and he shall have full power and supervision over the same and to act therein or thereon in such manner as was heretofore provided for the corporation commissioners or commission. (1933, c. 134, s. 7.)

the Consolidated Statutes of 1919, chapter one hundred and forty-nine (149) of the Public Laws of 1927, all revenue and machinery acts of this state, and any and all acts and laws and clauses of laws amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and all laws and clauses of laws relating to the functions, powers, duties, rights, and responsibilities of the corporation commission, or any member thereof, be and they are hereby amended so that all functions, powers, duties, rights, and responsibilities prescribed to be done and performed by the corporation commission, or any member thereof, by any of said acts and laws, shall hereafter be done and performed by the utilities commissioner, and wherever in chapter twenty-one (21) of the Consolidated Statutes of 1919, or any act amendatory thereof, reference is made to "corporation commissioner," "corporation commission of the state of North Carolina," "corporation commission of North Carolina," "corporation commission of this state," "chairman of the corporation commission," or "securities commissioner," or other designation, the aforesaid chapter and laws amendatory thereof shall be amended by striking out the aforesaid "corporation commission," "chairman of the corporation commission of the state," "securities commissioner," or other designation words, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "utilities commissioner," and wherever in any sentence or clause any pronoun or any other word is used referring to the said commissioner, corporation commission of North Carolina, or securities commissioner, appropriate pronoun or reference word shall be substituted as the context may require to follow and carry out the purposes of this section. (1933, c. 134, s. 8.)

§ 1112(h). Pending investigations and hearings to be concluded by commissioner. — The utilities commissioner shall make all investigations and conduct all hearings with respect to the matters, things, and controversies which prior to the ratification of this article were under the control and required to be made by the corporation commission, or any member thereof, as set out in chapter twenty-one of the Consolidated Statutes, chapter one hundred and forty-nine of the Public Laws of 1927, revenue and machinery acts of this state, and all other acts, laws, and clauses of laws conferring the functions, duties, powers, rights, and responsibilities upon said corporation commission, or any member thereof, and the rulings, findings, judgments, and conclusions of said utilities commissioner with respect to such matters and things, made in accordance with the provisions of this article, shall have the same force and effect and validity as the findings and conclusions heretofore made or required to be made by the corporation commission, or any member thereof, or existent under the powers conferred upon said corporation commission or any member thereof prior to the ratification of this article, and for this purpose and to this end the said utilities commissioner and the associate commissioners hereinafter provided for shall be and they are hereby constituted a court of record, known as the "utilities commission" of the state of North Carolina, and shall adopt a seal and have all the powers and jurisdiction of a court of general jurisdiction as to all the subjects embraced in this article; and the commissioners and clerks thereto shall have full power to administer oaths, hear and take evidence, and said commission or commissioners shall render their decisions upon questions of law and of fact as other courts of similar jurisdiction. (1933, c. 134, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—The following cases were decided under the section that appeared in Michie's Code of 1931 as § 1023, the provisions of which are substantially set forth in this section.

Object in Making Court of Record.—In Caldwell v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 425, 472, 28 S. E. 554, Douglas, J., said: "It was the object of the act (i. e. making the Corporation Commission a court of record) simply to give authenticity to its records and proceedings, and it adds nothing to its duties and powers."

Extension of Time Must Appear on Record.—The Corporation Commission was a court of record under former § 1023, and it had to appear thereon that a railroad company claiming an extension of time to file exceptions to the commissioner's order had done so, and no alleged parol agreement for an extension of time would be considered. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563.

Nature of Powers.—The Commission was not a judicial court under former § 1023, but an administrative agency of the State, possessing certain quasi judicial and legislative powers. State v. Southern R. Co., 151 N. C. 447, 66 S. E. 427; North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Winston-Salem, etc., R. Co., 170 N. C. 560, 563, 87 S. E. 785.

§ 1112(i). Commissioner to call in associates to determine questions of facts where amount involved exceeds $3,000.00.—Whenever in the performance of the duties herein prescribed any material issue of fact shall arise in any subject matter or controversy pending before the utilities commission, wherein the amount involved shall be three thousand ($3,000.00) dollars or more, or, in the opinion of the utilities commissioner, the interest of the public is concerned, the said commissioner shall, upon request of any party to the petition or proceeding, or upon his own motion, if he deem it advisable, and to the public interest, notify the associate commissioners hereinafter provided for, to sit with him for the purpose of hearing and determining such matters or issues of fact. The said associate commissioners shall be given ten days notice by the utilities commissioner of the time and place of such hearing, and a similar notice shall likewise be given to all parties interested in such proceeding or hearing. In all matters, controversies, or proceedings brought before said utilities commissioner wherein the amount involved is less than the sum of $3,000.00, and in the opinion of the commissioner the public interest is not concerned, the said utilities commissioner sitting alone shall hear the matter and proceed to judgment thereon, subject to the right of appeal to the superior court as now provided by law. (1933, c. 134, s. 10.)

§ 1112(j). Governor to appoint two associate commissioners.—As soon as practicable after the ratification of this article and before the same goes into effect, the governor, with advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint two associate commissioners who shall be residents of this state and otherwise qualified, one of whom shall hold office until the first day of January, 1935, or until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, and one shall hold office until the first day of January, 1937, or until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, who shall, when notified and called upon by said utilities commissioner, sit with him for the purpose of hearing and determining all controverted matters or issues of fact as hereinabove provided. At the expiration of each of the above named terms and quadrennially thereafter there shall be appointed in the same manner one associate commissioner who shall hold office for the term of four years.

The said associate commissioners shall receive as compensation for their services rendered hereunder the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars per day and actual expenses while engaged in said hearings: Provided the total amount expended for such per diem for said associate commissioners shall not exceed the sum of eighteen hundred ($1800.00) dollars per year. In case of a vacancy in the office of commissioner from any causes, the unexpired term of such commissioner shall be filled by appointment of the governor: Provided said associate commissioners shall enter upon the duties of their office January 1, 1934. (1933, c. 134, s. 11.)

§ 1112(k). Judgments of commission.—The said utilities commissioner, in matters solely within his jurisdiction, and the said commissioner, together with the associate commissioners, when called upon as hereinabove provided, shall hear and determine such matter, thing, or controversy in dispute, pass upon and determine the issues of fact raised thereon, and the questions of law involved therein, and make and enter their findings and conclusions thereon as the judgment of the said utilities commissioner of North Carolina. From the decision of said utilities commissioner, or the said utilities commission, any party to said proceeding may appeal to the superior court at term as designated in and under the rules of procedure required by section (s) 1097, 1098, 1099, 1100, 1101, 1102, consolidated statutes, said appeal to be prosecuted and the said matter and controversy there to be heard and disposed of as is now provided by law, and upon such appeal being taken, it shall be the duty of the utilities commission to certify its decision and rulings to the said superior court as now provided by law. (1933, c. 134, s. 12.)

§ 1112(l). Public record of proceedings. — The utilities commissioner shall keep in his office at all times a record of his official acts, rulings, and transactions, which shall be public records of the state of North Carolina, and all rulings and determinations of said commission upon matters and things authorized to be passed upon by this article, and shall have and appoint a chief clerk, who shall be experienced in railroad and other public utilities statistics, transportation and public-service charges, and whose term of office shall be for a period of two years, and he shall file with the secretary of state the oath of office similar to that prescribed for the utilities commissioner. The utilities commissioner shall have power to remove such clerk for cause at any time. (1933, c. 134, s. 13.)

§ 1112(m). Clerical assistance. — The utilities commissioner shall be allowed such stenographic and other clerical assistance as he may require for the performance of the duties and functions of his said office, to be established and fixed by such department, bureau, or other state agency as may be charged by law with the duty of determining the extent of such assistance in said departments, all such stenographers, clerks, and assistants and special investigators so provided for to be appointed by the utilities commissioner and subject to removal or discharge by him. The salaries and compensation of such clerical assistants, special investigators, or other office force as may be allowed in the office of the utilities commission shall be fixed in the manner as now provided by law for fixing and regulating the salaries and compensation by other state departments. (1933, c. 134, s. 14.)

§ 1112(n). Seal of office; certificate.—In all cases where the seal is required on any document, the seal adopted as herein prescribed by the utilities commissioner shall be sufficient, and whenever any record, paper, or document is required to be certified or evidenced by the certificate of the utilities commissioner or his chief clerk or wherever any act or thing is required or permitted to be evidenced by such certificate, the certificate shall be made by the utilities commissioner, and shall have the valid force and effect now given by law to any such certificate which may have heretofore been required to be made by the corporation commission. (1933, c. 134, s. 15.)

§ 1112(o). Commissioner to keep himself informed as to utilities.—The said utilities commissioner shall at all times be required to keep himself-informed as to the public-service corporations hereinbefore specified and enumerated, their rates and charges for service, and the service supplied to the citizens of the state and purposes therefor; and he shall at all times be empowered and required to inquire into such service and rates charged therefor, and to fix and determine as herein provided the reasonableness thereof, and upon petition or otherwise to make full inquiry into such rates and charges in behalf of the citizens of the state, and compel and require compliance with the regulations and charges, and final determination fixed therefor under the provisions of this article, and no corporation, association, partnership, or individual doing business in the state of North Carolina as a public-service corporation, or any corporation herein designated, shall be allowed to increase its rate and charge for service or change its classification in any manner whatsoever except upon petition duly filed with the utilites commission and inquiry held thereon and final determination of the reasonableness and necessity of any such increase change in classification or service: Provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent any public-service corporation from reducing its rates either directly or by change in classification. (1933, c. 134, s. 16.)

§ 1112(p) Surrender of present quarters to commissioner. — The utilities commissioner shall occupy the offices now occupied by the corporation commission and the securities commissioner, or so much thereof as shall be necessary for the performance of the functions and duties herein prescribed, and such offices shall be turned over to the said utilities commission. Upon the induction into office of the utilities commissioner, the corporation commission shall turn over and deliver to him all books, records, papers, and documents and he shall be responsible for the safe keeping thereof. (1933, c. 134, s. 17.)

§ 1112(q). Continuance of present rate inquiry by corporation commission. — The corporation commission shall proceed as promptly as possible to investigate, determine and fix fair and equitable rates on telephone, telegraph and other public utility service in line with present economic conditions. (1933, c. 134, s. 18.)

Art. 9. Public Utilities Act of 1933

§ 1112(1). Definitions.—(a) The term "corporation," when used in this article, includes a private corporation, an association, a joint stock association or a business trust.

(b) The term "person," when used in this article, includes a natural person, a partnership or two or more persons having a joint or common interest, and a corporation as hereinbefore defined.

(c) The term "municipality," when used in this article, includes a city, a county, a village, a town, and any other public corporation existing, created or organized as a governmental unit under the constitution or laws of the State.

(d) The term "commission" shall mean the corporation commission.

(e) The term "public utility," when used in this article, includes persons and corporations, or their lessees, trustees and receivers now or hereafter owning or operating in this state equipment or facilities for:

(1) Producing, generating, transmitting, delivering or furnishing gas, electricity, steam or any agency for the production of light, heat or power to or for the public for compensation;

(2) Diverting, developing, pumping, impounding, distributing or furnishing water to or for the public for compensation;

(3) Transporting persons or property by street, suburban or interurban railways for the public for compensation;

(4) Transporting persons or property by motor vehicles for the public for compensation, but not including taxicab, operating on call, or truck transfer service in cities or towns;

(5) Transporting or conveying gas, crude oil or other fluid substance by pipe line for the public for compensation;

(6) Conveying or transmitting messages or communications by telephone or telegraph, where such service is offered to the public for compensation;

(7) The term "public utility" shall for rate making purposes only include any person producing, generating or furnishing any of the foregoing services to another person for distribution to or for the public for compensation.

The term "public utility" shall not include any person not otherwise a public utility, who furnishes the services or commodity only to himself, his employees or tenants when such service or commodity is not resold to or used by others. The business of any public utility other than of the character defined in subdivisions 1 to 7, inclusive, of subdivision (e) of this section is not subject to the provisions of this act.

(f) The term "rate," when used in this article, means and includes every compensation, charge, fare, toll, rental and classification, or any of them, demanded, observed, charged or collected by any public utility, for any service, product or commodity offered by it to the public, and any rules, regulations, practices or contracts affecting any such compensation, charge, fare, toll, rental or classification. (1933, c. 307, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1935, ch. 134, codified as secs. 1112(a)-1112(q), abolishing the corporation commission, created the office of utilities commissioner and provided for the appointment of two associate commissioners. Section 8 of the act, codified as sec. 1112(g), provided that this chapter be amended so that all the functions, powers, duties, etc., of the corporation commission "shall hereafter be done and performed by the utilities commissioner." The sections of this article should be read with this provision in mind though the act constituting this article was subsequently enacted.

§ 1112(2). Rates must be just and reasonable.—Every rate made, demanded or received by any public utility, or by any two or more public utilities jointly, shall be just and reasonable. (1933, c. 307, s. 2.)

§ 1112(3). Service. — Every public utility shall furnish adequate, efficient and reasonable service. (1933, c. 307, s. 3.)

§ 1112(4). To file rate schedules with commission.—Under such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe, every public utility shall file with the commission, within such time and in such form as the commission may designate, schedules showing all rates established by it and collected or enforced, or to be collected or enforced within the jurisdiction of the commission. The utility shall keep copies of such schedules open to public inspection under such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe. (1933, c. 307, s. 4.)

§ 1112(5). Rates higher than schedule prohibited.—No public utility shall directly or indirectly, by any device whatsoever, or in any wise, charge, demand, collect or receive from any person a greater or less compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered by such public utility than that prescribed in the schedules of such public utility applicable thereto then filed in the manner provided in this act, nor shall any person receive or accept any service from a public utility for a compensation greater or less than that prescribed in such schedules. (1933, c. 307, s. 5.)

§ 1112(6). Discrimination prohibited.—No public utility shall, as to rates or services, make or grant any unreasonable preference or advantage to any corporation or person or subject any corporation or person to any unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage. No public utility shall establish or maintain any unreasonable difference as to rates or services either as between localities or as between classes of service. The commission may determine any questions of fact arising under this section. (1933, c. 307, s. 6.)

For a discussion of this and related sections, see 11 N. C. Law Rev., 246.

§ 1112(7). Change of rates.—Unless the commission otherwise orders, no public utility shall make any changes in any rate which has been duly established under this article, except after thirty days' notice to the commission, which notice shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the rates then in force, and the time when the changed rates will go into effect. The utility shall also give such notice of the proposed changes to other interested persons as the commission in its discretion may direct. All proposed changes shall be shown by filing new schedules, or shall be plainly indicated upon schedules filed and in force at the time and kept open to public inspection. The commission, for good cause shown, may allow changes in rates, without requiring the thirty days' notice, under such conditions as it may prescribe. All such changes shall be immediately indicated upon its schedules by such public utility.

Whenever there is filed with the commission by any public utility any schedule stating a new rate or rates, the commission may, either upon complaint or upon its own initiative, upon reasonable notice, enter upon a hearing concerning the lawfulness of such rate or rates; and pending such hearing and the decision thereon the commission, upon filing with such schedule and delivering to the utility affected thereby a statement in writing of its reasons therefor, may, at any time before they become effective, suspend the operation of such rate or rates, but not for a longer period than ninety (90) days beyond the time when such rate or rates would otherwise go into effect unless the commission shall find that a longer time will be required, in which case the commission may extend the period for not to exceed six (6) months: Provided, and notwithstanding any such order of suspension, the public utility may put such suspended rate or rates into effect on the date when it or they would have become effective, if not so suspended, by filing with the commission a bond in a reasonable amount approved by the commission, with sureties approved by the commission, conditioned upon the refund, in a manner to be prescribed by order of the commission to the persons entitled thereto of the amount of the excess, if the rate or rates so put into effect are finally determined to be excessive; or there may be substituted for such bond, other arrangements satisfactory to the commission for the protection of the parties interested. If the public utility fails to make refund within thirty (30) days after such final determination, any person entitled to such refund may sue therefor in any court of this state of competent jurisdiction and be entitled to recover, in addition to the amount of the refund due, all court costs, but no suit may be maintained for that purpose unless instituted within two years after such final determination. Any number of persons entitled to such refund may join as plaintiffs and recover their several claims in a single action; in which action the court shall render a judgment severally for each plaintiff as his interest may appear. During any such period of suspension the commission may, in its discretion, require that the public utility involved shall furnish to its consumers or patrons a certificate or other evidence of payments made by them. (1933, c. 307, s. 7.)

§ 1112(8). Changing unreasonable rates after hearing.—Whenever the commission, after a hearing had after reasonable notice upon its own motion or upon complaint, finds that the existing rates in effect and collected by any public utility for any service, product, or commodity, are unjust, insufficient or discriminatory, or in any wise in violation of any provision of law, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable and sufficient rates to be thereafter observed and in force, and shall fix the same by order as hereinafter provided. (1933, c. 307, s. 8.)

§ 1112(9). Compelling telephone and telegraph companies to form continuous lines to certain points.—The commission may upon complaint, in writing, by any person, or on its own initiative after a hearing on reasonable notice, by order require any two or more telephone or telegraph companies whose lines or wires form a continuous line of communication, or could be made to do so by the construction and maintenance of suitable connections or the joint use of equipment, or the transfer of messages at common points, between different localities which can not be communicated with or reached by the lines of either company alone, where such service is not already established or provided, to establish and maintain through lines within the state between two or more such localities. The rate for such service shall be just and reasonable and the commission shall have power to establish the same, and declare the portion thereof to which each company affected thereby is entitled and the manner in which the same must be secured and paid. All necessary construction, maintenance and equipment in order to establish such service shall be constructed and maintained in such manner and under such rules, with such division of expense and labor as may be required by the commission. (1933, c. 307, s. 9.)

§ 1112(10). Compelling efficient service after hearing.—Whenever the commission, after a hearing after reasonable notice had upon its own motion or upon complaint, finds that the service of any public utility is unreasonable, unsafe, inadequate, insufficient or unreasonably discriminatory, the commission shall determine the reasonable, safe, adequate, sufficient service to be observed, furnished, enforced or employed and shall fix the same by its order, rule or regulation. (1933, c. 307, s. 10.)

§ 1112(11). Fixing standards, classifications, etc.; testing service.—The commission may, after hearing upon reasonable notice had upon its own motion or upon complaint, ascertain and fix just and reasonable standards, classifications, regulations, practices or service to be furnished, imposed, observed and followed by any or all public utilities; ascertain and fix adequate and reasonable standards for the measurement of quantity, quality, pressure, initial voltage or other condition pertaining to the supply of the product, commodity or service furnished or rendered by any and all public utilities; prescribe reasonable regulations for the examination and testing of such product, commodity or service and for the measurement thereof; establish or approve reasonable rules, regulations, specifications and standards to secure the accuracy of all meters and appliances for measurement; and provide for the examination and testing of any and all appliances used for the measurement of any product, commodity or service of any public utility. (1933, c. 307, s. 11.)

§ 1112(12). Valuing and revaluing utility property.—The commission may, on hearing after reasonable notice, ascertain and fix the value of the whole or any part of the property of any public utility insofar as the same is material to the exercise of the jurisdiction of the commission, and may make revaluations from time to time and ascertain the value of all new construction, extension and additions to the property of every public utility. (1933, c. 307, s. 12.)

§ 1112(13). Establishment of accounting system.—The commission may establish a system of accounts to be kept by the public utilities, subject to its jurisdiction, or may classify said public utilities and establish a system of accounts for each class, and prescribe the manner in which such accounts shall be kept. (1933, c. 307, s. 13.)

§ 1112(14). Visitorial and inspection powers of commission.—The commissioners and the officers and employees of the commission may during all reasonable hours enter upon any premises occupied by any public utility, for the purpose of making the examinations and tests and exercising any power provided for in this article, and may set up and use on such premises any apparatus and appliances necessary therefor. Such public utility shall have the right to be represented at the making of such examination, tests and inspections. (1933, c. 307, s. 14.)

§ 1112(15). Annual reports.—The commission may require any public utility to file annual reports in such form and of such content as the commission may require and special reports concerning any matter about which the commission is authorized to inquire or to keep itself informed, or which it is required to enforce. All reports shall be under oath when required by the commission. (1933, c. 307, s. 15.)

§ 1112(16). Investigation into management of utilities.—The commission may, on its own motion and whenever it may be necessary in the performance of its duties, investigate and examine the condition and management of public utilities or any particular utility. In conducting such investigations the commission may proceed either with or without a hearing as it may deem best, but it shall make no order without affording the parties affected thereby a hearing. (1933, c. 307, s. 16.)

§ 1112(17). Permission of commission to pledge assets.—No public utility shall pledge its faith, credit, moneys or property for the benefit of any holder of its preferred or common stocks or bonds, nor for any other business interest with which it may be affiliated through agents or holding companies or otherwise by the authority of the action of its stockholders, directors, or contract or other agents, the compliance or result of which would in any manner deplete, reduce, conceal, abstract or dissipate the earnings or assets thereof, decrease or increase its liabilities or assets, without first making application to the commission and by order obtain its permission so to do; nor shall any such utility pay any fees, commissions or compensation of any description whatsoever, to any holding, managing, operating, constructing, engineering, financing, or purchasing company or agency including subsidiary or affiliated companies, for services rendered or to be rendered without first filing copies of all proposed agreements and contracts with the commission and obtaining its approval. (1933, c. 307, s. 17.)

§ 1112(18). Assumption of certain liabilities and obligations to be approved by commission.—No utility shall issue any securities, or assume any liability or obligation as lessor, lessee, guarantor, indorser, surety, or otherwise, in respect to the securities of any other person unless and until, and then only to the extent that, upon application by the utility, and after investigation by the commission of the purposes and uses of the proposed issue, and the proceeds thereof, or of the proposed assumption of obligation or liability in respect of the securities of any other person, the commission by order authorizes such issue or assumption. The commission shall make such order only if it finds that such issue or assumption (a) is for some lawful object within the corporate purposes of the utility, (b) is compatible with the public interest, (c) is necessary or appropriate for or consistent with the proper performance by the utility of its service to the public as such utility and will not impair its ability to perform that service, and, (d) is reasonably necessary and appropriate for such purpose. Any such order of the commission shall specify the purposes for which any such securities or the proceeds thereof may be used by the utility making such application. (1933, c. 307, s. 18.)

§ 1112(19). Commission may approve in whole or in part or refuse approval.—The commission, by its order, may grant or deny the application provided for in the preceding section as made, or may grant it in part or deny it in part or may grant it with such modification and upon such terms and conditions as the commission may deem necessary or appropriate in the premises and may, from time to time, for good cause shown, make such supplemental orders in the premises as it may deem necessary or appropriate and may, by any such supplemental order, modify the provisions of any previous order as to the particular purposes, uses, and extent to which or the conditions under which any securities so theretofore authorized or the proceeds thereof may be applied; subject always to the requirements of the foregoing section. (1933, c. 307, s. 19.)

§ 1112(20). Contents of application for permission.—Every application for authority for such issue or assumption shall be made in such form and contain such matters as the commission may prescribe. Every such application and every certificate of notification hereinafter provided for, shall be made under oath, signed and filed on behalf of the utility by its president, a vice-president, auditor, comptroller, or other executive officer having knowledge of the matters therein set forth and duly designated for that purpose by the utility. (1933, c. 307, s. 20.)

§ 1112(21). Applications to receive immediate attention; continuances.—All applications for the issuance of securities or assumption of liability or obligation shall be placed at the head of the commission's docket and disposed of promptly, and all such applications shall be disposed of in thirty (30) days after the same are filed with the commission, unless it is necessary for good cause to continue the same for a longer period for consideration. Whenever such application is continued beyond thirty (30) days after the time it is filed, the order making such continuance must state fully the facts necessitating such continuance. (1933, c. 307, s. 21.)

§ 1112(22). Notifying commission as to disposition of securities.—Whenever any securities set forth and described in any such application for authority or certificate of notification as pledged or held unincumbered in the treasury of the utility shall, subsequent to the filing of such application or certificate, be sold, pledged, repledged, or otherwise disposed of, by the utility, such utility shall, within ten days after such sale, pledge, repledge, or make other disposition of, file with the commission a certificate of notification to that effect, setting forth therein all such facts as may be required by the commission. (1933, c. 307, s. 22.)

§ 1112(23). No guarantee on part of state.—Nothing herein shall be construed to imply any guarantee or obligation as to such securities on the part of the state of North Carolina. (1933, c. 307. s. 23.)

§ 1112(24). Article not applicable to note issues; renewals likewise excepted.—The provisions of the foregoing sections shall not apply to notes issued by a utility for the proper purposes and not in violation of law, payable at a period of not more than two (2) years from the date thereof, and shall not apply to like notes issued by a utility payable at a period of not more than two (2) years from date thereof, to pay, retire, discharge, or refund in whole or in part any such note or notes and shall not apply to renewals thereof from time to time not exceeding in the aggregate six (6) years from the date of the issue of the original note or notes so renewed or refunded. No such notes payable at a period of not more than two (2) years from the date thereof, shall, however, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, be paid, retired, discharged or refunded by any issue of securities of another kind of any term or character or from the proceeds thereof without the approval of the commission. (1933, c. 307, s. 24.)

§ 1112(25). Not applicable to debentures of court receivers; notice to commission.—Nothing contained in this article shall limit the power of any court having jurisdiction to authorize or cause receiver's certificate or debentures to be issued according to the rules and practice obtaining in receivership proceedings in courts of equity. Within ten (10) days after the making of any such notes, so payable at periods of not more than two (2) years from the date thereof, the utility issuing the same shall file with the commission a certificate of notification, in such form as may from time to time be determined and prescribed by the commission. (1933, c. 307, s. 25.)

§ 1112(26). Periodical or special reports.—The commission shall require periodical or special reports from each utility hereafter issuing any security including such notes payable at periods of not more than two (2) years from the date thereof, which shall show, in such detail as the commission may require, the disposition made of such securities and the application of the proceeds thereof. (1933, c. 307, s. 26.)

§ 1112(27). Failure to obtain approval not to invalidate securities or obligations.—(a) Securities issued and obligations and liabilities assumed by a utility, for which under the provisions of this article the authorization of the commission is required, shall not be invalidated because issued or assumed without such authorization therefor having first been obtained or because issued or assumed contrary to any term or condition of such order of authorization as modified by any order supplemental thereto entered prior to such issuance or assumption. (b) Securities issued or obligations or liabilities assumed in accordance with all the terms and conditions of the order of authorization therefor shall not be affected by a failure to comply with any provision of this article or rule or regulation of the commission relating to procedure and other matters preceding the entry of such order of authorization or order supplemental thereto. (c) A copy of any order made and entered by the commission as in this article provided (duly certified by the clerk of the commission) approving the issuance of any securities or the assumption of any obligation or liability by a utility shall, in and of itself, be sufficient evidence, for all purposes, of full and complete compliance by the applicant for such approval with all procedural and other matters required precedent to the entry of such order. (d) Any utility which willfully issues any such securities, or assumes any such obligation or liability, or makes any sale or other disposition of securities, or applies any securities or the proceeds thereof to purposes other than the purposes specified in an order of the commission with respect thereto, contrary to the provisions of this article, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than ten thousand dollars, but such utility is only required to specify in general terms the purpose for which any securities are to be issued, or for which any obligation or liability is to be assumed, and the order of the commission with respect thereto shall likewise be in general terms. (1933, c. 307, s. 27.)

§ 1112(28). Commission may act jointly with agency of another state where utility operates. — If a commission or other agency or agencies is empowered by another state to regulate and control the amount and character of securities to be issued by any public utility within such other state, then the corporation commission of the state of North Carolina shall have the power to agree with such commission or other agency or agencies of such other state on the issue of stocks, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness by a public utility owning or operating a public utility both in such state and in this state, and shall have the power to approve such issue jointly with such commission or other agency or agencies and to issue joint certificate of such approval: Provided, however, that no such joint approval shall be required in order to express the consent to an approval of such issue by the state of North Carolina if said issue is separately approved by the corporation commission of the state of North Carolina. (1933, c. 307, s. 28.)

those of utility. — The willful act of any officer, agent, or employee of a utility, acting within the scope of his official duties of employment, shall, for the purpose of this article be deemed to be the willful act of the utility. (1933, c. 307. s. 29.)

§ 1112(30). Actions to recover penalties.—Actions to recover penalties under this article shall be brought in the name of the state of North Carolina, in the county in which the offense was committed. Whenever any utility is subject to a penalty under this article, the commission shall certify the facts to the attorney-general, who shall institute and prosecute an action for the recovery of such penalty: Provided, the commission may compromise such action and dismiss the same on such terms as the court will approve. (1933, c. 307. s. 30.)

§ 1112(31). Penalties to school fund. — All penalties recovered by the state in such action shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of the school fund. (1933, c. 307, s. 31.)

§ 1112(32). Abandonment and reduction of service. — Upon finding that public convenience and necessity are no longer served, or that there is no reasonable probability of a utility realizing sufficient revenue from the service to meet its expenses, the commission shall have power, after petition, notice and hearing, to authorize by order any utility to abandon or reduce its service or facilities. (1933, c. 307, s. 32.)

§ 1112(33). Water gauging stations.—The commission may require the location, establishment, maintenance and operation of water gauging stations, and the commission and the North Carolina department of conservation and development may co-operate with each other as to such locations, construction and reports and upon the results of operation. (1933, c. 307, s. 33.)

§ 1112(34). Reports from municipalities operating own utilities. — Every municipality engaged in operating any works or systems for the manufacture and supplying of gas or electricity, or purchasing same for distribution and resale, or operating telephone exchanges, shall make an annual report to the commission, verified by the oath of the general manager or superintendent thereof, on the same blanks as now provided for reports of privately owned utilities, giving the same information as required of such utilities. (1933, c. 307, s. 34.)

§ 1112(35). Refusal to permit commission to inspect records made misdemeanor.—Any public utility, its officers or agents in charge thereof, that fails or refuses upon the written demand of the commission, or a majority of said commission, and under the seal of the commission, to permit the commission, its authorized representatives or employees to examine and inspect its books, records, accounts and documents, or its plant, property, or facilities, as provided for by law, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Each day of such failure or refusal shall constitute a separate offense and each such offense shall be punishable by a fine of not less than five hundred and not more than five thousand dollars. (1933, c. 307, s. 35.)

§ 1112(36). Willful disobedience to orders of commission incurs forfeiture.—Every public utility and the officers, agents and employees thereof shall obey, observe and comply with every order made by the commission under authority of this article so long as the same shall be and remain in force. Any such person or corporation, or any officer, agent or employee thereof, who knowingly fails or neglects to obey or comply with such order, or any provision of this article, shall forfeit to the state of North Carolina not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars for each offense. Every distinct violation of any such order or of this article shall be a separate and distinct offense, and in case of a continuing violation each day shall be deemed a separate and distinct offense.

No present provision of law shall be deemed to be repealed by this article except such as are directly in conflict therewith. (1933, c. 307, s. 36.)

CHAPTER 22
CORPORATIONS

Art. 1. Definitions

§ 1113. Definitions.—The following words and phrases where used in this chapter, unless differently defined or described, have the meanings and references stated below:

1. "Corporation" refers to a corporation which may be created and organized under this chapter, or under any other general or any special act.
2. "Certificate of incorporation" is the instrument filed by the incorporators and by which the corporation is formed.
3. The words "special act" refer to the act of the legislature enacted for the purpose of creating the corporation.
4. The word "charter" means either "certificate of incorporation" or "special act," together with all appropriate parts of this chapter and its amendments.
5. "Court," "superior court," or "judge of the superior court" means the judge of the superior court resident in the district or holding the courts of the district in which the corporation affected has its principal place of business.
6. "Receiver" as used in this chapter includes receivers and trustees appointed by the court, as herein provided. (Rev., ss. 1136, 1222, 1247; Code, s. 668; 1901, c. 2, ss. 7, 74, 111.)

Cross References.—For a complete treatment of corporations, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 506-651 and 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 470-505. For the constitutional provisions concerning corporations, see Constitution, Art. 8. For the power of the Legislature over charters, see Constitution Art. 8, sec. 1 and also sec. 1135 infra. As to the requirement of the certificate of incorporation, see sec. 1115. As to jurisdiction of superior courts over corporations, see sec. 1195. As to receivers of corporations, see sec. 1208 et seq.

In General.—A corporation, though very hard to define, has been said to be "an artifical being, invisible, intangible, and existing only in contemplation of law. Being the mere creature of law, it possesses only those properties which the charter of its creation confers upon it, either expressly or as incidental to its very existence. See the famous case of Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat, 518, 636, 4 L. Ed. 629.

It has been described as an "association of persons," contracting a joint capital for a common purpose, with assignability of shares in perpetual succession, and is a mere creature of the legislature. Horn Silver Min. Co. v. New York, 143 U. S. 305, 312, 36 L. Ed. 164.

Private, Public and Quasi Public Corporations.—Corporations are private, where the property of the corporation is private, although the corporation is engaged in a quasi public business, such as a railroad corporation, and the fact that the state owns a portion of its stock does not change its character; public and quasi public corporations, are corporations exercising a public employment, and having duties to the public to perform. Railroad Co. v. Commissioners, 103 U. S. 1, 26 L. Ed. 359; Central Transp. Co. v. Pullman's Palace Car Co., 139 U. S. 24, 50, 35 L. Ed. 55.

A Charter Defined.—A charter, is an instrument or authority from the sovereign power, bestowing rights or privileges; as it is briefly expressed, it is an act of incorporation, and an amendment thereto may be treated as part thereof. Humphrey v. Pegues, 16 Wall. 244, 21 L. Ed. 326.

Art. 2. Formation

§ 1114. How created.—Three or more persons who desire to engage in any business, or to form any company, society, or association, not unlawful, except railroads, other than street railways, or banking or insurance, or building and loan associations, may be incorporated in the following manner only (except corporations created for charitable, educational or reformatory purposes that are to be and remain under the patronage and control of the state): Such persons shall, by a certificate of incorporation, under their hands and seals, set forth—

Cross References.—As to the constitutional power of the Legislature to form corporations, see Constitution Article 8, section 1. As to the power of the Legislature to amend this chapter and the charters of corporations, see section 1135. As to the requirements for incorporating banks, see sec. 216 et seq. As to the establishment of railroads, see sec. 3412 et seq. As to creating insurance companies, see sec. 6328. As to incorporating building and loan associations, see sec. 5170.

Strict Construction. — The requirements of this section should be strictly construed. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 180, 18 S. E. 107.

Position of Corporators and Promoters. — The promoters of a corporation are held to the duties of trustees and the obligation of directors. They may not take a secret or undisclosed profit in the organization by way of shares therein or otherwise. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 93 S. E. 906.

When Powers Granted by Special Act.—When corporate powers are granted by a special, instead of a general act of the Legislature, there must be evidence of acceptance by the corporators and compliance with all the conditions precedent prescribed by law, in order to show affirmatively that the corporation is lawfully organized. Powell Brothers v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 55, 68 S. E. 926.

1. The name of the corporation. No name can be assumed which is already in use by (a) a domestic corporation, or (b) a foreign corporation authorized to do business under the laws of this State, or (c) a corporation which has heretofore or may hereafter sell its good will to any other person, firm or corporation, and notice thereof has been or may hereafter be filed in the office of the Secretary of State of North Carolina, and the filing fee of twenty-five dollars paid to the said Secretary of State: Provided, however, that the purchaser of the good will of such corporation, or his or its assigns, may be permitted to use the same name, or one similar thereto, of the corporation whose good will it has purchased. The prohibition of this paragraph shall extend to names so similar in sound or appearance to such existing corporate names as may tend to confusion of identity. The name adopted must end with the word "company," "corporation," "incorporated" or the abbreviation "inc."

As to the necessity for displaying the name of the corporation, see sec. 1136.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1935 amendment this subdivision read as follows: "No name can be assumed already in use by another domestic corporation, or so similar as to cause uncertainty or confusion, and the name adopted must end with the word 'company,' 'corporation' or 'incorporated.' "

Right to Name.—One corporation cannot prevent another from using in its corporate title a name to which others have a common right. Howe Scale Co. v. Wyckoff, 198 U. S. 118, 47 L. Ed. 972.

And in the absence of contract, fraud or estoppel, any man may use his own name, in all legitimate ways, and as the whole or a part of a corporate name. Id.

2. The location of its principal office in the state.

As to change in principal office, see sec. 1133 and for meaning of the expression, see note thereunder.

3. The object or objects for which the corporation is to be formed.

Corporation Limited to Objects Stated.—A charter of incorporation creating a company for the purpose of effecting a communication by a plank-road between designated points, with the privilege of taking tolls, does not authorize the company to establish a stage line upon their road, nor to contract for carrying the United States mail. Wiswall v. Greenville Plank-Road Co., 56 N. C. 183.

Need Not Use All Powers.—The fact that a corporation avails itself of only one of several privileges granted by its charter—that is, manufacture all the products it is permitted to manufacture—does not invalidate the act of incorporation. Wadesborro Cotton Mills Co. v. Burns, 114 N. C. 353, 19 S. E. 238.

4. The amount of the total authorized capital stock, the number of shares into which it is divided, the par value of each share, the amount of capital stock with which it will commence business, and, if there is more than one class of stock, a description of the different classes. The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to religious, charitable, nonprofit social or literary corporations, unless they desire to have a capital stock. If they desire to have no capital stock, that fact and the conditions of membership shall be stated.

Editor's Note.—The Legislature has recently made two changes in this paragraph of the section. The first sentence formerly contained the additional clause "with the terms on which the respective classes of stock are created." This concluding clause was stricken out by ch. 55, Ex. Sess. 1920.

By ch. 98, Laws of 1924 the second sentence in the paragraph was amended by inserting the words "non-profit social" immediately after the word "charitable," thus adding to the list of corporations to which the paragraph does not apply.

5. The names and postoffice addresses of the subscribers for stock and the number of shares subscribed for by each; the aggregate of the subscriptions shall be the amount of capital with which the corporation will commence business. If there is to be no capital stock, the certificate must contain the names and postoffice addresses of the incorporators.

Editor's Note.—Formerly it was not required that the number of shares taken by each subscriber be set out in the certificate of incorporation. In Cotton Mills v. Cotton Mills. 115 N. C. 475, 478, 20 S. E. 770, the court says that although this was not at that time required it is the usual practice to set them out and should have been required by statute.

6. The period, if any, limited for the duration of the corporation.

Limit of Corporate Existence.—It is unquestionably true that a corporation, whose term of existence is fixed and limited in the act which creates it, cannot endure beyond the prescribed time, unless prolonged by the same authority or continued for the purpose of adjusting and closing its business, and no judicial proceedings are required to terminate it. The expiration of the time ends the life given to the artificial body, as death terminates the life of the natural person. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 578, 579, 585.

Exhaustion.—When a charter power is once exhausted it is, in respect to further contracts and rights, as though it had never been granted. East Tennessee, etc., R. Co. v. Frazier, 139 U. S. 288, 292, 35 L. Ed. 196.

7. The certificate of incorporation may also contain any provision, consistent with the laws of this state, for the regulation of the affairs of the corporation, or creating, defining, limiting and regulating its powers, directors and stockholders, or any class or classes of the latter. (Rev., s. 1137; Code, s. 677; 1885, cc. 19, 190; 1889, c. 170; 1891, c. 257; 1893, cc. 244, 318; 1897, c. 204; 1899, c. 618; 1901, c. 2, s. 8, cc. 6, 41, 47; 1903, c. 453; 1911, c. 213, s. 1; 1913, c. 5, s. 1; Const., Art. 8, s. 1; 1920, c. 55; 1924, c. 98; 1935, cc. 166, 320.)

Under Dual Incorporation.—Where a corporation is incorporated under the laws of two states, all its powers in relation to land lying in one of them must be derived from the law of that state alone. Beaty v. Knowler, 4 Pit. 152, 167, 7 L. Ed. 813.

Liabilities. — A corporation cannot absolve itself from the performance of its obligations, without the consent of the legislature, and courts will not allow corporations to escape from their proper responsibilities by means of any disguise. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Winans, 17 How. 30, 40, 15 L. Ed. 27.

§ 1115. Requirements as to certificate of incorporation.—The certificate of incorporation shall be signed by the original stock subscribers, or a majority of them, and must be acknowledged before an officer duly authorized under the laws of this state to take the proof or acknowledgment of deeds. The certificate shall then be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and there remain of record, and he shall, if it is in accordance with law, cause it to be recorded in his office in a book to be kept for that purpose and known as the Corporation Book. Upon the payment of the organization tax and fees, the secretary of state shall certify under his official seal a copy of the certificate of incorporation and probates, which certified copy shall be forthwith recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the principal office of the corporation in this state is, or is to be, established, in a book to be known as the Record of Incorporations. The certificate, or a copy thereof, duly certified by the secretary of state, or by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which it is recorded, is evidence in all courts and places, and in all judicial proceedings is prima facie evidence of the complete incorporation and organization of the corporation purporting thereby to have been established. (Rev., s. 1139; Code, ss. 678, 679, 682; 1901, c. 2, s. 9; 1903, c. 343.)

Cross References. — As to the taxes for filing the certificate, see sec. 1218. As to amending certificate, see sec. 1130. As to effect of errors or omissions in the certificate, see sec. 1120. As to fees for recording, see sec. 1219.

Record of Incorporations Admissible in Evidence.—Under the former wording of this section which provided that the letters of incorporation or copies duly certified by the clerk should be admissible in evidence, it was held that the Record of Incorporation's book was also admissible as prima facie evidence of the complete organization and incorporation of the company. Iron Co. v. Abernathy, 94 N. C. 545, 547.

Proof of Existence—By Reputation. — The existence of a corporation may be proved by reputation. Gulf States Steel Co. v. Ford, 173 N. C. 195, 91 S. E. 84. Existence or nonexistence is a fact and may be proved as other facts. Id.

Same—By Written Contract. — Where a written contract entered into between the parties furnishes evidence that the defendant was dealing with the plaintiff as a corporation, and the plaintiff's existence as a corporation is denied, the contract may properly be introduced upon this disputed fact. Otis Elevator Co. v. Cape Fear Hotel Co., 172 N. C. 319, 90 S. E. 253.

Same—Copies Prima Facie Evidence. — Copies of letters of incorporation are admissible to show prima facie the existence of a corporation, and it can not avoid its liability for debts because in fact it had but an inchoate existence. Marshall v. Macon County Bank, 108 N. C. 639, 13 S. E. 182.

§ 1116. When incorporators become corporation.—From the date the certificate of incorporation is filed in the office of the secretary of state, the stock subscribers, their successors and assigns, are a body corporate by the name specified in the certificate, subject to amendment and dissolution as provided in this chapter. (Rev., s. 1140; 1901, c. 2, s. 10.)

Signing and Recording Articles Sufficient. — When corporate powers are granted by a special act of the Legislature, there must be evidence of the acceptance by the corporators of the privileges conferred and compliance with all conditions precedent prescribed by law in order to show affirmatively that the corporation is lawfully organized. It is otherwise when the corporation if formed under the general law, for by the signing of the articles of agreement, and the due recording thereof, the corporators become a body politic for the purposes set forth in the agreement. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 20 S. E. 453.

No Requirement for Stock Issue. — There is no requirement of the statute that the stock should be issued or paid up before a valid organization can be effected or corporate action taken. Fayetteville Street Ry. v. Aberdeen R. R., 142 N. C. 423, 434, 55 S. E. 345.

Adoption of By-Laws Not Necessary.—By signing and recording the articles of incorporation three or more persons become a body corporate and it is not necessary for the exercise of such powers as are conferred by statute on corporations, that the one so formed shall issue certificates of stock or adopt by-laws. Powell Brothers v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 68 S. E. 926.

De Jure and De Facto Existence. — A corporation de jure is said to exist when persons holding a charter have made substantial compliance with the provisions of the same, looking to its proper organization, while a corporation de facto is one where the parties having a charter or law authorizing it have in good faith made a colorable compliance with such requirements, and have proceeded in the exercise of the corporate powers or a part of them. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

If the corporation has acted as such and exercised its franchises, then it is a corporation de facto, and in such case any irregularity in its organization is immaterial. Whitney v. Wyman, 101 U. S. 392, 395, 25 L. Ed. 1050.

Same—Distinctions. — So far as the State is concerned, the ultimate distinction between a corporation de jure and a corporation de facto is, that the former, having made substantial compliance with the charter requirements looking to the proper organization, can successfully resist the suit instituted by the State or its officers for the direct purpose of annulling the charter, while the latter cannot; but as to private persons holding claims against them, the individual corporators, in either case, are not personally liable for debts, except and to the extent the charter and law applicable may so provide. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

§ 1117. Incorporators act until directors elected.—Until directors are elected the signers of the certificate of incorporation shall have the direction of the affairs of the corporation, and may take proper steps to obtain the necessary subscription to stock and to perfect the organization of the corporation. (Rev., s. 1141; 1901, c. 2, s. 11.)

Subscribers May Release Member. — Under this section the management of a corporation, before the first directors are elected, vests entirely in the subscribers, and, before the rights of creditors have supervened, the subscribers or stockholders may, by the consent of each and all of them and within the limits of the charter, release one from his subscription to the stock. Boushall v. Myatt, 167 N. C. 328, 83 S. E. 352.

§ 1118. First meeting; notice.—The first meeting of every corporation shall be called by a notice, signed by a majority of the incorporators, designating the time, place, and purpose of the meeting, which notice shall be published at least two weeks before the meeting, in a newspaper of the county where the corporation is established; or the meeting may be called without publication, if two days notice is personally served on all the incorporators; or if all the incorporators in writing waive notice and fix a time and a place of meeting, no notice or publication is required. (Rev., s. 1142; Code, s. 665; 1901, c. 2, s. 18.)

As to stockholders meetings generally, see sec. 1168 and annotations. As to meeting called by three stockholders, see sec. 1169.

Waiver of Notice. — The strict requirements as to notice, being intended to protect stockholders, may be waived by them, and when they do waive it, the meeting and all proceedings are as valid as they would be had the full statutory notice been given. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 330, 20 S. E. 453.

Meeting outside of State. — Though the first meeting of stockholders may have been held outside of the State, that fact cannot be shown by the body assuming the powers of a corporation in order to avoid its liability, nor by its debtors for the purpose of evading their accountability under contracts made with it, but the State only can set up that fact. Tuckasegee Mining Co. v. Goodhue, 118 N. C. 981, 985, 24 S. E. 797.

§ 1119. Death of incorporators; vacancy filled.—When one or more of the incorporators of any corporation die before the corporation has been organized pursuant to law, the survivor or survivors may, in writing, designate others who may take the place and act instead of the deceased, in the organization; and the organization so effected by their aid is as effectual in law as if it had been effected by all the original incorporators. (Rev., s. 1143; 1901, c. 2, s. 36.)

§ 1120. Errors or omissions in certificate of incorporation.—Whenever in the certificate of incorporation under any general law there is an error or omission in the recital of the act under which the corporation is created or an error or omission of any matter required to be stated therein, it is lawful for the corporation to correct the error or supply the omission in the following manner: The board of directors shall pass a resolution declaring that the error or omission exists and that the corporation desires to correct it, and shall call a meeting of the stockholders to take action upon the resolution. The stockholders' meeting shall be held upon such notice as the by-laws provide, and in the absence of such provision, upon ten days notice, given personally or by mail. If two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders vote in favor of the correction of the error or omission, a certificate of their action shall be made and signed by the president and secretary under the corporate seal; which certificate shall be acknowledged as in the case of deeds of real estate, and together with the written consent in person or by proxy of two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders of the corporation shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. Upon the filing thereof, in conformity with this section, the certificate of incorporation has the same force and effect as if it had been originally drafted in conformity with the amendment so made. (Rev., s. 1144; 1901, c. 2, s. 109.)

§ 1121. Street railways.—Corporations may be organized under the provisions of this chapter for the purpose of building, maintaining or operating street railways. The term street railways, wherever used in this chapter, includes railways operated either by steam or electricity, or other motive power, used and operated as means of communication between different points in the same municipality, or between points in municipalities lying adjacent or near to each other, or between the municipality in which is the home office of the company and the territory contiguous thereto, and such railways may carry and deliver freights. No such railway may operate a line extending in any direction more than one hundred miles from the municipality in which is located its home office, or in any city or town without the consent of the municipal authorities thereof. (Rev., s. 1138; 1901, cc. 6, 41; 1903, c. 350; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 70, s. 1.)

§ 1122. Security selling companies.—Corporations may be formed under the provisions of this chapter to conduct the business of selling securities and bonds of any kind, including its own bonds and choses in action, on the partial payment, installment, or other plan of payment, and to loan money on mortgage, personal, or other security, and to collect interest in advance on the same, and to charge a fee of $1 for investigating the loan, but no fee shall be charged for a renewal of the loan. A corporation chartered by another state or by a foreign state, kingdom, or government, having in its charter the power to conduct the business described in this section, may become domesticated in this state in the manner and upon the terms and conditions provided in section 1181 under this chapter; but such company must also file with the secretary of state a statement, verified by its president and secretary, showing that its paid-up cash capital is at least $100,000 and that it has complied with all the requirements of the laws of the state of its creation. The business of such corporation in this state is restricted to the business described in this section. Such corporation is liable to pay the franchise tax imposed by section 7861 under the chapter entitled Taxation, and also an ad valorem tax on all of its real and personal property situated in this state. No foreign corporation domesticated under this section is required to pay any other taxes or license fees than those named herein. (1909, c. 502; 1915, c. 180.)

§ 1123. Public parks and drives.—Three or more persons may be incorporated under this chapter for the purpose of creating and maintaining public parks and drives. It is not necessary, however, to set forth in the certificate of incorporation of any corporation created for such purpose the amount of authorized capital stock, the number of shares into which the same is divided, the par value of such stock, or the amount of capital stock with which it will commence business. Any corporation created hereunder shall have full power and authority to lay out, manage, and control parks and drives within the state, under such rules and regulations as the corporation may prescribe, and shall have power to purchase and hold property and take gifts or donations for such purpose. It may hold property and exercise such powers and trust for any town, city, township, or county, in connection with which said parks and drives shall be maintained. Any city, town, township, or county, holding such property, may vest and transfer the same to any such corporation for the purpose of controlling and maintaining the same as public parks and drives under such regulations and subject to such conditions as may be determined upon by such city, town, township, or county. All such lands as the corporation may acquire shall be held in trust as public parks and drives, and shall be held open to the public under such rules, laws, and regulations as the corporation may adopt through its board of directors; and it shall have power and authority to make and adopt all such laws and regulations as it may determine upon for the reasonable management of such parks and drives. All property owned by it and appropriated exclusively for public parks and drives shall not be subject to taxation and no such corporation shall be liable in damages on account of the construction or maintenance of any such parks or drives. (1911, c. 155, ss. 1, 2, 3, 4.)

§ 1124. Word "trust" in corporate name.—No corporation may be chartered under the laws of North Carolina with the word "trust" as a part of its name except those reporting to and under the supervision of the corporation commission; nor may any corporate name be amended to include the word "trust" unless the corporation is under such supervision. (1915, c. 196, s. 2.)

As to trust companies and the word "trust," see also section 1142.

§ 1125. Certain religious, etc., associations deemed incorporated.—In all cases where a religious, educational or charitable association has been formed prior to January first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, and has since said date been acting as a corporation, exercising the powers and performing the duties of religious, educational or charitable corporations as prescribed by the laws of this state, then such association shall be conclusively presumed to have been duly and regularly organized and existing as a corporation under the laws of this state on January first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, and all of its acts as a corporation from and after said date, if otherwise valid, are hereby declared to be valid corporate acts: Provided, this act shall not apply to any pending litigation. (1919, c. 137.)

Art. 2A. North Carolina State Thrift Society.

§ 1125(a). North Carolina state thrift society incorporated.—In order the better to provide for the education of the school children of the state in the principles and practice of thirft and saving and in order to aid them in making better provision for their future advanced education, there is hereby created under the patronage and control of the state a non-stock corporation to be known as the North Carolina state thrift society. (1933, c. 385, s. 1.)

§ 1125(c). Membership and directors. — The membership of the society shall be identical with the membership of the governing board, which shall consist of sixteen directors. The state treasurer, the superintendent of public instruction, the president of the North Carolina bankers association and the president of the University of North Carolina shall throughout their terms of office be ex officio members of the board. The remaining twelve members of the board shall be appointed by the governor for successive terms of four years each, and shall be equally divided between the business and financial and the educational interests of the state, six members to each of the named groups: Provided that at least four of those representing business must be experienced bankers. (1933, c. 385, s. 3.)

§ 1125(d). Vacancies. — In the event of a vacancy occurring before the expiration of the terms of office of any director, the board by a majority vote of its full membership, including ex officio members, shall have power to elect persons to fill out the unexpired terms. (1933, c. 385, s. 4.)

§ 1125(e). Officers of society.—The officers of the society shall be elected by the board, and shall include a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and auditor. The treasurer of the society shall be responsible for the funds of the society, and shall furnish good and sufficient surety in such amount as may be fixed from time to time by the board of directors. (1933, c. 385, s. 5; 1935, c. 489, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 the state treasurer was ex officio treasurer and depository of the fund of the society. The last sentence as it now reads is entirely new.

§ 1125(f). Powers of purchase and sale.—The society shall have power and authority to purchase, lease and otherwise acquire such real and personal property as may be deemed useful to the prosecution of the objects for which it is created. It may sell and dispose of the same and may hold or may sell and convey such property also as may be taken in whole or partial satisfaction of any debt due to it. It may also receive gifts of money and property to be applied to its corporate purposes. (1933, c. 385, s. 6.)

§ 1125(g). Deposits of school children. — The society may receive deposits of the funds of children and others attending any of the public schools or colleges of North Carolina, as provided in section 1125(m), and subject to repayment on terms established by the board: Provided that no individual account may exceed $1,000. (1933, c. 385, s. 7.)

§ 1125(h). Depositories. — The funds in the treasurer's hands may be deposited by him, to his credit, with banks which are members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. In no case may the amount in any one bank exceed the amount covered by insurance. The interest accruing and paid on such deposits shall be added to the funds of the society. (1933, c. 385, s. 8; 1935, c. 489, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1935 this section was changed to conform to the changes effected in section 1125(e). As the state treasurer is no longer ex officio treasurer of the society this change is necessary.

§ 1125(i). Exemption from taxation. — Neither deposits in the society nor its property investments and assets shall at any time be subject to taxation by the state of North Carolina or any of its sub-divisions, except that gift, inheritance or estate taxes may be levied on the transfer of private deposits in the society. (1933, c. 385, s. 9.)

§ 1125(j). Repealed by Public Laws 1935, c. 489, s. 3.

§ 1125(k). Investments.—The funds of the society may, at the discretion of the board, be invested in obligations of the United States Government, or of the State of North Carolina, or deposited as previously provided in section 1125(h). (1933, c. 385, s. 11; 1935, c. 489, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1935 this section provided that the funds where not required for student loans could at the discretion of the board be invested in obligations of the United States government or of the state of North Carolina. As to investment in bonds guaranteed by the United States, see section 220(a)1.

§ 1125(l). No expense to state.—Provided that no liability of any kind shall rest on the state of North Carolina by reason of this article. (1933, c. 385, s. 12; 1935, c. 489, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 this section provided also that "no expense of any nature" should rest on state. This provision was omitted.

§ 1125(m). Thrift instruction provided by superintendent of public instruction in schools. — Within 150 days from the approval of this section the state superintendent of public instruction shall provide in the public schools of the state for instruction in thrift and the principles, practice and advantage of saving.

In connection with the instruction so provided arrangements shall be made at each school for the receiving of students' savings deposits into the North Carolina state thrift society, subject to its rules and on the terms provided therein.

The administration of the system in each school shall be in charge of one or more of the teachers in said school to be designated by the principal.

The savings deposits shall be transmitted to the treasurer of the said society from time to time, in accordance with rules to be established by the governing board of the North Carolina state thrift society, and shall be held for the purposes declared in the charter of the said society. (1933, c. 481, ss. 1-4; 1935, c. 489, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 this section provided, in the last paragraph, that deposits should be transmitted to the state treasurer instead of the treasurer of the society.

Art. 3. Powers and Restrictions

§ 1126. Express powers.—Every corporation has power—

1. To have succession, by its corporate name, for the period limited in its charter, and when the charter contains no time limit, for a period of sixty years.

2. To sue and be sued in any court.

3. To make, use, and alter a common seal.

4. To purchase, acquire by devise or bequest, hold and convey real and personal property in or out of the state, and to mortgage the same and its franchises.

5. To elect and appoint, in such manner as it determines to be proper, all necessary officers and agents, fix their compensation, and define their duties and obligations. And when there devolves upon an officer or agent of a corporation such duties and responsibilities that a financial loss would result to the corporation from the death and consequent loss of the services of such officer or agent, the corporation has an insurable interest in, and the power to insure the life of, the officer or agent for its benefit, and in all cases where a religious, educational or charitable corporation or institution shall be or has been named as beneficiary in any policy of life insurance by a friend, student, former student or any person who for any reason is loyal to such corporation or institution and has himself or herself paid the premiums on said policy then such corporation or institution shall be deemed to have an insurable interest in the life of such person.

6. To conduct business in this state, other states, the District of Columbia, the territories, dependencies and colonies of the United States, and in foreign countries, and have offices in or out of the state.

7. To make by-laws and regulations, consistent with its charter and the laws of the state, for its own government, and for the due and orderly conduct of its affairs and management of its property.

8. To wind up and dissolve itself, or be wound up and dissolved, in the manner hereafter mentioned.

9. To sell any part of or all of its corporate property, whenever such sale shall be authorized by a two-thirds vote of the board of directors of such corporation and approved by the vote of the holders of two-thirds of the stock entitled to vote at any stockholder's meeting, notice of which contains notice of the proposed sale: Provided, that any corporation hereafter organized may insert a provision in its charter that the powers granted by this subsection nine may be exercised only when such sale shall be approved by the holders of such amount of the stock of the corporation (not less than two-thirds of such stock entitled to vote) or such amount of each class of stock as may be specified in said charter; and provided further, that any corporation heretofore organized may by vote of the holders of two-thirds of the stock entitled to vote amend its charter at any stockholders' meeting, notice of which contains notice of the proposed amendment so as to provide the vote of stockholders (not less than two-thirds of the stock entitled to vote) required to enable the corporation to exercise the powers granted by this subsection nine: Provided, this act shall not be construed as authorizing the sale of stock in bulk, in violation of the bulk sales law: Provided, this act shall not be construed to limit or abridge the powers now given by law to any corporation. Provided this section shall not be construed to limit or abridge the right or power of any corporation from selling any of its assets in its regular course of business. (Rev., s. 1128; Code, ss. 663, 666, 691, 692, 693; 1893, c. 159; 1901, c. 2, s. 1; 1909, c. 507, s. 1; 1925, c. 235; 1925, c. 298; 1929, c. 269.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

Previous to 1925 this section enumerated 8 general powers. By chapter 235, Laws 1925 paragraph 9 containing an additional power with several provisos was added. At the same session the legislature amended section 1131 by providing for a majority instead of two thirds vote to approve an amendment to a charter. See Editor's note under section 1131. Probably this par. 9, supra, was intended as an exception to the general rule laid down in the amendment to sec 1131. It would seem that in regard to general amendments sec. 1131 applies but if the amendment is to give the corporation the right to take advantage of a power of sale, then par. 9, this sec. applies. See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 137.

By ch. 298, Laws 1925 an addition was made to par. 5 of this section. Formerly the paragraph ended with the word "benefit" about the center of the present form. In 3 N. C. Law Rev. 147 this amendment is discussed and it is concluded that although the Legislature intended to extend the doctrine of insurable interest, it has merely stated a well-established rule of insurance law.

The Act of 1929 added the last proviso to this section.

II. SUITS BY AND AGAINST CORPORATIONS.

Must Be in Corporate Name. — A suit against a corporation must be brought in its corporate name, and not against its officers or agents. Young v. Barden, 90 N. C. 424; Britain v. Newland, 19 N. C. 363. However, in case of insolvency, where a receiver has been appointed, he may sue either in his own name or in that of the corporation. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893; Davis v. Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371. As to receivers and their powers see secs. 1208 and 1209 and notes.

Misnomer Immaterial. — A misnomer does not vitiate provided the identity of the corporation with that intended by the parties is apparent, whether it is in a deed, Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579, 584, or in a judgment, or in a criminal proceeding, McCrea v. Starr, 5 N. C. 252. See Gordon v. Pintsch Gas Co., 178 N. C. 435, 100 S. E. 878.

Same Liability as Natural Person. — A corporation is now held liable to civil and criminal actions under the same conditions and circumstances as natural persons are. Redditt v. Singer Mfg. Co., 124 N. C. 100, 32 S. E. 392.

No Application to Governmental Agencies. — The general authority to sue and be sued conferred on corporations by this section, has reference only to private and quasi public corporations, and not to corporations like the state prison, which are merely governmental agencies. As to these the authority to be sued must be expressly given. Moody v. State's Prison, 128 N. C. 12, 13, 38 S. E. 131.

Same—State Highway Commission. — This section giving corporations the right to sue and be sued, does not apply to the State Highway Commission, a governmental agency of the State, but only to private and quasi-private corporations. Carpenter v. Atlantic, etc., Ry. Co., 184 N. C. 400, 114 S. E. 693.

Suits against Cities and Towns. — As to cities and towns, though by their charters they are broadly authorized "to sue and be sued," it is equally well settled that this suability does not create any liability for damages caused by the torts of their officers and agents when acting in a governmental capacity. McIlhenney v. Wilmington, 127 N. C. 146, 37 S. E. 187, and numerous cases there cited. Moody v State's Prison, 128 N. C. 12, 13, 16, 38 S. E. 131.

Suits against Counties. — As to counties, we have an unbroken line of authorities that they can be sued only in such cases and for such causes of action as are authorized by statute, and such cases do not embrace liabilities for negligence or other torts of their officers and agents. White v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 437; Manuel v. Commissioners, 98 N. C. 9, 3 S. E. 829; Threadgill v. Commissioners, 99 N. C. 352, 6 S. E. 189; Pritchard v. Commissioners, 126 N. C. 908, 36 S. E. 353; Bell v. Commissioners, 127 N. C. 85, 37 S. E. 136; Moody v. State's Prison, 128 N. C. 12, 13, 16, 38 S. E. 131.

Liability for Slander. — A corporation may be held liable for slander when the defamatory words are uttered by express authority of the company or by one of its officers or agents in the course of his employment, and authority for their utterances may be fairly and reasonably inferred under relevant and sufficient circumstances. Cotton v. Fisheries Products Co., 177 N. C. 56, 97 S. E. 712.

Cited in Independence Trust Co. v. Keesler, 206 N. C. 12, 16, 173 S. E. 53.

III. THE COMMON SEAL.

As to when seal is used, see section 1138.

An Inherent Power. — The power to have a common seal and to alter or renew the same at will is frequently conferred on corporations by statute, but such a power is one of the incidental and implied powers of every corporation when not expressly conferred. 14 C. J. § 404, p. 334. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 454, 115 S. E. 166, 168.

Any Device May Be Used. — While it is required for the sufficiency of the deed of a corporation to convey its lands that the corporate seal should be affixed to the instrument, any device used for the corporate seal will be sufficient, provided it was intended for and used as the seal of the corporation, and had been adopted by proper action of the corporation for that purpose. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 115 S. E. 166. See notes of this case under sec. 3326.

The simple word "seal" with a scroll adopted as the seal of a corporation and used by it on a deed to its lands according to resolutions of the stockholders and directors thereof at separate meetings held for the purpose, when all were present, is sufficient. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 115 S. E. 166.

IV. RIGHTS AS TO PROPERTY.

Cross References. — As to corporate conveyance and when same are void as to torts, see sec. 1138. As to mortgaged property subject to execution, see sec. 1140.

Corporation Not Stockholders Own Property. — The property of a corporation belongs to it, and not to the stockholders. They only have an interest in such property through their relation to the company, and in this respect the state is like any other stockholder. Marshall v. Western N. C. Railroad Co., 92 N. C. 322.

Same—Where State a Stockholder. — Where the state is a stockholder in a railroad company, it is bound by the provisions of the charter in the same manner as an individual. It has no advantage as a stockholder on account of its sovereignty, for, by becoming such, it lays aside its character as a sovereign and places itself on a footing of equality with the individual stockholders. Marshall v. Western N. C. Railroad Co., 92 N. C. 322.

May Hold Estates in Fee. — Although the existence of a corporation be limited to a certain number of years, yet it is capable of holding estates in fee. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 578, 579.

Same—Not Forfeited upon Suspension of Business. — A corporation, chartered for the purpose of promoting temperance, does not forfeit real estate which it has purchased because it ceases to pursue the objects for which it was incorporated. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 578, 579.

Adverse Possession. — A corporation may acquire land by showing sufficient adverse possession for the statutory period. Cross v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 119, 90 S. E. 14.

Ejectment and Trespass Will Lie. — Corporations, in contemplation of the law, are capable of having actual possession of the land, and whatever may have been supposed to the contrary in the distant past, it is now settled that the actions of ejectment and trespass lie against them. Young v. Barden, 90 N. C. 424, 426.

Right to Dispose of Property.—A private corporation may dispose of its property without express authority of the Legislature. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 20 S. E. 453.

Same—Quasi Public Corporation.—A strictly private corporation can lawfully sell any of its property, real or personal, just as an individual can; but such is not the case with corporations which are quasi public and have duties to perform in which the public is interested. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Same—Example.—A corporation chartered for the purpose of mining and milling ores has the right, by implication of law, to buy and sell real estate essential to the successful prosecution of its business. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Right to Dispose of Franchise.—The franchise or the right of being a corporation, unlike the property and other powers and privileges, can never be alienated by the corporation without express authority and provision therefor, painting out how it may be effected. New Orleans, etc., R. Co. v. Delamore, 114 U. S. 501, 508, 29 L. Ed. 244.

A quasi public corporation cannot, without the assent of the legislature, transfer its franchise to another corporation, and abnegate the performance of its duties to the public, imposed upon it by its charter as the consideration for the grant of its franchise. Central Transp. Co. v. Pullman's Palace Car Co., 139 U. S. 24, 49, 35 L. Ed. 55.

Right to Mortgage Property. — Corporations other than railroad companies have a general power to mortgage their property, unless prohibited by some provision in the charter, the right to mortgage being a natural result of the right to incur an indebtedness. Anitetam Paper Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co., 115 N. C. 143, 20 S. E. 366.

Right to Mortgage Franchise—Power of Sale.—The power

given to mortgage the franchise of the corporation must necessarily include the power to bring it to sale with the property to make the sale effectual as a means of transferring the right to use the thing conveyed. Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co., 202 U. S. 453, 464, 50 L. Ed. 1102.

Where Powers Exceeded.—Where a corporation takes a conveyance of lands for use beyond its charter powers, the deed it not void, but only voidable upon the objection of the State. Cross v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 119, 120, 90 S. E. 11.

V. THE OFFICERS; CONDUCTING BUSINESS; BY-LAWS AND DISSOLUTION.

Officers.—As to directors and officers, see sec. 1144 et seq. As to election of directors, see secs. 1175 and 1176. As to jurisdiction of superior courts over election, see sec. 1177. For change in paragraph 5, see ante, this note, "Editor's Note." 1.

Same—Power to Insure Life of Officer.—A manufacturing corporation engaged in the operation of a cotton mill had no implied power to insure the life of its president, at least beyond the period of his connection with the company. Victor v. Louise Cotton Mills, 148 N. C. 107, 61 S. E. 648; Victor v. Chadwick Mfg. Co., 148 N. C. 119, 61 S. E. 653. These cases were decided in 1908 when the section did not contain the present provision as to insurable interest. The question of implied power would of course no longer arise. Ed. Note.

A corporation may transact business anywhere unless prohibited by its charter or excluded by local laws. Garrett v. Bear, 144 N. C. 23, 25, 56 S. E. 479; Ex Parte Schollenberger, 96 U. S. 369, 377, Waite, C. J.

As to by-laws in general, see sec. 1127. As to amendments, see sec. 1131.

As to dissolution generally, see sec. 1182 et seq.

§ 1127. By-laws.—A corporation may, by its by-laws, when consistent with its charter, determine the manner of calling and conducting all meetings; the number of members that constitute a quorum, but in no case shall more than a majority of shares or amount of interest be required to be represented at any meeting in order to constitute a quorum, and if the quorum is not so determined by the corporation, a majority in interest of the stockholders, represented either in person or by proxy, constitutes a quorum; the number of shares that will entitle the members to one or more votes; the mode of voting by proxy; the mode of selling shares for the nonpayment of assessments; the tenure of office of the several officers, and the manner in which vacancies in any of the offices shall be filled till a regular election; and they may annex suitable penalties to such by-laws, not exceeding in any case the sum of twenty dollars for any one offense. The power to make and alter by-laws is in the stockholders, but a corporation may, in the certificate of incorporation, confer that power upon the directors. By-laws made by the directors under power so conferred may be altered or repealed by the stockholders. (Rev., ss. 1145, 1146; Code, s. 664; 1901, c. 2, ss. 12, 13.)

Cross References.—As to power to make by-laws, see par. 7 of the preceding section. As to by-laws of insurance companies, see sec. 6330. As to by-laws of building and loan association, see sec. 5170.

Extent to Which Stockholder Is Bound by By-Laws.—The principle by which a shareholder in a corporation is bound by a corporate resolution regularly passed pursuant to its charter and by-laws, prevails only in reference to his status and rights as a shareholder and not where he deals independently with it as one of its customers in the line of its business. Cardwell v. Garrison, 179 N. C. 476, 103 S. E. 3.

By-Law to Sell Defaulting Subscriber's Stock. — Under this section a corporation is empowered to provide by its by-laws for the sale of shares of a subscriber who makes default in paying the assessments. Elizabeth City Cotton Mills v. Dunstan, 121 N. C. 12, 27 S. E. 1001. See § 1165 and note thereto.

Strangers Must Have Notice. — The by-laws of the corporation are not evidence for it against strangers who deal with it, unless brought home to their knowledge and assented to by them. Smith v. N. C. R. R. Co., 68 N. C. 107.

§ 1128. Implied powers.—In addition to the powers enumerated in the two preceding sections, and the powers specified in its charter, every corporation, its officers, directors and stockholders, possess all the powers and privileges contained in this chapter so far as they are necessary or convenient to the attainment of the objects set forth in such charter, and shall be governed by the provisions and be subject to the restrictions and liabilities in this chapter contained, so far as they are applicable to and not inconsistent with such charter; and no corporation may possess or exercise any other corporate powers, except such incidental powers as are necessary to the exercise of the powers so given. Nothing in this chapter shall authorize or empower corporations organized under this chapter to lease, operate, maintain, manage or control any railroad except street railways. (Rev., s. 1129; Code, s. 701; 1897, c. 204; 1901, c. 2, s. 4; 1901, c. 6.)

Cross References. — As to express powers, see sec. 1126. As to street railways, see sec. 1121. As to power of the Legislature to amend or repeal charter, see sec. 1135. For full treatment of corporate powers, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 572-611; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 489-496.

In General. — Corporations possess by legal implication such powers as are essential to the exercise of the powers expressly conferred and necessary to attain the main objects for which they were formed. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Charter Subsequent to General Law Prevails. — Where a charter was granted to a corporation after the passage of a general law and the charter confers powers conflicting with the general law, then by this section the provisions of the charter prevail. Carolina Power Co. v. Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 256, 88 S. E. 349.

Ultra Vires Acts. — It is true, as held by numerous courts, including our own, that the doctrine of ultra vires has been very much modified in recent years, and many contracts made in the course of business, especially when executed and benefits are received or liabilities are incurred, will be upheld and enforced which were formerly declared absolutely void. Hutchins v. Bank, 128 N. C. 72, 38 S. E. 252; Womack Pr. Corp. 142.

Same—State May Bring Action. — This modification of the doctrine does not involve the right in an appropriate case, of the State to enjoin a threatened ultra vires act. Victor v. Louise Cotton Mills, 148 N. C. 107, 61 S. E. 648, 650.

Same—Stockholder May Bring Action. — If the Act of the corporation be ultra vires, any one or more stockholders may by some appropriate method call it in question and, unless by having consented to or acquiesced in it he is barred, have relief. Victor v. Louise Cotton Mills, 148 N. C. 107, 110, 61 S. E. 648; Lutterloh v. Fayetteville, 149 N. C. 65, 62 S. E. 758.

Same—Law Governing. — When the question of ultra vires arises, the validity of a corporate contract is to be determined by the lex loci contractus, not the lex fori. Eastern Building, etc., Ass'n v. Ebaugh, 185 U. S. 114, 121, 46 L. Ed. 830.

Conclusion of Law. — The question of whether acts are ultra vires is a conclusion of law to be drawn from the facts stated. Spencer v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 107, 117, 49 S. E. 96.

§ 1129. Banking powers not conferred by this act.—No corporation created under the provisions of this chapter shall have the power to carry on the business of discounting bills, notes or other evidences of debt, of receiving deposits of money, of buying gold or silver bullion or foreign coins, of buying and selling bills of exchange, or of issuing bills, notes or other evidences of debt, upon loan, or for circulation as money; but in the transaction of its business it may make and take and indorse, when necessary, all such bonds, notes and bills of exchange as the business may

As to banks and banking in general, see chapter 5.

§ 1130. Amendments before payment of stock. —The incorporators of a corporation, before the payment of any part of its capital, may file with the secretary of state an amended certificate of incorporation, duly signed and acknowledged by the incorporators named in the original certificate, changing the original certificate of incorporation, in whole or in part, which amended certificate takes the place of the original one, and when recorded in the proper county is deemed to have been filed and recorded on the date of filing and recording the original certificate. The officers are entitled to the same fees for filing and recording the amended certificate of incorporation as if it were original; but there shall be charged no additional organization tax, except when the certificate is amended by increasing the capital stock, in which event such tax shall be paid upon the increase. (Rev., s. 1174; 1901, c. 2, s. 28.)

Cross References. — As to the original certificate of incorporation, see sec. 1115. As to taxes for filing, see sec. 1218. As to amendments generally, see next section.

Subscriber Released. — Any fundamental change in the charter of a corporation relieves a non-assenting subscriber from liability upon his stock. Bank v. City, 85 N. C. 433.

§ 1131. Amendments, generally. — A corporation, whether organized under a special act or general laws, and which might now be created under the provisions of this chapter, may, in the manner set out below—

1. Change the nature or relinquish one or more branches of its business, or extend its business to such other branches as might have been inserted in its original certificate of incorporation.
2. Change its name.
3. Extend its corporate existence.
4. Increase or decrease its capital stock.
5. Change the par value of the shares of its capital stock.
6. Create one or more classes of preferred stock.
7. Make any other desired amendment. In all cases the certificate of amendment can obtain only such provisions as could be lawfully and properly inserted in an original certificate of incorporation filed at the time of making the amendment.

The board of directors shall pass a resolution declaring that the amendment is advisable, and call a meeting of the stockholders to take action thereon; the meeting shall be held upon such notice as the by-laws provide, and in the absence of such provision, upon ten days notice, given personally or by mail; if [the holders of a majority of the shares of stock] two-thirds in interest of each class of stockholders with voting powers vote in favor of the amendment, a certificate thereof shall be signed by the president and secretary, under the corporate seal, acknowledged as in the case of deeds to real estate, and this certificate, together with the written assent, in person or by proxy, of said stockholders, shall be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. Upon such filing the secretary of state shall issue a certified copy thereof, which shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the original certificate of incorporation is recorded, and thereupon the certificate of incorporation is amended accordingly. The certificate of the secretary of state, under his official seal, that such certificate of amendment and assent have been filed in his office, is evidence of the amendment in all courts and places. A corporation which cannot now be created under the provisions of this chapter may in like manner increase or decrease its capital stock, or change its name, or extend its corporate existence: Provided, that before the Secretary of State shall issue a certificate of such amendment to any corporation possessing powers, franchises, privileges or immunities, which could not be obtained under this chapter, he shall forthwith transmit to the Corporation Commission a copy of said certificate and shall not issue or record the same until duly authorized so to do by the Corporation Commission as provided for the issuing of certificates of incorporation of banks in chapter five, volume three, Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, provided that nothing herein shall be construed to require the increase of the capital stock of a bank renewing its charter over the capital of such bank at the time such renewal is applied for. [Any corporation hereafter organized may insert a provision in its charter that amendments to said charter may be made or amendments to said charter in certain specified respects may be made only when such amendments shall be approved by the holders of such amount of the stock of the corporation (not less than a majority of the shares of stock with voting powers) or such amount of each class of stock as may be specified in said charter and any corporation heretofore organized may by vote of the holders of a majority of the stock entitled to vote amend its charter at any stockholders' meeting, notice of which contains notice of the proposed amendment so as to provide the vote of stockholders (not less than a majority of the stock entitled to vote) required to enable the corporation to amend its charter or to amend it in certain specified respects:

Provided, however, that no new class of stock shall hereafter be created by amendment of the charter or otherwise entitled to dividends or shares in distribution of assets in priority to any class of preferred stock already outstanding except with the consent of the holders of records of two-thirds (of such greater amount as may be specified in the chapter) of the number of shares of such outstanding preferred stock having voting powers. Provided further that the portions of this section in brackets shall apply to all corporations other than banks and building and loan associations.] (Rev., ss. 1175, 1178; 1893, c. 380; 1899, c. 618; 1901, c. 2, ss. 29, 30, 37; 1903, c. 516; 1925, c. 1118, ss. 1, 2a. 1927, c. 142.)

Cross References. — As to amendments before payment of stock, see preceding section. As to amendments by charitable, educational, penal or reformatory corporations, see following section.

Editor's Note. — This section has been recently amended several times. The seventh paragraph formerly provided that any proposed amendment should require a favorable vote by "two-thirds in interest of each class of stockholders." By ch. 118, Laws 1925, these words were stricken out and the words "the holders of a majority of the shares of stock" substituted therefor. The paragraph providing that a corporation may insert in its charter at the time of its organization a rule regulating amendments and the proviso at the end of the section were also added by ch. 118, supra. For a discussion of the effects of these amendments, see 3 N. C. Law Review 134.

Chapter 142, Laws of 1927 makes further changes. Par. three formerly contained a provision following the word "existence" which made the corporation, in extending its existence, waive and abandon any privileges, franchises or immunities which could not be obtained under this chapter. This provision was stricken out.

Par. 7 formerly contained the following provision: "A corporation which cannot now be created under the provisions of this chapter may in like manner increase or decrease its capital stock or change its name." Chapter 142, supra, struck out the period at the end of that sentence and added the words "or extend its corporate existence" and the proviso which immediately follows.

§ 1131(a). Inadvertent omission to file amendment extending corporate existence.—Any private corporation chartered under the general laws of the State of North Carolina whose period of existence fixed in its charter has expired and which corporation has continued to act and do business as a corporation, but has through inadvertence, omitted to file an amendment extending the period of its corporate existence, may at any time after the expiration of the period of corporate existence set forth in its original charter, file an amended certificate in the office of the Secretary of State as provided by section one thousand one hundred and thirty-one of the Code to extend or renew its corporate existence, as provided for in the amended certificate; provided, this section shall not apply to any pending litigation nor serve to impair the validity of any contract or vested right in existence at the time of the filing of said amended charter. All acts of such a corporation, purporting to be the acts of the corporation, done or performed after the expiration of its period of existence and before the amendment to its charter, shall be legal and valid as the acts and deeds of said corporation. (1929, c. 271; 1935, c. 6.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 this section contained a seven year limitation after the expiration of the original period in which the amended certificate should be filed. This provision was omitted.

§ 1131(b). Amendment of charter by railroad; changing value of and issuing stock without par value.—Any railroad company heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this State, whether under a special act, or otherwise, may, in the manner provided by section one thousand one hundred and thirty-one of the Code, as heretofore amended, amend its certificate of incorporation, articles of association or charter, for the purpose of increasing or decreasing its capital stock, changing its name, changing the par value of the shares of its capital stock, creating one or more classes of common or preferred stock, creating shares of stock with or without nominal or par value, or for any purpose authorized by statutes now in force relating to the amendment of certificates of incorporation, articles of association or charters of corporations: Provided, however, that in case of a consolidated railroad company, heretofore or hereafter organized under a special act or general laws of this State and of any other state or states, a new class or classes of stock may be created upon authorization by vote of such amount of the outstanding capital stock, in no case less than a majority thereof, as may be prescribed by the provisions of the agreement of consolidation in pursuance of which such consolidated company was formed. (1929, c. 261.)

Editor's Note.—See § 1167(h).

§ 1132. Amendments by charitable, educational, penal or reformatory corporations.—A charitable, educational, social, ancestral, historical, penal, or reformatory corporation not under the patronage or control of the state, and any corporation, without capital stock organized for the purpose of aiding in any work of any church, religious society or organization, or fraternal order whether organized under a special act or general laws, may change its name, extend its corporate existence, change the manner in which its directors, trustees or managers are elected or appointed, abolish its present method of electing such officers and create a different method of election, and generally reorganize the manner of conducting such corporation, and make any other amendment of its charter desired, in the following manner: The board of directors, trustees, or managers shall pass a resolution declaring that the amendment is advisable, and call a meeting of trustees, managers, and directors to take action thereon. The meeting shall be held upon such notice as the by-laws provide, and in the absence of such provision, upon ten days notice given personally or by mail. If two-thirds of the directors, trustees, or managers of the corporation vote in favor of the amendment, a certificate thereof shall be signed by the president and secretary under the corporate seal, acknowledged as provided in the case of deeds to real estate, and such certificate, together with the written assent in person or proxy of two-thirds of the directors, trustees, or managers, shall be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, and upon filing it he shall issue a certified copy thereof, which shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the original certificate of incorporation is recorded, or in which the corporation is doing business, and thereupon the certificate of incorporation shall be deemed amended accordingly. Such certificate of amendment may contain only such provision as it would be lawful and proper to insert in an original certificate of incorporation made at the time of making the amendment, and the certificate of the secretary of state, under his official seal, that such certificate and assent has been filed in his office shall be taken and accepted as evidence of such amendment in all courts. (1917, c. 62, s. 1; 1925, c. 42; 1925, c. 257.)

Editor's Note. — Two additions were made to this section in 1925. By ch. 257, Laws of 1925 the words "social, ancestral, historical" were inserted in the first line of the section.

Chapter 42, Laws of 1925 added the following clause after the word "state" in the first sentence: "and any corporation, without capital stock, organized for the purpose of aiding in the work of any church, religious society or organization of fraternal order."

As to amendments generally see preceding section.

§ 1133. Change of location of principal office.—The board of directors of a corporation organized under the laws of this state may, by resolution adopted at a regular or special meeting by a two-thirds vote of its members, change the location of the principal office of the corporation in the state. A copy of the resolution, signed by the president and secretary of the corporation and sealed with the corporate seal, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. No certificate need be filed of the removal of an office from one point to another in the same town, city, or township. (Rev., s. 1176; 1901, c. 2, s. 31.)

"Principal Place of Business." — The words "principal place of business," as used in section 466 must be regarded as synonymous with the words "principal office," as used in this section and sections 1114, par. 2 and 1168. Roberson v. Johnson Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 120, 122, 68 S. E. 1064.

§ 1134. Curative act; amendments prior to 1901.—All amendments to the plan of incorporation of any corporation organized under the provisions of the general laws of North Carolina prior to the passage of the act entitled "An act to revise the corporation law of North Carolina," being chapter two, public laws of nineteen hundred and one, are declared to be valid in all respects, whether such amendments were made in accordance with the provisions of chapter three hundred and eighty of the public laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-three or in accordance with the provisions of chapter two of the public laws of nineteen hundred and one; but no amendment shall be validated by this section unless it is an amendment of such nature as is authorized to be made under the provisions of chapter two of the public laws of nineteen hundred and one. (Rev., s. 1248; 1905, c. 316.)

§ 1135. Amendment or repeal of this chapter; a part of all charters.—This chapter may be amended or repealed by the legislature, and every corporation is bound thereby; but such amendment or repeal shall not take away or impair any remedy against the corporation, or its officers, for any liability which has been previously incurred. This chapter and all amendments are a part of the charter of every corporation formed hereunder, so far as the same are applicable and appropriate to the objects of the corporation. (Rev., s. 1136; 1901, c. 2, s. 7.)

§ 1136. Name must be displayed.—The name of every corporation must be at all times conspicuously displayed at the entrance of its principal office in this state, and in default thereof for sixty days the corporation is liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be recovered with costs, by the state, in an action to be prosecuted by or under the direction of the attorney-general. (Rev., s. 1242; 1901, c. 2, s. 50.)

§ 1137. Resident process agent.—Every corporation having property or doing business in this state, whether incorporated under its laws or not, shall have an officer or agent in this state upon whom process in all actions or proceedings against it can be served. A corporation failing to comply with the provisions of this section is liable to a forfeiture of its charter, or to the revocation of its license to do business in this state. In the latter event, process in an action or proceeding against the corporation may be served upon the secretary of state by leaving a true copy thereof with him, and he shall mail the copy to the president, secretary or other officer of the corporation upon whom, if residing in this state, service could be made. For this service to be performed by the secretary, he shall receive a fee of fifty cents, to be paid by the party at whose instance the service was made. (Rev., s. 1243; 1901, c. 5.)

As to service of process on a foreign corporation, see sec. 483, par. 1. As to service on foreign insurance companies, see sec. 6414. As to foreign corporations in general, see secs. 1180-1181.

Section Constitutional. — This section is constitutional and valid. Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980; Fisher v. Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 222, 48 S. E. 667.

Strict Compliance Not Required. — Formal compliance with the statutory requirements for domesticating these corporations and the appointment of process agents is not required, but it is sufficient if such corporations doing business or holding property within the state have been continuously for the statutory period subject to valid service of process, so as to confer jurisdiction on our courts to render binding judgments in personam against them. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 418, 93 S. E. 948.

A Federal Land Bank created by act of Congress and deriving its right to own property and to do business in this State solely through a Federal statute is not a foreign corporation exercising such functions under express or implied authority of this State, and this section is not applicable to such corporation, and our courts acquire no jurisdiction over it by such service. Leggett v. Federal Land Bank, 204 N. C. 151, 167 S. E. 557.

Jurisdiction over Foreign Corporation. — A foreign corporation, having neither property nor process agent in this state and not having domesticated in North Carolina, must be engaged in business within the state in order to give our courts jurisdiction over it. Goldey v. Morning News, 156 U. S. 518; Lunceford v. Commercial Travelers Mutual Asso., 190 N. C. 314, 318, 129 S. E. 805.

Foreign Corporation May Plead Statute of Limitations.— A foreign corporation which had complied with the requirements of this section in maintaining an agent in this state upon whom process may be served, together with public-service corporations doing business in this state, may plead the statute of limitations. Volivar v. Richmond Cedar Works, 152 N. C. 656, 68 S. E. 200. Overruling Green v. Insurance Co., 139 N. C. 309, 51 S. E. 887, and cases cited. See also, Anderson v. U. S. Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 418, 93 S. E. 948.

The nonresidence of a foreign corporation will not prevent the running of the statute of limitations in its favor where constantly from the accrual of the cause of action it might have been served with summons under the provisions of this section. Smith v. Finance Co., 207 N. C. 367, 177 S. E. 183.

Service on Insurance Company. — In Fisher v. Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 224, 48 S. E. 667, it was held that service of process on an insurance company is not restricted to that method as prescribed by section 6414 but that it may be made also in the manner prescribed by this section. Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 678, 94 S. E. 414.

Merger of Express Companies. — An express company conveyed its property, used in transportation, for its appraised value, to the American Express Company formed at the suggestion of the Director General of Railways, etc., under government control, retaining property of very large value, so that it remained perfectly solvent, and continued to do business under its franchise, and having its own officials and shareholders distinct from those of the new corporation. In such a case the American Express Company is not affected by the provisions of this section, requiring foreign corporations to keep a process agent in this state. McAlister v. American Ry. Exp. Co., 179 N. C. 556, 103 S. E. 129.

Doing Business Here is Acceptance of Section. — Where foreign corporations come into the state to do business after the enactment of a statute providing a method of personal service on them, reasonably calculated to give them full notice of the pendency of suits against them, the statutory provisions are regarded as conditions on which they are allowed to do business within the state, and their doing so here thereafter is an acceptance by them of the statutory method and in recognition of its validity to confer jurisdiction on our courts by service thereunder. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 93 S. E. 948.

What Constitutes Doing Business. — A foreign company acquiring membership of persons in North Carolina for life insurance without soliciting agents to whom policies are issued upon a mutual benefit plan and kept in force by the payments of dues, is doing a life insurance business here in contemplation of this section, and valid service of summons may be had on such corporation upon compliance with its provisions in respect thereto. Lunceford v. Commercial Travelers Mutual Accident Asso., 190 N. C. 314, 129 S. E. 805.

It cannot be held that the issuance of one or more policies of fire insurance, by a corporation, created and existing under the laws of another state, and not authorized to do business in this state, insuring citizens of this state against loss or damage by fire to property situate in this state, the contracts for such policies having been made, and the premiums having been paid in the state in which the foreign corporation has its principal office and place of business, not by or through any agent of such corporation or person authorized to act for it in this state, constitutes "doing business" in the State of North Carolina within the meaning of these words in this section. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire etc. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 119, 133 S. E. 424.

In determining the question whether a foreign corporation is doing business within a state, so as to be subject to its jurisdiction, and, to the end that such jurisdiction may be exercised, subject to service of process from its courts in accordance with statutory provisions for such service, it has been generally held that the foreign corporation must have entered the state. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc., Ins. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 119, 133 S. E. 424.

A foreign banking corporation which sends its agents here for the purpose of investigating and looking after the properties in its capacity as trustee, does business in the State, "doing business in this State" as used in this section meaning engaging in, carrying on, or exercising in this State some of the functions for which it was created. Ruark v. Virginia Trust Co., 206 N. C. 564, 174 S. E. 441.

Same—Question of Fact. — The question as to doing business is one of fact, and must be determined largely according to the facts of each individual case, rather than by the application of fixed, definite and precise rules. In the last analysis, the question is one of due process of law under the Constitution of the United States, 14a C. J., 1372, sec. 4079. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc., Ins. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 119, 133 S. E. 424.

Finding by Trial Court Conclusive.—Where there is evidence to show that a foreign corporation, is doing business in this State at the time the summons in the action is served on the Secretary of State, a finding by the trial court to the contrary is conclusive and not subject to review of this Court. Brown v. Tennessee Coal, etc., R. Co., 208 N. C. 50, 52, 178 S. E. 858.

Cited in White v. Vaca Land & Lumber Co., 199 N. C. 410, 154 S. E. 620.

§ 1138. Corporate conveyances; when void as to torts.—Any corporation may convey lands, and other property which is transferable by deed, by deed sealed with the common seal and signed in its name by the president, a vice-president, presiding member or trustee, and two other members of the corporation, and attested by a witness, or by deed sealed with the common seal and signed in its name by the president, a vice-president, presiding member or trustee and attested by the secretary or assistant secretary of the company. But any conveyance of its property, whether absolutely or upon condition, executed by a public service corporation, is void as to torts committed by such corporation prior to the execution of said deed, if persons injured, or their representatives, commence proceedings or actions to enforce their claims against said corporation within sixty days after the registration of said deed as required by law. (Rev., s. 1130; Code, s. 685; 1891, c. 118; 1893, c. 95, s. 2; 1899, c. 235, s. 17; 1901, c. 2, s. 2; 1903, c. 660, s. 1; 1905, c. 114; 1929, c. 28; 1931, c. 238.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 cited inserted the words "public service" before corporation in line 14 of this section. Public Laws of 1929, c. 189 provided that such amendatory act should not affect pending litigation, and Chapter 256 provided that it should be construed to apply only to instruments executed after its ratification. The Act of 1931 which became effective April 2, 1931, except as to pending litigation, repealed the last mentioned chapter. Consequently the section, limited to public service companies, must be regarded as affecting the standing of corporate mortgages whenever executed. N. C. Law Rev. 363.

Purpose of Section. — The primary purpose of this section is to impose restraints upon insolvent corporations, and disable them from borrowing money and conveying their property to secure it, whereby present liabilities might go unpaid. Traders National Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 307, 3 S. E. 363.

Applies Generally. — By this section the Legislature expressed a general intention with regard to a general subject-matter, that is, it applies to all conveyances and to all creditors and to all torts. Boston Safe-Deposit & Trust Co. v. Hudson, 68 Fed. 758, 760.

Not Applicable to Leases.—It is not required that a lessee corporation should sign a lease, this section applying only to conveyances, and the failure of a lessee corporation to affix its seal to a lease to it if lands necessary to the purpose of its business does not of itself render the lease invalid. Raleigh Banking & Trust Co. v. Safety Transit Lines, 198, N. C. 675, 153 S. E. 158.

An Enabling Act. — This section is an enabling act, additional to and not exclusive of the common law mode of executing deeds. Clark v. Hodge, 116 N. C. 761, 765, 21 S. E. 562; Bason v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 417.

Power to Convey Belongs Primarily to Stockholders. — The extraordinary powers of a corporation, such as that of selling or leasing the corporate property, where it exists, belongs primarily to the stockholders but may be delegated by them, as it can be by an individual, to the directors or to an agent designated in the resolution of the body, either by his official title or his name. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 714, 730, 24 S. E. 124.

Hence a mortgage deed executed according to the provisions of this section is the act of the corporation alone, and not that of the corporation officers, by whose agency the deed is executed. Traders National Bank v. Mfg. Co., 100 N. C. 345, 5 S. E. 81.

Other Methods of Execution Permissible. — The statutory method of alienation by corporations, like that provided by this section is not exclusive of the common law mode of conveyance, and does not prohibit other methods of execution by authorized agents. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 730, 24 S. E. 124.

Same—Example. — A deed of a corporation, the concluding clause being, in witness whereof the said corporation "has caused this indenture to be signed by its president and attested by its secretary, and its common seal to be affixed," with the signatures and seal, is properly executed as a common law deed. Bason v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 417.

Sixty Day Provision Mandatory. — Under this section the action should be commenced within sixty days after the registration of the mortgage. Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 275, 97 S. E. 44.

Construed with Section 1140.—See notes to § 1140.

Judgment for Tort Committed before Transfer.—Under this section as construed with §§ 3309, 3311, an absolute sale by a corporation of its personal property, accompanied by delivery to the purchaser, is not void as to a judgment creditor of the corporation on a judgment obtained against the corporation for a tort committed before the transfer. Carolina Coach Co. v. Begnell, 203 N. C. 656, 166 S. E. 903.

Cited in Carolina Coach Co. v. Hartness, 198 N. C. 524, 527, 152 S. E. 489; Begnell v. Safety Coach Lines, 198 N. C. 688, 153 S. E. 264.

II. THE SEAL.

Corporation Seal Necessary. — When a mortgage by a corporation is signed by the president, secretary and two stockholders and duly witnessed, but there is no common seal attached, and the probate recites that it is "acknowledged by the secretary, who also proves the execution by the president and two stockholders," such probate is insufficient and does not authorize registration, and is ineffectual to pass title as against creditors. Duke v. Markham, 105 N. C. 138, 10 S. E. 1003.

An instrument purporting to be the deed of a corporation, signed by the president and two members of the corporation, but not having the common seal of the corporation attached, is not effective as a deed, under this section for lack of the common seal. Caldwell v. Morganton Mfg. Co., 121 N. C. 339, 28 S. E. 475.

Where a corporate act must be executed by an instrument under seal and the corporation has adopted a common seal, the corporation speaks through and by its seal. Withrell v. Murphy, 154 N. C. 82, 69 S. E. 748.

Presumption of Validity.—When a corporation deed recites that it is sealed with the corporate seal it will be presumed that what purports to be such seal placed after the name of the officer executing the deed is the seal of the corporation. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 20 S. E. 453. As to rebuttal see the next succeeding analysis line.

When Private Seal of Officer Used.—An instrument purporting to be the deed of a corporation and executed in its name by its president with the word "seal" at the end of the signature, is not effective as the deed of the corporation, either at common law or under this section but is only the personal act of the president, and is not admissible in evidence to prove a conveyance by the corporation. Caldwell v. Morganton Mfg. Co., 121 N. C. 339, 28 S. E. 475. See Clark v. Hodge, 116 N. C. 761, 21 S. E. 562.

Same—May Be Adopted by Corporation.—A corporation may adopt and make effectual as its seal the individual seals of its officers affixed to a deed of the corporation, when it has no seal of its own. Taylor v. Heggie, 83 N. C. 244.

III. PLEADING AND PRACTISE.

No Action to Vacate Required.—This section does not require that an action be brought for the purpose of setting aside or vacating the assignment, but that it becomes void and of no effect immediately upon the bringing of an action by the creditor to "enforce his claim." Hence it is unnecessary for the plaintiffs in their action to make any reference or to ask any judgment in respect to the deed of assignment. Fisher v. Western Carolina Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 778, 44 S. E. 601.

Recital in Deed Proof of Authority.—A recital in a deed of a corporation, properly executed, that it was executed in pursuance of an order of the board of directors, dispenses with the necessity of proving such action of the board otherwise than by the deed itself. Caldwell v. Morganton Mfg. Co., 121 N. C. 339, 28 S. E. 475.

When Demurrer Insufficient. — In an action against a corporation for specific performance of a contract the defense, that it is not in writing with the corporate seal attached or signed by an officer, must be taken advantage of by plea and not by demurrer. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco Works, 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

Presumption of Authority Rebutted. — The presumption that a mortgage, with its seal affixed, was authorized by a corporation is rebutted when it was executed to the company's officers to secure a pre-existing debt. Edwards v. Hill Supply Co., 150 N. C. 171, 63 S. E. 742.

When Authority Granted at Special Meeting.—A mortgage executed by a corporation pursuant to a resolution adopted by a majority of the stockholders at a meeting which was specially called, but was not a "regular general meeting," is valid against creditors of the corporation other than the mortgage creditors. Artiexam Paper Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co., 115 N. C. 143, 20 S. E. 366.

IV. FORMER PROVISIONS AS TO CREDITORS.

Editor's Note.—Prior to 1901 this section provided that conveyances should be void as to creditors existing prior to or at the time of the execution of the said deed provided they commenced proceedings within sixty days after registration. See Fisher v. Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 771, 777, 44 S. E. 601 where this former provision is discussed by the court.

The following constructions were given while the provision above referred to was a part of the section.

In General.—The provisions of this section manifestly are designed to prevent a fraudulent conveyance by a corporation contemplating insolvency to the detriment of its existing creditors. It recognizes the principle that the property of an insolvent corporation is a trust fund for the benefit of its creditors. Giving to this creature of the law the rights of property of a natural person, the statute in express terms protects its existing creditors from fraud in disposition of this property. Finance Co. v. Charleston, C & C. R. Co., 61 Fed. 369, 371.

An insolvent corporation may, under the laws of this State, exercise preference in favor of creditors, not corporators or officers, provided it is not done with a purpose to defeat, delay or hinder other creditors or parties in interest (Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107, Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680, distinguished), and subject (in the case of preference by a conveyance by deed) to the right of other creditors to avoid the preference by commencing suit to enforce their claims within sixty days from the date of the registration of the deed, as provided in this section. Merchants National Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Creditors Must Act within Sixty Days.—An assignment by an insolvent corporation for the benefit of creditors will be set aside at the suit of creditors within sixty days from the assignment, as provided in this section. Wilson Cotton Mills v. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770. But the right must be asserted within sixty days. William v. R. R., 126 N. C. 918, 36 S. E. 189.

A conveyance by a corporation of its property in trust for creditors is not void as to pre-existing creditors, unless the latter shall bring suit to enforce their claims, within sixty days after the registration of such conveyance. Blalock v. Kernersville Mfg. Co., 110 N. C. 99, 100, 14 S. E. 501.

§ 1139. Conditional sale contracts.—Contracts, in writing, for the purchase of personal property by corporations, providing for a lien on the property or the retention of the title thereto by the vendor as a security for the purchase price, or any part thereof, are sufficiently executed if signed in the name of the corporation by the president, secretary or treasurer in his official capacity, and may be acknowledged and ordered to registration as is provided by law for the execution, acknowledgment and registration of deeds by natural persons. (1909, c. 335, s. 1.)

Cited in Pick & Co. v. Morehead Bluffs Hotel Co., 197 N. C. 110, 147 S. E. 819.

§ 1140. Mortgaged property subject to execution for labor, clerical services, and torts.—Mortgages of public service corporations upon their property or earnings cannot exempt said property or earnings from execution for the satisfaction of any judgment obtained in courts of the state against such corporations for labor and clerical services performed, or torts committed whereby any person is killed or any person or property injured. (Rev., s. 1131; Code, s. 1255; 1897, c. 334; 1901, c. 2, s. 3; 1915, c. 201, s. 1; 1929, c. 29; 1931, c. 238.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—It must be noted in studing the cases under this section that there were formerly included the words "for material furnished." These words were stricken out in 1897.

Under the section as formerly constituted it was held that coal is "material furnished." Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Elec., etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 24 S. E. 22. Steam Engine and boiler not "material furnished" where it did not appear that they were necessary to the conduct of the business. James v. Lumber Co., 122 N. C. 157, 29 S. E. 358. A mortgage is now not postponed to a judgment for material furnished. Cheesborough v. Sanatorium, 134 N. C. 245, 46 S. E. 494; Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 166, 67 S. E. 477.

The words "clerical services" were added to the section by ch. 201, Laws of 1915.

The Act of 1929 inserted the words "public service" before corporations in line three of this section. Public Laws of 1929, c. 256 provided that such amendatory act should be construed to apply only to instruments executed after its ratification. The Act of 1931, which became effective April 2, 1931, except as to pending litigation, repealed the last amendment and consequently the section, limited to public service companies, must be regarded as affecting the standing of corporate mortgages whenever executed. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 363.

The Act of February 13, 1929, was not intended to affect instruments executed before its passage, since it does not expressly state that they shall be also affected and acts of the Legislature are to be construed prospectively, not retroactively. Dial v. Chatham, 70 F. (2d) 21, 23.

Strict Construction.—This section being in derogation of the common law, must be strictly construed. Fidelity Insurance, Trust, etc., Deposit Co. v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 Fed. 175.

Purpose.—This section is exceedingly comprehensive in its terms, and was intended manifestly to prevent corporations within the State of North Carolina, and those doing business with them, from avoiding the payment of obligations due to laborers. Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills, etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193, 204.

This section was passed to secure labor and materials, and to give ample protection against the necessary consequences of the use of plant and machinery. Finance Co. v. Charleston, C. & C. R. Co., 61 Fed. 369, 372.

Protects Employees and Not Officers.—This section is for the protection of employees of a corporation and not for its officers. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 376.

Applies Only to Property within State.—This section can only operate on property within the State. Fidelity Insurance Trust, etc., Deposit Co. v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 114 Fed. 389, 393.

Does Not Create a Lien.—This section neither creates nor provides for the creation of a lien. It does not seem to provide against prior judgment liens, whether taken upon a prior or subsequent debt; nor does it provide against an absolute bona fide sale, but only provides that the property mortgaged shall stand, so far as their debts and liabilities are concerned, just as if there had been no such mortgage made. Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 463, 67 S. E. 1023.

The section confers no lien or priority. It simply wipes out a mortgage as against a judgment for tort, so that the judgment creditor may proceed to collect his judgment as if there was no mortgage, by execution if the property is not in the hands of a receiver, or by prorating with the mortgage creditors if a receiver has taken charge. Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 460, 67 S. E. 1023, and cases cited. Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 275, 97 S. E. 44.

Same—Example.—This section confers no lien on the products of a cotton factory corporation in favor of one furnishing coal used in their manufacture, but only the right to enforce their claims by judgment and execution, as against the holders of mortgages upon the corporate property. Norfleet v. Tarbora Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

Priorities.—This section creates a priority in favor of those performing labor or rendering clerical services only from the time a judgment has been entered by a court of competent jurisdiction ascertaining the amount and declaring the priority, and when so established it relates back and becomes prior to that of general creditors of the corporation under a prior registered judgment. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Same—Purchaser at Foreclosure Sale.—A notice at a foreclosure sale of the property of a corporation under a mortgage that the employees of the corporation claim a priority under the provisions of this section, does not affect the title conveyed to the purchaser at the sale, but the claimants after obtaining judgment against the corporation may maintain the superiority of their claims to those of the purchaser, but the purchaser is entitled to be heard, and may bring suit to restrain the execution. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Judgments Not Superior Except as Provided in This Section.—Judgments against a corporation for its obligations arising on a contract are not superior to the lien of a prior registered deed of trust given to secure bondholders when the judgments were not in actions to recover for labor and clerical services performed or to recover damages for a tort or for injuries to property within the meaning of this section. Amoskeag Mfg. Co. v. Yadkin Cotton Mills, 200 N. C. 10, 156 S. E. 101.

II. RELATION TO OTHER SECTIONS.

Editor's Note.—In Boston Safe-Deposit and Trust Co. v. Hudson, 68 Fed. 758, the court makes an exhaustive comparison between this section and section 1138. The decision reached was that a judgment against a railroad company for a tort causing injury to the person is superior to the mortgage executed after the tort was committed, and that the bringing of the action within 60 days, as provided by section 1138, did not apply.

See also Finance Co. v. Charleston, etc., R. R. 61 Fed. 369, where the court discusses the history and purpose of this section and section 1138.

Gives a Different Remedy.—This section was enacted after sections 1138 and 2433 and could not have been intended to give the same relief they gave; and it is equally certain it was passed for the benefit of the class of persons mentioned in the enactment, and it is the duty of the court to take into consideration the object for which it was passed and to construe it in that light. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Electric, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 236, 24 S. E. 22.

Applies to Labor and Torts after Mortgage.— This section must mean such labor performed, and such torts committed after making the mortgage, as the Act was passed in 1879. If it were for liabilities existing prior to making the mortgage, they would have been provided by section 1138 which was enacted in 1798, and there would have been no need for the enactment of this section. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Electric, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 234, 24 S. E. 22.

Mechanics' Lien under Sec. 2433.—The mechanics' lien, under section 2433 has no preference over a prior registered mortgage. Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 165, 67 S. E. 477.

III. EFFECT ON MORTGAGES.

Refers to Mortgage of Corporation Itself.—This section expressly refers to a mortgage given by the corporation itself, and not to mortgages on the corporate property acquired by a stranger and registered before the formation of the corporation. Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

This section does not directly invalidate the mortgages, but notwithstanding the attempted alienation, exposes the corporate property to execution issued upon a judgment recovered upon the causes of action mentioned. Traders National Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 308, 3 S. E. 363.

Property Acquired Subject to Prior Mortgage.—This section, which gives to judgments against corporations for labor performed and torts committed priority over prior mortgages executed by the corporation, has no application where the corporation acquired the property subject to such prior mortgage. Humphery Brothers v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 519, 93 S. E. 971; Walker v. Linden Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 460, 87 S. E. 331.

Conveys Nothing.—A mortgage of a corporation conveys nothing as against a subsequent judgment for a tort by the corporation. Howe v. Harper, 127 N. C. 356, 358, 37 S. E. 505; R. R. Co. v. Burnett, 123 N. C. 210, 213, 31 S. E. 602; Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 67 S. E. 1023.

Prior Claim.—A mortgagee of the legal title of property of a corporation, to secure a debt, takes subject to laborers' liens, judgments for torts, and expenses of receivership, and other court proceedings to wind it up, in case of insolvency. Humphery Brothers v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 515, 93 S. E. 971.

Judgment against Lessee.—This section does not make a judgment, against the lessee of a railroad, a lien on the property superior to a mortgage given by the lessor before the lease. And where the road is in the hands of receivers, appointed in a suit to foreclose the mortgages, the judgment creditor has no right to payment from earnings of the road as all rights and interests of the lessee were ended by the appointment of the receiver. Hampton v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 127 Fed. 662.

IV. CERTAIN JUDGMENTS PREFERRED.

A. Labor Performed.

Meaning of Labor.—The word "labor" in legal parlance and as used in this section has a well defined, understood, and accepted meaning. It implies continued exertion of the more onerous and inferior kind, usually and chiefly (prior to the addition of the word "clerical" in the section) consisting in the protracted exertion of muscular force. Moore v. Industrial Co., 138 N. C. 304, 305, 50 S. E. 687.

Foreman Included.—A foreman is a laborer, and the money paid him is entitled to any preference for "labor performed" which is given his co-laborers whom he supervised and with whom he worked. Moore v. Industrial Co., 138 N. C. 304, 50 S. E. 687; Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 167, 67 S. E. 477.

Services Need Not Add to Value of Plant.—Debts of a corporation for labor performed to keep it "a going concern," have a priority over a mortgage previously recorded, although the labor done or materials furnished do not add to the plant or enhance its value. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Electric, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 24 S. E. 22.

What Services Excluded.—The words "labor performed," as used in this section, do not embrace such services as superintending the conduct of its milling operations, or conducting a commissary store and keeping the books of the corporation. Moore v. Industrial Co., 138 N. C. 304, 305, 50 S. E. 687, and cases cited. (But note the effect of the addition of the word "clerical" in the section.)

Independent Contractor's Laborers Excluded.—Under this section the preference given for "labor performed" over prior mortgages of corporations is intended to, and does, give such preference only to laborers employed by the corporation in carrying on the ordinary business of the company, including its repairs and up-keep, and does not confer such preference upon contractors who employ labor under a contract to place "betterments" upon the company's property. Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 167, 67 S. E. 477.

Prior Judgment Unnecessary.—Under this section it is not necessary that claims for labor should be reduced to a formal judgment before they can be proved and given priority over a mortgage. The decree, adjudging the amount of the claim, is to all intents and purposes such a judgment as will meet the requirements of the statute. Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills, etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193, 194, 204.

B. Torts Committed.

Must Injure Person or Property.—This section expresses a particular intention with regard to a restricted subject-matter, and applies only to torts which injure persons or property. Boston Safe-Deposit & Trust Co. v. Hudson, 68 Fed. 760.

Action against Purchaser. — An insolvent railroad company is not a necessary party to a suit against a purchaser at the foreclosure of a mortgage on its road for an injury while it was operating the road. Howe v. Harper, 127 N. C. 356, 37 S. E. 505.

Remedy for Injured Person. — While this section does not create a lien, it gives to the tort-claimant, who has reduced his claim to judgment, a right (remedy) to follow and subject to the payment of his claim such property as the corporation has disposed of by mortgage, even where the sale under the mortgage had taken place before the judgment has been rendered. Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 464, 67 S. E. 1023.

Judgment Pending Foreclosure Proceedings. — A passenger recovered judgment in the courts of this state against a railroad company for personal injury. At the time, a suit to foreclose a mortgage against the railroad was pending in the federal courts. Held, the judgment in the state court constituted a prior lien on the property of the railroad. Trust Co. v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 183 Fed. 803.

Deed of Trust Subordinate.—While this section does not give a tort claimant a lien for his judgment for the tort committed, it does create a priority and has the effect of rendering a deed of trust subordinate to the judgment. Dial v. Chatham, 70 F. (2d) 21, 23.

§ 1141. Gas and electric power companies.—Gas and electric light and power companies have power to lay, extend, construct, erect, maintain, repair and remove all necessary or convenient towers, poles, cable wires, conductors, lamps, fixtures, appliances, and appurtenances upon, through and over any roads, streets, avenues, lanes, alleys and bridges within and near any city, town or village where said company is located; and all such roads, streets, lanes, alleys and bridges shall be left in as good condition as they were in at the time of using them as aforesaid: Provided, that the rights and privileges conferred in this section shall not be exercised unless the authorities of such city, town or village first give their consent, and afterwards the said authorities shall have full power to control the location of all towers, poles, wires, conductors and all other fixtures, appliances and appurtenances belonging to or operated by any of said companies. (Rev., s. 1133; 1889 (Pr.), c. 35, s. 2.)

Cross References. — As to electric, telegraph and power companies in general, see chapter 32; under that chapter as to use of public highways, see sec. 1695 et seq. and annotations thereunder. As to eminent domain, see chapter 33, sec. 908.

§ 1142. Trust companies and word "trust."—No person, firm, association or corporation domiciled in the state of North Carolina, except corporations reporting to and under the supervision of the corporation commission of this state, may therein advertise any sign as a trust company or in any way solicit or receive deposits or transact business as a trust company, or use the word "trust" as a part of his or its name or title. This section shall not prevent any individual, as such, from acting in any trust capacity as heretofore. A violation of this section is a misdemeanor, and on conviction the offender shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars for each offense: Provided, however, that it shall be lawful for any corporation incorporated prior to January 1, 1905, to retain the word "trust" in the name of said corporation, though it does not transact a banking business or such other business as requires its examination by the corporation commission. (1915, c. 196, s. 3; 1919, c. 108.)

As to the word "trust" in the corporate name, see sec. 1124.

§ 1143. Actions by attorney-general to prevent ultra vires acts, etc.—In the following cases the attorney-general may, in the name of the state, upon his own information, or upon the complaint of a private party, bring an action against the offending parties for the purpose of—

1. Restraining by injunction a corporation from assuming or exercising any franchise or transacting any business not allowed by its charter.
2. Restraining any person from exercising corporate franchises not granted.
3. Bringing directors, managers, and officers of a corporation, or the trustees of funds given for a public or charitable purpose, to an account for the management and disposition of the property confided to their care.
4. Removing such officers or trustees upon proof of gross misconduct.
5. Securing, for the benefit of all interested, the said property or funds.
6. Setting aside and restraining improper alienations of the said property or funds.
7. Generally compelling the faithful performance of duty and preventing all fraudulent practices, embezzlement, and waste. (Rev., s. 1197; Code, ss. 607, 686; 1901, c. 2, s. 107.)

Application. — This section applies when the purpose of the action is not to dissolve a corporation but to preserve it in order that its useful functions may be performed and at the same time that it may not be able to abuse its powers or transcend them. Attorney General v. R. R., 28 N. C. 456, 464.

The above case was decided under the old R. S. ch. 26 sec. 10, the provisions of which are contained in this section. For actions by the Attorney-General to dissolve a corporation, see sec. 1187.

Art. 4. Directors and Officers

§ 1144. Directors.—The business of every corporation shall be managed by its directors, who must be at least three in number, and at all times bona fide stockholders in case the corporation is one issuing stock. A corporation may, by its certificate of incorporation or by-laws, determine the number of shares a stockholder must own to qualify him as a director. The directors shall be chosen annually by the stockholders at the time and place provided in the by-laws, and shall hold office for one year and until others are chosen and qualified in their stead; but by so providing in its certificate of incorporation, a corporation may classify its directors in respect to the time for which they will severally hold office, the several classes to be elected for different terms, but no class may be elected for a shorter period than one year, or for a longer period than five years, and the term of office of at least one class must expire in each year. A corporation which has more than one kind of stock may, by so providing in its certificate of incorporation, confer the right to choose the directors of any class upon the stockholders of such class, to the exclusion of the others. One director of every corporation of this state shall be, and only one need be, an actual resident of the state, notwithstanding the provisions of the charter or any other act. (Rev., ss 1147, 1148; 1901, c. 2, ss. 14, 44.)

Cross References. — As to election of directors, see sec. 1175. As to proceedings upon failure to hold election, see sec. 1176. As to directors' meetings, see sec. 1168. As to directors' power to declare dividends, see sec. 1178. As to directors' power to make assessments, see sec. 1165. As to directors' liability for impairing capital, see sec. 1179. As to liability for fraud, see sec. 1152. As to directors acting as trustees upon dissolution of corporation, see sec. 1194. As to directors' duty to produce books at election, see sec. 1171.

Director Occupies Fiduciary Relation. — A director of a company occupies a fiduciary relation to the company which, by virtue of his office, he represents in the management of its principal functions. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107. Directors are to be considered and dealt with as trustees or quasi trustees. Besseliew v Brown, 177 N. C. 65, 67, 97 S. E. 743.

Care Required of Directors. — Good faith alone will not relieve the directors of a corporation from liability to its creditors for damages caused them by their gross mismanagement and neglect of its affairs. Anthony v. Jeffress, 172 N. C. 378, 90 S. E. 414.

They are not, as a rule, responsible for mere errors of judgment (Fisher v. Fisher, 170 N. C. 378, 87 S. E. 113, and authorities cited), nor for slight omissions from which the loss complained of could not have been reasonably expected; but where they accept these positions of trust they are expected and required to give them the care and attention that a prudent man should exercise in like circumstances and are charged with a like duty, usually the care that he shows in the conduct of his own affairs of a similar kind. Besseliew v. Brown, 177 N. C. 65, 97 S. E. 743.

Director Cannot Prefer Himself as Creditor. — A director, who is also a creditor of a corporation, cannot prefer himself to the other creditors in the application of its assets to the security or payment of its debts. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107; Bank v. Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765; McIver v. Young Hardware Co., 144 N. C. 478, 483, 57 S. E. 169.

Powers of Directors. — It is well settled that the directors of a corporation, unless they are specially restrained by the charter or by-laws, have the power to borrow money with which to conduct its business and to secure payment by mortgage on the corporate property. Wall v. Rothrock, 171 N. C. 388, 88 S. E. 633.

Same—May Loan Money to Corporation. — While a director of a company may lend it money when needed for its benefit, and take a lien upon the corporate property as security for its repayment, provided the transaction be open and entirely fair and capable of strict proof as to its bona fides, yet where a corporation is insolvent a director who is a creditor can not, upon a debt theretofore existing, take advantage of his superior means of information to secure his debt as against other creditors. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107.

Liens of Directors. — Where the directors of a corporation made a bona fide sale of property to it, for value and free from fraud, judgments against the corporation for the purchase price, duly docketed, constitute liens in favor of the directors against the corporate property. Caldwell v. Robinson, 179 N. C. 518, 523, 103 S. E. 75.

Right of Directors to Security. — By taking mortgage on corporate property, when the corporation is in failing circumstances, directors, occupying a fiduciary relation, are not permitted to secure themselves against pre-existing liabilities of the corporation upon which they are already bound. Wall v. Rothrock, 171 N. C. 388, 88 S. E. 633; Caldwell v. Robinson, 179 N. C. 518, 523, 103 N. C. 75.

Right of Corporation to Sue Negligent Directors.—Where the directors or managing officers of a corporation are liable in damages for their willful or negligent failure to exercise the care and attention to the corporate affairs entrusted to them and which they have assumed, an action will lie against them in favor of the corporation, and in case of its insolvency and receivership, in favor of its receiver. Besseliew v. Brown, 177 N. C. 65, 97 S. E. 743.

§ 1145. Officers, agents, and vacancies.—Every corporation organized under this chapter shall have a president, secretary, and treasurer, to be chosen either by the directors or stockholders, as the by-laws direct, and they shall hold office until others are chosen and qualified in their stead; the president shall be chosen from among the directors; the secretary shall record all the votes of the corporation and directors in a book to be kept for that purpose, and perform such other duties as are assigned to him; the treasurer may be required to give bond for the faithful discharge of his duty in such sum, and with such surety or sureties, as are required by the by-laws. Any two of these offices may be held by the same person, if the body electing so determine. The corporation may have such other officers and agents, who shall be chosen in the manner and hold office for the terms, and upon the conditions, prescribed by the by-laws or determined by the board of directors. Any vacancy occurring among the directors, or in the office of president, secretary or treasurer, shall be filled in the manner provided for in the by-laws; in the absence of such provision the vacancy shall be filled by the board of directors. (Rev., ss. 1149, 1150, 1151; 1901, c. 2, ss. 15, 16, 17.)

Cross References. — As to liability of officers for failing to make reports or for false reports see section 1151. As to their liability for fraud, see sec. 1152. For full treatment of officers and agents, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 561-572; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 486-489.

Officers Must Act in Good Faith. — The officers of the company had no right to take advantage of their knowledge of its financial condition to secure a preference for themselves on all its property as to a pre-existing debt. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107; Electric Light Co. v. Electric Light Co., 116 N. C. 112, 21 S. E. 951; Graham v. Carr, 130 N. C. 271, 274, 41 S. E. 379; Holshouser v. Copper Co., 138 N. C. 248, 251, 50 S. E. 650; Edwards v. Hill Supply Co., 150 N. C. 171, 172, 63 S. E. 742.

Powers of President. — The president of a corporation is not bound by any secret limitation upon the authority usually vested in the chief officer of a corporation; hence a defense to a note, issued by the president of a corporation, that it was unauthorized because of an unwritten by-law is untenable. Phillips v. Interstate Land Co., 176 N. C. 514, 97 S. E. 417.

The president of a corporation under this section has implied power to sign a note and secret limitations on his authority will not be binding on the payee, and a plea of ultra vires by the corporation, having placed its president in a position to mislead plaintiff and cause the loss, will be excluded. White v. Johnson & Sons, 205 N. C. 773, 172 S. E. 370.

Power of General Manager. — The general manager of one of a chain of stores has implied authority to employ clerks by the year, and the corporation is bound by such contract though there exists an undisclosed limitation of the agent's authority to make contracts of employment for more than a month. Strickland v. Kress & Co., 183 N. C. 534, 112 S. E. 30.

Implied Authority of Secretary. — The secretary of an incorporated garage and auto repair company has the implied authority under this section to settle claims made for damages upon the corporation, and one so dealing with him therein will not be bound by a secret limitation of his authority; and upon his own testimony that he was the proper one to be dealt with in this respect, the question of the corporation's liability for his promise to pay the claim is properly presented. Beck v. Wilkins-Ricks Co., 186 N. C. 210, 119 S. E. 235.

Individual Liability of Officers. — Where officers of a corporation knowingly participate in a wrong which is actionable they are jointly and severally liable therefor. Cone v. United Fruit Growers' Ass'n, 171 N. C. 530, 83 S. E. 860.

Necessity for Contract for Compensation. — The cases very generally hold that an officer of a corporation, for services in the course and scope of his official duties, can only recover when compensation therefor has been authoritatively agreed upon in advance. It is not always required that a definite sum be fixed upon, but there must be a previous agreement for compensation existent or in some way expressed so as to bind the company. There can be no recovery on a quantum meruit. Chiles v. United States, etc., Mfg. Co., 167 N. C. 574, 83 S. E. 812, citing Caho v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 147 N. C. 20, 60 S. E. 640.

Removal. — The officers of a corporation created for private purpose have no franchise in their offices, and are removable during the term for which they are appointed, when found to be incompetent or faithless. Eliason v. Coleman, 86 N. C. 236, 240.

§ 1146. Books to be audited on request of stockholders.—Upon request of twenty-five per cent of the stockholders, or of any stockholder or stockholders owning twenty-five per cent of the capital stock, of a private corporation organized under the laws of North Carolina and doing business in this state, it is the duty of the officers of the corporation to have all of its books audited by a competent accountant, so that its financial status may be ascertained. Upon refusal or failure of the corporation to commence the auditing of its books within thirty days after such request, the requesting stockholder or stockholders, after ten days notice to the corporation, may apply to the judge of the district, or to the judge holding the courts of the district, in which the corporation has its residence, either at chambers or term time, at any place in the district, and the judge shall appoint an auditor and require the books to be audited at the expense of the corporation. The officers of the corporation shall render to the auditor any assistance or information they can, and give him access to all of the assets, books, papers, etc., relating to the affairs of the corporation, in order that a proper audit may be made. Upon completion of the audit the auditor shall render a statement to the corporation, and to the petitioning stockholder or stockholders. (1911, c 174, s. 1; 1913, c. 76, s. 1.)

§ 1147. Loans to stockholders.—No loan of money may be made to a stockholder or officer of a corporation, and if any is made, the officers who made it or assented thereto are jointly and severally liable, to the extent of such loan and interest, for all the debts of the corporation until the repayment of the sum loaned. (Rev., s. 1160; 1901, c. 2, s. 53.)

§ 1148. Reports to corporation commission.—In addition to the information required to be given in the annual report of corporations to the corporation commission under the provisions of the Revenue and Machinery Acts, spaces shall be provided in such manner as the corporation commission deem proper so that each corporation, whether stock or nonstock, shall report whether the stock, if any, issued by it was issued for cash or for purchase of property, designating what property, the names of all the directors and officers, with the date of the election or appointment, terms of office, residence and postoffice address of each, the character of its business, and the name of the agent in charge thereof upon whom process against the corporation may be served; but this shall not prevent service of process on other agents authorized by law. This information, together with the amount of stock issued and outstanding by the corporation, shall be available to the public upon application to the corporation commission. After these reports have been made to the corporation commission and the excess tax thereon has been computed and determined, it is the duty of the corporation commission to certify a list of such corporations, showing amount of stock issued by each, whether owing an excess tax or not, to the state treasurer, who shall add to such excess tax, if any, the amount due by the corporation on account of franchise tax, and forward a statement of such indebtedness to the corporation for payment, under the penalties provided by law. Every corporation failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall forfeit to the state $100, to be collected by the sheriff of the county where the principal office of the corporation is situated, in a civil action to be brought before a justice of the peace, and when collected shall be remitted by the sheriff to the corporation commission, after deducting his cost as allowed by law, which he shall collect in addition to the penalty. (1913, c. 198, ss. 1, 2, 3.)

§ 1148(a). Forfeiture of corporate charter and organization of new corporation. — Wherever a corporation created under the laws of the state of North Carolina has, on account of failure to make reports of the different state authorities, for such a length of time as to lose its charter and where thereafter, under the laws of the state of North Carolina, a new charter is issued, in the same name as the original corporation, and on behalf of the same corporation, such new corporation shall succeed to the same properties, to the same rights as the original corporation before losing its charter on account of neglect hereinbefore mentioned.

Whenever such new corporation shall have been created, under the laws of this state, all the title, rights and emoluments to the property held by the original corporation shall inure to the benefit of the newer corporation and the new corporation shall issue its stock to the stockholders in the defunct corporation, in the same number and with the same par value as held by the stockholders of the defunct corporation.

Such new corporation shall have the rights and privileges of maintaining any action or cause of action which the defunct corporation might maintain, bring or defend and to all intents and purposes the new corporation shall take the place of the defunct corporation to the same intent and purposes as if the defunct corporation had never expired by reason of its failure to make the reports hereinbefore referred to. (1933, c. 124.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 211, for criticism and interpretation of this section.

§ 1149. Secretary of state may call for special reports.—The secretary of state has power to call for special reports from corporations, of the same character as their regular reports, at such times as he may deem the public interest requires, but no fees shall be charged for filing these special reports. (Rev., s. 1153.)

§ 1150. Secretary of state to publish list of corporations created. — The secretary of state shall annually compile and publish from the records of his office a complete alphabetical list of the original and amended certificates of incorporation filed during the preceding year, together with the location of the principal office of each in this state, the name of the agent in charge thereof, the amount of authorized capital stock, the amount with which business is to be commenced, the amount issued, the date of filing the certificate, and the period for which the corporation is to continue; but the secretary of state and the corporation commission shall confer and arrange the statistics so as to prevent the same facts being embodied in the reports of both departments. (Rev., s. 1244; 1901, c. 2, s. 104; 1911, c. 211, s. 10; 1913, c. 198, s. 5.)

§ 1151. Liability of officers failing to make reports or making false reports.—If any of the officers neglect or refuse to make any report required of them by law for thirty days after written request so to do by a creditor or stockholder of the corporation, they are jointly and severally liable to the person demanding such report, for the amount of his debt if he is a creditor, or for the amount of his loss if he is a stockholder. If any report or certificate made, or any public notice given, by the officers in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter, is false in any material representation, all the officers who signed the same, knowing it to be false, are jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the corporation contracted while they were stockholders or officers thereof, as a penalty enforceable in the courts of this state only. (Rev., ss. 1154, 1163; 1901, c. 2, ss. 27, 56.)

§ 1152. Liability for fraud.—In case of fraud by the president, directors, managers, or stockholders, in a corporation, the court shall adjudge personally liable to creditors and others injured thereby the directors and stockholders who were concerned in the fraud. (Rev., s. 1155; Code, s. 686; 1901, c. 2, s. 107.)

§ 1153. Joint and several liability of officers, etc., contribution.—When the officers, directors or stockholders of a corporation are liable to pay its debts, or any part thereof, any person to whom they are liable has a right of action against any one or more of them. And any such officer, director or stockholder has the right of equitable contribution in any action for that purpose against any other officer, director or stockholder who is liable with him for any amount which he has been compelled to pay as provided in this section. (Rev., s. 1156; 1901, c. 2, s. 90.)

Corporation Need Not Be Joined.—The directors of a corporation are jointly and severally liable for their torts, and the corporation itself can be joined or not, at the election of the plaintiff, in an action to enforce that liability. Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 24 S. E. 478.

§ 1155. Assets of corporation first exhausted.—No sale or other satisfaction shall be had of the property of a director or stockholder for a debt of the corporation of which he is director or stockholder until judgment be obtained therefor against the corporation and execution thereon returned unsatisfied, or until it is shown to the court that the corporation has no property available for the satisfaction of the indebtedness. (Rev., s. 1158; 1901, c. 2, s. 92.)

Art. 5. Capital Stock

§ 1156. Classes of stock.—Every corporation has power to create two or more kinds of stock of such classes, with such designations, preferences, and voting powers or restriction or (qualification thereof as are prescribed by those holding a majority two-thirds in the case of banks and building and loan associations) of its outstanding capital stock; and the power to increase or decrease the stock as herein elsewhere provided applies to all or any of the classes of stock; and the preferred stock may, if desired, be made subject to redemption at not less than par, at a fixed time and price, to be expressed in the certificate thereof; and the holders thereof are entitled to receive, and the corporation is bound to pay thereon, a fixed yearly dividend, to be expressed in the certificate, payable quarterly, half-yearly or yearly, before any dividend is set apart or paid on the common stock, and such dividends may be made cumulative. In case of insolvency, its debts or other liabilities shall be paid in preference to the preferred stock. No corporation shall create preferred stock except by authority given to the board of directors by a vote of at least a majority (two-thirds in the case of banks and building associations) of the stock voted at a meeting of the common stockholders, duly called for that purpose. Provided, that, except in the case of banks and building and loan associations, no new class of stock shall hereafter be created entitled to dividends or shares in distribution of assets in priority to any class of preferred stock already outstanding except with the consent of the holders of record of two-thirds (or such greater amount as may be specified in the charter) of the number of shares of such outstanding preferred stock having voting powers. The terms "general stock" and "common stock" are synonymous. (Rev., s. 1159; 1901, c. 2, s. 19; 1903, c. 660, ss. 2, 3; 1923, c. 155; 1925, c. 118, ss. 2, 2a.)

Cross References. — For full treatment of capital stock, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 527-540; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 477-482.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by ch. 118, Laws of 1925 by substituting the words "a majority" for the words "two-thirds" in the two places dealing with the vote of stockholders except in the case of banks and building and loan associations. The proviso was also added by the same chapter. This change is in accordance with the change made in section 1130 by the same act. See editor's note under sec. 1130. See also 3 N. C. Law Review 34, 137, for a discussion of this amendment.

Capital Stock—As Distinguished from Capital. — The capital stock of a corporation, strictly speaking, is the amount in money or property subscribed and paid in or secured to be paid in by the shareholders, and always remains the same unless changed by proper legal authority, while its capital is a broader term and includes all funds, securities, credits, and property of every kind whatever belonging to the corporation, though the words are often used interchangeably in revenue statutes. Person v. Board, 184 N. C. 499, 115 S. E. 336.

A Trust Fund for Creditors.—The capital stock and property of a corporation, in case of its insolvency, constitute a fund, first, for the satisfaction of its creditors, and next, for its stockholders. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107; Gilmore v. Smathers, 167 N. C. 440, 83 S. E. 823.

Generally speaking, the property and assets of a corporation become, upon its insolvency, a "trust fund" for the benefit of its stockholders and creditors. Millen v. Moline, etc., Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 366, 33 L. Ed. 178.

Meaning of "Trust Fund." — The term "trust fund," as used in various decisions of the courts in reference to the assets of a corporation, does not imply that upon the insolvency of a corporation its assets will be administered strictly as a trust for the benefits of all creditors pro rata, but that whenever proceedings under the statute are had, and the court takes charge of the assets through its receiver, it will make equitable distribution, among all the creditors, of all the assets not subject to prior liens or rights. Merchants National Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

The preferred stock forms a part of the capital stock of the corporation, under this section, entitling the holders to all rights of the stockholder subject to the terms and conditions on which their stock was issued. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 813, 172 S. E. 373.

A preferred stockholder of a corporation is not a creditor of the corporation, and must be confined to his rights as a stockholder. Weaver Power Co. v. Elk Mountain Mill Co., 154 N. C. 76, 69 S. E. 747.

Lien of Preferred Stockholders—Rights of Creditors.—This section fixes the authority of the corporation to issue its preferred stock and the priorities thereof are always subject to the rights of creditors. So an attempt of the corporation to give the preferred stockholders a lien upon its realty in the nature of a mortgage or deed of trust under the provisions of its charter is ineffectual as to the prior rights of creditors. Ellington v. Supply Co., 196 N. C. 784, 147 S. E. 307.

§ 1157. Stock to be paid in money or money's worth; issue for labor or property.—Nothing but money shall be considered as payment for any part of the capital stock of any corporation organized under this chapter, except as herein provided in case of the purchase of property or labor performed. Any corporation may issue stock for labor done or personal property or real estate, or leases thereof, and, in the absence of fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the directors as to the value of such labor, property, real estate or leases shall be conclusive. (Rev., ss. 1159, 1160; 1901, c. 2, ss. 19, 53; 1903, c. 660, ss. 2, 3.)

Cross References.—As to stock issued for property, see the next section. As to stock issued in payment for construction work, see sec. 1159. As to non par value stock, see sec. 1167.

Purposes to Prevent Fraud.—This section was passed in order that such subscriptions may be protected in their integrity and not become a means of deceiving those who deal with the corporation. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 401, 93 S. E. 906.

Effect of Charter Provision.—A provision in the charter of an incorporated company that the capital stock "shall be issued as full-paid stock," does not permit shares of stock to be issued to stockholders without payment for it by them in money, or its equivalent in property at an honest valuation. Clayton v. Ore Knob Co., 109 N. C. 385, 14 S. E. 36.

Judgment of Directors Arbitrary.—This section makes the judgment of the board of directors, in fixing the value of property of its subscribers to its shares of stock to be accepted in lieu of money, arbitrary and of artificial weight, in the absence of fraud; and where there is no evidence of fraud therein, a judgment as of nonsuit is properly granted. Gover v. Malever, 187 N. C. 774, 122 S. E. 841.

Cash Payment Unnecessary.—It is not essential to a bona fide subscription to stock in a corporation that there be a present payment in cash by the subscriber or that he be solvent; a subscription is considered bona fide whenever made by one who subscribes in good faith, with reasonable expectation and apparent prospect of being able to pay assessments on his stock as they may thereafter be called for. Boushall v. Myatt, 167 N. C. 328, 83 S. E. 352.

Conditional Subscription.—A subscription to stock of a corporation may be made on condition that there shall be no liability until the corporation has received actual subscriptions to its capital stock to a specified amount. Alexander v. North Carolina, etc., Trust Co., 155 N. C. 124, 71 S. E. 69; citing Queen City Printing, etc. Co. v. McAden, 131 N. C. 178, 183, 42 S. E. 575; Penniman v. Alexander, 111 N. C. 427, 428, 16 S. E. 408; Kelly v. Oliver, 113 N. C. 422, 443, 18 S. E. 698.

Illegal Payment.—Under this section a transaction whereby the defendant borrowed a certain sum and bought a half interest in a company, and let the company that he was promoting take it over as soon as it was incorporated, and pay his note, and also issue to him stock as the consideration, was illegal. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 93 S. E. 906.

Cited in Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 61, 147 S. E. 676.

§ 1158. Stock issued for property; how value ascertained; how stock reported.—Any corporation formed under this chapter may purchase any property necessary for its business, and issue stock to the amount of the value thereof in payment therefor. The stock so issued shall be full-paid stock, and not liable to any further call, nor shall the holder thereof be liable for any further payment under any of the provisions of this chapter; and in the absence of actual fraud the judgment of the directors as to the value of the property shall be conclusive. In all statements and reports of the corporation to be published or filed, this stock shall not be stated or reported as being issued for cash paid to the corporation, but shall be reported in this respect according to the facts. (Rev., s. 1161; 1901, c. 2, s. 54.)

Cross References.—As to issue of stock for labor or property, see also the preceding section. As to stock issued to construction companies, see the following section. As to non par value stock, see sec. 1167.

Evidence of Fraud.—In an action by the receivers of an insolvent corporation to compel the payment of a subscription to stock issued for property acquired by the corporation for the conduct of the business, evidence tending to show a grossly excessive valuation of the property by the directors, knowingly made, is strong evidence of fraud, and may be conclusive thereof. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 76 S. E. 538.

Proceedings Where Property Overvalued. — Although a margin may be allowed for an honest difference of opinion as to value, a valuation grossly excessive, knowingly made, while its acceptance may bind the corporation, is a fraud on creditors, and they may proceed against the stockholders individually who sell the property, as for an unpaid subscription. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 401, 93 S. E. 906; Hobgood v. Ehlen, 141 N. C. 344, 345, 53 S. E. 857.

Burden of Proof.—The burden of proving that the property was taken in payment at its true value, and, further, that such value was approved by a board of directors acting independently in the interest of the corporation is upon the person who alleges payment. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 401, 93 S. E. 906.

Cited in Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 61, 147 S. E. 676.

§ 1159. Construction companies building railroads, etc., may take stock therein; how issued, valued, and reported.—Corporations having for their object the building or repairing of railroads, water, gas or electric works, tunnels, bridges, viaducts, canals, hotels, wharves, piers, or any like works of internal improvement or public use, may subscribe for, take, pay for, hold, use and dispose of stock or bonds in any corporation formed for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating any such public works; and the directors of any such corporation formed for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating any public work of the description aforesaid may accept in payment of any such subscription, or purchase, real or personal property, necessary for the purposes of such corporation, or work, labor and services performed, or materials furnished to, or for such corporation to the amount of the value thereof, and from time to time issue upon any such subscription or purchase, in such installments or proportions as such directors may agree upon, full-paid stock, in full or partial performance of the whole, or any part of such subscription or purchase, and the stock so issued shall be full-paid stock, and not liable to any further call, nor shall the holder thereof be liable for any further payments. And in all statements and reports of the corporation to be published or filed, this stock shall not be stated, or reported, as being issued for cash paid to the corporation, but shall be reported and published in this respect according to the fact. (Rev., s. 1172; 1901, c. 2, s. 55.)

As to stock issued for labor or property, see the two preceding sections.

§ 1160. Liability for unpaid stock.—Where the capital stock of a corporation has not been paid in and the assets are insufficient to satisfy its debts and obligations, each stockholder is bound to pay on each share held by him the sum necessary to complete the amount of such share, as fixed by the charter, or such proportion of that sum as is required to satisfy such debts and obligations; but no person holding stock in any corporation in this state as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, or as collateral security, is personally subject to any liability as a stockholder of the corporation; but the person pledging the stock is considered as holding the same, and is liable as a stockholder accordingly, and the estate and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, is liable in like manner, and to the same extent, as the testator or intestate, or the ward, or the person interested in such fund, would have been had he been living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name. (Rev., s. 1162; 1893, c. 471; 1901, c. 2, s. 22.)

In General.—Both under general principles of corporate law, appertaining to the subject, and by this section, stockholders of an insolvent corporation are liable pro rata for their unpaid subscriptions to an amount necessary to liquidate the corporate debts. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 76 S. E. 538; McIver v. Hardware Co., 144 N. C. 478, 57 S. E. 169; Claypoole v. McIntosh, 182 N. C. 109, 111, 108 S. E. 433.

Construed with § 441.—See note under § 441.

Unpaid Balances to Be Collected.—The capital stock paid or unpaid of a corporation being a trust fund for the benefit of creditors, it is the duty of the courts, at the suit of creditors, to require unpaid subscriptions to be collected at least to the extent necessary to pay the unpaid debts of the corporation. Wilson Cotton Mills v. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770.

In case of insolvency any unpaid balance may, by proper proceedings, be made available to the extent required for the settlement of outstanding claims. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 468, 76 S. E. 538.

Suspension of Enterprise.—The mere fact, alone, that a proposed corporate enterprise has been suspended affords a subscriber to the capital stock no excuse for not paying his subscription according to his agreement. Raleigh Impr. Co. v. Andrews, 176 N. C. 280, 96 S. E. 1032. Decree affirmed, 178 N. C. 328, 100 S. E. 514.

Agreement Contrary to Section.—No agreement or arrangement between a corporation and its stockholders, whereby the latter are to be released from indebtedness on their subscriptions, will be valid or of any force as against creditors. Marshall Foundry Company v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680; Heggie v. Building and Loan Asso., 107 N. C. 581, 591, 12 S. E. 275. See also, Gilmore v. Smathers, 167 N. C. 440, 83 S. E. 823.

Stockholder Estopped. — Where a person has agreed to become a stockholder in a corporation and has enjoyed the benefits and privileges of membership he can not, in a suit by the corporation to recover his unpaid subscription, set up as a defense that the corporation was not legally organized. Waderborro Cotton Mills Co. v. Burns, 114 N. C. 353, 19 S. E. 238; Academy v. Lindsey, 28 N. C. 476; Navigation Co. v. Neal, 10 N. C. 520, 537; R. R. v. Thompson, 52 N. C. 387; Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680.

Same—Preliminary Agreement Broken.—Except in cases of fraud, and then only in restricted instances (Chamberlain v. Trogden, 148 N. C. 139, 61 S. E. 628), a subscriber to stock in a corporation, absolute in terms, may not be relieved of his obligation by reason of nonperformance of conditions attached to a preliminary agreement among some of the members prior to incorporation, a position especially insistent where the rights of creditors have supervened. Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680; North Carolina R. Co. v. Leach, 49 N. C. 340.

Set-Offs.—In a receiver's action to collect unpaid stock subscriptions, a subscriber can not set off a debt due him by the corporation. Vaughan-Robertson Drug Co. v. Grimes-Mills Drug Co., 173 N. C. 502, 92 S. E. 376. Nor can he credit himself with amounts he paid on another subscription. Id.

§ 1161. Decrease of capital stock.—The decrease of capital stock may be effected by—

1. Retiring or reducing any class of the stock.
2. Drawing the necessary number of shares by lot for retirement.
3. The surrender by every stockholder of his shares and the issue to him in place thereof of a decreased number of shares.
4. The purchase at not above par of certain shares for retirement.
5. Retiring shares owned by the corporation.
6. Reducing the par value of shares.

When a corporation decreases the amount of its capital stock as above provided, the certificate decreasing the same shall be published at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located, the first publication to be made within fifteen days after the filing of the certificate. In default of such publication the directors of the corporation are jointly and severally liable for all debts of the corporation contracted before the filing of the certificate, and the stockholders are also liable for such sums as they respectively receive of the amount so reduced. No such decrease of capital stock decreases the liability of any stockholder whose shares have not been fully paid, for debts of the corporation theretofore contracted. (Rev., s. 1164; 1901, c. 2, s. 32.)

Cross References.—As to increasing or decreasing amount of capital stock by amendment to charter, see sec. 1131. As to director's liability for impairing capital stock, see sec. 1179. As to capital stock a trust fund for creditors, see annotations under sec. 1156.

Bona Fide Creditors Protected. — The right to buy in and cancel its own stock may sometimes be exercised by a corporation, but not in derogation of the rights of bona fide creditors. Heggie v. Peoples Building and Loan Asso., 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275.

Purpose of Provision for Notice. — This provision as to notice is only necessary to afford the stockholders of a corporation protection against creditors. As between the stockholders the reduction, if otherwise lawful and valid and pursuant to resolutions properly passed, will bind the members, and may be enforced by corporate action. Meisenheimer v. Alexander, 162 N. C. 226, 235, 78 S. E. 161.

While Debts Unpaid. — No part of capital stock can be withdrawn for the purpose of reimbursing the principal of the capital stock until the debts of the corporation are paid. Weaver Power Co. v. Elk Mountain Mill Co., 154 N. C. 76, 69 S. E. 747.

Repurchase of Stock.—This section was held inapplicable to suit by receiver against directors for repurchase of stock by corporation in Thompson v. Shepherd, 203 N. C. 310, 165 S. E. 796.

§ 1162. Certificates and duplicates.—Every stockholder shall be entitled to have a certificate signed by the president or a vice-president and by the treasurer or an assistant treasurer or the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation certifying the number of shares owned by him in such corporation. A corporation may issue a new certificate of stock in the place of any certificate theretofore issued by it, alleged to have been lost or destroyed, and the directors authorizing such issue of a new certificate may require the owner of the lost or destroyed certificate, or his legal representatives, to give the corporation a bond, in such sum as they may direct, as an indemnity against any claim that may be made against the corporation. A new certificate may be issued without requiring any bond when, in the judgment of the directors, it is proper to do so. (Rev., ss. 1165, 1166; 1885, c. 265; 1901, c. 2, s. 94; 1927, c. 173.)

As to action to compel issuance of duplicate certificates, see next section.

Editor's Note.—The first sentence in this section formerly read, "Every stockholder shall have a certificate signed by the president and treasurer, or secretary, certifying the number of shares owned by him." The present first sentence was added by ch. 173, Public Laws 1927.

Nature of Stock Certificate.—A certificate of stock is simply a written acknowledgment by a corporation of the interest of the holder in its property and franchises. It has no value except that derived from the company issuing it; and its legal status is in the nature of a chose in action. Person v. Board, 184 N. C. 499, 115 S. E. 336.

Evidence of Ownership of Stock.—A certificate for shares is not the stock itself, but constitutes only prima facie evidence of the ownership of that number of shares. Misenheimer v. Alexander, 162 N. C. 226, 78 S. E. 161, citing Cook on Corporations (6th Ed.) § 13; Clark on Corporations, p. 260.

Certificate Unnecessary.—Insurance of stock certificates is unnecessary either to the existence of the corporation or to confer title to the stockholder. Powell Bros. v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 68 S. E. 926.

Reissue—Application of Last Sentence.—The last sentence of this section, relative to the reissue of stock to supply lost certificates, is valid and applies to all incorporated companies, and interferes with the chartered rights of none. Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 125 N. C. 124, 34 S. E. 227.

§ 1163. Action to compel issuance of duplicate certificates.—When a corporation has refused to issue a new certificate of stock in place of one theretofore issued by it, or by a corporation of which it is a successor, alleged to have been lost or destroyed, the owner of the lost or destroyed certificate or his legal representatives may maintain a civil action in the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located to compel the corporation to issue a duplicate certificate in the place of the one alleged to have been lost or destroyed; and if the issues of fact arising upon the pleadings are found in favor of the plaintiff, the court shall make an order requiring the corporation or other party, within such time as it designates, to issue and deliver to the plaintiff a new certificate for the number of shares of the capital stock of the corporation which have been found to be owned by the plaintiff. In making the order the court shall direct that the plaintiff deposit such security as to the court appears sufficient to indemnify any person other than the plaintiff, who shall thereafter appear to be the lawful owner of such certificate stated to be lost or destroyed; and the court may also direct publication of such notice, either preceding or succeeding the making of such final order, as it deems proper. Any person who thereafter claims any rights under the certificate so lost or destroyed shall have recourse to said indemnity, and the corporation shall be discharged from all liability to such person by reason of compliance with the order. (Rev., s. 1167; 1901, c. 2, s. 95.)

As to the original certificate, see preceding section.

Loss Question of Fact.—Where a stockholder in an unincorporated company loses his certificate of stock and sues his company for a reissue and the allegation of loss is denied, an issue of fact is raised for trial by jury and it must be submitted to them. Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 125 N. C. 124, 34 S. E. 227.

§ 1164. Transfer of shares.—The shares of stock in a corporation are personal property, and are transferable on the books of the corporation in the manner and under the regulations provided by the by-laws. Whenever a transfer is made for collateral security, and not absolutely, it shall be so expressed in the entry of the transfer. (Rev., s. 1168; Code, s. 689; 1901, c. 2, s. 21.)

As to transfer of shares of corporate stock, see 2 N. C. Law Review 118, where the subject is fully discussed.

In General.—Although shares of stock are personal property and are transferable on the books of the corporation as provided by the by-laws, such provision, it is held, can be of no practical benefit to those not connected with the corporation, because they have "no means of knowing whether the transfer has been made or not." Castelloe v. Jenkins, 186 N. C. 166, 172, 119 S. E. 202.

To Protect Corporation.—The purpose of the section requiring a transfer upon the books of the corporation is to prevent fraudulent transfers and to protect the corporation in determining the question of membership, the right to vote, the right to participate in the management of the corporation, and the payment of dividends. Bleakley v. Candler, 169 N. C. 16, 19, 84 S. E. 1039.

Transfer on Books Not Necessary.—It is well settled that the requirement of this section as to entering transfers of stock upon the books of the corporation is for the protection of the corporation, and that the failure to enter such transfer upon the corporate books has no effect upon the legality of the transfer as between the parties themselves. Grissom v. Sternberger, 10 Fed. (2d.) 765, 766 citing numerous cases.

In Morehead v. R. R., 96 N. C. 365, there is an intimation that a transfer of stock can only be effectual by a transfer upon the books of a corporation, but the later cases of Havens v. Bank, 132 N. C. 214, 43 S. E. 639, and Cox v. Dowd, 133 N. C. 537, 45 S. E. 846, are in line with the current of authority. Bleakley v. Candler, 169 N. C. 16, 21, 84 S. E. 1039. See also 1 N. C. Law Review 59 for further authorities.

Duty of the Corporation.—It is the duty of the corporation to protect persons interested, such as contingent remaindermen or legatees when the corporation has knowledge of the contents of the will, from an unauthorized transfer of stock. Wooten v. Railroad, 128 N. C. 119, 38 S. E. 298; Baker v. Railroad, 173 N. C. 365, 92 S. E. 170.

Requests by Representatives.—If an agent makes a demand for a transfer the corporation must look to the power of attorney; if an executor, to the will; if an administrator to his letters, because these are the sources of power. Baker v. Railroad, 173 N. C. 365, 369, 92 S. E. 170.

Holder Has Preference.—The holder of the stock either as a purchaser or a pledgee has the preference over an attaching creditor although the transfer of the stock has not been entered on the books of the corporation. Bleakly v. Candler, 169 N. C. 16, 20, 84 S. E. 1039.

Charter Restriction.—There is no statute in North Carolina forbidding restrictions and limitations in the sale and transfer of stock; under the constitution the Secretary of State has the power to issue and approve charters containing such restrictions and when approved they constitute valid and binding agreements as between the stockholders who take with notice of the provisions. Wright v. Iredell Tel. Co., 182 N. C. 308, 108 S. E. 744, distinguishing Bridgers v. First Nat. Bank, 152 N. C. 293, 67 S. E. 770, and Sheppard v. Rockingham Power Co., 150 N. C. 776, 64 S. E. 894.

Corporation May Trade in Own Stock.—Shares of stock are declared by this section to be personal property, and may be sold or purchased by the corporation which has created them. Byrd v. Tidewater Power Co., 205 N. C. 589, 591, 172 S. E. 183.

§ 1165. Assessments, sale, and notice.—The directors of a corporation may, from time to time, make assessments upon the shares of stock subscribed for, not exceeding, in the whole, the par value thereof, remaining unpaid; and the sums assessed shall be paid to the treasurer at such times and by such installments as the directors direct, the directors having given thirty days notice of the assessment and of the time and place of payment, either personally, by mail, or by publication in a newspaper published in the county where the corporation is established. If the owner of any share or shares neglects to pay a sum assessed thereon for thirty days after the time appointed for payment, the treasurer, when ordered by the board of directors, shall sell, at public auction, such share or shares of the delinquent owner as will pay any assessment due from him, with interest, and all necessary incidental charges, and shall transfer the share or shares sold to the purchaser, who is entitled to a certificate therefor. The treasurer shall give notice of the time and place appointed for the sale, and the sum due on each share, by advertising the same once a week for three successive weeks before the sale in a newspaper published in the county where the principal office of the corporation is located, at the courthouse door, and by mailing a notice thereof to the last known postoffice address of the delinquent stockholder. (Rev., ss. 1169, 1170, 1171; 1901, c. 2, ss. 23, 24, 25.)

Construed with § 441.—See note under § 441.

Assessment as Incumbrance.—Acceptance of an offer of sale of corporation stock cannot be enforced when the proposed purchaser was unaware at the time that there had been an assessment made upon the shares; the usual implied warranty of title applies to such sales. Martin v. McDonald, 168 N. C. 232, 84 S. E. 258.

Setting Aside Sale.—Where the plaintiff's stock has been wrongfully sold, after a legal tender, he is entitled to a mandamus for the issue to him of his certificate of stock upon payment of the amount due on the stock with interest to the date of tender and cost of advertisement. Wilson v. Tel. Co., 139 N. C. 395; 52 S. E. 62.

Cited in Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 58, 147 S. E. 676.

§ 1166. One corporation may purchase stock, etc., of another.—A corporation may purchase stock, securities or other evidences of indebtedness created by any other corporation or corporations of this or any other state, and while owner of such may exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership. (Rev., s. 1173; 1903, c. 660, s. 3.)

Corporation May Purchase Its Own Stock.—A corporation, unless restrained by some provision of its organic law, may purchase its own stock from holders thereof, and the latter are entitled to all rights of other creditors of the corporation for the protection and enforcement of their demand for payment. Blalock v. Kernersville Mfg. Co., 110 N. C. 99, 100, 14 S. E. 501. As to power of corporation to purchase its own stock, see sec. 1161, par. 4. Shares of its own stock held by corporation cannot be voted, see last sentence of sec. 1174.

§ 1167. Mutual corporations may create stock.—A mutual corporation, upon the consent in writing of all its members, may provide for and create a capital stock and may provide for the payment of the stock, and fix and prescribe the rights and privileges of the stockholders therein not inconsistent with law. (Rev., s. 1245; 1901, c. 2, s. 105.)

Art. 5(A). Capital Stock without Nominal or Par Value

§ 1167(a). Corporations which may create shares without nominal or par value. Classes of stock or debentures.—Any corporation heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this State, whether under a special act of Legislature or otherwise, except banks, trust companies, railroad companies and insurance companies, may, in its original certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter or any amendment thereof, create shares of stock with or without nominal or par value, and may create two or more classes of stock or debentures, any class or classes of which may be with or without nominal or par value, with such designations, preferences, voting powers, restrictions and qualifications as shall be fixed in such certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter or amendment thereof, or by resolution adopted by those holding two-thirds of the outstanding capital stock entitled to vote. Subject to any provisions so fixed, every share without nominal or par value shall equal every other such share. (1921, c. 116, s. 1; 1925, c. 262, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This law as passed in 1921 was the first legislation in this state permitting the issuance of non-par stock in corporations. It grew out of a pressing demand to overcome the difficulties in financing corporations, whose stock is either above or below par value, resulting from misrepresentations and misunderstandings arising through the difference between the actual value and face value of stock, and from the blue sky laws which prohibit the sale of new stock unless the actual value and par value correspond, and require that new stock be sold at its actual value. (For a detailed description of these hardships, see 1 N. C. L. Rev. 28, 29.)

New York was the first state to pass such laws (1912), but since that time over half of the states have enacted them. See Wickersham on "Stock without par value." Along with the many advantages of the law are many objections to it and it might be said that the wisdom of such legislation is yet speculative. The article in the Law Review, cited supra, gives an excellent discussion of such problems.

The N. C. Law Review, vol. 3, p. 136, gives an interesting discussion of the changes affected by the 1925 amendment. The first section was stricken and reenacted in the form in which it now appears, several changes having been made.

The provision permitting two thirds of those holding the outstanding capital stock entitled to vote, to create stock with or without par value and fix its status with respect to voting, preference, etc., was inserted. It is pertinent to point out here an apparent inconsistency between this provision, and section 1156 as amended by the acts of 1925 seven days before this statute was passed.

Prior to the amendment section 1156 provided that a corporation may create two or more kinds of stock of such classes, with such designation, preferences and voting powers, etc., as a majority of its outstanding capital stock may designate except that priority could not be given over existing preferred stock without a two-thirds vote. The 1925 amendment changed it from a two-thirds requirement to a majority. This section [1167(a)] provides that with respect to stock with or without par value it snall take a two-thirds vote to exercise such powers.

The Law Review, cited supra, suggested two possible positions that might be taken with respect to the operation and effect of these statutes. In the first instance, it was suggested that non par stock might be considered as giving such a priority per se as to fall within the exception of section 1156 requiring a two third vote, thus reconciling them. This interpretation would present two difficulties: First the exception in 1156 limits the vote to those holding preferred stock while this section requires two thirds of those holding the outstanding capital stock entitled to vote, which provisions are inconsistent. Second, this section is not confined to stock of non-par value, the language being "with or without par or nominal value." This apparently conflicts with the "majority" provision of section 1156 with respect to stock with par value. In view of these considerations it would seem that the first suggested construction is objectionable because it does not wholly reconcile the sections, thus defeating its object.

The second suggested interpretation is that the statutes are in conflict and that this section, being the latest legislative expression, repeals section 1156 making non-par stock an exception to it. If this section repeals the inconsistent provision of section 1156, it does more than make non-par stock an exception to section 1156 unless the word "with" in the expression "with or without par or nominal value" as used in this section be disregarded.

The 1925 amendment also inserted the provision that "any class or classes may be with or without par value," the reference to "special acts of the legislature" and the words "charter" and "designations."

§ 1167(b). Stock issues; payment for stock; terms and manner of disposition.—The provisions of law relating to the issuance of stock with par value shall apply to the issuance of stock without nominal or par value, and such corporation may issue and dispose of its authorized shares without nominal or par value for such consideration and on such terms and in such manner as may be determined or approved from time to time by the board of directors, subject to such conditions or limitations as may be contained in the certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter, or any amendment thereof or as may be contained in any vote of the holders of a majority of the stock of the corporation, such consideration to be in the form of cash, property, tangible or intangible, services or expenses. Any and all shares without nominal or par value issued for the consideration determined or approved in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be fully paid and not liable to any further call or assessment thereon, nor shall the subscriber or holder be liable for any further payments. (1921, c. 116, s. 2; 1925, c. 262, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1925 amendment struck out this section as enacted in 1921 and revised it. While the section is made more comprehensive generally, it would seem the most important change is that the stockholders are now given power to prescribe the consideration, terms and manner of issue and disposal of the stock whereas formerly they exercised such power only with respect to an increase in capital stock.

In some respects, at least, this section is very similar to the corresponding section of the New Jersey Statute. Respecting the similar provision of the New Jersey Statute which provides for fixing the selling price of the stock, Wickersham on "Stock without Par Value" on page 16, says, "This provision is important. The corporation may now issue its stock for what it can get for it, provided proper corporate action is taken. It is no longer bound by the par consideration rule, nor to seek evasions of that rule for its legitimate purposes."

Although the consideration for the stock is fixed as prescribed in this section, it must be remembered that the right to fix such values is statutory and therefore subject to the statutory limitation. The price must be fixed with at least some relation to value and courts of equity would probably interfere to protect stockholders from the issuance of stock for such inadequate consideration as to jeopardize their rights by unduly reducing the value of their stock. For a general treatment of this subject see Wickersham on "Stock without Par Value," section 30-38.

§ 1167(c). Statements as to value of shares; reports of amount of stock.—In any case in which the law requires that the par value of the shares of stock of a corporation be stated, it shall be stated, in respect to shares without nominal or par value, that such shares are without nominal or par value, and wherever the amount of stock authorized or issued is required to be stated, if any shares without nominal or par value are authorized, the number of shares authorized or issued of the several classes shall be stated, and it shall also be stated whether such shares are with or without nominal or par value, and what the par value is of such shares as have par value. (1921, c. 116, s. 3.)

§ 1167(d). Amendments to existing charters.—Any corporation, whether organized under a special act of Legislature or otherwise, having outstanding shares either with or without nominal or par value, may amend its certificate of incorporation of association of charter, as follows:

(a) So as to change its shares with nominal or par value or any class thereof into an equal number of shares without nominal or par value; or

(b) So as to provide for the exchange of its shares with nominal or par value, or any class thereof, for an equal or different number of shares without nominal or par value; but all outstanding shares in any class shall be exchanged on the same basis; or

(c) So as to provide for the exchange of its shares without nominal or par value, or any class thereof, for a different number of shares without nominal or par value; but all outstanding shares in any class shall be exchanged on the same basis:

Provided, however, the preferences on liquidation, redemption price, dividend rate and like preferences or limitations lawfully granted or imposed with respect to any class of outstanding stock so changed or exchanged under the provisions hereof, shall not be impaired, diminished or changed as to any nonassenting holders thereof. Such preferences, rights and limitations, however, may be expressed in dollars, or in cents, per share rather than by reference to par value. Whenever such a corporation has heretofore issued shares without nominal or par value, in exchange for an equal or different number of shares with par value, such exchange and the issue of an equal or different number of shares without nominal or par value in consummation of such exchange, be and the same are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed. (1921, c. 116, s. 4; 1925, c. 262, s. 3; 1931, c. 59.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1925 revision this section merely provided that any such corporation "may amend its certificate of incorporation so as to change its certificate of stock from certificates with par value to certificates with non-par or nominal value, or vice versa." All the other provisions making the section more comprehensive, such as the bases of exchange provided together with the proviso are new. The revisal also subdivided the section into paragraphs.

The Act of 1931 struck out the words "such" and "heretofore organized" formerly appearing before and after the word corporation in line one of this section, and inserted after the word "whether" the word "organized."

Under this section both the authorized and outstanding stock may be changed.

As to the rights of minority stockholders who object to the exchange of stock with, for stock without, par value, see Wickersham on "Stock without Par Value," sections 24-29, pages 58-73.

§ 1167(e). Tax on certificate of incorporation or amendments.—The tax upon the certificate of incorporation, or extension or renewal of corporate existence, or increase of capital stock without nominal or par value shall be the same as if each share of stock had a par or face value of one hundred dollars. (1921, c. 116, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—It is very doubtful whether this section is valid under Article V, sec. 3, of the Constitution, requiring uniformity and equality of taxation. It is submitted that under it two corporations with a great variance between the amount of authorized capital and volume of business, but having the same number of shares without par value (in one case the value of which would be much more per share than in the other), would be required to pay the same amount of taxes thereon.

This question has arisen in several of the states and in some of them the law held valid while in others invalid. The holdings supporting the statutes proceed upon the theory that there is no inequality within the meaning of the constitution because the tax is levied in the same manner upon all corporations, viz., on the basis of $100 per share.

Notwithstanding such decisions, as a matter of practical fact there is a decided inequality where a corporation with $50,000 capital represented by 5,000 shares of outstanding stock has to pay the same amount of tax thereon as one with $150,000 capital represented by 5,000 shares of outstanding stock, and several courts have held this an inequality within the constitutional provisions.

The statute has been upheld in at least one case upon the theory that in the case of stock without par value, there is no valuation which will form a basis for taxation and that a fictitious value is necessary and that the amount of such value is a question of legislative discretion. This is said to be true notwithstanding that the laws regulating the issuance of such shares require a statement of the capital stock, and the number of shares issued. In such case the words "capital stock" were construed to mean the shares of stock and not the authorized capital, so that in fact there was no requirement of a statement as to the value of the shares. See Roberts, etc., Co. v. Emmerson, 313, Ill. 137, 144 N. E. 818; s. c. as affirmed in 271 U. S. 50, 46 S. Ct. 375. On the other hand, it has been held in New York that the New York statute was invalid as to foreign corporations (it would seem to be true also with domestic corporations) because the fixed value was entirely arbitrary, there being no basis to assume such a value, and would inevitably result in unequal taxation. See People v. Walsh, 202 App. Div. (N. Y.) 652, 195 N. Y. S. 184.

The construction placed upon "capital stock" by the former cases has been severaly criticised. See the able discussion by Mr. Wickersham in his treaties on "Stock without Par Value," secs. 76-80, where all the decisions are discussed and criticised.

Especial attention is called to the fact that sec. 1167 (g) makes the general corporation law applicable, that sec. 1114 provides that the capital stock and number of shares [see also sec. 1167 (c)] must be stated in the articles of incorporation. The rate of taxation is fixed by the Revenue Act of 1927, sec. 211 (3), ch. 80, Public Laws, at 1/10 of 1% of the issued and outstanding capital stock. So it might well be contended in North Carolina that in order for the tax to be uniform and equal under Art. V, sec. 3 of the constitution, the basis cannot be fixed at the fictitious value of $100 per share on stock without par value; that in order to be equal and uniform it must be based upon the value of the shares and that this basis may be determined by the statement of capital stock and the number of shares required by sec. 1114, and thus that there is no necessity for fixing a fictitious value for the purpose of taxation. (This theory was rejected in the Roberts case, supra). However, there seems to be no express requirement that amendments increasing the capital stock or exchanging par value for non par value stocks, should state the aggregate amount of increase of capital and the number of shares (it may be that sec. 1131, par. 7, to the effect that the certificate of amendment "can contain only such provisions as could be lawfully and properly inserted in an original certificate of stock" is construed to mean "must contain," etc., and thus under sec. 1114 required to make such statements) and in the absence of such requirement there is no statement of the definite value of the increase or exchanged shares of stock without par value which could form a basis for taxation. In the latter case a fictitious value as fixed in this section would undoubtedly be necessary to the taxation of such stock created by amendment.

§ 1167(f). Intent or purpose of law.—The intent and purpose of this article is to require a share of stock to be treated and represented, subject to lawful preferences, rights, limitations, privileges, and restrictions as a mere evidence of an aliquot part or divisional interest in the assets and earnings of the corporation issuing the same, whatever the extent or value of such assets or earnings may be, to the end that misrepresentation or misunderstanding arising through the difference between actual value of a share of stock and the value appearing on the face of the certificate therefor may be eliminated. (1921, c. 116, s. 6.)

§ 1167(g). Laws applicable to corporations.—Except as otherwise provided by this article, corporations issuing shares without any par or face value under the provisions hereof shall be and remain subject to the laws of the state now or hereafter in force relating to the formation, regulation, or reorganization rights, powers, and privileges of such corporation, and all other laws applicable thereto. (1921, c. 116, s. 7.)

§ 1167(h). Exchange by a corporation of par value shares of stock for no par value shares.—Any corporation heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this State, whether under a special act of Legislature or otherwise, except banks, trust companies, and insurance companies, may, in its original certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter, or any amendment thereof, provide for the exchange of its shares to be issued with nominal or par value for an equal or different number of outstanding shares without nominal or par value. (1929, c. 338, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—See § 1131(b).

Art. 6. Meetings, Elections and Dividends

§ 1168. Place of stockholders' and directors' meetings.—The meetings of the stockholders of every corporation of this state shall be held at the principal office in this state. The directors may hold their meetings, and have an office and keep the books of the corporation (except the stock and transfer books) outside the state. Every corporation shall maintain a principal office in this state, and have an agent in charge thereof. (Rev., s. 1179; 1901, c. 2, s. 49.)

Cross References. — As to first meeting of corporations, see sec. 1118. That books must be kept at principal office, see sec. 1170. As to changing location of principal office, see sec. 1133. As to meeting called by three stockholders, see next section.

Where Chapter Provision Contrary.—Although the act incorporating a company provided that Norfolk, Virginia, should be the place of its principal office, it was held in Simmons v. Norfolk & Baltimore, etc., Co., 113 N. C. 147, 18 S. E. 117, that it is the duty of a corporation to keep its principal place of business, its books and records and its principal officers within the state which incorporates it, to an extent necessary to the fullest jurisdiction and visitorial power of the state and its courts, and the efficient exercise thereof in all proper cases which concern said corporations. Roberson v. Johnson Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 120, 122, 68 S. E. 1064.

Scope of Meetings.—The scope of a special meeting of stockholders is limited to the purpose stated in the notice thereof; business action beyond this scope is void unless all stockholders are present, consent, or subsequently ratify. Asbury v. Mooney, 173 N. C. 454, 92 S. E. 267.

Must Act in Meeting.—It is essential to the validity of the acts of stockholders of a corporation that they should be assembled in their representative capacity as they are not permitted to discharge any of their duties as stockholders unless so organized. Hill v. Railroad, 143 N. C. 539, 55 S. E. 854, citing Duke v. Markham, 105 N. C. 131, 10 S. E. 1017.

Same—Individual Assent Invalid. — The assent of a majority of stockholders, expressed elsewhere than at a meeting of the stockholders, as where the assent of each is given separately and at different times to a person who goes around to them privately, does not bind the company. Duke v. Markham, 105 N. C. 131, 10 S. E. 1017.

Necessity for Notice.—In order to protect the rights of minorities the law requires that notice of the meetings of the stockholders of a corporation shall be given to every shareholder, either by the method prescribed in the charter or by-laws or by express notice; but where it appears that every person interested had express notice and participated in a meeting, there is no necessity for proving a compliance with section 1118 as to such notice. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 325, 20 S. E. 453.

Meetings of Directors.—To make the proceedings of a meeting of the directors of a corporation regular, it must be at a stated time provided for in the charter or by-laws or held after notice to all of the directors. First Nat. Bank v. Asheville, etc., Lumber Co., 116 N. C. 827, 21 S. E. 948.

Same—Necessity for Notice.—The acts of the majority of the directors at a meeting held at an unusual time and place, without notice to the other directors, are not valid. First Nat. Bank v. Asheville, etc., Lumber Co., 116 N. C. 827, 21 S. E. 948.

§ 1169. Meeting called by three stockholders.—When, for any reason, a legal meeting of the stockholders of any corporation cannot be otherwise called, three stockholders with voting power may call such meeting by publishing in a newspaper published in the county in which the principal office in this state is located ten days notice of the time, place and purposes of the meeting, and mailing this notice to all stockholders whose postoffice address is known or can be ascertained. A meeting so called is a legal meeting of the corporation, and if there are no officers present, the stockholders may elect officers for the meeting; and the secretary of the meeting shall record the proceedings thereof in the minute book of the corporation. (Rev., s. 1190; 1901, c. 2, s. 51.)

As to place of stockholders' meetings, see preceding section. As to first meeting of corporation, see sec. 1118.

§ 1170. Transfer and stock books.—Every corporation shall keep at its principal and registered office in this state the transfer books, in which the transfer of stock shall be registered, and the stock books, which shall contain the names and addresses of the stockholders, and the number of shares held by them respectively, and shall at all times during the usual hours for business be open to the examination of every stockholder. These books shall be the only evidence as to who are the stockholders entitled to examine them, and to vote at elections. In case the right to vote upon any share of stock is questioned, the stock books of the corporation shall be referred to, to ascertain who are the stockholders, and in case of a discrepancy between the books, the transfer book shall control and determine who are entitled to vote. (Rev., ss. 1180, 1181; 1901, c. 2, ss. 38, 45.)

§ 1171. Directors to produce books at election.—The board of directors shall produce at the time and place of elections the transfer books and the stock books, there to remain during the election, and the neglect or refusal of the directors to produce the same after a demand therefor shall render them ineligible to any office at such election. All elections of directors held under this chapter prior to February 28, 1913, where these books were not produced, and no demand was made therefor, are ratified and confirmed and given full legal force and effect, but this ratification does not affect litigation pending on the above date. (Rev., s. 1180; 1901, c. 2, s. 38; 1913, c. 14.)

§ 1172. Superior court may require production.—The superior court may, upon proper cause shown, order any or all of the books of the corporation to be forthwith brought within this state, and kept therein at such place and for such time as is designated in such order. The charter of any corporation failing to comply with such order may be declared forfeited by the court making the order, and all its directors and officers shall be liable to be punished for contempt of court for disobedience of the order. (Rev., s. 1179; 1901, c. 2, s. 49.)

As to jurisdiction of superior court upon dissolution of corporation, see sec. 1195. As to jurisdiction of superior court over elections, see sec. 1177.

§ 1173. Votes stockholders entitled to; cumulative voting.—Unless otherwise provided in the charter or by-laws of a corporation, at every election each stockholder is entitled to one vote in person, or by proxy duly authorized in writing, for each share of the capital stock held by him, but no proxy may be voted after three years from its date; nor may there be voted at any election a share of stock which has been transferred on the books of the corporation within twenty days prior to the election. The certificate of incorporation of any corporation authorized to issue shares of capital stock may provide that at all elections of directors, managers, or trustees, each stockholder is entitled to as many votes as equal the number of his shares of stock multiplied by the number of directors, managers, or trustees to be elected, and that he may cast all of his votes for a single director, manager, or trustee, or may distribute them among the number to be voted for, or any two or more of them, as he sees fit. This right of cumulative voting may be exercised in the absence of charter provision when at the time of the election the stock transfer book of such corporation discloses, or it otherwise appears, that more than one-fourth of the capital stock of the corporation is owned or controlled by one person. A stockholder owning or controlling more than twenty-five per cent of the stock has the same right to vote cumulatively as any other stockholder; and no amendment of the charter or by-laws of a corporation can abrogate or abridge any right herein conferred. The right to vote cumulatively cannot be exercised unless some stockholder announces in open meeting, before the voting for directors, trustees, or managers begins, his purpose to exercise such right, and then every other stockholder may likewise vote cumulatively. (Rev., ss. 1183, 1184; 1907, c. 457, s. 1: 1909, c. 827, s. 1.)

When Cumulative Voting Applies.—It is impossible for a person to vote cumulative upon a single proposition. It is only when several persons are voted for at the same time that the voter can "cumulate" his votes. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 218, 63 S. E. 892.

The right to cumulative voting is not given generally, but only in the election of officers. It could not apply to other matters, as the motion to adjourn, for instance, where there is only one proposition and nothing to "cumulate" upon. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 220, 63 S. E. 892.

Voting Trust Illegal.—An agreement which deprives the stockholders of the right to vote is contrary to public policy and void. Harvey v. Improvement Co., 118 N. C. 693, 24 S. E. 489; Sheppard v. Rockingham Power Co., 150 N. C. 776, 778, 64 S. E. 894.

Same—Not a Proxy.—An agreement pooling stock in a corporation which creates a voting trust, with absolute powers to decide upon matters arising for a period exceeding three years cannot be considered as a proxy authorized by this section for a proxy is only good for the period of three years. Sheppard v. Rockingham Power Co., 150 N. C. 776, 777, 64 S. E. 894.

A proxy cannot be made irrevocable. Sheppard v. Rockingham Power Co., 150 N. C. 776, 777, 64 S. E. 894.

§ 1174. Stock held by fiduciary, pledgor, life tenant, or corporation. — Every person holding stock as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, or in any other representative or fiduciary capacity, may represent it at all meetings of the corporation, and may vote it as a stockholder, with the same effect as if the absolute owner thereof, unless the instrument creating the trust provides to the contrary. Every person who has pledged his stock as collateral security may represent it at all such meetings, and may vote it as a stockholder, unless in the transfer to the pledgee on the books of the corporation he has expressly empowered the pledgee to vote it, in which case only the pledgee or his proxy may represent and vote said stock. Where stock is owned by, or has been transferred on its record books to, one for life and remainder over, the life tenant at all meetings of the corporation may represent and vote the stock in person or by proxy, in the same manner and with the same effect as if he were the absolute owner thereof. Shares of stock of a corporation belonging to the corporation cannot be voted directly or indirectly. (Rev., ss. 1185, 1186, 1187; 1901, c. 2, ss. 42, 43; 1901, c. 474, ss. 1, 2.)

As to corporation's power to purchase its own stock, see annotation under sec. 1166.

When Trustee May Vote.—When the terms and provisions of a will, bequeathing a life interest in certain shares of stock in a corporation, are construed to be that the shares are to be held and controlled by trustees therein named as executors and trustees, the trustees may vote the same in stockholders' meetings under this section and the provisions for voting of the shares by the life tenant has no application. Haywood v. Wright, 152 N. C. 421, 422, 67 S. E. 982.

Assignee Empowered to Vote.—A written agreement assigning stock in a corporation with authority to vote, reserving to the assignors who retain possession the right to all dividends, amounts only to a proxy. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 63 S. E. 892.

§ 1175. Election of directors.—All elections for directors shall be by ballot, unless otherwise provided in the charter, or by-laws, and a majority of the issued and outstanding stock must be present in person or by proxy; the persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be the directors. (Rev., s. 1182; 1901, c. 2, s. 39; 1927, c. 138.)

Cross References.—As to directors in general, see sec. 1144 and cross references and annotations thereunder. As to proceedings upon failure to hold election as here provided, see next section.

Editor's Note.—This section formerly contained this additional provision: "The polls must remain open one hour, unless all the stockholders are present in person or by proxy and have sooner voted, or unless all the stockholders waive this provision in writing." This sentence was stricken out by ch. 138, Public Laws 1927.

Effect of Motion of Adjournment.—When a motion to adjourn a stockholders' meeting has been carried, and a sufficient number have withdrawn to reduce the number of those present below a majority of all the stock issued and outstanding an election of officers cannot be lawfully held thereafter at that meeting, though the adjournment was carried by an illegal vote. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 63 S. E. 892.

§ 1176. Failure to hold election.—If the election for directors of a corporation is not held on the day designated by the charter or by-laws, the directors shall cause the election to be held as soon thereafter as is convenient. No failure to elect directors at the designated time shall work any forfeiture or dissolution of the corporation; and if the directors fail or refuse for thirty days after receiving a written request for such election from those owning one-tenth of the outstanding stock, to call a meeting for the election, the judge of the district, or the judge presiding in the courts of the district, in which the principal office of the corporation is located, may, upon the application of any stockholder, and on notice to the directors, order an election or make such other order as justice requires. The proceedings governing the issuance and hearing of injunctions shall, as far as applicable, govern such hearing. (Rev., s. 1188; 1901, c. 2, s. 46.)

Mandamus Cannot Issue.—A mandamus sought under the provisions of this and the following section cannot issue to compel the reconvening of the stockholders for the election of directors because of an illegal adjournment to a certain date by unlawful voting of stock, when that date has passed but the provisions of this section should be followed. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 63 S. E. 892.

When Meeting Ordered by Judge.— A meeting of the stockholders of a corporation ordered upon application by the judge in accordance with the provisions of this section must be composed of a majority of shares held twenty days before such meeting, as it appears from the stock book, or, in case of a discrepancy, the transfer book of the corporation. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 63 S. E. 892.

Notice.—The notice of a meeting called under this section by custom and by analogy to section 1169 should be mailed to all stockholders whose address is known. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 63 S. E. 892.

§ 1177. Jurisdiction of superior court over elections; appointment of receivers. — The superior court judge, upon application of any person who may complain of any election, or any proceeding, act or matter pertaining to the same, ten days notice having been given to the adverse party, or to those who are to be affected thereby, of such intended application, shall proceed forthwith, at chambers, in any county in the district in which the principal office of the corporation is situated, to hear the affidavits, proofs and allegations of the parties, or otherwise inquire into the matter or causes of complaint, and thereupon establish the election complained of, or order a new election, or make any order and give any relief in the premises as right and justice requires. If it shall, upon such hearing, appear to the satisfaction of the court that one or more of the stockholders owns one-half of the capital stock of such corporation, and that because of the equal ownership of stock, the stockholders are unable to agree upon the management, operation, and conduct of the corporation, the superior court judge hearing said matter may thereupon, for good cause shown, appoint a receiver to operate the business of such corporation for such time, and under such terms and conditions as to the court may seem just and proper; Provided creditors of the corporation shall be notified before the appointment of a permanent receiver. The proceedings shall, as far as applicable, be the same as in injunctions. (Rev., s. 1189; 1901, c. 2, s. 47; 1935, c. 413.)

Cross References.—As to power of superior court to require production of books, see sec. 1172. As to superior court's jurisdiction upon dissolution of corporation, see sec. 1195.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 inserted the next to the last sentence of this section relating to the appointment of receiver.

Failure to Elect Directors.—A proceeding based upon the failure of stockholders of a corporation to elect directors at the annual meeting held for that purpose is a proceeding under this section, and notice in writing signed by complainant served on the adverse parties by the sheriff ten days before the date designated for the hearing of the complaint confers jurisdiction upon the judge of the Superior Court over the parties and subject-matter of the proceeding, and the conditions precedent to proceedings under section 1176, are not applicable. In re Hotel Raleigh, 207 N. C. 521, 177 S. E. 648.

In this proceeding the corporation is neither a necessary nor a proper party, nor may its rights be affected, and the judge of the Superior Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver for the corporation in such proceeding. Id.

§ 1178. When dividend declared.—The directors of every corporation created under this chapter shall, in January of each year, unless some specific time for that purpose is fixed in its charter, or by-laws, and in that case at the time so fixed, after reserving, over and above its capital stock paid in, as a working capital for the corporation, whatever sum has been fixed by the stockholders, declare a dividend among its stockholders of the whole of its accumulated profits exceeding the amount reserved, and pay it to the stockholders on demand. The corporation may, in its certificate of incorporation or by-laws, give the directors power to fix the amount to be reserved as a working capital. (Rev., s. 1191; 1901, c. 2, s. 52.)

As to dividends, see also, next section. As to dividends in general, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 540-544; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 482. See also note under § 868.

Profits Must Be Earned.—Stock dividends may be declared by a solvent corporation from its profits, where the total amount of the stock is kept within the charter limits and the profits have really been earned. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 466, 76 S. E. 538.

Dividend Must Not Impair Capital Stock or Working Capital.—Neither the capital stock of the corporation, paid in and outstanding, nor its working capital as fixed pursuant to the provisions of this section, may be impaired by the payment of a dividend, under any circumstances. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

Determining Accumulated Profits Available for Dividend.—For the purpose of determining the amount of accumulated profits to be declared and paid as a dividend, it is necessary that the true value of the assets, in cash, and not the mere book value should be ascertained in view of the restrictions of § 1779. There should be deducted from such amount the capital stock, the working capital, and all other liabilities of the corporation. For this purpose the amount reserved for depreciation is a liability. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

Mandamus to Compel Dividend.—Where under the provisions of this section the accumulated profits of a private corporation in excess of the working capital has been ascertained, the directors are without authority to carry it to the surplus fund, and upon the demand of the stockholders it must be distributed into dividends in accordance with the requirements of the statute, and mandamus will lie to compel such distribution. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

Stock Dividend May Be Declared.—The issuance of paid-up stock as a dividend cannot be attacked by an existent creditor, nor by one who has notice of the facts, since it withdraws nothing from the corporation or in any way depletes its assets. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 466, 76 S. E. 538.

Effect of Sale.—A sale of corporate stock carries dividends not yet payable. Burroughs v. North Carolina R. Co., 67 N. C. 376.

Declared Dividend Is Debt.—A dividend declared by and due from a private corporation is a debt due to the shareholder, and is recoverable as such. Trustees v. North Carolina R. Co., 76 N. C. 103.

Debt Can Not Be Deducted from Dividend.—A bank has no right to retain out of the dividends upon the stock a debt due from the stockholder. Attorney General v. State Bank, 21 N. C. 545.

An action to compel declaration of a dividend can not be maintained where the stockholder has not applied to the directors, and he must allege that the directors refused to entertain such application. Winstead v. Hearne Bros. & Co., 173 N. C. 606, 611, 92 S. E. 613, citing 2 Cook on Corps., § 684, p. 209.

§ 1179. Dividends from profits only; directors' liability for impairing capital. — No corporation may declare and pay dividends except from the surplus or net profits arising from its business, or when its debts, whether due or not, exceed two-thirds of its assets, nor may it reduce, divide, withdraw, or in any way pay to any stockholder any part of its capital stock except according to this chapter: Provided, a public service corporation may declare and pay such dividends from the surplus or net profits arising from its business except when its debts, whether due or not, exceed three-fourths of its assets: Provided, further, that any corporation, other than a public service corporation, which is a member of a partnership may declare and pay dividends from the surplus or net profits arising from its business when the sum of the corporation's separate debts, whether due or not, and that part of the partnership debts which is the same proportion of all the partnership debts, whether due or not, as the corporation's interest in the partnership assets is of all such assets, does not exceed two-thirds of the corporation's assets, and in such calculation the amount of its interest in the partnership assets shall be considered assets of the corporation. In case of a violation of any provision of this section, the directors under whose administration the same occurs are jointly and severally liable, at any time within six years after paying such dividend, to the corporation and its creditors, in the event of its dissolution or insolvency, to the full amount of the dividend paid, or capital stock reduced, divided, withdrawn, or paid out, with interest on the same from the time such liability accrued. Any director who was absent when the violation occurred, or who dissented from the act or resolution by which it was effected, may exonerate himself from such liability by causing his dissent to be entered at large on the minutes of the directors at the time the action was taken or immediately after he has had notice of it. (Rev., s.

Cross References.—As to when dividend declared, see preceding section. As to officers' liability for fraud, see sec. 1152. As to joint and several liability of officers, see sec. 1153. See generally the notes to the preceding section.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 212, for criticism of this section.

Editor's Note.—The proviso following the semicolon in the first sentence was added by ch. 121, Public Laws of 1927.

The second proviso, relating to dividends by corporation holding membership in partnership, was inserted by Public Laws 1933, c. 354.

Surplus or net profits, as used in this section, are what remains after deducting from the present value of all the assets of a corporation the amount of all the liabilities, including the capital stock. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 125, 141 S. E. 344.

Where Charter Exempts Stockholder from Liability. — The charter provisions, that "no stockholder of the corporation shall be individually liable for debt, liability, contract, tort, omission, or engagement of the corporation or any other stockholder therein," does not interfere with the just and equitable principle embodied in this section holding the stockholders who are directors liable for a joint tort or misfeasance committed by them to the prejudice of creditors. McIver v. Young Hardware Co., 144 N. C. 478, 479, 57 S. E. 169.

Fraudulent Representation that Dividend is Earned.—Evidence that the agent for the sale of shares of stock in a corporation had induced the defendant to purchase, by falsely representing that a dividend would be credited upon his notes given for the shares, is in effect a representation that the corporation had earned the dividend as represented in this section; and it may be received as a circumstance of fraud, together with other evidence tending to establish it. Seminole Phosphate Co. v. Johnson, 188 N. C. 419, 124 S. E. 859.

The declaration of a dividend and issuance of stock for it, by an excessive overvaluaton of property or by an excessive and entirely unwarranted estimate of profits or the unearned increment would be evidence from which fraud could be inferred, and in extreme cases it might be regarded as conclusive. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 473, 76 S. E. 538.

Liability of Director.—A director of a corporation who has not brought himself within the provisions of this section, exonerating him from liability for the payment of dividends to the stockholders when the profits of the business did not justify it, or its debts exceeded two-thirds of its assets, etc., is liable, in the action of the trustee in bankruptcy of such corporation, for the amount of such debts, and the proper court costs and charges, not exceeding the amount of the dividends unlawfully declared. Claypoole v. McIntosh, 182 N. C. 109, 108 S. E. 433.

Question of Fraud for Jury.—The question as to actual fraud in issuing a stock dividend must be referred to a jury. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 473, 76 S. E. 538.

Repurchase of Stock.—This section was held inapplicable to suit by receiver against directors for repurchase of stock by corporation in Thompson v. Shepherd, 203 N. C. 310, 165 S. E. 796.

§ 1179(a). No personal liability on corporate manager of partnership.—Any corporation created under this chapter which is a member of a partnership may have its interests in such partnership managed, and may be engaged in or have charge of the management and affairs of such partnership, by and through any of its officers, directors, stockholders, agents and servants, and no such person acting as manager of the interests of any corporation in such partnership, or engaged in or having charge of the management and affairs of such partnership, whether as executive, member of an executive committee or board, employee or otherwise, shall be personally subject to any liability for the debts of such partnership of such corporation. (1933, c. 354, s. 2.)

Section Misplaced.—Referring to this section it was said in 11 N. C. Law Rev., 213, that ch. 354, 1933 wholly misplaces the section on the supposed power of a corporation and the non-liability of a corporate officer for partnership obligations by annexing it to a section on dividends, in the article on "Meetings, Elections and Dividends," to which it is not in the slightest degree germane.

Art. 7. Foreign Corporations

§ 1180. Powers existing independently of permission to do business.—A corporation created by another state of the United States, or by any foreign state, kingdom, or government may acquire by devise or otherwise, and may hold, mortgage, lease, and convey real estate in this state for the purpose of prosecuting its business or objects, or such real estate as it may acquire by way of mortgage or otherwise in the payment of debts due to it, but is not eligible or entitled to qualify in this state as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee under the will of any person domiciled in this state at the time of his death. The right to acquire, hold and convey real estate exists only where at the time of the acquisition, the foreign state, government, or kingdom under whose laws the corporation was created is not at war with the United States. (Rev., s. 1193; 1901, c. 2, s. 93; 1915, c. 196, s. 1.)

In General.—The Legislature of this State has not undertaken to regulate by statute the powers and methods of business of foreign corporations, nor to prescribe how their contracts shall be executed; and the general principles of law applicable to corporations apply. Rumbough v. Southern Improvement Co., 106 N. C. 461, 466, 11 S. E. 528.

A Matter of Comity Only.—A corporation of one state may do business in another only by comity of the latter state, when not so permitted by a valid Federal statute, as in matters of interstate commerce, and may be prohibited from doing business therein entirely, or upon conditions made a prerequisite by statute. Lunceford v. Commercial Travelers Mutual Assso., 190 N. C. 314, 129 S. E. 805; Blackwells Tobacco Co. v. American Tobacco Co., 145 N. C. 367, 59 S. E. 123, citing Range Co. v. Carver, 118 N. C. 328, 329, 24 S. E. 352.

Internal Management. — The courts of North Carolina have not the power and will not interfere with the internal management of the business matters of foreign corporations. Howard v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, 125 N. C. 49, 34 S. E. 199; Reid v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 355, 78 S. E. 306.

Power to Acquire and Sell Land.—Foreign corporations, having a right under their charters to acquire and sell land, can exercise such rights in this State to the same extent that corporations of this State can do so. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Capacity to Sue and Be Sued.—A foreign corporation can sue in the courts of another state by comity only, and the Legislature may deny to a foreign corporation that right, or may impose conditions on its exercise. Exchange Bank v. Tiddy, 67 N. C. 169.

Not Restricted to Authority Conferred in Home State.—A corporation incorporated in another State with authority to conduct business in North Carolina, which has complied with the statutes of this State, can maintain an action in the courts of this State although its charter may not authorize it to do business in the State of its incorporation. Troy, etc., Co. v. Snow Lumber Co., 173 N. C. 593, 92 S. E. 494.

§ 1181. Requisites for permission to do business.—Every foreign corporation before being permitted to do business in this state, insurance companies excepted, shall file in the office of the secretary of state a copy of its charter or articles of agreement, attested by its president and secretary, under its corporate seal, and a statement attested in like manner of the amount of its capital stock authorized, the amount actually issued, the principal office in this state, the name of the agent in charge of such office, the character of the business which it transacts, and the names and post-office addresses of its officers and directors. And such corporation shall pay to the secretary of state, for the use of the state, forty cents for every one thousand dollars of the total amount of the capital stock authorized to be issued by such corporation, but in no case less than forty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars; and also a filing fee of five dollars. Such corporation may withdraw from the state upon filing in the office of the secretary of state a statement signed by its president and secretary and attested by its corporate seal, setting forth the fact that such corporation desires to withdraw, and upon payment to the secretary of state of a fee of five dollars. Every corporation failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall forfeit to the state five hundred dollars, to be recovered, with costs, in an action to be prosecuted by the attorney-general, who shall prosecute such actions whenever it appears that this section has been violated. This section does not apply to railroad, banking, express or telegraph companies which, prior to March 9, 1915, had been licensed to do business in this state, or were engaged in business in this state, having a regularly appointed agent upon whom service of process could be made, located in this state. (Rev., s. 1194; 1901, c. 2, s. 57; 1903, c. 76; 1915, c. 263; 1935, c. 44.)

Editor's Note.—One extremely important question which has arisen under this section is in regard to the effect of compliance by foreign corporations, particularly whether after compliance they have a right to sue in the federal courts on the ground of diverse citizenship. This question arose in 1900 in the case of Debnam v. Tel. Co., 126 N. C. 831, 36 S. E. 269 and it was decided that the purpose of this section was to require all corporations doing business in the state to become domesticated and that the result of this domestication was that the corporation could not remove a cause, when sued in the state courts, to a federal court, on the ground of diverse citizenship. This ruling was upheld the following year in Allison v. Southern Ry. Co., 129 N. C. 336, 40 S. E. 91, and again in 1903 in Beach v. Southern Ry. Co., 131 N. C. 399, 42 S. E. 856. The Allison case, supra, was appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court and was pending at the time the Beach case, supra, was decided. In 1903 the U. S. Supreme Court handed down its opinion, reversing the N. C. Supreme Court and holding that a foreign corporation, by compliance with this section did not lose its right to remove to the federal courts. Southern Ry. v. Allison, 190 U. S. 326. This decision reverses Allison v. R. R., supra, and overrules Debnam v. Tel. Co., supra, and Beach v. R. R., supra.

The amendment of 1935 increases the amount payable on every one thousand dollars of captial stock from twenty to forty cents and placed the minimum at forty instead of twenty-five cents and the maximum as five hundred instead of two hundred and fifty dollars. The changes occur in the second sentence of the section.

In General.—Although this section excludes insurance companies from its operation, the statutes will be construed in relation to their subject-matter. The exception in this section is because insurance companies are exclusively dealt with elsewhere. Occidental Life Ins. Co. v. Lawrence, 204 N. C. 707, 169 S. E. 636.

Exercise of Police Power.—There is nothing in the U. S. or State Constitution which prohibits the state, in the exercise of its police power, from making the transaction of business by a foreign corporation prior to procuring a license an indictable offense. State v. Agency, 171 N. C. 831, 834, 88 S. E. 726.

The only restriction of the constitution is that the license tax must not interfere with interstate commerce or be otherwise invalid. Pittsburg Life, etc., Co. v. Young, 172 N. C. 470, 90 S. E. 568.

Property Not Removed to State.—This section requiring "domestication" enables plaintiffs to get personal service upon a foreign corporation, but does not remove its property to the State nor the situs of its debts created elsewhere. Stause Bros. v. Aetna Fire Ins. Co., 126 N. C. 223, 35 S. E. 471.

Effect of Non-Compliance.—From the character of this section and its evident purpose the contracts of a foreign corporation doing business in the State without compliance are not avoided, but the penalty alone is enforceable, and by action as the statute prescribes. Miller v. Howell, 184 N. C. 119, 122, 113 S. E. 621; Ober & Sons Company v. Katzenstein, 160 N. C. 439, 76 S. E. 476. And in such a case the State sues for the penalty. Blackwell's Tobacco Co. v. American Tobacco Co., 144 N. C. 352, 363, 57 S. E. 5; Ober & Sons Company v. Katzenstein, supra.

If the State, in addition to the penalty, has desired to render invalid the contract and to deny a recovery thereon, it would have so enacted, as it has done in regard to gambling and other illegal contracts. Ober & Sons Company v. Katzenstein, 160 N. C. 439, 441, 76 S. E. 476.

How Charter Proven.—The charter of a foreign corporation may be proven in this State by exhibiting a copy duly certified by the Secretary of State of the State in which the corporation was created. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 714, 24 S. E. 124.

Right to Sue and Be Sued.—Where a foreign corporation has submitted to domestication in this State by filing its certificate of incorporation with the Secretary of State and by otherwise complying with the provisions of this section, it thereby acquires the right to sue and be sued in the courts of this State as a domestic corporation, and where it brings action on a note in the county of its designated residence the defendants are not entitled to removal to the county of their residence as a matter of right. Smith-Douglass Co. v. Honeycutt, 204 N. C. 219, 167 S. E. 810.

Cited in Ward v. Southern Sand & Gravel Co., 33 F. (2d) 773.

§ 1181(a). Sale of shares of stock held by life tenant.—The shares of the capital stock of a foreign corporation, in which any person owns a life estate, may be sold by an order in a special proceeding, unless prohibited by the instrument under which such title was acquired. All persons in esse who are interested in the property aforesaid shall be made parties to the proceedings. Whenever it appears from the petition, or otherwise, that among those interested are persons not in being, or who, because of some contingency, cannot be presently ascertained, such persons shall be made parties defendant by publication of notice of the proceeding, according to the usual practice, and a guardian ad litem shall be appointed for them, and he shall file answer, as provided by sections four hundred and fifty-two and four hundred and fifty-three of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina. The clerk of the Superior Court shall have power to make, from time to time, appropriate orders for the sale of said shares of stock, and for handling, securing and investing the net proceeds of sale. In lieu of the payment to the life tenant of the income and profits on the net proceeds of sale, the clerk may order the present cash value of the life tenant's share, ascertained as by law provided, to be paid to the life tenant absolutely, out of said proceeds and order the balance thereof to be invested and kept invested for the remaindermen, or paid over to a trustee appointed for the purpose, after the trustee shall have qualified by filing with the clerk an undertaking, to be approved by him, payable to the State of North Carolina, for the benefit of the remaindermen, in a sum double the amount of the balance of the net proceeds aforesaid, and conditioned for the prompt forthcoming and payment of the principal and interest or income thereof, and the faithful performance of duty and compliance with the orders of court relating thereto. The orders aforesaid shall be approved by the judge of the Superior Court residing in or holding the courts of the district, where such approval is now required by law. (1925, c. 59.)

Art. 8. Dissolution

§ 1182. Voluntary, generally.—When in the judgment of the board of directors it is deemed advisable and for the benefit of a corporation that it be dissolved, the board, within ten days after the adoption of a resolution to that effect by a majority of the whole board, at a meeting called for that purpose, of which meeting every director shall have received three days notice, shall cause notice of adoption of such resolution to be mailed to each stockholder residing in the United States, to his last known postoffice address, and also, beginning within said ten days, cause a like notice to be published in a newspaper published in the county wherein the corporation has its principal office, at least once a week for four successive weeks, next preceding the time appointed for the same, of a meeting of the stockholders to be held at the office of the corporation, to take action upon the resolution. The stockholders' meeting thus called may, on the day appointed, by consent of a majority in interest of the stockholders present, be adjourned from time to time for not less than eight days at one time, of which adjourned meeting notice by advertisement in said newspaper shall be given. If at such meeting two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders consent in writing that a dissolution take place, their consent, together with the list of the names and residences of the directors and officers, certified by the president and the secretary or treasurer, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who, upon being satisfied by due proof that the requirements aforesaid have been complied with, shall issue a certificate that the consent has been filed, and the board of directors shall cause this certificate to be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located, and published once a week for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in said county. Upon the filing in the office of the secretary of state of an affidavit of the manager or publisher of such newspaper that the certificate has been so published, the corporation is dissolved, and the board shall proceed to settle up and adjust its business and affairs. Whenever all the stockholders consent in writing to a dissolution, no meeting or notice thereof is necessary, but on filing the consent in the office of the secretary of state he shall forthwith issue a certificate of dissolution, which shall be published as above provided, and recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located. (Rev., s. 1195; 1901, c. 2, s. 34.)

Cross References.—As to the status of debts due and actions pending at time of dissolution, see sec. 1199. As to voluntary dissolution before payment of stock, see sec. 1184. As to involuntary dissolution, see sections 1185, 1186, 1187, 1188 and 1190.

Section Settles Mooted Question.—As far as North Carolina is concerned, this statute settles the question formerly much mooted in the courts as to whether, and under what circumstances, a corporation could be dissolved by the stockholders, when no time was fixed for its duration, upholding and extending this power of voluntary dissolution as established by the better considered decisions on the subject. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 419, 63 S. E. 109.

A Part of Every Charter.—The provision of this section enters into every charter, and unless otherwise enacted by the Legislature, every stockholder takes and holds his stock subject to this power of voluntary dissolution, by resolution of the directors concurred in by two-thirds in interest of the stockholders. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 419, 63 S. E. 109.

Motive Generally Immaterial.—When a corporation lawfully proceeds to wind up its affairs in accordance with this section the motive prompting the act, however reprehensible or malicious, is not, as a rule, relevant to the injury; and the courts will not undertake to interfere with the honest exercise of discretionary powers vested by statute in the management of a corporation, however unwise or improvident it may seem in a given instance. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 416, 63 S. E. 109.

Same—Directors Are Trustees.—The directors of a corporation in proceedings for dissolution, under this section, are trustees in the sense that they must act faithfully in their judgment for the benefit of the corporation and in furtherance of its interest, and not for the purpose of unjustly oppressing the holders of the minority stock, or to attain their own personal ends. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 63 S. E. 109.

Liquidation to Escape Judgment.—An attempted liquidation by a corporation, to escape judgment for the refund of money wrongfully distributed, is in fraud of creditors. Chatham v. Realty Co., 180 N. C. 500, 105 S. E. 329.

Suits Pending Dissolution.—Where it appears in an action that the indebtedness sought to be recovered was claimed to be due a corporation, and that the suit was instituted by the individual stockholders, a judgment as of nonsuit is properly entered, though proceedings in dissolution of the corporation were being had under this section, the proper party plaintiff being the corporation or a receiver appointed therefor. Worthington v. Gilmers, 190 N. C. 128, 129 S. E. 153.

§ 1183. Liability of stockholders. — The stockholders of a corporation chartered under the laws of this state are individually liable for all taxes, costs and fees for the dissolution of the corporation, and the attorney-general is authorized to enforce the provisions of this section by suit before a justice of the peace or in the superior court in the county where such corporation had its principal place of business, whenever it appears upon report from the secretary of state that the corporation has ceased to transact business and fails to pay the taxes due the state or to file annual statements or to dissolve itself as provided by law. If a nonresident stockholder of the corporation refuses to sign the certificate of dissolution the resident stockholders shall make affidavit to that effect, and the written assent of such resident stockholders, accompanied by such affidavit, is sufficient to dissolve the corporation. If no stockholder of such corporation is found within the state the secretary of state has authority to declare the charter of the corporation forfeited, and shall publish annually in his corporation report a list of the corporations whose charters have been so forfeited. (1909, c. 730, s. 1.)

As to liability for unpaid stock, see sec. 1160 and annotations thereunder.

Cited in Life Ins. Co. v. Edgerton, 206 N. C. 402, 411, 174 S. E. 96.

§ 1184. Voluntary, before payment of stock.— The incorporators named in a certificate of incorporation, before the payment of any part of the capital stock, and before beginning the business for which the corporation was created, may surrender all their corporate rights and franchises, by filing in the office of the secretary of state a certificate, verified by oath, that no part of the capital stock has been paid and such business has not been begun, and surrendering all rights and franchises. Thereupon the corporation is dissolved. (Rev., s. 1177; 1901, c. 2, s. 35.)

§ 1185. Involuntary, at instance of private persons. — Corporations may be dissolved by civil action, instituted by the corporation, a stockholder, or creditor, or by authority of the attorney-general in the name of the state, in the following cases:

1. For any abuse of its powers to the injury of the public or of its stockholders, creditors, or debtors.

2. For nonuser of its powers for two or more consecutive years.

3. When it is insolvent, or suspends its ordinary business for want of funds, or is in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights.

4. Upon any conviction of the company of a persistent criminal offense. (Rev., s. 1196; Code, s. 694; 1901, c. 2, s. 73.)

Cross References.—As to voluntary dissolution, see secs. 1182 and 1184. As to other means of involuntary dissolution, see secs. 1186, 1187, 1188, 1190 and 1191.

Editor's Note.—The provision in the next section, that the stockholder instituting the dissolution proceeding must own one-fifth or more of the stock, does not apply to proceedings under this section. Laisley v. Merchantile Co., 179 N. C. 575, 103 S. E. 213.

Nor is it necessary that the stockholder allege or prove that he first made application to the directors or management to take action in the matter for this relates to suits concerning corporate management. Id.

Failure to Maintain Principal Place of Business in State.—The persistent failure of a corporation chartered in this State to maintain its principal place of business within the State as required by its charter, and the withdrawing of all its agencies from the State, will authorize the courts to decree a dissolution of such corporation upon the suit of a stockholder, under this section. Simmons v. Norfolk etc., Steamboat Co., 113 N. C. 147, 18 S. E. 117. As to requirement to maintain principal place of business in the state, see secs. 1168 and 1133.

Direct Proceeding Necessary.—A cause of forfeiture cannot be taken advantage of collaterally or otherwise than by a direct proceeding for that purpose so that the corporation may be heard in answer. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579, 585.

Amount of Stock Held by Plaintiff Immaterial.—In a suit to dissolve a corporation for nonuser of the powers the right to proceed is conferred on the individual stockholder by express provision of the statute, and without regard to the amount of his holdings. Lasley v. Mercantile Co., 179 N. C. 575, 577, 103 S. E. 213.

Proceedings May Be in Equity.—While it is more orderly to proceed under this section to appoint a receiver for a corporation, this could have been done in the courts of equity, wherein, under the decree, all parties were before the court or thereunder could be brought in, and the same relief awarded as if the provision of the statute had been complied with. Greenleaf v. Land & Lumber Co., 146 N. C. 505, 60 S. E. 424.

Bankruptcy Proceedings Not Authorized.—The fact that minority stockholders have instituted a suit in the State court under this section, and that a receiver has been appointed under sec. 1208, does not entitle creditors to avail themselves of the relief provided for them in the federal bankruptcy statute until the corporation has become insolvent and committed an act of bankruptcy. Bank v. Gudger, 212 Fed. 49, 54. As to voluntary dissolution by bankruptcy, see sec. 1190.

Where Creditors Estopped.—Where a provision in a deed of trust is to the effect that upon default in the payment of the interest, etc., the trustee shall have the power to foreclose upon request of the holders of a certain part of the par value of the bonds, those who hold such a proportionate part are bound by the valid provision of their contract, and without complying therewith a permanent receiver may not be appointed by the court under the provisions of this section in their suit for the purpose, though the corporation itself may be insolvent. Jones v. A. & W. Ry. Co., 193 N. C. 590, 137 S. E. 707.

§ 1186. Involuntary, by stockholders. — When stockholders owning one-fifth or more in amount of the paid-up stock of any corporation organized under the laws of and doing business in this state, except corporations organized for religious, charitable, fraternal, and educational purposes, and except banking and public-service corporations, apply in term or vacation to the judge of the superior court holding the courts for the county in which the principal place of business of the corporation is situated, by petition containing a statement that for three years next preceding the filing of the petition, which time shall begin to run from three years after it has begun business, the net earnings of the corporation have not been sufficient to pay in good faith an annual dividend of four per cent upon the paid stock of the corporation, over and above the salaries and expenses authorized by its by-laws and regulations, or that the corporation has paid no dividend for six years preceding said application; or whenever stockholders owning one-tenth or more in amount of the paid-up common stock of any such corporation apply to the judge of the superior court as aforesaid by petition containing a statement that the corporation has paid no dividend on the common stock for ten years preceding said application, and that they desire a dissolution of the corporation, the judge shall make an order requiring the officers of the corporation to file in court, within a reasonable time, inventories showing all the real and personal estate of the corporation, a true account of its capital stock, the names of the stockholders, their residences, the number of shares belonging to each, the amount paid in upon said shares and the amount still due thereon, and a statement of all the encumbrances on the property of the corporation and all its contracts which have not been fully satisfied and canceled, specifying the place and residence of each creditor, the sum owing to each, the nature of the debt or demand, and the consideration therefor, and the books and papers of the corporation. Upon the filing of the inventories, accounts and statements, the court shall enter an order requiring all persons interested in the corporation to appear before a referee to be appointed by the court, at a time and place named in the order, service of which may be made by publication for such time as may be deemed proper by the court, and show cause why the corporation should not be dissolved. If it appears to the court that the statements contained in the petition are true, the court may adjudge a dissolution of the corporation and shall appoint one or more receivers, who shall have all powers of receivers conferred by this chapter for the winding up the affairs and distribution of assets of the corporation. If it appears to the court that the corporation is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, the court may appoint a temporary receiver of the corporation pending dissolution. No suit shall be brought for the dissolution of a corporation under the provisions of this section until each and all of the petitioners have owned their stock for the term of two years prior to the institution of the action; nor shall any such suit be brought for the period of three years after a final judgment upon a prior petition as herein provided. (1913, c. 147; 1915, c. 137, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to voluntary dissolution, see secs. 1182 and 1184. For other means of involuntary dissolution, see the preceding section and the three following sections.

Editor's Note.—The provision for dissolution, upon the application of stockholders owning one-tenth or more of the paid up common stock, when the corporation has paid no dividends for ten years preceding, was added by Laws of 1915, ch. 137. In regard to this amendment the court said in Winstead v. Hearne Bros., 173 N. C. 606, 610, 92 S. E. 613; "This amendment would appear to be inconsistent with the six-year clause of the original act, and to require ten years complete suspension of dividends on the common stock of a corporation before application can be made for a receiver on that ground."

The constitutionality of this section providing for the dissolution of corporations in certain instances, cannot be successfully assailed in an action thereunder to dissolve a corporation organized subsequent to its enactment. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 172 S. E. 373.

A Remedial Statute.—This section is a remedial statute, and intended to remedy an abuse of power by the majority shareholders by a suspension of dividends, a method at times resorted to for the purpose of freezing out minority holders or depressing the market value of the shares. Winstead v. Hearne Bros., 173 N. C. 606, 92 S. E. 613.

Applies to "A Going Concern."—This section is intended to control and regulate suits for the dissolution of a corporation doing business as "a going concern," and by reason of the fact that they have not earned for three years next preceding the filing of the petition a net dividend of 4 per cent, or who have not paid a dividend for six years, and clearly has no application to an action under the preceding section to dissolve a corporation for nonuse of its powers. Lasley v. Mercantile Co., 179 N. C. 575, 577, 103 S. E. 213.

When Stockholders Estopped. — Where a stockholder in a corporation has actively participated in its management and consented to the increase in its capital stock from the earnings of a profitable concern, which has proven decidedly advantageous, he is thereafter estopped to assert the right given a holder of a certain amount of the stock to throw the corporation into a receiver's hands for nonpayment of dividends within a certain period. Winstead v. Hearne Bros., 173 N. C. 606, 92 S. E. 613.

Construed with Art. 12 on Reorganization. — Standing alone, this section might be considered as confining the court, in such a proceeding, to a decree strictly of dissolution, involving a destruction of the corporate franchise, but when construed as it should be (Keith v. Lockhart, 171 N. C. 451, 457, 88 S. E. 640), in connection with other provisions of our statute law on the subject, namely Art. 12 of this chapter, the court has ample power to enter a decree for a sale of franchise with the corporate property, transferring the same to the purchasers and conferring upon them the right to recognize and carry on the business as a new corporation. Coal and Ice Co. v. R. R., 144 N. C. 732, 57 S. E. 444; Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 250, 93 S. E. 794.

Paid-Up Stock Refers to Common and Preferred.—It is not required that stockholders suing for its dissolution under this section should own one-fifth of its common stock in order to maintain the action, it being sufficient if they own common and preferred stock constituting one-fifth or more of the total paid-in capital stock of the corporation, and their right to maintain the action is not affected by the fact that holders of preferred stock are given no vote in the management of the corporation. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 172 S. E. 373.

Dividend Must Equal 4%.—The fact that a corporation has earned net income sufficient to pay in good faith dividends on its preferred stock within three years prior to the institution of an action for its dissolution under this section, is not sufficient to resist the action for dissolution if the earned dividends do not amount to four per cent on its total capital stock, preferred and common. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 172 S. E. 373.

When Order for Inventories Proper.—Where a petition in an action for dissolution of a corporation meets all requirements of this section, it is not error for the court to require the defendant corporation to file inventories as provided. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 810, 172 S. E. 373.

Dissolution in Discretion of Court.—Whether the court will order dissolution upon the final hearing is to be determined in its discretion according to whether, from all facts shown, the failure of the corporation to earn the required dividends was due to temporary conditions or to its management. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 810, 172 S. E. 373.

§ 1187. Involuntary, by attorney-general. — An action may be brought by the attorney-general in the name of the state against a corporation for the purpose of annulling its charter upon the ground that it was procured upon a fraudulent suggestion, or concealment of a material fact, by the persons incorporated or by some of them, or with their knowledge or consent; or for the purpose of annulling the existence of a corporation, other than municipal, when such corporation—

1. Offends against the act creating, altering, or renewing it.

2. Violates any law by which it has forfeited its charter by abuse of its power.

3. Has forfeited its privileges or franchises by failure to exercise its power.

4. Has done or omitted any act which amounts to a surrender of its corporate rights, privileges and franchises.

5. Has exercised a franchise or privilege not conferred upon it by law.

6. Has failed to use its powers for two or more consecutive years.

7. Has become insolvent as manifested by the return of an execution unsatisfied upon a judgment against the corporation docketed in the superior court of the county where it has its principal place of business.

It is the duty of the attorney-general, whenever he has reason to believe that any of these acts or omissions can be established by proof, to bring an action in every case of public interest, and also in every other case in which satisfactory security is given to indemnify the state against the costs and expenses to be incurred thereby. (Rev., s. 1198; Code, ss. 604, 605; 1889, c. 533.)

Cross References.—As to voluntary dissolution, see secs. 1182 and 1184. As to other means of involuntary dissolution, see the two preceding sections and the three following sections. As to action in the nature of quo warranto by Attorney-General against corporations, see sec. 870.

Editor's Note.—Formerly this section provided that an action might be brought against a corporation by the Attorney-General, "whenever the Legislature shall so direct." Under this wording it was held that the Attorney-General could not bring an action to vacate the charter of a corporation of his own motion, but that the authority of the Legislature was necessary. Attorney General v. R. Co., 134 N. C. 481, 46 S. E. 959.

Forfeiture without Proceedings.—A corporation cannot endure longer than the time prescribed by its charter, and no judicial proceedings are necessary to declare a forfeiture for such a cause but for any other cause of forfeiture a direct proceedings must be instituted by the sovereign to enforce the forfeiture. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579.

An information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto against a corporation, to have its privileges declared forfeited because of neglect and abuse in the exercise of them, must be filed in the name of the Attorney-General of the state, and can not be instituted in the name of a solicitor of a judicial circuit. Houston v. Neuse River Nav. Co., 53 N. C. 476.

An information, filed by the Attorney-General, for the purpose of having the charter of an incorporation declared to be forfeited, though it need not be expressed in technical language, yet it must set out the substance of a good cause of forfeiture in its essential circumstances of time, place and overt acts. Attorney General v. Petersburg, etc., R. Co., 28 N. C. 456.

Area of Rural Community Misrepresented.—The right of action is given the Attorney-General, on the relation of the State, to annul a certificate of incorporation of a rural community when the petition upon which the Secretary of State has issued the certificate misrepresents that the area of the community to be incorporated extended only to that of "one school district," secs. 7380, 7381, under the provisions of this section, authorizing the Attorney-General to bring action when a certificate of incorporation has been procured upon "a fraudulent suggestion or concealment of a material fact by the persons incorporated, or by some of them, or with their knowledge or consent," etc. State v. Rural Community, 182 N. C. 861, 109 S. E. 576.

§ 1188. Forfeiture or dissolution for failure to organize or act. — When a charter has been granted creating a corporation, and the incorporators for two years neglect to organize and carry into effect the intent of the charter, or when organized, if they for two consecutive years cease to act, then this disuse of their corporate privileges and powers is a forfeiture of the charter. If, after thirty days notice by the secretary of state, the corporation fails to surrender its corporate rights or to dissolve, in the manner provided in this chapter, the secretary of state shall report it to the attorney-general, who shall institute an appropriate action for its dissolution. (Rev., s. 1246; Code, s. 688; 1901, c. 2, s. 106.)

State Must Bring Action.—The fact that a bank failed to organize within two years after it was chartered cannot affect the validity of whatever lien the bank may, by its charter, have on the shares of stock of a stockholder indebted to it. Such defect in the organization of the bank can be taken advantage of only by a direct proceeding by the state for that purpose. Boyd v. Redd, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35.

§ 1189. Forfeiture for nonuser by hydro-electric companies. — All waterpower, hydro-electric power, and water companies or corporations organized in this state shall be required to begin active work in making their proposed development within two years after their organization and diligently to prosecute their work on the same until it has been completed; and a failure to begin the work or development within the time, and to diligently prosecute work on the same until its completion, as herein provided, shall be legal grounds for declaring their charter rights, privileges and franchises forfeited, by the state, acting through its attorney-general, upon the recommendation of the corporation commission of this state: Provided, this section shall not apply to any company which is supplying the public and is meeting the demands of the public for its services. (1913, c. 133, s. 2.)

§ 1190. Involuntary, by bankruptcy. — When a corporation chartered under the laws of this state is adjudged bankrupt under the laws of the United States or when it shall be made to appear to a judge of the superior court that all of the assets of the corporation of whatever kind or character have been lost to the stockholders by reason of foreclosure, assignment, or execution under judgment, and that the corporation is therefore unable to conduct the business for which it was organized, the charter of the corporation is forfeited without further action, unless the stockholders determine by appropriate resolutions to continue the corporate existence of the corporation after the adjudication in bankruptcy, foreclosure, assignment or sale under executions, and furnish the secretary of state with a duly certified copy of the resolutions, all within six months after the adjudication, foreclosure, assignment or sale under executions. The stockholders of a bankrupt corporation whose existence is continued by the foregoing procedure must pay all privilege taxes which have accrued against the corporation since the adjudication, together with a fee of one dollar allowed the secretary of state for recording and filing the certificate provided for in this section. (1915, c. 134, ss. 2, 3; 1931, c. 310.)

Editor's Note.—Under this section prior to the Act of 1931, corporate charters were automatically forfeited by an adjudication of bankruptcy unless the stcokholders took certain specified action within six months. The amendment extends a like forfeiture to a corporation which is shown in the superior court to have lost its entire assets either through foreclosure, assignment or execution. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 363.

§ 1192. Service of summons in action for dissolution.—In an action for the dissolution of a corporation, or for the appointment of a receiver thereof, the summons must be served on the corporation by service on an officer or agent upon whom other process can be served, and shall be served on the stockholders, creditors, dealers and any others interested in the affairs of the company by publishing a copy at least weekly for two successive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county in which the corporation has its principal place of business, or if there is no such newspaper published, by posting a copy of the summons at the door of the courthouse of such county, and publishing a copy for the time and in the manner aforesaid in a newspaper published nearest the county seat of the county in which the corporation has its principal place of business or in a newspaper published in the city of Raleigh. This publication is sufficient service on all the stockholders, creditors of, or dealers with, the corporation, and upon the corporation, if no officer can after due diligence be found in the state and it has no process agent in the state; and all such stockholders, creditors or dealers or other parties interested may intervene in said proceedings and become parties thereto for themselves, or for others in like interest, under such rules as the court for the purpose of justice prescribes. (Rev., s. 1199; Code, s. 695; 1911, c. 173, s. 1.)

§ 1193. Corporate existence continued three years. — All corporations whose charters expire by their own limitation, or are annulled by forfeiture or otherwise, shall continue to be bodies corporate for three years after the time when they would have been so dissolved, for the purpose of prosecuting and defending actions by or against them, and of enabling them gradually to settle and close their concerns, to dispose of their property, and to divide their assets; but not for the purpose of continuing the business for which the corporation was established. In any pending action the court, in its discretion, may extend the time for winding up the affairs of such corporation. (Rev., s. 1200; Code, s. 667; 1901, c. 2, s. 58.)

In General.—This section expressly extends the life of the corporation for three years after dissolution, for the purpose of winding up its affairs. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893.

Purpose.—The provisions of this section are free from any ambiguity. The mischief to be remedied was the confusion possibly resulting from the abrupt dissolution of the corporation from any cause. The plan adopted was the continuation of the corporate character solely for the purpose of winding up its affairs. General Electric Co. v. West Asheville Imp. Co., 73 Fed. 386, 388.

Applies to All Corporations.—This section is not a provision of the charter of a particular corporaton but a general provision of law applying to all corporations, and the repeal of this particular charter does not repeal the section pro tanto. Indeed, the repeal makes it applicable actively to the particular corporation, as a sort of statutory letters of administration; whereas before the repeal it was a passive provision. General Electric Co. v. West Asheville Imp. Co., 73 Fed. 386, 388.

Under this section, a corporation continues for three years to be a body corporate for the purpose of disposing of its property and dividing its assets, and the section is applicable to any corporation. Burnet v. Lexington Ice, etc., Co., 62 F. (2d) 906, 909.

Remedy Must Be Pursued within Three Years. — The statutory remedy is exclusive of all others, and must be pursued within the three years, and a failure to proceed within that period will be a complete defense, not only to the corporation, but to the stockholders, who by its charter, are made individually responsible in the event of its insolvency. VonGlahn v. DeRosset, 81 N. C. 468.

Where a corporation is actually dissolved, the lapse of more than three years from dissolution, will serve as a complete defense to actions against it. Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial National Bank, 240 Fed. 303, 306.

Same—Only Applies Where Charter Expired.—This provision has no application to a case where a corporation had ceased to do business but its charter had not expired or been annulled. Heggie v. Building & Loan Assn., 107 N. C. 581, 592, 12 S. E. 275.

Hence the action of a judgment creditor is not barred in three years after the corporation has ceased to do its regular business. Heggie v. Building & Loan Assn., 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275.

Deed from Dissolved Corporation.—Where the certificate of the probate of a deed from a corporation, dissolved upon certificate of the secretary of state, made within the time allowed by this section, recites as a fact judicially found that the deed was made in the name of the corporation by the order of the directors, the trustee's objection that it was not executed in the method required by sec. 1194, is untenable; and the signature of the agent in charge, if made upon the mistake that he was in law the assignee of the mortgage, is only surplusage, and harmless. Lowdermilk v. Butler, 182 N. C. 502, 109 S. E. 571.

Liquidation by National Bank.—Where a national bank liquidated under Rev. St. secs. 5220, 5221 (Comp. St. 1913, secs. 9806, 9808) it did not terminate its existence as a legal entity nor did it cease to be a corporate entity which can sue and be sued. Hence this section does not apply. Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 240 Fed. 303.

Section Does Not Apply to Merger.—Where an old corporation is by a transfer of all its property, franchises and privileges merged into a new corporation, with the same stockholders and directors as the old, which assumes all the liabilities of the old corporation, this section does not apply so as to make the old corporation a necessary party to the action against the new. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco, etc., Co., 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

No Equity Jurisdiction.—This section and the two following sections, which continue the existence of defunct corporations for three years after the expiration of their charters for the purpose of bringing and defending suits and closing their general business, oust the former equity jurisdiction for the appointment of a receiver, at the instance of creditors to wind up the corporate affairs. VonGlahn v. DeRossett, 81 N. C. 468.

Cited in Smith v. Dicks, 197 N. C. 355, 148 S. E. 464.

§ 1194. Directors to be trustees; powers and duties. — On the dissolution in any manner of a corporation, unless otherwise directed by an order of the court, the directors are trustees thereof, with full power to settle the affairs, collect the outstanding debts, sell and convey the property, and, after paying its debts, divide any surplus money and other property among the stockholders. The trustees have power to meet and act under the by-laws of the corporation, and, under regulations to be made by a majority, to prescribe the terms and conditions of the sale of such property, and they may sell all or any part for cash or partly on credit, or take mortgages or bonds for part of the purchase price for all or any part of the property. They have power to sue for and recover the said debts and property in the name of the corporation, and are suable in the same name for the debts owing by it, and are jointly and severally responsible for such debts only to the amount of property of the corporation which comes into their possession as trustees. (Rev., ss. 1201, 1202; Code, s. 687; 1901, c. 2, ss. 59, 60.)

As to directors in general, see sec. 1144 and notes thereunder.

Trustees Sell in Corporate Name.—The certificate of the secretary of state for the dissolution of a corporation, continues the corporation for three years, and the provisions of this section, that the directors as trustees may sell and convey the corporate property, does not exclude the idea that they may do so in the name of the corporation in whom the original legal title was originally vested. Lowdermilk v. Butler, 182 N. C. 502, 109 S. E. 571.

Confession of Judgment in Director's Favor.—A confession of judgment by an insolvent corporation in favor of a director who is a creditor, and upon a debt theretofore existing, is void as against other creditors. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107.

Cited in Smith v. Dicks, 197 N. C. 355, 148 S. E. 464; Life Ins. Co. v. Edgerton, 206 N. C. 402, 411, 174 S. E. 96.

§ 1195. Jurisdiction of superior court. — When a corporation is dissolved, in any manner whatsoever, the superior court, on application of a creditor or stockholder, may either continue the directors as trustees or appoint one or more persons receivers of the corporation. The court has jurisdiction of the application, and of all questions arising in the proceedings thereon, and may make, at any place in the district, any orders, injunctions, or decrees therein as justice and equity require. The powers of such trustees or receivers are as elsewhere given in this chapter, and may be continued as long as the court thinks necessary. (Rev., ss. 1203, 1204; Code, ss. 619, 668, 669; 1901, c. 2, ss. 61, 62.)

Cross References.—As to appointment of receiver, see sec. 1208 and annotations. As to powers and duties of receivers, see sec. 1209 and annotations.

When Section Applies.—Although by section 1194 the directors, unless otherwise determined by order of some court having jurisdiction, are made trustees with power to settle or wind up the corporate business under this section, this entire matter of winding up the corporate business after dissolution may be taken charge of by the court, and must be at the instance of either the creditors or stockholders, or any one of them. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 422, 63 S. E. 109.

Who Is a "Creditor".—Any one who has a debt or demand against an insolvent corporation upon a contract, express or implied, comes within the meaning of the word "creditor" used in the statute, and may apply to the courts and obtain, in proper instances, the appointment of a receiver for the corporation. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 422, 70 S. E. 820.

Property In Custodia Legis.—The property of an insolvent corporation in a receiver's hands is in custodia legis, and the court has jurisdiction by virtue of its general equitable powers, and by express provision of this section. Lasley v. Scales, 179 N. C. 578, 103 S. E. 214.

Jurisdiction Over Foreign Corporation.—An insolvent corporation, with its property or plant located in this state, is subject to the appointment by our courts of a receiver to take charge of its assets here and administer them as a trust fund for its creditors, though incorporated under the laws of another state. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 422, 70 S. E. 820, approving Holshouser v. Copper Co., 138 N. C. 248, 50 S. E. 650.

Authority to Adjust Claims.—While in the statute relating to the winding up of the affairs of an insolvent corporation no specific directions are given as to mutual debts and credits, yet under this section which provides that the court shall make such orders as justice and equity shall require and direct how claims shall be approved, the claims may be adjusted. Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371.

When Receiver Appointed.—When a corporation is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, and especially when its business operations have practically been suspended owing to its financial condition, the court may, upon proper application of a creditor or stockholder, appoint a receiver of its assets to be administered for the benefit of all of its creditors. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 70 S. E. 820.

Judgment against Corporation.—Judgments against a corporation rendered upon process issued after it ceased to exist are of no validity. Dobson v. Simonton, 86 N. C. 492.

§ 1196. Injunction; notice and undertaking.—An injunction to suspend the general and ordinary business of a corporation or to appoint a receiver shall not be granted without due notice of the application therefor to the corporation, except where the state is a party to the proceeding, unless the plaintiff gives a written undertaking, executed by two sufficient sureties to be approved by the judge, to the effect that the plaintiff will pay all damages, not exceeding the sum mentioned in the undertaking, which the corporation may sustain by reason of the injunction, or the appointment of the receiver, if the court finally decides that the plaintiff was not entitled thereto. The damages may be ascertained by a reference, or otherwise, as the court directs. (Rev., s. 1205; Code, s. 343; C. C. P., s. 194.)

As to injunction in general, see ch. 12, Art. 36 and annotations. As to receivers, see sections 1195, 1208-1217.

§ 1197. Wages for two months lien on assets.—In case of the insolvency of a corporation all persons doing labor or service of whatever character in its regular employment have a lien upon the assets thereof for the amount of wages due to them for all labor, work, and services rendered within two months next preceding the date when proceedings in insolvency were actually instituted and begun against the corporation, which lien is prior to all other liens that can be acquired against such assets. (Rev., s. 1206; 1901, c. 2, s. 87.)

As to mortgaged property subject to execution for labor, see section 1140 and annotations thereunder.

An Ancillary Remedy.—This section, giving to laborers of insolvent corporations a specific lien upon the assets of the company for two months' wages at least, was not intended to militate against rights that they might otherwise have under the existing law for debts due them, but gives them a special lien for certain wages. Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193, 204.

Applicable Only to Corporations.—The claim for services rendered an individual is not entitled to a preference upon the individual's insolvency and receivership, as the section applies only to employees of an insolvent corporation. In re Reade, 206 N. C. 331, 173 S. E. 342.

Clear Expression of Intent.—The language used in this section is admirably fitted to give expression to the legislative intent with respect to the favored class of creditors to which it undertakes to accord preferential treatment in the distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation, and small latitude is afforded for speculation. The favored creditors are "laborers and workmen and all persons doing labor or service of whatever character in the regular employment of certain corporations." Phoenix Iron Co. v. Roanoke Bridge Co., 169 N. C. 512, 513, 86 S. E. 184.

Prior Lien Holders Protected.—Property acquired by a private corporation subject to a valid and registered mortgage does not become an asset of the corporation except as subject to the prior lien; and the lien given to laborers on the assets of an insolvent corporation for work done under the conditions stated in this section cannot affect the vested rights obtained by the prior lien holders. Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

Contractor Not Included.—A contractor, furnishing his own teams, labor, etc., in hauling materials for the building of a bridge by a corporation having since become insolvent within the two months next preceding the date of the institution of the proceedings in insolvency, is not engaged in doing labor or performing "service of whatever character" within the meaning of this section. Phoenix Iron Co. v. Roanoke Bridge Co., 169 N. C. 512, 86 S. E. 184.

Agent Having Authority to Deduct Salary.—Under this section an agent with authority to make collections and to deduct his salary and expenses from the sums collected, has no lien for claims for salary and expenses owing before his appointment to the position. Cummer Lumber Co. v. Seminole Phosphate Co., 189 N. C. 206, 126 S. E. 511.

Notice Need Not Be Filed.—Under this section the laborer is not required to file a notice of his claim. Walker v. Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 460, 87 S. E. 331.

Service after Receivership.—This section is not intended to destroy the lien for such wages and services performed after the company goes into the hands of a receiver. The word "within" means "subsequent," that is, that after 60 days prior to the insolvency the laborers and workmen shall have a first lien for their wages. Walker v. Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 460, 462, 87 S. E. 331.

§ 1198. Distribution of funds.—After payment of all allowances, expenses and costs, and the satisfaction of all general and special liens upon the funds of the corporation to the extent of their lawful priority, the creditors shall be paid proportionately to the amount of their respective debts, and shall be entitled to distribution on debts not due, making in such case a rebate of interest when interest is not accruing on the same. Any surplus funds, after payment of the creditors and costs, expenses and allowances, shall be paid to the preferred stockholders according to their respective shares, and if there still be a surplus, it shall be divided and paid to the general stockholders proportionately, according to their respective shares. Upon the distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation, judgment of dissolution shall be entered and a certified copy of the judgment filed in the office of the secretary of state, and also in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located, and the same shall be recorded in the Corporation Book and in the Record of Incorporations in these offices respectively. Thereupon the corporation is dissolved without being required to comply with section 1182 under this chapter. (Rev., s. 1207; Code, s. 670; 1901, c. 2, ss. 63, 89; 1909, c. 15, s. 1.)

In General.—When the receiver shall have collected the assets he is required to pay all the debts, if the funds shall be sufficient, and, if not sufficient, to distribute the same ratably, among all the creditors who shall prove their claims. When once the court of equity, through its receiver, takes charge of the assets, they are to be distributed pro rata among the creditors, subject to such priorities as have already accrued. Merchants National Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 515, 20 S. E. 765.

No Conflict with Constitution.—The enactment of statutes regulating the manner in which corporations shall equitably discharge the claims of their creditors, or to subject all or a portion of their property to sale at the instance and for the benefit of creditors, is not in conflict with the constitutional provisions in respect to vested rights or the obligation of contracts. Bass v. Roanoke Navigation Co., 111 N. C. 439, 16 S. E. 402.

Real Property Does Not Revert.—Upon the dissolution or extinction of a corporation for any cause, the real property conveyed to it in fee does not revert to the original grantors or their heirs, and its personal property does not escheat to the state; and this is so whether or not the duration of the corporation was limited by its charter or general statute. Wilson v. Leary, 120 N. C. 90, 26 S. E. 630, overruling Fox v. Horah, 36 N. C. 358.

Creditors Come before Stockholders.—A corporation can not settle with its members, by the application of assets to the retirement or redemption of the stock of the shareholders, until it has first settled and discharged all its liabilities, and any agreement among the shareholders looking to such arrangement will be void as to creditors. Heggie v. Building & Loan Asso., 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275.

Costs.—It is error to tax the costs against first-mortgage creditors, who have established the priority of their lien over the rights of general creditors, in statutory proceedings to wind up the affairs of an insolvent corporation and to distribute its assets. Hickston Lumber Co. v. Gay Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 281, 63 S. E. 1048.

§ 1199. Debts not extinguished nor actions abated.—In case of the dissolution of a corporation, the debts due to and from it are not thereby extinguished, nor do actions against a corporation which is dissolved before final judgment abate by reason thereof, but no judgment shall be entered therein without notice to the trustees or receivers of the corporation. (Rev., ss. 1201, 1208; Code, s. 687; 1901, c. 2, ss. 59, 64.)

As to directors becoming trustees upon dissolution, see sec. 1194. As to distribution of funds, see preceding section.

§ 1200. Copy of judgment to be filed with secretary of state; costs.—A copy of every judgment dissolving a corporation or forfeiting its charter shall be forthwith filed by the clerk of the court in the office of the secretary of state, and a note thereof shall be made by the secretary of state on the charter or certificate of incorporation and in the index thereof, and be published by him in the annual report hereinafter provided for, the cost of which shall be taxed by the clerk of the superior court in the action wherein the corporation is dissolved. (Rev., s. 1211; 1901, c. 2, s. 65.)

Art. 9. Execution

§ 1201. How issued; property subject to execution.—If a judgment is rendered against a corporation, the plaintiff may sue out such executions against its property as is provided by law to be issued against the property of natural persons, which executions may be levied as well on the current money as on the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of such corporation. (Rev., s. 1212; 1901, c. 2, s. 66.)

As to incorporation by purchaser at execution sale of railroads, see section 3462. As to execution in general, see sec. 663 et seq.

Editor's Note—Levy or Franchise.—Prior to the enactment of the Revised Code, the franchise of a corporation, such as that of a railroad or navigation company, could not be levied upon and sold under a writ of fieri facias, or any other writ of execution known either to our common or statute law. Taylor v. Jerkins, 51 N. C. 315, 318; State v. Rives, 27 N. C. 297, 306.

To this section the Revised Code added the following: "And if the judgment or decree be against a railroad or other corporation authorized to receive fares or tolls, the franchise of such corporation, with all the rights and privileges thereof, so far as relates to the receiving of fares or tolls, and also all other corporate property, real or personal, may be taken on execution and sold, under rules regulating the sale of real estate." Rev. Code, ch. 26, sec. 9. See Taylor v. Jerkins. 51 N. C. 315, 317, 319; Gooch v. McGee, 83 N. C. 60, 66.

As will be seen this provision no longer constitutes a part of the section, and it is now held that the franchise and corporate property must go together. They cannot be separated. There cannot be a corporation without a franchise. James v. Western N. C. R. Co., 121 N. C. 523, 527, 28 S. E. 537.

So the real estate acquired by a public corporation in exercise of a delegated right of eminent domain, and necessary for uses in which the public is concerned, cannot be sold under execution apart from the franchise and its incidents, so as to give the purchaser a title to the property divested of all the duties and obligations assumed by the company. Gooch v. McGee, 83 N. C. 60.

The franchise of a water company is inseparable from its plant and property. The public necessity requires that they should be sold together, for, in this case, the purchaser will take cum onere and the public will be protected. Pipe Co. v. Howland, 111 N. C. 615, 625, 16 S. E. 857.

Proceedings supplemental to execution lie against a private corporation created by a special act of the Legislature and organized for purposes of private gain for its shareholders. LaFountain v. Southern Underwriters' Asso., 79 N. C. 514.

§ 1202. Agent must furnish information as to property to officer.—Every agent or person having charge or control of any property of the corporation, on request of a public officer having for service a writ of execution against it, shall furnish to him the names of the directors and officers thereof, and a schedule of all its property, including debts due or to become due, so far as he has knowledge of the same. (Rev., s. 1213; 1901, c. 2, s. 67.)

§ 1203. Shares of stock subject to; agent must furnish information. — Any share or interest in any bank, insurance company, or other joint stock company, that is or may be incorporated under the authority of this state, or incorporated or established under the authority of the United States, belonging to the defendant in execution, may be taken and sold by virtue of such execution in the same manner as goods and chattels. The clerk, cashier, or other officer of such company who has at the time the custody of the books of the company shall, upon being shown the writ of execution, give to the officer having it a certificate of the number of shares or amount of the interest held by the defendant in the company; and if he neglects or refuses to do so, or if he willfully gives a false certificate, he shall be liable to the plaintiff for the amount due on the execution, with costs. (Rev., ss. 1214, 1215; 1901, c. 2, ss. 69, 70.)

As to shares of stock being liable to attachment, see sec. 818.

Editor's Note.—Before this section was passed it was held that shares of stock, not being goods or chattels, lands or tenements within the sense of the writ, could not be sold under a fi. fa. See Pool v. Glover, 24 N. C. 129.

§ 1204. Debts due corporation subject to; duty and liability of agent.—If an officer holding an execution is unable to find other property belonging to the corporation liable to execution, he or the judgment creditor may elect to satisfy such execution in whole or in part out of any debts due the corporation; and it is the duty of any agent or person having custody of any evidence of such debt to deliver it to the officer, for the use of the creditor, and such delivery, with a transfer to the officer in writing, for the use of the creditor, and notice to the debtor, shall be a valid assignment thereof; and the creditor may sue for and collect the same in the name of the corporation, subject to such equitable setoffs on the part of the debtor as in other assignments. Every agent or person who neglects or refuses to comply with the provisions of this and the last preceding section is liable to pay to the execution creditor the amount due on the execution, with costs. (Rev., s. 1216; 1901, c. 2, s. 68.)

§ 1205. Violations of three preceding sections misdemeanor. — If any agent or person having charge or control of any property of a corporation, or any clerk, cashier, or other officer of a corporation, who has at the time the custody of the books of the company, or if any agent or person having custody of any evidence of debt due to a corporation, shall, on request of a public officer having in his hands for service an execution against the said corporation, willfully refuse to give to such officer the names of the directors and officers thereof, and a schedule of all its property, including debts due or to become due, or shall willfully refuse to give to such officer a certificate of the number of shares, or amount of interest held by such corporation in any other corporation, or shall willfully refuse to deliver to such officer any evidence of indebtedness due or to become due to such corporation, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3690; 1901, c. 2, ss. 67, 68, 70.)

§ 1206. Proceedings when custodian of corporate books is a nonresident. — When the clerk, cashier, or other officer of any corporation incorporated under the laws of this state, who has the custody of the stock-registry books, is a nonresident of the state, it is the duty of the sheriff receiving a writ of execution issued out of any court of this state against the goods and chattels of a defendant in execution holding stock in such company to send by mail a notice in writing, directed to the nonresident clerk, cashier, or other officer at the postoffice nearest his reputed place of residence, stating in the notice that he, the sheriff, holds the writ of execution, and out of what court, at whose suit, for what amount, and against whose goods and chattels the writ has been issued, and that by virtue of such writ he seizes and levies upon all the shares of stock of the company held by the defendant in execution on the day of the date of such written notice. It is also the duty of the sheriff on the day of mailing the notice to affix and set upon any office or place of business of such company, within his county, a like notice in writing, and on the same day to serve like notice in writing upon the president and directors of the company, or upon such of them as reside in his county, either personally or by leaving the same at their respective places of abode. The sending, setting up, and serving of such notices in the manner aforesaid constitutes a valid levy of the writ upon all shares of stock in such company held by the defendant in execution, which have not at the time of the receipt of the notice by the clerk, cashier, or other officer, who has custody of the stock-registry books, been actually transferred by the defendant; and thereafter any transfer or sale of such shares by the defendant in execution is void as against the plaintiff in the execution, or any purchaser of such stock at any sale thereunder. (Rev., s. 1217; 1901, c. 2, s. 71.)

§ 1207. Duty and liability of nonresident custodian.—The nonresident clerk, cashier, or other officer in such corporation, to whom notice in writing is sent as prescribed in the preceding section, shall send forthwith to the officer having the writ, a statement of the time when he received the notice and a certificate of the number of shares held by the defendant in the corporation at the time of the receipt, not actually transferred on the books of the corporation; and the sheriff, or other officer, on receipt by him of this certificate, shall insert the number of shares in the inventory attached to the writ. If the clerk, cashier, or other officer in such corporation neglects to send the certificate as aforesaid or willfully sends a false one, he is liable to the plaintiff for double the amount of damages occasioned by his neglect, or false certificate, to be recovered in an action against him; but the neglect to send, or miscarriage of the certificate, does not impair the validity of the levy upon the stock. (Rev., s. 1218; 1901, c. 2, s. 72.)

Art. 10. Receivers

§ 1208. Appointment and removal.—When a corporation becomes insolvent or suspends its ordinary business for want of funds, or is in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights or its corporate existence has expired by limitation, a receiver may be appointed by the court under the same regulations that are provided by law for the appointment of receivers in other cases; and the court may remove a receiver or trustee and appoint another in his place, or fill any vacancy. Everything required to be done by receivers or trustees is valid if performed by a majority of them. (Rev., ss. 1219, 1223; Code, s. 668; 1901, c. 2, ss. 73, 79.)

Cross References.—As to receivers in general, see secs. 859 et seq. For powers and bonds of corporate receivers, see next section. For a full treatment of receivers, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 839-877; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 334-349.

As to statute relating to receivers applicable to insolvent banks see § 218(e) and annotations thereunder.

Broad Powers Conferred.—This article is so broad and comprehensive in its provisions regarding the appointment of receivers that it was not necessary to refer to the general power of a court of equity in such cases. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 425, 70 S. E. 820.

Nature of Receivership.—Upon the insolvency of a corporation and the appointment of a receiver under the provisions of this section, the receiver represents the creditors as well as the owners, excluding the general creditors from taking any separate or effective steps on their account in furtherance of their claims; and the proceeding for the receivership is in the nature of a judicial process by which the rights of the general creditors are "fastened upon the property." Observer Co. v. Little, 175 N. C. 42, 94 S. E. 526.

Discretion of Court.—The selection of a receiver for an insolvent corporation is a matter largely in the discretion of the trial judge and will not generally be reviewed unless this discretionary power has been greatly abused, and though the practice of appointing the plaintiff attorney as such receiver is not commended, he will not be removed, as a matter of law, on appeal, though, as any other receiver, he may be removed upon application to the proper judge of the superior court. Mitchell v. Realty Co., 169 N. C. 516, 86 S. E. 358; Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 102, cited and approved. Mitchell v. Aulander Realty Co., 169 N. C. 516, 86 S. E. 358.

Effect of Appointment.—The appointment of a receiver for a company, who is directed to take control of all the property of the company, and to assume entire management of its affairs, has the effect of suspending all the officers of the company; and they can not interfere with the business of the company, and are entitled to no salaries during the continuance of the receivership. Lenoir v. Linville Improvement Co., 126 N. C. 922, 36 S. E. 185.

Title of Receiver Relates Back.—The courts have now, as a rule, come to the conclusion that the title of the receiver on his appointment dates back to the time of granting the order, even though certain preliminary conditions must first be performed and the receiver remains out of possession pending such performance. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775; Pelletier v. Lumber Co., 123 N. C. 596, 31 S. E. 855; Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 127 N. C. 432, 37 S. E. 461; Fisher v. Western Carolina Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 775, 44 S. E. 601.

Continuance of Receivership.—A receivership continues as long as the court may think it necessary to the performance of the duties pertaining thereto. Young v. Rollings, 90 N. C. 125.

Directors Duty When Receiver Appointed.—An order appointing a receiver of a defunct corporation with power to receive into possession all the effects of the company, and also investing him with the usual rights and powers of receivers, involves the correlative duty of delivering the same to him by the late officers of the company in whose hands the funds are, although not expressly required in the decretal order. Young v. Rollings, 90 N. C. 125.

Valid Liens Not Divested.—The title of a receiver relates only to the time of his appointment, and valid liens existing at that time are not divested thereby. Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 127 N. C. 432, 37 S. E. 461; Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

Where Assignee Appointed Receiver.—One to whom an insolvent bank made an assignment of its assets, and who on the same day, and at the suit of creditors, was appointed receiver, held the assets after such adjudication, not by virtue of the deed of assignment but as an officer of the court appointed to settle and wind up the affairs of such insolvent bank. Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371.

Receiver Appointed after Reorganization.—The organization of a new corporation at once dissolves the old one, and if there are creditors of the dissolved corporation they may cause the property of the defunct corporation to be applied to their debts by means of a receiver. Marshall v. Western N. C. R. R. Co., 92 N. C. 322.

Dissolution.—Assuming that a bank which had never been duly incorporated had a corporate existence as to those who bona fide dealt with it as a corporation, a receiver should be appointed to take charge of and preserve its effects, where it has voluntarily dissolved, and no one claims to own its stock, and all its supposed officers disclaim their offices. Dobson v. Simonton, 78 N. C. 63.

Fraudulent Disposal of Property.—If, during the existence of a corporation, its officers fraudulently or unlawfully disposed of any of its property, the creditors are entitled to have a receiver appointed to sue for and recover it. Latta v. Catawba Elect. Co., 146 N. C. 285, 59 S. E. 1028.

Cessation of Business.—Where a corporation had ceased operation, a stockholder had the right to maintain an action for the appointment of a receiver, although the corporation had not been dissolved in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Greenleaf v. Land, etc., Co., 146 N. C. 505, 60 S. E. 424.

Not Available in Federal Courts.—This section does not confer upon a stockholder or a creditor a substantive right, but merely gives a new remedy and such remedy is not available in the federal courts. See & Depew v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235, 236.

Adjudication of Bankruptcy during Insolvency Proceeding.—Proceedings against an insolvent corporation under this section do not preclude creditors from petitioning to have the corporation adjudged a bankrupt, notwithstanding the action of the state courts. In Re McKinnon Co., 237 Fed. 869, 872.

When Receiver Unnecessary.—It is unnecessary to have a receiver appointed in order for the assignee of a judgment creditor, and those thereunder beneficially interested, to maintain an action against officers and stockholders for misapplication of funds in distribution among the shareholders as dividends. Chatham v. Mecklenburg Realty Co., 180 N. C. 500, 105 S. E. 329.

§ 1209. Powers and bond.—The receiver has power and authority to—

1. Demand, sue for, collect, receive and take into his possession all the goods and chattels, rights and credits, moneys and effects, lands and tenements, books, papers, choses in action, bills, notes, and property of every description of the corporation.

2. Foreclose mortgages, deeds of trust, and other liens executed to the corporation.

3. Institute suits for the recovery of any estate, property, damages, or demands existing in favor of the corporation, and he shall, upon application by him, be substituted as party plaintiff in the place of the corporation in any suit or proceeding pending at the time of his appointment.

4. Sell, convey, and assign all of the said estate, rights, and interest.

5. Appoint agents under him.

6. Examine persons and papers, and pass on claims as elsewhere provided in this article.

7. Do all other acts which might be done by the corporation, if in being, that are necessary for the final settlement of its unfinished business.

The powers of the receiver may be continued as long as the court thinks necessary, and the receiver shall hold and dispose of the proceeds of all sales of property under the direction of the court, and, before acting, must enter into such bond and comply with such terms as the court prescribes. (Rev., ss. 1222, 1231; Code, s. 668; 1901, c. 2, ss. 74, 84.)

Directors Superseded.—Appointment of receivers of a corporation on a creditors' bill supersedes the power of the directors to carry on the business of the corporation and the receivers take possession of the corporation until further order of the court. ABM. S. See & Depew Inc. v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235, 237.

Power to Bring All Actions.—The receiver represents and, in a certain sense, succeeds to the rights of the corporation. There is no valid reason why he may not, representing the corporation and its creditors, bring any and all actions in respect to its assets, or rights of action, which it or its creditors could have brought. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 415, 47 S. E. 893.

May Sue in Own Name.—The receiver may sue either in his own name or that of the corporation. In whichever name he may elect to bring the action, it is essentially a suit by the corporation, prosecuted by order of the court, for the collection of the assets. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893; Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321; 23 L. R. A. 322, 19 S. E. 371; Gray v. Lewis, 94 N. C. 392.

Receiver May Plead Usury.—The plea of usury may be made by a receiver of an insolvent corporation against which a usurious contract is sought to be enforced. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 510, 70 S. E. 997.

Valid Existing Liens Protected.—The title of a receiver of a private corporation to the corporate property relates back only to the time of his appointment, and it cannot divest the property of valid liens existing at that time. Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

All Rights May Be Adjusted.—In the suit by the receivers may be adjudicated all the rights of the bank, its creditors and the defendant debtor, both legal and equitable, pertaining to the matters set out in the pleadings, and such judgment may be entered as will enforce the rights of the general creditors and also protect any equities that the defendant may be entitled to. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893; Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371, 23 L. R. A. 322; Gray v. Lewis, 94 N. C. 392.

No Extraterritorial Power.—A receiver, appointed in a stockholder's action to sequester assets of the corporation against mismanagement of its officers and directors, has no extraterritorial power. See & Depew v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235, 236.

Priority of Receivers.—One receiver has no priority over another receiver previously appointed in another district on a creditors' bill. See & Depew v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235, 236.

Power after Charter Has Expired.—A receiver, appointed under the preceding section, to wind up the affairs of a corporation, can proceed to collect in the assets and to prosecute and defend suits, after the corporation has ceased to exist by the expiration of its charter. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579.

Same—Effect of Judgment.—Judgments against a corporation rendered upon process issued after it ceased to exist are of no validity; and the same may be impeached by a party interested in the administration of its assets. Dobson v. Simonton, 86 N. C. 492.

Sufficiency to Pass Title.—Where, under a court order, the receiver of an insolvent has conveyed lands according to the terms of a deed of trust by which the bank held the land, applying this and the following section the deed was sufficient in law to pass title. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 688, 158 S. E. 244.

§ 1210. Title and inventory.—All of the real and personal property of an insolvent corporation, wheresoever situated, and all its franchises, rights, privileges and effects, upon the appointment of a receiver, forthwith vest in him, and the corporation is divested of the title thereto. Within thirty days after his appointment he shall lay before the court a full and complete inventory of all estate, property, and effects of the corporation, its nature and probable value, and an account of all debts due from and to it, as nearly as the same can be ascertained, and shall make a report of his proceedings to the superior court at every civil term during the continuance of the trust. (Rev., ss. 1224, 1225; 1901, c. 2, ss. 75, 80.)

Cross Reference. — As to a conveyance by a receiver of an insolvent bank, according to a deed of trust, see § 1209 and the note thereto.

Prior Liens Not Divested.—It has been held, and is a generally accepted doctrine, that the appointment of a receiver does not divest the property of prior existing liens, but the court, through its receiver, receives such property impressed with all existing rights and equities, and the relative ranks of claims and standing of liens remain unaffected by the receivership. Pelletier v. Lumber Co., 123 N. C. 596, 31 S. E. 855; Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 127 N. C. 432, 37 S. E. 461; Fisher v. Western Carolina Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 44 S. E. 601; Garrison v. Vermont Mills, 154 N. C. 1, 69 S. E. 743; Withrell v. Murphy, 154 N. C. 82, 90, 69 S. E. 748.

Insurance Policies Not Forfeited.—The vesting of the property of a corporation in the receiver under this section does not constitute such a change in the "interest, title or possession" of the property as to forfeit insurance policies on the property. Southern Pants Co. v. Insurance Co., 159 N. C. 78, 74 S. E. 812.

Effect of Subsequent Judgment against Corporation.—The title to the property of a corporation vests in the receiver at the time he was duly appointed by the court, from which time the corporation is divested thereof, and a judgment against the corporation entered thereafter, but before the docketing of the order or the qualifying of the receiver thereunder, can acquire no lien in favor of the judgment creditor. Odell Hardware Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Same—Does Not Relate Back. — A judgment rendered against a corporation does not relate back, by implication of law, to the beginning of the term, so as to create a lien on the corporate property as against the vesting of the title in a receiver, under this section, who had in the meanwhile been appointed. Odell Hardware Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Effect of Unrecorded Conditional Sale Contract.—A receiver has the power of creditors armed with process to disregard or avoid the unrecorded condition in a contract of conditional sale. Observer Co. v. Little, 175 N. C. 42, 45, 94 N. C. 526.

Receiver Made Defendant.—In an action brought by creditors, depositors or stockholders to recover assets belonging to the corporation, the title to which has vested in the receiver, upon his refusal to bring the action the receiver may properly be made a defendant, to the end that the recovery may be subject to orders and decrees by the court, in the judgment as to its application to the claims of creditors and depositors, or to its distribution among stockholders. Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 463, 130 S. E. 195.

Editor's Note.—This statute, which became effective April 10, 1931, excepted pending litigation. The need for the statute is not apparent, in view of §§ 1209 and 1210, as construed in Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 668 decided shortly after the act was ratified, unless it was because those statutes are limited to receiverships and are inapplicable, as the new statute is, to trusteeships as well. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 401.

§ 1210(b). All sales subject to orders of court.—All such sales shall be made as directed by the court in the cause in which said receiver is appointed or the said trustee elected, and for the satisfaction and settlement of such notes and bonds secured by such mortgage deed or deed of trust or in such other actions for the sales of the said real property as the said receiver or trustee may institute and all pursuant to the orders and decrees of the court having jurisdiction therein. (1931, c. 265, s. 2.)

§ 1211. May send for persons and papers; penalty for refusing to answer.—The receiver has power to send for persons, and to examine any persons, including the creditors, claimants, president, directors, and other officers and agents of the corporation, on oath of affirmation (which oath or affirmation the receiver may administer), respecting its affairs and transactions and its estate, money, goods, chattels, credits, notes, bills, choses in action, real and personal estate and effects of every kind; and also respecting its debts, obligations, contracts, and liabilities, and the claims against it; and if any person refuses to be sworn or affirmed, or to make answers to such questions as may be put to him, or refuse to declare the whole truth touching the subject-matter of the examination, the court may, on report of the receiver, commit such person as for contempt. (Rev., s. 1227; 1901, c. 2, s. 78.)

§ 1212. Proof of claims; time limit.—All claims against an insolvent corporation must be presented to the receiver in writing; and the claimant, if required, shall submit himself to such examination in relation to the claim as the receiver directs, and shall produce such books and papers relating to the claim as shall be required. The receiver has power to examine under oath or affirmation all witnesses produced before him touching the claim, and shall pass upon and allow or disallow the claims or any part thereof, and notify the claimants of his determination. The court may limit the time within which creditors may present and prove to the receiver their respective claims against the corporation, and may bar all creditors and claimants failing to do so within the time limited from participating in the distribution of the assets of the corporation. The court may also prescribe what notice, by publication or otherwise, must be given to creditors of such limitation of time. (Rev., ss. 1228, 1229; 1901, c. 2, ss. 81, 82.)

Court May Extend Time for Filing.—The court has the discretion to permit the filing of claims subsequent to the time fixed after the appointment of the receiver. Odell Hdw. Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Creditor May Assign Claim.—After the appointment of a receiver a creditor may assign his claim, but such assignment is subject to the receiver's right to set off claims the bank may have against the creditor, and if the assignee of a claim is himself a debtor of the bank he can not use the assigned claim as a set-off. Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 322, 19 S. E. 371.

§ 1213. Report on claims to court; exceptions and jury trial.—It is the duty of the receiver to report to the term of the superior court subsequent to a finding by him as to any claim against the corporation, and exceptions thereto may be filed by any person interested, within ten days after notice of the finding by the receiver, and not later than within the first three days of the said term; and, if, on an exception so filed, a jury trial is demanded, it is the duty of the court to prepare a proper issue and submit it to a jury; and if the demand is not made in the exception to the report the right to a jury trial is waived. The judge may, in his discretion, extend the time for filing such exceptions. (Rev., s. 1230; 1901, c. 2, s. 83.)

§ 1214. Property sold pending litigation. — When the property of an insolvent corporation is at the time of the appointment of a receiver incumbered with mortgages or other liens, the legality of which is brought in question, and the property is of a character materially to deteriorate in value pending the litigation, the court may order the receiver to sell the same, clear of incumbrance, at public or private sale, for the best price that can be obtained, and pay the money into the court, there to remain subject to the same liens and equities of all parties in interest as was the property before sale, to be disposed of as the court directs. And the receiver or receivers making such sale is hereby authorized and directed to report to the resident judge of the district or to the judge holding the courts of the district in which the property is sold, the said sale for confirmation, the said report to be made to the said judge in any county in which he may be at the time; but before acting upon said report, the said receiver or receivers shall publish in some newspaper published in the county or in some newspaper of general circulation in the county, where there is no newspaper published in the county, a notice directed to all creditors and persons interested in said property, that the said receiver will make application to the judge (naming him) at a certain place and time for the confirmation of his said report, which said notice shall be published at least ten days before the time fixed therein for the said hearing. And the said judge is authorized to act upon said report, either confirming it or rejecting the sale; and if he rejects the sale it shall be competent for him to order a new sale and the said order shall have the same force and effect as if made at a regular term of the Superior Court of the county in which the property is situated. (Rev., s. 1232; 1901, c. 2, s. 86; Extra Sess. 1924, s. 13.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to 1924 this section consisted of the first sentence only of the present section. The addition was made by sec. 13, Extra Sess. Public Laws of 1924.

The amendment to this section effected by the Act of 1924 is applicable to suits pending at the time it took effect. Martin v. Vanlaningham, 189 N. C. 656, 127 S. E. 695.

Applicable to Pending Litigation.—The statute is a remedial one and relates only to the method of procedure in dealing with certain assets of an insolvent corporation. Such statutes, unless otherwise limited, are usually held to be applicable to pending litigation, where the language used clearly indicates that such construction was intended by the Legislature, and especially where no hardship or injustice results, and the rights of the parties are thereby better secured and protected. Martin v. Vanlaningham, 189 N. C. 656, 127 S. E. 695, 696.

§ 1215. Compensation and expenses.—Before distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation among the creditors or stockholders, the court shall allow a reasonable compensation to the receiver for his services, not to exceed five per cent upon receipts and disbursements, and the costs and expenses of administration of his trust and of the proceedings in said court, to be first paid out of said assets. (Rev., s. 1226; 1901, c. 2, s. 88.)

In General.—The effect of this section is to take from the funds of the insolvent corporation a sufficient sum to pay all the costs, allowances and legitimate expenses, and then to distribute what is left according to priority. Hickson Lumber Co. v. Gay Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 281, 282, 63 S. E. 1048.

Commissions Limited.—A rate not exceeding 5 per cent on receipts and 5 per cent. on disbursements is the statutory limit of a receiver's commissions. Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 36 S. E. 39.

Commissions Part of Costs.—Commissions payable to a receiver are part of the costs and expenses of the suit in which he is appointed, and should be paid as such instead of being classed as a debt payable pro rata with other debts. Wilson Cotton Mills v. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770.

Same—Discretion of Court.—An allowance to a receiver is a part of the costs of the action and usually taxable against the losing party, but the court below, may, in its discretion, divide it between the parties, as in case of referees' fees. Simmons v. Allison, 119 N. C. 556, 26 S. E. 171.

First Assets Applied to Costs.—Under this section the first assets that are the property of the corporation must be applied to the costs of the proceedings in court, including the fees of the receiver and referee, and (except as to private corporations, Roberts v. Brown Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 33, 85 S. E. 45); receivers' certificates issued in operation of the plant, under the orders of the court, and liabilities incurred for labor or torts. Hickson Lumber Co. v. Gay Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 281, 282, 63 S. E. 1048; Humphrey Bros v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 521, 93 S. E. 971.

When Costs Prior to Mortgage.—One who takes a mortgage upon corporation property for money loaned to operate it or to secure other debts, past or prospective, does so with the knowledge that, under this section, the lien of his mortgage is subject to be displaced in favor of the expenses of receivership, but when the corporation has acquired the property subject to a valid registered mortgage then the costs of receivership are not prior to that mortgage. Humphrey Bros. v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 519, 93 S. E. 971.

Work Completed First.—The allowance of commissions to receivers appointed by the court, by consent, to finish the completed water-works, is premature before the work is finished, as it can not be determined until then whether such allowance is excessive or too little. Delafield v. Mercer Constr. Co., 118 N. C. 105, 24 S. E. 10.

Appeal. — When the order of the court below allowing commissions to a receiver for services as such is appealed from, and there is no suggestion that the amount was excessive or based upon a wrong principle, the order will not be disturbed. Talbot v. Tyson, 147 N. C. 273, 60 S. E. 1125.

The allowance of commissions and counsel fees to a receiver by the superior court is prima facie correct, and the Supreme Court will alter the same only when they are clearly inadequate or excessive. Graham v. Carr, 133 N. C. 449, 45 S. E. 847.

§ 1216. Debts provided for, receiver discharged. —When a receiver has been appointed, and it afterwards appears that the debts of the corporation have been paid, or provided for, and that there remains, or can be obtained by further contributions, sufficient capital to enable it to resume its business, the court may, in its discretion, a proper case being shown, discharge the receiver, and decree that the property, rights, and franchises of the corporation revert to it, and thereafter the corporation may resume control of the same, as fully as if the receiver had never been appointed. (Rev., s. 1220; 1901, c. 2, s. 76.)

Discharged Receiver Not a Party.—Where the receiver of an insolvent railroad company is discharged, he is not a proper party to an action against a foreclosure purchaser to recover for personal injuries received after his discharge. Howe v. Harper, 127 N. C. 356, 37 S. E. 505.

§ 1217. Reorganization.—When a majority in interest of the stockholders of the corporation have agreed upon a plan for its reorganization and a resumption by it of the management and control of its property and business, the corporation may, with the consent of the court, upon the reconveyance to it of its property and franchises, either by deed or decree of the court, mortgage the same for an amount necessary for the purposes of the reorganization; and may issue bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, or additional stock, or both, and use the same for the full or partial payment of the creditors who will accept the same, or otherwise dispose of the same for the purposes of the reorganization. (Rev., s. 1221; 1901, c. 2, s. 77.)

As to reorganization in general, see Art. 12 this chapter.

Consent of Creditors Unnecessary.—Where a corporation engaged in business transfers its entire property rights and franchises to a new company incorporated and organized by the same stockholders and directors as the old, and the new company continues the business and adopts the contracts of its predecessor, the effect of such a merger is to create a novation so far as the creditors of the old company are concerned and to substitute the new one as debtor, and in such case it is not necessary to obtain the consent of the creditors of the old company to the change. Freidenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco, etc., Co., 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

New Corporation Assumes Contracts of Old.—Where, by merger of an old into a new corporation, a novation of the debts of the old is created, the new corporation is, to all intents and purposes, the same body and answerable for its own contracts made under a different name. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco, etc., Co., 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

Art. 11. Taxes and Fees

§ 1218. Taxes for filing.—On filing any certificate or paper relative to corporations in the office of the Secretary of State, the following tax shall be paid to the State Treasurer for the use of the State:

1. For certificates of incorporation, forty cents for each thousand dollars of the total amount of capital stock authorized but in no case less than forty dollars.

2. Increase of capital stock, forty cents for each thousand dollars of the total increase authorized, but in no case less than forty dollars.

3. Extension or renewal of corporate existence of any corporation, the same as required for the original certificate of incorporation by this section.

4. Change of name, change of nature of business, amended certificate of incorporation (other than those authorizing increase of capital stock), decrease of capital stock, increase or decrease of par value of, or number of shares, forty dollars.

5. For filing of officers and directors, two dollars.

6. Dissolution of corporation, change of principal place of business, five dollars.

7. For certificates of incorporation for any benevolent, religious, educational, charitable or social society or association having no capital stock, fifteen dollars.

Provided, no tax shall be required by corporations created by virtue of section 1123 of the Consolidated Statutes relating to public parks and drives; and these taxes shall not be cumulative, but when two or more taxes have been incurred at the same time the tax for all shall be the largest single tax. (Rev., s. 1233; 1901, c. 2, s. 96; 1911, c. 155, s. 5; 1929, c. 36; 1935, c. 10.)

Cross References.—As to the requirements of the certificate of incorporation, see sec. 1115. As to errors or omissions in the certificate, see sec. 1120. As to amending the certificate before payment of stock, see sec. 1130.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 amended this section to make it conform to Public Laws, Extra. Sess. 1920, c. 1, which increased the taxes provided for in the original section.

For an article dealing with taxation of North Carolina corporations in general, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 203-215. This section is mentioned in the article on p. 205.

Prior to the amendment of 1935 no taxes were required of benevolent, religious, educational or charitable societies or associations having no capital stock, the same being exempted by the proviso at the end of the section. Thus subsection (7) is new.

§ 1219. Fees to secretary of state and clerk of superior court.—The secretary of state shall collect and retain the following fees: For recording the certificate of incorporation, one dollar for the first three copy sheets and ten cents for each copy sheet in excess thereof, and for official seal one dollar; for copying, the same fees as for recording. There shall be paid the clerk of the superior court for recording the certificate of incorporation a fee of three dollars. (Rev., s. 1234; Code, s. 680; 1893, c. 318, s. 4; 1901, c. 2, s. 96; 1917, c. 231, s. 84.)

§ 1220. Corporate property in receiver's hands liable for taxes. — When listed or unlisted taxes are duly assessed and charged against and are due and unpaid by a corporation with chartered rights, doing business or with property in this state, or against a person residing in, doing business, or having property in this state, it is competent for an officer or tax collector who has the tax list to levy upon, seize, and take possession of that part of the property belonging to the corporation necessary to pay such taxes, even though the property is in the hands of a receiver duly appointed; and the officer or collector need not apply to the court appointing the receiver, or with jurisdiction of the property or the receiver, for an order for the payment of said taxes. This section applies to all taxes, whether state, county, town or municipal, and shall be liberally construed in favor of and in furtherance of the collection of such taxes. (Rev., ss. 1236, 1237; Code, ss. 699, 670.)

Failure to Pay Taxes.—The State and county having, through the boards of commissioners sitting with the justices of the peace, assessed the property of a corporation for taxation and placed the tax list in the hands of the sheriff, who can not find any property of the corporation upon which to levy, are creditors holding a debt against such corporation and are entitled to bring a proceeding in the nature of a creditors' bill against such corporation, with or without proceedings for its dissolution. State v. Georgia Co., 112 N. C. 34, 17 S. E. 10.

Attachment and Continuance of Lien.—The lien for taxes attaches to the real property taxed from the date provided in the statute, and the lien continues thereon until the taxes are paid, regardless into whose hands the property has passed, unless barred by some statute of limitations. Reichland Shale Products Co. v. Southern Steel, etc., Co., 200 N. C. 226, 156 S. E. 777.

Art. 12. Reorganization

§ 1221. Corporations whose property and franchises sold under order of court or execution.—When the property and franchises of a public-service corporation are sold under a judgment or decree of a court of this state, or of the district court of the United States, or under execution, to satisfy a mortgage debt or other encumbrance thereon, such sale vests in the purchaser all the right, title, interest and property of the parties to the action in which such judgment or decree was made, to said property and franchise, subject to all the conditions, limitations and restrictions of the corporation; and the purchaser and his associates, not less than three in number, thereupon become a new corporation, by such name as they select, and they are the stockholders in the ratio of the purchase money by them contributed; and are entitled to all the rights and franchises and subject to all the conditions, limitations and penalties of the corporation whose property and franchises have been so sold. In the event of the sale of a railroad in foreclosure of a mortgage or deed of trust, whether under a decree of court or otherwise, the corporation created by or in consequence of the sale succeeds to all the franchises, rights and privileges of the original corporation only when the sale is of all the railroad owned by the company and described in the mortgage or deed of trust, and when the railroad is sold as an entirety. If a purchaser at any such sale is a corporation, such purchasing corporation shall succeed to all the properties, franchises, powers, rights, and privileges of the original corporation: Provided, that this shall not affect vested rights and shall not be construed to alter in any manner the public policy of the state now or hereafter established with reference to trusts and contracts in restraint of trade. (Rev., s. 1238; Code, ss. 697, 698; 1897, c. 305; 1901, c. 2, s. 99; 1913, c. 25, s. 1; 1919, c. 75.)

As to reorganization, see also sec. 1217 and annotations.

Railroad Property and Franchise Must Be Together. — The property of railroads must be kept in association with their franchises to preserve their value; to give credit to such corporations; to secure creditors and keep railroads in operation for the benefit of the public, which was the primary object of the Legislature in bestowing such corporate franchises. Such legislative purpose is clearly manifested in this section. Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., Co., 119 N. C. 918, 927, 26 S. E. 169; citing Gooch v. McGee, 83 N. C. 60, 67.

Foreign Corporation Not Created.—It is neither the purpose nor effect of this section to create a foreign corporation in this State. James v. Western N. C. R. Co., 121 N. C. 523, 28 S. E. 537.

New Corporation Must Be Provided.—In order that the sale of the franchise and property of a corporation under the mortgage shall have the effect of a dissolution of such corporation as provided in this section, another corporation must be provided, as contemplated in section 3462, to take its place, and assume and discharge the obligations to the public growing out of the grant of the franchise, and until that is done the old corporation continues to exist, and when it is done the new corporation will be a domestic corporation. James v. Western N. C. R. Co., 121 N. C. 523, 28 S. E. 537.

Meaning of "Encumbrance."—In this section the word "encumbrance" is not restricted, as in cases of real estate alone, to claims having specific liens on the property, but is extended to include any and all claims importing a liability to sale as a whole under a judicial decree. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

Construed with Other Sections.—This section and the two following should be construed with section 1186 and when thus construed, the purchaser at the sale under a decree of the court, duly entered, acquires the right to reorganize, in accordance with the term imposed by the sections referred to, and carry on the business as a new corporation, acquiring the franchise of the old corporation as an asset included in his purchase. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

Effect of Sale of Railroad.—The sale of a railroad under a second mortgage and a conveyance thereunder subject to the first mortgage upon its franchise and corporate property did not extinguish the corporate existence of the company, nor release it from liability to the public for the manner in which it is operated. James v. Western N. C. R. Co., 121 N. C. 523, 28 S. E. 537.

Rights of Purchaser.—On the foreclosure of a mortgage given by a railroad company, the purchaser takes the rights that the company had acquired in relation to its right of way under its charter. Barker v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 214, 49 N. C. 115.

The purchaser of a railroad under this section takes the rights acquired by the former company under its charter, and also becomes liable for damages and assessments on account of the appropriation of lands for the right of way. Hendrick v. R. R., 101 N. C. 617, 8 S. E. 236.

Rights of Old Stockholders.—When the property, including the franchise, of a corporation is sold under judicial sale, conferring on the purchaser the right to reorganize, etc., the old stockholders have a right to share in the assets if there is a surplus; but the decree itself shuts off all their rights as such stockholders in the new corporation. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

Debts.—The principle that a corporation taking over another by reorganization, consolidation, amalgamation, or union is subject to the debts and liabilities of such corporation, rests upon the ground that the corporation so taken over either has not been paid a consideration, that the transaction was in fraud of creditors, or upon the presumption of a trust for creditors; consequently, the principle does not apply to the bona fide sale of only a part of the assets of a corporation which continues to exist and exercise its functions under its franchise. McAlister v. Express Co., 179 N. C. 556, 103 S. E. 129.

Use of Former Name.—Where a corporation has been practically reorganized under a different name, the fact that persons in negotiating for the sale of shares of stock in the reorganized corporation used the former name is immaterial, it appearing that the purchaser received the certificates he had contracted to purchase, and held them without objection, and must have known of the fact. Pritchard v. Daily, 168 N. C. 330, 84 S. E. 392.

§ 1222. New owners to meet and organize. — The persons for whom the property and franchises have been purchased shall meet within thirty days after the delivery of the conveyance made by virtue of said process or decree, and organize the new corporation, ten days written notice of the time and place of the meeting having been given to each of the said persons. At this meeting they shall adopt a corporate name and seal, determine the amount of the capital stock of the corporation, and shall have power and authority to make and issue certificates of stock in shares of such amounts as they see fit. The corporation may then, or at any time thereafter, create and issue preferred stock to such an amount, and at such time, as they may deem necessary. (Rev., ss. 1239, 1240; 1901, c. 2, ss. 100, 101, 102.)

Change of Name and Seal Not Required.—Where the purchasers of the entire property of a defunct corporation under the decree of a court have in other respects complied with the requirements of the statute as to reorganization, the fact that they have assumed to continue operations without changing the seal, or determining upon a different amount of capitalization, does not necessarily affect the fact of proper reorganization, there being no statutory requirement that they change them. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

§ 1223. Certificate to be filed with secretary of state.— It is the duty of the new corporation, within one month after its organization to make certificate thereof, under its common seal, attested by the signature of its president, specifying the date of the organization, the name adopted, the amount of capital stock, and the names of its president and directors, and transmit the certificate to the secretary of state, to be filed and recorded in his office, and there remain of record. A certified copy of this certificate so filed shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which is located the principal office of the corporation, and is the charter and evidence of the corporate existence of the new corporation. (Rev., s. 1241; 1901, c. 2, s. 103.)

Failure to File with Secretary of State.—Where the purchasers reorganize within the requirements of this article except they failed to file the certificate with the Secretary of State within one month from its reorganization (as required by this sec.) as to whether the corporation was one de jure, the purchasers having acted in good faith, Quaere? But, it became at least a corporation de facto, and the individuals cannot be held to personal liability for debts contracted in the name of the corporation, except to the extent the charter or act of incorporation provides. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

§ 1224. Effect on liens and other rights. — Nothing contained in this article in any manner impairs the lien of a prior mortgage, or other encumbrance, upon the property or franchises conveyed under the sale, when by the terms of the process or decree under which the sale was made, or by operation of law, the sale was made subject to the lien of any such prior mortgage or other encumbrance. No such sale and conveyance or organization of such new corporation in any way affects the rights of any person, body politic, or corporate, not a party to the action in which the decree was made, nor of the said party except as determined by the decree. When a trustee has been made a party to such action and his cestui que trust, for reason satisfactory to the court, has not been made a party thereto, the right and interest of the cestui que trust are concluded by the decree. (Rev., s. 1241; 1901, c. 2, s. 103.)

Editor's Note.—As to the meaning of "encumbrance" as used in this section, see annotation, "meaning of encumbrance," under section 1221.

Art. 13. Merger

§ 1224(a). Merger, proceedings for.—Any two or more corporations organized under the provisions of this chapter, or existing under the laws of this State, for the purpose of carrying on any kind of business, may consolidate into a single corporation which may be either one of said consolidated corporations or a new corporation to be formed by means of such consolidation; the directors, or a majority of them, of such corporations as desire to consolidate, may enter into an agreement signed by them and under the corporate seals of the respective corporations, prescribing the terms and conditions of consolidation, the mode of carrying the same into effect, and stating such other facts as are necessary to be set out in the certificate of incorporation, as provided in this chapter, as well as the manner and basis of converting the shares of each of the old corporations into stock of the new corporation, with such other details and provisions as are deemed necessary or desirable.

Said agreement shall be submitted to the stockholders of each corporation, at a meeting thereof, called separately for the purpose of taking the same into consideration; of the time, place and object of which meeting due notice shall be given by publication at least once a week for four successive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county wherein each corporation either has its principal office or conducts its business (and if there be no newspaper published in such county, then in a newspaper published in an adjoining county), and a copy of such notice shall be mailed to the last known postoffice address of each stockholder of each corporation, at least twenty days prior to the date of such meeting, and at said meeting said agreement shall be considered and a vote by ballot, in person or by proxy, taken for the adoption or rejection of the same, each share entitled to vote entitling the holder thereof to one vote; and if the votes of the stockholders of each corporation representing a majority of the outstanding shares of stock entitled to vote shall be for the adoption of the said agreement then that fact shall be certified on said agreement by the secretary of each corporation, under the seal thereof; and the agreement so adopted and certified shall be signed by the president or vice-president and secretary or assistant secretary of each of said corporations under the corporate seals thereof and acknowledged by the president or vice-president for each of such corporations before any officer authorized by the laws of this State to take acknowledgments of deeds to be the respective act, deed and agreement of each of said corporations, and the agreement so certified and acknowledged shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and shall thence be taken and deemed to be the agreement and act of consolidation of the said corporation; and a copy of said agreement and act of consolidation, duly certified by the Secretary of State under the seal of his office, shall also be recorded in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court of the county of this State in which the principal office of the consolidated corporation is, or is to be, established, and in the offices of the clerks of the Superior Courts of the counties of this State in which the respective corporations so consolidating shall have their original charters recorded, or if any of the corporations shall have been specially created by a public act of the Legislature, then said agreement shall be recorded in the county where such corporation shall have had its principal office, and also in the office of the register of deeds of each county in which either or any of the corporations entering into the consolidation owns any real estate, and such record or a certified copy thereof, shall be evidence of the existence of the corporation created by the said agreement, and of the observance and performance of all antecedent acts and conditions necessary to the creation thereof. (1925, c. 77, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The North Carolina Law Review (vol. 3 page 133) has the following to say concerning this statute: "The whole enactment furnishes definite machinery for merger and consolidation, which heretofore has been lacking in our statutes. While the language in the first section, permitting any corporations, engaging in any kind of business, to merge, will have to be interpreted in its relation to competing and non-competing companies, and its relation to statutes covering trusts, monopolies, and combinations in restraint of trade under the Sherman Law, etc., the court will, perhaps, have an easier task of interpretation under the present language of the Act than would have been the case if the Legislature had attempted to define and restrict specifically."

In considering this statute in respect to the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, reference should be had to the full and comprehensive treatment of the interpretation, construction and operation of that act in 8 U. S. Encyc. Dig. (U. S. E.) 430 et seq.; 12 U. S. Encyc. Dig. (U. S. E.) 429 et seq.; 13 U. S. Encyc. Dig. (U. S. E.) 431 et seq.

As to illegal trusts and monopolies under the state law, see section 2559 et seq.

§ 1224(b). Merger; status of old and new corporations. — When the agreement is signed, acknowledged, filed and recorded, as in the preceding section is required, the separate existence of the constituent corporations shall cease, and the consolidating corporations shall become a single corporation in accordance with the said agreement, possessing all the rights, privileges, powers and franchises, as well of a public as of a private nature and all and singular the rights, privileges, powers and franchises of each of said corporations, and all property, real, personal and mixed and all debts due on whatever account, and all other things in action or belonging to each of such corporations, shall be vested in the consolidated corporation; and all property, rights, privileges, powers and franchises, and all and every other interest shall be thereafter as effectually the property of the consolidated corporation as they were of the several and respective former corporations, and the title to any real estate, whether by deed or otherwise, under the laws of this State, vested in either of such corporations, shall not revert or be in any way impaired by reason of this article: Provided, that all rights of creditors and all liens upon the property of either of said former corporations shall be preserved unimpaired, limited in lien to the property affected by such liens at the time of the consolidations, and all debts, liabilities and duties of the respective former corporations shall thenceforth attach to said consolidated corporation, and may be enforced against it to the same extent as if said debt, liabilities and duties had been incurred or controlled by it.

Before receiving stock in the new or consolidated corporation, the shareholders of the old corporation shall surrender to the new corporation their certificates of stock in such old corporations; and the same shall be canceled by the new corporation upon the delivery of the stock in the new corporation. If any certificate of stock in any of the old corporations shall have been lost, destroyed or misplaced, the owner thereof shall have the right to receive from the new corporation stock therein to be issued for the value of the old stock lost, destroyed or misplaced; and the new or consolidated corporation shall have the right to require from such person indemnity against loss on account of the issue of the stock so applied for, in the manner provided by law for the reissue of lost stock. If the person owning such lost, destroyed or misplaced certificate in one of the old corporations, shall be dissatisfied with the terms of the merger and shall object thereto, he shall have the same right to have the value of his stock appraised and paid for, and to appeal to the courts, as is provided herein for other dissatisfied stockholders, upon giving security and indemnifying the new corporation against loss on account of the payment for such lost, destroyed or misplaced certificate of stock. (1925, c. 77, s. 1.)

§ 1224(c). Merger; payment for stock of dissatisfied stockholders. — If any stockholder entitled to vote in either corporation consolidating as aforesaid, shall vote against the same, or if any stockholder in either corporation consolidating as aforesaid, not entitled to vote therein, shall, at or prior to the taking of the vote, object thereto in writing, and if such dissenting or objecting stockholder shall, within twenty days after the agreement of consolidation has been filed and recorded as aforesaid, demand in writing from the consolidated corporation payment of his stock, such consolidated corporation shall within thirty days thereafter pay to him the value of the stock at the date of the consolidation; in case of disagreement as to the value thereof, it shall be lawful for any such stockholder or stockholders within thirty days after he has made demand in writing as aforesaid, and upon reasonable notice to the consolidated corporation, to appeal by petition to the Superior Court of the county in which the principal office of the consolidated corporation is, or is to be, established, to appoint three appraisers to appraise the value of his stock. The award of the appraiser (or a majority of them), if not opposed within ten days after the same shall have been filed in court, shall be confirmed by the court, and when confirmed shall be final and conclusive; and if opposed and excepted to, the exceptions shall be transferred to the civil issue docket of the Superior Court, and there tried in the same manner, as near as may be practicable, as is provided in section one thousand seven hundred and twenty-four, chapter thirty-three, volume one, the Consolidated Statutes, for the trial of exceptions to the appraisal of land condemned for public purposes, and with the same right of appeal to the Supreme Court as is permitted in said chapter. The court shall assess against the consolidated corporation the costs of said proceedings, including a reasonable attorney's fee to the stockholder and a reasonable fee to the appraisers as it shall deem equitable. On the making of said demand in writing as aforesaid, any such stockholder or stockholders shall cease to be stockholders in said constituent company and shall have no rights with respect to such stock except the right to receive payment therefor as aforesaid, and upon payment of the agreed value of the stock or of the value of the stock under final judgment, said stockholder or stockholders shall transfer their stock to the consolidated corporation; and in the event the consolidated corporation shall fail to pay the amount of said judgment within ten days after the same shall become final, said judgment may be collected and enforced in the manner prescribed by law for the enforcement of judgment. Each stockholder in either of the constituent corporations at the time the consolidation becomes effective, entitled to vote, who does not vote against the consolidation and each stockholder in each of the constituent corporations at the time the consolidation becomes effective, not entitled to vote, who does not object thereto in writing as aforesaid, shall cease to be a stockholder in such constituent corporation and shall be deemed to have assented to the consolidation together with the stockholders voting in favor of the consolidation in the manner and on the terms specified in the agreement of consolidation. (1925, c. 77, s. 1.)

§ 1224(d). Merger; pending action saved.—Any action or proceeding pending by or against either of the corporations consolidated may be prosecuted to judgment, as if such consolidation had not taken place or the new corporation may be substituted in its place. (1925, c. 77, s. 1.)

bility of corporations created under this chapter or existing under the laws of this State, or the stockholders or officers thereof, or the rights or remedies of the creditors thereof, or of persons doing or transacting business with such corporation, shall not in any way be lessened or impaired by the consolidation of two or more corporations under the provisions hereof. (1925, c. 77, s. 1.)

§ 1224(f). Powers of consolidated corporations.—When two or more corporations are consolidated the consolidated corporation shall, subject to all the laws of this State, have power and authority to issue bonds or other obligations, negotiable or otherwise, and with or without coupons or interest certificates thereto attached, to an amount sufficient with its capital stock to provide for all the payment it will be required to make, or obligations it will be required to assume, in order to effect such consolidation; to secure the payment of which bonds and obligations it shall be lawful to mortgage its corporate franchise, rights, privileges and property, real, personal and mixed; and may issue capital stock, with or without par value, or in classes any class of which may be with or without par value, to such an amount as may be necessary, to the stockholders of such consolidated corporation in exchange or payment in whole or part for the original shares, in the manner and on the time specified in the agreement of consolidation. Providing that the only fees that shall be collected from said merging corporations shall be office or filing fees and charter fees upon any increase in the authorized capital stock of the merged corporations in excess of that provided for in the charters of the merging corporations when the authorized capital stock of said merging corporations shall be added. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1931, c. 209.)

§ 1224(g). Merger of charitable and other corporations not under control of state.—Any two or more charitable, educational, social, ancestral, historical, penal or reformatory corporations not under the patronage and control of the state, and any two or more corporations without capital stock organized for the purpose of aiding in the work of any church, religious society or organization, or fraternal order, whether organized under special act or general laws, may consolidate into a single corporation, which shall be deemed the successor of each and all corporations joining in such consolidation, in the following manner:

(a) When authorized to do so by the conference, synod, convention or other body owning and/or controlling such corporation, the trustees or directors of such corporation by resolution adopted by majority vote at a meeting duly called and convened in accordance with the present charter, by-laws or other regulations for the conduct of such meetings of such corporation, and in the absence of such charter provision, by-laws or other regulations upon ten days' notice to each trustee or director of the time, place and object of the meeting, may authorize such corporation to make, enter into and execute a consolidation agreement with one or more other such corporations; that such consolidation agreement shall prescribe the terms and conditions of consolidation, the mode of carrying same into effect, and shall set forth in full the certificate of incorporation of the consolidated corporation; and the consolidation agreement so authorized shall be executed in the name and behalf of each such corporation entering into the consolidation by its president or vice-president, attested by its secretary or assistant secretary and its corporate seal thereto affixed, and the due execution thereof shall be acknowledged in the manner and before a notary public or other officer required by the general laws of North Carolina for the acknowledgment of corporate deeds; and there shall be attached to such agreement of consolidation the written consent of a majority of the trustees or directors of each corporation entering into the consolidation.

(b) The agreement of consolidation, when authorized and executed as provided above and having attached thereto the aforesaid written consent, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. When so filed, the separate legal existence of each of the corporations joining in the consolidation thereupon shall be merged into the consolidated corporation, and thereafter there shall be only one corporation having as its charter the certificate of incorporation fully set forth in the agreement of consolidation.

§ 1224(h). Rights and powers of consolidated corporation.—The consolidated corporation shall succeed to and be vested with all rights, privileges and powers, and all property, real, personal and mixed, tangible and intangible, and the title thereto, of each and all of the corporations joining in the consolidation as fully and effectually as the same were theretofore owned and held by each of the separate corporations, and the consolidated corporation shall be liable for the payment of all debts and liabilities of each and all of the separate corporations: Provided, such consolidation shall not affect liens or the priority of liens established against the separate property of any corporation prior to the consolidation. (1933, c. 408, s. 2.)

§ 1224(i). Property of all kinds vested in new corporation.—The consolidated corporation shall succeed to and be vested with all money, securities, property, real, personal and mixed, tangible and intangible, and the title thereto, theretofore owned, held and/or administered by each separate corporation upon the uses and trusts declared in any will, deed or other instrument, and the consolidated corporation shall handle, use and administer such trust funds upon the same uses and trusts and not otherwise; and the consolidated corporation shall be deemed to embrace each separate corporation and to constitute a continuation thereof, and no trust fund or other asset of a separate corporation shall be construed to revert and/or pass to other ownership on the ground that such separate corporation has ceased to exist for the purpose of administering such trust or otherwise. (1933, c. 408, s. 3.)

COSTS

Art. 1. Generally

§ 1225. Items allowed as costs.—To either party for whom judgment is given there shall be allowed as costs his actual disbursements for fees to the officers, witnesses, and other persons entitled to receive the same. (Rev., s. 1249; Code, s. 528.)

Cross References.—For a full treatment of the subject of costs, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 652 et seq.; 13 Enc. Dig. 506 et seq.; as to prosecution bonds for costs, see section 493 et seq.

Editor's Note.—In general this section states the rule that costs follow the judgment, a rule which is founded on policy and natural justice, designed to prevent the unsuccessful litigant from escaping the consequence ensuing from the unfavorable termination of a suit, and which, to a great extent, acts as deterrent to the prosecution or appeal of promiscuous and frivolous litigation. Criminal actions and civil suits alike are controlled by the principle: In State v. Horne, 119 N. C. 853, 26 S. E. 36, Clark, J., says: "There is no exception in State cases to the rule prevailing in civil cases that the costs follow the result of the final judgment." The true and only test of liability for costs depends upon the nature of the final judgment, and the party cast in the suit is the one upon whom the costs must fall. Kincaid v. Graham, 92 N. C. 154; Williams v. Hughes, 139 N. C. 17, 51 S. E. 790; Smith v. Lumber Co., 148 N. C. 334, 62 S. E 416; Kinston Cotton Mills v. Rocky Mount Hosiery Mills, 154 N. C. 462, 70 S. E. 910; Ritchie v. Ritchie, 192 N. C. 538, 541, 135 S. E. 458.

This basic rule of costs is underlying throughout and apparent from the other provisions of this chapter, and, as stated in Costin v. Baxter, 29 N. C. 111, 115, "in no instance found in the books has the losing party recovered his costs or any part of them."

Dependent upon Statutes.—At common law neither party to a civil action could recover costs. Chadwick v. Life Ins. Co., 158 N. C. 380, 74 S. E. 115; Costin v. Baxter, 29 N. C. 111; State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 10 S. E. 608; Waldo v. Wilson, 177 N. C. 461, 100 S. E. 182. And it has been frequently held that costs are entirely creatures of legislation, without which they do not exist. Clerk's Office v. Commissioners, 121 N. C. 29, 30 27 S. E. 1003. See also Lowe v. Kansas, 163 U. S. 81, 41 L. Ed. 78; Day v. Woodworth, 13 How. 362, 363, 14 L. Ed. 182.

The whole matter of costs, including the party to or against whom they may be given, the items or sums to be allowed, etc., is and always has been within the regulation and control of the legislature. See Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. Ed. 666.

Jurisdiction Essential. — Where a court has no jurisdiction of a case, it cannot award costs, or order execution for them to issue. See Mansfield, etc., R. Co. v. Swan, 111 U. S. 379, 28 L. Ed. 462.

Costs of Witnesses.—See sections 1273 et seq., and the notes thereto.

An action upon a contract sounding in damages is one at law, and the costs are taxable under this section, and are not in the discretion of the court as an equity proceeding controlled by section 1243. Cotton Mills v. Knitting Co., 194 N. C. 80, 90, 138 S. E. 428.

Partial Recovery.—See section 1241 and the notes thereof.

§ 1226. Summary judgment for official fees.—If any officer, to whom fees are payable by any person, fails to receive them at the time the service is performed, he may have judgment therefor on motion to the court in which the action is or was pending, upon twenty days notice to the person to be charged, at any time within one year after the termination of the action in which the same was performed. If the motion for judgment be in behalf of the clerk of the superior court, it shall be made to the judge of the court in or out of term. (Rev., s. 1250; Code, s. 3760; 1868-9, c. 279, s. 561.)

Advance Fees for Docketing Transcript. — This section impliedly authorizes the clerk of the Supreme Court to refuse to docket the transcript when the prescribed fee is not paid in advance. Section 3849 specifically authorizes the refusal. Dunn v. Clerk's Office, 176 N. C. 50, 96 S. E. 738; Andrews v. Whisnant, 83 N. C. 446, 447.

When Cause Is Still Pending.—This section is not applicable to the claim of a referee for payment of services rendered in a cause which is still pending in the courts upon exceptions to his report. Farmers Bank v. Merchants & Farmers Bank, 204 N. C. 378, 168 S. E. 221.

Time of Motion to Re-tax.—This section permits a motion to re-tax costs to be made in favor of any officer within one year after termination of the action. In re Smith, 105 N. C. 167, 10 S. E. 982.

Judgment Becomes a Lien.—A judgment under this section becomes a lien on the lands of the defendants. Sheppard v. Bland, 87 N. C. 163.

Where, as a condition of a continuance, the plaintiff in an action was required to pay the accrued costs and they were taxed, docketed and paid, and a judgment was subsequently entered in the action directing the repayment of such costs by the defendant, it was held, that such costs became a part of the judgment already ascertained by reference to the docket as for so much money paid by the plaintiff for the defendant's benefit, and hence, there was no necessity for a re-taxation of the costs. Owen v. Paxton, 122 N. C. 770, 30 S. E. 343.

§ 1227. Sureties on prosecution or appeal bonds liable for costs.—When an action is brought in any court in which security is given for the prosecution thereof, or when any case is brought up to a court by an appeal or otherwise, in which security for the prosecution of the suit has been given, and judgment is rendered against the plaintiff for the costs of the defendant, the appellate court shall also give judgment against the surety for said costs, and execution may issue jointly against the plaintiff and his surety. (Rev., s. 1251; Code, s. 543; R. C., c. 31, s. 126; 1831, c. 46; 1913, c. 189, s. 1.)

As to liability of sureties on bonds generally, see section 347 and notes thereto.

Applies to Judgment for Defendant.—The section is so broadly worded as to apply to all cases where the costs are adjudged for the defendant against the plaintiff, and not simply to those where the plaintiff appeals. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 569, 82 S. E. 849.

Applies in Supreme Court.—This section cannot be restricted in its application to appeals from the court of a justice of the peace, for the first sentence of the section would not apply to such a court, as no prosecution bond for costs is given there, but only in the superior court, or in the Supreme Court if an action is brought here against the state, or perhaps in some other cases not cognizable by a justice of the peace. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 570, 82 S. E. 849; Grimes v. Andrews, 171 N. C. 367, 88 S. E. 513.

The words "appellate court," as used by the amendment of this section in 1913, in view of the context could mean only the Supreme Court. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 571, 82 S. E. 849.

The words of this section "security for the prosecution of action," undeniably mean the prosecution bond, and, under the rule, should now have the same meaning. If the prosecution bond was not intended, the inaptness of the phraseology would hardly have escaped attention. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 571, 82 S. E. 849.

Increasing Penalty of Bond.—Where the defendant has been successful on his appeal to the Supreme Court, and his judgment for costs against the sureties on the prosecution bond of the plaintiff results in making insecure the costs in the superior court, the remedy is by application to increase the penalty of the bond. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 82 S. E. 849.

Partial New Trial.—This section does not apply where the defendant does not gain an entire reversal in the Supreme Court; where a partial new trial only is awarded the costs are in the discretion of the Supreme Court as provided in section 1256. Rayburn v. Casualty Company, 142 N. C. 376, 55 S. E. 296.

Application.—Where an action is brought to recover fees of an office, and in the same action judgment is asked against the sureties on a bond given in a quo warranto proceeding, the superior court has jurisdiction and judgment may be rendered against the sureties. McCall v. Zachary, 131 N. C. 466, 42 S. E. 903.

Appeal.—Though a surety on a prosecution bond is not a party to the action yet, when he is made a party to a proceeding to tax the costs in a case, he may appeal from the order allowing the motion to retax. Smith v. Arthur etc., Co., 116 N. C. 871, 874, 21 S. E. 696.

§ 1228. Execution for unpaid fees itemized bill of costs to be annexed. — The clerks of the supreme, superior and criminal courts, where suits are determined and the fees are not paid by the party from whom they are due, shall sue out executions, directed to the sheriff of any county in the state, who shall levy them as in other cases; and to the said execution shall be annexed a bill of costs, written in words so as plainly to show each item of costs and on what account it is taxed; and all executions for costs, issuing without such a bill annexed, shall be deemed irregular, and may be set aside as to the costs, at the return term, at the instance of him against whom it is issued. (Rev., s. 1252; Code, s. 3762; R. C., c. 102, s. 24.)

For full treatment of execution and attachments for costs, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 742 et seq.

Every execution presupposes a judgment of some sort, and the right given by this section to issue the one implies the existence of the other. Sheppard v. Bland, 87 N. C. 163, 167.

§ 1229. Jurors' tax fees.—On every indictment or criminal proceeding, tried or otherwise disposed of in the superior or criminal courts, the party convicted, or adjudged to pay the costs, shall pay a tax of four dollars. In every civil action in any court of record the party adjudged to pay the costs shall pay a tax of five dollars; but this tax shall not be charged unless a jury shall be impaneled. Said tax fees shall be charged by the clerk in the bill of costs, and collected by the sheriff, and by him paid into the county treasury. And the fund thus raised in any county shall be set apart for the payment of the jurors attending the courts thereof. (Rev., s. 1253; Code, s. 732; R. C., c. 28; 1830, c. 1; 1879, c. 325; 1881, c. 249; 1905, c. 348; 1909, c. 1; 1919, c. 319.)

Not a "Tax" within Meaning of Constitution.—The tax prescribed by Rev. Code, ch. 28, sec. 4, (similar to this section) was not a tax within the meaning of the Revenue Act of 1858-'9, which repealed all taxes not therein imposed; nor was it a tax within the meaning of the Constitution, Art. V, sec. 3, which requires taxes to be equal and uniform. Such a tax was not in violation of the Constitution, Art. I, sec. 35. State v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

Failure to List Taxes.—The plea of guilty to an indictment for failure to list taxes as required by the Revenue Act comes within the intent and meaning of this section requiring in criminal cases a tax of $4 against the "party convicted or adjudged to pay the cost," and applies whether the jury has been impaneled or not; and the tax of $5 in the civil actions should be imposed as a part of the costs, when the jury has been impaneled. This but evidences the legislative intent to draw this distinction between criminal and civil actions, the reason therefor, though apparent, is immaterial in construing the meaning of the statute. State v. Smith, 184 N. C. 728, 114 S. E. 625.

§ 1229(a). Stenographers fee in Wayne County.—No stenographer's fee and no jury fee shall be taxed in any case hereafter brought in the Superior Court of Wayne County or the County Court of Wayne County unless in such case an issue of fact is raised.

An issue of fact shall be deemed to be raised under the preceding paragraph hereof in any case where an answer is filed by the defendant or where it is necessary to offer oral testimony before a judgment is rendered by the Court. (1927, c. 156, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 1230. In criminal cases, not demandable in advance.—In all cases of criminal complaints before justices of the supreme court, judges of the superior and criminal courts, justices of the peace and other magistrates having jurisdiction of such complaints, the officers entitled by law to receive fees for issuing or executing process are not entitled to demand them in advance. Such officers shall indorse the amounts of their respective fees on every process issued or executed by them, and return the same to the court to which it is returnable. (Rev., s. 1254; Code, s. 1173; 1868-9, c. 178, subch. 3, s. 40.)

§ 1231. Clerk to state in detail in entry of judgment.—The clerk shall insert in the entry of judgment the allowances of costs allowed by law, and the necessary disbursements, including the fees of officers and witnesses, and the reasonable compensation of referees and commissioners in taking depositions. The disbursements shall be stated in detail. When it is necessary to adjust costs in any interlocutory proceedings, or in any special proceedings, the same shall be adjusted by the clerk of the court to which the proceedings were returned, except in those matters in which the allowance is required to be made by the judge. (Rev., s. 1255; Code, s. 532.)

In General.—In Young v. Connelly, 112 N. C. 646, 650, 17 S. E. 424, the court cites this section to the following statement: "So it seems in this view of the testimony that it was the duty of the clerk to have filled the blanks and docketed the judgment. The referee's fee was a part of the costs. It was necessary for the clerk to tax the costs and insert the amount in the entry of judgment in addition to the sum adjudged by his honor."

§ 1232. Clerk to itemize bills of criminal costs; approval of solicitor.—It is the duty of the clerks of the several courts of record, at each term of the court, to make up an itemized statement of the bill of costs in every criminal action tried or otherwise disposed of at said term, which shall be signed by the clerk and improved by the solicitor. (Rev., s. 1256; Code, s. 733; 1873-4, c. 116; 1879, c. 264.)

§ 1233. Justice required to itemize costs.—In all trials before justices of the peace any party, plaintiff or defendant, may demand of the justice of the peace before whom the trial is held an itemized statement of the costs of the action. Upon such demand it shall be the duty of the justice to furnish the statement demanded. No person shall be compelled to pay any cost in any trial before a justice of the peace until an itemized statement of the costs has been made out and given to the party charged. It shall be the duty of the justice to insert in the entry of the judgment in every criminal action or otherwise disposed of by him a detailed statement of the different items of cost, and to whom due. (Rev., ss. 1257, 2789; Code, s. 734; 1887, c. 297.)

§ 1234. Justice of the peace refusing to furnish bill of costs.—If any justice of the peace before whom any trial is held shall refuse to furnish an itemized bill of costs, when demanded by the plaintiff or defendant, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3588; Code, s. 734; 1887, c. 297.)

§ 1235. Bills of costs open to the public.—Every bill of costs shall at all times be open to the inspection of any person interested therein. (Rev., s. 1258; Code, s. 735; 1873-4, c. 116.)

§ 1235(a). Clerks to tax solicitor's fees; use of school fund.—The clerks of the superior court of the several counties in the state shall, in computing all bills of cost in criminal cases where the solicitor has heretofore received a fee, tax in the bill of costs the same fees now allowed to the solicitor, which shall be collected by the clerks and paid into the school fund of their respective counties: Provided, that no such fees which are now required by law to be paid by the county shall be taxed in said bill of costs, nor shall any such fees be taxed in said bill of costs, in cases where the defendants are assigned to work on the public roads of the county in which they were convicted. (1923, c. 157, s. 3.)

Art. 2. When State Liable for Costs

§ 1236. Civil actions by the state; joinder of private property.—In all civil actions prosecuted in the name of the state, by an officer duly authorized for that purpose, the state shall be liable for costs in the same cases and to the same extent as private parties. If a private person be joined with the state as plaintiff, he shall be liable in the first instance for the defendant's costs, which shall not be recovered of the state till after execution issued therefor against such private party and returned unsatisfied. (Rev., s. 1259; Code, s. 536.)

Constitutionality.—In Blount v. Simmons, 119 N. C. 50, 51, 25 S. E. 789, it is said: "We find nothing in the Constitution depriving the Legislature of power to enact, Code, sec. 536, (this section) and we do not think it will impair the sovereign character of the state to meet its just liabilities, whether in the form of costs or otherwise."

Dependent upon Statute. — At common law the king neither paid nor received costs, as the former was his prerogative and the latter was beneath his dignity, and the general statutes giving costs did not include the sovereign. The same principle has been applied in this country and in this state, so that the state is only liable in the event of express statutory provisions, which are now quite general in the different states. Blount v. Simmons, 120 N. C. 19, 20, 26 S. E. 649.

Judgment against State.—Upon the failure of the litigation, the state is, under this section, liable for the costs of an action authorized by act of the General Assembly and prosecuted in its name by the solicitor, and judgment may be rendered in such action against the state for such costs. Blount v. Simmons, 119 N. C. 50, 25 S. E. 789.

States Recover Costs.—In an action in the United States Supreme Court between states, the successful state may ask for costs or note as it sees fit. Missouri v. Illinois, 202 U. S. 598, 50 L. Ed. 1160.

Application to Legislature for Payment.—In an article, entitled Jurisdiction of The North Carolina Supreme Court, 5 N. C. Law Rev. 1, 9, the following appears: "Costs of action as a claim. While the State may be sued only in the Supreme Court, it may sue in any court having jurisdiction over the cause of action, and the cost of such litigation may be taxed against the state as in case of private litigants. Such costs, however, do not constitute a claim against the State as contemplated in the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, but are only incidental to the right to sue. The court in which the action is brought adjudicates the costs, and the parties interested should apply to the Legislature for payment." Citing this section. Miller v. State, 134 N. C. 270, 46 S. E. 514; Garner v. Worth, 122 N. C. 250, 29 S. E. 364; Blount v. Simmons, supra.

Actions to Vacate Oyster-Bed Entry.—Where, in an action by the solicitor in the name of the State to vacate an oyster-bed entry, the plaintiff was nonsuited, it was error to tax the costs against the county, which was not a party to the action. Blount v. Simmons, 118 N. C. 9, 23 S. E. 923.

Under this section the state is liable for the costs of an action instituted by the state solicitor to bring an action to vacate an oyster-bed entry. In such case, it seems that the persons making the affidavit might be held liable as relators if it should appear that the action was for their benefit at their instance. Blount v. Simmons, 120 N. C. 19, 26 S. E. 649.

Where the proceedings for disbarment of an attorney under § 214 has not been sustained the costs are taxable against the State under the provisions of this section, and an order erroneously taxing them against the county in which the matter was tried will be vacated. Committee on Grievances of Bar Ass'n v. Strickland, 201 N. C. 619, 161 S. E. 76.

§ 1237. Civil action by and against state officers.—In all actions depending, or which may be instituted, by any of the officers of the state, or which have been or shall be instituted against them, when any such action is brought or defended pursuant to the advice of the attorney-general, and the same is decided against such officers, the cost thereof shall be paid by the state treasurer upon the warrant of the auditor for the amount thereof as taxed. (Rev., s. 1260; Code, s. 3373; 1874-5, c. 154.)

§ 1238. Actions by state for private persons, etc.—In an action prosecuted in the name of the state for the recovery of money or property, or to establish a right or claim for the benefit of any county, city, town, village, corporation or person, costs awarded against the plaintiff shall be a charge against the party for whose benefit the action was prosecuted, and not against the state. (Rev., s. 1261; Code, s. 537.)

§ 1239. Costs of county in certain bribery prosecutions to be a charge against state.—The expenses incurred by any county in investigating and prosecuting any charge of bribery or attempt to bribe any state officer or member of the general assembly within said county, and of receiving bribes by any state officer or member of the general assembly in said county, shall be a charge against the state, and the properly attested claim of the county commissioners shall be paid by the treasurer of the state. (Rev., s. 1262; Code, s. 742; 1868-9, c. 176, s. 6; 1874-5, c. 5.)

§ 1240. On appeal by state to supreme court of United States.—In all cases, whether civil or criminal, to which the state of North Carolina is a party, and which are carried from the courts of this state, or from the district court of the United States, by appeal or writ of error, to the United States circuit court of appeals, or to the supreme court of the United States, and the state is adjudged to pay the costs, it is the duty of the attorney-general to certify the amount of such costs to the auditor, who shall thereupon issue a warrant for the same, directed to the treasurer, who shall pay the same out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. (Rev., s. 1263; Code, s. 538; 1871-2, c. 26.)

Art. 3. Civil Actions and Proceedings

§ 1241. Costs allowed plaintiff; limited by recovery; several suits on one instrument.—Costs shall be allowed of course to the plaintiff, upon a recovery, in the following cases:

1. In an action for the recovery of real property, or when a claim of title to real property arises on the pleadings, or is certified by the court to have come in question at the trial.

2. In an action to recover the possession of personal property.

3. In actions of which a court of a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction, unless otherwise provided by law.

4. In an action for assault, battery, false imprisonment, libel, slander, malicious prosecution, criminal conversation or seduction, if the plaintiff recovers less than fifty dollars damages, he shall recover no more costs than damages.

5. When several actions are brought on one bond, recognizance, promissory note, bill of exchange or instrument in writing, or in any other case, for the same cause of action against several parties who might have been joined as defendants in the same action, no costs other than disbursements shall be allowed to the plaintiff in more than one of such actions, which shall be at his election, provided the party or parties proceeded against in such other action or actions were within the state and not secreted at the commencement of the previous action or actions. (Rev., s. 1264; Code, s. 525; 1874-5, c. 119; R. C., c. 31, s. 78.)

I. In General.
II. Actions for Recovery of Real Property, etc.
III. Recovery of Personalty.
IV. When Justice Has No Jurisdiction.
V. No More Recovery of Costs than Damages.

I. IN GENERAL.

Meaning of Recovery.—The recovery referred to in this section is a final determination upon the merits, and success in the Supreme Court is by no means equivalent to a recovery in the court below. Williams v. Hughes, 139 N. C. 17, 18, 51 S. E. 790.

Also a recovery within the meaning of the section cannot be predicated of anything coming to the plaintiff which was not in the contemplation of the plaintiff when he filed his complaint, and especially of a thing to which he virtually disclaimed any right or title. Patterson v. Ramsey, 136 N. C. 561, 564, 48 S. E. 811.

In order to determine who should pay the costs, the general result must be considered and inquiry made as to who has, in the view of the law, succeeded in the action. Patterson v. Ramsey, 136 N. C. 561, 564, 48 S. E. 811.

Partial Recovery.—There is no provision that limits the allowance of costs in favor of the plaintiff in case of only a partial recovery. The language of the statute as to them is comprehensive and without exceptive provision. In Wall v. Covington, 76 N. C. 150, it was held that no part of the costs in such actions can be taxed against the party recovering. And in Horton v. Horne, 99 N. C. 219, 5 S. E. 927, it was decided in an action to recover personal property, that if the plaintiff establishes his title to only a portion of the property delivered to him under claim and delivery proceedings, he will be entitled to costs. Wooten v. Walters. 110 N. C. 251, 258, 14 S. E. 734, 736; Ferrabow v. Green, 110 N. C. 414, 14 S. E. 973; Kinston Cotton Mills v. Rocky Mount Hosiery Co., 154 N. C. 462, 70 S. E. 910.

Where the plaintiff is entitled to nominal damages, such damages will carry with it the cost under this section. Wilson v. Forbes, 13 N. C. 30; Britton v. Ruffin, 123 N. C. 67, 70, 21 S. E. 271.

Section Qualified by Section 103.—Where the action is not of such a nature that it falls within any of the subdivisions of this section or of the following section, it comes within the terms and is included by section 1243. Parton v. Boyd, 104 N. C. 422, 10 S. E. 490; Yates v. Yates, 170 N. C. 533, 87 S. E. 317. All these sections are, however, subject to the exception as to when costs are allowed against an administrator as stated in section 103. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 206, 207, 50 S. E. 630.

Action by Executor.—Where the action involves the question as to the recovery of a portion of the estate of a deceased person, and judgment is rendered in favor of the executor, the plaintiff, he is entitled to a judgment for costs under this section. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 144 S. E. 526.

II. ACTIONS FOR RECOVERY OF REAL PROPERTY, ETC.

Common Law Rule.—This subdivision of the section in this respect is in affirmance of the principle established before its enactment. Moore v. Angel, 116 N. C. 843, 846, 21 S. E. 699.

Partial Recovery.—Applying the general rule as to partial recovery, which is set out under the preceding analysis line, it is held that where the plaintiff is adjudged entitled to a part of the land sued for, whether such land is a portion of one tract or is one of several tracts for which the action is brought, then the plaintiff is exonerated as to costs and no part thereof should be found against him. Vanderbilt v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 370, 54 S. E. 298; Moore v. Angel, 116 N. C. 843, 21 S. E. 699; Ferrabow v. Green, 110 N. C. 414, 14 S. E. 973; Field v. Wheeler, 120 N. C. 264, 26 S. E. 812. See also Staley v. Staley, 174 N. C. 640, 94 S. E. 407.

Where the plaintiff has been required to introduce evidence of his title to the whole of the locus in quo, and then the defendant consents that the court charge the jury to find for the plaintiff if they believe the evidence as to a certain part, and the issue is found for the defendant as to the remaining land, the costs of the action are properly awarded against the defendant. Swain v. Clemons, 175 N. C. 240, 95 S. E. 489.

When There is More than One Issue.—In an action of trespass to real property, where the plaintiff's title and the fact of trespass are both put in issue by the defendant's answer, and the jury find the issue as to the title in favor of the plaintiff, and the issue as to the trespass in favor of the defendant, the defendant is entitled to judgment for costs. To entitle the plaintiff to recover costs, both issues must be found in his favor. Murray v. Spencer, 92 N. C. 264.

Persons Severally Sued.—In the case of several persons, severally bound, and severally sued, until one has actually made satisfaction all are liable to make it, and costs may be allowed in all suits, though only one satisfaction can be recovered. See Larin v. Morris, 2 Dall. 115, 1 L. Ed. 312.

Actions to Recover Both Realty and Personalty.—Under this section the plaintiff in an action to recover both real and personal property is entitled to recover costs, although he only recovers the real property. Wooten v. Walters, 110 N. C. 251, 14 S. E. 734.

Equitable Defense.—One who successfully maintains an equitable defense against the recovery of land on the bare legal title is entitled to judgment for his costs. Vestal v. Sloan, 83 N. C. 555.

Necessity for Disclaimer.—A defendant in an action concerning land should enter a disclaimer if he does not claim the land in controversy, or does not intend to litigate with the plaintiff, in order to escape the payment of costs. Swain v. Clemmons, 175 N. C. 240, 95 S. E. 489.

This rule is forcibly illustrated by the case of Moore v. Angel, 116 N. C. 843, 21 S. E. 699, where, in an action in trespass, the defendant failed to disclaim title to all the land declared for by plaintiff, but recovered according to the boundaries set up in his answer, with a greater amount for damages on his counterclaim than was allowed the plaintiff, and the plaintiff was nevertheless held entitled to costs.

But if the defendant disclaims title to all the land declared for, except that for which he proves his right, no issue as to the plaintiff's title will arise, and the findings that the defendant's title, disputed by the plaintiff, is good and that the defendant has sustained greater damages than his adversary, upon both necessarily, perhaps on either, will entitle the defendant to costs. Moore v. Angel, 116 N. C. 843, 846, 21 S. E. 699.

So in ejectment, where the defendant denies the right to possession and denies that the plaintiff holds the title in trust for him, and judgment is rendered that the defendant is entitled to the land upon payment of an amount found due the plaintiff, no part of the cost is taxable against the defendant. Patterson v. Ramsey, 136 N. C. 561, 48 S. E. 811.

It would seem that in order to escape potential liability for costs the defendant must enter his disclaimer of all the lands declared for, and that a disclaimer of half the locus in quo will not suffice to enable him to escape upon the unfavorable adjudication of the other half. See In re Hurley, 185 N. C. 422, 117 S. E. 345.

Liability of Intervener.—Where the defendant intervenes in an action to recover real property and files a joint answer with his co-defendant, and makes a joint defense, the plaintiff is entitled to the costs under this subdivision of the section. Having joined in the controversy, and made common cause in the defense, interveners must abide the result. Spruill v. Arrington, 109 N. C. 192, 196, 13 S. E. 779. See also Willis v. Coleburn, 169 N. C. 670, 86 S. E. 596.

Bill of Interpleader.—The U. S. Supreme Court in Spring v. South Carolina Ins. Co., 8 Wheat. 268, 5 L. Ed. 614, held that on a bill of interpleader, the plaintiffs are, in general, entitled to their costs out of the fund.

III. RECOVERY OF PERSONALTY.

Partial Recovery.—There is no exception to the partial recovery rule (see ante, this note, "In General" I) when the action is for the recovery of personalty, and when the plaintiff establishes title to any part of the property sued for, he is entitled to judgment for costs. Wooten v. Walters, 110 N. C. 251, 258, 14 S. E. 374; Field v. Wheeler, 120 N. C. 264, 26 S. E. 812. This is not the case where some of the defendants recover judgment, in which case, of course, they recover costs. Phillips v. Little, 147 N. C. 282, 283, 61 S. E. 49.

As an example of the application of this rule to claims for personal property it has been held that the plaintiff on being adjudged entitled to only a portion of a crop in a suit for claim and delivery was entitled to costs. Field v. Wheeler, 120 N. C. 264, 26 S. E. 812, and cases cited.

Claim and Delivery.—Judgment in an action of claim and delivery carries all costs under this section. Rawlings v. Neal, 126 N. C. 271, 35 S. E. 597.

Right to Possession Determines.—Where the controversy is made to depend upon the right of the mechanic to repossess an automobile that he has repaired, in order that he may enforce his lien thereon, and the jury has found in the plaintiff's favor upon determinative issues, but in the defendant's favor upon an issue of fraud, the question of taxing the cost does not depend upon the finding of the jury upon the issue of the defendant's fraud, and the plaintiff, having established his right to the possession, is entitled to recover the costs, under this section. Maxton Auto Co. v. Rudd, 176 N. C. 497, 97 S. E. 477.

IV. WHEN JUSTICE HAS NO JURISDICTION.

Construed with Sections 1264 and 1266.—The meaning of this subdivision of the section when considered in connection with section 1243, is not clear, nor has it ever been fully and satisfactorily interpreted; but in many well considered decisions of the court it has been held to be the correct construction of these sections that, in actions which under the old system were peculiarly cognizable in courts of equity and unless coming in the class of actions specified in sections 1264 and 1266, in which the plaintiff and defendant who succeed in the controversies were to recover costs as of course, that the costs could be awarded in the discretion of the court under the provisions of section 1267. Yates v. Yates, 170 N. C. 533, 535, 87 S. E. 317.

Application.—A justice has no cognizance of an action brought for the purpose of subjecting land to the payment of intestate's debts, Williams v. Hughs, 139 N. C. 17, 51 S. E. 790, consequently, such an action is controlled by this subdivision of the section; and a stakeholder who demurs to the complaint, has guardians ad litem appointed, etc., is liable for the costs. Van Dyke v. Ins. Co., 174 N. C. 78, 93 S. E. 444.

V. NO MORE RECOVERY OF COSTS THAN DAMAGES.

In a civil action, if the provocation is great, the jury will usually see fit to return nominal or small damages, and if the amount is less than fifty dollars the plaintiff, under this section, recovers no more costs than damages. Palmer v. Winston-Salem R., etc., Co., 131 N. C. 250, 251, 42 S. E. 604. The subsection was applied where the recovery for slander was less than fifty dollars in Smith v. Myers, 188 N. C. 551, 125 S. E. 178. And again when one dollar damages were sustained by the erection of a mill. See Bridgers v. Purcell, 23 N. C. 232. The former rule as to slander is stated in Coates v. Stephenson, 52 N. C. 124 where it was held that the costs of the plaintiff, under R. C. c. 31, section 78, could not be taxed against the defendant.

For a case where an instructed verdict for one penny damages and one penny costs, under this section, was held erroneous because actual and not nominal damage was shown, see Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

§ 1242. Costs allowed to defendant. — Costs shall be allowed as of course to the defendant, in the actions mentioned in the preceding section, unless the plaintiff be entitled to costs therein. In all actions where there are several defendants not united in interest, and making separate defenses by separate answers, and the plaintiff fails to recover judgment against all, the court may award costs to such of the defendants as have judgment in their favor or any of them. (Rev., s. 1266; Code, ss. 526, 527; C. C. P., s. 277.)

Editor's Note.—As this section provides that costs shall be allowed to the defendant in the actions mentioned in the preceding section, unless the plaintiff is entitled to recover thereon, the constructions of the preceding section determining when the plaintiff is entitled to recover, are necessarily constructions of this section. Reference should be made to section 1241 in all instances.

Applications.—Where the plaintiff fails in an action upon a covenant the defendant recovers costs under this section, Britton v. Ruffin, 123 N. C. 67, 71, 31 S. E. 271.

Costs were properly awarded to the grantee in a deed in an unsuccessful action to set aside such deed. Brisco v. Co. v. Norris, 112 N. C. 671, 16 S. E. 850.

§ 1243. Costs allowed or not, in discretion of court.—In other actions, costs may be allowed or not, in the discretion of the court, unless otherwise provided by law. (Rev., s. 1267; Code, s. 527.)

See 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 660.

Editor's Note.—This section as it appeared in the Code of 1883 contained a substantial repetition of the provision now appearing in section 1256 (i. e. as to costs on appeal). The cases pertaining to this subject will be found in the notes to section 1256.

The purpose of this provision is to give the court authority to allow costs, as the justice of the case may require. Gulley v. Macy, 89 N. C. 343; Parton v. Boyd, 104 N. C. 422, 423, 10 S. E. 490.

Exercise of Discretion Presumed.—Nothing to the contrary appearing, it will be taken that the court gave judgment in the exercise of its discretion as provided in this section. Gulley v. Macy, 89 N. C. 343; Wooten v. Walters, 110 N. C. 251, 259, 14 S. E. 734, 736.

In equity there was a broad discretion on the subject of costs, Little v. Lockman, 50 N. C. 433, 434, and the allowance rested with the court. Hooper v. Davis, 166 N. C. 236, 81 S. E. 1063; Worthy v. Brower, 93 N. C. 492. And even since the abolition of the courts of equity in this State, it is held that where the case partakes of an equitable nature, the question of costs is in the court's discretion. For example in Hare v. Hare, 183 N. C. 419, 111 S. E. 620, it was held where the jury found that each party was entitled to an undivided half in land, and the appeal was from taxing the defendant with costs, there being no element of an action in ejectment, neither party was permitted to recover cost from the other, especially as the question was of an equitable nature, and the taxing of costs was, under this section, in the sound discretion of the court.

But a consolidated action, tried before the referee, in which judgments are rendered, is not an equitable proceeding, in which costs may be allowed or not, in the discretion of the court under this section. Highland Cotton Mills v. Ragan Knitting Co., 194 N. C. 80, 90.

New Trial.—See section 1256 and notes thereto.

Qualified by Section 103.—This provision is subject to the exception contained in section 103, relative to costs against a representative. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630.

Application—Creditor's Bill.—It is within the discretion of the trial court to tax the costs accruing upon either of the parties litigant, in an action in the nature of a creditor's bill, brought by material men, claiming under the statutory lien, the unpaid balance due by the owner of a dwelling, etc., to his contractor for its erection; and the action of the judge in taxing the trust funds in the owner's hands with the cost is commended in this suit. Bond v. Pickett Cotton Mills, 166 N. C. 20, 81 S. E. 936

Same—Specific Performance.—Where the purpose of an action was simply to compel the specific performance of an executory contract, and to adjust certain rights involved in an account of moneys collected and certain indebtedness incident to that contract, it was clearly within this section. Parton v. Boyd, 104 N. C. 422, 424, 10 S. E. 490.

Same—Setting Aside Proceedings of Probate Court.—Where the action is to set aside certain proceedings in the probate court, the court is vested with discretion in the matter of allowing costs, under this section: each party is ordered to pay his own and each to pay one-half of the allowance to the referee. Gulley v. Macy, 89 N. C. 343.

§ 1244. Costs allowed either party or apportioned in discretion of court.—Costs in the following matters shall be taxed against either party, or apportioned among the parties, in the discretion of the court:

1. Application for year's support, for widow or children.

2. Caveats to wills.

3. Habeas corpus; and the court shall direct what officer shall tax the costs thereof.

4. In actions for divorce or alimony; and the court may both before and after judgment make such order respecting the payment of such costs as may be incurred by the wife, either by the husband or by her from her separate estate, as may be just.

5. Application for the establishment, alteration or discontinuance of a public road, cartway or ferry. The board of road supervisors or board of county commissioners may order the costs incurred before them paid in their discretion.

6. The compensation of referees and commissioners to take depositions.

7. All costs and expenses incurred in special proceedings for the division or sale of either real estate or personal property under the chapter entitled Partition.

8. In all proceedings under the chapter entitled Drainage, except as therein otherwise provided.

9. In proceedings for reallotment of homestead for increase in value, as provided in the chapter, Civil Procedure. (Rev., s. 1268; Code, ss. 2134, 2161, 1660, 1294, 2039, 2056, 533, 1422, 1323; 1889, c. 37; 1893, c. 149, s. 6.)

Caveats to Wills.—It is within the discretionary power of a court, under this section, before which an issue of devisavit vel non is tried, to direct the payment of the costs out of the estate. Mayo v. Jones, 78 N. C. 406. See In re Hargrove, 206 N. C. 307, 313, 173 S. E. 577, for dicta on this point.

Where certain land contiguous to the lands of other devisees are devised, without direction in the will for the survey or partition or for perfecting the title, the cost of survey and registration of deeds should be borne by the devisees of the lands, and it is not a proper charge against the estate to be paid by the executor. In re Winston, 172 N. C. 270, 90 S. E. 201.

In actions for divorce the husband, whether successful or unsucessful, is liable for his own costs, and whether he shall pay the wife's costs is in all cases in the discretion of the court. Broom v. Broom, 130 N. C. 562, 565, 41 S. E. 673.

Allowance to Referee.—Originally, under the Code of 1883, secs. 533, referees' fees were taxed, like other costs, against the losing party, but by amendment (Laws 1889, ch. 37) the court was authorized to apportion them in its discretion. Cobb v. Rhea, 137 N. C. 295, 297, 49 S. E. 161.

Same—Analogy to Allowance to Receivers.—The allowance to the receiver is a part of the costs of the action, and usually taxable against the losing party. Whether the receiver's fees should be divided is a matter in the discretion of the presiding judge, as is now the case also with referees' fees. Simmons v. Allison, 119 N. C. 556, 564, 26 S. E. 171.

Same—Not Precluded by Former Judgment.—A former judgment, Horner v. Oxford Water, etc., Co., 69 S. E. 607, (153 N. C. 535), appealed from and affirmed by the Supreme Court, "that the defendants do recover against the plaintiff and the surety on his prosecution bond the costs of this action," does not preclude a subsequent trial judge from taxing the cost of reference "against either party or apportioning it among the parties in his discretion" under this section. Horner v. Oxford Water & Electric Co., 156 N. C. 494, 72 S. E. 624.

Cost in Partition.—The taxing of costs among the parties to proceedings to partition land is left in the discretion of the court, and will not be reviewed on appeal. Fortune v. Hunt, 152 N. C. 715, 68 S. E. 213.

In proceedings to partition lands held in common among the heirs at law of the deceased, including the question of dower and the claim of the widow to be allowed a certain fee-simple interest by contract, the court is without authority to allow attorneys' fees as a part of the costs, the same not being included in this section. The case differentiated from those wherein the employment of counsel was found necessary to protect the rights of infants represented by guardian in litigation, and other analogous cases. Regan v. Regan, 186 N. C. 461, 119 S. E. 882.

Stated in Perry v. Pulley, 206 N. C. 701, 704, 175 S. E. 89.

§ 1245. Petitioner to pay costs in certain cases.—The petitioner shall pay the costs in the following proceedings:

1. In petitions for draining or damming lowlands.

2. In petitions for condemnation of water millsites when the petitioner is allowed to erect the mill; but when he is not allowed to erect the mill, the costs shall be paid by the person who is allowed to do so.

3. In petitions for condemnation of land for railroads, street railways, telegraph, telephone or electric power or light companies, or for water supplies for public institutions, or for the use of other quasi-public or municipal corporations; unless in the opinion of the superior court the defendant improperly refused the privilege, use or easement demanded, in which case the costs must be adjudged as to the court may appear equitable and just.

4. When the petition is refused. (Rev., s. 1269; Code, ss. 1299, 1855, 2013; 1893, c. 63; 1903, c. 562.)

§ 1246. Defendant unreasonably defending after notice of no personal claim to pay costs.—In case of a defendant, against whom no personal claim is made, the plaintiff may deliver to such defendant with the summons, a notice subscribed by the plaintiff or his attorney, setting forth the general object of the action, a brief description of the property affected by it, if it affects real or personal property, and that no personal claim is made against such defendant. If a defendant on whom such notice is served unreasonably defends the action, he shall pay costs to the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 1270; Code, s. 216.)

Condemnation Proceedings.—In proceedings brought by a railroad where it was found by the jury on appeal that the defendant's benefit exceeded his damages and then found they were equal, it was held that the plaintiff was taxable with costs up to the time of appeal. Madison County R. Co. v. Gahagan, 161 N. C. 190, 76 S. E. 696.

§ 1247. Suits in forma pauperis, no costs unless recovery.—When any person sues as a pauper, no officer shall require of him any fee, and he shall recover no costs, except in case of recovery by him. (Rev., s. 1265; Code, s. 212; 1895, c. 149; 1868-9, c. 96, s. 3.)

As to when suits in forma pauperis permitted, see section 494 and notes thereto. For full treatment of this subject, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 707.

Leave to Sue.—The leave to sue as a pauper, does not extend in civil actions beyond the trial in the Superior Court. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 26 S. E. 160. As to appeal see sec. 649 and notes thereto.

Costs of Witnesses.—One suing in forma pauperis is not entitled to recover costs of his witnesses. Draper v. Buxton, 90 N. C. 182. Nor does the section excuse the pauper from liability for his witnesses. Bailey v. Brown, 105 N. C. 127, 129, 10 S. E. 1054.

This provision, in terms, deprives all officers of costs, and the last clause of it is very sweeping, and manifestly embraces the costs of witnesses. Compensation to witnesses is part of the cost of an action, as much so as any other statutory charges in and about the same. Hall v. Younts, 87 N. C. 285; Booshee v. Surles, 85 N. C. 90; Draper v. Buxton, 90 N. C. 182, 185.

The Act of 1868-'69, ch. 96, sec. 3, amending the section ameliorates the rigors of the pre-existing law in regard to witnesses, who are not compelled to attend for more than one day, if the party summoning shall on presentation of the certificate of such attendance fail to pay what may be then due them. Booshee v. Surles, 85 N. C. 90, 92.

§ 1248. Party seeking recovery on usurious contracts, no costs.—No costs shall be recovered by any party, whether plaintiff or defendant, who may endeavor to recover upon any usurious contract. (Rev., s. 1271; 1895, c. 69.)

As to usury generally, see sections 2305, 2306.

§ 1249. Costs in special proceedings.—The costs in special proceedings shall be as allowed in civil actions, unless otherwise specially provided. (Rev., s. 1272; Code, s. 541.)

§ 1250. Fees and disbursements in supplemental proceedings.—The court or judge may allow to the judgment creditor, or to any party examined in proceedings supplemental to execution, whether a party to the action or not, witnesses' fees and disbursements. (Rev., s. 1273; Code, s. 499; C. C. P., s. 273.)

§ 1251. Costs of laying off homestead and exemption.—The costs and expenses of appraising and laying off the homestead or personal property exemptions, when the same is made under execution, shall be charged and included in the officer's bill of fees upon such execution or other final process; and when made upon the petition of the owner, they shall be paid by such owner, and the latter costs shall be a lien on said homestead. (Rev., s. 1274; Code, s. 510.)

As to appraisal and laying off homestead and personal property exemptions, see sections 731, 737.

Payment of Fees as Condition.—Where the judgment debtor claims his personal property from execution, the sheriff is justified in refusing to proceed further till such exemptions are properly set apart, and the payment of his fees for the purpose by the plaintiff in the action, except when the suit is brought in forma pauperis. Whitmore-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 95 S. E. 38.

Applied in Beavans v. Goodrich, 98 N. C. 217, 220, 3 S. E. 516; Long v. Walker, 105 N. C. 90, 10 S. E. 658.

§ 1252. Costs of reassessment of homestead.—If the superior court at term shall confirm the appraisal or assessment, or shall increase the exemption allowed the debtor or claimant, the levy shall stand only upon the excess remaining, and the creditor shall pay all the costs of the proceeding in court. If the amount allowed the debtor or claimant is reduced, the costs of the proceeding in court shall be paid by the debtor or claimant, and the levy shall cover the excess then remaining. (Rev., s. 1275; Code, s. 521.)

As to reassessment of homestead, see section 740.

Applied in Beavans v. Goodrich, 98 N. C. 217, 220, 3 S. E. 516.

§ 1253. Costs against infant plaintiff; guardian responsible.—When costs are adjudged against an infant plaintiff, the guardian by whom he appeared in the action shall be responsible therefor. (Rev., s. 1276; Code, s. 534.)

§ 1254. Costs where executor, administrator, trustee of express trust, or person authorized by statute a party.—In an action prosecuted or defended by an executor, administrator, trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, costs shall be recovered as in an action by and against a person prosecuting or defending in his own right; but such costs shall be chargeable only upon or collected out of the estate, fund or party represented, unless the court directs the same to be paid by the plaintiff or defendant, personally, for mismanagement or bad faith in such action or defense. And when any claim against a deceased person is referred, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover the fees of referees and witnesses, and other necessary disbursements, to be taxed according to law. (Rev., s. 1277; Code, s. 535.)

See 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 695 et seq.

When Fiduciary Personally Liable. — By virtue of this section costs should be taxed against the estate in the hands of a trustee, and not against him personally, except when the court adjudges that the trustee has been guilty of mismanagement, or bad faith, in such action or defense. Smith v. King, 107 N. C. 273, 278, 12 S. E. 57; Sugg v. Bernard, 122 N. C. 155, 29 S. E. 221; Lance v. Russell, 65 N. C. 626, 81 S. E. 922.

The same rule is applied to actions against administrators and executors. State v. Roberts, 106 N. C. 662, 19 S. E. 900; Varner v. Johnston, 112 N. C. 570, 577, 17 S. E. 483, with the additional limitation prescribed by section 103. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630. See section 103 and the notes thereto.

Includes Next Friend.—While "next friends" may not be embraced in the strict letter of this section, they come within its purview. Smith v. Smith, 108 N. C. 365, 369, 12 S. E. 1045, 13 S. E. 113. And it is error to tax "next friends" who are not parties without a finding of mismanagement or bad faith. Hockoday v. Lawrence, 156 N. C. 319, 322, 72 S. E. 387.

Allowance to Trustee.—A trustee, as against those for whose benefit the trust is created, will be allowed to apply so much of the funds to the payment of costs and expenses, including counsel fees, as may be necessary to protect it, but he will not be allowed such disbursements against one who establishes an adverse title to the property. Chemical Company v. Johnson, 101 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. 770, 775.

Cited in In re Hargrove, 206 N. C. 307, 313, 173 S. E. 577.

§ 1255. Costs against assignee after action brought.—In actions in which the cause of action becomes by assignment after the commencement of the action, or in any other manner, the property of a person not a party to the action, such person shall be liable for the costs in the same manner as if he were a party. (Rev., s. 1278; Code, s. 539.)

See 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 698.

Absolute Assignments.—Cases have been decided in which it is held that the assignments contemplated by this section are only such as are absolute, and that such as are intended to be a collateral security only for a continuing obligation or claim are not within the purview of this act.

Thus, it has been held that an assignee could not be subjected to the payment of the costs incurred when the transfer was, as a collateral security, of a right to damages for an assault on the person of the assignor then in process of enforcement. Wolcott v. Holcomb, 31 N. Y. 125—of judgments. Peck v. Yorks, 75 N. Y. 421—of a demand under the mechanics' lien law; In the matter of the lien of R. H. Dowling, 52 N. Y. 658. Davis v. Higgins, 92 N. C. 203.

Art. 4. Costs on Appeal

pealed from which he has paid under the erroneous judgment of such court. If in any court of appeal there is judgment for a new trial, or for a new jury, or if the judgment appealed from is not wholly reversed, but partly affirmed and partly disaffirmed, the costs shall be in the discretion of the appellate court. (Rev., s. 1279; Code, s. 540.)

For comprehensive treatment of this subject, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 730 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 513 et seq.

As to appeals from adjudications taxing costs, see the notes to section 638.

In General.—The first part of this section manifestly refers not only to a reversal of the judgment below, but to a judgment in favor of the appellant on the merits and not merely to an order for a new trial. Ellert v. Kelly, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 12. The trial court can not ordinarily tax the costs of an action in favor of either party unless there is a judgment, costs being an incident of the judgment. What is said by the court in Dobson v. R. R., 133 N. C. 626, refers to the latter branch of this section. Williams v. Hughes, 139 N. C. 17, 19, 51 S. E. 790.

New Trial. — Where a new trial is granted, the awarding of costs is discretionary. Universal Metal Co. v. Durham R. Co., 145 N. C. 293, 299, 59 S. E. 50.

When the new trial is on the ground of newly discovered evidence, the costs of the appellate court should always fall upon the party obtaining the new trial, and unless in exceptional cases and for special reasons, since the other party is in no laches, as is shown by its having obtained the judgment below This is also a wholesome rule of practice, as new trials on this ground are outside of the regular course and are only granted, in discretion, when justice requires a departure from the usual procedure. By analogy, when a continuance is asked for on the ground of newly discovered evidence, the statute expressly forbids it to be granted except upon payment of the costs of the term. Herndon v. North Carolina R. Co., 121 N. C. 498, 500, 28 S. E. 144; Ladd v. Ladd, 121 N. C. 118, 28 S. E. 890.

When both parties are entitled to a new trial, each will pay his own costs in the Supreme Court. Ladd v. Ladd, 121 N. C. 118, 121, 28 S. E. 190.

The taxing of the costs on appeal, by partial new trial being granted, is in the discretion of the court. Satterthwaite v. Goodyear, 137 N. C. 302, 49 S. E. 205.

Appeal from Justice's Court. — On an appeal from the court of a justice of the peace to the superior court, the trial in the superior court is de novo, and its costs in both courts are required, by this section and section 661 applicable, to be taxed against the unsuccessful party, or, as in this case, upon a judgment in the plaintiff's favor for the difference between the amount of her demand over that allowed upon the defendant's counterclaim set up by way of answer. Ritchie v. Ritchie, 192 N. C. 538, 135 S. E. 458.

Where the subject-matter of the action is destroyed before the appeal is heard, the judgment below is presumed to be correct until reversed, and no part of the costs should be adjudged against the appellee. Taylor v. Vann, 127 N. C. 243, 37 S. E. 263.

Reversal Necessary to Tax Appellant.—Unless the court upon the merit reverses the judgment below, it can not adjudge any part of the costs against the appellee. Commissioners v. Gill, 126 N. C. 86, 87, 35 S. E. 228.

Partial Affirmance and Partial Reversal. — Where the judgment appealed from is partly affirmed and partly reversed, in the exercise of the discretion permitted by this section, the costs in the Supreme Court may be divided so that each party pays his own costs. Smith v. Building and Loan Asssociation, 119 N. C. 249, 26 S. E. 41; Hawkins v. Cedar Works, 122 N. C. 87, 30 S. E. 13.

Under this section, where the appellant was awarded a partial new trial only, as to one issue only out of several, the costs of the appeal are in the discretion of the court. Rayburn v. Casualty Co., 142 N. C. 376, 55 S. E. 296.

In Mclean v. Breece, 113 N. C. 390, 393, 18 S. E. 694, where the judgment was modified in the Supreme Court the costs were taxed against the appellee. And where the plaintiffs recovered a part judgment on their demand, by establishing a mechanic's lien, they were entitled to costs of appeal. See Hogsed v. Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 529, 87 S. E. 337.

Case Remanded.—Where an appellant fails to show that he was prejudiced by the order appealed from, he may be taxed with the costs of the appeal, though the case be remanded. Harrington v. Rawls, 136 N. C. 65, 48 S. E. 571.

Applied Kincaid v. Graham, 92 N. C. 154.

§ 1257. Costs of transcript on appeal taxed in supreme court.—When an appeal is taken from the superior court to the supreme court, the clerk of the superior court, when he sends up the transcript, shall send therewith an itemized statement of the costs of making up the transcript on appeal, and the costs thereof shall be taxed as a part of the costs of the supreme court. (Rev., s. 1280; 1905, c. 456.)

For full treatment of expenses of record, abstracts, or transcripts, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 737 et seq; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 515 et seq.

Former Rule.—Prior to the enactment of this section, it was held that the successful party on appeal from the superior court was entitled to recover back the costs of the transcript and certificate, though subsequently final judgment is rendered in the lower court against him. Dobson v. Southern R. Co., 133 N. C. 624, 45 S. E. 958.

Unnecessary Matter.—The Supreme Court has always held that the cost of printing unnecessary matter may be taxed against the party causing it to be sent up, regardless of the issue of the appeal. Wilson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 333, 55 S. E. 257; Yow v. Hamilton, 136 N. C. 357, 48 S. E. 782; Finch v. Strickland, 130 N. C. 44, 40 S. E. 841. (For other cases substantiating this statement see, 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 515.)

Especially is this so where the party has insisted on unnecessary matter being incorporated against the objection of the other party. See Roanoke R., etc., Co. v. Privette, 179 N. C. 1, 101 S. E. 489, and cases cited. This case in deciding what are necessary matters cites 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. (Michie's) pp. 739-741.

§ 1258. Costs on appeal from justices of the peace.—1. After an appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace is filed with a clerk of a superior court, the costs in all subsequent stages shall be as herein provided for actions originally brought to the superior court. (Rev., s. 1281; Code, s. 542.)

2. If, on appeal from a justice of the peace, judgment is entered for the plaintiff, and he shall not recover on his appeal a greater sum than was recovered before the justice, besides interest accrued since the rendition of the judgment, he shall not recover the costs of the appeal, but shall be liable at the discretion of the court to pay the same. (Rev., s. 1282; Code, s. 566; R. C., c. 31, s. 106; 1794, c. 414, s. 17.)

As to advance costs on appeal, see § 3904(d).

Applied in Kincaid v. Graham, 92 N. C. 154.

Art. 5. Liability of Counties in Criminal Actions

§ 1259. County to pay costs in certain cases; if approved, audited and adjudged.—If there is no prosecutor in a criminal action, and the defendant is acquitted, or convicted and unable to pay the costs, or a nolle prosequi is entered, or judgment arrested, the county shall pay the clerks, sheriffs, constables, justices and witnesses one-half their lawful fees; except in capital cases and in prosecutions for forgery, perjury, or conspiracy, when they shall receive full fees. No county shall pay any such costs unless the same is approved, audited and adjudged against the county as provided in this chapter: Provided, that in Hertford County clerks, sheriffs or constables, justices and witnesses shall in all cases receive full fees. In all criminal cases tried in Swain County where the defendant is convicted in superior court and sentenced to work upon the roads and/or imprisoned in the state prison, the county shall pay the clerk, sheriff, constable, justice of the peace and state's witnesses their full fees when same are legally taxed in the bill of costs as set out in this section. (Rev., s. 1283; Code, ss. 733, 739; R. C., c. 28, s. 8; R. S., c. 28, s. 12; 1933, c. 68, s. 1; 1935, c. 210.)

See 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 748; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 517.

Editor's Note.—The proviso in next to the last sentence, relating to Hertford county, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 68. The last sentence of the section relating to cases tried in Swain county was added by the 1935 amendment.

In General.—This section and secs. 1283, 1284 and 1287, collated and construed together, place it in the discretion of the presiding judge, for reasons satisfactory to him, to refuse to direct the fees of witnesses for the State or for an acquitted defendant, in whole or in part, to be paid by the county, and from his decision no appeal can be taken. State v. Hicks, 124 N. C. 829, 32 S. E. 957; State v. Ray, 122 N. C. 1095, 29 S. E. 948.

Construed with Local Law.—Where a public-local law permits the costs of a municipal court to be recovered from a county upon conviction of a criminal offense in certain instances, this provision will be construed in pari materia with this section, and the intent and meaning of the local law will be to permit a recovery of one-half the costs only. City v. Guilford County, 191 N. C. 584, 132 S. E. 558.

Solicitors Fees.—Under this section the solicitor's fees are omitted, but, under section 3891 when the party convicted is insolvent, the solicitor shall receive fees. State v. Saunders, 146 N. C. 597, 59 S. E. 695.

Nolle Prosequi Entered.—Where a nolle prosequi is entered on an indictment for homicide as to murder in the first degree, the witnesses for the State subsequently attending the trial are entitled to only half fees. Coward v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 299, 49 S. E. 207.

The clerk of the court is not entitled to any fee for entering a judgment of nolle prosequi in a criminal action. State v. Johnson, 101 N. C. 711, 8 S. E. 360.

Where on appeal to the superior court from a judgment of a justice of the peace, in a matter in which he had final jurisdiction, a nol. pros. was entered by the solicitor, it was error to tax the county with the costs accrued in the superior court. State v. Shuffler, 119 N. C. 867, 26 S. E. 94.

Defendant Unable to Pay Costs.—To tax a county with the costs in a criminal action where the defendant is convicted, the trial judge must find that the defendant is unable to pay the costs. Coward v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 299, 49 S. E. 207.

Subpoena of Witnesses.—For the attendance of a witness to be taxed as a part of the cost against the losing party to a civil action, or against the county in a criminal action, it is necessary that he should have been legally subpoenaed or lawfully recognized to attend. State v. Means, 175 N. C. 820, 95 S. E. 912.

Where Grand Jury Returns "Not a True Bill."—A county can not be taxed, under this section of the Code, with any part of the fees of the clerk or other officers in criminal actions if the grand jury returns "not a true bill." Guilford v. Board of Comm'rs, 120 N. C. 23, 27 S. E. 94.

Appeal without Bond.—There being no statute authorizing it, the officers of this court are not entitled to collect from a county the costs accruing in this court on appeal in a criminal case when the defendant was allowed to appeal without bond and without an order allowing him to appeal in forma pauperis and is insolvent. Clerk's Office v. Board of Comm'rs, 121 N. C. 29, 27 S. E. 1003.

Service on Public Roads.—Under this section the county (except New Hanover County under the next section) is liable for the payment of full fees where the defendant is convicted and serves out a sentence on the public roads. State v. Saunders, 146 N. C. 597, 59 S. E. 695.

Applied in State v. Horne, 119 N. C. 853, 855, 26 S. E. 36.

§ 1260. Local modification as to counties paying costs.—In the following counties the county shall pay one-half the fees specified when "not a true bill" is found: Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Bertie, Brunswick, Burke, Caldwell, Caswell, Catawba, Chatham, Clay, Craven, Davie, Duplin, Gaston, Granville, Greene, Guilford, Haywood, Henderson, Iredell, Jackson, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Lincoln, Macon, Madison, McDowell, Mecklenburg, Mitchell, Montgomery, Northampton, Onslow, Orange, Pamlico, Pender, Person, Pitt, Polk, Richmond, Robeson, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Scotland, Stanly, Stokes, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Wake, Watauga, Wilkes, Yadkin, Yansey. (Rev., s. 1283; Code, ss. 733, 739; 1907, cc. 94, 162, 208, 606, 627, 695; 1909, cc. 50, 107; P. L. 1911, cc. 76, 167; P. L. 1915, c. 22; 1931, cc. 135, 187; 1933, c. 366.

In Bladen County, where in a criminal proceeding before the grand jury a "true bill" is not found, the county shall pay one-half fees to clerks, sheriffs, officers, or constables who served any process in such proceeding. (1909, c. 183.)

In Brunswick and Catawba counties the county shall not be liable for any part of the costs of justices of the peace, when "not a true bill" is found. (Rev., s. 1283; 1905, c. 598; 1909, c. 107.)

In Montgomery County, in criminal cases, where the defendant is convicted in superior court, justices of the peace are entitled to full fees, if any are legally taxed in the bill of costs. (1909, c. 223.)

In New Hanover County, in a criminal action, if there is no prosecutor, and the defendant is convicted and serves out his sentence on the public roads of the county, the county shall pay one-half fees as provided in the first sentence of this section. (Rev., s. 1283; 1905, c. 511; 1933, c. 366.)

Editor's Note.—The Acts of 1931 added the counties of Avery and Guilford to this section.

Haywood County was added to the list of counties by Public Laws 1933, c. 366. The amendment provides that that county shall only be liable for one-half of fees to clerks, sheriffs and constables serving process.

§ 1261. Liability of county when defendant acquitted in supreme court.—If, on appeal to the supreme court in criminal actions, the defendant is successful, the county from which the appeal was taken shall pay one-half of the costs of the appeal, and all such sums as have been properly expended by the defendant for the transcript of the record and printing done under the rules of the court. (Rev., s. 1284.)

liable shall repay the same within thirty days after demand, and upon failing to do so the county to which the money is due shall be entitled to recover in the superior court, or, if the amount be within its jurisdiction, the court of justice of the peace of its own county, the amount due, with ten per cent additional, together with eight per cent interest on the sum due; and said courts of said county shall have full jurisdiction to hear, try and determine all actions and proceedings that may be brought for the purpose of enforcing the collection of the same. When the county to which such prisoner has been sent has paid the prison expenses and has made demand therefor upon the county liable as above provided and such demand be not complied with within ten days, the sheriff or jailer shall at once return such prisoner to the county from which such prisoner was sent, and deliver him to the sheriff or jailer thereof. (Rev., s. 1285; 1889, c. 354; 1901, c. 718.)

§ 1264. Statement of costs against county to be filed with commissioners.—In all criminal actions where the county is liable in whole or in part for costs, it is the duty of the clerks of the courts to make out a statement of such costs from the record or docket, within thirty days after the hearing, trial, determination, or other disposition thereof, and file the same with the board of commissioners of the county. (Rev., s. 1286; Code, s. 736; 1873-4, c. 116, s. 3.)

§ 1265. Expenses in conveying prisoner to another county; provision for payment. — When a sheriff or other officer arrests a person under a capias or other legal process, which requires him to have the person arrested before a court or judge of another county, and such sheriff or other officer is obliged to incur expense in the safe delivery of such person by reason of his failing to give bond for his appearance, or if the sheriff or other officer of the county to which the prisoner is to be carried incurs any expense in going for and conveying said prisoner to his county, then in either case the sheriff or other officer shall file with the court or judge issuing the capias or other legal process and with the register of deeds an itemized and sworn account of such expenses, which shall be presented by the register to the board of commissioners at their next regular meeting, to be audited by them. Such sworn statement shall be received by the said board as prima facie correct. Upon such auditing the board of commissioners shall cause to be issued to such sheriff or other officer an order on the county treasurer for the amount so audited and allowed by them, and shall notify the court or judge of their action, to the end that the amount so allowed shall be taxed in the costs to the use of the county. (Rev., s. 1287; 1885, c. 262; 1901, c. 64.)

§ 1266. Cost of investigating lynchings. — In all cases of investigation and trial of the crime of lynching, the entire cost incurred in the prosecution, unless paid by the person or persons convicted, shall be paid by the county wherein the crime shall have been committed. And whenever any solicitor goes to a county to investigate a crime of breaking or entering a jail for the purpose of lynching, the county where such crime is committed shall pay the solicitor the sum of one hundred dollars for making the investigation. (Rev., s. 1288; 1893, c. 461, s. 6.)

Editor's Note. — This section was originally a part of ch. 461 of the Laws of 1893; other sections of this Act pertaining to lynchings will be found as sections 4376, 4570, 4377, 4600 and 4571. It was held in State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600, that the Act of 1893 had lost none of its efficacy by splitting the same into sections and by placing these sections under the appropriate chapter headings of the Code.

§ 1266(a). Sums due credited on taxes due by payee.—Whenever a bill of costs in a criminal action is presented to any board of county commissioners in any county of the state for payment, as provided in chapter 23, article 5, of the consolidated statutes, and the said bill is ordered to be paid by the said county commissioners, it shall be the duty of the clerk of said board, before issuing any orders for payment of the sum set out in said bill, to ascertain whether any person to whom any amount is due on said bill of costs, is indebted to the county for taxes, and if said person to whom said order is payable is so indebted, the order shall state in its face, "Payable only on taxes due .....County," and upon presentation of such order to the sheriff or tax collector, said sheriff or tax collector shall give said taxpayer credit for the sum designated in said order, and the said sheriff or tax collector shall be entitled to receive credit for said sum so paid in his settlement for taxes.

It shall be unlawful for any board of county commissioners to pay to any person who is indebted to the county for taxes any money payable out of the revenues of the county on account of costs in a criminal case, which is payable by the county, except as provided in paragraph one above.

Upon the ratification of this section the secretary of state is hereby authorized and directed to forward to the clerk of the board of county commissioners of each of the several counties of the state a copy of this section. (1933, c. 245.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws of 1933, c. 501, Wilson County is exempted from the operation of this section. By Public Laws of 1933, c. 426, the same exemption is made as to Granville and Craven Counties.

The acts of 1935, Public Laws of 1935, chapter 319, sections 1 and 2, applicable only in Alamance county, directs that a provision leaving it within the discretion of the chairman of the board of commissioners as to whether or not the provisions of the section shall apply to current taxes, shall be substituted for the second paragraph of the section.

Art. 6. Liability of Defendant in Criminal Actions

§ 1267. Costs against defendant convicted, confessing, or submitting.—Every person convicted of an offense, or confessing himself guilty, or submitting to the court, shall pay the costs of prosecution. (Rev., s. 1291; Code, s. 1211; R. C., c. 35, s. 46.)

This section is cited in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 359, in a note on "Interest in Cost."

In General. — The right of the officers to recover costs in the name of the state is a mere incidental one arising out of the conviction under the provisions of this section, and the judgment for them vests the claim in the officers to whom they are due. State v. Crook, 115 N. C. 760, 765, 20 S. E. 513. The legal effect of a conviction and judgment is to vest the right to the costs in those entitled to receive them. The judgment, though nominally in the name of the state, is, in effect, in favor of those performing services in the case for which the fees are given as a compensation. State v. Mooney, 74 N. C. 98, 99.

The "costs of prosecution" are those incurred in the conduct of the prosecution, and do not include the costs incurred by the defendant in resisting the prosecution. State v. Wallin, 89 N. C. 578.

Where a defendant is taxed with the costs of prosecution, a witness, though summoned by the defendant and examined in his defence, has no right to have his ticket for attendance allowed in the bill of costs. It is a personal debt of the defendant, the payment of which the witness may enforce by suing out execution in the cause. State v. Wallin, 89 N. C. 578.

No Part of Punishment. — The order for the payment of the costs of a criminal prosecution upon a suspension of judgment does not constitute any part of the punishment; the legal effect being only to vest the right to the costs in those entitled to them. State v. Crook, 115 N. C. 760, 20 S. E. 513.

§ 1268. Defendant imprisoned not discharged until costs paid.—If the sentence be that the guilty person be imprisoned for a time certain, and that he pay the costs, there shall be added to it that he shall remain in prison, after the expiration of the fixed time for his imprisonment, until the costs shall be paid, or until he shall otherwise be discharged according to law. (Rev., s. 1292; Code, s. 905; 1868-9, c. 178.)

Costs Not Part of Punishment.—The taxing the cost in a criminal action is not a part of the punishment for the offense committed. State v. Smith, 196 N. C. 438, 146 S. E. 73.

§ 1269. Judgment confessed or bond given to secure fine and costs.—In cases where a court, mayor, or a justice of the peace permits a defendant convicted of any criminal offense to give bond or confess judgment, with sureties to secure the fine and costs which may be imposed, the acceptance of such security shall be upon the condition that it shall not operate as a discharge of the original judgment against the defendant nor as a discharge of his person from the custody of the law until the fine and costs are paid. (Rev., s. 1293; Code, s. 749; 1885, c. 364; 1879, c. 264.)

In General. — The power of the courts to suspend judgment in criminal cases should only be upheld when sanctioned by usage, and where the consent of the defendant was expressly given or would be implied from the fact that the order was made in the defendant's presence without his objection, and that its evident purpose was to save the defendant from a more grievous penalty permitted or required by law. State v. Hilton, 151 N. C. 687, 65 S. E. 1011.

Cited in State v. Smith, 196 N. C. 438, 439, 146 S. E. 73.

§ 1270. Arrest for nonpayment of fine and costs. —In default of payment of such fine and costs, it is the duty of the court at any subsequent term thereof, on motion of the solicitor of the state, to order a capias to issue to the end that such defendant may be again arrested and held for the fine and costs until discharged according to law; and a justice of the peace or mayor may at any subsequent time arrest the defendant and hold him for the fine and costs until discharged according to law. (Rev., s. 1294; Code, s. 750; 1885, c. 364; 1879, c. 264.)

Cited in State v. Smith, 196 U. C. 438, 146 S. E. 73.

Art. 7. Liability of Prosecutor for Costs

§ 1271. Prosecutor liable for costs in certain cases; court determines prosecutor.—In all criminal actions, if the defendant is acquitted, nolle prosequi entered, judgment against him arrested, or if the defendant is discharged from arrest for want of probable cause, the costs, including the fees of all witnesses summoned for the accused, whom the judge, court or justice of the peace before whom the trial took place shall certify to have been proper for the defense, shall be paid by the prosecutor, whether marked on the bill or warrant or not, whenever the judge, court or justice is of opinion that there was not reasonable ground for the prosecution, or that it was not required by the public interest. And every judge, court or justice is hereby fully authorized to determine who the prosecutor is at any stage of a criminal proceeding, whether before or after the bill of indictment has been found, or the defendant acquitted: Provided, that no person shall be made a prosecutor after the finding of the bill, unless he shall have been notified to show cause why he should not be made the prosecutor of record. (Rev., s. 1295; Code, s. 737; 1889, c. 34; R. C., c. 35, s. 37; 1799, c. 4, s. 19; 1800, c. 558; 1868-9, c. 277; 1874-5, c. 151; 1879, c. 49.)

For full treatment of this subject, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 751 etc., 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 517.

General Consideration. — This section was intended to enlarge the power of the courts over the question of costs in criminal actions. State v. Norwood, 84 N. C. 794. Its enactment was within the power of the Legislature. State v. Cannady, 78 N. C. 539.

Certifying Witnesses as Proper for Defense. — Where the court below taxed the costs of an unsuccessful prosecution against the prosecutor without finding that the defendant's witnesses were proper for the defense, as required by this section, judgment will be allowed to stand if the court below will make and certify the requisite finding that the said witnesses were proper for the defense. State v. Jones, 117 N. C. 768, 23 S. E. 247.

In State v. Owens, 87 N. C. 565, it was stated that the section includes such witnesses for the defense as are certified by the counsel to have been proper for the defense, and the Supreme Court approved that judgment. But this was not the point in the appeal, and was only incidentally presented. Also State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 880, 10 S. E. 608. In State v. Roberts, 106 N. C. 662, 10 S. E. 900, which was also a judgment taxing the prosecutor with the costs, the judge did not find and certify that the prosecution was frivolous, malicious or was not for the public good. The Supreme Court held that this judgment was erroneous, and that the statute only allowed a party to be taxed as prosecutor with the costs upon the findings of these facts. State v. Jones, 117 N. C. 768, 773, 23 S. E. 247.

See remarks of Mr. Justice Ashe upon the Act of 1875, ch. 247, and the substitution of the words 'opinion" for "certify" and "or" for "and," by the Act of 1879, in State v. Norwood, 84 N. C. 794.

Where Magistrate Has Final Jurisdiction. — As to causes of which a magistrate has final jurisdiction, when no appeal is taken from that court, it would seem, by virtue of section 3893, that the prosecutor could only have been taxed with costs when the prosecution is adjudged frivolous or malicious, while this section extended to justices' as well as other courts, the power to tax the prosecutor with costs also in cases where there was no reasonable ground for the prosecution, or it was not required by public interest. Whatever difficulty there might have been in reconciling these apparently conflicting provisions of the Code is practically removed by ch. 34, Laws of 1889, which purports to amend this section, but which, also, being later in time, must modify sec. 3893 where it conflicts with it. This Statute of 1889 applies to justices', as well as other courts, and provides that the prosecutor shall be taxed with the costs if the defendant is discharged from arrest for want of probable cause. The opinion in Merrimon v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 369, 11 S. E. 267, must be modified by adding to the instances in which the prosecutor in a case before a magistrate can be taxed with the costs, that of the defendant being discharged for want of probable cause, though it is still only when the prosecution is adjudged frivolous or malicious that any court is empowered to imprison the prosecutor for non-payment of costs. State v. Carlton, 107 N. C. 956, 958, 12 S. E. 44.

"Not Required for Public Interests."—A finding by the trial judge that a prosecution of a criminal action "was not for the public interest" is equivalent to a finding that it "was not required by the public interest." State v. Baker, 114 N. C. 812, 19 S. E. 44.

Marking Prosecutor. — Under the Code of 1854 it was held that the person to be taxed must be marked on the bill as prosecutor (see State v. Lupton, 63 N. C. 483; State

v. Darr, 63 N. C. 516) and that the court had no right to order him to be marked as such without his consent. See State v. Crosset, 81 N. C. 579, 582. But note the language of the section as it now reads, viz., "whether marked on the bill or warrant or not." Ed. Note.

Notice. — It is necessary for the trial court, in order to adjudge the prosecution of a criminal action to be frivolous and malicious and tax the costs against the prosecutors who have employed attorneys to assist the solicitor, to give the prosecutors notice of such action and hear the matter according to the "law of the land." State v. Collins, 169 N. C. 323, 84 S. E. 1049.

The object of notice is only to give the party a day in court, and it matters not how he gets the notice, if he appears and defends under it. This may be done on motion of the defendant's counsel or by the court of its own motion. State v. Hughes, 83 N. C. 665; State v. Hamilton, 106 N. C. 660, 10 S. E. 854. The court should find the facts, and when this is done the findings are not reviewable in this court. Id. State v. Roberts, 106 N. C. 662, 10 S. E. 900, and State v. Owens, 87 N. C. 565; State v. Jones, 117 N. C. 768, 772, 23 S. E. 247.

A notice to mark one as prosecutor under this section need not be writing. Where it was announced in open court, upon the calling and continuance of a state case, that a motion would be made at the next term to mark a witness as prosecutor (all the witnesses being present), and on the argument of the motion it was announced that all the parties were present, it was held to be sufficient evidence that such notice was given, and warranted the court in ordering the witness to be marked as prosecutor. State v. Norwood, 84 N. C. 794.

Insolvent Prosecutor—County Liable. — When a judge below orders an insolvent prosecutor to pay costs, and he fails or is unable to pay, the county in which the offense was committed becomes liable to pay the same. Pegram v. Commissioners, 75 N. C. 120.

Conclusiveness of Finding. — A judgment that a prosecution is frivolous and not required by the public interest, and that the prosecutor pay the costs, is conclusive and not appealable. State v. Hamilton, 106 N. C. 660, 10 S. E. 854.

The finding by the judge below that a criminal prosecution was frivolous and malicious is conclusive, and will support a judgment that the prosecutor pay costs, or in default thereof be imprisoned. State v. Lance, 109 N. C. 789, 14 S. E. 110.

But where the trial judge has dismissed a criminal action as being frivolous and malicious, and taxed the prosecutors with costs, and it appears from his findings of record that he has done so without any proper consideration of their affidavits in support of their position, and relevant to the issue, so as to deprive them of the benefits of the due process of law, his order will be set aside on appeal, leaving the matter open for proper adjudication. State v. Collins, 169 N. C. 323, 84 S. E. 1049.

In this latter case it is said: "In the disposition made of this appeal we do not intend to impair or qualify our former decisions on the subject, notably State v. Hamilton, 160 N. C. 660, 10 S. E. 854, and State v. Roberts, 106 N. C. 662, 10 S. E. 900, to the effect that, on a hearing of this character, the findings of fact by the trial judge are conclusive. In the disposition of these and like motions there must necessarily be some tribunal having the power to determine the ultimate facts on which the rights of the parties depend, and we think the cases which refer this power to the trial judge, who is present and has opportunity to personally observe and note the circumstances and attendant conditions, are grounded in good reason; but, on the facts as they appear from his honor's findings, and we think it not improper to say that he has spread them on the record with commendable candor, we are of opinion that these men, as heretofore stated, have had no proper hearing, within the meaning of the constitutional provision, and that the judgment against them must be set aside."

Applied in State v. Baker, 114 N. C. 812, 19 S. E. 145; State v. Darr, 63 N. C. 516.

Constitutionality. — This section is held constitutional. State v. Cannady, 78 N. C. 539; State v. Hamilton, 106 N. C. 660, 661, 10 S. E. 854.

Costs of prosecution against a prosecutor (upon acquittal of the accused or nolle prosequi entered), or against the accused upon a verdict of guilty, or a fine imposed, does not constitute a debt within the meaning of Article one, section sixteen, of the Constitution, and hence the defendant may be imprisoned for non-payment of the same. See notes of this case under section 1267. State v. Wallin, 89 N. C. 578.

Where Bill Ignored. — No power is conferred by this section to tax a prosecutor with costs when the bill is ignored. State v. Horton, 89 N. C. 581; State v. Cockerham, 23 N. C. 381; State v. Gates, 107 N. C. 832, 833, 12 S. E. 319.

Art. 8. Fees of Witnesses

§ 1273. Not entitled to fees in advance.—Witnesses are not entitled to receive their fees in advance; but no witness in a civil action or special proceeding, unless summoned on behalf of the state or a municipal corporation, shall be compelled to attend more than one day, if the party by or for whom he was summoned shall, after one day's attendance, on request and presentation of a certificate, fail or refuse to pay what then may be due for traveling to the place of examination and for the number of days of attendance. (Rev., s. 1298; Code, s. 1368; 1868-9, c. 279, subch. 11, s. 3.)

Cross References. — For full treatment of costs of witnesses in civil cases, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 722 et seq; for full treatment of costs of witnesses in criminal cases, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 760.

§ 1274. Witness to prove attendance; action for fees.—Every person summoned, who shall attend as a witness in any suit, shall, before the clerk of the court, or before the referee or officer taking the testimony, ascertain by his own oath or affirmation the sum due for traveling to and from court, attendance and ferriage, which shall be certified by the clerk; and on failure of the party, at whose instance such witness was summoned (witnesses for the state and municipal corporations excepted), to pay the same previous to the departure of the witness from court, such witness may at any time sue for and recover the same from the party summoning him; and the certificate of the clerk shall be sufficient evidence of the debt. Where recovery may be had before a justice of the peace on a witness ticket, the justice shall deface it by writing the word judgment, and deliver the same to the person of whom it is recovered. (Rev., s. 1299; Code, s. 1369; R. C., c. 31, s. 73; 1777, c. 115, s. 46; 1796, c. 458; 1868-9, c. 279, subch. 11, ss. 2, 4.)

In General. — Payment of witnesses by the sovereign is neither given by common law nor is it an inherent right. It is granted at the discretion of the court in the cases, and only within the limits authorized by statute. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 879, 10 S. E. 608.

Need Not Show Assignment of Witness Tickets.—The party to an action summoning witnesses to testify in his behalf is liable for their witness fees which may be recovered in an action against him, and when it appears of record entry of the judgment by the clerk of the Superior Court that these fees have been taxed against the party recovering the judgment, and paid by him, he is entitled to recover them against the losing party to the action without showing that the witnesses had transferred or assigned their tickets to him. McClure v. Fulbright, 196 N. C. 450, 146 S. E. 74.

Witnesses Not Sworn or Tendered. — Where a trial is had and the witnesses are not sworn or tendered, their costs cannot be taxed against the party cost. Loftis v. Raxter, 66 N. C. 340. But where the defendant's witnesses are present and are not sworn or tendered because the plaintiff takes a nonsuit, the costs of such witnesses are properly taxable against the plaintiff. Henderson v. Williams, 120 N. C. 339, 27 S. E. 30.

There is no provision in our law authorizing the taxation as costs, the fees for attendance and mileage of witnesses who have not been summoned, nor of witnesses who have been summoned but who are nonresidents of the State. Stern v. Herren, 101 N. C. 516, 8 S. E. 221.

Witnesses Subpoenaed but Not Examined. — When a cause has been tried, only those witnesses of the successful party who have been sworn and either examined or tendered to the opposite party can be taxed against the other. Hobbs v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 151 N. C. 134, 136, 65 S. E. 755; Chadwick v. Life Ins. Co., 158 N. C. 380, 381, 74 S. E. 115.

It has always been the recognized practice that, inasmuch as only two witnesses of the successful party to prove any single fact can be taxed against the losing party, the purport of the evidence of the witnesses so sought to be taxed shall be demonstrated by examination on the trial, or at least that the losing party may have an opportunity to ascertain the materiality of the evidence of such witnesses and prevent being taxed with an excessive number upon any single point by such witnesses being sworn and tendered to the opposite party for examination. Porter v. Durham, 79 N. C. 596. It is true that in Loftis v. Baxter, 66 N. C. 340, it is said that the witnesses must be "sworn or tendered," but this is an inadvertent expression for "sworn and examined or tendered" i. e., witnesses subpoenaed by the successful party cannot be taxed against the losing party unless sworn and examined by the successful party, or sworn and tendered to the losing party to be examined, that their materiality may be shown. Otherwise, a successful party may oppress the losing party by subpoenaing and swearing any number of witnesses and having their attendance taxed, while examining only the few necessary to gain the action. Merely swearing the witnesses would be no assurance of this materiality. They must be examined or tendered to the opposite party to be examined, should he so choose, and if examined by the opposite party they are to be examined as the witnesses of the party summoning such witnesses, and under the rules of cross-examination pertaining to the examination of an adversary's witnesses. Sitton v. Lumber Company, 135 N. C. 540, 541, 47 S. E. 609.

Effect of Nonsuit. — The costs of the defendant's witnesses, who are present when the case is brought for trial, but are not sworn, because the plaintiff takes a nonsuit, are properly taxed against the latter. Henderson v. Williams, 120 N. C. 339, 27 S. E. 30, citing Loftis v. Raxter, 66 N. C. 340, cited in Sutton v. Lumber Company, 135 N. C. 540, 541, 47 S. E. 609.

A pauper is not excused from liability for his witnesses. Bailey v. Brown, 105 N. C. 127, 129, 10 S. E. 1054.

Witnesses Summoned by Both Parties. — A witness summoned by each party to a suit is entitled to compensation from each. Peace v. Person, 5 N. C. 188.

§ 1275. Witness tickets to be filed; only two witnesses for single fact.—At the court where the cause is finally determined the party recovering judgment shall file in the clerk's office the witness tickets; the amount whereof shall be taxed in the bill of costs, to be levied and recovered for the benefit of said party. The party cast shall not be obliged to pay for more than two witnesses to prove a single fact. (Rev., s. 1300; Code, s. 1370; R. C., c. 31, s. 74; 1783, c. 189, s. 3; 1796, c. 458, s. 2.)

See note under § 1274.

Editor's Note. — "Service as a witness," as stated by Justice Clark, (then Chief Justice) in State v. Wheeler, 141 N. C. 773, 777, 53 S. E. 358, "is the exaction of a public duty, like service upon a jury, grand jury, coroners inquest, special venire, military service, and the like, which men are required to render either wholly without compensation or (usually) with inadequate pay, as the sovereign may require. Originally none of these received any pay whatever (State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 878, 10 S. E. 608), the duration of military service only having a time limit. And to this day witnesses, above two to each material fact, receive no pay."

Where the issue submitted is a complex one, involving the investigation of a multiplicity of single facts, material to be ascertained, to establish each of which two witnesses are allowable under this section. Ex parte Beckwith, 124 N. C. 111, 32 S. E. 393.

Four Witnesses Summoned—Two Called by Each Party.—Where there was only one issue in the case, and plaintiff summoned four witnesses, but called only two of them, and the defendant summoned the witness who did not attend, the defendant was nevertheless liable for the costs of the two witnesses not sworn, as the court could not say that they had not been summoned to contradict testimony expected from the defendant's witness. Hayle v. Cowan, 2 N. C. 21.

Against Parties Summoning Witnesses.—While not more than two witnesses, summoned by the successful party to prove a single fact, can be taxed against the party cost under this section, this does not abridge the right of all the witnesses to recover compensation against the party summoning them. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 881, 10 S. E. 608.

This section does not apply to expert witnesses, the court being allowed under § 3893 to exercise its discretion with reference to compensation for same. Connor v. Hayworth, 206 N. C. 721, 724, 175 S. E. 140.

Applied in Cureton v. Garrison, 111 N. C. 271, 16 S. E. 338.

§ 1276. Local: trafficking in witness tickets regulated.—1. Amounts Paid for Tickets to be Endorsed thereon.—Whenever any person shall prove a ticket as a witness in any criminal action, wherein any county in this state shall be adjudged to pay the cost or any part thereof, and such person shall sell or assign the same to any other person, firm or corporation, he shall state on the back of the ticket the amount which he shall receive from the assignee named for such sale or assignment, and the assignee shall make an affidavit of the truthfulness of such amount as stated in the endorsement of sale.

2. Amount Receivable by Assignee.—It shall be unlawful for any assignee of any ticket proved in a criminal action, wherein any county is or shall be adjudged to pay the costs thereof, to receive from the county any greater sum than the amount paid by such person, firm or corporation, with ten per cent added to the amount received by the person proving the ticket.

3. If Improperly Endorsed Not Taxed against County.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court, in making out the bills of cost which shall be adjudged against the county for payment, to examine carefully all witness tickets, and whenever any ticket shall fail to show the amount paid for any transfer, sale or assignment properly endorsed on said ticket, and sworn to, as above provided in subsection one, he shall not tax the same against any county for payment.

4. Collection of Greater Amount Misdemeanor.—If any person shall collect from any county in this state a sum greater than the amount received by the person proving said ticket, with ten per cent added thereto, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be fined double the amount so collected by him, not exceeding the sum of fifty dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days.

5. False Statement Perjury.—Any person purchasing any ticket in any criminal action, wherein the county shall be adjudged to pay the cost or any part thereof, who shall make a false statement of the amount paid by him for such ticket or tickets, shall be guilty of perjury, and upon conviction shall be punished as for that offense.

6. To What Counties Applicable.—This section shall apply only to the counties of Anson, Buncombe, Columbus, Forsyth, Gaston, Haywood, Richmond, Robeson, Rutherford, and Surry. (1907, c. 120; P. L. 1913, cc. 791, 793; 1915, c. 305; 1933, c. 366, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The section was made applicable to Haywood County by Public Laws 1933, c. 366.

§ 1278. Fees of witnesses before grand jury.—No witness shall receive pay for attendance in a criminal case before a grand jury, unless such witness has been summoned by direction in writing of the foreman of the grand jury, or of the solicitor prosecuting, addressed to the clerk of the court, commanding him to summon such witness, stating the name of the parties against whom his testimony may be needed, or unless he has been bound or recognized by some justice of the peace to appear before the grand jury. (Rev., s. 1302; Code, s. 743; 1879, c. 264.)

Permission to Summon. — Grand jurors have no right to summon witnesses to appear before them except by the permission of their foreman or of the solicitor as prescribed by this section. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 10 S. E. 453.

Endorsement of Names. — Witnesses are entitled to compensation where a bill is prepared and sent to the grand jury with the names of those summoned endorsed thereon as sworn and sent. Lewis v. Board of Comm'rs, 74 N. C. 194.

§ 1279. Local modifications as to fees of witnesses before grand jury.—In Martin county all witnesses who are subpoenaed by the court's order to appear before the grand jury and do attend, and all other witnesses who testify for the state in open court, may prove attendance and collect one-half fees. (Rev., s. 1283; 1905, c. 134.)

In Moore county all persons subpoenaed as witnesses before the grand jury in any criminal prosecution, or subpoenaed to appear before the judge in any criminal prosecution, shall receive one dollar per day for each day attending and five cents per mile for each mile traveled to and from court one time, whether a true bill be found or not. The county commissioners shall not have power or authority to allow any less sum than the face of the juror's or witness's tickets provided herein. (1907, c. 93, ss. 4, 5.)

In Wayne county witnesses subpoenaed by the state before the grand jury shall receive one-half fees, and if the grand jury fails to find "a true bill." (1907, c. 40.)

§ 1280. Pay of witnesses in criminal cases.—All witnesses summoned or recognized in behalf of the state shall be allowed the same pay for their daily attendance, ferriage and mileage as is allowed to witnesses attending in civil suits; and such fees for attendance shall be paid by the defendant only upon conviction, confession or submission; and if the defendant is acquitted on any charge of an inferior nature, or a nolle prosequi be entered thereto, the court shall order the prosecution to pay the cost, if such prosecution appears to have been frivolous or malicious; but if the court is of opinion that such prosecution was neither frivolous nor malicious, and a greater number of witnesses have been summoned than were, in the opinion of the court, necessary to support the charge, the court may, nevertheless, order the prosecutor to pay the attendance of such unnecessary witnesses, if it appear that they were summoned at his special request. (Rev., s. 1296; Code, s. 1204; R. C., c. 35, s. 37; 1800, c. 558, s. 1; 1879, c. 49; 1879, c. 92, s. 3; 1881, c. 176.)

An appeal lies from the judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal action taxing the prosecutor with cost. State v. Morgan, 120 N. C. 563, 21 S. E. 634, cited in Harris v. Singletary, 193 N. C. 583, 588, 137 S. E. 724.

§ 1281. County to pay state's witnesses in certain cases.—Witnesses summoned or recognized on behalf of the state to attend on any criminal prosecution in the superior or criminal courts where the defendant is insolvent, or by law is not bound to pay the same, and the court does not order them to be paid by the prosecutor, shall be paid by the county in which the prosecution was commenced. And in all cases wherein witnesses may be summoned or recognized to attend any such court to give evidence on behalf of the state, and the defendant is discharged, and in cases where the defendant breaks jail and is not afterwards retaken, the court shall order the witnesses to be paid. (Rev., s. 1289; Code, s. 740; R. C., c. 28, s. 9; 1804, c. 665; 1819, c. 1008; 1824, c. 1253.)

See section 1259 and the notes thereto.

In General. — The liability of the county for the defendant's witnesses is restricted to the same cases in which the county is responsible for half fees to officers, except that the court is not liable to the defendant's witnesses where he is convicted and unable to pay. An appeal in the matter of costs lies in cases of this kind. State v. Horne, 119 N. C. 853, 26 S. E. 36; Guilford v. Comm'rs, 120 N. C. 23, 28, 27 S. E. 94.

Service out of State. — The service of a subpoena on a witness beyond the borders of the state in a criminal action is not valid; and where the trial judge has allowed a necessary nonresident witness to prove his ticket against the county with mileage to the state line, there is no authority for him to allow the witness to prove for services rendered by him outside of the state when service has been attempted there. State v. Means, 175 N. C. 820, 95 S. E. 912.

§ 1282. Local modifications as to counties paying state's witnesses.—In Durham county, when on the trial of a criminal action the costs, or any part thereof, are taxed against the county, the witness fees of a salaried officer or salaried employee of the county of Durham or the city of Durham shall not be taxed against the county in the bill of costs. (1909, c. 485.)

In Wake county, in all criminal cases and proceedings in the superior court where there is a verdict of acquittal, nolle prosequi, arrest of judgment, the return by a grand jury of "not a true bill," the county shall be liable for one-half fees to state's witnesses. Where the defendant is convicted and judgment is suspended, or the defendant is imprisoned, the county shall be liable for full fees to state's witnesses. The clerk of the superior court, immediately upon the determination of the case or proceeding, in any one of the ways provided above, shall make out and sign a statement showing the amount of fees and mileage to which each and every state witness duly subpoenaed to attend court in that case or proceeding is entitled and when a certificate is made thereon by the sheriff of the county that the witness has paid all taxes for which he is liable, shall be presented to the treasurer of the county, who shall immediately pay the same out of the general county fund. In all cases where judgment is suspended, or the imprisoned defendant is taxed with the costs, the costs, when collected, shall be paid by the clerk to the treasurer of the county and placed in the general county fund. When on the trial of a criminal action the costs, or any part thereof, are taxed against the county, the witness fees of an all-time salaried officer or an all-time salaried employee of the County of Wake or the City of Raleigh, shall not be taxed against the county in the bill of costs. (1907, c. 204; Ex. Sess., 1908, c. 25; 1929, c. 102; 1931, c. 201.)

At least thirty days before each criminal term of the superior court of Wilkes county the clerk shall file with the board of county commissioners an estimate of the amount of money necessary to pay witnesses for the state fifty cents on the dollar of the amount due. Upon the filing of such estimate it is the duty of the commissioners to order the county treasurer to pay to the clerk an amount of money sufficient to pay state's witnesses fifty per cent of their witness fee and take receipt for same. At each term of the court, when witnesses who have been duly subpoenaed on behalf of the state are discharged upon filing their ticket with the clerk and assigning the ticket to the county, the clerk shall pay the witness fifty per cent of the face value of the ticket. The ticket shall be preserved by the clerk till the case is finally disposed of, and at the termination of the case, if the defendant is adjudged to pay the cost, the same shall be taxed in the bill of cost which, when collected, shall be paid over to the county treasurer, who shall pay the balance to the witness. Within thirty days after each criminal term of court the clerk shall pay over to the treasurer all the money so collected from defendants on witness fees, and file a sworn statement of all money so collected. It is the duty of the solicitor as each witness is discharged to give him a certificate showing the number of days he is entitled to prove as a witness, which certificate shall be filed with the clerk. If any individual purchases any witness ticket from any witness, the county shall not be liable to pay said witness, unless it shows upon the ticket the amount so paid by the purchaser, and then no greater amount than the amount paid, and in no case to exceed fifty per cent of the face value thereof. (1909, c. 38.)

§ 1283. County to pay defendant's witnesses in certain cases.—When the defendant is acquitted, a nolle prosequi entered, or judgment against him arrested, and it is made to appear to the court, by certificate of counsel or otherwise, that said defendant had witnesses, duly subpoenaed, bound or recognized, in attendance, and that they were necessary for his defense, it is the duty of the court, unless the prosecutor is adjudged to pay the costs, to make and file an order in the cause directing that said witness be paid by the county in such manner and to such extent as is authorized by law for the payment of state's witnesses in like cases. (Rev., s. 1290; Code, s. 747; 1879, c. 264; 1881, c. 312.)

See section 1259 and the notes thereto.

In General. — This section shows the legislative intent to restrict payment by the county of the defendant's witnesses to the cases specified, and their number and amount of compensation. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 880, 10 S. E. 608.

In this case it was said, the court below rightly held that there is no statute authorizing the court to tax defendant's witnesses against the county when the "bill is quashed." If this is a casus omissus the remedy can only be found in a legislative enactment. It would seem, however, intentional for the Statute of 1799 (Code, sec. 737), authorizing the court to tax prosecutors with costs, does not extend to cases in which the bill is quashed. In Office v. Gray, 4 N. C. 307, the court gives the reason that the bill can only be quased if the offense be not indictable, or is not set forth with legal precision, and the court could not, therefore, find that the prosecution was frivolous or malicious. It seems, from the similarity of language used in secs. 737 and 747, that the intention was to allow the defendant's witnesses to be taxed against the county only in the cases in which they could be taxed against a prosecutor. As to the state's witnesses, the language is broader, and provides for their payment in all cases in which "the defendant is discharged" (this section), subject, of course, to the restrictions above cited.

§ 1284. Fees of state witnesses; two only in misdemeanors; one fee for day's attendance. — No person shall receive pay as a witness for the state on the trial of any criminal action unless such person was summoned by the clerk under the direction of the solicitor prosecuting in the court in which the action originated, or in which it shall be tried if removed; and no solicitor shall direct that more than two witnesses shall be summoned for the state in any prosecution for a misdemeanor, nor shall any county or defendant in any such prosecution be liable for or taxed with the fees of more than two witnesses, unless the court, upon satisfactory reasons appearing, otherwise directs. And no witness summoned in a criminal action or proceeding shall be paid by the county for attendance in more than one case for any one day; nor shall the county be required to pay any such witness if his attendance shall be taxed in more than one case on the same day. (Rev., s. 1303; Code, s. 744; 1871-2, c. 186; 1879, c. 264.)

§ 1285. On appeal from justice only two witnesses bound over.—When the defendant appeals from the judgment of the justice of the peace, in any criminal action, it is the duty of such justice of the peace to select and bind over on behalf of the state not more than two witnesses, and neither the county nor the defendant shall be liable for the fees of more than two witnesses on such appeal, unless additional witnesses are summoned by order of the appellate court as provided in the preceding section. (Rev., s. 1304; Code, s. 745; 1879, c. 264.)

of a justice of the peace, in a matter in which he had final jurisdiction, a nol. pros. was entered by the solicitor, it was error to tax the county with the costs accrued in the superior court. State v. Shuffler, 119 N. C. 867, 26 S. E. 94.

§ 1286. Discharge of witnesses for state; certificate of attendance by solicitor.—It is the duty of all solicitors prosecuting in the several courts, as each criminal prosecution is disposed of by trial, removal, continuance or otherwise, to call, in open court, and announce the discharge of witnesses for the state, either finally or otherwise as the disposition of the case may require, and thereupon the clerk of the superior court shall enter such announcement of discharge, with the names of the witnesses discharged, in his minutes. (Rev., s. 1305; Code, s. 746; 1879, c. 264; 1881, c. 312; 1935, c. 26.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 omitted the provision as to the form of the certificate. It also requires that the discharge shall be in open court. The requirement for entry on the minutes is new.

§ 1287. Witnesses not paid without certificate; court's discretion.—No county, prosecutor or defendant shall be liable to pay any witness, nor shall his fees be embraced in the bill of costs to be made up as hereinbefore provided, unless his name is certified to the clerk by the solicitor, or included in the order of the court. And the judge or justice may, in his discretion, for satisfactory cause appearing, direct that the witnesses, or any of them, shall receive no pay, or only a portion of the compensation authorized by law. The court, at any time within one year after judgment, may, order that any witness may be paid who for any good reason satisfactory to the court failed to have his fees included in the original bill of costs. (Rev., s. 1306; Code, ss. 733, 748; 1879, c. 264; 1881, c. 312.)

The discretion conferred upon the court, in this section, in respect to regulating, or refusing to allow any compensation to the witnesses therein named, is not reviewable. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 10 S. E. 608.

It is within the discretion of the trial Court (under this section of the Code) to refuse to make an order for the payment by the county of the fees of witnesses for a defendant acquitted of a criminal charge, where no prosecutor is marked, and the exercise of such discretion is not reviewable. State v. Ray, 122 N. C. 1095, 29 S. E. 948.

Appeal.—In an appeal from defendant's motion to retax the costs in a criminal action it should appear on the record that the provisions of this and § 1284 were complied with and when it does not so appear the case will be remanded. State v. Kirby, 201 N. C. 789, 161 S. E. 483.

Art. 9. Criminal Costs before Justices, Mayors, County or Recorder's Courts

§ 1288. Liability for criminal costs before justice, mayor, county or recorder's court.—The party convicted in a criminal action or proceeding, within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, before any justice, mayor, county or recorder's court, shall always be adjudged to pay the costs, and if the party charged be acquitted, the complainant shall be adjudged to pay the costs, and may be imprisoned for the nonpayment thereof, if the justice, mayor, county or recorder's court shall adjudge that the prosecution was frivolous or malicious. But in no action or proceeding in which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, commenced or tried in a court of a justice of the peace, mayor, county or recorder's court shall the county be liable to pay any costs: any defendants or prosecuting witness shall have the right of appeal to the superior court: Provided, that in cases where the defendant is sentenced to prison or to work upon the public roads by any justice of the peace in Jackson county, and in case such defendant is unable to pay the costs of such action, then the county of Jackson shall be liable for the payment of the costs of the trial justices and the sheriff of said county. (Rev., 1307; Code, s. 895; 1868-9, c. 178; 1879, c. 92, s. 3; 1881, c. 176; 1931, c. 252; 1933, c. 225, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 repealed the former section and enacted this section in lieu thereof. The former section applied only to proceedings before a justice.

The proviso, relating to Jackson County, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 225.

Chapter 84 of Public Laws of 1935 directs that Swain county and the town of Bryson City shall be liable in certain instances to one-half the cost in said cases where the defendant is unable to pay the same.

Public Laws of 1935, chapter 25, provides for payment in Martin county under the same circumstances as set out in the proviso of the section relating to Jackson county.

Where the justice of the peace has testified on the trial to recover damages for a false arrest that he considered the criminal action "frivolous and malicious," and had taxed the defendant (prosecutor) with cost, the erroneous admission of this evidence is cured by the defendant's admission that he had paid the cost thus taxed him. Harris v. Singletary, 193 N. C. 583, 137 S. E. 724.

Taxation of Prosecutor in Justices Court.—See section 1271 and notes thereto.

§ 1289. Imprisonment of defendant for nonpayment of fine and costs.—If the justice sentences the party found by him to be guilty to pay a fine and costs, and the same are not immediately paid, the justice shall commit the guilty person to the county jail until the same are paid, or until he is otherwise discharged according to law. (Rev., s. 1308; Code, s. 904; 1868-9, c. 178, subchap. 4, s. 15.)

CHAPTER 24

COUNTIES AND COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Art. 1. Corporate Existence and Powers of Counties

§ 1290. County as corporation; acts through commissioners.—Every county is a body politic and corporate, and has the powers prescribed by statute, and those necessarily implied by law, and no others; which powers can only be exercised by the board of commissioners, or in pursuance of a resolution adopted by them. (Rev., s. 1309; Code, ss. 702, 703, 1868, c. 20, ss. 1, 2; 1876-7, c. 141, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to corporate powers of counties enumerated, see section 1291; as to powers of the board of commissioners, see section 1297.

Editor's Note. — Counties are of, and constitute a part of, the state government. Their chief purpose is to establish its political organization, and effectuate the local civil administration of its powers and authority. They are in their general nature governmental—mere instrumentalities of government—and possess corporate powers adapted to its purposes. It is not their purpose to create civil liability on their part, and become answerable to individuals civilly or otherwise. Indeed, they are not, in a strict legal sense, municipal corporations, like towns and cities organized under charters or particular statutes, and invested with more of the junctions of corporate existence, intended to serve, not so much the purpose of the state, as, subject to its general laws, the advantage of particular communities in particular localities in the promotion and regulation more or less of trade, commerce, industries, and the business transactions and business relations in some respects of the people residing or going there collectively and severally—their purposes are more general, and partake more largely of the purpose and powers of government proper. Manuel v. Board, 98 N. C. 9, 10, 31 S. E. 829; White v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 437; McCormack v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 441.

The Legislature, subject to constitutional limitations, may confer upon counties such corporate powers to make contracts, create civil liabilities, and serve such business purposes, as it may deem expedient and wise, and make them answerable in damages for the negligence of their officers and agents in failing to properly exercise the powers with which they are charged, or for exercising them improperly, to the injury of individuals. But such corporate authority and liability must be especially created by and appear from statutory provision, expressed in terms or necessarily implied. Manuel v. Board, 98 N. C. 9, 11, 3 S. E. 829.

The county revenue is safe from seizure by creditors, or even for taxes due the Federal government, because, to admit the right to appropriate them in satisfaction of a claim would be to concede the power to destroy the state government by depriving its agencies of the means of performing their proper functions. Subject to the restrictions contained in the Federal Constitution, the state is a sovereignty, and it is essential to its preservation to give to all property held for it by such agencies as counties, the same protection as is given to that held in its own name. Vaughn v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 636, 639, 24 S. E. 425; Hughes v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 598, 12 S. E. 465; Meriwether v. Garnett, 102 U. S. 472, 473, 26 L. Ed. 197; United States v. Railroad Co., 17 Wall., 322, 21 L. Ed. 597.

Counties are a branch of the State government. Bell v. Commissioners, 127 N. C. 85, 37 S. E. 136.

Constitutional Power of Legislature to Create. — Under our Constitution, the legislature is given power to create special public quasi corporations for governmental purposes in certain designed portions of the state's territory subject to like control, and in the exercise of such power county lines may be disregarded. Board v. Webb, 155 N. C. 379, 71 S. E. 520.

In McCormac v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 441, quoted with approval in Board v. Webb, 155 N. C. 379, 71 S. E. 520, Merrimon, J., said: "That it is within the power and is the province of the Legislature to subdivide the territory of the state and invest the inhabitants of such subdivisions with the corporate functions, more or less extensive and varied in their character, for the purpose of government, is too well settled to admit of any serious question. * * The Constitution of the State was formed in view of this and like fundamental principles. They permeate its provisions, and all statutory enactments should be interpreted in the light of them when they apply. It is in the exercise of such power that the Legislature alone can create, directly or indirectly, counties, * * * and invest them, and agencies in them, with powers, corporate or otherwise in their nature, to effectuate the purposes of the government, whether these be local or general, or both. Such organizations are intended to be instrumentalities and agencies employed to aid in the administration of the government, and are always under the control of the power that created them unless the same shall be restricted by some constitutional limitations." Woodall v. Western Wake Highway Commission, 176 N. C. 377, 384, 97 S. E. 226; Commissioners v. Commissioners, 157 N. C. 514, 73 S. E. 195; Board v. Webb, 155 N. C. 379, 71 S. E. 520.

Counties as Municipal Corporations. — By the Constitution (1868) Art. VII, counties are regarded as municipal corporations. Winslow v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 218, 220.

A county is a municipal corporation created by law for public and political purposes, and constitutes a part of the government of the State. Its powers are expressly defined by law, and, where they are not fixed by the Constitution, they may be enlarged or modified at any time by the Legislature. Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142, 143.

Same—Differs from Cities and Towns.—Counties are not, in a strictly legal sense, municipal corporations, like cities and towns. Bell v. Commissioners, 127 N. C. 85, 91, 37 S. E. 136.

Powers Strictly Construed.—Corporations which exercise delegated governmental authority, such as counties, must be confined to a strict construction of the statutes granting their powers. There is nothing in the nature of their duties to give rise to the implication that the State intends to clothe them with any other power than that expressly conferred, and the further right to do what is necessary to the complete exercise of the express powers. Vaughan v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 636, 641, 24 S. E. 425.

Functions Vary.—The functions of counties are not always the same, and they may be enlarged, abridged or modified at the will of the Legislature. White v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 437, 438.

Legislature May Direct. — The Legislature may direct counties to perform as duties all things which it can empower them to do. State v. Board, 122 N. C. 812, 30 S. E. 352.

Body Politic and Corporate to Exercise Powers Granted. —A county is a body politic and corporate to exercise as an agent for the State only such powers as are prescribed by statute and those which are necessarily implied therefrom by law, essential to the exercise of the powers specifically conferred. O'Neal v. Wake County, 196 N. C. 184, 145 S. E. 28. See Board v. Hauchett Bond Co. 194 N. C. 137, 138 S. E. 614.

Must Act through Commissioners in Legal Session.— It is essential that a county to exercise the powers to contract must act through its county commissioners as a body convened in legal session, regular, adjourned or special, and, as a rule, authorized meetings are prerequisite to corporate action, which should be based upon deliberate conference and intelligent discussion of proposed measures. O'Neal v. Wake County, 196 N. C. 184, 145 S. E. 28.

Contract for Employment of Detective.—The commissioners of a county are without authority, constitutional or statutory, to enter into a joint meeting with other State governmental agencies functioning as entirely separate departments respectively of the county and the State, and therein make a binding corporate contract by the adoption of a joint verbal agreement to pledge the faith and credit of the county for its part in the payment for the employment of a person to render service in the capacity of a detective to determine and procure evidence against those who have committed a criminal offense. O'Neal v. Wake County, 196 N. C. 184, 145 S. E. 28.

May Issue Bonds to Make Repairs to Buildings.—This section when construed with § 1334(8) gives the county statutory power to issue bonds to repair and make additions to the county jail or public schools, the greater power to "erect" necessarily including the lesser power to "repair." Harrell v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 225, 173 S. E. 614.

§ 1291. Corporate powers of counties. — A county is authorized—

1. To sue and be sued in the name of the county.

2. To purchase and hold lands within its limits and for the use of its inhabitants, subject to the supervision of the general assembly.

3. To make such contracts, and to purchase and hold such personal property, as may be necessary to the exercise of its powers.

4. To make such orders for the disposition or use of its property as the interests of its inhabitants require. (Rev., s. 1310; Code, s. 704; 1868, c. 20, s. 3.)

Cross References. — As to the corporate powers of a county generally, as exercised by the board of commissioners, see sec. 1297; as to the corporate powers of a municipal corporation, see sec. 2623. See also note under sec. 1290.

Editor's Note.—In Pegram v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 114, and in Askew v. Pollock, 66 N. C. 49, it was held that all actions and proceedings, either by or against a county, in its corporate capacity, must be in the name of the board of commissioners. These decisions are based on the Acts of 1868, ch. 20, sec. 704, of the Code of 1883 provided that a county should "sue and be sued in the name of the board of commissioners." However, this was changed by the amendment, and in the Revisal of 1905, sec. 1310, a county must sue and be sued in its own name. Fountain v. Pitt, 171 N. C. 113, 114, 87 S. E. 990.

Suits in Name of County.—A county is not required in an action for mandatory injunction to bring the suit in the name of the county commissioners, but it should be brought in the name of the county. Lenoir County v. Crabtree, 158 N. C. 357, 358, 74 S. E. 105.

Liability of Counties.—Counties are not ordinarily liable to be sued civilly for the maner in which they exercise, or fail to exercise, their corporate powers. White v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 437, 439.

A county is not liable in damages for an injury to the plaintiff, occasioned by a defective bridge forming a part of the highway across a stream, in the absence of any statutory provision. White v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 437; Moffitt v. Ashville, 103 N. C. 237, 259, 9 S. E. 695.

Same—Torts of Agents.—It is now well settled that counties are not liable in damages for the torts of their officials, in the absence of statutory provisions giving a right of action against them. Keenan v. Commissioners, 167 N. C. 356, 358, 83 S. E. 556.

Generally a county is not liable for damages sustained by individuals, by reason of the neglect of its officers or agents, and there is no statute in this State creating such liability. Manuel v. Board, 98 N. C. 9, 11, 3 S. E. 829.

Commissioner's Supervisory Control.—Under the Constitution and Public Laws of North Carolina the boards of county commissioners are generally given superivision and control of governmental matters in the several counties. Bunch v. Commissioners, 159 N. C. 335, 74 S. E. 1048.

Action Brought in County Sued. — Actions against a board of county commissioners must be brought in the county of such commissioners. Steele v. Commissioners, 70 N. C. 137.

Action on Treasurer's Bond.—An action upon a county treasurer's bond to recover an amount alleged to be due the county must be brought on the relation of the commissioners. State v. Thees, 89 N. C. 55, 58.

Suits against Board of Financial Control.—For the purpose of liquidating securities held by the county of Buncombe, the Board of Financial Control for Buncombe County is nothing more nor less than a liquidating agent designated by law for that purpose and is sued as provided by this section. Bourne v. Board of Financial Control, 207 N. C. 170, 177, 176 S. E. 306.

Counties may be sued only in such cases as may be allowed by statute. Bell v. Commissioners, 127 N. C. 85, 37 S. E. 136; White v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 437, 439.

Form of Suit.—A municipal corporation may be sued in any form appropriate to the cause of action, and its liability does not differ as respects the form of the action from that of a private corporation or of an individual. Winslow v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 218, 219.

Writ of Mandamus to Commissioners.—An order to show cause, which is in the nature of an alternative writ of mandamus, ought not to be directed to the individuals composing the board of commissioners. It is only in case of disobedience that they can be proceeded against individually. Askew v. Pollock, 66 N. C. 49.

Power to Compromise.—The power to sue and to defend suits carries with it, by necessary implication, the power to make bona fide compromise adjustments of such suits. Board v. Tollman, 145 Fed. 753, 772, citing 1 Dill Mun. Crop. (4th Ed.), sec. 477 and notes; and 15 Am. & Eng. Ency. (1st Ed.), 1050.

Power to Enter Consent Judgment.—Under this section the commissioners have the authority to assent to the entry of a consent judgment in an action pending against the ecounty, when such judgment is entered in good faith and is free from fraud, etc., a consent judgment being a contract of the parties spread upon the records with the approval and sanction of a court of competent jurisdiction. Weaver v. Hampton, 204 N. C. 42, 167 S. E. 484.

Necessary Property Not Subject to Execution.—A county can only acquire and hold property for necessary public purposes and for the benefit of all its citizens, and the principles of public policy prevent such property from being sold under execution to satisfy the debt of an individual. Hughes v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 598, 12 S. E. 465; Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142, 143; Bouv. Inst. 176.

What Constitutes Binding Contract of County.—In order to make a binding pecuniary obligation on the county, there must be a contract to that effect, express in its terms, or the service must be done at the express request of an officer or agent charged with the duty and having the power to make contracts concerning it. Copple v. Commissioners, 138 N. C. 127, 131, 50 S. E. 574.

When Commissioners May Not Sell Property. — County commissioners have no power to sell property held for corporate purposes, where its alienation would tend to embarrass or prevent the performance of its duties to the public. Vaughan v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 636, 24 S. E. 425.

Cited in O'Neal v. Wake County, 196 N. C. 184, 186, 145 S. E. 28.

§ 1291 (a). Limitation on county indebtedness.—No county in this state shall incur bonded indebtedness in an amount exceeding five per cent of the assessed valuation of taxable property in the county as ascertained by the last assessment previous to the incurring of any new bonded indebtedness. [Provided, however, that any county in which the assessed valuation of taxable property, as shown by the last assessment previous to the incurring of any new bonded indebtedness, is not in excess of ten million dollars ($10,000,000) may issue bonds in an amount not exceeding eight per cent (8%) of said assessed valuation: Provided further, that any county in which the assessed valuation of taxable property in the county, as ascertained by the last assessment previous to the incurring of any new bonded indebtedness, is in excess of ten million dollars ($10,000,000) but not in excess of twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) may issue bonds in an amount not exceeding seven per cent (7%) of said assessed valuation.

The portions of this section in brackets shall not apply to Brunswick County.] (Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 3, s. 6; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 100.)

Editor's Note.—This section, providing a limitation of five per cent of the assessed valuation of the property in a county generally, was enacted by the Legislature in 1920. The Extra Session of 1924, c. 97 added the two provisos of the section. It was also provided at the same time that the provisos should not be applicable to the county of Brunswick.

Purpose.—In Smith v. Board, 191 N. C. 775, 776, 133 S. E. 1, it is said: "It was the evident purpose of this act to limit the indebtedness of counties in order to protect the taxpayers from increasing and oppressive tax rates."

Applied in Taylor v. Board of Education, 206 N. C. 263, 265, 173 S. E. 608.

Art. 2. County Commissioners

§ 1292. Election and number of commissioners.—There shall be elected in each county of the state, at the general election to be held in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six, and every two years thereafter, by the duly qualified voters thereof, three persons to be chosen from the body of the county, who shall be styled "the board of commissioners for the county of ....." and shall hold their office for two years from date of their qualification and until their successors are elected and qualified. (Rev., s. 1311.)

Cross References.—As to oaths of commissioners, see section 1313; as to acting as officers before qualifying as such, see section 4383; as to time of election of county officers, see section 5917.

Remedy in Nature of Quo Warranto.—Where a plaintiff sues for the office of county commissioner which is occupied by another, his remedy is an action in the nature of quo warranto; but if he sues to be restored to an unoccupied office, his remedy is an action for a mandamus, and he should show that he has a present clear legal right to the thing claimed, and that it is the duty of the defendant to render it to him. Lyon v. Board, 120 N. C. 237, 242, 26 S. E. 929.

Who May Try Commissioner's Title.—In an action to try the title to the office of county commissioner held by a defendant, only citizens and tax-payers of the county can be relators. State v. Taylor, 122 N. C. 141, 29 S. E. 101.

Where persons, who have been elected and qualified as county commissioners, bring an action in the nature of quo warranto against persons appointed by the judge of the district to try the defendants' title to the office, the complaint must allege that the plaintiffs are citizens and taxpayers of the county. State v. Taylor, 122 N. C. 141, 29 S. E. 101.

§ 1293. Local modifications as to term and number. — The number of commissioners shall be five instead of three in the counties of Alamance, Beaufort, Bertie, Brunswick, Buncombe, Cabarrus, Carteret, Catawba, Chowan, Columbus, Craven, Cumberland, Durham, Edgecombe, Franklin, Granville, Greene, Guilford, Halifax, Harnett, Hertford, Iredell, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Lincoln, Martin, Mecklenberg, Nash, New Hanover, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Richmond, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Tyrrell, Vance, Warren, Wayne and Wilson.

Only one member of the board of commissioners of Brunswick County shall be from any township of said county.

In Gaston county six persons shall be elected, one of whom must be a resident of Gastonia township, one a resident of River Bend township, one a resident of South Point township, one a resident of Crowders Mountain township, one a resident of Cherryville township, and one a resident of Dallas township. If at any time the board of commissioners of Gaston county are equally divided upon any question pending before them and there is a tie vote, then the clerk of said board is authorized and empowered to cast the deciding vote and to determine such question.

In Wake county five persons shall be elected, three of whom shall compose a class whose terms of office shall be for four years on and after the first Monday in December, one thousand nine hundred and ten, and two of whom shall compose a class whose terms of office shall be for four years on and after the first Monday in December, one thousand nine hundred and twelve. (Rev., ss. 1311, 1312; Code, s. 716; 1876-7, c. 141, s. 5; 1887, c. 307; 1895, c. 135; 1899, cc. 103, 147, 153, 187, 297, 301, 346, 450, 467, 488, 609; 1901, cc. 14, 60, 328, 330, 581; 1903, cc. 4, 7, 14, 36, 46, 59, 137, 191, 203, 206, 207, 228, 265, 446, 515, 790; 1905, cc. 37, 44, 58, 73, 148, 338, 340, 346, 397, 422, 553; 1907, cc. 2, 16, 55, 61, 125, 178, 291, 350; 1909, cc. 12, 53, 213, 302, 625, 729; P. L. 1917, cc. 32, 175, 381; 1931, c. 68.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added Brunswick county to this section.

§ 1294. Vacancies in board; how filled.—In case of a vacancy occurring in the board of commissioners of a county, the clerk of the superior court for the county shall appoint to said office for the unexpired term. (Rev., s. 1314; Code, s. 719; 1895, c. 135, s. 7; 1909, c. 490, s, 1.)

Scope of Authority of Superior Court Clerk.—A tender of resignation by a county commissioner to the clerk of the superior court is a tender to a proper authority. And while the mere filing of the resignation does not vacate the office, its acceptance by the clerk is final, and a commissioner appointed by the clerk to fill such vacancy is a de facto officer, and any action taken by him in the regular meetings of the board is binding on the county. Rockingham County v. Luten Bridge Co., 35 F. (2d) 301, 302.

§ 1295. When to qualify; oath to be filed. — The board of commissioners shall qualify and enter upon the duties of their office on the first Monday of December next succeeding their election, and they may take the oaths of office before the clerk of the superior court, or some judge, or justice of the peace or other person qualified by law to administer oaths. The oaths of office severally taken and subscribed by them shall be deposited with the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1316; Code, s. 708; 1895, c. 135, s. 4.)

As to oaths generally, see section 3188 et seq.

Powers of De Facto Board. — An old board of commissioners, holding over, as de facto officers, have the right and the duty of performing, to the fullest extent, all the appropriate functions of office. State v. Jones, 80 N. C. 127, 130.

§ 1296. Meetings of the board of commissioners.—The board of commissioners in each county shall hold a regular meeting at the courthouse, on the first Mondays in December and June. Special meetings may be held on the first Monday in every month, but shall not continue longer in session than two days. Meetings may be held at other times for the more convenient dispatch of business at the call of the chairman, on the written request of one member of the board, but public notice of the time and place of all such called meetings shall be posted at the courthouse door for not less than six days, and published one time in a county newspaper, if there is one. The board shall receive no compensation for attending such called meetings. The board may adjourn its regular meetings in December and June from day to day until the business before it is disposed of. Every meeting shall be open to all persons. A majority of the board constitute a quorum. At each regular December meeting the board shall choose one of its members as chairman for the ensuing year; in his absence the members present shall choose a temporary chairman. (Rev., s. 1317; Code, s. 706.)

As to salary of county commissioners, see sec. 3918.

Construed as Directory.—The section is directory and is intended to forbid the commissioners from receiving compensation for attendance on other days. It does not, however, disable the commissioners from acting at other times on due notice to all concerned. People v. Green, 75 N. C. 329, 333.

Hence commissioners elected by the county commissioners at an adjourned meeting subject to the call of the chairman, they are at least de facto officers whose title cannot be collaterally attacked. Trip v. Commissioners, 158 N. C. 180, 73 S. E. 896, 897.

Cited in Rockingham County v. Luten Bridge Co., 35 F. (2d) 301.

§ 1297. Powers of board.—The boards of commissioners of the several counties have power—

As to corporate powers of counties, see section 1291. See also notes under sections 1290, 1310. As to reduction of salaries of officers and employees, see § 2648(a).

As to authority to provide erosion equipment, see § 4958(1).

Exercise of Powers by Board is Exercise by County. — The board's exercise of statutory powers is, in contemplation of law, the exercise of such powers by the county. Board v. Hanchett Bond Co., 194 N. C. 137, 138, 138 S. E. 614.

Board Has Perpetual Existence. — The board of commissioners of a county has a perpetual existence, continued by members who succeed each other, and the body remains the same, notwithstanding a change in the individuals who compose it. Pegram v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 114, 115.

Have Only Such Powers as Statute Prescribes.—The board of commissioners in the several counties possess only those powers which have been prescribed by statute and those necessarily implied by law, and no others. This is the general rule, it has also been expressly declared by statute to be the rule which ascertains the true scope and limit of their power and authority. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Fleming, 132 N. C. 332, 336, 43 S. E. 899.

Legislature May Change Functions at Will.—A county is entrusted with many high and important functions, which are to be exercised by its officers for the public benefit. The Legislature may, at will, enlarge or modify these functions. Winslow v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 218, (from the dissenting opinion of Dick, J.)

What Constitutes Quorum and Majority.—A majority of the commissioners constitute the legal body, and a majority of the members of the legally organized body can exercise the powers delegated to the county, as a general rule. Cleveland Cotton Mills v. Commissioners, 108 N. C. 678, 681, 13 S. E 271.

All Duties and Powers Equally Important.—There is no grade among the duties and powers of county commissioners, and no preference is given to one over another. Long v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 273, 278.

Personal Liability.—Where the Legislature has created certain duties to be performed by the county commissioners, and has expressly imposed a personal liability upon their failure to perform some of them, but not as to others, such liability only attaches where it is expressly so declared. Fore v. Feimster, 171 N. C. 551, 88 S. E. 977.

Same—Ministerial Duties.—County commissioners are held to an individual liability in the negligent performance of, or negligent omission to perform, a purely ministerial duty, to a person specially injured thereby, when the means to do so are available and when it does not involve the exercise of a discretionary or judicial power conferred upon them by statute. Hipp v. Farrell, 169 N. C. 551, 86 S. E. 570.

Same—Judicial and Discretionary Acts. — Public officers are not personally liable to persons specially injured by their acts done in the exercise of judicial or discretionary powers conferred on them by statute, unless it is alleged and shown that in doing the acts complained of they did so corruptly and with malice. Hipp v. Farrell, 169 N. C. 551, 86 S. E. 570.

When Commissioners Acting Infra Vires.—A court has no power to interfere with the domestic administration of affairs of a county, so long as the board of commissioners acts infra vires. Long v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 273.

Consideration Retained when Acting Ultra Vires.—Retaining the consideration of an ultra vires contract can impose no contractual liability upon a municipal corporation of this character. Berlin Iron Bridge Co. v. Board, 111 N. C. 317, 16 S. E. 314, citing Weir v. Page, 109 N. C. 220, 13 S. E. 773.

Mandamus to Compel Bond Issue.—Mandamus will lie against county commissioners who refuse to issue bonds, as required by an act of the Legislature. Jones v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 579, 50 S. E. 291.

When Membership of Board Changes between Order and Service of Mandamus.—When a writ of mandamus is obtained against a board of commissioners, and there is a change in the individual members between the time when the writ is ordered and when it is served, those who compose the board at the time of service must obey it. Pegram v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 114, 115.

Board May Correct Clerical Error in Record.—Where the record of the board of county commissioners, through a clerical error, states that a tax levy for general county purposes is 20 cents on the $100 valuation of property, this error may subsequently be corrected by the board, at its own instance, to correctly show that in fact the levy was actually made for 15 cents for general county purposes, 5 cents thereof being for the improvement of the courthouse and county home, and thus within the constitutional requirement. Norfolk Southern R. Co. v. Forbes, 188 N. C. 151, 124 S. E. 132.

Power to Protect Bridges. — The county commissioners, under the general powers granted by this section may bring an action for an injunction to restrain the use of a non-floatable stream for floatage of logs, causing damage to a county bridge over such stream. Commissioners v. Lumber Co., 115 N. C. 590, 20 S. E. 707, 847.

Cited in O'Neal v. Wake County, 196 N. C. 184, 145 S. E. 28.

Taxation and Finance

1. To Exempt from Capitation Tax.—To exempt from capitation tax in special cases, on account of poverty and infirmity. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

The Constitution does not require that a capitation tax shall be levied for ordinary state and county purposes. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 69.

2. To Levy County Taxes.—To levy, in like manner with the state taxes, the necessary taxes for county purposes; but the taxes so levied shall never exceed the double of the state tax, except for a special purpose, and with the special approval of the general assembly. All county taxes shall be levied at the regular meeting of the board on the first Monday in June. The board may extend the time for the collection and settlement of the county taxes to such time as may be deemed expedient, not beyond the first day of May next after the taxes were levied. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Cross References.—As to necessary expenses of counties, see subsections 3, 5, 6, 9, 18, 19, 22, 28, and annotations thereto, of this section. As to duty to reduce ad valorem taxes, see § 1321(j).

County Authority to Levy Taxes Subject to Limitation.—While the General Assembly may regulate the amount and methods for raising county revenues, the present system of county government contemplates that the function shall be performed by the county authorities, subject to the limitations prescribed by the Constitution. Parker v. Board, 104 N. C. 166, 10 S. E. 137.

When Commissioners May Levy. — In Herring v. Dixon, 122 N. C. 420, 424, 29 S. E. 368, the authorities are reviewed and their holdings summed up by Clark, J., as follows:

(1) For necessary expenses, the county commissioners may levy up to the constitutional limitation without a vote of the people or legislative permission.

(2) For necessary expenses, the county commissioners may exceed the constitutional limitation by special legislative authority without a vote of the people. Constitution, Article V, sec. 6.

(3) For other purposes than necessary expenses a tax cannot be levied either within or in excess of the constitutional limitation except by a vote of the people under special legislative authority. Constitution, Article VII, sec. 7, approved in State v. Board, 122 N. C. 812, 815, 30 S. E. 352.

A special tax to pay indebtedness of the county incurred for its necessary expenses may be levied by the county commissioners, without special legislation, so long as such tax together with the regular taxes, does not exceed the constitutional limit; it being only in the latter case that art. 5, sec. 6, of the Constitution requires special authority. Smathers v. Commissioners, 125 N. C. 480, 34 S. E. 554.

Levy of Necessary Taxes within Commissioners Discretion.—Where it was alleged that a board of commissioners had not levied a sufficient tax to defray the ordinary expenses of the county, on account of the levy of a tax to pay for repairing the court-house, it was held to be no ground for interference by the courts. Long v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 273.

Constitutional Limitation.—The equation and limitation of taxation established by the Constitution applies only to taxes levied for ordinary purposes of the State and counties, and, as to levies of taxes for such purposes, it must be observed. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 69.

It has no application to special taxes. Wagestaff v. Central Highway Commission, 177 N. C. 354, 99 S. E. 1.

Same—Prior Debts. — The constitutional limitation and equation of taxation do not apply to debts made previous to the adoption of the Constitution; to debts contracted thereafter, they both apply. Clifton v. Wynne, 80 N. C. 146; Trull v. Board, 72 N. C. 388; Mauney v. Board, 71 N. C. 486; Uzzle v. Commissioners, 70 N. C. 564; Street v. Board, 70 N. C. 644.

Same—County Taxes. — The requirement in the Constitution, Art. V, sec. 7, that every act levying taxes shall state the objects to which they shall be appropriated, has no application to taxes levied by the county authorities for county purposes. Parker v. Board, 104 N. C. 166, 10 S. E. 137.

When Double the Statute Tax May Be Exceeded. — The commissioners of a county may exceed double the state tax when the tax is for a special purpose and has been allowed by an act of the General Assembly. Simmons v. Wilson, 66 N. C. 336; French v. Board, 74 N. C. 692.

When Tax Infra Vires and When Ultra Vires. — Where a statute authorizing the levy of a tax beyond the constitutional limit for a special purpose is infra vires, the taxes collected beyond the requirements of the special purpose may be turned into the general fund and used for general purposes, but where the act authorizes the levy partly for a "special purpose" and partly for general purposes it is ultra vires and no part of the levy can be collected. Williams v. Commissioners, 119 N. C. 520, 26 S. E. 150.

When Commissioners May Not Exceed Restriction. — When bonds are issued by a county, by popular vote, under legislative authority, which does not further provide for a levy to exceed the constitutional limitation for the principal, interest or for a sinking fund, the commissioners are without authority to levy a tax to exceed the restriction. Commissioner v. McDonald, etc., Co., 148 N. C. 125, 61 S. E. 643.

In Williams v. Commissioners, 119 N. C. 520, 26 S. E. 150, approved in Herring v. Dixon, 122 N. C. 420, 423, 29 S. E. 368, it was held that a statute authorizing a special county tax for the purpose of maintaining public ferries, building roads, and meeting other current expenses was not for a "special purpose," and that a tax levied thereunder in excess of the constitutional limitation was void. Southern R. Co. v. Cherokee County, 177 N. C. 86, 92, 97 S. E. 758.

Six Months School Term and the Constitutional Limitation. — When it becomes necessary the county commissioners are required to levy a tax sufficient to maintain the county schools for a term of six months each year, and the Constitutional limitation does not apply to defeat such a levy. Collie v. Commissioners, 145 N. C. 170, 176, 59 S. E. 44, expressly overruling Barksdale v. Commissioners, 93

N. C. 472, 473, and Board v. Board, 111 N. C. 578, 16 S. E. 621; Southern R. Co. v. Cherokee County, 177 N. C. 86, 97 S. E. 758.

Tax Rate Variable. — There is no constitutional requirement that the tax rate for county purposes shall be the same everywhere. It varies in the different counties, and may vary in different townships, parts of townships, districts, towns, and cities in the same county. Jones v. Commissioners, 143 N. C. 60, 55 S. E. 427.

Property Subject to Taxation. — All of the property, including solvent credits, in the state, shall be assessed and taxed at its value in money. Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Smith, 146 N. C. 199, 201, 59 S. E. 653.

Same—Back Tax. — In Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Smith, 146 N. C. 199, 201, 59 S. E. 653, Connor, J., speaking for the court said: "We have no doubt of the power of the Legislature to provide for the listing, assessment, and taxing of personal property omitted to be listed by the owner as the law requires. Nor do we perceive any reason why it may not be taxed for five or more preceding years if it has escaped taxation so long. These questions have been settled by several decisions of this court. Kyle v. Mayor, 75 N. C. 445; North Carolina R. Co. v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 260; Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C. 388, 30 S. E. 9."

Same—When Realty of Schools and Railroads Exempt from Special Tax. — Where the act provided for the construction of a fence to inclose the whole of several districts and that the commissioners should levy a special tax on all the real estate in said district, which was taxable by the state and county, it was held, not to embrace the real estate of schools and railroads, which was not taxable for general purposes. Bradshaw v. Board, 92 N. C. 278.

Taxes Leviable Yearly. — General taxes for county purposes are leviable but once in the year. Bradshaw v. Board, 92 N. C. 278, 282.

Improperly Levied and Legitimately Used. — A tax levied professedly and improperly for one purpose can be collected and applied to any other legitimate purpose. Long v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 273.

Same—First Monday in June. — A mandamus issued against the commissioners of a county commanding them to assess, levy and collect taxes sufficient to pay off the indebtedness of the county does not warrant them in levying taxes in any other manner or at any other time than that prescribed by law, to-wit, at their meeting on the first Monday in June. Mauney v. Board, 71 N. C. 486.

Tax Lists in Hands of Sheriff. — In Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Smith, 146 N. C. 199, 202, 59 S. E. 653, it was said: "While no express power is conferred upon the commissioners after making the assessment to place the list so made in the hands of the sheriff, we think that by a fair construction, in the light of the power conferred in other portions of the statute respecting the regular tax list, such power is given."

The tax list is a judgment against every person for the amount of the tax, and the copy delivered to the sheriff is an execution. State v. Georgia Co., 112 N. C. 34, 36, 17 S. E. 10; Higgins v. Hinson, 61 N. C. 126, cited and approved in Commissioners v. Piercy, 72 N. C. 181; London v. Wilmington, 78 N. C. 109; Gore v. Mastin, 66 N. C. 371; Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis, 99 N. C. 62, 5 S. E. 82.

Act Held Not to Be "Special."—In Bennett v. Board, 173 N. C. 625, 629, 92 S. E. 603, it is held that a statute conferring on county commissioners the power to borrow money for the necessary expenses of the county and provide for its payment "neither is, nor does it purport to be, a 'special act and for a special purpose' within the meaning of the constitutional provision." Southern R. Co. v. Cherokee County, 177 N. C. 86, 92, 97 S. E. 758.

Assessment for Stock Fence. — An assessment for the building of a stock law fence is not a tax which requires a referendum note by the people. Tripp v. Commissioners, 158 N. C. 180, 73 S. E. 896, 898.

3. To Borrow Money for Necessary Expenses, Provide for Payment by Taxation.—To borrow money for the necessary expenses of the county, and to provide for its payment, with interest, in periodical installments, by taxation. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Cross References. — As to levy of necessary county taxes, see subsection 2 of this section; as to when mandamus lies to compel levy of tax, see annotations to subsection 5 of this section.

Power of Courts over Necessary Expenses. — The courts have a right to say what are necessary expenses of a county. Black v. Commissioners, 129 N. C. 121, 39 S. E. 818.

When Commissioners May Issue Bonds. — When the county commissioners have power to contract a debt or to provide for a valid debt already contracted, they may, in the exercise of good business prudence, issue county bonds in evidence of the obligation; but this may be done only in subservance of the constitutional limitation, when no special legislative authority has been given. Bennett v. Board, 173 N. C. 625, 92 S. E. 603.

The commissioners of a county have the right to issue county bonds in the place of orders previously issued for the necessary expenses of the county, without obtaining the sanction of a majority vote of the qualified voters of the county. McCless v. Meekins, 117 N. C. 35, 23 S. E. 99.

Commissioners May Superadd Personal Credit. — It is not fraudulent for a board of county commissioners to superadd their personal credit to the credit of the county in a contract concerning the necessary expenses of the county. Long v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 273.

County Must Levy Tax. — A county, when it contracts a debt, pledges its faith, or loans its credit, as allowed by the Constitution, must levy taxes necessary to raise revenue for such purposes upon all the property in the same, except such property as is exempted from taxation. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 69.

Legislature May Authorize Bond Issue. — The Legislature has the power to pass an act authorizing a county to issue bonds for the purpose of raising funds to discharge an indebtedness incurred for necessary expenses. Commissioners v. Stafford, 138 N. C. 453, 50 S. E. 862.

Same—Need Not Be Submitted to Popular Vote. — Section 7 of Article VII of the Constitution does not require that an act of the General Assembly, authorizing a special tax to pay debts of the county contracted for necessary expenses, shall provide for the submission of the matter to a vote of the people. McCless v. Meekins, 117 N. C. 35, 23 S. E. 99.

When Commissioners May Not Set up Powers Herein Granted. — Where the Legislature has interposed its will and plainly declared it, and where it has by its act prescribed the limit of expenditure even for a necessary expense for the county, the county commissioners cannot set at naught the legislative will by setting up a general power of contracting debts for necessary expenses restrained only by the constitutional limitation of taxation. Burgin v. Smith, 151 N. C. 561, 568, 66 S. E. 607. Quoted in Pritchard v. Commissioners, 159 N. C. 636, 638, 75 S. E. 849.

Establishment of School Not "Necessary Expense." — Expenses incurred in establishing graded schools are not such "necessary expenses" as may be provided for by taxation without the assent of the qualified voters of the community subject to the burden. Trustees v. Boardhurst, 109 N. C. 228, 13 S. E. 781.

Invalid County Orders. — Invalid county orders, warrants and bonds, although transferred to an innocent purchaser for value, and without notice, are open to all defenses against the original holder, and have not the protection that attaches to merchantile paper, even when negotiable in form. McPeeters v. Blankenship, 123 N. C. 651, 652, 31 S. E. 876.

4. To Exchange County Bonds for Outstanding Notes of County.—Any county in this state which is authorized by law to sell its bonds for the purpose of funding or paying floating indebtedness now outstanding and evidenced by notes bearing interest at a higher rate than the bonds which the county proposes to issue, may, in lieu of selling such bonds, issue them in exchange for a like principal amount of such notes, provided the holders of the notes are willing to make such an exchange and to pay any interest accrued on such bonds up to the time of such exchange. When such an exchange is made, any interest accrued on such notes up to the time of such exchange may be paid out of any available funds of the county. The powers conferred by this subsection shall be exercised by the board or body authorized by law to sell the bonds herein referred to. Nothing herein shall be construed as requiring any bonds to be exchanged for notes, rather than be sold. The powers granted by this subsection are granted in addition to and not in substitution for existing powers of counties, and are not subject to any limitation or restriction contained in any other law. (1919, c. 297.)

Legislature May Compel Bond Issue to Fund Indebtendess. —The Legislature has power to pass an act compelling a county to issue bonds to fund its existing indebtedness incurred for necessary expenses. Jones v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 579, 50 S. E. 291. This case expressly overrules Jones v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 218, 47 S. E. 753, and Bank v. Board, 135 N. C. 230, 47 S. E. 1016.

Same—"Authorize and Empower" Construed as Mandatory. — The terms "authorize and empower" used in an act conferring power upon a county, on the verge of bankruptcy, to issue bonds to fund its existing indebtedness incurred for necessary expenses, and providing the only feasible method by which the financial affairs of the county can be placed on a sound basis, will be construed to be mandatory. Jones v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 579, 50 S. E. 291.

Presumption That Bonds Funded Debt for Necessary Expenses. — Where, in an action to have the funds raised by a special tax for the payment of county bonds, into which county orders had been funded, applied for that purpose, there is nothing in the pleadings to show that such county orders were not issued for the necessary expenses of the county, it cannot be urged as an objection to the complaint that it does not state that the orders were issued for such necessary expenses, the presumption being that the commissioners who issued the orders acted in good faith and within the scope of their authority under the Constitution and laws. McCless v. Meekins, 117 N. C. 35, 23 S. E. 99.

Existing Act a Part of Bond Contract. — An act of the General Assembly authorizing the levy of the requisite taxes to pay municipal bonds in force when the bonds are issued enters into and becomes a part of the contract under which the bonds are delivered and taken, and cannot be annulled by subsequent legislation. McCless v. Meekins, 117 N. C. 35, 23 S. E. 99.

Must Be Signed by Designated Officers. — In 21 Am. & Eng. Ency. (2d. Ed.) 50, it is said: "It is essential to the validity of municipal bonds that they be signed by or with the authority of the officers designated by the statutes." Quoted in Bond v. Tollman, 145 Fed. 753.

5. To Provide for Payment Existing Debts by Taxation or Otherwise.—To provide by taxation or otherwise for the prompt and regular payment, with interest, of any existing debt owing by the county. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Mandamus Lies to Compel Levy of Tax. — A plaintiff, upon a proper prayer for judgment, may have a mandamus to compel the board of commissioners to levy a tax and pay the debt of a county. Winslow v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 218.

Same—Satisfaction of Judgment. — A plaintiff who has obtained a judgment against a county is not entitled to an execution against it. His remedy is by a writ of mandamus against the board of commissioners of the county to compel them to levy a tax for the satisfaction of the judgment. Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142.

Same—Ordinarily, Only Remedy. — Ordinarily, the only remedy of a judgment creditor of a county is a writ of mandamus to compel its commissioners to levy a tax to pay the debt. Hughes v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 598, 605, 12 S. E. 465; Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142; Pegram v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 557; Lutterloh v. Board, 65 N. C. 403; Rogers v. Jenkins, 98 N. C. 129, 3 S. E. 821; 2 Dillon on Mun. Corp. (3 ed.), secs. 855 and 856.

Same—When Granted. — The writ of mandamus will be granted only where one demanding it shows that he "has a specific legal right and has no other specific remedy adequate to enforce it." Hughes v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 598, 605, 12 S. E. 465; State v. Justices, 24 N. C. 430; Winslow v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 218, 223; Ex parte Biggs, 64 N. C. 202; Topping Mand., 18.

When Mandamus Unnecessary. — An action may be maintained against the county commissioners establishing a debt against the county without asking for a writ of mandamus, where it appears that the county has property subject to trusts, or such as can be reached only by proceedings supplemental to execution. Hughes v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 598, 12 S. E. 465.

When Public and Private Interests Conflict. — Upon the principle that where public interests conflict with private interests, if the entire fund which can be raised by taxation is required to meet the necessary expenses of an economical administration of the county government, and none can be diverted to pay its indebtedness without serious detriment to the public, none ought to be thus appropriated. Cromartie v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 211, 216.

Bonds Issued under Unconstitutional Act. — A taxpayer may enjoin county commissioners from making a tax levy to pay interest on railroad bonds issued under an unconstitutional statute, without restoring to the bona fide holders of the bonds the consideration paid therefor. Graves v. Board, 135 N. C. 49, 47 S. E. 134.

Notice to Holder. — A county bond stating on its face the act under which it is issued is notice to the holder, and estops him from controverting the statement. Commissioners v. Call, 123 N. C. 308, 31 S. E. 481.

6. To Submit Proposition to Contract Debt to Vote.—To submit to a vote of the qualified electors in the county, after having obtained the approval of the general assembly, any proposition to contract a debt, or loan the credit of the county, under section seven, article seven, of the Constitution; to order the time for voting upon such proposition, which shall be upon public notice thereof at one or more places in each township in the county, and publication in one or more county newspapers, if there are any, for three months next immediately preceding the time fixed on; and such election shall take place and be conducted under the laws as prescribed for the election of members of the general assembly; and the commissioners shall provide for giving effect in case of the adoption of the proposition, to the expressed will of a majority of the qualified voters in such election. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Cross References. — As to levy of county taxes, see subsection 2, and annotations thereto, of this section; as to necessary expense of counties, see subsections 3, 5, 9, 18, 19, 22, 28, and annotations thereto, of this section.

Registered Voters Only Qualified Voters. — Registered voters only are qualified voters, and no county can contract any debt, pledge its faith, or loan its credit, except for necessary expenses, unless a majority of the registered votes of the county are actually cast in favor of creating the said obligation. Cleveland Cotton Mills v. Commissioners, 108 N. C. 678, 687, 13 S. E. 271; Southerland v. Board, 96 N. C. 49, 1 S. E. 760.

When Debt Is for Necessary Expenses. — If the debt sought to be contracted is for "necessary expenses," the question need not be submitted to the qualified voters of the county, but may be at the discretion of the Legislature. Woodall v. Western Wake Highway Commission, 176 N. C. 377, 382, 97 S. E. 226; Swindell v. Belhaven, 173 N. C. 1, 91 S. E. 369.

Authority Must Conform to Constitution. — Legislation authorizing the creation of county indebtedness must conform to constitutional requirements. Commissioners v. Call, 123 N. C. 308, 31 S. E. 481.

When New Registration Unnecessary. — The provisions of a statute authorizing a county to issue bonds for highway purposes, with the approval of its voters, that "no new registration shall be required," is no prohibition on the power of the county to order a new registration, but a statement that it shall not be necessary. Guire v. Board, 177 N. C. 516, 99 S. E. 430.

Notice of Polling Places.—A requirement that a correct notice of the polling places be given is fully met when the voting places have been established and are well known to the entire electorate of the county, and the voters were fully and formally notified that the election would be held on the specified date "at the various voting precincts of the county" as they are now established. Board v. Security Trust Co., 164 N. C. 301, 80 S. E. 230.

"By a Majority of the Qualified Voters" Construed.—The words, "by a majority of the qualified voters," as an entirety, can not be interpreted as equivalent to "with the concurrence," or "with the assent of a majority." Cleveland Cotton Mills v. Commissioners, 108 N. C. 678, 684, 13 S. E. 271.

When Voters Direct Bond Issue Duty of Commissioners.—Where a majority of the qualified voters of the county vote for the subscription of county bonds to aid a railroad, it is the duty of the county commissioners to issue the bonds. Wilmington, etc., R. Co. v. Commissioners, 116 N. C. 563, 21 S. E. 205.

Conclusive Evidence of Will of Voters.—The records of a municipality showing that a proposition to allow it to issue bonds, authorized by the Legislature was submitted after 30 days notice, and that a majority of the qualified registered electors signified their assent by their affirmative ballots, are conclusive evidence that the will of the majority was so expressed. Union Bank v. Board, 116 N. C. 339, 21 S. E. 410.

When Taxpayer May Intervene. — A taxpayer, for sufficient cause, can intervene in apt time and enjoin the issuing of municipal bonds, but this must be done before the bonds are issued and negotiated and pass into circulation as commercial securities. Belo v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 489.

Commissioners Have Sole Power to Determine if Conditions Met.—When authority to issue county bonds upon the performance of certain conditions precedent is conferred by statute upon the board of commissioners, such tribunal has the sole power to determine the fact whether the conditions have been performed or not. Belo v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 489. And their finding sustained by the superior court, that a majority of all the qualified voters have given their approval of the measure, is conclusive. Norment v. Charlotte, 85 N. C. 387.

Sales at Par.—When the statute authorizing the sale of county bonds requires that they shall be sold at par, a sale below par is void. Moose v. Board, 172 N. C. 419, 439, 90 S. E. 441.

The words "par value," when so used, mean a value equal to the face of the bonds and accrued interest to date of sale. Moose v. Board, 172 N. C. 419, 439, 90 S. E. 441.

7. To Purchase County Indebtedness.—To purchase if they desire, at any price, not exceeding their par value and accumulated interest, any of the outstanding bonds or other indebtedness of the county. (Rev., s. 1320; Code, s. 718; 1868-9, c. 269, s. 2.)

As to what constitutes par value, see annotation under subdivision 6, this section.

8. To Levy Taxes for Interest and Sinking Funds for Outstanding Bonds Not Provided for. —(a) To levy, in like manner with the county taxes, the necessary taxes to pay the interest and create a sinking fund for the retirement of bonds issued and sold for the purpose of meeting necessary expenses of the county, where no other provision for such levy has been specially provided for. In making such levy the constitutional equation must be preserved, and the levy shall not exceed any constitutional limitation.

(b) To levy, in like manner with the county taxes, the necessary taxes to pay the interest and create a sinking fund for the retirement of township road improvement bonds, issued either by vote of the people or by act of the general assembly, where the amount of levy provided by the act under which the vote is held or tax levied is inadequate to pay the interest on bonds heretofore issued or authorized by acts now in force, but the constitutional equation must be observed, and the levy shall not exceed any constitutional limitation. (1917, c. 121, ss. 1, 2.)

Where taxes are levied and collected to pay coupons on bonds issued by a county, the funds so collected are impressed with a trust for the benefit of the owners of the coupons. Board v. Tollman, 145 Fed. 753, 773.

8½. Special Tax Authorized for Certain Purposes; Limit of Rate.—The boards of commissioners of the various counties in the state, for the purpose of maintaining roads, bridges, the upkeep of county buildings, the county homes for the aged and infirm and other similar institutions, and to supplement the general county fund, are hereby authorized to levy annually a tax upon all taxable property not to exceed five cents on the one hundred dollars of valuation, in addition to any tax allowed by any special statute for the above enumerated purposes and in addition to the rate allowed by the Constitution. (1923, c. 7.)

Editor's Note.—This subsection was enacted by the Legislature in 1923, ch. 7. The county commissioners of the various counties are authorized to levy a tax annually, not to exceed five cents on the one hundred dollars of valuation, on all taxable property for the maintenance of roads, bridges, the upkeep of county buildings, the county homes, etc.

Public Laws 1931, c. 436, provided that this subsection shall not apply to Madison County.

In General.—This section authorizes the boards of commissioners of the various counties to levy a tax for the purpose of maintaining county homes for the aged and infirm. This is a special purpose within the contemplation of the constitutional provision, and the words "county aid and poor relief" should be construed to be within the scope of the special purpose which is indicated in the statute. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Lenoir County, 200 N. C. 494, 496, 157 S. E. 610.

8¾. Same—In Certain Counties.—Subject to the approval of the Director of Local Government, the Boards of County Commissioners of Duplin, Avery, Dare, Tyrrell, Pender, Clay, Alleghany, Cherokee, Edgecombe, Graham, Granville, Halifax, Iredell, Jackson, Macon, Montgomery, Person, Polk, Rutherford, Swain, Watauga, Wilson, Durham, Mitchell, Burke, McDowell, Perquimans, Alamance, Henderson and Scotland Counties are hereby authorized to levy such special property taxes as may be necessary not to exceed five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation for the following special purposes respectively, in addition to any tax now allowed by law for such purposes and in addition to the rate allowed by the Constitution: (1) For the expense of the quadrennial valuation or assessment of the taxable property, (2) for the expense of holding courts in the county levying the tax and the expense of maintenance of jails and jail prisoners. (1931, c. 441; 1935, c. 330.)

Editor's Note.—The only change effected by the amendment of 1935 occurs in this subsection in which "Henderson" is added to the list of counties.

County Buildings

9. To Erect and Repair County Buildings.—To erect and repair the necessary county buildings, and to raise, by taxation, the moneys therefor. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Cross References.—As to power to borrow money for necessary county expenses, and provide for the payment thereof by taxation, see subsection 3 of this section; as to power to purchase realty for public buildings, see subsection 16 of this section; as to powers over county property generally, see subsections 14 and 15 of this section; as to duty to take contractor's bond, see section 2445.

Erection and Maintenance of Courthouse.—It is the duty of the county commissioners to provide a sufficient courthouse and keep it in repair. It is their duty both to erect and keep in repair. They are cognate duties, and failure as to them is "neglect of duty." State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 655, 658, 61 S. E. 585.

Same—Mandamus Does Not Lie to Provide.—A mandamus will not lie against county commissioners to compel them to provide a sufficient courthouse. State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 655, 61 S. E. 585.

Same—Remedy by Indictment.—For such neglect of duty the remedy is by indictment. State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 655, 661, 61 S. E. 585.

Same—Need Not Allege Corrupt Intent.—It is not necessary to allege corrupt intent in a bill of indictment. State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 655, 61 S. E. 585.

Discretion of Commissioners.—The board of commissioners have the discretionary power to issue and sell or discount the notes of the county to provide the means to pay for a courthouse, and such discretion will not be interfered with by the courts. Vaughn v. Board, 117 N. C. 432, 23 S. E. 354.

Cannot Mortgage Courthouse Site.—The county commissioners have no authority to convey the land on which they propose to erect the courthouse by a mortgage deed to secure the bonds issued to build it, and thereby render the site and buildings liable to sale for the satisfaction of the debt. Vaughn v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 636, 640, 24 S. E. 425.

Commissioners Not Individually Liable for Failure to Take Bond.—The county commissioners are not individually liable for the failure of their ministerial duty to take the bond required from a contractor for the erection of a county home, such not having been expressly declared; and the remedy is by indictment. Fore v Feimster, 171 N. C. 551, 552, 88 S. E. 977.

Prior Special Act Does Not Bar Action Hereunder.—The fact that ch. 343, Acts of 1889, authorizing the county commissioners of Forsyth County to issue bonds for a new courthouse, required the assent of a majority of the qualified voters to such issue, is no bar to the power of the commissioners conferred by a later act of the Legislature (ch. 135, Acts of 1895) to erect necessary public buildings and to raise by taxation the money therefor. Vaughn v. Board, 117 N. C. 432, 23 S. E. 354.

Necessary Expenses.—The cost of the erection of a courthouse is a necessary expense of a county, and the exercise of the discretionary power of the board of commissioners in providing to meet it is not reviewable by the courts. Vaughn v. Board, 117 N. C. 432, 23 S. E. 354.

Repairing a courthouse is also a necessary county expense. Burgin v. Smith, 151 N. C. 561, 66 S. E. 607.

A jail is a necessary county expense, and, in the absence of statutory restrictions, the county commissioners may pledge the credit of the county in order to obtain one. Haskett v. Tyrrell County, 152 N. C. 714, 68 S. E. 202.

While the county commissioners are clothed with the necessary power to erect and repair county buildings, they have no power to levy a special tax out of which to pay the interest and create a sinking fund, unless they have the special authority of the General Assembly, but construing this section with § 1290 and § 1334(8), it would seem such authority is implied. Harrell v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 225, 228, 173 S. E. 614.

County Commissioners

10. To Designate Site for County Buildings.—To remove or designate a new site for any county building; but the site of any county building already located shall not be changed, unless by an unanimous vote of all the members of the board at any regular monthly meeting, and unless upon notice of the proposed change, specifying the new site. Such notice shall be published in a newspaper printed in the county, if there is one, and posted in one or more public places in every township in the county for three months, next immediately preceding the monthly meeting at which the final vote on the proposed change is to be taken. Such new site shall not be more than one mile distant from the old, except upon the special approval of the general assembly. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8; 1925, c. 229.)

Editor's Note.—This subsection was amended by the Laws of 1925, c. 229. The amendment strikes out the words "The regular December" in line five of the subsection and in lieu thereof inserts the words "any regular monthly." In line eleven of the said subsection the word "annual" is stricken out and in lieu thereof is inserted the word "monthly."

When Partial Payments May Be Recovered Back. — Where the county commissioners and the owner of lands have agreed for the purchase of a new site for its courthouse, conditioned upon the future compliance with the statute relating thereto, which had failed of compliance, and the county had made certain payments upon the purchase price, the county may recover the partial payments it had so made, with the legal interest thereon, subject to deductions as against the interest for its reasonable rental value, while in possession and control of the county authorities. Hearne v. Stanly County, 188 N. C. 45, 123 S. E. 641.

Attempt to Validate Former Action.—Pending the continuance of an injunction against the county commissioners purchasing a new site for the county courthouse, the action of the commissioners in attempting to validate their former action is unlawful, and can have no effect; nor can proceedings under a later statute to submit the question of the change to the voters have a different effect, when this proposition has been rejected by them. Hearne v. Stanly County, 188 N. C. 45, 46, 123 S. E. 641.

County Officers

11. To Require Officers to Report.—To require from any county officer, or other person employed and paid by the county, a report under oath at any time on any matters connected with his duties (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

12. To Approve Bonds of County Officers and Induct into Office.—To qualify and induct into office at the meeting of the board, on the first Monday in the month next succeeding their election or appointment, the following named county officers, to wit: clerk of the superior court, sheriff, coroner, treasurer, register of deeds, surveyor, and constable; and to take and approve the official bonds of such officers, which the board shall cause to be registered in the office of the register of deeds. The original bonds shall be deposited with the clerk of the superior court, except the bond of the said clerk, which shall be deposited with the register of deeds, for safe keeping.

If the board declares the official bonds of any of said county officers to be insufficient, or declines to receive the same, the officer may appeal to the superior court judge riding the district in which the county is, or to the resident judge of said district, as he may elect, who shall hear said appeal in chambers, at any place in said district he designates, within ten days after notice by him of the same, and if, upon the hearing of the appeal, the judge is of the opinion that the bond is sufficient, he shall issue an order to the board of commissioners to induct the officer into office, or that he shall be retained in office, as the case may be. If, upon the hearing of the appeal, the judge is of the opinion that the bond is insufficient, he shall give the appellant ten days in which to file before him an additional bond, and if the appellant within the ten days files before the judge a good and sufficient bond, in the opinion of the judge, he shall so declare and issue his order to said board directing and requiring them to induct the appellant into office, or retain him, as the case may be. If, in the opinion of the judge, both the original and the additional bonds are insufficient, he shall declare the said office vacant and notify the commissioners, who shall notify the clerk of the superior court, who shall appoint to fill the vacancy, except in cases of the clerk of the superior court, which vacancy shall be filled by the resident judge. The judgment of the superior court judge shall be final. The appeal and the finding and judgment of the superior court judge shall be recorded on the minutes of the board of commissioners. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8; 1874-5, c. 237, s. 3.)

Cross References.—As to commissioners' duty to review official bonds, see sections 326-337; as to neglect of duty as misdemeanor, see section 1302.

This section is mandatory on the county commissioners. Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 569, 172 S. E. 317.

But there is no penalty or crime prescribed by this section, for failure of county commissioners to perform the ministerial duty therein imposed upon them of qualifying and inducting into office certain county officers and approving the bonds of such officers, but § 335, makes them liable as sureties on bonds which they approve with knowledge, actual or implied, that they are insufficient in penal sum or security. Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 172 S. E. 317.

De Facto Board May Act.—If from any cause the newly elected commissioners of a county fail to qualify at the time prescribed by law, the old board, as de facto officers, have the power to perform the functions prescribed by this section. State v. Jones, 80 N. C. 127; Buckman v. Commissioners, 80 N. C. 121.

Commissioners to Induct into Office County Officers. — The commissioners are authorized and required to qualify and induct into office the several officers of the county, and to take and approve their official bonds, which they shall cause to be registered. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Fleming, 132 N. C. 332, 336, 43 S. E. 899, 900.

Same—When Certified by County Canvassers.—It is he duty of the county commissioners to qualify and induct into office those whose election the county canvassers have ascertained and announced. Swain v. McRea, 80 N. C. 111, 114.

Right to Examine Officers—Elect.—When a person presents himself before a board of commissioners, with a certificate of election, and asks to be inducted into office, the said commissioners have a right to inquire into his constitutional capacity to exercise the functions of the office to which he may have been chosen. Hannon v. Grizzard, 99 N. C. 161, 6 S. E. 93, 100.

The general jurisdiction to admit to county offices those who may have been chosen upon the electoral vote as counted and ascertained by the board of county canvassers is given to the board of county commissioners, and this is exercised in an examination into the regularity of the returns of the result of the election, (which, when regular, are conclusive of the election,) the sufficiency of the official bond tendered, and the administration of the required oath. Hannon v. Grizzard, 99 N. C. 161, 6 S. E. 93, 100.

In the case of a sheriff who has previously held office the board must go further, and see that he is not delinquent in the payment of the taxes of a previous term. Hannon v. Grizzard, 99 N. C. 161, 6 S. E. 93, 100.

Same—May Exclude Unfit.—If the commissioners refuse to induct one who is plainly ineligible, the courts will not compel them to do so, and thus put one into an office which he cannot constitutionally hold. State v. Somers, 96 N. C. 467, 2 S. E. 161.

An elected person not competent to hold office under the Constitution has no right to be admitted to office, nor cause of action for being excluded. Hannon v. Grizzard, 99 N. C. 161, 6 S. E. 93, 100.

Commissioners Not Liable for Error of Judgment. — And if, in the exercise of this function, the commissioners commit an error of judgment in refusing to induct the elected candidate into office they are not responsible, these functions are quasi judicial. Hannon v. Grizzard, 99 N. C. 161, 6 S. E. 93, 100.

Sheriff's Bonds.—To entitle a sheriff to be inducted into office, it is essentially necessary that three several bonds must be executed by him and approved by the county commissioners according to the requirements of the statute. Dixon v. Commissioners, 80 N. C. 118.

While it is irregular to induct a sheriff into office without his giving all three of the required bonds, yet the defect is cured when they are subsequently tendered and accepted. Worley v. Smith, 81 N. C. 304.

Cannot Release Surety.—A board of county commissioners cannot release a surety from an official bond. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Fleming, 132 N. C. 332, 336, 43 S. E. 899. See also, State v. Clarke, 73 N. C. 255, 258; Dockery v. French, 69 N. C. 308.

May Declare Office Vacant and Fill it.—The board has the power—all the business before them being disposed of—to adjourn, and, if any officer shall fail to perfect his bond according to law before such adjournment, to declare such office vacant, and to fill it, when the power to fill such vacancy is vested by law in the board. State v. Patterson, 97 N. C. 360, 2 S. E. 262; Kilburn v. Latham, 81 N. C. 312.

13. To Fill Vacancies.—To fill by appointment a vacancy in the offices of sheriff, constable, coroner, register of deeds, county treasurer, or county surveyor. (Rev., s. 1321; Code, s. 720.)

As to commissioners' duty to declare office vacant, see section 328, and subsection 12 of this section.

Commissioners Vote and Elect Hereunder.—The commissioners of a county board vote and elect when they exercise the power to fill a vacant office. State v. Bullock, 80 N. C. 132, 136.

Failure to Perform Duty.—Only one penalty is given against each commissioner composing the board, if he fails to perform his duty under this section. Bray v. Barnard, 109 N. C. 44, 48, 13 S. E. 729.

Application.—Upon the failure of public officers, when the statutes so requires, to renew annually their official bonds, and of sheriffs to, in addition, produce receipts for the public moneys collected by them, it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners to declare the office vacant. Bray v. Barnard, 109 N. C. 44, 13 S. E. 729.

Same—Sheriff's Office.—It is the right, and the duty of the commissioners, to declare the office of sheriff vacant, and appoint some one for the unexpired term, whenever the incumbent thereof is found to be, on a re-election, in arrears in his settlement of the public taxes; or when he takes no notice whatever of a summons by the commissioners to appear before them on a day certain and justify or renew his official bond. People v. Green, 75 N. C. 329.

A vacancy in the office of sheriff cannot be declared until the alleged delinquent shall have had due notice and a day in court, if within reach of its process. State v. Pipkin, 77 N. C. 408.

Same—Office of Treasurer.—When a vacancy exists in the office of treasurer, it can only be filled by the county commissioners. State v. Hampton, 101 N. C. 629, 633, 8 S. E. 219.

County Property

14. To Make Orders Respecting County Property.—To make such orders respecting the corporate property of the county as may be deemed expedient. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Extent of Commissioner's Duty Hereunder.—This section imposes upon the commissioners the duty of employing such agents, and raising and appropriating such moneys, as may be sufficient to keep the public buildings in repair, and maintain them in such a condition as to prevent any noxious and offensive exhalations to proceed from any of them put to the private use of the people. Threadgill v. Commissioners, 99 N. C. 352, 355, 6 S. E. 189, 191.

In Threadgill v. Commissioners, 99 N. C. 352, 355, 6 S. E. 189, it was said: "A privy is not only a convenience, but a necessity; and the only fault attributable to any one is to suffer an accumulation of night soil, until, for want of cleaning, the emanating effluvia becomes a nuisance to the public. It is nowhere charged that the board has failed to use the means at their disposal to prevent such consequences, and this is the measure and extent of official responsibility."

15. To Sell or Lease Real Property.—To sell or lease any real property of the county and to make deeds or leases for the same to any purchaser or lessee. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Commissioners Do Not Have Power to Mortgage.—Power to sell is not a power to mortgage, and hence express authority conferred upon county commissioners, to sell real estate of the county, at a fair price, does not imply power to incumber the same by a mortgage. Vaughn v. Commissioners, 99 N. C. 352, 355, 6 S. E. 189, 191.

Right of Taxpayer to Bring Action to Restrain.—Though a proposed mortgage of county land by the county commissioners to secure bonds issued to build a Courthouse would be void, and equity would enjoin foreclosure thereunder, a taxpayer may bring an action to restrain the execution of the mortgage without waiting until foreclosure is threatened. Vaughn v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 636, 24 S. E. 425.

County Purchases

16. To Purchase for Public Buildings, and at Execution Sale.—To purchase real property necessary for any public county building, and for the support of the poor, and to determine the site thereof, where it has not already been located; and to purchase land at any execution sale, when it is deemed expedient to do so, to secure a debt due the county. The deed shall be made to the county, and the board may, in its discretion, sell any lands so purchased. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8; 1879, c. 144, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to site for county buildings, see subsection 10 of this section; as to sale or lease of realty, see subsection 15 of this section; as to corporate powers of county to hold realty, see section 1291.

Where a county, owning a site upon which to build its courthouse, is authorized by statute to buy, sell, and exchange real estate surrounding it upon such terms and conditions as it may deem just and proper, and for the best interest of the county, and in pursuance of this authority, has acquired conveyance of lands from adjoining owners upon condition that they shall be used as a public square and kept open for that purpose, etc., it is held, that whether the conditions be called conditions subsequent or otherwise, they were within the purview of the authority conferred upon the county; and, coming within the intent of the parties as expressed in the conveyance, and forming a material part of the consideration for the lands, they are valid and binding upon the county. Guilford County v. Porter, 167 N. C. 366, 83 S. E. 564.

17. To Purchase or Lease a County Farm, and Work Convicts Thereon.—To lease or purchase a county farm, and where proper provisions are made for securing and caring for convicts, such of them as are subject to road duty may be worked on said farm, and, in the discretion of the board, such farms may be made experimental farms. The court, in its discretion, may sentence convicted prisoners either to said farm or to the roads. Where a farm is purchased or leased in those counties having a road system, the board may work the convicts on such farms. (1915, c. 140.)

As to amendment of this subsection, see subsection 31 and note thereto.

Highways and Bridges

18. Laying out, Alteration and Discontinuance of Highways.—To exercise authority in laying out, altering, repairing and discontinuing highways; in establishing and settling ferries; in building and keeping up bridges; in laying off or discontinuing cartways; in providing draws in all bridges, where the same may be necessary for the convenient passage of vessels; in appointing overseers of highways; in excusing persons from working on the highways; in allowing and contracting for the building of toll-bridges, and taking bond from the builders thereof; and in licensing the erection of gates across highways. This authority shall be exercised under the rules, regulations, restrictions and penalties in all respects prescribed and imposed in the chapter entitled Roads and Highways. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

As to power to borrow money for necessary expenses, and to provide for payment thereof by taxation, see subsection 3 of this section.

Roads Are a Necessary Expense. — The well ordering and maintenance of the public roads of a county are "necessary expenses" within the meaning of our Constitution and statutes. Bunch v. Commissioners, 159 N. C. 335, 74 S. E. 1048.

A county is authorized to contract an indebtedness for the maintenance of its public roads, and such indebtedness being for a necessity, under Art. VII, sec. 7, of our Constitution, it is not required that a special act be passed authorizing it under the provisions of our Constitution, Art. II, sec. 14. Pritchard v. Commissioners, 159 N. C. 636, 75 S. E. 849.

Board of Commissioners May Be Deprived of Power over Roads. — The powers given to county commissioners over public highways, Const., Art. VII, sec. 2, may be taken away from them and conferred by statute upon other political agencies of the State, and such agencies may be deprived of the discretionary powers conferred by this section. Day v. Commissioners, 191 N. C. 780, 133 S. E. 164.

When Superior Court Not to Grant Injunction. — It is not competent for a superior court to grant an injunction against an order by the county commissioners within the sphere of their general duties, laying out a public road. McArthur v. McEachin, 64 N. C. 454.

Discretionary Powers of Board over Roads. — The laying out and maintenance of the public roads or highways of a county are matters left largely within the discretion of the county commissioners, and, in the absence of express legislation to the contrary, they are not to be controlled by a vote of the localities affected, either informal or otherwise; and where it is shown that they have officially dealt with a question largely submitted to their judgment, their action may not be controlled or interferred with by the courts, unless it is established that there has been a gross or manifest abuse of their discretion, or it is made clearly to appear that they have not acted for the public interest, but in promotion of personal or private ends. Edwards v. Commissioners, 170 N. C. 448, 87 S. E. 346.

The order in which work upon the public highways is to be performed is within the sound discretion of the county commissioners, and a finding by the court that they have exercised this discretion honestly and in a manner which they conceived to be for the best interests of the people of the county, excludes any interference by the courts. Glenn v. Commissioners, 139 N. C. 412, 52 S. E. 58.

Where the county commissioners have acted within the powers conferred on them by ch. 122, Public Laws of 1913, establishing a scheme for the laying out, establishing and maintenance, etc., of roads for the different townships therein, and have accordingly issued bonds and expended most of the money on the township roads, they may not be enjoined at the suit of the taxpayer from laying out and constructing an additional road, with the use of the money remaining on hand from the sale of the bonds, upon allegation, as to this particular road, that it was not for the pubpublic convenience, or that the majority of the voters were not in favor of it. Edwards v. Commissioners, 170 N. C. 448, 87 S. E. 346.

Failure to Give Notice of Proposed Route to Landowners. —The county commissioners will not be enjoined from building a public road in a township of a county from the proceeds of the sale of bonds, at the suit of taxpayers, because notice had not been given to landowners along the route proposed. Edwards v. Commissioners, 170 N. C. 448, 449, 87 S. E. 346.

Cannot Bind County by Contract to Perpetually Maintain Road. — A board of commissioners has no power to enter into a contract with a citizen to perpetually maintain and keep in repair a public road or bridge giving to such citizen a cause of action against the county whenever, in the exercise of its discretion in the interest of the public, the same or another board shall deem it proper to discontinue such road or bridge. Glenn v. Commissioners, 139 N. C. 412, 52 S. E. 58.

Control of Bridges and Ferries. — While county commissioners control public bridges and ferries, it is by virtue of their duties, imposed by law, in regard to public roads. Greenleaf v. Board, 123 N. C. 31, 31 S. E. 264.

Public bridges and ferries are incidental to public roads and are not to be established or assumed, or maintained, as county charges, unless as parts thereof, in actual existence or in contemplation. Greenleaf v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 31, 31 S. E. 264.

Same—Rests Solely with Commissioners. — The county commissioners alone have the power to determine upon the necessity for the construction or repair of bridges and to contract for the same, and such power can not be delegated. McPhail v. Board, 119 N. C. 330, 25 S. E. 958.

When Injunction Will Be Refused. — A citizen is not entitled to an injunction restraining a board of commissioners from proceeding to erect a bridge across a river at a certain point, though there is no public highway leading to such point, where the court finds that the board has in contemplation the opening of a public road to such point, and that arrangements have been made for that purpose. Glenn v. Commissioners, 139 N. C. 412, 52 S. E. 58.

When Bridge Not Part of Highway. — It is ultra vires for county commissioners to accept a bridge to be maintained at the county's cost, where it appears it is not a part of a public road, in existence or in contemplation of being made —and they may be enjoined from doing so. Greenleaf v. Board, 123 N. C. 31, 31 S. E. 264.

Where a citizen, at his own expense, constructed a bridge and opened up the public roads over his lands leading to the bridge on both sides of the river, and the board of commissioners accepted said bridge as a public bridge and have kept it in repair ever since, the fact that the commissioners paid him only a part of the cost of its construction did not change its character as a part of the public highway, subject to the control of the commissioners, as all other bridges in the county. Glenn v. Commissioners, 139 N. C. 412, 52 S. E. 58.

Liability of Commissioners in Placing Drawbridge.—When county commissioner commits an honest error in placing, or refusing to place, a drawbridge, he is not liable. Staton v. Wimberly, 122 N. C. 107, 29 S. E. 63.

19. To Raise Money for Highways.—To raise by tax the necessary highway moneys, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Cross References. — As to levy of necessary county taxes, see subsection 2 of this section; as to power to borrow money for necessary expenses, see subdivision 3 of this section.

This duty is obligatory. Long v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 273, 278.

Public Roads Necessary Expense. — The building and maintenance of public roads of a county is a necessary county expense, and being authorized by statute the question is not required by the Constitution to be submitted to the voters for approval. Const., Art. VII, sec. 2; C. S., 1297(18), (19); C. S., 1325; Lassiter v. Board, 188 N. C. 379, 124 S. E. 738.

Debts Contracted for Highways Are Necessary. — Debts contracted by the county for building and maintaining its highways are for necessary expenses, not requiring legislative sanction, when not exceeding the limitation. Guire v. Board, 177 N. C. 516, 99 S. E. 430.

Specific Funds May Not Be Exceeded. — When specific funds are provided they may not be exceeded, nor may any part of the general funds of the couty be applied in payment of a contractor. Hornthall v. Commissioners, 126 N. C. 26, 35 S. E. 191.

Vote of the People Unnecessary. — The county commissioners, when authorized or commanded to do so, may levy a tax in excess of the constitutional limit for the purpose of road improvement without the sanction of a popular vote. State v. Board, 122 N. C. 812, 30 S. E. 352; Herring v. Dixon, 122 N. C. 420, 29 S. E. 368.

20. To Appoint an Inspector of Highways and Bridges.—To appoint an inspector of highways and bridges for the county, if deemed necessary; to fix and provide for his compensation and regulate his duties, not inconsistent with the laws of the state. The commissioners of two or more counties may unite in employing an inspector of highways and bridges, and apportioning his compensation between the respective counties as may be agreed upon. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

21. To Regulate Speed of Automobiles.—To regulate the speed of automobiles, motorcycles and other like vehicles on the public roads and bridges, and make such ordinances as they may deem necessary governing the same. This subsection shall not apply to the counties of Mecklenburg and New Hanover. (Rev., s. 1318; 1905, c. 331.)

22. To Construct and Repair Bridges.—To construct and repair bridges in the county, and to raise by tax the money necessary therefor, and when a bridge is necessary over a stream which divides one county from another, the board of commissioners of each county shall join in constructing or repairing such bridge; and the charge thereof shall be defrayed by the counties concerned, in proportion to the number of taxable polls in each. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Duty Obligatory. — The duty to raise the money to meet the costs under this section is obligatory. Long v. Commissioners, 76 N. C. 273, 278.

Special Act Unnecessary. — The cost of building and repairing bridges is a necessary expense of a county, and hence, the levy of a special tax for such purpose under the authority of an act of the General Assembly is constitutional, though not submitted to a vote of the people as required by sec. 7, Art. VII, of Constitution. Herring v. Dixon, 122 N. C. 420, 29 S. E. 368.

When Courts Will Not Review. — The courts will not review the action of county commissioners in building a bridge wholly situated in the county, where there is no evidence of fraud or oppression; such matters being entirely within the discretionary powers conferred by law upon the commissioners, when exercised in good faith. Davenport v. Commissioners, 163 N. C. 147, 79 S. E. 423.

When Order Confers No Power. — An order passed by a board of county commissioners that the repairs of a certain bridge are referred to "R. J. H. and A. McN.," conferred no power upon such persons to make a contract, but only to ascertain and report to the commissioners, for their action, the facts connected with and the cost of the repairs. McPhail v. Board, 119 N. C. 330, 25 S. E. 958.

Manner of Arriving at Installments Held Valid. — The agreement by the commissioners to pay each year a sum of money equal to the aggregate amount of the plaintiff's tax for that year till the whole cost of the bridge should be discharged, was not an unlawful appropriation of the tax devoted by law to other purposes, but simply the means of ascertaining the amount of each annual installment. Cleveland Cotton Mills v. Commissioners, 108 N. C. 678, 13 S. E. 271.

When Two Counties Share Expenses. — County bridges across county lines must be authorized by both counties and built at joint expense. McPeeters v. Blankenship, 123 N. C. 651, 31 S. E. 876.

Same—Apportionment of Cost.—And the cost is to be apportioned according to the number of taxable poles in each. Penn. Bridge Co. v. Commissioners, 151 N. C. 215, 216, 65 S. E. 895.

A statute providing that the divisional line shall run up the "middle of the stream" in question and that said line shall be "surveyed and marked," does not vary the rule of apportioning the expenses of such bridges between the counties from that prescribed by said section. Penn. Bridge Co. v. Commissioners, 151 N. C. 215, 65 S. E. 895.

When One County Refuses to Join. — Where a county bridge is a necessity to one county alone, across a boundary stream, and the adjoining county refuses to join in the construction, an enabling act of the Legislature must be obtained. McPeeters v. Blankenship, 123 N. C. 651, 31 S. E. 876.

23. To Appoint Commissioners to Open Rivers and Creeks.—To appoint a commissioner to open and clear the rivers and creeks within the county, or where such river or creek forms a county line or a part thereof. For this purpose the board is authorized to withdraw from the public roads such hands as may be deemed necessary, and allot them to such work under overseers and the direction of the commissioners. The board may impose the duties of this subsection on the inspector of highways and bridges when appointed; and shall in all respects conduct the opening and clearing of such rivers and creeks as prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

24. To Grant Right to Bridge Navigable Streams.—To grant, subject to the approval and permission of the war department, to any person, firm or corporation owning or occupying lands on both sides of any navigable stream or creek lying wholly within the limits of the county, the right to construct and maintain a bridge across the said navigable water between the lands owned or occupied by them upon such terms and conditions and for such time as the said board shall deem advisable and proper. Before any order allowing the construction of the same shall be made, it shall be made to appear to the board that four weeks notice of the application for such right has been given by posting a notice at the courthouse door and four other public places in the county, and also (if there be a newspaper published in the county) by publishing once a week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper in the county. Any party aggrieved may appeal from the order of the commissioners to the superior court of the county in term time. (P. L. 1911, c. 227.)

Inspection and Licenses

25. To License Peddlers.—To license peddlers and retailers of spirituous and other liquors as prescribed by law. No license shall be good for more than one year, nor granted to two or more persons to peddle as partners in trade. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

As to prohibition, see section 3367 et seq.

Order Revocable.—An order granting license may be revoked at the same session of the board. State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741.

Can Issue Only upon Application to Board.—A license to retail liquor can issue only upon the application of the party to the board of county commissioners for an order directing the sheriff to grant the same. State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741.

Sheriff's Permission Does Not Protect.—Permission given by the sheriff to retail without such order previously made is in violation of the law and does not protect the seller from prosecution. State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741.

Limited Legal Discretion of Commissioners.—They have a limited legal discretion, and in passing upon an application for license, they have a right to take into consideration the questions, whether the demand of the public requires an increase of such accommodations, and whether the place at which it is proposed to establish a bar-room is a suitable one. Muller & Co. v. Commissioners, 89 N. C. 171, 172; Board v. Smith, 110 N. C. 417, 14 S. E. 972.

This issuance of a license to sell liquor by a board of county commissioners is a matter of discretion, and a mandamus will not issue to compel them to do so, it not being alleged and shown that their refusal to grant a license was arbitrary. Jones v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 436, 11 S. E. 514; Miller & Co. v. Commissioners, 89 N. C. 171.

The commissioners of a county do not possess the arbitrary power of suppressing all places for retailing spirituous liquors; nor are they bound to license an applicant though he be qualified by proof of good moral character. Muller & Co. v. Commissioners, 89 N. C. 171.

26. To License Auctioneers.—To license for the term of one year any number of persons to exercise the trade and business of auctioneers in each county, and to take their bonds as prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

27. To Establish Public Landings, and Places of Inspection and Inspectors.—To establish such public landings and places of inspection as the board may think proper; and to appoint such inspectors in any town or city as may be authorized by law. Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

This section does not bestow upon the commissioners the power to condemn land under eminent domain; but they are confined to lands already dedicated to a public use sufficient to embrace or include the purpose proposed by them, or they must acquire a sight by agreement or purchase. Commissioners v. Bonner, 153 N. C. 66, 68 S. E. 970.

Poor and Hospitals

28. To Provide for the Maintenance of the Poor.—To provide by tax for the maintenance, comfort and well-ordering of the poor; to employ, biennially, some competent person as overseer of the poor; to institute proceedings by the warrant of the chairman against any person coming into the county who is likely to become chargeable thereto, and cause the removal of such poor person to the county where he was last legally settled; and to recover by action in the superior court from the said county all the charges and expenses incurred for the maintenance or removal of such poor person. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

As to county poor generally, see section 1335, et seq.

No Recovery by One Officiously Providing for Pauper.—Although a person may be a proper subject of county charge, any one who officiously provides for such person cannot recover of the county the amount of his outlay. Copple v. Commissioners, 138 N. C. 127, 132, 50 S. E. 574.

Each County to Be Charged for Its Poor.—It is the manifest purpose of the law to charge each county with the support of its own poor. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 101 N. C. 520, 524, 8 S. E. 176; State v. Elam, 61 N. C. 460.

May Require Charges to Be Placed in Poorhouse.—Where the county commissioners have provided a poorhouse, they have the right to require that all persons who are cared for at their expense shall be placed in the house which they have provided for the purpose. Copple v. Commissioners, 138 N. C. 127, 132, 50 S. E. 574.

Residence or Settlement Governs.—The liability of a county for the support of a pauper does not depend upon the law of domicile or citizenship but upon that of residence or settlement, as prescribed in sec. 3544 of the Code. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 101 N. C. 520, 8 S. E. 176.

29. To Establish Public Hospitals and Tuberculosis Dispensaries.—To establish public hospitals, establish and maintain homes for indigent orphan children, for the county in cases of necessity, and to establish and maintain wholly or in part one or more tuberculosis dispensaries or sanatoria, and to make rules, regulations and by-laws for preventing the spread of contagious and infectious diseases, and for taking care of those afflicted thereby, the same not being inconsistent with the laws of the state; and to raise by taxation the necessary moneys to defray the charges and expenses so incurred. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8; 1923, c. 81.)

Editor's Note.—This subsection was amended by the Laws of 1923, c. 81, by writing after the word "hospital," and before the word "for", in the second line the following: "establish and maintain homes for indigent orphan children.

For a later and more detailed provision for the establishment and maintenance of homes for, not merely orphans, but all indigent and delinquent children, see subsection 43 of this section. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 273.

Summary of Powers Granted Hereunder.—In reference to the powers conferred by law upon boards of county commissioners, by the subsection, they can establish public hospitals for their several counties in cases of necessity, and make rules, regulations and by-laws for preventing the spread of contagious and infectious diseases and for taking care of those afflicted thereby—the same not being inconsistent with the laws of the state. Prichard v. Board, 126 N. C. 908, 911, 36 S. E. 353.

Cannot Burn Infected Residence.—By no reasonable construction of the sub-section can it be held that the board of county commissioners can burn a residence-house to prevent the spread of contagious and infectious diseases. A proper disinfection would be the extent of their powers in respect to property thus tainted or infected. Prichard v. Commissioners, 126 N. C. 908, 911, 36 S. E. 353.

Liability of Commissioners.—County commissioners are not liable for failure to establish hospitals under this section. Bell v. Commissioners, 127 N. C. 85, 37 S. E. 136.

Obligation to Quarantine.—The obligation on municipal corporations to quarantine and care for persons afflicted with certain contagious and infectious diseases is created entirely by statute. Board v. Henderson, 163 N. C. 114, 79 S. E. 442.

Prisons and Prisoners

30. To provide for a House of Correction.—To make provisions for the erection in each county of a house of correction, where vagrants and persons guilty of misdemeanors shall be restrained and usefully employed; to regulate the employment of labor therein; to appoint a superintendent thereof, and such assistants as are deemed necessary, and to fix their compensation. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

31. To Provide for Employment of Prisoners.—To provide for the employment on the highways or public works in the county of all persons condemned to imprisonment with hard labor, and not sent to the penitentiary. All prisoners sentenced to jail for any term less than sixty days may, as a part of such sentence, by the court in which such prisoners are tried and convicted, be sentenced to work at hard labor on the public streets of any city or town, the county farm, or any other public works of the county wherein such prisoners are tried and convicted. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8; 1931, c. 302.)

As to authority of counties and towns to hire out certain prisoners, see sec. 1356; as to county prisoners generally, see sec. 1344, et seq.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931, according to its title, purports to amend this and subsection 17 of this section.

Townships

32. To Divide County into Townships.—To divide each county into convenient districts, called townships, and to determine the boundaries and prescribe the names of said townships. A map and survey of said townships shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the board of commissioners, and also in the office of the secretary of state. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The Constitution of 1868 provided for the division of the several counties of the state into convenient districts, which were designated as townships. Upon the townships thus created was bestowed corporate powers for necessary purposes of local government. A clerk and two justices, elected biennially, constituted the board of trustees for each township. This board was given control over taxes and finances of the township, subject to the supervision of the county commissioners. Const. 1868, Art. VII, secs. 3, 4, 5.

The Act of 1868-'69 (Bat. Rev. C. 112) provided that a suit by or against a township in its corporate capacity should be in the name of its board of trustees. This act was passed to give effect to the provisions of the Constitution; subsequently by c. 106 of the Acts of 1873-'74, the provisions of the Act of 1868-'69 were expressly repealed. In 1876-'77 the General Assembly, under the power given it in the amendment Constitution of 1875, enacted what is generally known as the "County Government Act," whereby all the provisions of the Constitution of 1868 in regard to township boards of trustees were abrogated, and the provisions of the act substituted in the place thereof. The substituted provisions were to the effect that the townships already established and those thereafter to be created should be distinguished by well-defined boundaries; "but that no township should have or exercise any corporate powers whatever, unless allowed by act of the General Assembly to be exercised under the supervision of the board of county commissioners."

Acting upon the authority thus given it, the General Assembly, by the said "County Government Act," repealed the clause of the Constitution which gives corporate powers to the board of trustees for the township; also that one which provided for the election of officers of the township who ex officio should constitute the board of trustees; also that one which gave such trustees the control of the taxes and finances of their township, and in lieu thereof declared that "no township should have or exercise any corporate powers whatever," unless allowed to do so by act of the Assembly.

It is true that the same act provides that the territorial limits of the townships as established should be preserved; but this was for the convenience of the citizens thereof, and because the law requires that in all general elections for the state there should be at least one polling place in each township. Wallace v. Board, 84 N. C. 164, 165. Since the Act of 1876-'77, ch. 141, was passed providing that the board of county commissioners should have and exercise the jurisdiction and powers vested in and exercised by the boards of trustees of the several counties, the question arises, "What are the jurisdiction and powers thus transferred?" As the Act of 1876-'77 abrogates sec. 5 Art. VII, of the Constitution, which authorized the creation of the boards of trustees and defined their powers and duties, when the same Act vested in the commissioners the same powers and jurisdiction that had been exercised by the board of trustees of the several township, it must be that the Legislature had reference only to the constitutional jurisdiction and powers which had been vested in the township board of trustees by sec. 5, Art. VII, of the Constitution of 1868, and did not include those duties and obligations imposed by legislative enactments. Jones etc., Co. v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 278, 282.

With the destruction of the township as a corporate being in favor of the county, the board of township trustees could no longer be a party to a suit. The question of vested rights arose. However, in several cases it was held that a party dealing with a municipal corporation has no such vested right growing out of his contract with the same as is protected by the Federal Constitution. It is a public institution, and the state may destroy its corporate powers, leaving the party damaged to seek relief by an appeal to the Legislature. Wallace v. Board, 84 N. C. 164; Mitchell v. Board, 71 N. C. 400; Jones etc., Co. v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 278.

33. To Erect, Divide and Alter Townships.—To erect, divide, change the names of, or alter townships in the manner following: In any county, any three freeholders of each township to be affected may, after the notice presently to be mentioned, apply by petition to the board of commissioners to erect a new township, or divide an existing township, or change the name of or alter the boundaries thereof. Notice of the application shall be posted in one or more public places in each of such townships and published in a newspaper printed in the county, if there is one, for at least four weeks preceding the meeting at which the application is made to the board. No township shall have or exercise any corporate powers whatsoever, unless authorized by an act of the general assembly, to be exercised under the supervision of the board of commissioners. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8; 1876-7, c. 141, ss. 3, 5.)

Legislative Power to Subdivide and Bestow Corporate Functions.—It is within the power and is the province of the Legislature to subdivide the territory of the State and invest the inhabitants of such subdivisions with corporate functions. McCormac v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 441, 444.

Townships are within the power and control of the General Assembly, just as are counties, cities, towns and other municipal corporations. It may confer upon them, or any single one of them, corporate powers, with the view to accomplish any lawful purpose. Such powers may be conferred for a single purpose as well as many. Semble, the people of localities may be incorporated into road districts, school districts and the like. Brown v. Commissioners, 100 N. C. 92, 5 S. E. 178.

Townships have a distinctive existence for specified purposes created by statute, and the Legislature may confer upon and invest them with corporate powers for a particular pertinent purpose, as to subscribe for the capital stock of a railroad company, to issue its bonds to raise money to pay for the same, to levy taxes upon the property of the taxpayers therein to pay the accruing interest upon such bonds, and to pay the same at their maturity. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 265, 12 S. E. 69.

Need Not Be Created by Direct Legislative Action.—It is not essential that such sub-divisions of territory shall always be created directly by legislative enactment. In many cases, certain existing agencies, or agencies to be provided, are required by statute to establish them, and when established, they become, by the force of law, invested with certain powers and required to discharge prescribed duties. McCormac v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 441, 445.

County Officers May Be Charged with Township Duties.—The townships are constituent parts of the county organization, and the county officers may well be charged with duties and authority in respect to debts they may be allowed by statute to contract. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 265, 12 S. E. 69.

County Bonds Not to Be Issued upon Note of One Township.—While the building of public roads has been held a necessary expense, the application of the principle may not be extended to instances where a statute requires the county to issue its bonds for road purposes to obtain aid for a township or local taxing district therein, upon the approval of the voters of the particular district alone, and without benefit to the others. Commissioners v. Lacy, 174 N. C. 141, 142, 93 S. E. 482.

Commissioners' Power to Issue Township Bonds. — The county commissioners are not authorized to issue bonds on the credit of a township for the construction of a railroad. Graves v. Board, 135 N. C. 49, 47 S. E. 134.

Township Trustee's Liability for Torts. — A township board of trustees incorporated by the Legislature to maintain and construct the public roads of the township are clothed with duties governmental in their nature and for the public benefit; and while strictly acting in pursuance thereof they are not liable for a pure tort of their employees or agents in inflicting a personal injury upon others. Price v. Board, 172 N. C. 84, 89 S. E. 1066.

34. To Apportion Funds between Altered, Townships.—When a township has been altered, erected, or divided, to apportion, in its discretion, the public funds of such townships between the new township divisions or subdivisions, and the warrant of the board upon the treasurer for the apportionment shall constitute a valid voucher for the payment thereof. In those counties where the township public roads are under the control of road trustees, the board shall appoint the requisite number of trustees to perform the duties of the office until the regular date for the appointment or election of such trustees and until their successors are elected and qualified; but this shall not apply where another method of election has been provided. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 44.)

Miscellaneous

35. To Authorize Chairman to Issue Subpœnas.—To authorize the chairman to issue subpoenas to compel the attendance before the board of persons, and the production of books and papers relating to the affairs of the county, for the purpose of examination on any matter within the jurisdiction of the board. The subpoena shall be served by the sheriff on any constable to whom it is delivered; and upon return of personal service thereof, who ever neglects to comply with the subpoena, or refuses to answer any proper question shall be guilty of contempt and punishable therefor by the board. A witness is bound in such cases to answer all the questions which he would be bound to answer in like case in a court of justice; but his testimony given before the board shall not be used against the witness on the trial of any criminal prosecution other than for perjury committed on the examination. The chairman of the board of county commissioners for each county is authorized in his official capacity to administer oaths in any matter coming before either of such boards. Any member of such board while temporarily acting as such chairman has and may exercise like authority. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

36. To Audit Accounts. — To audit accounts against the county, and direct the raising of the moneys necessary to defray them. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

As to neglect of duty a misdemeanor, see section 1302.

Claim Must Be Audited.—A claim against a county must be audited and approved at a regular meeting of the board of commissioners, First Nat. Bank v. Warlick, 125 N. C. 593, 594, 34 S. E. 687.

Must Be Itemized and Verified.—No account shall be audited by a board of county commissioners unless it is itemized and verified. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 49 S. E. 330.

Court Cannot Interfere with Discretionary Power of Commissioners.—The courts cannot interfere with the exercise of the discretion of the board of county commissioners in ordering an investigation by public accountants of the books of the various departments of the county government. Wilson v. Holding, 170 N. C. 352, 86 S. E. 1043.

Not Subject to Review.—The board of county commissioners is not such a judicial tribunal, that its decision in passing upon claims against the county can be reviewed on appeal. The proper remedy to test the validity of a rejected claim is by civil action. Jones v. Commissioners, 88 N. C. 56.

37. To Appoint Proxies.—To appoint proxies to represent in any annual or other meetings the shares or other interest held by any county in a railroad company, or other corporation, under the charter of such corporation, or under any special acts of the general assembly, authorizing county subscriptions in such cases. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

38. To Procure Weights and Measures.—To procure for each county sealed weights and measures, according to the standard prescribed by Congress; and to elect a standard keeper, who shall qualify before the board, and give bond approved by the board, as prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; R. C., c. 117, s. 4; 1868, c. 20, s. 26.)

39. To Adopt a County Seal.—To adopt a seal for the county, a description and impression of which shall be filed in the office of superior court clerk and of the secretary of state. (Rev., s. 1318; Code, s. 707; 1868, c. 20, s. 8.)

40. To Promote Farmers Cooperative Demonstration Work.—To cooperate with the state and national departments of agriculture to promote the farmers cooperative demonstration work, and to appropriate such sum as they may agree upon for the purpose. (1911, c. 1.)

41. To Appropriate for the National Guard.—To appropriate such sums of money to the various organizations of the national guard, and at such times, as the board may deem proper. (1915, c. 259.)

42. To Make Appropriations for Libraries. — Together with the county board of education of any county in which there is a public city or town library, in their discretion, to cooperate with the trustees of said library in extending the service of such library to the rural communities of the county, and to appropriate out of the funds under their control an amount sufficient to pay the expense of such library extension service. (1917, c. 149.)

43. Homes for Indigent and Delinquent Children.—To provide for the establishment and maintenance, with the approval of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, of such home or homes for indigent and delinquent children in said county, as to them may seem proper or necessary, or to co-operate with the board of county commissioners or other governing authority in any other county or counties in the establishment and maintenance, at some mutually agreeable point, of a district home for such purposes, said district to be established by agreement and said home to be established and maintained upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the boards of county commissioners of the several counties concerned. (1927, c. 248.)

Editor's Note.—The first provision we find for a home for indigent children is in the amendment, Laws of 1923, c. 81, to subsection 29 of this section. However, that merely referred to indigent and delinquent orphan children. This subsection, providing a more detailed and broad provision for the establishment and maintenance of a home for indigent and delinquent children, was added by the Acts of 1927, c. 248.

§ 1299. To settle disputed county lines. — When there is any dispute concerning the dividing line between counties, the board of commissioners of each county interested in the adjustment of said line, a majority of the board consenting thereto, may appoint one or more commissioners, on the part of each county, to settle and fix the line in dispute; and their report, when ratified by a majority of the commissioners in each county, is conclusive of the location of the true line, and shall be recorded in the register's office of each county, and in the office of the secretary of state. If the board of commissioners of any county refuses upon request of the other county or counties to appoint one or more commissioners pursuant to this section to settle and fix the line or lines in dispute, then, and in such event, the county or counties making such request may file a verified petition before the resident judge of the district in which the said county or counties lie, or the judge holding the courts thereof for the time being, and in the event that said counties shall lie in more than one judicial district, to the resident judge or the judge holding the courts of either district, setting forth briefly the line or lines which are in dispute; the refusal of the other county or counties to settle and fix the line in dispute, pursuant to this section; whereupon, such judge before whom such petition is filed shall issue a notice to the other county or counties, returnable before him within not less than ten nor more than twenty days, and if it appear to such judge upon hearing said notice, and he shall find as a fact that there is bona fide dispute as to the true location of the boundary line or lines referred to in the petition and that the county or counties have refused to settle and fix the line in dispute as provided in this section, such judge shall thereupon appoint three (3) persons, one person from each of the counties and some disinterested person from some adjoining county, who shall go upon the ground, hear such evidence and testimony as shall be offered and make report to the said judge as to the true location of the boundary line or lines in dispute. The judge shall thereupon ratify the report and a copy thereof shall be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of each of the counties and shall be indexed and cross indexed and shall also be recorded in the office of the Secretary of State and the location so fixed shall be conclusive. If it shall appear to the judge that the services of a surveyor are necessary he shall appoint such surveyor and fix his compensation. The cost thereof shall be defrayed by two counties in proportion to the number of taxable polls in each. (Rev., s. 1332; Code, s. 721; R. C., c. 27; 1836, c. 3; 1925, c. 251.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by the Laws of 1925, ch. 251, by providing that in case the county commissioners refuse to appoint one or more commissioners to fix the lines in dispute the judge may appoint. If, after the issuance and return of notice, there is a bona fide dispute, the judge is to appoint three commissioners, one from each of the disputing counties, and one from a neutral county. After the said commissioners make their report, and it is confirmed by the judge, it is recorded in the office of the register of deeds, and a copy sent to the office of the secretary of state.

§ 1301. Approving insufficient bond misdemeanor.—If any county commissioner shall approve any official bond which he knows or believes to be insufficient in the penal sum, or in the security thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be removed from office and forever disqualified from holding or enjoying any office of honor, trust or profit under the state. (Rev., s. 3573; Code, s. 1880; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 70.)

Cross Reference.—As to duty of county commissioners to take and approve sheriff's bonds, see sec. 3931; as to duty of commissioners when sheriff's bonds are insufficient, see sec. 3932.

§ 1302. Neglect of duty misdemeanor.—If any county commissioner shall neglect to perform any duty required of him by law as a member of the board, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall also be liable to a penalty of two hundred dollars for each offense, to be paid to any person who shall sue for the same. (Rev. s. 3590; Code, s. 711.)

Cross References.—As to willfully failing to discharge duties see section 4384; as to failure to make reports and discharge other duties, see section 4385; as to liability of commissioners in taking bonds of a sheriff, see section 3933.

In General.—See Harrell v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 225, 173 S. E. 614, wherein this section is construed with §§ 1290, 1297 and 1317 to show implied legislative authority to levy taxes to keep county buildings in repair.

Essence of the Offense. — The essence of the offense created by the section is the "neglect to perform any duty required by law, and an indictment drawn under it cannot be sustained by proof of the act of willfully taking a greater sum as mileage than was due. State v. Norris, 111 N. C. 652, 656, 16 S. E. 2.

When the Remedy is by Mandamus.—When the county commissioners have failed in the performance of their duties, as to permit and require an interference of the court by civil process, the remedy is by mandamus. Board v. Commissioners, 150 N. C. 116, 52 S. E. 724.

Liability of Commissioners.—A county commissioner is liable to the penalty imposed when he acts corruptly or grossly, intentionally and willfully neglects or refuses to perform his duty; but where he commits an error in the honest exercise of his judgment he is not liable to the penalty. Staton v. Wimberly, 122 N. C. 107, 29 S. E. 63.

A complaint before a justice alleging the nonpayment of the penalty accrued under this section for neglect of duty as a member of the board of commissioners for his failure to require an itemized account, fully verified by the oath of the claimant, before he audited and approved such account, as required by section 1330, states a cause of action. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 49 S. E. 330.

Same—Failure to Declare Sheriff's Office Vacant. — A member of a board of county commissioners is liable for the penalty prescribed by this section, for failure of the board to declare the office of sheriff vacant and fill the same, when such sheriff has not complied with the requirements of the statutes, in respect to the renewal of his official bonds and accounting for public moneys received by him. Bray v. Creekmore, 109 N. C. 49, 13 S. E. 723.

Same—Six Months' School Term.—A failure on the part of the commissioners to levy taxes to finance the public schools for the minimum term of six months is an indictable offense under this section. Board v. Commissioners, 150 N. C. 116, 121, 63 S. E. 724.

When Defendant to Seek Bill of Particulars.—If a defendant desires further particulars, under an indictment for neglect of duty as a public officer, he should ask for a bill of particulars. State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 655, 61 S. E. 585.

Art. 2A. Improved Methods of County Government

§ 1302(1). Forms of government.—Two forms of county government are recognized, to be designated as the County Commissioners Form and the Manager Form. (1927, c. 91, s. 1.)

I. County Commissioners Form.

§ 1302(2). County Comissioners form defined.—That the County Commissioners Form of county government shall be that form in which the government is administered by a board of county commissioners, without a county manager. (1927, c. 91, s. 2.)

§ 1302(3). Modifications of regular forms.—That there may be modifications of the County Commissioners Form, adopted as hereinafter provided, as follows:

(1) The number of commissioners may be increased from three to five or decreased from five to three.

(2) All commissioners may be elected for two years.

(3) At the first election, if the board is to have three members, one may be elected for two years, one for four years, and one for six years, but if the board is to have five members, two may be elected for two years, two for four years, and one for six years. (1927, c. 91, s. 3.)

§ 1302(4). How change may be made.—Upon a petition filed with the board of county commissioners, signed by voters not less in number than ten per cent of the whole number of voters who voted in the last election at which votes were cast for Governor, asking for the adoption of either of the modifications above set forth, the board of commissioners shall order an election, but may order such election without petition, which election shall be held under the general law governing elections for members of the General Assembly in the county, presenting the question of making the change asked for in the petition. If a majority of the votes cast at such election shall be in favor of the change designated, it shall go into effect at the expiration of the term of office of the then existing board of commissioners. At the general election for county commissioners next preceding the date when the said change goes into effect, the members of the board shall be elected in accordance with the plan adopted. If the members of the board are to be elected for different terms, the term for which each member is to serve shall be indicated in the election; and the members so elected shall hold office for the terms designated, and at the expiration of the term of each member, his successor shall be elected for a term of six years. (1927, c. 91, s. 4.)

II. Manager Form.

§ 1302(5). Manager appointed or designated.—The board of county commissioners may appoint a county manager who shall be the administrative head of the county government, and shall be responsible for the administration of all the departments of the county government which the board of county commissioners has the authority to control. He shall be appointed with regard to merit only, and he need not be a resident of the county at the time of his appointment. In lieu of the appointment of a county manager, the board may impose and confer upon the chairman of the board of county commissioners the duties and powers of a manager, as hereinafter set forth, and under such circumstances said chairman shall be considered a whole-time chairman. Or the board may impose and confer such powers and duties upon any other officer or agent of the county who may be sufficiently qualified to perform such duties, and the compensation paid to such officer or agent may be revised or adjusted in order that it may be adequate compensation for all the duties of his office. The term "manager" herein used shall apply to such chairman, officer, or agent in the performance of such duties. (1927, c. 91, s. 5.)

§ 1302(6). Duties of the manager.—It shall be the duty of the county manager (1) to be the administrative head of the county government for the board of commissioners; (2) to see that all the orders, resolutions, and regulations of the board of commissioners are faithfully executed; (3) to attend all the meetings of the board, and recommend such measures for adoption as he may deem expedient; (4) to make reports to the board from time to time upon the affairs of the county, and to keep the board fully advised as to the financial condition of the county and its future financial needs; (5) to appoint, with the approval of the county commissioners, such subordinate officers, agents, and employees for the general administration of county affairs as the board may consider necessary, except such officers as are required to be elected by popular vote, or whose appointment is otherwise provided by law; (6) to perform such other duties as may be required of him by the board of commissioners. (1927, c. 91, s. 6.)

§ 1302(7). Removal of officers and agents.—The county manager may remove such officers, agents, and employees as he may appoint, and upon any appointment or removal he shall report the same to the next meeting of the board of commissioners. (1927, c. 91, s. 7.)

§ 1302(8). Compensation.—The county manager shall hold his office at the will of the board of commissioners, and shall be entitled to such reasonable compensation for his services as the board of commissioners may determine. The board shall also fix the compensation of such subordinate officers, agents and employees as may be appointed by the county manager. (1927, c. 91, s. 8.)

§ 1302(9). Manager plan adopted by popular vote.—If the board of county commissioners does not exercise its discretion to appoint or designate a county manager, as above provided, a petition may be filed with the board, signed by voters not less in number than ten per cent of the whole number of voters who voted in the last election at which votes were cast for Governor, asking for the adoption of the manager form of county government. Upon the filing of such petition, the board of commissioners shall order an election to be held under the general laws governing elections for members of the General Assembly in the county, presenting the question of the adoption of the manager form of county government. If a majority of the votes cast at such election shall be in favor of such manager form, the board of commissioners shall proceed to appoint a county manager as provided in this act. (1927, c. 91, s. 9.)

§ 1302(10). How often elections may be held.—Not more than one election may be held within any period of twenty-three months upon the question of modifying the county commissioners plan, nor more than one election in any period of twenty-three months upon the question of adopting the manager plan, whether or not any such election resulted in favor of the question submitted or against the same. (1927, c. 91, s. 10.)

III. Certain Powers and Duties of the Board.

§ 1302(11). Powers and duties of the board.—The powers and duties of the board of commissioners under the manager form, or the county commissioners form, whether modified as herein provided or not modified, shall be the same as now provided by general or local laws for the administration of the county government, and such additional powers and duties as may be given in this act. But whatever form is adopted, or shall be in use in a county, it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners to provide, so far as possible, consistent with law, for unifying fiscal management of county affairs, for preserving the sources of revenue, for safeguarding the collection of all revenue, for guarding adequately all expenditures, for securing proper accounting of all funds, and for preserving the physical property of the county. (1927, c. 91, s. 11.)

§ 1302(12). Purchasing agent.—It shall be the duty of the board of commissioners to provide for the purchasing of supplies for the different departments of the county government in such manner as may prevent waste and duplication in purchasing, and may obtain the advantage of purchasing in larger quantities. To that end the board may designate some competent person, either a member of the board or some other officer or agent of the county, as purchasing agent, whose duty it shall be to superintend the purchasing of all material and supplies for the county, and the board may prescribe the duties of such purchasing agent. (1927, c. 91, s. 12.)

Cited in Board of Education v. Walter, 198 N. C. 325, 328, 151 S. E. 718.

§ 1302(13). Care of county property.—It shall be the duty of the board of commissioners to provide for the regular inspection of and care for all the property of the county, including buildings, machinery, and other property used for county purposes, and the board may designate some member of the board or some other officer or agent of the county, whose duties it shall be to make a regular inspection of the county property and report the condition of the same at such times as the board may direct. (1927, c. 91, s. 13.)

IV. Director of Local Government.

§ 1302(14). Director of local government to visit local units and offer aid in establishing competent administration.—The terms, 'unit,' or 'local unit,' as the same are used in this act, shall be construed to mean 'unit' as defined in § 2492(2). It shall be the duty of the Director of Local Government to visit the local units of government in the State, and to advise and assist the governing bodies and other officers of said units in providing a competent, economical and efficient administration; to suggest approved methods for levying and collecting taxes and other revenues; to suggest such changes in the organization of local units of government as will best promote the public interests, and to render assistance in carrying the same into effect. (1931, c. 100, s. 1.)

As to creation of office of director of local government, see § 2492(3). As to local government act, see §§ 2492(1)-2492(51).

§ 1302(15). Director to devise uniform accounting and recording systems; regular statements from units to director.—The Director of Local Government shall have the power to devise and prepare for use in the local units uniform and accounting and recording systems, together with blanks, books, and necessary methods; uniform classifications of revenue and expenditures, and uniform budget blanks and forms; to revise or prescribe, in his discretion, the records of any department or office of the local unit in order to conform to the orderly accounting procedure; to transfer all or any part of the financial records of any department or office of the unit, including school records, to the office of the county accountant, municipal accountant, or other similar officer, and to require said county accountant, municipal accountant, or other similar officer to furnish, at any time, monthly or annual statements to the office of the Director of Local Government in Raleigh or to any department, office, or board of the unit, showing financial conditions or budget position at any date and financial operations covering any period on forms prescribed by said Director of Local Government. The Director shall have the power to require the use of such systems, books, forms, classifications and budgets as provided herein by officers or employees of local units, and to enforce the use of the same. Where the accounting system of any unit shall in part or in whole substantially meet the requirements of uniformity as prescribed by the Director of Local Government, the Director may, in his discretion, approve or modify such system as he may deem necessary. As soon as practicable after the ratification of this act it shall be the duty of the Director of Local Government to proceed, as rapidly as possible, with the installation of uniform records and systems of accounting in each and every local unit of the State. (1931, c. 100, ss. 1, 3.)

§ 1302(16). Director to inspect and supervise the keeping of records; unlawful not to furnish director with requested information.—The Director of Local Government shall have the power to inspect or supervise the keeping of the records of any department or office of any local unit for the purpose of determining that such records are being properly kept and that public money is being properly accounted for, and it shall be unlawful for any officer or employee to fail or refuse to turn over such records or give access to same and give such other information which may be requested of him and relating to the records of his office to the Director or his representative upon request of said Director or representative. (1931, c. 100, s. 1.)

§ 1302(17). Violation of two preceding sections misdemeanor. — Any officer or employee of any local unit who shall fail or refuse to observe the provisions of sections 1302(15) and 1302(16) shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1931, c. 100, s. 1.)

V. Codification of County Government Laws

§ 1302(18). Arrangement of county government laws.—For the purpose of bringing together and arranging the various laws relating to the administration of county government, so as to make them more readily accessible for the information of county officers, the Attorney-General, or any of his assistants designated by him, shall, upon the request of the Governor, examine the various statutes regulating the duties of county officers and arrange them in the form of a code for the direction of county officers. It shall be the duty of the person so appointed to examine thoroughly all the general laws in regard to the county government and the duties of county officers; to arrange and classify such laws with reference to the different officers and departments of the county, except those duties to be performed by the county officers as a part of the judicial system of the State. This codification shall be published by the county government advisory commission. (1927, c. 91, s. 20.)

Editor's Note.—The director of local government now has the duty of publishing the codification referred to in this section, in view of § 2492(3).

Miscellaneous

§ 1302(19). All counties affected by this article. —The powers and privileges conferred by this article, and the duties imposed thereby, are conferred and imposed upon every county within the State, whether governed wholly by general laws or governed wholly or in part by local acts. (1927, c. 91, s. 21.)

Art. 3. State Association of County Commissioners

§ 1303. Membership of association. — The State Association of County Commissioners consists of the boards of county commissioners of the several counties, and any member of the board of any county may be a member of the association, but it is not mandatory for any county to become a member. (1909, c. 870, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 1304. Purposes of association.—The purpose of the association is to promote and cultivate more intimate association and more friendly relations among the county commissioners of the state; to secure as far as possible a uniform valuation of property for taxation; to promote the cause of good roads; to propose laws for the best interests of county governments; to secure uniformity in the handling of county affairs; to propose laws for the protection of county finances, and preservation of resources and assets; and to promote the general welfare of the state. (1909, c. 870, s. 1.)

§ 1305. Powers of association.—The association has power to adopt by-laws, rules and regulations for the government of its members, for the collection of fees and dues, for the number and election of its officers and the duties thereof, for the safe keeping of its property, and the general management of its affairs, and has power to alter, modify or amend such by-laws, rules and regulations, from time to time, as it deems best. (1909, c. 870, s. 3.)

§ 1306. Officers of association.—The officers shall be a president, a vice president at large and ten other vice presidents, or one from each congressional district, a secretary and treasurer, and an executive committee. The duties of the officers shall be prescribed by the by-laws, rules and regulations. (1909, c. 870, s. 4.)

§ 1307. Dues and expenses of members. — There shall be assessed against each county an annual membership fee of five dollars, which shall be paid by the county treasurer upon the order of the board of county commissioners, but the executive committee of the association may increase the annual membership fee to a sum not to exceed ten dollars. The various boards of commissioners are authorized to pay out of the county treasury the expenses of one of its members attending the meetings of the association. (1909, c. 870, ss. 5, 7.)

§ 1308. Meetings of association.—The annual meeting of the association shall be held on Wednesday after the second Monday in August of each year, and the place of meeting shall be designated by the executive committee. Upon ten days notice, the president or a majority of the executive committee may call a called meeting, and the time and place shall be designated, together with a short statement of the object of the meeting. (1909, c. 870, s. 6.)

Art. 4. Clerk to Board of Commissioners

§ 1309. Register clerk ex officio to board; compensation.—The register of deeds is ex officio clerk of, and his compensation shall be fixed by, the board of commissioners. (Rev., s. 1324; Code, s. 710; 1895, c. 135, s. 4.)

Cited in O'Neal v. Wake County, 196 N. C. 184, 187, 145 S. E. 28.

§ 1310. Duties of clerk.—It is the clerk's duty—

1. To record in a book to be provided for the purpose all the proceedings of the board.
2. To enter every resolution or decision concerning the payment of money.
3. To record the vote of each commissioner on any question submitted to the board, if required by any member present.
4. To preserve and file in alphabetical or other due order all accounts presented or acted on by the board, and to designate upon every account audited the amount allowed and the charges for which it was allowed.

5. To keep the books and papers of the board free for the examination of all persons.

6. To administer oaths to all persons presenting claims against the county, but he shall receive no fee therefor. (Rev., s. 1325; Code, s. 712; 1905, c. 530.)

Correction of Record.—The record of a board of county commissioners may be corrected nunc pro tunc by the board itself to speak the truth. Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Reid, 187 N. C. 320, 121 S. E. 534.

Where the county commissioners have exercised their statutory authority to loan county funds to the State Highway Commission, anticipating the allotment of State funds for the building of highways within the county, and have lawfully contracted for that purpose, it may not, after the passage of a later act, taking away this power, materially change the contract, but the county commissioners nunc pro tunc may correct the entries on their minutes theretofore duly passed and entered of record so as to make the entry speak the truth as to what had been regularly done, and to this end parol evidence is admissible, the time of the correction so made relating back to the time the entry should have been correctly made. Oliver v. Board of Commissioners, 194 N. C. 380, 139 S. E. 767.

§ 1311. Clerk to publish annual statement.—The clerk shall annually, on or within five days next before the first Monday of December, make out and certify, and cause to be posted at the courthouse, and published in a newspaper printed in the county, if there is one, for at least four weeks, a statement for the preceding year showing—

1. The amount, items and nature of all compensation audited by the board to the members thereof severally.

2. The number of days the board was in session, and the distance traveled by the members respectively in attending the same.

3. Whether any unverified accounts were audited, and if any, how much and for what. (Rev., s. 1326; Code, s. 713.)

Art. 5. Finance Committee

§ 1312. Election and duties of finance committee.—The board of commissioners may elect by ballot three discreet, intelligent tax-paying citizens, to be known as the "finance committee," whose duty it is to inquire into, investigate and report by public advertisement, at the courthouse and one public place in each township of the county, or in a newspaper, at their option, if one is published in the county, a detailed and itemized account of the condition of the county finances, together with any other information appertaining to any funds, misappropriation of county funds, or any malfeasance in office by any county officers. (Rev., s. 1389; Code, s. 758; 1897, c. 513; R. C., c. 28, s. 17; 1838, c. 31, s. 1; 1871-2, c. 71, s. 1.)

Constitutional Power to Create.—The Legislature has constitutional power to provide a board of audit and finance for a particular county and to direct that payment of an expert accountant authorized thereunder be made by the county treasurer as a charge against the county's public funds, upon an order made by said board in a certain prescribed manner. Such a power is derived under Article VII, sec. 2, of the State Constitution, providing that the county commissioners shall have control of the county's finances "as may be prescribed by law," taken in connection with section 14 thereof, giving full power to the General Assembly to modify, etc., the provisions of this article and to substitute others, etc. Sou. Audit Co. v. McKensie, 147 N. C. 461, 61 S. E. 283.

Mistake as to Amount Due.—Money paid under protest should be refunded if it should be shown that there has been a mistake in the report of the finance committee and that the sum was not in fact due. Moore v. Commissioners, 87 N. C. 209, 213.

When Mandamus Will Lie to Enforce Order.—Upon refusal of a county treasurer to pay from the public funds of a county an order made on him by a board of audit and finance for the payment of moneys authorized and prescribed by a legislative enactment, a mandamus will lie. Southern Audit Co. v. McKensie, 147 N. C. 461, 61 S. E. 283.

§ 1314. Powers of finance committee. — The finance committee has power and authority to send for persons and papers, and to administer oath; and any person failing to obey their summons, or to produce promptly any paper relating or supposed to relate to any matter appertaining to the duties of the finance committee, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction in the superior court, shall be fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 1391; Code, s. 759; 1831, c. 31; 1871-2, c. 71, s. 2; R. C., c. 28, s. 17; 1883, c. 252.)

§ 1315. Penalty on officer failing to settle. — If any clerk, sheriff, constable, county treasurer, register of deeds, justice of the peace, or other officer or commissioner, who holds any county money, fails duly to account for the same, the finance committee shall give such person ten days previous notice, in writing, of the time and place at which they will attend to make a settlement; and every officer receiving notice and failing to make settlement as required by this chapter shall forfeit the sum of five hundred dollars, to be sued for in the name of the state and prosecuted for the use and at the expense of the county, unless the court releases the officers from the forfeiture. (Rev., s. 1392; Code, s. 760; R. C., c. 28, s. 19; 1831, c. 31, s. 3.)

§ 1316. Annual report of finance committee.—It is the duty of the finance committee to make and publish their reports as hereinbefore directed on or before the first Monday of December in each year. (Rev., s. 1393; Code, s. 761; 1871-2, c. 71, s. 3.)

Art. 5A. Contracts

§ 1316(a). Contracts involving expenditure of $1,000 or more let after advertisement for bids.—No contract for construction or repair work, or for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment, involving the expenditure of public money, the estimated cost of which amounts to or exceeds one thousand ($1,000) dollars, except in cases of special emergency involving the health or safety of the people or their property, shall be awarded by any board or governing body of any county, city, town or other sub-division of the state, unless proposals for the same shall have been invited by advertisement once in at least one newspaper having general circulation in the county, city, town or other sub-division, the publication to be at least one week before the time specified for the opening of said proposals: Provided, if there is no newspaper published in the county and the estimated cost of the contract is less than two thousand ($2,000) dollars, such advertisement may be either published in some newspaper as required herein or posted at the court house door not later than one week before the opening of the proposals in answer thereto, and in the case of a city, town or other sub-division wherein there is no newspaper published and the estimated cost of the contract is less than two thousand ($2,000) dollars, such advertisement may be either published in some newspaper as required herein or posted at the court house door of the county in which such city, town or other sub-division is situated and at least one public place in such city, town or other sub-division. Such advertisement shall state the time and place where plans and specifications of proposed work, or complete description of apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment may be had and the time and place for opening the proposals in answer to such advertisement, and shall reserve to said board or governing body the right to reject any or all such proposals. All such proposals shall be opened in public, shall be recorded on the minutes of the board or governing body and the award, if any be made, shall be made to the lowest responsible bidder, taking into consideration quality and the time specified in the proposal for performance of the contract. Each proposal shall be accompanied by a deposit with the board or governing body of cash or a certified check on some bank or trust company authorized to do business in this state, of an amount equal to not less than two per centum (2%) of the proposal; said deposit to be retained in the event of failure of the successful bidder to execute the contract within ten days after the award or to give satisfactory surety as required herein. All contracts required herein shall be executed in writing, and where the amount involved is two thousand ($2,000) dollars or more, the board or governing body shall require the person, firm or corporation to whom the award of contract is made to furnish bond in some surety company authorized to do business in this state or require a deposit of money, certified check or government securities, for the full amount of said contract for the faithful performance of the terms of said contract, and no such contract shall be altered except by written agreement of the contractor, the sureties on his bond, and the board or governing body. Such surety bond or other securities as required herein shall be deposited with the treasurer of the unit until the contract has been carried out in all respects. (1931, c. 338, s. 1; 1933, c. 50.)

Editor's Note.—In the third from the last sentence of this section, Public Laws 1933, c. 50, substituted the words "authorized to do business in" for the words "organized under the laws of."

§ 1316(b). Contracts involving more than $200 let after receiving bids informally. — All contracts for construction or repair work or for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment made by an officer, department, board, or commission of any county, city, town or other sub-division of this State, except as otherwise required by this act when practical, and involving expenditure of public money of two hundred ($200) dollars or more shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder after informal bids have been secured, and it shall be the duty of such officer, department, board or commission to keep a record of all bids submitted, such record to be subject to public inspection at any time. (1931, c. 338, s. 2.)

§ 1316(c). Evasions prohibited. — No bill or contract shall be divided for the purpose of evading any provisions of this article. (1931, c. 338, s. 3.)

§ 1316(d). Local Government Act unaffected. —This article shall be administered subject to all the provisions of the Local Government Act [§§ 2492(1)-2492(51)], and nothing herein contained shall be construed as in anywise repealing, amending or affecting any of the provisions of said Local Government Act. (1931, c. 338, s. 4.)

Art. 6. Courthouse and Jail Buildings

§ 1317. Built and repaired by commissioners. —There shall be kept and maintained in good and sufficient repair in every county a courthouse and common jail, at the expense of the county wherein the same are situated. The boards of commissioners of the several counties respectively shall lay and collect taxes, from year to year, as long as may be necessary, for the purpose of building, repairing and furnishing their several courthouses and jails, in such manner as they think proper; and from time to time shall order and establish such rules and regulations for the preservation of the courthouse, and for the government and management of the prisons, as may be conducive to the interests of the public and the security and comfort of the persons confined. (Rev., s. 1335; Code, s. 782; R. C., c. 30, s. 1; 1741, c. 33, ss. 1, 2; 1795, c. 433, s. 1; 1816, c. 911, s. 1.)

As to the courthouse and jail being a necessary expense, see subsection 9 of section 1297.

Editor's Note.—By the Act of 1741, ch. 33, the tax herein provided for was to be laid for two years, and to be collected by the sheriff in the same manner with all other public and parish taxes, and to be accounted for by him to the justices of the county court on oath. Viewing the first section of this Act by itself, it would seem that this tax was only temporary, and to be laid at once for two years. But the second section of the Act removes this idea, for by that the justices were empowered to lay a tax of the same character, viz., a poll tax from time to time, as often as it might be necessary to repair or erect public buildings.

This authority was repeated and confirmed by the Act of 1795, ch. 433, by which the taxes were to be laid and collected annually. This brings us to the Act of 1808, c. 755, by which the sheriff was again authorized to collect the tax for public buildings, and was for the first time made accountable to the treasurer of public buildings. The Act of 1816, c. 911, converted this authority into a positive duty, and directed that the justices should, from time to time, lay a sufficient tax, erect and keep in repair, the public jail, courthouse and stocks, in their respective counties. In State v. Justice, 11 N. C. 194, 179, Henderson, J., in speaking of these statutes says, "The justices of our county courts are not obliged, by their own exertions, to build and repair jails; they are only to use the means to that end which the law has placed in their power; they are to lay the tax, make the order, appoint a treasurer of public buildings, and appoint commissions to contract for the building of the jail."

The provisions of these Acts are found in a substantial form as section 1, chapter 30 of the Revised Statutes, which is likewise carried forward as section 1, chapter 30 of the Revised Code of 1854. During the upheaval of the Civil War, and the Reconstruction period, which brought about so many changes in North Carolina laws, we find this duty shifted from the old county courts to the county commissioners. The change appears for the first time as section one, chapter thirty-one, of Battle's Revisal of 1872-'73.

Constitutionality.—The power of limited taxation for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a county courthouse and its exercise is no invasion of the Bill of Rights. Lockhart v. Harrington, 8 N. C. 408.

Article XI, sec. 6, of the Constitution (1868) requires that the structure and superintendence of penal institutions of the State be such as to secure the health and comfort of the prisoners. Lewis v. Raleigh, 77 N. C. 229, 230.

Construed Strictly.—The law, imposing the responsibility on municipal corporations for the proper structure and superintendence of their prisons, must be construed strictly. Moffitt v. Asheville, 103 N. C. 237, 257, 9 S. E. 695.

A Necessary Expense.—The building and repairing of a courthouse by the county is a part of its necessary expense. Burgin v. Smith, 151 N. C. 561, 66 S. E. 607.

When Legislature Imposes a Limit.—When a special act of the Legislature has imposed a limit upon the expense of a county to be incurred in improving its courthouse, the commissioners cannot avoid the will of the Legislature as therein declared by setting up a general power of contracting debts for necessary expenses, limited only by the constitutional limitation of taxation, and thus under an entire contract made beforehand expend a larger amount for the purpose than that prescribed by the special act. Burgin v. Smith, 151 N. C. 561, 66 S. E. 607.

Commissioners' Power to Levy Special Tax.—While the county commissioners have the authority to repair the county's jail and courthouse and to erect new ones, in its discretion, it is without authority to levy a special tax to provide for the payment of interest on the bonds issued for that purpose, or to create a sinking fund therefor, for this must be provided for by proper legislation, or paid out of the general revenues and income of the county. Jackson v. Commissioners, 171 N. C. 379, 88 S. E. 521.

Levy of Taxes to Pay Interest on Bonds.—See Harrell v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 225, 173 S. E. 614, wherein this section is treated with §§ 1290, 1297, 1302 and 1334(8) to show taxpayers cannot enjoin the levy of taxes necessary to pay the principal and interest on bonds issued for repairs as designated in this section.

Action of Commissioners Not Reviewable in Absence of Mala Fides.—It is within the sound discretion of the county commissioners to have the courthouse or jail of the county repaired or to erect new ones on the same sites as a necessary county expense, which will not be reviewed in the courts in the absence of mala fides; and should a bill of indictment be drawn by the solicitor, at the request of the judge holding the courts of the county, and a true bill be found by the grand jury thereon, it is open to the commissioners to set up any available defense they may have. Jackson v. Commissioners, 171 N. C. 379, 88 S. E. 521.

Judge's Request to Solicitor to Draw Indictment Not Duress.—A request from the judge holding court in a county to the solicitor to draw an indictment against the county commissioners for failing in their duty to provide a proper courthouse and jail cannot alone be regarded as a coercion of the commissioners in regard to their discretionary powers, or duress to invalidate bonds afterwards to be issued by them in pursuance of their resolutions to build a new courthouse and jail upon the sites of the old ones; and the bonds to be so issued will not be restrained either on that ground or the want of jurisdiction of the judge making the request. Jackson v. Commissioners, 171 N. C. 379, 88 S. E. 521.

Requirements for Prisoner's Comfort.—The least that is required is that persons confined in any public prison shall have a clean place, comfortable bedding, wholesome food and drink, and necessary attendance. Lewis v. Raleigh, 77 N. C. 229.

Where a sheriff has in an emergency requested a physician to render services to a prisoner in his custody who had been badly wounded resisting arrest, and there is evidence tending to show that under the circumstances he could not have obtained in time an order from the board of county commissioners that would assume responsibility on behalf of the county to pay them, the objection of the commissioners that under such circumstances the county would not pay for them, and the liability would only attach as to those prisoners delivered at the county jail, is untenable. C. S. 1317, 1346, 1347, Spicer v. Williamson, 191 N. C. 487, 132 S. E. 291.

Same—Failure to Provide.—An action cannot be maintained against a county for damages sustained by one while imprisoned in the county jail by reason of the failure of the commissioners to provide adequate means for his health and protection. Manuel v. Commissioners, 98 N. C. 9, 3 S. E. 829.

Where A was arrested at night by a policeman for violation of an ordinance of the city of Raleigh and confined in the city guardhouse in which he died before morning, and in an action for damages instituted by his administrator against the city, the jury found that his death was "accelerated by the noxious air of the guard-house," the plaintiff is entitled to recover. Lewis v. Raleigh, 77 N. C. 229.

Same—Responsibility of Town.—A town is responsible in damages for the gross neglect of its officials in the matter of providing suitable protection for the health of persons confined in the receptacle for prisoners. Shields v. Durham, 118 N. C. 450, 24 S. E. 794.

Same—Liability of Agent of City.—The act of a city's chief of police in causing the incarceration of one violating the laws of the State, and not of the city, in the unsanitary lockup of the city, when unauthorized on the part of the city, does not make the latter responsible in damages for a consequent injury to the health of the prisoner; the right of action existing only against the chief of police. Hobbs v. Washington, 168 N. C. 293, 84 S. E. 391.

Extent of Commissioner's Liability.—In the excellent work of Judge Dillon on Municipal Corporations, (section 963,) the author says: "A county is not liable for a nuisance to a citizen in the erection of a jail in the immediate vicinity of his residence, nor for suffering it to become so filthy and disorderly as to be a nuisance to him and his family." The doctrine is that while these corporate agencies must provide the means and employ the men to perform such duties, they are not personally and by their own labor to perform such menial services; and the default to make them liable must be in neglecting to exercise their authority in the use of labor and money for that purpose, and so must it be charged to make a cause of action against them. Threadgill v. Commissioners, 99 N. C. 352, 6 S. E. 189, 191.

§ 1317(a). Formation of district jail by contiguous counties.—Any two or more counties contiguous to one another or which lie in a continuous group may enter into an agreement for the construction and maintenance of a district jail. Such agreement shall specify the amount of the construction and maintenance cost to be borne by each county and shall fix the terms upon which such jail may thereafter be used by the counties becoming parties to the agreement.

Such counties may also by agreement establish a jail already built, as a district jail, and provide for the improvement, enlargement, maintenance cost and use thereof.

When and if such district jail has been established, all the counties in such district may then sell or dispose of their separate jails upon such terms as the board of county commissioners may decide. (1933, c. 201, s. 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 214.

§ 1318. Jail to have five apartments.—The common jails of the several counties shall be provided with at least five separate and suitable apartments, one for the confinement of white male criminals; one for white female criminals; one for the colored male criminals; one for colored female criminals; and one for other prisoners. (Rev., s. 1336; Code, s. 783; R. C., c. 30, s. 2; 1795, c. 433, s. 4; 1816, c. 911.)

Cross References.—As to confining prisoners to improper apartments, see sec. 4408; as to separate apartments required for the Indians of the county of Robeson, see sec. 6258; as to separate apartments for tuberculous prisoners, see sec. 7207-7208.

§ 1319. To be heated.—It is the duty of the board of commissioners in every county to have the common jails so heated by furnaces, stoves, or otherwise, as to render them warm and comfortable. A failure to discharge the duty herein specified shall constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 1337; Code, s. 784; 1879, c. 25.)

See generally annotations under sec. 1317.

§ 1320. Bedding to be furnished.—The board of county commissioners, from time to time, as may be necessary, shall order the sheriff of the county to purchase, for the use of their jail, a certain number of good, warm blankets or other suitable bedclothing, which shall be securely preserved by the jailer, and furnished to the prisoners for their use and comfort, as the season or other circumstances may require; and the sheriff, at least once in every year, shall report to the board of commissioners the condition and number of such blankets and bedclothing. (Rev., s. 1338; Code, s. 3465; R. C., c. 87, s. 10; 1822, c. 1136.)

See generally annotations under section 1317.

Failure to Supply Bedclothing.—Where the bedclothing furnished for the inmates of the police prison has been destroyed, but the governing officers of the town are not shown to have had actual notice of the destruction, or to have been negligent in omitting to provide for such oversight of the prison as would naturally be exepcted to give them timely information of its condition, there is not such a failure in discharging the duties of superintendence as to subject the corporation to liability. Moffitt v. Asheville, 103 N. C. 237, 259, 9 S. E. 695.

§ 1321. Prison bounds.— For the preservation of the health of persons committed to jail, the board of commissioners of each county shall mark out such a parcel of the land as they think fit, not exceeding six acres, adjoining the prison, for the rules thereof; and every prisoner not committed for treason or felony, giving bond with good security to the sheriff of the county to keep within the rules, shall have liberty to walk therein, out of the prison, for the preservation of his health; and in keeping continually within the said rules, shall be deemed to be in law a true prisoner. In order that every person may know the true bounds of said rules, they shall be recorded in the county records, and the marks thereof shall be renewed as occasion may require. (Rev., s. 1339; Code, s. 3466; R. C., c. 87, s. 11; 1741, c. 33, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The first provision for prison bounds in this State was enacted by the Act of 1741, chap, 33, sec. 3, which is c. 90, sec. 11, of the Rev. St. It seems to be based on a known usage and regulation respecting prisons in England. There, by "rules" of the several courts, debtors and prisoners for misdemeanors have the liberty of walking in the prison yards, or within such other limits as the courts prescribe for their respective prisoners, at such hours and on such days as "the rules" may designate. The "grounds" came in time to be called the "rules of the prison."

In our Act of 1741 the court was authorized to mark off the said prison bounds, or the "rules of the prison." (For a construction of that Act, see Ex parte Bradley, 26 N. C. 543, 544.) This has been changed by making it the duty of the county commissioners to lay off the said bounds.

Purpose.—Both the words and the policy of the section show the purpose to be simply to preserve the health of those who are so unfortunate as to be in prison. Northam v. Terry, 30 N. C. 175, 176.

Application.—This section does not apply in favor of persons who have been convicted of criminal offenses and sentenced to imprisonment by the judgment of the court. It applies to prisoners who in civil cases are committed to jail on mesne process or on final judgment, and in criminal cases when the prisoner is committed to jail for lack of bail, in order to secure his presence before the appropriate court to answer the criminal charge preferred against him. State v. Pearson, 100 N. C. 414, 417, 6 S. E. 387.

Sheriff Not Guilty of Escape.—By taking a bond from a prisoner under this section, the sheriff is guilty of no escape in letting him out of the walls of the prison, for he does only what the law requires of him. Northam v. Terry, 30 N. C. 175, 176.

When Bond Void. — A bond for keeping the prison bounds, taken from a person arrested before he has been committed to close custody, is void. Northam v. Terry, 30 N. C. 175.

When Prisoner Need Not Tender Bond.—Where a prisoner, desirous of being admitted to the prison bounds, applies to the sheriff, and offers to prepare a bond with ample security, and the sheriff refuses to admit him to the rules, or to take any bond, such conduct on the part of the sheriff is a waiver of any further act to be done by the prisoner, and renders it unnecessary for the prison to prepare and tender a bond written and executed in order to maintain his action. Mann v. Vick, 8 N. C. 427.

Rights of Prisoner within Rules Again Thrown into Prison.—When a defendant in execution within the prison rules is afterwards thrown into prison by another creditor, he has a right to be discharged from the walls of the prison under the insolvent laws. And when discharged, it is for him to determine whether his bond has become vacated by such discharge; he then is at liberty to act in the same way as he was before his imprisonment. In Re Huntington, 6 N. C. 369, 370.

§ 1321(a). Bonds for building, altering and repairing courthouses; issuance authorized.— The board of commissioners of the various counties throughout the state are authorized and empowered to issue bonds or notes for the purpose of borrowing money with which to erect, build, construct, alter, repair and improve courthouses and jails, and to purchase the necessary equipment and furniture to be used therein. (1923, c. 143, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This act was summarized in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 273.

Issuance of Bonds to Repair Jail.—This section construed with §§ 1290, 1297, and 1302 would seem to indicate that the board can issue bonds to repair the jail of the county under § 1334(8) by implication. Harrell v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 225, 173 S. E. 614.

§ 1321(b). Serial bonds; interest; maturity; authentication.—Any bonds issued under the preceding section shall be serial bonds, payable in not less than five nor more than thirty years from the date of issue; such bonds shall be of such denomination as the board of commissioners may determine by resolution; shall bear a rate of interest not to exceed six per cent, payable semi-annually, and such interest and principal shall be payable at such time and place as the board of commissioners by resolution may determine; the bonds shall be signed by the chairman of the board of commissioners, sealed with the county seal and attested by the clerk, and the coupons attached thereto shall bear the facsimile lithographed signature of the chairman or clerk of the board. (1923, c. 143, s. 2.)

§ 1321(c). Time and place for payment of notes.—Such notes as may be issued under section 1321(a) shall be payable at such time and place as the board of commissioners shall determine, and unless payable within one year from the date thereof, shall be payable in five substantially equal annual installments; such notes shall bear the signature of the chairman of the board, to be attested by the clerk, and any interest coupons attached shall bear the facsimile lithographed signature of the chairman or clerk of the board. (1923, c. 143, s. 3.)

§ 1321(d). Limitation of amount.—No board of commissioners shall, for the purposes expressed in §§ 1321(a) to 1321(i), issue bonds or notes under authority of these sections to exceed two per cent of the assessed valuation of the property in the county for the year next preceding the issuance thereof. (1923, c. 143, s. 9; 1924, c. 113.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1924 amendment, this section limited the amount of the bonds and notes to one per cent of the assessed valuation of the property in the county for the preceding year. The only effect of the 1924 amendment was to raise the maximum amount to two per cent. 3 N. C. Law. Rev. 22.

§ 1321(e). Election; calling, law governing, time, ballots.—Any board of commissioners may in its discretion, before issuing the notes or bonds provided for, submit the question of issuing the same to a vote of the people of the county at an election to be called and held as nearly as may be under the same rules and regulations as elections for county officers, except as to time, which time shall be determined by the board by a resolution; but no election shall be held within less than thirty days after the passage of such resolution. At said election all those who favor the issuance of such notes or bonds shall vote a ballot upon which shall be printed or written the words "For Courthouse Improvements" and all those who are opposed to the issuance of such notes or bonds shall vote a ballot upon which shall be printed or written the words "Against Courthouse Improvements." If a majority of the qualified voters shall vote at said election "For Courthouse Improvements," the board of commissioners shall proceed to issue the bonds or notes, in accordance with the provisions of this law. (1923, c. 143, s. 5.)

§ 1321(f). Specific appropriation; payment from county fund.—The proceeds received from the sale of such notes or bonds issued under this law shall be used exclusively for the purpose of defraying the expenses of holding the election, issuing the bonds or notes and the erecting, building, constructing, altering, repairing and improving of courthouses and jails and to purchase the necessary equipment and furniture to be used therein, and for no other purpose: Provided, if at such election a majority of the qualified voters shall vote "Against Courthouse Improvements," then the expense of holding such election shall be paid from the general county fund. (1923, c. 143, s. 6.)

§ 1321(g). Special tax; notes maturing within one year.—For the purpose of paying the interest and principal of any notes or bonds issued pursuant to this law, the board of commissioners shall annually, at the time of levying other taxes, levy a sufficient tax to pay such principal and interest as it shall become due according to the tenor of such notes and bonds: Provided, however, that notes which are payable within one year after their date may be paid by means of bonds issued under this law, or from the general county fund. (1923, c. 143, s. 7.)

§ 1321(i). Powers granted by law additional.—The powers granted by this law are granted in addition to and not in substitution for existing powers of counties, and are not subject to any limitation or restriction contained in any other law. Nothing contained in this law shall prevent any county from issuing bonds under any existing laws, as well as under this law. (1923, c. 143, s. 9.)

Operation and Effect upon Existing law.—In Blair v. Commissioners, 187 N. C. 490, 122 S. E. 298, it was said by Stacy, J., speaking for the court: "It clearly appears, we think, from the 9th section of the General Act (section 1321(i) of this Code) now before us, that the authority granted under this law was to be in addition to and not in substitution of any existing powers contained in any other law. Hence no conflict was intended and none exists between the provisions of the General Act and the New Hanover Act. The present case, therefore, falls directly within the doctrine announced in Kinston v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 183 N. C. 14, 110 S. E. 645, and Fawcett v. Mt. Airy, 134 N. C. 125, 45 S. E. 1029, to the effect that, having exhausted the powers conferred under the special act, the authorities may proceed under the general statute to the extent allowed by such law."

Art. 7. County Revenue

§ 1321(j). Unlawful for counties not to reduce ad valorem taxes; exceptions; other levies void.—It is hereby declared to be unlawful for any board of county commissioners, for the fiscal year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one—one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two and other fiscal years succeeding to make any tax levy, which in the gross does not reflect within three per cent (3%) a reduction in the ad valorem taxes accomplished by the state highway commission act, the six months school term act and other acts tending to this result. The tax rate for one thousand nine hundred and thirty—one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one shall be the standard from which the reduction shall be made. To this prohibition there shall be the following exceptions:

A. If there should be a new assessment of the value of property for taxation and that assessment should show a reduction in the value of such taxable property, then said board of county commissioners, or any one of them, if the reduction is local, shall levy, in addition to the rate fixed hereinbefore, a rate increased sufficiently to take care of this decrease in the valuation of property in the particular county involved.

B. To prevent a current deficit and, if an emergency should arise, requiring the levy of an additional rate of taxation in a particular county, greater than that herein provided and there should be existing authority for such levy, then the board of commissioners of any county or counties in which such emergency should arise shall be permitted to increase the rate of taxation sufficiently to meet such emergency, when it is declared and the facts upon the declaration is made are entered at large upon the minutes of the board and the whole matter is referred to the Local Government Commission of the State of North Carolina, which shall have authority to pass upon the application and if, in the opinion of that Commission, a levy of the additional rate is reasonably necessary, then upon certifying this fact to any board of county commissioners, that board shall have authority to increase the levy of the extent necessary to meet the contingency. Standard form of application shall be prescribed by the Local Government Commission.

C. Levies for debt service on outstanding valid indebtedness heretofore incurred, or hereafter permitted by the Local Government Commission.

Except as herein permitted, any levy made by any board of county commissioners, in excess of the limit herein fixed, shall be absolutely void, for whatever purposes such excess shall be levied. (1931, c. 134.)

Editor's Note.—The meaning of this enactment is not entirely clear, except as an expressed determination to have reduced ad valorem taxes. It seems to mean that, taking the tax rate for the current year as a standard and deducting the road tax and the general school tax, the rate must show an ad valorem reduction of the remainder within three per cent. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 362.

The act required the Secretary of State, to cause one thousand copies to be printed and distributed as follows: One copy to the chairman of the board of commissioners, one copy to the auditor or county accountant, and one copy to the Chairman of the Board of Education, of each and every county.

Public Laws 1931, c. 255, empowered the Board of Commissioners of Guilford County, in their discretion, to levy the full amount of the tax for the maintenance of the county tuberculosis hospital or so much of the amount duly authorized as may be necessary to maintain the hospital adequately, and to provide for as many persons afflicted with tuberculosis as it is possible to do so, notwithstanding the provisions of this section.

§ 1322. Taxes collected by sheriff.—The county taxes shall be collected by the sheriff of the county. He is entitled to the same commissions and is subject to the same rules and regulations in respect of his settlement of the said taxes with the county treasurer as he is in his settlement of the public taxes with the treasurer of the state; and he shall also settle with the county treasurer or board of commissioners for the taxes on the unlisted property in his county, under the same rules and regulations as he accounts with the auditor of the state. (Rev., s. 1376; Code, s. 723; R. C., c. 28, s. 2; 1798, c. 509, s. 2; 1811, c. 823.)

As to liability for escape under civil process, see section 3943. As to collection by treasurer-tax collector in Mitchell County, see § 1889(a) and note thereto.

County Taxes Defined.—The words "county taxes" include all amounts levied by taxation and which are to be used in the counties where they are collected, and where they are paid to the county treasurer. Board v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 63, 49 S. E. 47.

Must Be Collected by Sheriff. — County taxes must be collected by the sheriff of the county. Board v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 63, 65, 49 S. E. 47.

Constitutional Office.—The Legislature may, within reasonable limits, diminish the emoluments of an office by the transfer of a portion of its duties to another office, or by reducing the salary or the fees, for the incumbent takes the office subject to the power of the Legislature to make such changes as the public good may require. There are offices created by the Constitution which are placed beyond the control of the General Assembly, so that body can neither abolish the office nor reduce its compensation. Mial v. Ellington, 134 N. C. 131, 46 S. E. 961; State v. Gales, 77 N. C. 283; Mills v. Deaton, 170 N. C. 386, 388, 87 S. E. 123; Commissioners v. Steadman, 141 N. C. 448, 54 S. E. 269.

Same—Not to Be Deprived of Right.—The sheriff cannot be deprived of the right to collect taxes by an act of the Legislature, since the office is a constitutional one, and to allow it to be stripped of its more important functions at the will of the Legislature would be equivalent to destruction. King v. Hunter, 65 N. C. 603, 611.

Upon Insanity of Sheriff.—Upon the official ascertainment of the insanity of a sheriff his sureties have the right to collect the current tax list then in his hands. Somers v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 582, 584, 31 S. E. 873.

School Taxes Included.—All the school taxes are included in the accounting to be made between the county treasurer and the sheriff. Tillery v. Candler, 118 N. C. 888, 889, 24 S. E. 709.

Commission out of School Tax.—A sheriff is entitled to commissions for the collection of the school tax. Board v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 63, 49 S. E. 47.

Overpayment.—The State Auditor is authorized to make deduction of over-payment in the settlement for taxes collected when there is error in the "clerk's abstract of taxables," and the sheriff is "charged with more than the true amount," etc., and though the same deductions and corrections are permitted the county in making settlements under this section, these statutes are inapplicable when the credits claimed are not from either of these causes; and to allow them otherwise would be to permit an offset or counterclaim. Commissioners v. Hall, 177 N. C. 490, 99 S. E. 372.

Liable as Insurer.—The authorities are decidedly in favor of the doctrine that a tax collector is an insurer of the safety of all moneys officially received by him against loss by any means whatever, including such losses as arise from the act of God or the public enemy. In the courts of the United States this absolute liability is put mainly on public policy and the evil consequences which would follow from any less rigid rule. United States v. Doshiell, 4 Wall, 182, 18 L. Ed. 319; United States v. Prescott, 3 How., 578, 587, 11 L. Ed. 734; United States v. Keehler, 9 Wall., 83, 19 L. Ed. 574. The reasons apply with equal force to State officials who receive public money, and the same doctrine has accordingly been held in Musey v. Shattuck, 1 Denio 233. Thompson v. Trustees, 30 Ill., 99; Hancock v. Hazzard, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 112; Atkinson v. Whitehead, 66 N. C. 286; Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Cowles, 69 N. C. 59; State v. Clarke, 73 N. C. 255, 257.

Obligation Not a Debt in Ordinary Sense.—The obligation of a sheriff to settle for county taxes collected in accordance with "the list of taxables" furnished him, is not a debt in the ordinary sense but a charge imposed by the Legislature, or under its authority, permitting no offset or counterclaim by the sheriff claiming over-payment in his settlement for previous years, in an action to recover the amount due by him in accordance with the list furnished for him the current year. Commissioners v. Hall, 177 N. C. 490, 99 S. E. 372.

Tax Lists in Sheriff's Hands upon Expiration of Term.—While collecting the county taxes is made a part of the duties of a sheriff, it is a separate function, and exists after his term as such, for the purpose of collecting, from the tax lists in his hands, the taxes for the current year, in the absence of legislation to the contrary. Commissioners v. Bain, 173 N. C. 377, 92 S. E. 176.

Failure to Answer to Treasurer of Public Buildings. — Where the condition of a sheriff's bond was in these words, "that he shall well and truly account for and pay into the hands of the county trustee, for the time being, all such sum or sums of money as may be or shall come into his hands, or which he ought to collect for the use of the county; and in all things comply with the acts of the General Assembly in such case made and provided;" it was held, that when the sheriff had received a part of the tax laid for the repairs of public buildings, the condition of his bond was violated upon non-payment of it to the treasurer of public buildings, to whom, by the Act of 1808, the sheriff was directed to pay it. Cameron v. Campbell, 10 N. C. 285.

Change of Pay from Salary to Fee Basis. — An act of the Legislature changing the pay of the sheriff from a salary to a fee basis, where it does not direct the incumbent sheriff to deliver the tax list to his successor, will not be construed so as to deprive the incumbent sheriff of the emoluments of his term by requiring that he deliver the tax lists to his successor. Commissioners v. Bain, 173 N. C. 377, 92 S. E. 176.

The Legislature, during a sheriff's term of office, may place the sheriff on a salary and provide that the fees for collecting taxes shall go to the county. Mills v. Deaton, 170 N. C. 386, 87 S. E. 123.

Appeal from Commissioners Not Allowed. — An appeal does not lie from the refusal of the county commissioners to allow credits claimed by a sheriff in his settlement with the county. McMillan v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 28.

Commissioners Cannot Release.—The county commissioners have no power to release the sheriff from his liability to account for and pay over the county taxes. State v. Clarke, 73 N. C. 255, 257.

§ 1323. Statement of fines kept by clerk.—It is the duty of the clerks of the several courts, and of the several justices of the peace, to enter in a book, to be supplied by the county, an itemized and detailed statement of the respective amounts received by them in the way of fines, penalties, amercements and forfeitures and said books shall at all times be open to the inspection of the public. (Rev., s. 1377; Code, s. 725; 1873-4, c. 116, s. 4; 1879, c. 96, s. 1.)

§ 1324. Fines paid to treasurer for schools; annual report.—All fines, forfeitures, penalties and amercements collected in the several counties by any court or otherwise shall be accounted for and paid to the county treasurer by the officials receiving them within sixty days after receipt thereof, and shall be faithfully appropriated by the county board of education for the establishment and maintenance of free public schools; and the amounts collected in each county shall be annually reported to the superintendent of public instruction on or before the first Monday in January, by the board of commissioners. (Rev., s. 1378; Const., Art IX, s. 5; Code, ss. 724, 726; R. C., c. 28, s. 3; 1879, c. 96, ss. 2, 5.)

Constitutional Provision.—The Constitution, Art, IX, sec. 5, appropriates all fines for violation of the criminal laws of the State for establishing and maintaining free public schools in the several counties—whether the fines are for violation of town ordinances made misdemeanors by statute or other criminal statutes. Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 36 S. E. 158.

Only Clear Proceeds.—Only the clear proceeds of such penalties as accrue to the State go to the school fund. State v. Maultsby, 139 N. C. 583, 51 S. E. 956.

"Clear Proceeds" Defined.—By "clear proceeds" is meant the total sum less only the sheriff's fees for collection, when the fine and costs are not collected in full. This also has been fully discussed and settled. State v. Maultsby, 139 N. C. 583, 585, 51 S. E. 956; Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 36 S. E. 158; School Directors v. Asheville, 137 N. C. 503, 508, 50 S. E. 279.

A Fine Defined.—A fine is the sentence pronounced by the court for a violation of the criminal law of the State. Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 36 S. E. 158.

Fines, from their nature, being punishment for violation of the criminal law, are imposed in favor of the State and belonging to the State, the Legislature can not appropriate their clear proceeds to any other purpose than the school fund. State v. Maultsby, 139 N. C. 583, 51 S. E. 956; Katzenstein v. R. R., 84 N. C. 688; State v. R. R., 108 N. C. 24, 30-32, 12 S. E. 1041; Sutton v. Phillips, 116 N. C. 502, 21 S. E. 968, and cases there cited and reaffirmed in Goodwin v. Fertilizer Co., 119 N. C. 120, 122, 25 S. E. 795; Carter v. R. R., 126 N. C. 437, 445, 36 S. E. 14; Board v. Henderson, Id. 695; School Directors v. Asheville, 137 N. C. 503, 508, 50 S. E. 279.

Penalty Defined.—A penalty is the amount prescribed for a violation of the statute law of the State or the ordinance of a town, and is recoverable in a civil action of debt. Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 36 S. E. 158.

Fines, Etc., of Municipality.—The section does not extend to fines, penalties or forfeitures, incurred, or arising in the enforcement of ordinances and rules adopted by a municipal corporation for local government. They do not "accrue to the state," nor are they collected in the counties for a violation of penal or military law, or by county officers upon whom this duty is devolved. Commissioners v. City, 88 N. C. 120, 122.

When Collected by Mayor of Town.—Where such fines are collected through the mayor of a town, by virtue of his authority as justice of the peace, they are to be accounted for to the board of education. It is otherwise as to penalties imposed for the violation of town ordinances, which are to be sued for. Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 36 S. E. 158.

An action by a county board of school directors for fines and penalties collected by a city is barred within three years. School Directors v. Asheville, 128 N. C. 249, 38 S. E. 874.

Forfeited Bond of Prisoner.—Where the Governor has granted requisition for a fugitive from justice from another state, to be turned over to the agent of that state here, and the prisoner sued out the writ of habeas corpus before a judge of the superior court, and pending this proceeding he forfeits his appearance bond, payable to the State of North Carolina, the penalty on the bond falls within the provisions of this section and goes to the benefit of the public schools fund of the county, and not to the agent of the state whose requisition had been honored. In Re Wiggins, 171 N. C. 372, 88 S. E. 508.

§ 1325. Expenditures of county funds directed by commissioners.—The board of commissioners is invested with full power to direct the application of all moneys arising by virtue of this chapter for the purpose herein mentioned, and to any other good and necessary purpose for the use of the county. (Rev., s. 1379; Code, s. 753; R. C., c. 28, s. 16; 1777, c. 129, s. 4.)

As to necessary expenses, see subsections 2, 3, 5, 6, 9, 18, 19, 22 and 28 of section 1297.

Necessary Expenses Determined by Commissioners.—In Wilson v. Holding, 170 N. C. 352, 356, 86 S. E. 1043, Walker J. speaking for the court says: "We have repeatedly held, beginning with Broadnax v. Groom, 64 N. C. 244, 250, and ending with Comrs. v. Comrs., 165 N. C. 632, 81 S. E. 1001, and more recently Hargrave v. Comrs., 168 N. C. 626, 84 S. E. 1044, that what is a 'necessary expense' for a county is to be determined by the sound judgment and discretion of its board of commissioners."

It is within the province of the courts to determine what expenditures fall within the definition of the necessary expenses of a county, the authority for controlling the commissioners in incurring a debt, when the expense is necessary, is not within the purview of the judicial authority. Burgin v. Smith, 151 N. C. 561, 566, 66 S. E. 607, citing Hightower v. Raleigh, 150 N. C. 569, 65 S. E. 279; Cromartie v. Commissioners, 87 N. C. 134; Broadnax v. Groom, 64 N. C. 244.

Power to Create Necessary Debts.—The Legislature may confer upon a county the power to create debts for necessary expenses, without the approval of "a majority of the qualified voters" in the county. Evans v. Commissioners, 89 N. C. 154.

When Commissioners' Actions Not Subject to Review.—The commissioners' exercise of their discretion will not be reviewed except when mala fides is shown. Jackson v. Commissioners, 171 N. C. 379, 382, 88 S. E. 521.

Support of Convicts.—The support of the county convicts must be paid out of the general county fund. Chambers v. Walker, 120 N. C. 401, 27 S. E. 77.

Legislature to Determine upon Care of Indigent.—It is the exclusive right of the Legislature to determine how the indigent of the State entitled to support shall be ascertained, and from what fund and by whom allowances for their support shall be made. Board v. Commissioners, 113 N. C. 379, 388, 18 S. E. 661.

§ 1327. Board to enforce duty to report.—If any person required to make any of the reports herein provided for fails to do so, or if, after a report has been made, the board of commissioners disapprove the same, such board may take such legal steps to compel a proper report to be made, either by suit on the bond of such officer failing to comply or otherwise, as said board may deem best. (Rev., s. 1381; Code, s. 730; 1874-5, c. 151, s. 3; 1876-7, c. 276, s. 3.)

§ 1328. Reports to be recorded in register's office.—If the board of commissioners approves of any of the said reports, it shall cause the same to be registered in the office of the register of deeds in a book to be furnished to the register of deeds by the county, which book shall be marked and styled Record of Official Reports, with a proper index of all reports recorded therein, and each official report shall, if approved, be indorsed by the chairman of the board with the word "approved," with the date of approval, and when recorded by the register of deeds he shall indorse thereon the date of registration, the page of the Record of Official Reports upon which the same is registered, sign the same and file it in his office. (Rev., s. 1382; Code, s. 729; 1874-5, c. 151, s. 2; 1876-7, c. 276, s. 2.)

§ 1329. Penalty for failure to report.—If any clerk, sheriff, justice of the peace, or other officer, fails or neglects to account for and pay over as required by law any taxes on suits, or any fines, forfeitures and amercements, as required by this chapter, or fails to make the return herein specified, he shall forfeit and pay five hundred dollars, to be recovered in the name of the board of commissioners for the use of the public schools of the county. (Rev., s. 1383; Code, s. 764; R. C., c. 28, s. 7; 1808, c. 756; 1809, c. 769; 1813, c. 864; 1830, c. 1, ss. 11-13.)

"Account" Defined.—An account is defined to be "a statement in writing of debts and credits, or of receipts and payment; a list of items of debts and credits, with their respective dates." Black's Dictionary, p. 17. In this section the word is used in this sense, and when not only an account, but payment or settlement, is intended, additional words are used to express that idea. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 668, 46 S. E. 949.

Penalty Statute Construed Strictly.—A penalty statute must be strictly construed in accordance with the meaning of the words employed, and must not be extended by implication or construction when the act complained of does not fall clearly within the spirit and letter thereof. Alexander v. R. R., 144 N. C. 93, 56 S. E. 697.

Liability of Clerk for Taxes on Suits.—A superior court clerk, who collects taxes upon suits to an amount unauthorized by law, is nevertheless bound to account for the same to the proper county officer. Hewlett v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

Same—Limitation.—An action against a clerk for a penalty, if not brought within one year, is barred by the statute of limitations. Hewlett v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

Same—County Treasurer as Plaintiff.—The county treasurer is the proper plaintiff in an action on the bond of a superior court clerk to recover money collected by him as taxes on suits. Hewlett v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

§ 1330. Demand before suit against municipality; complaint.—No person shall sue any city, county, town, or other municipal corporation for any debt or demand whatsoever unless the claimant has made a demand upon the proper municipal authorities. And every such action shall be dismissed unless the complaint is verified and contains the following allegations: (1) That the claimant presented his claim to the lawful municipal authorities to be audited and allowed, and that they neglected to act upon it, or had disallowed it; or (2) that he had presented to the treasurer of said municipal corporation the claim sued on, which had been so allowed and audited, and that such treasurer had notwithstanding neglected to pay it. (Rev., s. 1384; Code, s. 757.)

Demand Must Be Alleged. — This section expressly requires the demand to be alleged in the complaint. Williams v. Smith, 134 N. C. 249, 252, 46 S. E. 502. And is mandatory. R. R. v. Reidsville, 109 N. C. 494, 500, 13 S. E. 865; citing Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706.

Same—Failure Taken Advantage of by Demurrer.—It has been uniformly held that failure to allege the demand may be taken advantage of by demurrer. Williams v. Smith, 134 N. C. 249, 252, 46 S. E. 502, citing Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706; Jones v. Commissioners, 73 N. C. 182.

"Audit" only Applies to Actions Ex Contractu. — In Sheilds v. Durham, 118 N. C. 450, 452, 24 S. E. 794, Furches, J., speaking for the court, said "We find that all the law dictionaries which we have been able to consult define the word "audit" to apply only to claims ex contractu. Abbott, Bovier, Rapalje and Lawrence. And these authorities have aided us in coming to the conclusion that this section does not apply to an action for damages like this. Indeed, we do not see how such a claim as this could be audited. It might be compromised by the parties; but this is much more than auditing the same. It is the work of both parties—the agreement of minds, contract and not an ex parte process of auditing," cited, approved and followed in Sheldon v. Asheville, 119 N. C. 606, 610, 25 S. E. 781.

When Judgment Obtained Notice Unnecessary.—When a judgment has been obtained against a county or other municipal corporation, it is not necessary that notice as required in certain cases by this section should be given before bringing an action for mandamus to compel the payment of the judgment. Nicholson v. Commissioners, 121 N. C. 27, 27 S. E. 996.

Not Applicable to Actions Ex Contractu. — Neither does the section have any application to actions ex contractu, where the damages are unliquidated. Sugg v. Greenville, 169 N. C. 606, 617, 86 S. E. 695, citing Frishby v. Marshall, 119 N. C. 570, 26 S. E. 251; Neal v. Marion, 126 N. C. 412, 35 S. E. 812.

Recovery of Taxes Illegally Collected. — Where a taxpayer has paid his taxes authorized by an unconstitutional statute under protest, and has complied with the provisions of Revisal, sec. 2855, which regulates and controls actions to recover illegal taxes paid under protest, it is unnecessary to the maintenance of his action to recover them that he follow the provisions of this section, requiring that he present his claim and make his demand, etc. R. R. v. Cherokee County, 177 N. C. 86, 87, 97 S. E. 758.

§ 1331. Accounts to be itemized, verified, and audited.—No account shall be audited by the board for any services or disbursements unless it is first made out in items and has attached to and filed with it the affidavit of the claimant that the services therein charged have been in fact made and rendered, and that no part thereof has been paid or satisfied. Each account shall state the nature of the services, and where no specific compensation is provided by law, it shall also state the time necessarily devoted to the performance thereof. The board may disallow or require further evidence of the account, notwithstanding the verification. All county commissioners acting on December first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty, or elected theretofore, are released, whether as individuals or in their corporate capacity, from any and all penalties incurred by reason of failure to comply with the provisions of this section, prior to said date. (Rev., s. 1385; Code, s. 754; 1905, c. 55; 1868, c. 20, s. 10; 1931, c. 445.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 changed the date in the last sentence of this section from January 27, 1905, to that specified.

Duty of Commissioners.—The law commits to the board of commissioners the power and duty of auditing and passing upon the validity of claims. If they refuse to audit or act upon a claim, mandamus will lie to compel them to do so. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 179, 47 S. E. 397; Bennett v. Comrs., 125 N. C. 468, 34 S. E. 632; Hughes v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 598, 12 S. E. 465.

Orders Not Negotiable.—"Orders or warrants issued by a municipal corporation are not negotiable and carry with them none of the privileges of negotiable paper except to pass by delivery upon indorsement." Daniel Neg. Inst., sec. 427; 1 Dillon Mun. Corp., sec. 487; Wright v. Kinney, 123 N. C. 618, 621, 31 S. E. 874.

In Wall v. Monroe, 103 U. S. 74, 26 L. Ed. 430, Field, J., says: "The warrants, being in form negotiable, are transferable by delivery so far as to authorize the holder to demand payment of them and to maintain in his own name an action upon them." Wright v. Kinney, 123 N. C. 618, 621, 31 S. E. 874.

Unauthorized Indorsement. — The unauthorized indorsement of "approved" signed by the chairman of the county commissioners of a county order invalid upon its face, will not render him personally liable, in the absence of fraud and misrepresentation. Wright v. Kinney, 123 N. C. 618, 619, 31 S. E. 874.

What Claims Need Not Be Audited.—While unadjusted claims are required to be audited and ordered to be paid, absolute and unconditional obligations already ascertained and audited are in themselves and upon their face an order and authority in the financial officer, possessing the means not otherwise appropriated, to pay on presentation. Leach v. Commissioners, 84 N. C. 829, 830.

Presumption as to Warrants.—The presumption is that orders issued by county commissioners are for necessary expenses and valid. McCless v. Meekins, 117 N. C. 34, 35, 37, 23 S. E. 99.

Same—Prima Facie.—All the courts agree that municipal warrants are mere prima facie and not conclusive evidence of the validity of the allowed claims against the county by which they were issued. The county is not estopped from questioning the legality of the claims. Wall v. Monroe, 103 U. S. 745; Ouachita v. Wolcott, 103 U. S. 559, and Merritt v. Monticello, 138 U. S. 673, and cases therein cited. Quoted, approved and followed in Wright v. Kinney, 123 N. C. 618, 621, 31 S. E. 874.

The allowance of a claim by a county board of commissioners is not final and conclusive, but is only prima facie evidence of the correctness of the claim. In the case of Commissioners v. Keller, 6 Kan., 510, it is held that the allowance of a claim by the county board is not final and conclusive. It may be re-examined by the board itself, and on appeal may be examined or disallowed in whole or in part by the court. Abernathy v. Phifer, 84 N. C. 712, 714.

Remedies of Holder.—The holder of a valid county warrant, who is refused payment, has two remedies against the county treasurer—either to sue him on his bond, or to apply for a mandamus—over neither of which has a justice of peace jurisdiction. Wright v. Kinney, 123 N. C. 618, 621, 31 S. E. 874.

When County Treasurer Should Refuse to Pay.—If the county treasurer deems the warrant drawn in contravention of a constitutional provision or limitation, he should refuse to pay it. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 180, 47 S. E. 397.

When a Mandamus Will Lie.—A mandamus will lie to compel a county treasurer to pay a warrant out of a specific fund, the warrant having been drawn by the county commissioners. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 47 S. E. 397.

If, after the hearing, they refused to allow or issue a warrant for its payment, an action will lie against the commissioners to establish the debt, and for such other relief as the party may be entitled to. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 180, 47 S. E. 397; Hughes v. Comrs., 107 N. C. 598, 12 S. E. 465.

§ 1332. Accounts to be numbered as presented.—All accounts presented in any year, beginning at each regular meeting in December, shall be numbered from one upwards, in the order in which they are presented, and the time of presentation, the names of the persons in whose favor they are made out, and by whom presented, shall be carefully entered on the minutes of the board; and no such account shall be withdrawn from the custody of the board or its clerk, except to be used as evidence in a judicial proceeding, and after being so used it shall be promptly returned. (Rev., s. 1386; Code, s. 755; 1868, c. 20, s. 12.)

§ 1333. Claims to be numbered as allowed; copy to board annually.—The clerk of the board of commissioners, if so ordered by the board, shall number all claims, orders and certificates that may be allowed by the board in a book kept for that purpose, and he shall annually, the day before the board proceeds to lay a county tax for the ensuing year, furnish the chairman of the board with a copy of the same. (Rev., s. 1387; Code, s. 751; R. C., c. 28, s. 12; 1793, c. 387.)

§ 1334. Annual statement of claims and revenues to be published.—The board shall cause to be posted at the courthouse within five days after each regular December meeting and for at least four successive weeks, or after each regular monthly meeting, if they deem it advisable, and for one week, the name of every individual whose accounts has been audited, the amount claimed and the amount allowed; and also at the same time and in the same manner post a full statement of county revenue and charges, showing by items the income from every source and the disbursements on every account for the past year, together with the permanent debt of the county, if any, when contracted, and the interest paid or remaining unpaid thereon. The board shall also publish the said statement in some newspaper in the county: Provided that the board of county commissioners of Hertford County shall not be required to publish the statement in some newspaper in the county if, in their discretion, the cost of the publication is excessive. (Rev., s. 1388; Code, s. 752; 1901, c. 196; 1905, c. 227; 1933, c. 525, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to publication of receipts and disbursements, see section 2687; as to annual statement of taxes, see section 2686.

For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 471, et seq.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 154, provided: "That chapter four hundred and fifty-nine of the Public-Local Laws of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five, be and the same is hereby repealed, and all of the provisions and requirements of section one thousand three hundred and thirty-four of the Consolidated Statutes are fully re-enacted. This act shall apply to the County of Union only."

The proviso at the end of the section declared prior to the amendment by c. 525 Public Laws 1933, that the cost of publication should not exceed one-half of a cent a word.

Requirement Applies to Incoming Board.—The statement required to be published "within five days after each regular December meeting," is for the incoming board, and the statute imposing the penalty, under the strict construction required, is not applicable to members of the outgoing board. Shelton v. Moody, 146 N. C. 426, 59 S. E. 994.

Art. 7A. County Finance Act

§ 1334(1). Short title.—This article shall be known and may be cited as "The County Finance Act." (1927, c. 81, s. 1.)

As to Local Government Act, see §§ 2492(1)-2492(51). As to validation of bonds, see §§ 2492(52)-2492(61).

Validity of Passage.—This act was enacted by the General Assembly in compliance with all pertinent constitutional requirements. Frazier v. Board of Commissioners, 194 N. C. 49, 58, 138 S. E. 433.

Purpose of Act.—The purpose of the general assembly in enacting this act is manifest. It was to enable the several counties of the State not only to provide for their future needs by issuing bonds for purposes specified therein, but also to fund their valid indebtedness heretofore incurred in good faith, by issuing bonds and thus relieve the taxpayers of burdensome annual taxation. Hartsfield v. Craven County, 194 N. C. 358, 362, 139 S. E. 698.

It is the declared purpose of this act to put the various counties of the state in a position to live within their incomes. Commissioners v. Assell, 194 N. C. 412, 140 S. E. 34.

Liberally Construed.—This act should be liberally construed to effectuate its intent. Hartsfield v. Craven County, 194 N. C. 358, 139 S. E. 698.

§ 1334(2). Meaning of terms.—In this article, unless the context otherwise requires, the words—

"Governing body" means the board of county commissioners, or the board or body in which the general legislative powers of the entire county are vested.

"Clerk" means the officer acting as clerk of the governing body.

"Necessary expenses" means the necessary expenses referred to in section seven of article seven of the Constitution of North Carolina.

"Published" means printed in a newspaper published in the county, if there be such a newspaper, but otherwise means posted at the court-house door and in at least three other public places in the county.

"Chief financial officer" means the county accountant, auditor, or other officer designated or appointed by the governing body to supervise the fiscal affairs of the county, unless such officer shall be designated by law. (1927, c. 81. s. 2.)

§ 1334(3). Application and construction of act.—This article shall apply to all counties in the State, except as otherwise provided herein. Every provision of this act shall be construed as being qualified by constitutional provisions whenever such construction shall be necessary in order to sustain the constitutionalty of any portion of this article. (1927, c. 81, s. 3.)

§ 1334(4). Revenue anticipation loans for ordinary expenses.—Counties may borrow money for the purpose of paying appropriations made for the current fiscal year in anticipation of the collection of the taxes and other revenues of such fiscal year, payable at such time or times, not later than thirty days after the expiration of the current fiscal year, as the governing board may fix. No such loan shall be made if the amount thereof, together with the amount of similar previous loans remaining unpaid, shall exceed 80 per cent of the amount of uncollected taxes and other revenue for the fiscal year in which the loan is made, as estimated by the chief financial officer and certified in writing by him to the governing body. (1927, c. 81, s. 4.)

§ 1334(5). Revenue anticipation loans for debt service.—For the purpose of paying the principal or interest of bonds or notes due or to become due within four months, and not otherwise adequately provided for, any county may borrow money in anticipation of the receipt of either the revenues of the fiscal year in which the loan is made, or the revenues of the next succeeding fiscal year, and such loan shall be payable not later than the end of such next succeeding fiscal year. For the purpose of paying or renewing notes evidencing indebtedness incurred before July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, and authorized by this article as amended to be funded, any county may issue new notes from time to time until such indebtedness is paid out of revenues or funded into bonds. Such new notes may be made payable at any time or times, not later than five years after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this section. (1927, c. 81, s. 5; 1931, c. 60, s. 63, c. 294; 1933, c. 259, c. 2.)

See Editor's Note to section 1334(8).

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the second and third sentences to this section.

The dates in this section were changed, by Public Laws 1933, c. 259, from March 18th 1931 to July 1st 1933.

§ 1334(6). Notes evidencing revenue anticipation loans.—Negotiable notes shall be issued for all moneys borrowed under the two preceding sections, which notes may be renewed from time to time and money may be borrowed upon new notes from time to time for the payment of any indebtedness evidenced thereby; but all such notes and loans shall mature within the time limited by said two sections for the payment of the original loan. No money shall be borrowed under said sections at a rate of interest exceeding the maximum rate permitted by law. All notes herein provided for shall be authorized by a resolution of the governing body, which shall fix the actual or maximum face amount of the notes and the actual or maximum rate of interest to be paid upon the amount borrowed. The governing body may delegate to any officer the power to fix such face amount and rate of interest within the limitations prescribed by such resolution, and the power to dispose of such notes, which shall be executed under the seal of the county by the chairman and clerk of the board, or by any two officers designated by the board for that purpose, and any interest coupons thereto attached shall be signed with the manual or facsimile signature of said clerk or of any other officer designated by the board for that purpose. (1927, c. 81, s. 6; 1931, c. 60, s. 59.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section by striking therefrom the words: "If such notes mature not more than six months after their date, they may be disposed of either by public or private negotiations, after five days' notice has been given in some newspaper having a general circulation in the county. If such notes mature more than six months after their date, they shall not be disposed of except in accordance with the provisions of this act governing the disposal of bond anticipation notes maturing more than six months from date."

§ 1334(7). Certification of revenue anticipation notes.—No revenue anticipation notes shall be valid unless there shall be written or printed on the face or the reverse thereof a statement signed by the chief financial officer of the county in the words: "This note and all other revenue anticipation notes of the county amount to less than 80 per cent of the amount of uncollected taxes and other revenue for the current year": Provided, however, that if such notes are issued under the authority given by section five of this act, said statement may be either in said words or in the words, "This note is issued under section five of the county finance act for the payment of principal or interest of bonds or notes." (1927, c. 81, s. 7.)

§ 1334(7a). Certain notes of counties validated; proceeds lost in insolvent banks.—All notes heretofore issued by counties pursuant to the provisions of the County Finance Act applicable to notes issued for money borrowed under section 1334(5) are hereby validated, notwithstanding that said notes were issued for the purpose of paying the principal or interest of notes evidencing indebtedness incurred under section 1334(4): Provided, that this act shall not be construed to validate securities issued to refund or renew notes, the proceeds from which originally were deposited in banks that have failed, causing the loss of such deposits or making them unavailable to the unit of government. (1931, c. 332.)

§ 1334(8). Purposes for which bonds may be issued and taxes levied.—The special approval of the general assembly is hereby given to the issuance by counties of bonds and notes for the special purposes named in this section, and to the levy of property taxes for the payment of such bonds and notes and interest thereon. Accordingly, authority is hereby given to all counties in the state, under the terms and conditions herein described, to issue bonds and notes, and to levy property taxes for the payment of the same, with interest thereon, for the following purposes, including therein purchase of the necessary land and, in the case of buildings, the necessary equipment:

(a) Erection and purchase of schoolhouses.

(b) Highway construction and reconstruction, including bridges and culverts.

(c) Bridge construction.

(d) Erection and purchase of court-house and jails, including a public auditorium within and as a part of a court-house.

(e) Erection and purchase of county homes for the indigent and infirm.

(f) Erection and purchase of hospitals.

(g) Erection and purchase of public auditoriums.

(h) Elimination of grade crossings over railroads and interurban railways, including approaches and damages, when not less than one-half of the cost shall be payable to the county at one time, or from time to time under contract made with a railroad or interurban railway company, the bonds herein authorized to be for the entire cost or any portion thereof.

(i) Acquisition and improvement of lands for public parks and playgrounds.

(j) Funding or refunding of valid indebtedness, if such indebtedness be payable at the time of the passage of the order authorizing the bonds or be payable within one year thereafter, or although payable more than one year thereafter, is to be cancelled prior to its maturity and simultaneously with the issuance of the funding or refunding bonds, and all debt not evidenced by bonds which was created for necessary expenses of any county and which remains outstanding at the ratification of this act is hereby validated. The term 'indebtedness' as used in this clause (j) includes all valid or enforceable indebtedness of a county, whether incurred for current expenses or for any other purpose, except indebtedness incurred in the name of a county on behalf of a school district or township and not payable by means of taxes authorized to be levied on all taxable property in the county. It also includes indebtedness incurred in the name of a county board of education for the maintenance of schools for the six months' term required by the State Constitution. It includes indebtedness evidenced by bonds, bond anticipation notes, revenue anticipation notes, judgments and unpaid interest on said indebtedness accrued to the date of the bonds issued. It also includes indebtedness assumed by a county as well as indebtedness created by a county. Bond anticipation notes evidencing indebtedness may, at the option of the governing body, be retired either by means of funding bonds issued under this subsection or by means of bonds in anticipation of the sale of which the notes were issued. Furthermore, the said word "debt" as used in this section includes the principal of and accrued interest on funding bonds, refunding bonds, and other evidences of indebtedness heretofore or hereafter issued. The above numeration of particular kinds of debt shall not be construed as limiting the word "debt" as used in this section, the intention being that said word shall include debts of every kind and character. Bonds hereafter issued to fund or refund interest may, at the option of the governing body, be named or designated as certificates of indebtedness. No interest accruing after the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight shall be funded or refunded.

(k) A portion to be determined by the governing body of the cost of construction of bridges at county boundaries, when an adjoining county or municipality, within or without the state, shall have agreed to pay the remaining cost of construction.

(l) A portion to be determined by the governing body of the cost of public buildings constructed or acquired in order that a part of such buildings may be used for a purpose hereinabove expressed when a municipality within the county shall agree to pay the remaining cost.

(m) Acquiring, constructing and improving airports or landing fields for the use of airplanes or other aircraft. (1927, c. 81, s. 8; 1929, c. 171, s. 1; 1931, c. 60, s. 54; 1933, c. 259, s. 2; 1935, c. 302, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The act of 1929 added subsection (m) to this section. The Act of 1931 changed the date in clause (j) from July 1, 1927 to that now specified and added the proviso in such clause.

Public Laws 1933, c. 259 omitted a proviso, from subsection (j), which related to refunding serial bonds and added the second sentence to the definition of the term "indebtedness" contained in that subsection. By Public Laws of 1933, c. 566 the prior Amendment of 1933 was made not applicable to bonds passed by the County Commissioners of Guilford County prior to March 15th 1933.

The amendment of 1935 omitted from subsection (j) of this section the words "incurred before July 1, 1933" as they appeared in the section twice after the word "indebtedness." The amendment also added to that subsection the last four sentences. The 1935 act, which also amended sections 1334(9), 2937 and 2938, provided that "sections one and two of chapter two hundred fifty-nine of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-three be and the same are hereby amended to conform to the foregoing amendments." Such section of the 1933 act, so far as the language quoted applies, amended sections 1334(5), 1334(41), and 2933.

This Section Is Constitutional.—Evans v. Mecklenburg County, 205 N. C. 560, 564, 172 S. E. 323.

The word "repair" although omitted in the rewriting of this section is "necessarily implied by law" when construed in conjunction with § 1290 and §§ 1297, 1317. See Harrell v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 225, 173 S. E. 614.

Necessity for Submission to Voters.—See note under const. Art. 7, § 7.

A bond order passed by the board of commissioners of a county in this state, under the authority and subject to the provisions of this and related sections, is subject to the approval of the voters of the county, when a petition signed by the requisite number of voters of said county has been filed with the said board of commissioners. Hemric v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 845, 847, 175 S. E. 168.

Authority is given the county under this section and § 5475 to issue without a vote bonds for sanitary improvements for its schoolhouses necessary to maintain the constitutional school term in the county, when the maturity dates of the bonds are within the limits fixed by § 1334(11). Taylor v. Board of Education, 206 N. C. 263, 173 S. E. 608.

Indebtedness Incurred for School Purposes.—Where a county under power conferred by special statute has borrowed money from time to time for the maintenance and equipment of its public schools, its bonds to refund the indebtedness so incurred are valid if issued in conformity with the provisions of this section. Hartsfield v. Craven County, 194 N. C. 358, 139 S. E. 698.

Indebtedness for teachers' salaries held to come within the purview of subsection (j) of this act. Hampton v. Board of Education, 195 N. C. 213, 141 S. E. 744.

§ 1334(9). Order of governing body required.—Bonds of a county shall be authorized by an order of the governing body, the term "order" being here used to indicate the order, resolution, or measure which declares that bonds shall be issued, in order to differentiate the same from such subsequent resolution as may be passed in respect of details which such order is not required to contain. Such order shall state:

(a) In brief and general terms, the purpose for which the bonds are to be issued, but not more than one purpose of issue shall be stated, the purposes set forth in any one subsection of section 1334(8) to be deemed as one purpose, but, in the case of funding or refunding bonds, a brief description of the indebtedness to be funded or refunded sufficient to identify such indebtedness;

(b) The maximum aggregate principal amount of the bonds;

(c) That a tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest of the bonds when due shall be annually levied and collected, provided, in lieu of the foregoing and in the case of funding or refunding bonds, such statement with respect to an annual tax may, in the discretion of the governing body, be altered or omitted;

(d) That a statement of the county debt has been filed with the clerk, and is open to public inspection;

(e) A clause stating the conditions upon which the order will become effective, and the same shall become effective in accordance with such clause, which clause shall be as follows:

1. If the bonds are funding or refunding bonds, that the order shall take effect upon its passage, and shall not be submitted to the voters; or

2. If the bonds are for a purpose other than the payment of necessary expenses, or if the governing body, although not required to obtain the assent of the voters before issuing the bonds, deems it advisable to obtain such assent, that the order shall take effect when approved by the voters of the county at an election as provided in this article; or

3. In any other case, that the order shall take effect thirty days after the first publication thereof after final passage, unless in the meantime a petition for its submission to the voters is filed under this article, and that in such event it shall take effect when approved by the voters of the county at an election as provided in this article.

4. No restriction, limitation, or provision contained in any other law, except a law of statewide application relating to the issuance of bonds, notes or other obligations of a county, shall apply to bonds or notes issued under this article for the purpose of refunding, funding or renewing indebtedness, and no vote of the people shall be required for the issuance of bonds or notes for said purposes, unless required by the constitution of this state. The other laws here referred to include all laws enacted prior to the expiration of the regular session of the general assembly in the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-five. Nothing herein shall be construed, however, as prohibiting a county from issuing bonds or notes under any special or public-local law applicable to such county, it being intended that this act shall be cumulative and additional authority for the issuance of bonds and notes. (1927, c. 81, s. 9; 1931, c. 60, s. 55; 1933, c. 259, s. 2; 1935, c. 302, s. 2.)

For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 471, et seq.

Editor's Note.—The last part of subsection (a) relating to description of indebtedness to be funded or refunded and the proviso to subsection (c) were added by Public Laws 1933, c. 259.

The amendment of 1935 made changes only in subsection (4) of this section. In that subsection the words "incurred before July 1, 1933" were omitted and the last two sentences of the section as it now reads were added.

Courts Cannot Supply Deficiency in Order.—In order to a valid issue of county bonds under this article, to purchase schoolhouses to comply with the mandate of our Constitution for a six months term of public schools, as a necessary county expense, without submitting the question to the vote of the people of the county, it is required that the resolution passed by the board of county commissioners so declare the fact to be, and the courts are without authority to supply the deficiency in the order. Hall v. Commissioners, 195 N. C. 367, 142 S. E. 315.

Restraint of Issuance of Bonds.—Where the taxpayers of a county file suit under this section to restrain the issuance of bonds until authorized by the qualified voters of the county, and there is a controversy as to whether the requisite 15% of qualified voters has been obtained to the petition, as set out in § 1334(21), a temporary restraining order will be continued until the sufficiency of the petition can be determined. Scruggs v. Rollins, 207 N. C. 335, 177 S. E. 180.

§ 1334(10). Order need not specify details of purpose.—In stating the purpose of a bond issue, an order need not specify the location of any improvement or property, or the material of construction. (1927, c. 81, s. 10.)

§ 1334(11). Maturities of bonds.—All bonds shall mature as hereinafter provided, and no funding or refunding bonds shall mature after the expiration of the period herein fixed for such bonds, respectively; and no other bonds shall mature after the expiration of the period estimated by the governing body as the life of the improvement for which the bonds are issued, each such period to be computed from a day not later than one year after the passage of the order. Such periods shall not exceed the following for the respective classes of bonds:

(a), (b) Funding or refunding bonds, fifty years.

(c) Bridge bonds (including retaining walls and approaches), forty years, unless constructed of wood, and in that case, ten years.

(d) Elimination of grade crossings, thirty years.

(e) Lands for public parks and playgrounds, including improvements, buildings, and equipment, forty years.

(f) Highway construction or reconstruction, including bridges and culverts, if the surface—

1. Is constructed of sand and gravel, five years;

2. Is of waterbound macadam or penetration process, ten years;

3. Is of brick, blocks, sheet asphalt, bitulithic, or bituminous concrete, laid on a solid foundation, or is of concrete, twenty years.

(g) If, in the order or subsequent resolution, the governing body should be unwilling to provide that the surface of highways to be constructed or reconstructed with the proceeds of bonds shall have any surface described above, it shall be lawful to provide for a different surfacing if the state highway commission or the chairman thereof shall certify, and if an order or resolution of the governing body shall recite such certification (which recital shall be conclusive for the purpose of this article), that the surfacing so provided is believed to be of at least equal durability with the surfacing described in one or the other of the three classes of surfacing above described, and in that event the bonds shall not mature later than the period hereinabove provided for such similar surfacing.

(h) Public buildings, if they are—

1. Of fireproof construction, that is, a building the walls of which are constructed of brick, stone, iron, or other hard, incombustible materials, and in which there are no wood beams or lintels, and in which the floors, roofs, stair halls, and public halls are built entirely of brick, stone, iron, or other hard, incombustible materials, and in which no woodwork or other inflammable materials are used in any of the partitions, flooring, or ceiling (but the building shall be deemed to be of fireproof construction notwithstanding that elsewhere than in the stair halls and entrance halls there is wooden flooring supported by wooden sleepers on top of the fireproof floor, and that it contains wooden handrails and treads, made of hardwood, not less than two inches thick), forty years;

2. Of non-fireproof construction, that is, a building the outer walls of which are constructed of brick, stone, iron, or other hard, incombustible materials, but which in any other respect differs from a fireproof building as defined in this section, thirty years;

3. Of other construction, twenty years.

(i) Land for airports or landing fields, including grading and drainage, forty years.

(j) Buildings, equipment and other improvements for airports or landing fields, other than grading and drainage, ten years. (1927, c. 81, s. 11; 1929, c. 171, s. 2; 1931, c. 60, s. 56; 1933, c. 259, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added subsections (i) and (j) to this section. The Act of 1931 struck out clauses (a) and (b) and inserted in lieu thereof clause (a), (b).

Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 259, subsection (a) of this section provided for thirty years in case the debt was less than ten per cent of the assessed valuation of property in the county and fifty years in other cases.

§ 1334(11a). Accelerating maturity of bonds and notes of counties and municipalities. — Any municipality or county may provide that its bonds or notes shall become due and payable before maturity at the election of the holders or a representative of the holders, or a majority in amount of the holders, upon the happening of such events and upon such conditions and subject to such limitations (which may include a provision for rescission of action taken in the exercise of said election) as may be set forth in a resolution or ordinance passed before the issuance of the bonds or notes: Provided, however, that such a provision, in order to become effective, must either be set forth in the bonds or notes or incorporated therein by reference to such resolution or ordinance. The negotiability of such bonds or notes shall not be affected by the adoption of such provision or by the recital thereof in the bonds or notes. (1931, c. 418; 1933, c. 258, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 258 inserted the words "or a majority in amount of the holders" and added the last sentence relating to negotiability.

§ 1334(12). Consolidated bond issues.—It shall be lawful to consolidate into one issue bonds authorized by two or more orders for different purposes, in which event the bonds of such consolidated issue shall mature within the average of the periods estimated as the life of the several improvements, taking into consideration the amount of bonds to be issued on account of each item for which a period shall be estimated. (1927, c. 81, s. 12.)

§ 1334(13). Sworn statement of debt, before authorization of bonds for school purposes.— After the introduction, and at least ten days before the final passage of an order for the issuance of bonds for school purposes, an officer designated by the governing body for that purpose shall file with the clerk a statement of debt incurred and to be incurred for school purposes under orders either introduced or passed, whether evidenced by bonds notes, or otherwise, and whether incurred by original creation of the debt or by assumption of debt, including debt incurred by the county board of education, and including debt to the State or any department thereof, but not including obligations incurred to meet appropriations in anticipation of revenues to an amount not exceeding the amount of the last preceding tax levy for school purpose, nor including debt incurred in anticipation of the sale of any kind of bonds except funding and refunding bonds, which statement shall show the following:

(a) The assessed valuation of property as last fixed for county taxation.

(b) Outstanding school debt.

(c) Bonded school debt to be incurred under orders either passed or introduced.

(d) The sum of items "b" and "c".

(e) School sinking funds, being money or investments thereof pledged and held for the payment of principal of outstanding school debt.

(f) School credits, being principal sums owing to the county from school districts which are pledged to and when collected will be used in the retirement of outstanding school debt.

(g) Amount of unissued funding and refunding school bonds including in gross debt.

(h) The sum of items "e" and "f" and "g".

(i) Net school debt, being the sum by which item "d" exceeds item "h".

(j) The percentage that the net school debt bears to said assessed valuation. (1927, c. 81, s. 13.)

§ 1334(14). Sworn statement of debt before authorization of bonds for other than school purposes.— After the introduction and at least ten days before the final passage of an order for the issuance of bonds for other than school purposes, an officer designated by the governing body for that purpose shall file with the clerk a statement of debt incurred and to be incurred for other than school purposes under orders either introduced or passed, whether evidenced by bonds, notes, or otherwise, and whether incurred by original creation of the debt, or by assumption of the debt, including debt to the State or any department thereof, but not including obligations incurred to meet appropriations in anticipation of revenues to an amount not exceeding the amount of the last preceding tax levy for other than school purposes, or including debt incurred in anticipation of the sale of any kind of bonds except funding and refunding bonds, which statement shall show the following:

(a) The assessed valuation of property as last fixed for county taxation.

(b) Outstanding debt for other than school purposes.

(c) Bonded debt to be incurred for other than school purposes under orders either passed or introduced.

(d) The sum of items "b" and "c".

(e) Sinking funds (except school sinking funds), being money or investments thereof pledged and held for the payment of principal of debt outstanding for other than school purposes.

(f) Moneys payable to the county by a railroad or interurban railway company, under contract, as all or part of the cost of grade crossing elimination, if such moneys are pledged to and when collected will be used in the retirement of outstanding debt for other than school purposes.

(g) Amount of unissued funding and refunding bonds not for school purposes included in gross debt.

(h) The sum of items "e", "f" and "g".

(i) Net debt for other than school purposes, being the sum by which item "e", exceeds item "h".

(j) The percentage that the net debt for other than school purposes bears to said assessed valuation. (1927, c. 81, s. 14.)

§ 1334(15). Financial statement filed for inspection.— The sworn statement of debt shall remain on file with the clerk and be open to public inspection. In any action or proceeding in any court involving the validity of bonds, said statement shall be deemed to be true and to comply with the provisions of this act, unless it appears, in an action or proceeding commenced within the time limited by this act for actions to set aside bond orders, first, that the representations contained therein could not by any reasonable method of computation be true; or, second, that a true statement would show that the order authorizing the bonds could not be passed. (1927, c. 81, s. 15.)

§ 1334(16). Publication of bond order.— As soon as possible after the introduction of the order and the filing of the financial statement hereinabove required, the clerk shall publish the order as introduced. Before publishing the same he shall fix an hour and day for a public hearing upon the order unless the governing body shall itself have fixed such hour and day. The hour and day, if fixed by the clerk, shall be ten o'clock A. M. of the first Monday of the following month, if ten days shall elapse between such publication and the day so fixed, but otherwise shall be ten o'clock A. M. of the first Monday of the next succeeding month. In connection with the publication of the order, and immediately below the same, the clerk shall publish a statement signed by him with blanks properly filled in substantially the following form:

"The foregoing order has been introduced and a sworn statement has been filed under the county finance act showing the assessed valuation of the county to be $.....and the net debt for school purposes (substitute net debt for other than school purposes if the proposed bonds are for other than school purposes) including the proposed bonds, to be $..... A tax will be levied for the payment of the proposed bonds and interest, if the same shall be issued. Any citizen or taxpayer may protest against the issuance of such bonds at a meeting of the board of county commissioners to be held at..... o'clock .....M. ....., 19.... or an adjournment thereof.

"Clerk of Board of Commissioners."

Section Mandatory. — The proper publication of the notices required by this act is mandatory, and cannot be dispensed with. Frazier v. Board of Commissioners, 194 N. C. 49, 59, 138 S. E. 433.

Sufficiency of Publication of Various Orders.—The provisions as to notice given to taxpayers, etc., required by this section, of an opportunity to be heard before the county may issue bonds for various purposes, is sufficiently complied with if the several orders of the county commissioners are published in the same advertisement and a date and place fixed for passing upon the objections made, if any, separately placed in the publication and distinctly referring to each of the separate purposes. Frazier v. Board of Commissioners, 194 N. C. 49, 138 S. E. 433.

The publication of one statement in connection with all three orders was sufficient as a compliance with this section, a statement for each order not being necessary. Frazier v. Board of Commissioners, 194 N. C. 49, 59, 138 S. E. 433.

§ 1334(17). Hearing; passage of order; debt limitations.—On the day so fixed for the public hearing, but not earlier than ten days after the first publication of the order, the governing body shall hear any and all citizens and taxpayers who may desire to protest against the issuance of the bonds, but such hearing may be adjourned from time to time. After such hearing, the governing body may pass the order in the form of its introduction, or in an amended form but the amount of bonds to be issued shall not be increased by such amendment, nor the purpose of issuance substantially changed, without due notice and hearing as above required. Provided, however, that no order for the issuance of school bonds shall be passed unless it appears from said sworn statements that the net school indebtedness does not exceed five per cent of said assessed valuation, unless the bonds to be issued are funding or refunding bonds; and no order shall be passed for the issuance of bonds other than school bonds unless it appears from said sworn statement that the net indebtedness for other than school purposes does not exceed five per cent as said assessed valuation, unless the bonds to be issued are funding or refunding bonds: Provided, however, that if the net school debt of any county shall, on the day this act is ratified, be in excess of four-fifths of the limitation above fixed therefor, such order for the issuance of school bonds may be passed, if the net debt shall not be increased thereby more than two per cent of such assessed valuation; and that if the net debt of any county for other than school purposes shall, on the day this act is ratified be in excess of four-fifths of the limitations above fixed therefor, such order may be passed if the net debt for other than school purposes shall not be increased thereby more than two per cent of such assessed valuation: Provided, further, that if any county shall assume all outstanding indebtedness for school purposes of every city, town school district, school taxing district, township or other political subdivision therein, the limit of the net debt of such county for school purposes, including the debt so assumed, shall be eight per cent (8%) and the privilege of creating or assuming an additional gross debt of two per cent (2%) under certain circumstances shall not be allowed such county. (1927, c. 81, s. 17.)

For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 471, et seq.

§ 1334(18). Material of construction and other details.—The statements as to kind and material of construction, so far as the same constitute conditions upon which maturities of bonds are to be determined under this act, as well as all details of bonds not required to be set forth in the order, may be set forth in resolution or resolutions to be passed on or after the passage of the order, and before the issuance of the bonds. (1927, c. 81, s. 18.)

§ 1334(19). Publication of bond order.— A bond order after final passage thereof shall be published once in each of two successive weeks after its final passage. A notice substantially in the following form (the banks being first properly filled in) with the printed or written signature of the clerk appended thereto, shall be published with the order:

"The foregoing order was finally passed on the ..... day of ....., 19..... and was first published on the ..... day of ..... 19 ..... Any action or proceeding questioning the validity of said order must be commenced within thirty days after its first publication.

Clerk."

(1927, c. 81, s. 19.)

§ 1334(20). Limitation of action to set aside order.— Any action or proceeding in any court to set aside a bond order, or to obtain any other relief, upon the ground that the order is invalid, must be commenced within thirty days after the first publication of the notice aforesaid and the order or supposed order referred to in the notice. After the expiration of such period of limitations, no right of action or defense upon the validity of the order shall be asserted, nor shall the validity or the order be open to question in any court upon any ground whatever, except in an action or proceeding commenced within such period. (1927, c. 81, s. 20.)

For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 471, et seq.

Constitutionality.—This section has not been construed by the Supreme Court, but statutes requiring notice to be given and providing that failure to give a notice within the time specified will operate as a bar, have been frequently construed and upheld. Kirby v. Board of Commissioners, 198 N. C. 440, 443, 152 S. E. 165.

Suit to Restrain Issuance of Bonds.—Where the board of county commissioners have under ordinance duly passed and hearing thereon had are about to issue bonds for the necessary purpose of erecting a jail, etc., contrary to the restrictions of the County Finance Act limiting the amount of bonds for other than school purposes to an amount not to exceed five per cent of the property valuation, a suit to restrain the issuance of the bonds is required by the express terms of this section to be commenced within thirty days after the publication of the required notice and order of the issue, and a suit instituted after the time prescribed cannot be maintained and the validity of the bonds will be upheld. The question of whether the statute is strictly one of limitation or a condition annexed to the cause of action is immaterial. Kirby v. Board of Commissioners, 198 N. C. 440, 152 S. E. 165.

§ 1334(21). Petition for referendum of bond order.—A petition demanding that a bond order be submitted to the voters may be filed with the clerk within thirty days after the first publication of the order. The petition shall be in writing and signed by voters of the county equal in number to at least fifteen per centum of the total number of votes cast at the last preceding election for the office of Governor. The residence address of each signer shall be written after his signature. The petition need not contain the text of the order to which it refers. The petition need not be all on one sheet and if on more than one sheet, it shall be verified as to each sheet. The clerk shall investigate the sufficiency of the petition and present it to the governing body, with a certificate stating the result of his investigation. The governing body, after hearing any taxpayer who may request to be heard, shall thereupon determine the sufficiency of the petition, and the determination of the governing body shall be conclusive. (1927, c. 81, s. 21.)

Bond Order Is Valid in Absence of Petition for Referendum.—Where no petition has been filed within the time prescribed by this section, praying that a bond order duly passed by the board of commissioners of a county, be submitted to the voters of the county, in accordance with the provisions of the act, the bond order is valid and effective, without the approval of the voters of the county. Hemric v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 845, 847, 175 S. E. 168.

But It Is Otherwise if Petition Is Filed.—Where a petition is filed in accordance with the provisions of this section, praying that a bond order duly passed by the board of commissioners of a county in this state, authorizing and directing the issuance of bonds of the county for the purpose of procuring money for the purchase, construction, improvement or equipment of schoolhouses required for the maintenance of a school in each of the districts of the county as required by the Constitution of the State, be submitted to the voters of the county, such bond order is not valid or effective, until the same has been approved by the voters of the county as provided. Hemric v. Board of Com'rs, 206 N. C. 845, 847, 175 S. E. 168.

§ 1334(22). What majority required.— If a bond order provides for the issuance of bonds for a purpose other than the payment of necessary expenses of the county, the approval of the qualified voters of the county, as required by the Constitution of North Carolina, shall be necessary in order to make the order operative. If, however, the bonds are to be issued for necessary expenses, the affirmative vote of the majority of the voters voting on the bond order shall be sufficient to make it operative, in all cases where the order is required by this act to be submitted to the voters. (1927, c. 81, s. 22.)

Lands and Equipment for Schools.—The issuance of bonds for school purposes does not require the submission of the question to the voters for the issuance of county bonds for the purchase of additional lands or equipment for established public schools, when the commissioners proceed under this act. The Constitution Art. IX, sec. 2. Art. VII, sec. 7, does not apply. Frazier v. Board of Commissioners, 194 N. C. 49, 138 S. E. 433.

§ 1334(23). When election held.— Whenever the taking effect of an order authorizing the issuance of bonds is dependent upon the approval of the order by the voters of a county, the governing body may submit the order to the voters at an election to be held not more than one year after the passage of the order. The governing body may call a special election for that purpose, or may submit the order to the voters at the regular election for county officers next succeeding the passage of the order, but no such special election shall be held within one month before or after a regular election for county officers. Several orders or other matters may be voted upon at the same election. (1927, c. 81, s. 23.)

§ 1334(24). New registration.—The governing body of the county in which such election is held may in their discretion, order a new registration of the voters for such election. The books for such new registration shall remain open in each precinct from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. on each day except Sundays and holidays, for three weeks, beginning on a Saturday morning and ending on the second Saturday evening before the election. A registrar and two judges of election shall be appointed by the governing body of each precinct: Provided, that the books shall be open at the polling places on each Saturday during the registration period. Sufficient notice shall be deemed to have been given of such new registration and of the appointment of the election officers if a notice thereof be published at least thirty (30) days before the closing of the registration books stating the hours and days for registration. It shall not be necessary to specify in said notice the places for registration. In case any registrar shall fail or refuse for any cause to perform his duties, it shall be lawful for the clerk to appoint another person to perform such duties, and no notice of such appointment shall be necessary. (1927, c. 81, s. 24.)

§ 1334(25). Notice of election.—A notice of the election shall be deemed sufficiently published if published once not later [than] thirty (30) days before the election, and thereafter twice before the election, at intervals of at least one week between publications. Such notice shall state the date of the election, the maximum amount of the proposed bonds, and the purpose thereof, and the fact that a tax will be levied for the payment thereof. The notice shall state the places at which the election will be held, but without enumeration thereof may state that the election will be held at the same places at which the last preceding election was held for members of the General Assembly, with such changes as may have been ordered by the governing body. (1927, c. 81, s. 25.)

§ 1334(26). Ballots.—The form of the question as stated on the ballot or ballots shall be in substantially the words: "For the order authorizing $..... bonds (briefly stating the purpose) and a tax therefor" and "Against the order authorizing $..... bonds (briefly stating the purpose) and a tax therefor." Such affirmative and negative forms may be printed upon separate ballots, or both thereof may be printed on one ballot, containing squares opposite the affirmative and the negative forms, in one of which squares the voter may make a mark (x). Ballots so prepared shall be deemed sufficient, but the requirements of this section are not mandatory. (1927, c. 81, s. 26.)

§ 1334(27). Returns canvassed.—The officers appointed to hold the election, in making return of the result thereof, shall incorporate therein not only the number of votes cast for and against each order submitted but also the number of voters registered and qualified to vote in the election. The governing body shall canvass the returns, and shall include in their canvass the votes cast and the number of voters registered and qualified to vote in the election, and shall determine and declare the result of the election. (1927, c. 81. s. 27.)

§ 1334(28). Application of other laws.—Except as herein otherwise provided, the registration and election shall be conducted in accordance with the laws then governing elections for members of the General Assembly in said county, and governing the registration of electors for such elections, and the provisions of the Australian Ballot Law shall not apply to registrations and elections under this act. (1927, c. 81, s. 28.)

§ 1334(29). Statement of result.—The governing body shall prepare a statement showing the number of votes cast for and against each order submitted, and the number of voters qualified to vote in the election, and declaring the result of the election, which statement shall be signed by a majority of the members of the governing body and delivered to the clerk, who shall record it in the minutes of the governing body, and file the original in his office and publish it once. (1927, c. 81, s. 29.)

§ 1334(30). Limitation as to actions upon elections.—No right of action or defense founded upon the invalidity of the election shall be asserted, nor shall the validity of the election be open to question in any court upon any ground whatever, except in an action or proceeding commenced within thirty days after the publication of such statement of result as provided in section 29 hereof. (1927, c. 81, s. 30.)

§ 1334(31). Preparation for issuing bonds.—At any time after the final passage of a bond order, all steps preliminary to the actual issuance of bonds under the order may be taken, but the bonds shall not be actually issued unless and until the order takes effect. (1927, c. 81, s. 31.)

§ 1334(32). Within what time bonds issued.—After a bond order takes effect, bonds may be issued in conformity with its provisions at any time within three years after the order takes effect, unless the order shall have been repealed, which repeal is permitted (without the privilege referendum upon the question of repeal), unless notes, issued in anticipation of the proceeds of the bonds shall be outstanding. (1927, c. 81, s. 32.)

§ 1334(33). Bonded debt payable in installments.—Each bond issue made under this article shall mature in annual installments or series the first of which, if funding bonds, shall be made payable not more than two years, and if not funding bonds, not more than three years, after the date of the first issued bonds of such issue and the last within the period prescribed by section 1334(11) for bonds of the class issued. No such installment or series shall be more than two and one-half times as great in amount as the smallest prior installment or series of the same bond issue. If all the bonds of an issue are not issued at the same time, the bonds at any one time outstanding shall mature as aforesaid. This section shall not apply to funding or refunding bonds. (1927, c. 81, s. 33; 1931, c. 60, s. 57; 1933, c. 259, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the Amendment of 1933, P. L. c. 259, the section applied to funding and refunding bonds except in cases where the debt exceeded ten per cent of the value of county property.

§ 1334(34). Medium and place of payment.—The bonds may be made payable in such kind of money and at such place or places within or without the State of North Carolina as the governing body may by resolution provide. (1927, c. 81, s. 34.)

§ 1334(35). Formal execution of bonds.—The bonds shall be issued in such forms as the officer who execute them shall adopt, except as otherwise provided by the governing body. They shall be signed by two or more officers designated by the governing body, or if the governing body makes no such designation, then by the chairman of the governing body and by the clerk, and the corporate seal of county or of the governing body shall be affixed to the bonds. The bonds may have coupons attached for the interest to be paid thereon, which coupons shall bear a facsimile signature of the clerk in office at the date of the bonds or at the date of delivery thereof. The delivery of bonds so executed shall be valid, notwithstanding any change in officers or in the seal of the county occurring after the signing and sealing of the bonds. (1927, c. 81, s. 35.)

§ 1334(36). Registration and transfer of bonds.—(a) Bonds payable to bearer. Bonds issued under this act shall be payable to the bearer, unless they are registered as provided in this section; and each coupon appertaining to a bond shall be payable to the bearer of the coupon.

(b) Registration and effect. A county may keep in the office of a county officer to be designated by the governing body, or in the office of a bank or trust company appointed by the governing body, as bond registrar a register or registers for the registration and transfer of its bonds, in which it may register any bond at any time of its issue, or, at the request of the holder, thereafter. After such registration the principal and interest of the bond shall be payable to the person in whose name it is registered except in the case of a coupon bond registered as to principal only, in which case the principal shall be payable to such person, unless the bond shall be discharged from registry by being registered as payable to bearer. After registration a bond may be transferred on such register by the registered owner in person or by attorney, upon presentation to the bond registrar, accompanied by delivery of a written instrument of transfer in a form approved by the bond registrar, executed by the registered owner.

(c) Registration and transfer noted on bond. Upon the registration or transfer of a bond as aforesaid, the bond registrar shall note such registration or transfer on the back of the bond. Upon the registration of a coupon bond, as to both principal and interest, he shall also cut off and cancel the coupons, and endorse upon the back of the bond a statement that such coupons have been cancelled.

(d) Agreement for registration. A county may, by recital in its bonds, agree to register the bonds as to principal only, or agree to register them either as to principal only, or as to both principal and interest, at the option of the bondholder. (1927, c. 81, s. 36.)

§ 1334(37). Repealed by Public Laws 1931, c. 60, s. 58.

§ 1334(38). Application of funds.—The proceeds of the sale of bonds and bond anticipation notes under this act shall be used only for the purposes specified in the order authorizing said bonds, and for the payment of the principal and interest of such notes issued in anticipation of the sale of bonds: Provided, however, that if for any reason any part of such proceeds are not applied to or are not necessary for such purposes, such unexpended part of the proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the principal or interest of said bonds. The cost of preparing, issuing, and marketing bonds shall be deemed to be one of the purposes for which the bonds are issued. If any notes issued in anticipation of the sale of bonds shall be outstanding and unpaid when the proceeds of the sale of bonds are received, such proceeds, or an amount thereof sufficient to retire such notes, shall be immediately, upon the receipt thereof, placed in a separate fund, which shall be held and used solely for the payment of such notes. If any member of the governing body or any county officer shall vote to apply or shall apply, or shall participate in applying any proceeds of bonds or bond anticipation notes in violation of this section, such member or such officer shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be prosecuted by the solicitor of the district in which county lies, and shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or imprisoned in the State's prison not more than twenty years, or both, at the discretion of the court, and shall forfeit and pay to any taxpayer or any holder of such bonds or notes who sues for the same the sum of two hundred dollars for each such act, and also all damages caused thereby. (1927, c. 81, s. 38.)

§ 1334(39). Bond anticipation loans.—At any time after a bond order has taken effect, as provided in section 1334(9), a county may borrow money for the purposes for which the bonds are to be issued, in anticipation of the receipts of the proceeds of the sale of bonds, and within the maximum authorized amount of the bond issue. Such loans shall be paid not later than three years after the time of taking effect of the order authorizing the bonds upon which they are predicated. The governing body may, in its discretion, retire any such loans by means of current revenues or other funds, in lieu of retiring them by means of bonds: Provided, however, that the governing body, at or before the actual retirement of any such loan by any means other than the issuance of bonds under the bond order upon which such loans is predicated, shall amend or repeal such order so as to reduce the authorized amount of the bond issue by the amount of the loan to be so retired. Such an amendatory or repealing order shall take effect upon its passage, and need not be published. Negotiable notes shall be issued for all moneys so borrowed. Such notes may be renewed from time to time, and money may be borrowed upon notes from time to time for the payment of any indebtedness evidenced thereby, but all such notes shall mature within the time limited by this section for the payment of the original loan. No money shall be borrowed under this section at a rate of interest exceeding the maximum rate permitted by law. The said notes, if maturing not more than six months from their date, may be disposed of by public or private negotiations, after five days notice published in some newspaper having a general circulation in the county, but if maturing more than six months from date, they shall be sold after advertisement as provided in this act for advertisement and sale of bonds. The issuance of such notes shall be authorized by resolution of the governing body, which shall fix the actual or maximum face amount of the notes and the actual or maximum rate of interest to be paid upon the amount borrowed. The governing body may delegate to any officer the power to fix said face amount and rate of interest with the limitations prescribed by said resolution, and the power to dispose of said notes. All such notes shall be executed in the manner provided in section 1334-(35) for the execution of bonds. They shall be submitted to and approved by the attorney for the county before they are issued, and his written approval endorsed on the notes. (1927, c. 81, s. 39.)

§ 1334(40). Bonds and notes shall recite the authority for issuance.—All bonds and notes authorized by this act shall recite that they are issued under and pursuant to this act. (1927, c. 81, s. 40.)

§ 1334(41). Taxes levied for payment of bonds.—The full faith and credit of the county shall be deemed to be pledged for the punctual payment of the principal of and interest on every bond and note issued under this article, including bonds for which special funds are provided. The governing body shall annually levy and collect a tax ad valorem upon all the taxable property in the county sufficient to pay the principal and interest of all bonds issued under this article as such principal and interest become due: Provided, however, that such tax may be reduced by the amount of other moneys appropriated and actually available for such purpose. The powers stated in this section in respect of the levy of taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of bonds and notes shall not be subject to any limitation prescribed by law upon the amount or rate of taxes which a county may levy; the General Assembly does here give its special approval to the levy of taxes in the manner and to the extent provided by this article for the payment of obligations incurred pursuant to this article for the special purposes for which such obligations are in this article authorized. Taxes levied under this section shall be levied and collected in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected upon property in the county. If any member of the governing body or any county officer shall vote to apply or shall apply or participate in applying any taxes in violation of this section, such member or officer shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be prosecuted by the solicitor of the district in which the county lies, and shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or imprisoned in the state prison not more than twenty years, or both, at the discretion of the court, and shall forfeit and pay to any taxpayer or any holder of such bonds or notes who sues for the same the sum of two hundred dollars for each such act, and also all damages caused thereby.

Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorizing an unlimited tax for the payment of bonds not issued for a special purpose within the meaning of section six of article five of the constitution of North Carolina. It is the intention of this article, however, to authorize the issuance of funding and refunding bonds and notes as herein provided in cases where taxes for their payment is limited by the constitution, as well as in other cases. The general assembly hereby declares that an emergency exists by reason of the present extraordinary financial condition of the counties of this state, and hereby gives it special approval to the levying of taxes to the fullest extent permitted by the constitution for the purpose of paying bonds and notes issued hereunder to fund or refund or renew indebtedness now outstanding or incurred before July first, nineteen hundred and thirty-three, and hereby declares that the payment of such bonds and notes constitutes a special purpose: Provided, in case of funding or refunding bonds which do not mature in installments as provided in section 1334(33), a tax for the payment of the principal of the said bonds need not be levied prior to the fiscal year or years said bonds mature, unless it is so provided for in an order or resolution passed before the issuance of said bonds, in which case such tax shall be levied in accordance with the provisions of such order or resolution. (1927, c. 81, s. 41; 1931, c. 60, s. 60; 1933, c. 259, s. 2.)

See Editor's Note to section 1334(8).

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the second paragraph to this section.

Public Laws 1933, c. 259, added the last proviso of this section as it now reads.

§ 1334(42). Enforcement of act.—If any boards or officer of a county shall be ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction to levy or collect a tax to pay a judgment or other debt, or to perform any duty required by this act to be performed by such board or officer, and shall fail to carry out such order, the court, in addition to all other remedies, may appoint its own officers and other persons to carry out such order and remove such board or officer who has thus refused to carry out such order. (1927, c. 81, s. 42.)

§ 1334(43). Repeals.—All acts and parts of acts, whether general, special, private or local, authorizing or limiting or prohibiting the issuance of bonds or other obligations of a county or counties, are hereby repealed: Provided, further, that the repeal shall not affect the validity of any bonds or obligations heretofore issued or incurred nor shall such repeal affect the powers, duties or obligations for providing for the payment of such bonds or obligations or interest thereon. Provided, further, that this act shall not affect any local or private act enacted at the present session of the General Assembly, but the powers hereby conferred and the methods of procedure hereby provided shall be deemed to be conferred and provided in addition to and not in substitution for those conferred or provided by any such local or private act enacted at the present session of the General Assembly; and any county may at its option proceed under any such local or private act applicable to it enacted at the present session of the General Assembly, without regard to the restrictions imposed by this act, or may proceed under this act without regard to the restrictions imposed by such local or private act: Provided, further, that any county which prior to the ratification of this act has entered into a valid contract for permanent improvements for which, prior to the ratification of this act, such county was empowered by law to issue bonds in sufficient amount, is hereby authorized to issue such an amount of bonds as may be necessary to comply with said contract, either in the manner provided by this act or in the manner provided by law at the time such contract for permanent improvements was made: Provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be applicable to or shall govern the method by which any county board of education may borrow money from the special building fund created by Chapter 201, Public Laws of 1925, or from any special building fund of the State created by any law enacted at the regular session of the General Assembly of 1927, but the limitations of this act upon the amount of net school debt shall apply to such borrowing.

Provided, further, that except as provided in section 1334(9) nothing herein contained shall have the effect of repealing any act now in force, or enacted by the session of the General Assembly of one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, requiring the question of issuing bonds by any county to be submitted to a vote of the people. (1927, c. 81, s. 43; 1929, c. 110; 1931, c. 60, s. 61.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the last proviso relatiing to Rockingham and New Hanover counties formerly appearing in this section. The Act of 1929 had already omitted New Hanover from the proviso. The Act of 1931 further amended this section by inserting the reference to § 1334(9) in the last proviso.

Inconsistent Public-Local Law.—This section expressly repeals a public-local law applied to a county when inconsistent with its terms. Hartsfield v. Craven County, 194 N. C. 358, 139 S. E. 698.

§ 1334(44). Publication and mailing of copies of this article.—Immediately after the ratification of this article, the Secretary of the State shall cause to be printed in pamphlet form at least one thousand five hundred copies thereof, and shall cause a copy of such pamphlet to be mailed to the chairman of the governing body and to the clerk and county attorney and county treasurer or county financial officer of each county in this State. (1927, c. 81, s. 44.)

Art. 7B. Collection of County Taxes

§ 1334(45). Date for completion of tax lists.—On or before the first Monday in October of each year, the county commissioners of each county shall cause to be completed in duplicate two copies of the tax list for each township. Such list shall show in different columns the sum due by each taxpayer to the county, for each item for which a tax shall have been levied, and the total of all such taxes. Receipt books for taxes shall be prepared and ready for delivery on the first Monday in October of each year, said receipt books to contain a receipt and stub with the items of tax and total tax written in the receipt and stub: Provided, that carbon receipt books and cash books combined may be used for such receipt books. (1927, c. 213, s. 1.)

§ 1334(46). Tax lists and books delivered to sheriff.—On the first Monday in October of each year one tax list and the receipt books, or other books used therefor, shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county or other tax collecting officer of the county, with an order directed to the tax collecting officer to collect the taxes shown on the tax list and receipts: Provided, that the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, has made full settlement for the taxes for the previous year as hereinafter provided, and shall have given the bond hereinafter required. If and when the tax list and receipts are delivered to the sheriff, or tax collecting officer, it shall be his duty to attend at his office in the county-town, and such other places, as he may, by fifteen days' notice, designate for the purpose of collecting the taxes due. (1927, c. 213, s. 2.)

Cited in Martin v. Swain County, 201 N. C. 68, 158 S. E. 843.

§ 1334(47). Sheriff to present full settlement for previous year and give bond. — Before the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, shall receive any tax list, or tax receipts, for the taxes of the following year, and before the county commissioners, or other governing body, shall deliver the same, the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, shall present a full and complete settlement for all taxes charged against him for the previous year, as settlement is hereinafter defined, and shall present a sufficient bond for the collection and accounting for said taxes, approved by the county commissioners, or other governing body, by resolution duly entered on the minutes of such body. If the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, who was charged with the collection of the taxes for the previous year, shall not present to the county commissioners, or other governing body, such settlement in full as herein provided on or before the first Monday in October, and the bond required of such officer, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners, or other governing body, and they are hereby required, to appoint some suitable freeholder of the county, not connected with the then tax collecting officer, as a tax collector for the purpose of delivering to him the tax list and tax receipts for the following year for collection of the taxes. Such person shall give bond in the amount which would be required of the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, conditioned upon his accounting for all taxes collected by him, and said bond shall be filed and approved as provided for the sheriff's bond. Such tax collector shall receive such compensation as may be agreed upon, but in the absence of any agreement shall receive a commission of 2 per cent of all taxes collected: Provided, the county commissioners, or other governing body, may reduce the salary of the sheriff, or tax collector, in an amount equal to the amount paid to such special tax collector so appointed. If, and when, the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, shall present to the county commissioners, or other governing body, a full and complete settlement of the taxes charged to him for the previous year, and the bond required by the commissioner, such specially appointed tax collector shall make a full and complete settlement as hereinafter provided for settlements, with the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, and shall, upon order of the county commissioners, or other governing body of the county, deliver the tax list and receipt books to said sheriff, or other tax collecting officer. (1927, c. 213, s. 3.)

For amendment applicable to commissions of the tax collector of Yancey County, see Public Laws of 1933, c. 184.

§ 1334(48). Deposit of taxes; itemized statement to be submitted monthly.—Each sheriff or tax collecting officer shall deposit the taxes collected as provided by law, but at the monthly meetings of the county commissioners, or other governing body of the county, shall present to such body a full and completely itemized statement of all taxes collected since the last meeting of such body. He shall on the first Monday in May report in full the uncollected taxes for the current tax year [filing, under oath, with reference to each delinquent taxpayer, a statement as to whether or not he has made any effort to collect the taxes due from the tax-payer's personalty] and the county commissioners shall thereupon order sale of all land for taxes where the taxes have not been paid to be made on the first Monday in June, and shall also make up a list of taxes due of taxpayers who list no land for taxes. The sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, shall thereupon cause advertisement to be made for four successive weeks, as now provided by law for such advertisements, of lands to be sold for taxes and shall make effort to collect all taxes due by taxpayers who list no land for taxes. Sale of land for taxes shall be made upon the day ordered by the board, provided that the sale may be continued from day to day until completed. Provided that the part of this section in brackets shall apply to the counties of Cleveland, Haywood, Jackson, Macon and Rutherford only. (1927, c. 213, s. 4; 1928, cc. 97, 155.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929 amended this section by inserting the matter in the brackets and adding the proviso.

§ 1334(49). Day for report of tax sales and of collections from persons not listing land.—Upon the third Monday in June, the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, shall report to the county commissioners, or other governing body, his action with respect to tax sales, and collections of taxes of taxpayers, who list no land for taxes under oath and shall with respect to those taxpayers who list no land for taxes, make oath that he has made diligent effort to collect such taxes out of the personal property of the taxpayer, or by other means open to him for the collection of such taxes and shall report such other facts with respect to such taxpayers as may be of information to the county commissioners, or other governing body. The county commissioners, or other governing body, shall thereupon enter upon its minutes the list of such of these taxpayers who list no land for taxes, who shall be found by such body to be insolvents and shall by resolution find and determine such list of taxpayers as the insolvent list to be deducted in the settlement with the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, in his settlement. (1927, c. 213, s. 5.)

§ 1334(50). Final settlement day.—On the first Monday of July the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, shall make a full and complete settlement with the county for all taxes due the county or its special sub-divisions. In such settlement, the sheriff, or other tax collecting officer, shall be charged with: (a) All sums due by the tax list for county purposes; (b) all sums due by the tax list for all other purposes; (c) all sums due for corporation excess; (d) all other sums to be collected by the said sheriff, or other tax collecting officer; and shall be allowed: (a) sums receipted for by the county treasurer, or other county fiscal agent; (b) releases allowed by the governing body as prescribed by statute; (c) tax sales for which certificates of sale in duplicate have been executed and delivered to the county; (d) insolvent list allowed as hereinbefore provided; (e) commission, if any, allowed such sheriff, or tax collector. The settlement made with such sheriff, or tax collector, shall be entered in full upon the minutes of such body. (1927, c. 213, s. 6.)

§ 1334(51). Final settlement if sheriff not re-elected.—If any sheriff, or tax collector, to whom the tax list and receipt books shall be delivered on the first Monday in October, shall fail to succeed himself as such officer on the first Monday in December of any year, he shall make a full and complete settlement of such taxes as he may have collected on or before the first Monday in December, at which his term of office may expire and the tax list and receipt books shall be delivered to his successor, who shall in his settlement be credited with the amount for which settlement was made with such officer whose term expired: Provided, however, that if the outgoing sheriff, or tax collector, shall have received the tax list and receipt books to collect the taxes due thereon, upon fees or commission based upon the collections made, it shall be his duty and he shall be charged with the collection of the taxes due for such year, and shall be charged with all the duties and responsibilities with reference to reports and other settlements, and subject to the same penalties, imposed by this act, and shall conduct the land sales and execute the certificates of sale for the same. If the officer whose term expires on the first Monday in December of any year and who does not succeed himself as such officer, shall not have received the tax books for the then tax year, the officer succeeding to such officer shall give the required bond and be charged with the collection of the balance of the taxes for the then tax year, as if he had received the tax books on the first Monday in October, less, however, the taxes collected by the specially appointed tax collector. (1927, c. 213, s. 7.)

Mandamus will lie to compel a sheriff to turn over to his successor the tax books upon the termination of his term of office. Ferguson v. Martin, 197 N. C. 301, 148 S. E. 448.

§ 1334(52). Individual liability of county commissioners.—(a) Any county commissioner who shall vote to deliver the tax list and receipt books to any sheriff, or tax collector, for the succeeding year, when settlement has not been made as herein provided of the taxes for the previous year, shall be individually liable for the amount of taxes due by such sheriff, or tax collector.

(b) Any county commissioner who shall fail to vote on the first Monday in October to make provisions for the collection of the taxes for the then tax year, as herein provided, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be subject to a fine of ten dollars for each day, failure to make provisions as herein provided shall have continued.

(c) Any county commissioner who shall fail to require a report herein required or wilfully fails to perform any duty herein imposed shall, upon conviction, be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court.

(d) Any sheriff, or tax collector, who shall fail to perform any duty imposed by this act shall, upon conviction, be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court and, in addition thereto, shall be liable under his bond for all damages resulting from his negligence. (1927, c. 213, s. 8(a).)

Art. 7C. County Fiscal Control

As to application of this article to municipalities, see §§ 2969(z)-2969(cc).

§ 1334(53). Title; definitions. — This article shall be known and may be cited as "The County Fiscal Control Act."

In this article unless the context otherwise requires, certain words and expressions have the following meanings:

(a) "Sub-division" means a township, school district, school taxing district, or other political corporation or subdivision within a county, including drainage and other districts, the taxes for which (taxes as here and elsewhere used in this act include special assessments) are under the law levied by the board of county commissioners of the county.

(b) "Debt service" means the payment of principal and interest of bonds and notes as such principal or interest falls due, and the payments of moneys required to be paid into sinking funds.

(c) "Constitutional school maintenance" means the maintenance of schools for the six months term required by the State Constitution.

(d) "Department" means any division of county functions or activities.

(e) "Department head" means the principal officer of any office, board, commission, institution, or branch of the county government in charge of a department.

(f) The "Fiscal year" is the annual period for the compilation of fiscal operations, and begins on the first day of July and ends on the thirtieth day of June.

(g) "Surplus revenues" means revenues in excess of the estimated revenues against which an appropriation is made, and arises when actual revenues exceed estimated revenues at the end of a fiscal year.

(h) "Unencumbered balance" means the balance of an appropriation after charging thereto all obligations for goods and services and all contracts or agreements payable from the appropriation, and all payments made from the appropriation except payments of such obligations, contracts, or agreements already charged against the appropriation.

(i) "Fund" means the separate fund or account provided for a distinct function of government, as such functions are shown in (j) below.

(j) The funds required by this act are funds for each of the following functions of government.

(1) Current operating expense of the county.

(2) Constitutional school maintenance.

(3) County-wide school expenses over and above constitutional school maintenance.

(4) County debt service.

(5) County roads.

(6) Each special purpose to which the General Assembly has given its special approval, separately stated.

(7) Debt service of each subdivision, separately stated.

(8) Maintenance of each subdivision, separately stated.

(9) Permanent improvements in each subdivision separately stated. (1927, c. 146, ss. 1, 2.)

Cited in Martin v. Swain County, 201 N. C. 68, 158 S. E. 843.

§ 1334(54). County accountant.— It shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners in each county in the State, on or before the first Monday in April one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, and biennially thereafter, to appoint some person of honesty and ability, who is experienced in modern methods of accounting, as county accountant, to hold such office at the will of the board, or until the appointment of his successor; but, in lieu of appointing a county accountant in counties in which there is an auditor, the board shall impose and confer upon the county auditor all the powers and duties herein imposed and conferred upon county accountants, and in any county of the State in which there is no auditor, the board may impose and confer such powers and duties upon any county officer, except the sheriff or the tax collector or the county treasurer, or any person or bank acting as county financial agent or performing the duties ordinarily performed by a county treasurer or county financial agent. If such duties and powers are imposed or conferred upon any officer of the county, the board may revise and adjust the salary or compensation of such officer in order that adequate compensation may be paid to him for the duties of his office. Wherever in this act reference is made to the county accountant, such reference shall be deemed to include either the person appointed as county accountant or the officer upon which the duties thereof are imposed. (1927, c. 146, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 34, provided that the County Accountant of Brunswick County shall be an appointive officer for four years, and contained provisions as to his appointment, qualification, removal, etc.

Public Laws 1933, c. 295 repeals this section insofar as it applies to Harnett County and makes other provision for that county.

Cited in Board of Education v. Walter, 198 N. C. 325, 151 S. E. 718.

§ 1334(55). Additional duties of county accountant.—In addition to the duties imposed and powers conferred upon the county accountant by this act, he shall have the following duties and powers:

(a) He shall act as accountant for the county and subdivisions in settling with all county officers.

(b) He shall keep a record of the date, source, and amount of each item of receipts, and the date, the payee or contractor, the specific purpose, and the amount of every disbursement or contract made.

(c) He shall require every officer and department receiving or disbursing money of the county or its subdivisions to keep a record of the date, source, and amount of each item of receipts, and the date, the payee or contractor, the specific purpose, and the amount of every disbursement or contract made, and shall require the officer or department to keep a copy of such contract.

(d) He shall examine once a month, and at such other times as the board may direct, all books, accounts, receipts, vouchers, and other records of all county officers and employees and departments of the county administration receiving or expending public money, including the road commission, if there is such commission in the county, the county board of education and other subdivisions.

(e) He shall require all officers and employees in the county whose duty it is to collect fines, penalties, and other money to be applied to public purposes, to file with him each month, or oftener if the board so directs, a report showing amounts collected by such officers, including a report of all fees collected for the performance of their duties, whether they are entitled to such fees as the whole or a part of their compensation or are not entitled to the same.

(f) He shall once a year, or as often as he may be directed by the board of county commissioners, file with the board a complete statement of the financial condition of the county and subdivisions, showing the receipts and expenditures of the different departments of the county and its subdivisions, including the department of public roads and the department of public schools.

(g) He shall advise with the different officers and departments of the county and with State officers as to the best and most convenient method of keeping accounts, and he shall inform himself as to the best and simplest methods of keeping accounts, so as to bring about as far as possible a simple, accurate, and uniform system of keeping accounts of the county and subdivisions. He shall not allow any bill or claim unless the same be itemized and verified as now required by law.

(h) He shall perform such other duties having relation to the purposes of this act as may be imposed upon him by the board of county commissioners. (1927, c. 146, s. 4.)

§ 1334(56). Heads of departments and officers to file statement before 1st June.—It shall be the duty of all heads of departments and officers in charge of the functions for which county money or money of subdivision is to be expended, to file with the county accountant, before the first day of June of each year (a) a complete statement of the amounts expended and estimated to be expended for each object in his department in the current fiscal year, and (b) beginning in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight, a statement of the amounts expended for each object in his department in the fiscal year preceding the then current fiscal year, and (c) an estimate of the requirements of his department for each object in the ensuing fiscal year. Such statements and estimates shall list each object of disbursement under the appropriate class of functions as defined in section two of this act. (1927, c. 146, s. 5.)

§ 1334(57). Estimates necessary for ensuing fiscal year itemized.—Upon receipt of such statements and estimates, the county accountant shall prepare (a) his estimates of the amounts necessary to be appropriated for the next ensuing fiscal year for the different objects of the county and subdivisions, listing each object of disbursement under the appropriate class of functions as defined in section two of this act, which estimate shall include the full amount of any deficit in any fund, and may include an emergency estimate for each fund not greater than five per cent in excess of other estimates for such fund, and (b) an itemized estimate of the revenue to be available during the ensuing fiscal year, separating revenue from taxation from revenue from other sources, classifying the same under proper funds as defined in section two of this act, and (c) an estimate of the amount of unencumbered and surplus revenues of the current fiscal year in each fund. Such estimates and statements of the county accountant shall be termed the "Budget Estimate," and shall be submitted to the board not later than the first Monday of July of each year. (1927, c. 146, s. 6.)

§ 1334(58). Time for filing budget estimate.—Immediately upon the submission of the budget estimate, and at least twenty days before the adoption of the appropriation resolution, the board shall: (a) file the budget estimate in the office of the clerk of the board, where it shall remain for public inspection, and (b) furnish a copy of the budget estimate to each newspaper published in the county, and (c) cause to be published in at least one newspaper published in the county a summary of the budget estimate showing at least the total appropriation recommended for each separate fund or function as defined in section two of this act: Provided, however, that if no newspaper be published in the county, such summary shall be posted at the court-house door and at least three other public places in the county at least twenty days before the passage of the appropriation resolution. (1927, c. 146, s. 7.)

§ 1334(59). Time for adoption of appropriation resolution.—It shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners, not later than the fourth Monday in July in each year, to adopt and record on its minutes an appropriation resolution, the form of which shall be prescribed by the county accountant, which resolution shall make appropriations for the several purposes of the county and subdivisions thereof, upon the basis of the estimates and statements submitted by the county accountant, such sums as the board may deem sufficient and proper, whether greater or less than the recommendations of the budget estimates: Provided, however, that (a) no appropriation recommended by the county accountant for debt service shall be reduced, and (b) the powers given by the general law to the county board of education and county commissioners jointly, in respect to the determination of the amount to be raised or expended for the maintenance of the six months school term, shall be observed by the county accountant and by the board of county commissioners, and (c) the board shall appropriate the full amount of all lawful deficits reported in the budget estimate not funded as provided by law, and (d) no appropriation shall be made in excess of the amount which may be raised under any constitutional or statutory limits of taxation. (1927, c. 146, s. 8.)

§ 1334(60). Copies of resolution filed with county treasurer and county accountant.—A copy of the appropriation resolution shall be filed with the county treasurer or other officer or agent performing the functions ordinarily assigned to the county treasurer, and another copy thereof shall be filed with the county accountant, both copies as so filed to be kept on file for their direction in the disbursement of county funds. (1927, c. 146, s. 9.)

§ 1334(61). Supplemental budget showing.—As soon as practicable after the first Monday in July, and before any levy of taxes is made, the county accountant shall submit to the board a supplemental budget showing: (a) the amount of any increase or decrease in each item of (1) deficits and (2) unencumbered balances and (3) surplus revenues as reported by him in the budget estimate, and (b) the amount of miscellaneous revenues collected in the preceding year from sources other than taxation, this amount to be separately classified as to funds and functions, and (c) an estimate of the amount of taxes for the current fiscal year which will not be collected in the same year. Upon the submission of the figures showing increase or decrease in deficits, the appropriation resolution shall be deemed automatically amended by adding such increase to or subtracting such decrease from the amount appropriated for the fund or function to which such deficit pertains, and it shall be the duty of the clerk to record the amount of increase or decrease on the margin of the recorded appropriation resolution. The figures of the supplemental budget showing increases or decreases in unencumbered balances and surplus revenues, and showing the amount of miscellaneous revenues collected in the preceding fiscal year, from sources other than taxes, and showing the estimate of taxes uncollectible in the current fiscal year, shall not affect the appropriation resolutions, but shall be taken into consideration in the levy of taxes as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 146, s. 10; 1933, c. 191.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 191, deleted from the end of the first sentence a clause which required a mathematical computation in determining the estimate mentioned in (c).

§ 1334(62). Publication of statement of financial condition of county.—Simultaneously with the submission of the supplemental budget, the county accountant shall prepare and cause to be published in a newspaper published in the county, or if no newspaper be published in the county, then by posting at the court-house door and at least three other public places in the county, a statement of the financial condition of the county, containing such figures and information as the county accountant may consider it advisable to publish, which statement as so published or posted shall contain the figures showing at least the following items:

(a) The assessed valuation for the current year, unless the same shall not have been finally ascertained, in which case the assessed valuation of the preceding year shall be given.

(b) An itemized statement of the debt of the county and its subdivisions.

(c) The amount and rate of the taxation levied for the preceding fiscal year, whether collected or not.

(d) Amount of taxes, including land sales, for each of the three preceding fiscal years which remained uncollected at the end of such years, respectively, and the average thereof, and the amount of such uncollected taxes which were collected by the close of the preceding fiscal year.

(e) Miscellaneous revenue other than taxation for the preceding fiscal year.

(f) Deficits, of any, in all county funds in the aggregate for the preceding fiscal year.

(g) Such deficits for each subdivision of the county.

(h) Surplus revenues of the county, and separately stated, of each of the subdivisions of the county for the preceding year.

(i) Unencumbered balances of the county and, separately stated, of each of the subdivisions of the county for the preceding year.

(j) The rate of taxation for county purposes and the rate for each subdivision which he estimates it will be necessary to levy in the current fiscal year, these rates be computed as is provided in section twelve of this act for computation of rates by the board of county commissioners. (1927, c. 146, s. 11.)

§ 1334(63). Levy of taxes.—As soon as may be practicable after the passage of the appropriation resolution and the automatic amendment thereof, which is hereinabove provided, and after the ascertainment of the assessed valuation of property for taxation, but not later than Wednesday after the third Monday in August of each year, the board of county commissioners, by resolution to be recorded in its minutes, shall levy upon all the taxable property of the county, in the case of county appropriations, and upon all the taxable property of each subdivision in the case of appropriations for subdivisions, such rate of tax as may be necessary to produce (a) the sum appropriated, and (b) the amount of the supplemental budget estimate of taxes which will not be collectible in the current fiscal year, after taking into consideration the figures contained in the budget estimate and supplemental budget showing surplus revenues and unencumbered balances carried over from the preceding fiscal year and the estimated miscellaneous revenues from other sources than taxation; but for the purpose of this computation the board shall not estimate miscellaneous revenues at a figure greater than ten per cent (10%) more than the actual receipts from miscellaneous revenues in the preceding fiscal year, as reported by the county accountant in the supplemental budget. (1927, c. 146, s. 12.)

§ 1334(63a). Failure to raise revenue a misdemeanor; emergencies.—Any county commissioner of any county who shall fail to vote to raise sufficient revenue for the operating expenses of the county as provided for in section 1334(63) of the Code, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. Provided: that in case of emergency upon application to the County Government Advisory Commission such County Government Advisory Commission may permit the Board of Commissioners for any county to anticipate the taxes of the next fiscal year by not more than five per cent of the tax levy for the current year; provided, further, that where a contingent fund has been provided for in the county budget the County Government Advisory Commission shall not authorize such anticipation in excess of the difference between five per centum and the amount theretofore levied as a contingent fund. (1929, c. 321, s. 1.)

§ 1334(63b). Execution of notes in anticipation of taxes.—In the event of the approval of such anticipation of the taxes of the next fiscal year by the County Government Advisory Commission, the County Commissioners of any such county are authorized to execute a note or notes in an amount not in excess of the amount authorized by such County Government Advisory Commission, and such note or notes shall be payable not later than June thirtieth of the next fiscal year and shall be paid by a tax levied for such purpose. (1929, c. 321, s. 2.)

§ 1334(64). Appropriations not transferable.—No appropriation made by the appropriation resolution, except an appropriation for general county expenses, shall be transferred from one fund to another fund, and no appropriation for general county expenses shall be transferred to any fund of any subdivision of the county, or vice versa. No appropriation for general county expenses shall be transferred, except upon the passage and recording of a resolution of the board of county commissioners ordering such transfer, and copies of such resolution shall be furnished to the county accountant and to the head of each department to which or from which such transfer shall be made. (1927, c. 146, s. 13.)

§ 1334(65). Appropriations bridging interval.—In the interval between the beginning of the fiscal year and the adoption of the annual appropriation resolution, the board may make appropriations for the purpose of paying fixed salaries, the principal and interest of indebtedness, the stated compensation of officers and employees, and for the usual ordinary expenses of the county and its subdivisions, which appropriations, so made shall be chargeable to the several appropriations, respectively, thereafter made in the annual appropriation resolution for that year. (1927, c. 146, s. 14.)

§ 1334(65a). County may create special revolving fund to supplant borrowing on anticipations; withdrawals.—In order to avoid the necessity of borrowing money in anticipation of the receipts of taxes and revenues or the proceeds of the sale of bonds, a county may by resolution create a special revolving fund and with the consent of the Commission, provide for raising the same to be used in anticipation of the receipt of such moneys and to be replenished by means of such moneys when received. Withdrawals of money from said fund shall be made only for the purposes and within the amounts and for the periods and upon the conditions stated in sections 1334(4) and 1334(5) in respect to the borrowing of money. Such withdrawals shall not be made unless approved by the Local Government Commission in the same manner as loans made under said sections. No resolutions creating such a fund shall be repealed or amended so as to divert or reduce the amount of the fund without the approval of said Commission as to necessity or expediency. (1931, c. 60, s. 62.)

§ 1334(66). Provisions for payment.—No contract or agreement requiring the payment of money, or requisition for supplies or materials, shall be made, and no warrant or order for the payment of money shall be drawn upon the treasury of the county, or a subdivision, unless provision for the payment thereof has been made by (a) an appropriation resolution as provided by this act, or (b) through the means of bonds or notes duly authorized by the General Assembly and by the board of county commissioners, and further authorized, in all cases required by law or by the Constitution, by a vote of qualified voters or taxpayers, or otherwise; nor shall such contract, agreement, or requisition be made unless the unencumbered balance of such appropriation or provision remains sufficient for such payment. No contract or agreement or requisition requiring the payment of money shall be valid unless the same be in writing, and unless the same shall have printed, written, or typewritten thereon a statement signed by the county accountant, as follows: "Provision for the payment of the moneys to fall due under this agreement has been made by appropriation duly made or by bonds or notes duly authorized, as required by the 'County Fiscal Control Act.'" Such certificate shall not, however, make valid any agreement or contract made in violation of this section. Before making such certificate, the county accountant shall ascertain that a sufficient unencumbered balance of the specific appropriation remains for the payment of the obligation, or that bonds or notes have been so authorized the proceeds of which are applicable to such payment, and the appropriation or provision so made shall thereafter be deemed unencumbered by the amount to be paid on such contract or agreement until the county is discharged therefrom. (1927, c. 146, s. 15.)

Cited in Sherrill v. Graham County, 205 N. C. 178, 179, 170 S. E. 636.

§ 1334(66a). False certificate.—If any county auditor or county accountant of any county of the State shall make any certificate as required by section 1334(66) of the Code, when there is not a sufficient unencumbered balance remaining for the payment of the obligation, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by fine or imprisonment, both, in the discretion of the court except as herein provided. (1929, c. 321, s. 3.)

§ 1334(67). Warrants for payment.—No claim against the county or any subdivision shall be paid except by means of a warrant or order on the county treasurer or county depository, signed by the head of the department for which the expense was incurred, nor unless the bill or claim for which the warrant or order is given shall have been presented to and approved by the county accountant, or in case of his disapproval of such claim or bill, by the board of county commissioners. The board shall not approve any claim or bill which has been disallowed by the county accountant without entering upon the minutes of the board its reason for approving the same in such detail as may show the board's reason for reversing the county accountant's disallowance. No warrant or order, except a warrant or order for payment of maturing bonds, notes, or interest coupons thereto appertaining, and except a warrant or order for the payment of any bill or claim approved by the board of county commissioners over the disallowance of the county accountant, as above provided, shall be valid unless the same shall bear the signature of the county accountant below a statement which he shall cause to be written, printed or typewritten thereon containing the words: "Provision for the payment for this warrant (or order) has been made by an appropriation duly made or a bond or note duly authorized, as required by the 'County Fiscal Control Act.'" (1927, c. 146, s. 16; 1935, c. 382.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added, in the last sentence of the section, the exception as to warrants or orders approved by the board after disallowance of the account.

§ 1334(68). Accounts to be kept by county accountant.—Accounts shall be kept by the county accountant for each object of appropriation, which objects shall be classified under the various funds as defined in section two of this act, and every warrant or order upon the county treasury shall state specifically against which of such funds the warrant or order is drawn; such account shall show in detail the amount appropriated thereto, the amount drawn thereupon, the unpaid obligations charged against it, and the unencumbered balance to the credit thereof. (1927, c. 146, s. 17.)

§ 1334(69). Bond of county accountant.—The county accountant shall furnish bond in some surety company authorized to do business in North Carolina, the amount to be fixed by the board of commissioners in a sum not less than five thousand dollars ($5,000), which bond shall be approved by the board of county commissioners, and shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties under this act. (1927, c. 146, s. 18.)

§ 1334(70). Daily deposits by collecting or receiving officers.—Every public officer and employee whose duty it is to collect or receive any funds or money belonging to any county or subdivision thereof shall daily deposit the same with the county treasurer or in some bank, banks, or trust company, designated by the board of commissioners, in the name of the county and of the fund to which it is applied, and shall report the same daily to the county accountant by means of duplicate deposit ticket signed by the depositary. If there is no treasurer or designated depositary in the county, then the board of commissioners may allow such deposits to be made every three days in some depository outside of the county. If such officer or employee collects or receives such public moneys for a taxing district of which he is not an officer or employee, he shall, during Saturday of each week, pay to the proper officer of such district the amount so collected, or received during the current week, and take receipt therefor.

The board of commissioners is hereby authorized and empowered to select and designate annually, by recorded resolution, some bank or banks or trust company in this State as an official depository of the funds of the county, and the county commissioners shall require of such depositary North Carolina State Bonds and/or United States Government Bonds or a bond in some surety company authorized to do business in North Carolina in an amount sufficient to protect such deposits, but in no event not less than the average daily bank balance of the county for the preceding year; but the board may at any time require an additional bond, in its discretion. Provided, that a bank giving North Carolina State Bonds and/or United States Government Bonds as security for county funds may deposit said bonds with another bank which has been approved by the Corporation Commission as a Depositary Bank, said bonds to be held for the benefit of the county and subject to the order of the Board of County Commissioners of said county.

It shall be the duty of the board of commissioners to provide by recorded resolution for interest to be paid on public deposits at a rate to be determined by the board of commissioners. It shall be unlawful for any public moneys to be deposited by any officer, employee, or department, in any place, bank, or trust company other than those selected and designated as official depositories. Any person or corporation violating the provisions of this section or aiding or abetting in such violation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 146, s. 19; 1929, c. 37.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 amended the second paragraph of this section by adding the proviso and inserting in lines seven and eight the words: "North Carolina State Bonds and/or United States Government Bonds or."

Requiring Bonds and Interest of Bank Appointed County Financial Agent.—See note under § 1389.

Applied in United States Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Hood, 206 N. C. 639, 642, 175 S. E. 135.

§ 1334(71). Conduct by county accountant constituting misdemeanor.—If a county accountant shall knowingly certify any contract, agreement, or warrant in violation of the requirements of this act, or approve any fraudulent, erroneous, or otherwise invalid claim or bill, or make any statement required by this act, knowing the same to be false, or shall wilfully fail to perform any duties imposed upon him by this act, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable for each offense by a fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50) or imprisonment for not less than twenty (20) days, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, and shall be liable on his bond for all damages caused by such violation or failure. (1927, c. 146, s. 20.)

§ 1334(72). Liability for damages for violation by officer or person.—If any county officer or head of a department or other official or person of whom duties are required by this act shall wilfully violate any part of this act, or shall wilfully fail to perform any of such duties, he shall be liable for all damages caused thereby. (1927, c. 146, s. 21.)

§ 1334(73). Recovery of damages.—The recovery of all damages allowed by the act may be made in the court having jurisdiction of the suit of the county, any subdivision thereof, or any taxpayer or other person aggrieved. (1927, c. 146, s. 22.)

§ 1334(74). Chairman of county commissioners to report to solicitor.—It shall be the duty of the chairman of the board of county commissioners to report to the solicitor of the district within which the county lies all facts and circumstances showing the commission of any offense as defined herein, and it shall be the duty of the solicitor to prosecute. (1927, c. 146, s. 23.)

§ 1334(75). Purpose of article.—It is the purpose of this article to provide a uniform system for all counties of the State by which the fiscal affairs of counties and subdivisions thereof may be regulated, to the end that accumulated deficits may be made up, and future deficits prevented, either under the provisions of this article or under the provisions of other laws authorizing the funding of debts and deficits, and to the end that every county in the State may balance its budget and carry out its functions without incurring deficits. (1927, c. 146, s. 24.)

§ 1334(76). Construction and application of article.—All laws and parts of laws, whether general, local or special, which are in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed. Nothing herein contained, however, shall require any county now operating under a budget system provided by any local or special act now in force or which may be passed at the regular session of the General Assembly of 1927, to abandon any such operation or to comply with this act, but any such county may, in the discretion of its board of commissioners, elect to conduct its procedure under any one or more sections of this act as the board may deem best. All such counties shall nevertheless be subject to the requirements of certain provisions of this article, which are (a) the annual publication of financial information substantially as required by section 1334(62), (b) the adoption of an appropriation resolution which shall appropriate the full amount of all deficits not founded and the full amount required for debt service as required by section 1334(59), (c) the annual levy of taxes sufficient to meet all appropriations and the probable amount of uncollectible taxes computed as required by section 1334(63), (d) endorsement by some one county officer, who shall either be the county accountant or an officer designated for that purpose by the board, of all contracts, agreements, requisitions, warrants and orders, substantially as provided by sections 1334(66) and 1334(67), (e) compliance with all the provisions of section 1334(70), and (f) all the provisions of section 1334(71), to 1334(74), as to penalties, liability for damages and requirements for reporting offenses to the district solicitor shall apply in all such counties so far as such counties are herein required to comply with this article. (1927, c. 146, s. 25.)

§ 1334(76)a. Local units authorized to accept their bonds in payment of certain judgments and claims.—The governing bodies of the various counties, cities, towns, and other units in the state are hereby authorized in their discretion to accept their own bonds, at par, in settlement of any and all claims which it may have against any person, firm, or corporation, on account of any money of said unit held in any failed bank or on account of any judgment secured against any person, firm, or corporation on account of the funds in said bank.

Upon an order issued by the governing authorities of the county, city, town, or other unit, the treasurer of the county, city, town, or other unit is hereby authorized and empowered to accept the bonds of said unit in settlement of said claim, as set out in section 1, and to mark said claim satisfied in full, whether the same has been reduced to judgment or not. (1933, c. 376.)

Art. 7D. Requiring County, Municipal, etc., Officials to Make Contracts for Auditing and Standardizing Bookkeeping Systems

§ 1334(77). Director of local government. — At such time as any board of county commissioners, board of education or other county officials, "or the governing body or officials of any city, town, special charter district or other subdivision in the state of North Carolina proposes to employ any certified public accountants or auditors other than the official county auditor, county accountant, municipal accountant or other similar officer for making any statement or for the auditing of any books of the county, city, town, special charter district or other subdivision, the director of local government shall be notified of such purpose and it shall be the duty of a representative of the director of local government to advise with the officials with respect to the scope of such audit and the nature of same and to furnish such officials all information available for their guidance in the making and entering into contracts or engagements for said audit or examination. (1929, c. 201, s. 1; 1931, c. 99, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this article to make it applicable to cities, towns, special charter districts or other sub-divisions, and substituted "director of local government" for "county government advisory commission" formerly appearing.

§ 1334(78). Contracts must be in writing; approval.—All contracts or engagements made shall be reduced to writing and shall include all of the terms and conditions of the contract before the same shall become legal and binding upon the county, city, town, special charter district or other subdivision officials and shall be endorsed and approved as to the terms and provisions thereof by the director of local government and such contracts shall be null and void and no payments shall be made on such contracts until the same shall have been reduced to writing and approved as aforesaid by the director of local government. Said contract when so executed shall be recorded on the minutes of the board of county commissioners, board of education or such governing body of a city, town, special charter district or other sub-division and the original filed in their records. The terms and provisions of said contracts shall not in any way be varied or changed by either party unless and until such changes shall be reduced to writing and approved by the director of local government in the same manner as the original contract and no verbal agreements made between the officials of the county and the auditors aforesaid shall affect in any way to vary the terms and conditions thereof. (1929, c. 201, s. 2; 1931, c. 99, s. 2.)

§ 1334(79). Approval of systems of accounting.—With a view of standardization and simplification of the methods of accounting in the various counties, cities, towns, special charter districts and other sub-divisions of the state, the director of local government is hereby authorized and empowered to advise with said boards as to the proper methods of accounting for such counties, cities, towns, special charter districts and other sub-divisions and no system or books shall be installed until same shall have been submitted to the director of local government. (1929, c. 201, s. 3; 1931, c. 99, s. 3.)

§ 1334(80). Copy of report to be filed with commissioners.—Any certified public accountant or auditor other than the official county auditor, county accountant, municipal accountant or other similar officer employed by any board of county commissioners, board of education, the governing body of any city, town, special charter district or other sub-division, or the officials thereof, shall upon a completion of all work performed in accordance with the terms of a contract, prepare a report embodying all statements and comments relating to his findings and shall file a copy of said report with the director of local government, said report to be either printed or typewritten. The director of local government shall have the power to prescribe or approve the form of said report. (1929, c. 201, s. 4; 1931, c. 99, s. 4.)

§ 1334(81). Approval of all claims for auditing to be approved by Director of Local Government.—All bills or claims presented to the governing body of any county, city, town or special charter district for the payment of any public or certified public accountant or auditor for the performance of any service as may be agreed upon in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be approved by the Director of Local Government, and it shall be unlawful for any of such governing bodies to pay or permit the payment of such bill or claim out of any public funds without first securing the said approval of said Director of Local Government. (1931, c. 99, s. 5.)

Art. 7E. Sinking Funds

§ 1334(82). Counties and municipalities authorized to apply sinking funds to purchase of own bonds.—The county commissioners of the several counties of the State, and all persons or officers having charge of sinking funds and the commissioners and aldermen and governing bodies of all incorporated cities and towns are authorized and directed to apply the sinking funds on hand to the purchase and retirement of the specific bonds, issued by such municipality, for the payment whereof, at maturity, such fund has been provided, notwithstanding any contrary provisions in any act, special or general, under which the said bonds have been issued: Provided, however, that where bonds have been issued and sold to run for a stated term without option of prior payment, nothing herein shall be construed to compel the owners or holders thereof to accept payment or surrender said bonds except at their option. Municipalities shall not be required to purchase such bonds for a greater sum than the face thereof, with accrued interest at the time of purchase. (1931, c. 413, s. 1.)

§ 1334(83). Investment of sinking funds under supervision of Local Government Commission.—County commissioners of the several counties and all persons or officers having charge of sinking funds and the governing bodies of all incorporated towns and cities shall keep such sinking funds as may not be applied to the purchase and retirement of bonds as required in the preceding section safely invested in such bonds or securities as are approved for such investment by the Local Government Act of nineteen hundred and thirty-one, (§§ 2492(1) et seq.) where such investment will promote the public interest or provide a greater rate of interest therefor. (1931, c. 413, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—As to investment of bonds guaranteed by the United States government, see section 220(a)1.

§ 1334(84). Petition of tax-payers to have sinking funds applied to purchase of bonds. — Any citizen and taxpayer of a county or municipality, on behalf of himself and other citizens and taxpayers interested, who may or may not join therein, may petition the board of county commissioners or any governing board of a city or town, setting forth in said petition that said county, city or town has an amount of sinking fund provided for the payment of a certain issue or issues of bonds, that the bonds, or a portion of them, may be purchased and retired, and fully setting forth any benefit which would accrue to the county, city or town from purchasing and retirement of said bonds, and demanding the application of the sinking fund thereto.

A like petition may be made to require the investment of sinking funds as provided in section one hereof. Such petition shall fully set out the facts regarding the fund in question and the benefit to be derived from its investment. Upon receiving such petition the board of county commissioners or governing body of the city or town to which the same may be addressed, shall ascertain the facts with reference to the matters alleged, and act thereon without delay; and the petition shall be sustained and the relief granted if the facts are such that the provisions of section one hereof are applicable; and such sinking fund shall be applied to the purchase and retirement of such bonds as may be obtainable, of the class or issue to the payment whereof at maturity such fund might be applied, or shall be invested without delay, in the event such bonds are not obtainable, and such investment will be advantageous to the taxpayers interested. (1931, c. 413, s. 3.)

§ 1334(85). Appeal to Local Government Commission.—An appeal shall lie from the action of the board of county commissioners or governing body of any town or city to the Local Government Commission, who shall hear the matter de novo and determine the same. The Local Government Commission shall make such order as they may deem best in the premises, and fix therein such time as they may deem reasonable for compliance therewith.

Upon failure or delay to act upon any petition for a period of thirty days after it has been received by any board of county commissioners or governing body of any city or town, direct application may be made to the Local Government Commission, which shall, on such failure or refusal to act, have original jurisdiction in the premises and shall proceed to act, after five days' notice to such board of commissioners or governing body of a town or city to whom the petition was addressed.

The orders of the Local Government Commission may be enforced by writ of mandamus in a proceeding in the Superior Court of Wake County or of the county affected, or in which the town or city concerned, or any part thereof may be located, and such proceeding may be brought by the Local Government Commission or any petitioning taxpayer, in behalf of himself and others like interested. (1931, c. 413, s. 4.)

Art. 7F. Emergency County Bond Act.

§ 1334(86). Short title of the act.—This article may be cited as the "Emergency County Bond Act of 1935." (1935, c. 427, s. 1.)

§ 1334(87). Meaning of terms.—In this article, unless the context otherwise requires, the terms:

(a). "Undertaking" shall mean any project, undertaking or improvement referred to in section eight of County Finance Act, as amended [§ 1334-(8) of this Code], which constitutes necessary expenses and for which a county may legally appropriate money, including the erection, construction, purchase, improvement, repair and equipment of school buildings and necessary lands therefor which are necessary for the maintenance of the six months' public school term required by the constitution, the financing of which undertaking is to be aided in whole or in part by means of a loan or grant through the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works or through any other agency or department of the United States of America.

(b). "County" means and includes all counties in this State now or hereafter created by law.

(c). "Necessary expenses" means the necessary expenses referred to in section seven of Article VII of the Constitution of North Carolina.

(d). "Governing body" means the board of county commissioners, or board or body in which the general legislative powers of the entire county are vested.

(e). "Clerk" means the officer acting as clerk to the governing body.

(f). "Chief financial officer" means the county accountant, auditor, treasurer, or other officer designated or appointed by the governing body to supervise the fiscal affairs of the county, unless such officer shall be designated by law. (1935, c. 427, s. 2.)

§ 1334(88). Bonds authorized. — Every county in the State is hereby authorized pursuant to this law to issue its negotiable coupon bonds for the purpose of financing any of the undertakings referred to in § 1334(87). The bonds shall be issued in such form as the officers who execute them shall adopt, except as otherwise provided by the governing body; they shall be signed by two or more officers designated by the governing body, or if the governing body makes no such designation, then by the chairman of the governing body or other chief executive officer, and by the clerk, and the corporate seal of the county or of the governing body shall be affixed to the bonds. The bonds may have coupons attached for the interest to be paid thereon, which coupons shall bear a facsimile signature of the clerk in office at the date of the bonds or at the date of the delivery thereof. The delivery of bonds so executed shall be valid notwithstanding any change in the officers or in the seal of the county occurring after the signing and sealing of the bonds. The bonds shall bear such date and such rate of interest, not exceeding four per cent (4%) per annum (payable semi-annually), or such other rate of interest as may be fixed by contract between the governing body and the United States of America, or any agency or department thereof, and shall be payable at such time or times, at such place or places, and in such medium of payment and in such denomination as the governing body may by resolution determine. The bonds may be issued either all at one time or from time to time in blocks. (1935, c. 427, s. 3.)

§ 1334(89). Registration and transfer of bonds. —(a). Bonds issued under this law shall be payable to bearer, unless they are registered as provided in this section; each coupon appertaining to a bond shall be payable to the bearer of the coupon.

(b). A county may keep in the office of its chief financial officer or in the office of a bank or trust company appointed by the governing body as bond registrar or transfer agent, a register or registers for the registration and transfer of its bonds, in which it may register any bond at the time of its issue, or at the request of the holder, thereafter. After such registration the principal and interest of the bond shall be payable to the person in whose name it is registered except in the case of a coupon bond registered as to principal only, in which case the principal shall be payable to such person, unless the bond shall be discharged from registry by being registered as payable to bearer. After registration a bond may be transferred on such register by the registered owner in person or by attorney, upon presentation to the bond registrar, accompained by delivery of a written instrument of transfer in a form approved by the bond registrar, executed by the registered owner.

(c). Upon the registration or transfer of a bond as aforesaid, the bond registrar shall note such registration or transfer on the back of the bond. Upon the registration of a coupon bond as to both principal and interest he shall also cut off and cancel the coupons.

(d). A county may, by recital in its bonds, agree to register the bonds as to principal only, or agree to register them either as to principal only or as to both principal and interest at the option of the bondholder. (1935, c. 427, s. 4.)

§ 1334(90). Application of funds. — The proceeds of the sale of bonds under this article shall be used only for the purposes specified in the resolution authorizing said bonds; provided, however, that if for any reason any part of such proceeds are not applied to, or are not necessary for such purposes, such unexpended part of the proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the principal or interest of said bonds. The cost of preparing, issuing, and marketing the bonds, together with the interest on the amount expended during the course of construction of any undertaking shall be deemed to be one of the purposes for which the bonds are issued and may be paid for out of the proceeds derived from the sale of the bonds. (1935, c. 427, s. 5.)

§ 1334(91). Bonds authorized by resolution shall be incontestable after delivery.—All bonds issued under this article shall be authorized by appropriate resolution of the governing body, which shall be the only proceeding necessary to evidence the legality thereof. The bonds shall recite that they are issued pursuant to this law, and shall in any action or proceeding involving their validity, be conclusively deemed to be fully authorized by this law and to have been issued, executed, sold, and delivered in conformity herewith and with all other provisions and statutes applicable thereto, and shall be incontestable, anything herein or in other statutes to the contrary, notwithstanding, unless such action or proceeding is begun prior to the delivery of such bonds. If the bonds are to be issued for the purpose of the erection, construction, purchase, improvement, repair and equipment of school buildings, or for lands therefor, or for any one or more of said purposes, the bonds and the resolution authorizing the same shall recite that such purposes are necessary for the maintenance of the six months' public school term as required by the constitution. (1935, c. 427, s. 6.)

§ 1334(92). Taxes levied for the payment of the bonds.—The full faith and credit of the county shall be deemed to be pledged for the punctual payment of the principal of and interest on every bond issued under this article. The governing body shall annually levy and collect a special tax in addition to other taxes now authorized by law, ad valorem, upon all the taxable property subject to taxation by the county, sufficient to pay the principal and interest of all bonds issued under this article as such principal and interest become due; provided, however, that such tax may be reduced by the amount of other moneys appropriated and actually available for such purposes. The levy of the taxes authorized by this section is hereby declared to be for a special purpose, and for which the special approval of the general assembly is hereby given.

The powers stated in this section in respect to the levy of taxes for the payment of principal and interest of bonds shall not be subject to any limitation prescribed by law upon the amount or rate of taxes which a county may levy. Taxes levied under this section shall be levied and collected in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected upon property by the county. (1935, c. 427, s. 7.)

§ 1334(93). Local government act applicable.—Any county issuing bonds under the provisions of this article shall, before the issuance and delivery thereof, make application to the Local Government Commission and obtain the approval of that Commission to issue such bonds, and they shall be subject to all the provisions of the Local Government Act, as amended, but the issuance of such bonds shall not be subject to any of the provisions of the County Finance Act, as amended, and provided further that the Local Government Commission may sell any bonds issued under this law to the United States of America, or any agency or department thereof, at private sale and without advertisement. (1935, c. 427, s. 8.)

§ 1334(94). Consent of state agencies.—It shall not be necessary for any county proceeding under this article to obtain any certificate of convenience or necessity, franchise, license, permit, or other authorization from any bureau, board, commission or other like instrumentality of the State, except the approval of the State Board of Education of plans of a school building as now provided by law, except the approval of the Local Government Commission to issue such bonds as provided in the preceding section. (1935, c. 427, s. 9.)

§ 1334(95). Effect upon prior laws and proceedings taken.—This law shall not affect any acts or proceedings heretofore done or taken by a county for the issuance of bonds for any undertaking under the County Finance Act as it stood prior to the ratification of this article, or under any other law, and every county is hereby authorized to complete said acts and proceedings pursuant to the law under which they were done or taken and to issue said bonds under such acts in the same manner as if this law had not been passed; provided, however, that the governing body may at its option proceed under this law for the issuance of such bonds, except in cases where a sufficient petition has theretofore been filed pursuant to law by the voters of such county demanding a referendum on the question of the issuance of such bonds, without regard to the restrictions imposed by the said County Finance Act and other laws. (1935, c. 427, s. 10.)

§ 1334(96). Application and construction of law.—The powers conferred by this article are in addition to and not in substitution of those conferred by any other act, either general, special or local, and every municipality may proceed to issue bonds under the provisions of this law, notwithstanding any conditions, restrictions or limitations contained in any other act, whether general, special or local. Every provision of this law shall be construed as being qualified by constitutional provisions, whenever such construction shall be necessary in order to sustain the constitutionality of any portion of this law. If any portion of this law shall be declared unconstitutional, the remainder shall stand, and the portion declared unconstitutional shall be exscinded. (1935, c. 427, s. 11.)

§ 1334(97). Termination of power to issue bonds.—Except in pursuance to any contract or agreement theretofore entered into by any county, no county shall borrow any money or deliver any bonds pursuant to this article to the purchaser or purchasers thereof after June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven. (1935, c. 427, s. 12.)

§ 1334(98). Local laws preserved.—Nothing in this article shall be construed as repealing any private or public-local laws in conflict with this article. (1935, c. 427, s. 13.)

§ 1334(99). Approval of local government commission necessary.—No bonds shall be issued under this article except with the express approval of the Local Government Commission. (1935, c. 427, s. 14.)

§ 1334(100). Laws compelling holding of elections unaffected. — Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this article, any existing laws, general, local or special, granting rights to citizens to petition for and have the question of the issuing of bonds, or incurring of indebtedness under this article, submitted to a vote of the people, are hereby preserved in full force and effect; and all present laws relating to or requiring the approval or certificate of any state commission, or other state agency, with respect to the construction or acquiring of any property or plants, or the issuing of bonds therefor, shall remain in full force and effect. (1935, c. 427, s. 15.)

Art. 8. County Poor

§ 1335. Support of poor; superintendent of county home; paupers removing to county; hospital treatment.—The board of commissioners of each county is authorized to provide by taxation for the maintenance of the poor, and to do everything expedient for their comfort and well-ordering. They may employ biennially some competent person as superintendent of the county home for the aged and infirm, and may remove him for cause. They may institute proceedings against any person coming into the county who is likely to become chargeable thereto, and cause his removal to the county where he was last legally settled; and they may recover from such county by action all charges and expenses incurred for the maintenance or removal of such poor person.

The board of commissioners of each county, when deemed for the best interest of the county, is hereby given authority to contract for periods not to exceed thirty years with public or private hospitals or institutions located within or without the county to provide for the medical treatment and hospitalization of the sick and afflicted poor of the county upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed, provided the annual payments required under such contract shall not be in excess of ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars. The full faith and credit of each county shall be deemed to be pledged for the payment of the amounts due under said contracts and the special approval of the general assembly is hereby given to the execution thereof and to the levy of a special ad valorem tax in addition to other taxes authorized by law for the special purpose of the payment of the amounts to become due thereunder. The contracts provided for in this act and the appropriations and taxes therefor are hereby declared to be for necessary expenses and for a special purpose within the meaning of the constitution of North Carolina and for which the special approval of the general assembly is hereby given, and shall be valid and binding without a vote of the majority of the qualified voters of the county and are expressly exempted and excepted from any limitation, condition or restriction prescribed by the county fiscal control act and acts amendatory thereof: Provided, that the county commissioners of Lincoln County shall not enter into any such contract except after a public hearing at the county court house, notice of which hearing shall be published for two successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county. The commissioners of Catawba County shall not act under this paragraph until a majority of the people of the county have voted favorably. This paragraph shall not apply to the counties of Ashe, Avery, Buncombe, Clay, Cumberland, Durham, Gates, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Lee, Macon, Moore, Nash, Pasquotank, Robeson, Sampson, Transylvania, Wilkes, Yadkin, Rowan, Gaston, Iredell, Surry, New Hanover, Washington, Bertie, Brunswick, Union, Stanley, Yancey, Warren, Vance, Chowan, Currituck, Forsythe, McDowell, Johnson, Halifax, Edgecombe, Pitt, Richmond, Rockingham, Columbus, Guilford and Mecklenburg. (Rev., s. 1327; Code, s. 3540; 1891, c. 138; 1935, c. 65.)

Editor's Note.—The last paragraph of this section relating to hospitalization was added by the 1935 amendment.

Extent of Relief Vested in Discretion of Commissioners.—The general duty of providing for the poor is here imposed; the place, method, and extent of relief are vested in the judgment and discretion of the county commissioners. Copple v. Commissioners, 138 N. C. 127, 132, 50 S. E. 574.

Must Be Express Contract to Bind County.—Under this section in order to make a binding pecuniary obligation on the county, there must be an express contract to that effect, or the service must be done at the express request of the proper county officer or agent. Copple v. Commissioners, 138 N. C. 127, 50 S. E. 574.

Legislative Power to Afford Direct or Indirect Relief.—The Legislature clearly has the power to delegate authority to the county officials to provide and care for one class of the indigent or unfortunate inhabitants of the State, and to disburse a part of the fund devoted by the Constitution to the support of the poor, by appropriating it more directly to another class, whose wants, in the opinion of the lawmakers, can be best supplied through public agencies of a different kind. Board v. Commissioners, 113 N. C. 379, 384, 18 S. E. 661.

It is the exclusive right of the Legislature to determine and declare by whom and how the indigent of the State entitled to support shall be ascertained, and from what fund and by whom allowances for their support shall be made. Board v. Commissioners, 113 N. C. 379, 18 S. E. 661.

Wardens under Act of 1846.—Wardens of the poor, elected by the old county courts, under the provisions of the act of 1846, ch. 64, were not subjected to any penalty for refusing to accept the appointment. Smithwick v. Williams, 30 N. C. 268.

§ 1336. County home for aged and infirm.—All persons who become chargeable to any county shall be maintained at the county home for the aged and infirm, or at such place or places as the board of commissioners select or agree upon. (Rev., s. 1328; Code, s. 3541; 1891, c. 138.)

§ 1337. Records for county, how to be kept.—The keeper or superintendent in charge of each county home in North Carolina, or the board of county commissioners in each county where there is no county home, shall keep a record book showing the following: Name, age, sex, and race of each inmate; date of entrance or discharge; mental and physical condition; cause of admission; family relation and condition; date of death if in the home; cost of supplies and per capita expense of home per month; amount of crops and value, and such other information as may be required by the board of county commissioners or the state board of charities and public welfare; and give a full and accurate report to the county commissioners and to the state board of charities and public welfare. Such report to be filed annually on or before the first Monday of December of each year. (1919, c. 72.)

As to power of commissioners to require poor placed in the home, see annotations to subsection 28, section 1297.

§ 1338. Support of county home.—The board of commissioners may provide for the support of the persons admitted by them to the home for the aged and infirm by employing a superintendent at a certain sum, or by paying a specified sum for the support of such persons to any one who will take charge of the county home for the aged and infirm, as said board may deem for the best interest of the county and the cause of humanity. (Rev., s. 1329; Code, s. 3543; 1876-7, c. 277, s. 3.)

Overseer Liable to Indictment.—An overseer of the poor is a public officer and liable to indictment at common law for any neglect of his duties or abuse of his powers. State v. Hawkins, 77 N. C. 494.

Same—Defective Indictment.—Where such officer is indicted for cruel treatment of paupers, and the indictment neither sets out the names of such paupers nor states that their names are unknown, the said indictment is defective, and judgment thereon should be arrested. State v. Hawkins, 77 N. C. 494.

Evidence.—Upon the trial of an indictment against a public officer for neglect or omission of duty, evidence of acts of positive misfeasance is inadmissible. State v. Hawkins, 77 N. C. 494.

§ 1339. Property of indigent to be sold or rented.—When any indigent person who becomes chargeable to a county for maintenance and support in accordance with the provisions of this article, owns any estate, it is the duty of the board of commissioners of any county liable to pay the expenses of such indigent person to cause the same to be sold for its indemnity or reimbursement in the manner provided under article 3 of the chapter entitled Insane Persons and Incompetents, or they may take possession thereof and rent the same out and apply the rent toward the support of such indigent person. (Rev., s. 1330; Code, s. 3547; 1866, c. 49.)

§ 1340. Families of indigent militiamen to be supported.—When any citizen of the state is absent on service as a militiaman or member of the state guard, and his family are unable to support themselves during his absence, the board of commissioners of his county, on application, shall make towards their maintenance such allowance as may be deemed reasonable. (Rev., s. 1331; Code, s. 3546; R. C., c. 86, s. 14; 1779, c. 152.)

§ 1341. Paupers not to be hired out at auction.—No pauper shall be let out at public auction, but the board of commissioners may make such arrangements for the support of paupers with their friends or other persons, when not maintained at the county home for the aged and infirm, as may be deemed best. (Rev., s. 1332; Code, s. 3542; 1876-7, c. 277, s. 2.)

§ 1342. Legal settlements; how acquired.—Legal settlements may be acquired in any county, so as to entitle the party to be supported by such county, in the manner following, and not otherwise:

1. By one Year's Residence.—Every person who has resided continuously in any county for one year shall be deemed legally settled in that county.

2. Married Women to have Settlement of their Husbands.—A married woman shall always follow and have the settlement of her husband, if he have any in the state; otherwise, her own at the time of her marriage, if she then had any, shall not be lost or suspended by the marriage, but shall be that of her husband, till another is acquired by him, which shall then be the settlement of both.

3. Legitimate Children to Have Settlement of Father.—Legitimate children shall follow and have the settlement of their father, if he has any in the state, until they gain a settlement of their own; but if he has none, they shall, in like manner, follow and have the settlement of their mother, if she has any.

4. Illegitimate Children to Have Settlement of Mother.—Illegitimate children shall follow and have the settlement of their mother, at the time of their birth, if she then have any in the state. But neither legitimate nor illegitimate children shall gain a settlement by birth in the county in which they may be born, if neither of their parents had any settlement therein.

5. Settlement to Continue until New One Acquired.—Every legal settlement shall continue till it is lost or defeated by acquiring a new one, within or without the state; and upon acquiring such new settlement, all former settlements shall be defeated and lost.

6. No person coming into the State of North Carolina from another State shall be deemed to have a settlement in this State for the purposes of this section, until he or she has resided continuously three years within the State, unless at the time of so migrating he or she was able to maintain himself in such sense as that he or she would not be deemed a pauper within the meaning of article eight, chapter twenty-four of the Consolidated Statutes one thousand nine hundred and nineteen. (Rev., s. 1333; Code, s. 3544; R. C., c. 86, s. 12; 1777, c. 117, s. 16; 1931, c. 120.)

As to duty of commissioners to provide for the maintenance of the poor, see section 1297(28).

The legal settlement of the pauper determines the liability. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 121 N. C. 295, 296, 28 S. E. 412.

Settlements Not Governed by Law of Domicile.—The law applicable to pauper settlements is regulated by statute, and is in no way governed by the law of the domicile or citizenship. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 101 N. C. 520, 524, 8 S. E. 176.

Settlement as at Common Law.—Since our act did not contemplate the case of foreign paupers, the question of settlement is left as at common law. State v. McQuaig, 63 N. C. 550, 551.

Purpose to Charge Each County with Its Poor.—It is the manifest purpose of the law in regard to pauper settlements to charge each county with the support of its own poor. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 101 N. C. 520, 524, 8 S. E. 176.

Loan for Care of Paupers Ultra Vires.—A contract for the loan of money made by the late county courts for the support of the paupers in their respective counties was ultra vires, and therefore void. Daniel v. Board, 74 N. C. 494.

Pauper Injured in Another County. — Where a pauper, temporarily absent from the county where he has a "legal settlement," is so disabled as to require immediate medical services and is furnished by the authorities of another county with such attention and board, the latter is entitled to recover the expenses thereof from the county where the pauper has his settlement. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 121 N. C. 295, 28 S. E. 412.

Year's Requirement.—No one shall gain a settlement in a county unless by continuous residence for one year. State v. Elam, 61 N. C. 460, 462.

Settlement Not Ipso Facto Obtained by Birth.—Neither legitimate nor illegitimate children shall gain a settlement by birth in the county in which they may be born, if neither of their parents had any settlement therein. State v. Elam, 61 N. C. 460, 462.

When Domicile and Settlement Different. — Although in most cases the county of domicil and the county of settlement are the same, yet they are sometimes different as in such case the county of settlement is chargeable with the maintenance of the bastard child. State v. Elam, 61 N. C. 460, 465.

County's Liability Fixed by Mother's Settlement.—The liability of the county for the maintenance of a bastard child is fixed not by its birth but by the settlement of its mother at the time of its birth. State v. Elam, 61 N. C. 460, 462.

An illegitimate child, who has not gained a new settlement by a year's residence in some other county, is, for the purpose of being apprenticed, subject to the jurisdiction of the court of that county in which its mother was settled at the time of its birth. Ferrell v. Boykin, 61 N. C. 9.

When Mother without Settlement in State.—A bastard, born in this State of a mother who has not resided in it "for twelve months", is chargeable for maintenance upon the county in which it is born. State v. McQuaig, 63 N. C. 550.

Duration of Settlement.—A legal settlement continues until a new one is acquired. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 121 N. C. 295, 296, 28 S. E. 412.

§ 1343. Removal of indigent to county of settlement; maintenance; penalties.—Upon complaint made by the chairman to the board of county commissioners, before a justice of the peace, that any person has come into the county who is likely to become chargeable thereto, the justice by his warrant shall cause such poor person to be removed to the county where he was last legally settled; but if such poor person is sick or disabled, and cannot be removed without danger of life, the board of commissioners shall provide for his maintenance and cure at the charge of the county; and after his recovery shall cause him to be removed, and pay the charges of his removal. The county wherein he was last legally settled shall repay all charges occasioned by his sickness, maintenance, cure and removal, and all charges and expenses whatever, if such person die before removal. If the board of commissioners of the county to which such poor person belongs refuses to receive and provide for him when removed as aforesaid, every commissioner so refusing shall forfeit and pay forty dollars, for the use of the county whence the removal was made; moreover, if the board of commissioners of the county where such person was legally settled refuses to pay the charges and expenses aforesaid, they shall be liable for the same. If any housekeeper entertains such poor person without giving notice thereof to the board of commissioners of his county, or one of them, within one month, the person so offending shall forfeit and pay ten dollars. (Rev., s. 1334; Code, s. 3545; R. C., c. 86, s. 13; 1777, c. 117, s. 17; 1834, c. 21.)

Cross References.—As to commissioners neglect of duty a misdemeanor, see section 1302; as to willfully failing to discharge duties, see section 4384.

It is thus provided that the board of commissioners of the county to which such poor person belongs shall receive and provide for him, under a penalty for refusal to do so, makes them liable if they refuse to pay the expenses mentioned in the section. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 101 N. C. 520, 524, 8 S. E. 176.

§ 1343(a). Burial of indigent veterans of the world war.—The county commissioners of any county in North Carolina are authorized, empowered, and directed to appropriate out of the general fund of the county a sum of not more than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) to provide for the burial of any former member of the army, navy, or marine corps, who served in the recent world war, who shall die within the boundaries of the said county and whose estate or relatives are unable to provide for the burial of said veteran, and whose burial has not otherwise been provided for. (1923, c. 119.)

Editor's Note.—This section is somewhat similar to the provision for the burial of confederate soldiers in section 5167.

This section was reviewed in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 296.

Art. 8A. District Hospital Home

§ 1343(b). Two or more adjacent counties may establish; trustees.—Any two or more adjacent counties may by action of the county commissioners in said counties, as hereafter provided, establish a district hospital-home for the aged and infirm, to be located at some suitable place within the counties composing the district, location and purchase to be controlled by a board of trustees appointed by the county commissioners of the respective counties owning and controlling said hospital-home, each county to have one representative. Where only two counties enter the district, the commissioners of the counties concerned shall jointly elect one additional trustee. (1931, c. 129, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This article was codified from the Act of 1931, which is very similar to and takes the place of Public Loc. Laws, 1923, c. 611, s. 1, made a public law by Public Laws 127, c. 192.

§ 1343(c). Present properties to be sold; application of proceeds.—The county commissioners of the aforesaid counties are hereby authorized and empowered to sell and convey by deed all properties held by the aforesaid counties for the care and maintenance of their county's poor, and from the proceeds of such sale appropriate so much as may be required to meet said county's proportionate part of the funds necessary to perfect the completion of said community home for the aged and infirm as provided herein. (1931, c. 129, s. 2.)

§ 1343(d). Funds raised by taxation.—Should it be deemed wisest not to sell said properties, or should any county not have said properties in its possession, or should any counties have said properties which would not be for sale, the necessary funds shall then be raised by direct taxation within the county or counties preferring this method of raising their pro rata part. (1931, c. 129, s. 3.)

§ 1343(e). Appointment of trustees.—The several boards of county commissioners shall, as soon as they shall have agreed among themselves to establish a district hospital-home for the aged and infirm for their counties, appoint the members of the board of trustees, which board shall be known as the board of trustees of the district hospital-home for the district comprising ..... counties; the members of said board of trustees shall be appointed every two years by the boards of county commissioners, the term of office for said trustees shall be two years, and until their successors are chosen and qualified; that all vacancies shall be filled by the several boards of county commissioners and said commissioners shall provide for the expense and compensation of said board of trustees. (1931, c. 129, s. 4.)

§ 1343(f). Organization meeting; site and buildings.—This board of trustees shall, as soon as possible after appointment, assemble and organize by the election of a chairman, a secretary and a treasurer, which last officer shall be bonded. They shall proceed promptly with the purchase of a site for such hospital-home, including, if they deem it desirable, a farm of suitable size, location and fertilty, giving due consideration to sanitary surroundings and transportation facilities, and shall then cause to be erected suitable plain, substantial, comfortable and permanent buildings for the accommodation of those for whom this act is intended, giving due regard to the separation of the sexes and races, and such other plans for segregation as their judgment and existing conditions may suggest. Said buildings are to be furnished with plain, substantial furniture, and such other equipment as conditions demand. Necessary hospital facilities may be included, but provisions for such facilities and equipment shall have the approval of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare and the State Board of Health. (1931, c. 129, s. 5.)

§ 1343(g). Apportionment of cost.—The several counties constructing, equipping, and operating a district hospital-home shall pay for the site and for the construction and equipment of the plant in proportion to the population of the individual county to the total population of the several counties comprising the district, but each county shall pay for the number of persons maintained at the hospital-home at the actual per capita cost of such maintenance. (1931, c. 129, s. 6.)

§ 1343(h). Plans and specifications for hospital-home.—The State Board of Charities and Public Welfare shall have prepared plans for such district hospital-home and shall furnish such plans on request to any board of trustees of any district hospital-home at cost; and that all such hospital-homes shall be built in accordance with plans furnished or approved by the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare. (1931, c. 129, s. 7.)

§ 1343(i). Closing of county homes.—As soon as the district hospital-home is ready for occupancy the several county homes or poorhouses, heretofore owned by the several counties, shall be closed and occupants shall be transferred and located in the district hospital-home for the aged and infirm herein provided for. (1931, c. 129, s. 8.)

§ 1343(j). Superintendent and employees.—The board of trustees of the said district hospital-home shall elect a capable superintendent or matron, preferably a woman who is a trained nurse, and such other employees as it may deem necessary to the efficient management of said district hospital-home, and shall fix their salaries with due regard to number and condition of inmates occupying said district hospital-home. (1931, c. 129, s. 9.)

§ 1343(k). Meetings of trustees.—The board of trustees shall meet at least twice a year for the transaction of such business as their provisions may require. They shall have the general conduct and management of the district hospital-home's affairs. They shall meet at the call of the chairman whenever he shall deem it necessary, or upon call issued by a majority of the board. (1931, c. 129, s. 10.)

§ 1343(l). Purpose of special meetings set out in call.—The matter to be considered at any special meeting shall be set out in the call for the special meeting, but any business may be transacted at special meetings which received a two-thirds' vote of the entire board of trustees, although not mentioned in the call. (1931, c. 129, s. 11.)

§ 1343(m). Powers of trustees.—The board is vested with all powers not already mentioned which are possessed by boards supervising State institutions. (1931, c. 129, s. 12.)

§ 1343(n). Sending of inmates to institution.—The counties constructing, operating and maintaining a district hospital-home for the aged and infirm shall, as required by law now in force for the care and maintenance of those not able to care for themselves, send such person or persons to the district hospital-home for the aged and infirm in lieu of the county home if it appears to the commissioners and the superintendent of public welfare that such persons need institutional care. (1931, c. 129, s. 13.)

§ 1343(o). Annual report on affairs of institution.—As soon after the first day of January of each year as may be practicable the board of trustees shall cause a report to be made of the hospital-home, which report shall show the number of inmates, the county admitting them, date of admission, age, condition of health, sex, color, educational acquirements, diagnosis of disease if diseased, total number of inmates received during the year, average number cared for per month, names and disposition of those dismissed, pro rata cost of maintenance, the total amount of money expended, the total amount of money received from each county, and such information as the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare and the board of trustees of the district hospital-home may request. It shall also show an inventory and appraisement of property, real and personal, and give a strict account of receipts from farm and expenditure thereon, and such other information as may be required to check up the institution from all viewpoints. (1931, c. 129, s. 14.)

§ 1343(p). Copies of report to county commissioners.—A copy of the said report of the said board of trustees shall be furnished the county commissioners of the respective counties interested in and providing said district hospital-home. (1931, c. 129, s. 15.)

Art. 9. County Prisoners

§ 1344. Bonds of prisoner in criminal case returned to court.—Every bond taken of any person confined for an offense, or otherwise than on process issuing in a civil case, shall be returned to the court by whose order or process such person is confined, or which may be entitled to cognizance of the matter, and shall be of the force and effect of a recognizance. On breach thereof it shall be forfeited and collected as a forfeiture in the name and for the use of the state, and applied as other forfeited recognizances. (Rev., s. 1340; Code, s. 3467; R. C., c. 87, s. 12.)

Bond to Keep Prison Bounds.—A bond to keep the prison bounds need not be proved by the subscribing witness, for it must be deemed a record, so far as concerns proof of its execution. Wynn v. Buckett, 1 N. C. 93.

Discharge of Insolvent Discharges Sureties. — When a prisoner is discharged upon taking the insolvent debtor's oath, the sureties upon his bond to keep the prison rules are also thereupon discharged. Howard v. Pasteur, 7 N. C. 270.

A prisoner going out of the limits of the rules, after he was discharged as an insolvent debtor was lawful, although he was in close jail at the instance of another creditor. The order of liberation extends to discharge him from all imprisonment for debt. Howard v. Pasteur, 7 N. C. 270.

When Entitled to Jury Trial.—In a summary proceeding, by motion for judgment on a bond to keep the prison bounds, if the defendant plead matters of fact in pais, he is entitled to have them tried by a jury. Whitley v. Gaylord, 48 N. C. 286.

§ 1345. Bond of prisoner committed on capias in civil action.—Every bond given by any person committed in arrest and bail, or in custody after final judgment, shall be assigned by the sheriff to the party at whose instance such person was committed to jail, and shall be returned to the office of the clerk of the court where the judgment was rendered, and shall have the force of a judgment. If any person who obtains the rules of any prison, as aforesaid, escapes out of the same before he has paid the debt or damages and costs according to the condition of his bond, the court where the bond is filed, upon motion of the assignee thereof, shall award execution against such person and his sureties for the debt or damages and costs, with interest from the time of escape till payment; and no person committed to jail on such execution shall be allowed the rules of prison: Provided, the obligors have ten days previous notice of such motion, in writing; but they shall not be admitted to deny the making of the bond in their answer, unless by affidavit they prove the truth of the plea. (Rev., s. 1341; Code, s. 3469; R. C., c. 87, s. 14; 1759, c. 65, ss. 2, 3.)

Bond Has Force of Judgment.—This section gives to the bond the force of a judgment, and authorizes the party to have execution sued out thereon, upon mere motion, and the plaintiff cannot elect to treat it as a common deed. Brown v. Frazier, 5 N. C. 421, 422.

When Action Not Maintainable.—An action cannot be maintained upon a bond given by a person arrested upon a capias ad satisfaciendum, to keep within the limits of the rules of the prison. Brown v. Frazier, 5 N. C. 421.

§ 1346. Jailer to cleanse jail, furnish food and water.—The sheriff or keeper of any jail shall, every day, cleanse the room of the prison in which any prisoner is confined, and cause all filth to be removed therefrom; and shall also furnish the prisoner plenty of good and wholesome water, three times in every day; and shall furnish each prisoner fuel, not less than one pound of wholesome bread, one pound of good roasted or boiled flesh, and every necessary attendance. (Rev., s. 1343; Code, s. 3464; R. C., c. 87, s. 9; 1816, c. 911, s. 2.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 172, for comment involving this section.

§ 1347. Prisoner to pay charges and prison fees.—Every person committed by lawful authority, for any criminal offense or misdemeanor, shall bear all reasonable charges for guarding and carrying him to jail, and also for his support therein until released; and all the estate which such person possessed at the time of committing the offense shall be subjected to the payment of such charges and other prison fees, in preference to all other debts and demands. If there is no visible estate whereon to levy such fees and charges, the amount shall be paid by the county. (Rev., s. 1346; Code, s. 3461; R. C., c. 87, s. 6; 1795, c. 433, s. 7.)

§ 1348. Prisoner may furnish necessaries.—Prisoners shall be allowed to purchase and procure such necessaries, in addition to the diet furnished by the jailer, as they may think proper; and to provide their own bedding, linen and clothing, without paying any perquisite to the jailer for such indulgence. (Rev., s. 1344; Code, s. 3463; R. C., c. 87, s. 8; 1795, c. 433, s. 6.)

This section permits prisoners to procure such additional comforts as their circumstances allow. Wilkes v. Slaughter, 10 N. C. 211, 221.

§ 1349. United States prisoners to be kept.—When a prisoner is delivered to the keeper of any jail by the authority of the United States, such keeper shall receive the prisoner, and commit him accordingly; and every keeper of a jail refusing or neglecting to take possession of a prisoner delivered to him by the authority aforesaid shall be subject to the same pains and penalties as for neglect or refusal to commit any prisoner delivered to him under the authority of the state. The allowance for the maintenance of any prisoner committed as aforesaid shall be equal to that made for prisoners committed under the authority of the state. (Rev., s. 1342; Code, s. 3456; R. C., c. 37, s. 1; 1790, c. 322, ss. 1, 2.)

Authority of U. S. Commissioners.—By virtue of this section United States Commissioners have authority to commit prisoners to county jails. United States v. Harden, 10 Fed. 802, 807.

The Mittimus.—The mittimus must be directed to the marshal commanding him to convey the prisoner into the custody of the jailer, and it must also direct and command the jailer to receive the prisoner and keep him in close custody until discharged, or taken from his custody by some proper process of law. United States v. Harden, 10 Fed. 802, 807.

Same—Copy to Jailer.—The marshal must deliver a copy of such mittimus to the jailer as his authority to hold the prisoner. United States v. Harden, 10 Fed. 802, 807.

Jailer Should Have Written Authority.—A jailor ought never to receive a prisoner into his custody without some written authority to detain him, issued by a person having power to grant such authority, except under the order of a court in session. United States v. Harden, 10 Fed. 802, 807.

Commitment Not Absolute.—This is not an absolute commitment, as the marshal can take the prisoner out of the custody of the jailer when it becomes necessary for him to complete the service of the capias by producing the body of the prisoner at the ensuing term of court. United States v. Harden, 10 Fed. 802, 807.

§ 1349(a). Arrest of escaped persons from penal institutions.—Upon information received from the superintendent of any correctional or any penal institution, established by the laws of the state, that any person confined in such institution or assigned thereto by juvenile or other court under authority of law, has escaped therefrom and is still at large, it shall be the duty of sheriffs of the respective counties of the state, and of any peace officer in whose jurisdiction such person may be found, to take into his custody such escaped person, if to be found in his county, and to cause his return to the custody of the proper officer of the institution from which he has escaped. (1933, c. 105, s. 1.)

§ 1350. Guard when escape apprehended; compensation.—When the sheriff of the county, or keeper of the jail, apprehends that there is danger of a prisoner escaping, through the insufficiency of the jail or other cause, it is his duty, without delay, to make information thereof to a judge of the superior court, the attorney-general, or a solicitor, if any of those officers is in the county, and if not, then to three justices of the peace, and they are authorized, if they deem it advisable, to furnish the sheriff or keeper of the jail with an order in writing, addressed to the commanding officer of the militia of the county, setting forth the danger, and requiring him forthwith to furnish such guard as to him may appear to be suitable for the occasion. For which service the persons ordered on guard shall receive such compensation as militiamen in actual service for defense of the state; and on application for pay, the letter to the commanding officer, on which the guard was ordered, and the certificate of such officer, countersigned by the sheriff or jailer, together with the deposition of the officer of the guard, stating the time of service, and that it was faithfully performed, shall be sufficient to authorize the payment of the same. (Rev., s. 1345; Code, s. 3460; R. C., c. 87, s. 5; 1795, c. 433, s. 8.)

A payment voluntarily made, with a knowledge of all the facts, cannot be recovered back, although there was no debt. This rule applies as well to a payment made by one corporation to another as to a payment by one individual to another. Board v. Board, 75 N. C. 240.

§ 1351. What counties liable for guarding and removing prisoners.—The expense for guarding prisons shall be paid by the county where the prison is situated; and for conveying prisoners, as also the expense attending such prisoners while in jail, when the same may be chargeable on the county, shall be paid by the county from which the prisoner is removed. (Rev., s. 1347; Code, s. 3462; R. C., c. 87, s. 7; 1808, c. 757, s. 2.)

When upon proper application, the commanding officer of a county is required to furnish the jailer with such guard as may be required for the safe-keeping of prisoners, the expenses of the guard so incurred are to be paid by the county from which the prisoners are removed. Board v. Board, 75 N. C. 240.

§ 1352. Transfer of prisoners to succeeding sheriff.—The delivery of prisoners, by indenture between the late and present sheriff, or the entering on record in court the names of the several prisoners, and the causes of their commitment, delivered over to the present sheriff, shall be sufficient to discharge the late sheriff from all liability for any escape that shall happen. (Rev., s. 1348; Code, s. 3470; R. C., c. 87, s. 15; 1777, c. 118, s. 12.)

§ 1353. Where no jail, sheriff may imprison in jail of adjoining county.—The sheriffs, constables, and other ministerial officers of any county in which there is no jail have authority to confine any prisoner arrested on process, civil or criminal, and held in custody for want of bail, in the jail of any adjoining county, until bail be given or tendered. And any sheriff or jailer having a prisoner in his custody, by virtue of any mode of commitment provided in this chapter, shall be liable, civilly and criminally, for his escape, in the same manner as if such prisoner had been confined in the prison of his proper county. (Rev., s. 1349; Code, s. 3459; R. C., c. 87, s. 4; 1835, c. 2, s. 3.)

§ 1354. Where no jail, courts may commit to jail of adjoining county.—Whenever there happens to be no jail, or when there is an unfit or insecure jail, in any county, the superior court judges, justices of the peace, and all judicial officers of such county may commit all persons brought before them, whether in a criminal or civil proceeding, to the jail of any adjoining county, for the same causes and under the like regulations that they might have ordered commitments to the usual jail; and the sheriffs, constables, and other officers of such county in which there is no jail, or an unfit one, and the sheriffs or keepers of the jails of the adjoining counties, shall obey any order of commitment so made. Any officer failing to obey such order shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 1350; Code, s. 3458; R. C., c. 87, s. 3; 1835, c. 2, s. 2.)

§ 1355. When jail destroyed, transfer of prisoners provided for.—When the jail of any county is destroyed by fire or other accident, any justice of the peace of such county may cause all prisoners then confined therein to be brought before him; and upon the production of the process under which any prisoner was confined shall order his commitment to the jail of any adjacent county; and the sheriff, constable, or other officer of the county deputed for that purpose, shall obey the order; and the sheriff or keeper of the common jail of such adjacent county shall receive such prisoners upon the order aforesaid. Any officer failing to obey such order of commitment shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 1351; Code, s. 3457; R. C., c. 87, s. 2; 1835, c. 2, s. 1.)

§ 1356. Counties and towns may hire out certain prisoners.—The board of commissioners of the several counties, within their respective jurisdictions, or such other county authorities therein as may be established, and the mayor and intendant of the several cities and towns of the state, have power to provide under such rules and regulations as they may deem best for the employment on the public streets, public highways, public works, or other labor for individuals or corporations, of all persons imprisoned in the jails of their respective counties, cities and towns, upon conviction of any crime or misdemeanor, or who may be committed to jail for failure to enter into bond for keeping the peace or for good behavior, and who fail to pay all the costs which they are adjudged to pay, or to give good and sufficient security therefor: Provided, such prisoner or convict shall not be detained beyond the time fixed by the judgment of the court. The amount realized from hiring out such persons shall be credited to them for the fine and bill of costs in all cases of conviction. It is unlawful to farm out any such convicted person who may be imprisoned for the nonpayment of a fine, or as punishment imposed for the offense of which he may have been convicted, unless the court before whom the trial is had shall in its judgment so authorize. (Rev., s. 1352; Code, s. 3448; 1866-7, c. 30; 1872-3, c. 174, s. 10; 1874-5, c. 113; 1876-7, c. 196, s. 1; 1879, c. 218.)

Editor's Note.—Before the enactment of this section, if one in jail in default of payment of fine and costs was not provided with some mode of discharge, he would remain therein indefinitely, or take the insolvent debtor's oath. But it was felt that some other mode of discharge should be provided, and that it was a serious and unjust charge upon the public, that these prisoners should be discharged without burden to themselves, leaving the public to bear the real punishment by paying the cost of their trial and conviction, and also that it was bad policy that prisoners sentenced to the county jail for crime should lie therein in idleness, supported at the expense of the taxpayers. The Legislature, therefore, deeming it had power to so legislate, formulated public opinion in an Act originally passed in 1866-'67, chap. 30, and which, after being several times amended, is now this section. This later Act must be read in connection with sec. 2967, and is, in effect, an amendment thereto. State v. White, 125 N. C. 674, 675, 681, 34 S. E. 532.

The Act of 6 March, 1867. c. 196, was without the concluding sentence of this section, which leaves it at the discretion of the trial court as to whether or not a convict shall be farmed out. In the February Term, 1878, of the Supreme Court, Rodman, J., delivering the opinion of the court in State v. James, 78 N. C. 454, points out the possibilities of mischief and evil of a provision, unrestrain in its terms, which authorizes the employment of convict labor by individuals or corporations. He suggested that the Legislature might see fit to amend the law, by leaving it to the judge to say, in his sentence, whether the prisoner may be hired out or not; or by allowing the hiring only when the prisoner shall be in prison for the non-payment of a fine.

It seems that the Legislature was attracted by this suggestion, and realizing the opening for evil under the existing law, passed the Amendatory Act of March 13, 1879, c. 218, which added as a third proviso, the last sentence of this section, substantially complying with Justice Rodman's suggestion. See State v. James, 78 N. C. 454; State v. Sneed, 94 N. C. 806.

Constitutionality.—The section is constitutional. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 573, 50 S. E. 213; State v. Weathers, 98 N. C. 685, 4 S. E. 512; State v. Palin, 63 N. C. 471.

When Must Be Released.—A prisoner cannot be held beyond the time fixed by the court. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 416, 2 S. E. 370.

Same—When Farmed Out.—A prisoner may be discharged from commitment for the fine and cost by taking the pauper's oath though he has been farmed out under the provisions of this section. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 2 S. E. 270.

Does Not Apply to Employment on Public Works.—The provisions of the section forbidding the hiring out of convicts, unless the court before which such prisoner was convicted shall so authorize in its judgment, only applies to farming out convict labor to individuals and corporations, and does not extend to cases of convicts employed on public works, and under the supervision and control of public agents. State v. Sneed, 94 N. C. 806.

Prisoner Hired to Wife.—A man imprisoned in the county jail upon a conviction for fornication and adultery, may be hired out to his wife, under this section, upon her giving bond with sureties for the price. State v. James, 78 N. C. 464.

Court Not to Designate Kind or Place of Employment.—The section does not authorize the court to designate the employment, or where it shall be performed. That matter is left to the discretion of the county commissioners, under rules and regulations prescribed by them. State v. Norwood, 93 N. C. 578, 580.

§ 1357. Person hiring may prevent escape.—The party in whose service said convicts may be may use the necessary means to hold and keep them in custody and to prevent their escape. (Rev., s. 1353; Code, s. 3454; 1876-7, c. 196, s. 3.)

§ 1358. Sheriff to have control of prisoners hired out.—All convicts hired or farmed out by the county or other municipal authorities shall at all times be under the supervision and control, as to their government and discipline, of the sheriff, or his deputy, of the county in which they were convicted and imprisoned, and the sheriff, or his deputy, shall be deemed a state officer for the purpose of this section. (Rev., s. 1354; Code, s. 3453; 1876-7, c. 196, s. 2.)

§ 1359. Convicts who may be sentenced to or worked on roads.—When any county has made provision for the working of convicts upon the public roads, or when any number of counties have jointly made provision for working convicts upon the public roads, it is lawful for and the duty of the judge holding court in such counties to sentence to imprisonment at hard labor on the public roads for such terms as are now prescribed by law for their imprisonment in the county jail or in the state's prison, the following classes of convicts: First, all persons convicted of offenses the punishment whereof would otherwise be wholly, or in part, imprisonment in the common jail; second, all persons convicted of crimes the punishment whereof would otherwise, wholly or in part, be imprisonment in the state's prison for a term not exceeding ten years.

In such counties there may also be worked on the public roads, in like manner, all persons sentenced to imprisonment in jail by any magistrate; and also, all insolvents imprisoned by any court in said counties for nonpayment of costs in criminal causes may be retained in imprisonment and worked on the public roads until they repay the county to the extent of the half fees charged up against the county for each person taking the insolvent oath. The rate of compensation to be allowed each insolvent for work on public roads shall be fixed by the county commissioners at a just and fair compensation, regard being had to the amount of work of which each insolvent is capable. (Rev., s. 1355; 1887, c. 355; 1889, c. 419.)

Editor's Note.—The first paragraph of this section is the Act of 1887, c. 355, and refers exclusively to persons sentenced by the judge holding the courts of the county. The second paragraph is the Amendment of 1889, c. 419, which extends the section as to include persons sentenced by a magistrate, and all insolvents imprisoned for nonpayment of costs in criminal causes.

As to prisoners sentenced to jail for less than sixty days, see § 1297, subsection 31.

Constitutionality.—A sentence to work the public roads is constitutional and valid. State v. Smith, 126 N. C. 1057, 35 S. E. 615; State v. Weathers, 98 N. C. 685, 4 S. E. 512; State v. Haynie, 118 N. C. 1265, 24 S. E. 536.

A sentence of a defendant convicted of a misdemeanor to thirty days' imprisonment and that he be assigned to the commissioners to be "worked on the public roads of the county" during said term is valid under the section and Article XI, section 1, of the Constituton. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 50 S. E. 213.

Judge's Duty.—When county has made provision for working convicts upon the public roads, it is the duty of the judge holding court in such county to sentence to imprisonment at hard labor on the public roads for such terms as are prescribed by law for imprisonment in the county jail. State v. Saunders, 146 N. C. 597, 598, 59 S. E. 695.

Presumption as to Enforcement. — Where judgment has been rendered imposing such punishment, it will be presumed the county authorities have made the proper provisions for its enforcement. State v. Hicks, 101 N. C. 747, 7 S. E. 707.

An Incident of Sentence Proper.—The order of the commissioners directing the employment of a convict upon the public roads, and committing him to the custody of a superintendent of such public works, is not an additional sentence or judgment pronounced by the commissioners but an incident to the sentence properly imposed by the court in contemplation of which the prisoner committed the offense. State v. Yandle, 119 N. C. 874, 25 S. E. 796.

To Work Roads of Another County.—A sentence to work the public roads of another county is valid when authorized by statute. State v. Hamby, 126 N. C. 1066, 35 S. E. 614.

Half Fees Charged against County.—Where persons are imprisoned for nonpayment of cost, they are to be detained only until they repay the county to the extent of the "half fees charged up against it," thus showing that the Legislature recognized the liability of the county in such cases only for half fees. State v. Saunders, 146 N. C. 597, 599, 59 S. E. 695.

Escape. — Where a prisoner confined in the public jail was used by the county authorities to work on the public roads, the person in charge of him was guilty of an escape for negligently allowing such person to make his escape. State v. Sneed, 94 N. C. 806.

Classes of Prisoners Section Not Applicable to.—This section does not include among those authorized to be worked upon the roads those "sentenced to the house of correction," nor does it include those who fail "to give bond for maintenance of a bastard," nor for "failure to pay costs," except "those imprisoned for nonpayment of costs in criminal causes." State v. Morgan, 141 N. C. 726, 53 S. E. 142.

Husband Convicted of Abandonment.—A husband convicted of abandonment under section 4447 of this code, and other offenses of like kind, may be assigned to work on the roads during his term. State v. Faulkner, 185 N. C. 635, 116 S. E. 168.

Prisoners Convicted for Affray and Assault.—In State v. Weathers, 98 N. C. 685, 4 S. E. 512, upon conviction for an affray and mutual assault, the court pronounced judgment that "the convicted defendants be put to work on the public roads by the county commissioners," and the judgment was affirmed. The court said, speaking through Smith, C. J., at p. 688: "The form of the sentence is fully warranted in the recent Act regulating the working of convicts on the public roads (Laws 1887, ch. 355), which directly warrants the judgments, and places convicts sentenced to imprisonment and hard labor on the public roads under the control of the county authorities, investing them with power to enact all useful rules and regulations for the successful working of all convicts upon said public roads." State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 573, 50 S. E. 213. To the same effect is State v. Pearson, 100 N. C. 414, 6 S. E. 387; State v. Haynie, 118 N. C. 1265, 24 S. E. 536.

Prisoner Convicted for Bastardy.—The Supreme Court declared in Myers v. Stafford, 114 N. C. 234, 19 S. E. 764, that bastardy having become a "petty misdemeanor," a defendant convicted of that offense may, under the authority of section 3448, be put to work on the public road until the fine and costs are paid. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 573, 50 S. E. 213.

Convicted for Assualt and Battery with Deadly Weapon.—State v. Yandle, 119 N. C. 874, 25 S. E. 796, was a conviction for an assault and battery with a deadly weapon, and the Supreme Court held that one legally convicted of any crime or misdemeanor may be, under the authority of this section, sentenced to work upon the public roads. This was cited and approved in Herring v. Dixon, 122 N. C. 420, 425, 29 S. E. 368. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 573, 50 S. E. 213.

§ 1360. Deductions from sentence allowed for good behavior.—When a convict has been sentenced to work upon the public roads of a county, and has faithfully performed the duties assigned to him during his term of sentence, he is entitled to a deduction from the time of his sentence of five days for each month, and he shall be discharged from the county roads when he has served his sentence, less the number of days he may be entitled to have deducted. The authorities having him in charge shall be the sole judges as to the faithful performance of the duties assigned to him. Should he escape or attempt to escape he shall forfeit and lose any deduction he may have been entitled to prior to that time. This section shall apply also to women sentenced to a county farm or county home. (1913, c. 167, s. 1.)

§ 1361. Convicts sentenced to roads to be under county control.—The convicts sentenced to hard labor upon the public roads, under second section preceding, shall be under the control of the county authorities, and the county authorities have power to enact all needful rules and regulations for the successful working of convicts upon the public roads. The county commissioners may work such convicts on the public roads or in canaling the main drains and swamps or on other public work of the county. (Rev., s. 1356; 1887, c. 355, s. 2; 1891, c. 164.)

In the absence of rules and regulations made and promulgated by the county commissioners permitting it, a guard has no legal right or authority to whip convicts in his care or custody. State v. Nipper, 166 N. C. 272, 441, 81 S. E. 462.

§ 1362. When sentenced to state's prison in lieu of roads.—In all cases where the judge presiding is satisfied that there is good reason to fear that an attempt might be made to release or to injure any person convicted of any of the offenses mentioned in the second class [section 1359] it is lawful for the judge to sentence such convicts to imprisonment in the state's prison, as is now provided by law: Provided, that no person who has been convicted and sentenced on a charge of murder, manslaughter, rape, attempt to commit rape, or arson, shall be assigned to county roads under this chapter. (Rev., s. 1357; 1887, c. 355, s. 4.)

§ 1363. State's prison to furnish convicts to county roads.—In addition to the convicts mentioned in section one thousand three hundred and fifty-nine, the board of directors of the state's prison is authorized and directed to furnish to the authorities of any county within the state, convicts, not exceeding twenty-five in number during any one year, for the purpose of working the public roads in said county. The said convicts shall be at all times under the supervision and control as to their government and discipline of the board of directors of the state's prison as in case of hiring convicts to railroad companies. Any county applying for convicts under this article shall erect suitable stockades for their safekeeping and protection, and shall pay the expense of their transportation from and to the state's prison. (Rev., s. 1358; 1887, c. 355, s. 5.)

§ 1364. Taxes may be levied for expenses of convicts.—The board of county commissioners of the several counties in the state taking advantage of this chapter shall levy a special tax annually as other taxes are levied for the purpose of paying the expenses of said convicts, building of stockades, etc., and the expenses shall be paid by the counties taking advantage of this article. (Rev., s. 1359; 1887, c. 355, s. 6.)

Art. 9A. District Prison Farm

sioners in said counties, as hereinafter provided, establish a district prison farm, to be located at some suitable place in the counties composing the district, location and purchase to be controlled by a board of trustees appointed by the county commissioners of the respective counties owning and controlling said district prison farm, each county to have one trustee. Where only two counties enter the district, the commissioners of the counties concerned shall jointly elect one additional trustee. (1931, c. 142, s. 1.)

§ 1364(c). Organization meeting; purchase of site; equipment; separation of races and sexes.—The board of trustees shall, as soon as possible, and not later than sixty days after appointment, meet and organize by electing a chairman and secretary. They shall proceed promptly with the purchase of a farm of suitable size, location and fertility, giving due consideration to sanitary surroundings and transportation facilities. They shall provide for the necessary stock, tools, and farm equipment, and shall cause to be erected suitable buildings for the housing, detention and keeping the prisoners assigned to said district farm, due regard being given to the separation of the sexes and races and such other plans for segregation as their judgment and existing conditions may suggest. (1931, c. 142, s. 3.)

§ 1364(e). Election of superintendent and employees; regulations for working prisoner. — The said board of trustees of said district prison farm shall elect a capable superintendent and such other employees as it may deem necessary for the efficient management of said farm and shall make rules and regulations for the working of all prisoners sentenced to said farm to the end that the said district prison farm shall be as near self-supporting as practicable. (1931, c. 142, s. 5.)

§ 1364(f). Meetings of trustees.—The board of trustees of said district prison farm shall meet at said farm at least twice each year for the transaction of such business as may come before them. They shall meet at other times on the call of the chairman or on a call by a majority of the board of trustees. (1931, c. 142, s. 6.)

§ 1364(g). Notification to boards of commissioners and courts of readiness of farm.—That as soon as said prison farm is purchased and the necessary building erected thereon and the farm equipped with stock, tools, etc., the board of trustees of said district prison farm shall notify the boards of commissioners of the several counties, and the said boards of commissioners, upon receipt of said notice, shall promptly notify each and every court in the several counties, including superior courts, recorders' courts and all other courts which are now operating or may hereafter be established in said counties that the prison farm is ready. (1931, c. 142, s. 7.)

§ 1364(h). Assignment of prisoners to work on farm.—From and after receipt of the information set out above, it shall be the duty of the judges, recorders and other presiding officers of the several courts in said counties, to assign all prisoners sentenced by them to the county jails or to the roads, to the said district prison farm. (1931, c. 142, s. 8.)

§ 1364(i). Bonds and notes for payment for farm; maximum levy.—The several counties of said district are hereby authorized to provide for the payment of their proportionate part of said farm and equipment by the sale of notes or bonds as provided in the County Fiscal Act and to provide for payment of said bonds and notes by the levy of such tax as may be necessary for said purpose: Provided, not more than a levy of ten cents on the one hundred dollars valuation shall be levied any one year in any county. (1931, c. 142, s. 9.)

§ 1364(j). Yearly report of operations.—The said board of trustees shall cause to be made a detailed report of the operations of said district prison farm each year not later than January tenth each year and shall send a copy of said report to the several boards of county commissioners. (1931, c. 142, s. 10.)

Art. 10. Houses of Correction

§ 1365. Commissioners may establish houses of correction.—The board of commissioners may, when they deem it necessary, establish within their respective counties one or more convenient institutions to be known as houses of correction, or, in the discretion of the board of commissioners, as training schools, municipal farms, or juvenile farms, with workshops and other suitable buildings for the safekeeping, correcting, governing, and employing of offenders legally committed thereto. They may also, to that end, procure machinery and material suitable for such employment in said institutions, or on the premises; and moreover attach thereto a farm or farms; and all lands purchased for the purposes aforesaid shall vest in the directors hereinafter provided for, and their successors in office. The said board also has power to make, from time to time, such rules and regulations as it may deem proper for the kind and mode of labor and the general management of the said institutions. (Rev., s. 1360; Code, s. 786; 1866, c. 35, s. 1; 1919, c. 273, s. 1.)

When Entitled to Discharge.—A convict is entitled to be discharged from imprisonment for the nonpayment of a fine and costs, upon taking the insolvent debtor's oath. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 2 S. E. 370.

Escape when Prisoner Illegally Committed.—It was error to quash an indictment against an officer for an escape upon the ground that the judgment against the prisoner committed to his charge was illegal. State v. Garrell, 82 N. C. 581.

§ 1366. Who must or may be committed to such institutions.—It shall be the duty of the judges of the criminal courts and other committing magistrates of such county or counties to sentence or commit thereto all youthful offenders of the age of sixteen years and under, convicted of any crime or misdemeanor whereof the punishment by statute prescribes a fine or sentence of imprisonment or working the roads. Said judges and committing magistrates may also sentence thereto any female prisoners and such other offenders convicted of misdemeanors who by reason of physical infirmities or mental deficiencies ought not to be imprisoned in the county jail or worked on the public roads. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the working at light labor of any partially disabled or infirm convict, or female prisoner, on or about any of the public works, buildings, or grounds in any such county, at and upon the request of the board of county commissioners, with the approval of the court or committing magistrate. (1919, c. 273, s. 1.)

As to hearing as to disposition of child, see section 5048.

§ 1367. Levy of taxes authorized; to be paid to manager.—The board of commissioners, in addition to the ordinary county taxes, shall also, at the time said taxes are laid, lay such tax as may be necessary to carry into effect this article, which shall be collected and paid to the manager at the same time as other county taxes are to be paid; for which, and such other funds as may come into his hands as manager, he shall be accountable; and he shall disburse the same under the authority of the directors. (Rev., s. 1361; Code, s. 790; 1866, c. 35, s. 5.)

§ 1368. Bonds may be issued.—The board of commissioners may, if deemed advisable by them, issue county bonds to raise money to establish the institutions herein provided for. (Rev., s. 1362; Code, s. 796; 1866, c. 35, s. 11.)

§ 1369. Governor to be notified of establishment.—When any institution is established in pursuance of this article, it is the duty of the chairman of the board of commissioners of the county wherein the same is established to certify the fact to the governor, who shall cause it to be noted in a book kept for that purpose. (Rev., s. 1363; Code, s. 797; 1866, c. 35, s. 12.)

§ 1370. Directors to be appointed; duties.—The board of commissioners shall annually appoint not less than five nor more than nine directors for each such institution hereunder established, whose duty it is to superintend and direct the manager hereinafter named in the discharge of his duties; to visit said houses at least once in every three months; to see that the laws, rules and regulations relating thereto are duly executed and enforced, and that the persons committed to his charge are properly cared for, and not abused or oppressed. The directors shall keep a journal of their proceedings, and publish annually an account of the receipts and expenditures. They shall further make a quarterly report to their respective county commissioners of the general condition of their charge, and of the receipts and expenditures of the institution. They shall also make such by-laws and regulations for the government thereof as shall be necessary, which shall be reported to, and approved by, the said commissioners. The directors shall be paid for the services rendered, by the county treasurer, each director first making it appear to the satisfaction of the board of county commissioners, by his oath, the character and extent of the services rendered for which he claims compensation; and such payment shall be made by the county treasurer out of any funds in his hands not otherwise appropriated. (Rev., s. 1364; Code, s. 787; 1866, c. 35, s. 2.)

§ 1371. Term of office of directors.—The directors shall continue in office until others are appointed; and if any vacancy happens among them, it shall be filled by the residue of the directors. (Rev., s. 1365; Code, s. 795; 1866, c. 35, s. 10.)

§ 1372. Manager to be appointed; bond; duties.—The board of commissioners shall appoint a manager for each house or establishment, who shall give a bond, with two or more solvent sureties, in such sum as may be required, payable to the state of North Carolina, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. He shall, hold his office during the pleasure of the board, and be at all times under the supervision of the directors; and in case of his misconduct, of which they shall be the sole judges, he may be forthwith removed by them and a successor appointed, who shall discharge the duties of the office until another manager is appointed by the board of commissioners. It is the duty of the manager to receive all persons sent to the house of correction, to keep them during the time of their sentence, and to employ and control them according to the rules and regulations established therefor. He shall have the direction and control over the subordinate officers, assistants and servants, who may be appointed by the directors. He shall make monthly reports to the directors of his management of the institution and his receipts and expenditures. (Rev., s. 1366; Code, s. 788; 1866, c. 35, s. 3.)

§ 1373. Manager to assign employment to inmates.—The manager shall assign to each person sent to such institution the kind of work in which such person is to be employed. (Rev., s. 1367; Code, s. 794; 1866, c. 35, s. 9.)

§ 1374. Compensation of officers.—The said board of commissioners shall direct what compensation the manager and such subordinate officers, assistants and servants, as shall be appointed, shall receive, and shall provide for the payment thereof. (Rev., s. 1368; Code, s. 789; 1866, c. 35, s. 4.)

§ 1375. Sheriff to convey persons committed.—When a person is sentenced to such institution he shall forthwith be committed by the court to the custody of the sheriff, to whom the clerk shall immediately furnish a certified copy of the sentence, in which it shall be stated (if the fact be so) that the offender is committed as a vagrant. The sheriff shall convey the offender to the institution, and deliver him to the manager with the certified copy aforesaid, and take the manager's receipt for the body; which receipt the sheriff shall return to the clerk of the board of commissioners, with his indorsement of the time when the offender was committed to him and delivered to the manager, and the clerk shall record the same in a book kept for that purpose, and file the original with the papers in the case. (Rev., s. 1369; Code, s. 793; 1866, c. 35, s. 8.)

§ 1376. Absconding offenders punished.—If any offender absconds, escapes, or departs from any such institution without license, the manager has power to pursue, retake and bring him back, and to require all necessary aid for that purpose; and when brought back, the manager may confine him to his work in such manner as he may judge necessary, or may put him in close confinement in the county jail or elsewhere, until he submits to the regulations of such institution; and for every escape each offender shall be held to labor in such institution for the term of one month in addition to the time for which he was first committed. (Rev., s. 1370; Code, s. 791; 1866, c. 35, s. 6; 1919, c. 273, s. 2.)

§ 1377. Release of vagrants.—If a person committed as a vagrant behaves well and reforms, he may, on the certificate of the manager, be released by the directors. But if otherwise committed, he may be released by the committing authority, upon the certificate of the manager and directors, upon such conditions as they may deem proper. (Rev., s. 1371; Code, s. 792; 1866, c. 35, s. 7.)

§ 1378. Suits in name of county.—All suits brought on behalf of the institution shall, unless it be otherwise prescribed, be brought in the name of the county, to the use of the directors of the institution, without designating such directors by name. (Rev., s. 1372; Code, s. 798; 1866, c. 35, s. 13.)

§ 1379. Counties may establish joint house of correction.—Any two or more counties, acting through their respective boards of commissioners, may jointly establish one or more convenient houses of correction, as is provided in the preceding sections, for the joint use of the counties so agreeing together; and the same may be established at such place or places, and be in all respects managed under such by-laws, rules and regulations as a majority of the general board of directors, to be appointed as hereinafter directed, shall determine. (Rev., s. 1373; Code, s. 799; 1866-7, c. 130, s. 1.)

§ 1380. Directors of joint house of correction.—The board of commissioners of each of the respective counties agreeing as aforesaid to the establishment of one or more houses of correction for use jointly with any other county or counties shall annually appoint not less than three nor more than five directors in behalf of their several counties, and the directors so appointed by each of such counties shall together constitute the general board of directors of any such joint establishment. (Rev., s. 1374; Code, s. 800; 1866-7, c. 130, s. 2; 1919, c. 273, s. 3.)

§ 1381. Directors to appoint manager; bond; term; duties.—Said general board of directors shall appoint a manager or superintendent for every such joint establishment, and such assistants and servants as they may deem necessary. The manager shall give bond with two or more able sureties, to be approved by said board, in such sum as may be required, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties. He shall hold his office during the pleasure of the general board of directors, and be, at all times, under their supervision; and of his misconduct they shall be the sole judges, and they may at any time remove him. He shall perform all such duties as may be prescribed by such general board of directors, and all such as may be incident to the office of manager by virtue of this chapter. (Rev., s. 1375; Code, s. 801; 1866-7, c. 130, s. 3.)

§ 1382. Compensation of manager and other officers.—The compensation of the manager and such subordinate officers, assistants and servants as may be appointed by the general board shall be fixed by said general board. (Rev., s. 1375; Code, s. 801; 1866-7, c. 130, s. 3.)

§§ 1382(a)-1382(i): Repealed by Acts 1925, c. 218.

Editor's Note.—Chapter 218 of the Laws of 1925 repealed Article 11, sections 1382(a)-1382(i), relating to the examination of county officers and officers by the State Auditor. These sections were all of chapter 236 of the Public Laws of 1921.

Art. 11. Consolidation, Annexation and Joint Administration of Counties

§ 1382(1). Contiguous counties may consolidate into one.—Any two or more counties which are contiguous, or which lie in a continuous boundary may, in the manner herein prescribed, consolidate so as to form a single county. Where any group of counties so situated desires to effect such consolidation, a uniform resolution to this effect, setting forth the name of the proposed new county, shall be adopted by the governing bodies thereof, which resolution shall call a special election to be held on a specified date which shall be the same in all of said counties but not less than sixty nor more than ninety days from the last date of the adoption of such resolution in any of said counties. Said resolution shall also specify what group of counties it is proposed to consolidate, the name of the new county thus to be formed, and the county seat thereof. The governing body of each of said counties shall cause said resolution to be printed in some newspaper published therein, once a week for a period of six weeks prior to the date of said election. (1933, c. 193, s. 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 213.

§ 1382(2). Election laws applicable.—The election thus called shall be held in each of said counties and shall be conducted pursuant to the general election laws governing elections for members of the general assembly. The registration books shall be kept open in each of said counties for a period of twenty consecutive days prior to said election, and notice of such registration shall be advertised and registrars appointed in the manner now prescribed by law governing elections for members of the general assembly. Citizens of said counties who are registered and are otherwise qualified to vote shall be entitled to vote in said election in their respective counties for the purpose of determining whether it is the will of such voters that the proposed consolidation be effected. For use in said election the county board of elections in each of said counties shall cause to be printed and provided at each polling place a sufficient number of ballots on which shall be printed the following:

☐ For Consolidation
☐ Against Consolidation

Place a cross (x) mark in the square preceding the proposition for which you desire to vote.

All such ballots shall have printed on the back thereof the facsimile of the signatures of the members of the county board of elections of the county in which they are being used, and none other than such official ballots shall be valid for use in said election. As soon as practicable the county board of elections in each of said counties shall certify the result of said election to the governing bodies of all of the counties in said group, and each governing body shall cause the complete results of said election to be spread of record upon their respective minutes. If it appear that a majority of those voting in each of said counties voted in favor of the proposed consolidation, then said consolidation shall be declared to be in effect, and thereupon, the several counties shall stand abolished except as hereinafter provided, and the new county thus created shall for all purposes be constituted one of the counties of this state with all the rights, powers, and functions incident thereto under the general laws. If it appear that a majority in any one of said counties voted against the proposed consolidation, then said consolidation shall be declared to have failed for all purposes. (1933, c. 193, s. 2.)

§ 1382(3). New county board of elections.—In case such consolidation be effected, the county boards of elections of the counties thus consolidated, acting together as one board, shall for the time being serve as a temporary county board of elections for the new county thus created, until the expiration of the terms for which they were appointed by the state board of elections. Thereafter the state board of elections shall appoint for such new county a county board of elections consisting of three members, in the manner and for the term now prescribed by law. (1933, c. 193, s. 3.)

§ 1382(4). Special election for new county officers.—In case such consolidation be effected, then said temporary county board of elections shall immediately call and shall hold a special election in such new county, on a date not less than forty-five nor more than sixty days after the date on which said consolidation was voted into effect, for the purpose of electing for said new county all constitutional and other county and township officers, except justices of the peace, as now provided by law for counties throughout the state, including a board of county commissioners consisting of five members. No elections shall be held to fill any office theretofore existing in one or more of the group of counties thus consolidated if such office did not exist in each of said counties, but all of such offices peculiar to only a part of the counties brought into said consolidation shall be deemed abolished in respect to the new county. All constitutional county and township offices, all offices created for counties and townships by general laws, and all other offices in the group of counties thus consolidated, provided they existed in each of said counties, are hereby created for the new county effected by such consolidation, with the same rights, powers, duties and functions pertaining to such offices under the existing law. In order that elections by townships may be conducted, the various township lines and names as they existed before consolidation shall continue in effect, and townships of the several counties shall be deemed townships of the new county until thereafter altered in the manner prescribed by law. (1933, c. 193, s. 4.)

§ 1382(5). Term of new officers; salaries.—All officers elected for the new county at said special election shall hold office until the next general election at which time their successors shall be elected for the regular term prescribed by law. The salaries of all officers elected for the new county at said special election shall be the same as those now fixed by law for such offices. In case the salaries of any officers in the counties thus consolidated were not uniform, then any officer elected for the new county at such special election shall be entitled to a salary equal to the highest salary paid for that particular office in any of said counties before such consolidation was effected. (1933, c. 193, s. 5.)

§ 1382(6). Retention of old officers till qualification of new.—Notwithstanding such consolidation is voted upon favorably, all the existing officers in each of said counties shall continue to function as theretofore and shall have full authority to carry on the regular business of their respective counties, receiving their regular compensation therefor, until the officers for said new county shall have been elected and are qualified, as provided in section 4 hereof; and pending said election and the organization of the government of the new county, the several counties thus consolidated shall, for the purpose of carrying on their regular business, continue to exist and to function as separate county governments as fully as if said consolidation had never been voted upon. As soon as the officers for said new county are elected and qualified, then all public offices in the separate counties thus consolidated shall stand abolished and said separate counties shall stand dissolved and shall cease to exist for any and all purposes. (1933, c. 193, s. 6.)

§ 1382(7). Powers and duties of new officers.—All officers elected for the new county shall become vested with all the rights, powers, duties, and functions which pertained to their respective offices in any one of the counties thus consolidated. It shall be the duty of all public officers theretofore serving in each of said counties forthwith to surrender and turn over to the corresponding officers of the new county all books, records, funds, and other property held by them in their respective offices. Said new county shall become vested with title to all property of every kind and character, real, personal and mixed, theretofore belonging to each of said counties and shall have full power to collect and disburse any and all taxes, penalties, and other charges which had been assessed by or had become due to said counties prior to such consolidation. (1933, c. 193, s. 7.)

§ 1382(8). Transfer of books, records, etc.—All records, papers, files, funds, and the like held by the clerks of courts in any of said counties shall forthwith be turned over to corresponding officials in the new county, who shall docket all suits and proceedings in order that the same may be carried on under the regular legal procedure. Wherever counties thus consolidated lie in different judicial districts, the new county thus established shall become a part of that judicial district in which the larger portion of its territory lies. (1933, c. 193, s. 8.)

§ 1382(9). Liability for bonded indebtedness.—Any such new county thus established shall be liable for all of the bonded and other indebtedness of the separate counties so consolidated, and any and all rights which might have been enforced against any of said counties may be enforced against said new county as fully as though the proceeding were against the county originally liable. (1933, c. 193, s. 9.)

§ 1382(10). Justices of the peace and constables.—All justices of the peace and constables holding office at the time of such consolidation shall continue to serve as such in and for the new county thus established until the expiration of the terms for which they were elected or appointed, at which time, justices of the peace and constables may be elected and appointed for said new county in the manner now provided by law. Such consolidation shall in no wise effect the validity of any proceeding pending in the court of any justice of the peace in said counties. (1933, c. 193, s. 10.)

§ 1382(11). Representation in general assembly.—In the event such consolidation be thus effected, the consolidated county thereafter shall be entitled to the same representation in the house of representatives theretofore had by the several counties so consolidated until the next re-apportionment of the membership of the house of representatives by the general assembly. Nor shall such consolidation affect the existing lines of state senatorial or congressional districts or the representation therein. (1933, c. 193, s. 10½.)

§ 1382(12). Merging of one contiguous county with another authorized.—Wherever two counties are contiguous, and it is their mutual desire that one of said counties shall be annexed to and merged in the other, such annexation may be effected in the manner herein prescribed. The governing body of each of said counties shall adopt a uniform resolution setting forth the willingness of one of said counties to become annexed to and merged in the other pursuant to the authority of this act. Said resolution shall also call for a special election to be held on a specified date which shall be the same in both counties but not less than sixty nor more than ninety days from the last date on which said resolution was adopted in either of said counties. The governing body of each of said counties shall cause said resolution to be printed in some newspaper published therein once a week for a period of six weeks prior to the date of said election. (1933, c. 194, s. 1.)

The proceeding for annexation is the same as in consolidation, but when it is complete, the county annexed ceases to exist and becomes a part of the other county. The liability of the annexing county for the indebtedness of the annexed county is to be determined in the beginning, when the plan of annexation is submitted. 11 N. C. Law Rev., 213.

§ 1382(13). Election laws applicable. — The election thus called shall be held in each of said counties and shall be conducted pursuant to the general election laws governing elections for members of the general assembly. The registration books shall be kept open in each of said counties for a period of twenty consecutive days prior to said election, and notice of such registration shall be advertised and registrars appointed, in the manner now prescribed by law governing elections for members of the general assembly. Citizens of said counties who are registered and are otherwise qualified to vote shall be entitled to vote in said election in their respective counties for the purpose of determining whether it is the will of such voters that the proposed annexation be effected. For use in said election the county board of elections in each of said counties shall cause to be printed and provided at each polling place a sufficient number of ballots on which shall be printed the following:

☐ For Annexation
☐ Against Annexation

Place a cross (x) mark in the square preceding the proposition for which you desire to vote.

All such ballots shall have printed on the back thereof the facsimile of the signatures of the members of the county board of elections of the county in which they are being used, and none other than such official ballots shall be valid for use in said election. As soon as practicable the county board of elections in each of said counties shall certify the results of said election to the governing body of both counties, and thereupon, the governing body of each county shall cause the results of the said election in both counties to be spread of record upon their respective minutes. If it appear that a majority of those voting in each of said counties voted in favor of the proposed annexation, then said annexation shall be declared to be in effect. If it appear that a majority of those voting in either of said counties voted against the proposed annexation, then said annexation shall be declared to have failed for all purposes. (1933, c. 194, s. 2.)

§ 1382(14). Dissolution of county merged. — In the event such annexation shall be voted upon favorably in each of said counties, then the county which was voted to be annexed to the other shall thereupon stand dissolved and abolished, and its territory thereby shall be transferred to and for all purposes shall become a part of the annexing county, and townships of the annexed county shall be deemed townships of the annexing county un-

§ 1382(15). Abolition of offices in merged county; transfer of books, records, etc. — In the event such annexation be thus effected, all public offices except those of justice of the peace and constable, in the county so annexed, shall stand abolished, and it shall be the duty of those who held such offices before annexation to turn over to the corresponding officers of the annexing county all books, records, funds, and other property theretofore held by them in their official capacity, and said corresponding officers of the annexing county shall be vested with all the rights of said offices thus abolished, and shall be entitled to the custody and control of all books, records, funds, and other property formerly held by the incumbents of such abolished offices. (1933, c. 194, s. 4.)

§ 1382(16). Court records transferred; justices of the peace and constables hold over.—In the event such annexation be thus effected, all records, papers, files, funds, and the like held by clerks of courts in the annexed county shall forthwith be turned over to corresponding clerks in the annexing county, who shall docket all suits and proceedings in order that the same may be carried on under the regular legal procedure. All justices of the peace and constables holding office in the annexed county at the time of such annexation shall continue to serve as justices of the peace and constables of the annexing county in and for the new township, until the expiration of the terms for which they were elected or appointed, in as full a measure as if such annexation had not occurred, and the validity of proceedings pending before such justices of the peace at the time of annexation shall in no wise be affected thereby. Upon the expiration of their terms, justices of the peace and constables shall be elected or appointed in such annexed territory in the manner prescribed by law. Any other officers provided by the general law for a township shall be elected in the new territory at the next general election following such annexation. (1933, c. 194, s. 5.)

§ 1382(17). Rights of annexing county.—In the event such annexation be thus effected, the annexing county shall forthwith:

(a) Become vested with title to all property of every kind and character, real, personal and mixed, theretofore belonging to the annexed county, and shall have full power to collect and disburse any and all taxes, penalties and other charges which had been assessed by or had become due to the annexed county prior to such annexation. Said annexing county shall also be liable for all bonded and other indebtedness of the annexed county, and any and all rights which might have been enforced against said annexed county may be enforced against the annexing county as fully as though the proceeding had been against the county thus annexed;

(b) Said annexing county shall treat said annexed county as a township or division of said annexing county, and said annexing county shall forthwith be vested with title to all property of every kind and character, real, personal and mixed, belonging to said annexed county, and have full power to collect any and all taxes, penalties and other charges which have been assessed by or become due to the annexed county prior to the annexation, and shall disburse the same for the payment of obligations of said annexed county; and the bonded indebtedness of said annexed county shall be a charge only on the property of the township or division of said annexing county which was comprised in the annexed county, and taxes for the payment of same shall be levied only on property within said township or division. And the property in said township or division constituting the property in the annexed county shall not be liable for any of the bonded or other indebtedness of the county annexing it, existing prior to said annexation, and no taxes shall be levied on the property of said township for the payment of same. (1933, c. 194, s. 6.)

§ 1382(18). Plan of government.—At the time of entering the resolutions as set out in section 1382(12), the counties in said resolution shall specifically provide whether plan A or plan B, as set out in section 1382(17) shall govern the two counties as to the bonded indebtedness. (1933, c. 194, s. 7.)

§ 1382(19). Membership in general assembly.—In the event such annexation be thus effected, the annexing county thereafter shall be entitled to the same representation in the house of representatives theretofore had by the annexed and annexing counties until the next reapportionment of the membership of the house of representatives by the general assembly. Nor shall such annexation affect the existing lines of state senatorial or congressional districts or the representation therein. (1933, c. 194, s. 7½.)

§ 1382(20). Joint administrative functions of contiguous counties.—Any two or more counties which are contiguous or which lie in a continuous boundary are authorized, whenever it is deemed for their best interests, to enter into written agreements for the joint performance of any and all similar administrative functions and activities of their local governments through consolidated agencies, or by means of institutions or buildings jointly constructed, owned and operated.

Such written agreement shall set forth what functions or activities of local government shall thus be jointly carried on, and shall specify definitely the manner in which the expenses thereof shall be apportioned and how any fees or revenue derived therefrom shall be apportioned. Upon such agreement being ratified by the governing bodies of the counties subscribing thereto, it shall be spread upon their respective minutes.

Whenever any such agreement has been entered into, then the consolidated agency or institution set up to function jointly for the counties which are parties thereto, shall be vested with all the powers, rights, duties and functions theretofore existing by law in the separate agencies so consolidated.

No such agreement shall be entered into for a period of more than two years from the date thereof, but such agreements may be renewed for a period not exceeding two years at any one time.

In the same manner and subject to the same provisions as herein set out, any municipality may enter into such an agreement with the county in which it is situated, or may join with other municipalities in the same county in making such an agreement with said county, to the end that the functions of local government may, as far as practicable, be consolidated, provided this section shall not apply to Guilford county or the municipalities in said county.

It is the purpose of this section to bring about efficiency and economy in local government through a consolidation of administrative agencies thereof, and to effectuate this purpose this section shall be liberally construed. (1933, c. 195, s. 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 213, for a brief summary of this section.

COUNTY SURVEYOR

§ 1383. Election and term of office.—There shall be elected in each county, by the qualified voters thereof, as provided for the election of members of the general assembly, a county surveyor, who shall hold office for the term of two years. Const., Art. 7, s. 1; Rev., s. 4296.)

A surveyor shall give bond and security for the faithful discharge of his duties. Avery v. Walker, 8 N. C. 140, 160.

§ 1385. May appoint deputies.—Every surveyor may appoint deputies, who shall, previous to entering on the duties of their office, be qualified in a similar manner with the surveyor; and the surveyor making such appointment shall be liable for the conduct of such deputies, as for his own conduct in office. (Rev., s. 1720; Code, s. 2763; R. C., c. 42, s. 6; 1779, c. 140, s. 5.)

A deputy surveyor cannot survey his own land. Avery v. Walker, 8 N. C. 140, 160.

Deputies Must Take Oath. — Surveyors are authorized to appoint deputies; but, before entering on the duties of office, they also must take an oath of office. Avery v. Walker, 8 N. C. 140, 160.

The Act. 1771, ch. 1 declares, that no surveys shall be made without chain-carriers, who shall actually measure the land surveyed, and shall be sworn to measure justly and truly, and to deliver a true account thereof to the surveyor. Avery v. Walker, 8 N. C. 140, 160.

§ 1386. Power to administer oaths.—The county surveyors of the several counties are empowered to administer oaths to all such persons as are required by law to be sworn in making partition of real estate, in laying off widows' dower, in establishing boundaries and in surveying vacant lands under warrants. (Rev., s. 2361; Code, s. 3314; 1881, c. 144.)

The surveyor is authorized to administer the required oath to his deputies. Avery v. Walker, 8 N. C. 140, 160.

CHAPTER 26

COUNTY TREASURER

§ 1387. Election of county treasurer.—In each county there shall be elected biennially by the qualified voters thereof, as provided for the election of members of the general assembly, a treasurer. (Rev., s. 1394; Const., Art. VII, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to power to abolish officer of treasurer, see sec. 1389; as to sheriff acting as treasurer, see sec. 1392; as to treasurer's bond, see sec. 1388; as to duties of treasurer, see sec. 1393.

Editor's Note. — The Legislature in 1875, under authority conferred by section fourteen of Article VII, of the Constitution of 1868, amended sec. 1, of the said section VII, by providing that the boards of justices of the peace, of the several counties, might abolish the office of the county treasurer at will. The Code of 1883, sec. 768, conferred a like power upon the said boards of justices. When the justices chose to abolish the office, the duties and liabilities attaching thereunto devolved upon the sheriff, who became ex officio county treasurer. This was carried forward as sec. 1395 of the Revisal of 1905. However, the potential evil of making the vital and important office of county treasurer a plaything, dependent for its very life upon the whim and fancy of the several boards of justices, who must, by their very nature, react immediately to every manifestation of local prejudice and passion, is quite obvious to the observer. To remove and abolish a situation so pregnant with evil possibilities, and to insure stability to the office of county treasurer, the Legislature, by the Laws of 1919, ch. 141, repealed the provision empowering the justice to abolish the office.

The treasurer is a ministerial officer. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 179, 47 S. E. 397.

The term of office of the county treasurer is two years. State v. McKee, 65 N. C. 257.

When Commissioners Fill Vacancy. — Upon the restoration of the office of county treasurer, if there is no person to fill the office at the time of its restoration, the vacancy may be filled, until next regular election by the county commissioners. Rhodes v. Hampton, 101 N. C. 629, 8 S. E. 219.

Term of Appointee. — The term of office of a treasurer appointed by the board of commissioners in a county to fill a vacancy is only that of the unoccupied term of his predecessor. State v. McKee, 65 N. C. 257.

When Election a Nullity. — The election of a person to the office of county treasurer, which has been abolished, or when there is no vacancy, is a nullity. Rhodes v. Hampton, 101 N. C. 629, 8 S. E. 219.

§ 1388. Bond; penalty; when renewed.—The county treasurer, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall give bond with three or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the board of commissioners, payable to the state, conditioned that he will faithfully execute the duties of his office, and pay according to law, and on the warrant of the chairman of the board of commissioners, all moneys which shall come into his hands as treasurer, and render a just and true account thereof to the board when required by law or by the board of commissioners. The penalty of his bond shall be a sum not exceeding the amount of the county and local taxes assessed during the previous year, and the board of commissioners at any time, by an order, may require him to renew, increase or strengthen his bond. A failure to do so within ten days after the service of such an order shall vacate his office, and the board shall appoint a successor: Provided, the board of commissioners may fix the bond of the treasurer of Forsyth county at such sum as they may deem best, not less than twenty thousand dollars, and may increase it at any time; and in Craven county the bond of the treasurer shall be equal to the county funds during the preceding year, but not to exceed forty thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 297; Code, s. 766; 1868-9, c. 157, s. 4; 1895, c. 270, s. 2; 1899, c. 132; 1899, c. 207, s. 4; 1903, c. 12, s. 2; 1901, c. 536; 1899, c. 54, s. 52.)

Time to File Bond.—It was the duty of a county treasurer elected in August, 1878, to appear before the board of county commissioners on the first Monday in the month next succeeding his election and file his official bond; and on his failure to do so, it was competent for the board of commissioners to declare the office vacant and fill it. Kilburn v. Latham, 81 N. C. 312.

Settlement of Retiring Treasurer Does Not Discharge Bond. — A settlement had between a county and its outgoing treasurer, does not operate as a discharge of liability upon his bond; nor is it conclusive evidence of a proper accounting, but is open to proof that a mistake was made. Commissioners v. MacRae, 89 N. C. 95.

Actual Payment of Funds Alone Discharges Bond.—The actual payment of the funds remaining in a treasurer's hands will alone relieve the bond from liability, and it is his duty to know to what fund the money in hand belonged. Commissioners v. MacRae, 89 N. C. 95.

Demand Unnecessary.—Where the county treasurer collects and retains county moneys or fails to pay over to his successor, no demand is necessary before suit is brought. Commissioners v. Magnin, 86 N. C. 286.

Proper Parties Relator.—The commissioners of a county are proper parties relator to sue upon the official bond of a county treasurer to recover county school funds. Commissioners v. Magnin, 86 N. C. 286, approving Commissioners v. Magnin, 78 N. C. 181.

Limitation of Actions upon Bonds. — An action upon the official bonds of a county treasurer may be brought within six years after a breach thereof; the statute does not begin to run from the date, but only from the breach of the bond. Commissioners v. McRae, 89 N. C. 95.

Bond as Treasurer of Board of Education.—The county treasurer is required, as treasurer of the board of education, to file a separate bond with different conditions from those embraced in that given in his capacity of county treasurer, and in case of any breach an action must be brought by the county board of education; whereas for any default in accounting for the county funds proper, he must be sued by the board of county commissioners. Koonce v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 192, 199, 10 S. E. 1038.

Protection of School Fund.—The bond of a county treasurer, conditioned "that whereas he has been appointed treasurer and become disburser of the school money, now therefore, if he shall well and truly disburse the money coming into his hands, under the requirements of law," etc., covers an illegal defalcation from the school fund. Commissioners v. Magnin, 86 N. C. 286.

Same—New Duty Not Covered by Bond.—The new statutory duty of being treasurer of the county board of education, requiring an additional and special bond, is not embraced by the bonds formerly required. State v. Bateman, 102 N. C. 52, 8 S. E. 882.

§ 1389. Local: Commissioners may abolish office and appoint bank.—In the counties of Bladen, Carteret, Chatham, Cherokee, Chowan, Craven, Edgecombe, Granville, Hyde, Madison, Mitchell, Montgomery, Martin, Moore, Onslow, Perquimans, Polk, Rowan, Stanly, Tyrrell, Transylvania, and Union, the board of county commissioners is hereby authorized and empowered, in its discretion, to abolish the office of county treasurer in the county; but the board shall, before abolishing the office of treasurer, pass a resolution to that effect at least sixty days before any primary or convention is held for the purpose of nominating county treasurer. When the office is so abolished, the board is authorized, in lieu of a county treasurer, to appoint one or more solvent banks or trust companies located in its county as financial agent for the county, which bank or trust company shall perform the duties now performed by the treasurer or the sheriff as ex officio treasurer of the county. Such bank or trust company shall not charge nor receive any compensation for its services, other than such advantages and benefit as may accrue from the deposit of the county funds in the regular course of banking, or such sum as may be agreed upon as compensation between said board of county commissioners of Transylvania county and Chatham county and such bank or banks as may be designated by said board of county commissioners. This alternative shall apply only to Chatham and Transylvania counties: Provided, in said county of Chatham the county commissioners of said county shall fix the compensation to be allowed said bank designated as said financial agent of said county which compensation shall not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars per annum and said bank is to furnish, without cost to the county, a good and sufficient bond as such financial agent.

The bank or trust company, appointed and acting as the financial agent of its county, shall be appointed for a term of two years, and shall be required to execute the same bonds for the safe keeping and proper accounting of such funds as may come into its possession and belonging to such county and for the faithful discharge of its duties, as are now required by law of county treasurers. (1913, c. 142; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 35; P. L. 1915, cc. 67, 268, 458, 481; 1919, c. 48; 1925, c. 46; 1933, c. 63.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by the Laws of 1925, c. 46, by inserting the word "Transylvania" after the word "Tyrrell" and before the word "and" in line five of the said section. The said Act also amended the said section by placing a comma after the word "banking" near the end of line twenty-four of said section, and adding the following: "Or such sum as may be agreed upon as compensation between said board of county commissioners of Transylvania county and such bank or banks as may be designated by said board of county commissioners."

It might be interesting here to raise the question as to whether the bonds to be executed by the appointee bank, under this section, are the "official bonds of public officers," within the meaning of subsection 1, section 439. If they are, the limitation of actions upon them is six years, if not, the limitation will be something different. The question here but raises the point as to whether the bank designated by the commissioners, under the section, becomes ipso facto, a public officer, i. e. county treasurer. Or is it not more in accord with the express provisions of the section, to say that the office is totally abolished, and that the bank merely performs the functions of the said office? This seems to be the legislative intent.

To go back to our first question: If the office of county treasurer has been totally abolished, and the bank, instead of being a public officer, i. e. county treasurer, merely exercises the functions of the said office, how can the bonds executed by it come under the "official bonds of public officers"? Again, we must look to the legislative intent as our guiding star. The section expressly provides that the bonds executed by the bank shall be "the same bonds * * * * * as are now required by law of county treasurers." This would lead us to conclude that, while the bank is not a public officer, yet, since it performs the functions of a public office, the bonds given by it, to insure the faithful performance of a public trust, shall be deemed "the official bonds of public officers."

Public Laws 1933, c. 63, make the alternative applicable in Chatham County and inserts the proviso relative to that county. Section 2 of c. 63 validates the acts of the Bank of Pittsboro as financial agent for the County of Chatham.

Constitutionality. — A mandamus proceeding was brought to compel an ex-treasurer, whose office had been abolished, under the provision of this section, to pay over county funds in his possession to his successor the bank, designated by the commissioners. It was objected that the section was unconstitutional as an unwarranted delegation of legislative power. The court held, however, the section to be constitutional and valid. Tyrrell County v. Holloway, 182 N. C. 64, 108 S. E. 377. A wide discretionary power of local self-government may be vested in municipal subdivisions of the State, without infringement upon the familiar rule that the substance of legislative power cannot be delegated. Thompson v. Floyd, 47 N. C. 313; Manly v. Raleigh, 57 N. C.

370, 377; Stoutenburgh v. Hennick, 129 U. S. 141, 1 N. C. Law Rev. 53.

Abolishing Office. — The section provides that the board of county commissioners of certain specified counties may abolish the office of county treasurer by resolution to that effect passed at least sixty days before a primary or convention held for the purpose of nominating candidates for said office, and when so abolished the board of commissioners may appoint one or more solvent banks or trust companies to perform the duties of treasurer, or sheriff acting as ex officio treasurer of the county, such designated depositaries not being allowed to charge or receive anything in compensation other than the advantages accruing to them from such a deposit. And said banks and trust companies, termed financial agents, are also required to give bond for safe keeping and proper disbursement of said funds, and for faithful performance of their duties concerning them. Tyrrell County v. Holloway, 182 N. C. 64, 67, 108 S. E. 337.

Mandamus against Treasurer. — Where, under the power of a valid statute, C. S., 1389, the county commissioners have abolished the office of county treasurer, and have vested the duties of the office in certain banks and trust companies which have qualified thereunder, mandamus will lie to compel the treasurer, seeking to hold over and denying the validity of the statute, to turn over to the proper party the moneys that he has received and attempts to hold by virtue of his former office. Tyrrell County v. Holloway, 182 N. C. 64, 108 S. E. 337.

Consideration Moving to Bank. — The consideration moving to a bank when its officers without individual benefit become sureties on its indemnity bond given for a county deposit, under the requirements of the statute, is the deposit so obtained. Page Trust Co. v. Rose, 192 N. C. 673, 135 S. E. 795.

Officers of Bank as Sureties. — Where the officers of the bank acting without personal advantage or gain sign as sureties on an obligation of the bank executed to the commissioners of a county in the manner and form required by the section to secure a deposit for county and road purposes, the transaction is valid when unaffected by fraud, and binding upon the receiver afterwards appointed by the court for the bank, subsequently becoming insolvent. Page Trust Co. v. Rose, 192 N. C. 673, 135 S. E. 795.

Same—Directors Need Not Authorize. — Where the officers of a bank acting in good faith and without personal profit or advantage execute a bond of indemnity for the deposit of county funds, it is not required for the validity of the bond that the directors authorize the same by a resolution duly passed in order to protect the rights of the sureties, officers of the bank. Page Trust Co. v. Rose, 192 N. C. 673, 135 S. E. 795.

Sureties Entitled to Collateral. — The sureties on an indemnity bond, given by a bank to secure a deposit of county funds required by the section, are entitled to the collateral given them by the bank for their protection in becoming sureties, and is available to them in preference to that of a receiver of the bank, thereafter appointed by the court, claiming the proceeds for distribution among the general creditors of the bank, when the transaction has been made by the sureties in good faith and without personal advantage to them. Page Trust Co. v. Rose, 192 N. C. 673, 135 S. E. 795.

Bank Entitled to All County Funds. — Under Public Local Laws 1917, ch. 46, sec. 1, for Robeson County, the bank selected by the commissioners, upon the abolishment of the office of county treasurer, is entitled to receive all county moneys, including those derived from assessments of a drainage district. Commissioners v. Lewis, 174 N. C. 528, 94 S. E. 8.

Changing Terms of Appointment as Impairing Obligation of Contracts.—Where a bank has been appointed under this section to perform the duties of treasurer of Edgecombe County, and receive as compensation the profits of the moneys deposited by the county arising in the course of the banks business as such, the arrangement is not a contract contemplated by the provision of the Constitution prohibiting the impairment of the obligations of a contract, but the obligations arise by statutory provisions relating to public matters within legislative control. The county may at a later date, under authority of § 1334(70) require the bank to give bonds for the protection of the public funds, or to pay interest on the daily average balance. Farmers Banking, etc., Co. v. County, 196 N. C. 48, 144 S. E. 519. See note under § 1393.

§ 1389(a). Local: Treasurer-tax collector of Mitchell County. — There is hereby created the office of Treasurer-Tax Collector of Mitchell County, upon which office shall be imposed all duties relating to the office of county treasurer as now provided by law. From and after the first Monday of October, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, all duties and powers relating to the collection of taxes shall be removed from the office of sheriff and shall be imposed and conferred upon the office of Treasurer-Tax Collector, and beginning on the first Monday of October, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, the Treasurer-Tax Collector shall receive a salary at the rate of fifteen hundred ($1500) dollars per annum, payable in equal monthly installments out of the general fund of the county. The Treasurer-Tax Collector shall furnish good and sufficient bond in such amount as may be approved by the board of county commissioners for the faithful performance of his duties and for the proper accounting of all money received by him by virtue of his office, and the premiums on such bonds furnished by said Treasurer-Tax Collector shall be paid out of the general fund of the county. (1931, c. 53, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 further provides in §§ 3, 4 and 5: If said office of Treasurer-Tax Collector should become vacant before the general election of one thousand nine hundred thirty-two, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment of some person by the board of county commissioners. At the primary to be held in Mitchell County in the year of one thousand nine hundred thirty-two, and at each regular primary thereafter, there shall be nominated by each political party a candidate for Treasurer-Tax Collector of Mitchell County. At the general election in the year of one thousand nine hundred thirty-two, there shall be elected a Treasurer-Tax Collector for Mitchell County in accordance with the same rules and regulations governing the election of other county officers; said Treasurer-Tax Collector to be voted for by the voters of the county at large.

The Act also provides in § 7: "Beginning with the levy of the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, there shall be computed a commission at the rate of one (1%) per cent of the collections of the first fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars of said taxes and a commission at the rate of three (3%) per cent on the remainder of the collections of said taxes, and such commissions shall be placed to the credit of the general fund of the county."

§ 1390. Office includes person acting as treasurer.—The office of county treasurer shall always be construed to refer to, and include, the person authorized by law to perform the duties of that office in any county, if there is no county treasurer therein. (Rev., s. 1396; Code, s. 770.)

As to the county treasurer as treasurer of the county school fund, see sec. 5444-5456.

Sheriff Becomes Treasurer of Board of Education.—In Koonce v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 192, 198, 10 S. E. 1038, Avery, J., said: "The plaintiff was ex-officio treasurer of the county by virtue of his election to the office of sheriff, and became, in the same way, treasurer of the county board of education."

§ 1392. Sheriff acting as treasurer, bond liable.—In counties where the office of county treasurer is abolished, and where the sheriff is authorized to perform the duties of county treasurer, the bond he gives as sheriff shall be construed to include his liabilities and duties as such county treasurer, and may be increased to such amount by the board of commissioners as may be deemed necessary to cover the trust funds coming to his hands. (Rev., s. 1397; Code, s. 769; 1879, c. 202.)

approve bonds, see subsection 12 of section 1297, and section 3931; as to duty of commissioners when bond insufficient, see subsection 12 of section 1297, and section 3932.

§ 1393. Duties of county treasurer.—It is the duty of the treasurer—

1. To keep county moneys. To receive all moneys belonging to the county, and all other moneys by law directed to be paid to him; to keep them separate and apart from his own affairs, and to apply them and render account of them as required by law.

2. To keep true accounts. To keep a true account of the receipts and expenditures of all such moneys, taking proper vouchers in every case in books provided for that purpose at the expense of the county; which said books shall at all times show the date, amount, and from whom he has received such moneys; the date, amount, and to whom he has paid out any of the said moneys; the total amount received and the total amount paid out during the current fiscal year for school purposes, for general county purposes, for jury fund, and for each special purpose, all separately kept, so that at all times his said books shall correctly and accurately show the condition of the said several accounts. His account of expenditure for general county purposes shall also show separately the amounts expended each year on account of the county home, indigent persons, jails, workhouses, courthouse, bridges, insolvent fees, courts, and such other special accounts as the board of commissioners of the county require, the total of said accounts being the aggregate amount expended during the fiscal year for general county purposes. He shall post at the courthouse door on the first Monday in each month a correct statement of such receipts and expenditures, showing the amount received, and from what source, and the amounts paid out, and to whom, and for what purpose, and the balance in his hands belonging to the county.

3. To call on county officers for funds in their hands. To call on the sheriff, or the clerk of the superior court, or other officer having county moneys in his hands, at least once in each month or oftener if necessary, to pay over to him, and to account for all such moneys.

4. To keep accounts of fines, etc. To enter in a book to be kept by him the exact amount of any fine, penalty or forfeiture paid over to him, giving the date of payment, the name of the clerk or other person so paying the same, the name of the party from whom such fine, penalty or forfeiture was collected, and in what case.

5. To exhibit to the board of commissioners his books and accounts as treasurer for examination. To exhibit his books and accounts and moneys once every three months, or oftener, if the board of commissioners of his county deem it necessary, to a committee to be composed of the chairman of the board of commissioners and one other person to be selected by a board of commissioners, who shall be an expert accountant. It is the duty of this committee to examine the books and accounts of his office, and to see that the accounts are correctly and properly kept, and to count the money in the hands of the treasurer, and to see that it corresponds with the amount shown by the books to be in his hands. At every such examination of the books and accounts of his office the county treasurer shall exhibit a full, perfect and itemized statement to said committee of the use he has made of every dollar of public funds in his hands since the last exhibition of his books to said committee; and if any part of said funds has been loaned out, this statement shall state to whom loaned and on what security and the amount of interest paid on said loan, and such interest shall be covered into the county treasury by the treasurer. This statement shall be sworn to and published in a county newspaper or at the courthouse door. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the county treasurer to lend any public funds.

If at any time there is a deficit in the amount of money in the hands of the treasurer, the committee shall so report to the board of commissioners, whose duty it is to institute proceedings in the superior court against said treasurer for violation of his official duties. (Rev., s. 1398; Code, ss. 96, 773; 1889, c. 242.)

Warrant on Specific Fund. — It is the duty of the county treasurer to pay a warrant drawn on a specific fund by the county commissioners. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 179, 47 S. E. 397.

Proceeds from Highway Bonds. — Where a county has issued bonds for the purpose of lending their proceeds to the State Highway Commission, to be used for the construction of certain highways within the county, and the county commissioners have such proceeds on hand, mandamus by the county treasurer will not lie for control of the funds as a part of the general county funds coming within her control, under the provisions of the statute. Lewis v. Commissioners, 192 N. C. 456, 135 S. E. 347.

Liability for Interest.—A local bank acting under a valid appointment to perform the duties of a county treasurer, as the fiscal agent of the county, is not required by subsection 3 of this section to pay interest on the deposits of county funds thus received by it, and the surety on its bond is not liable for the failure of the special depository to charge itself interest on the deposits except when the bank has loaned the funds out to third parties. Green County v. First Nat. Bank, 194 N. C. 436, 140 S. E. 38. See note under § 1389.

§ 1394. Treasurer not to speculate in county claims; penalty.—No county treasurer purchasing a claim against the county at less than its face value is entitled to charge the county a greater sum than what he actually paid for the same; and the board of commissioners may examine him as well as any other person on oath concerning the matter. Any county treasurer who is concerned or interested in any such speculation shall forfeit his office. (Rev., s. 1399; Code, s. 772; 1868-9, c. 157, s. 8.)

§ 1395. Treasurer administers property held in trust for county.—All real and personal property held by deed, will or otherwise by any person or officer in trust for any county, or for any charitable use to be administered in and for the benefit of such county or the citizens thereof, shall be transferred to and vest in the county treasurer, to be administered and applied by him under the direction of the board of commissioners, upon the same uses, purposes and trusts as declared by the grantor, testator or other person in the original deed, devise or other instrument of donation. (Rev., s. 1400; Code, s. 778; 1869-70, c. 85.)

§ 1396. Treasurer to take charge of county trust funds; additional bonds.—It is the duty of the county treasurer to take charge of all such trust funds and property; but he shall not do so without giving a bond payable to the state, in a penalty double the estimated value of said property or funds, with three or more sureties, each of whom is worth at least the amount of the penalty of the bond over and above all his liabilities and property exempt from execution, which bond shall be taken by the board of commissioners, and recorded and otherwise treated and dealt with as the official bond of the treasurer. (Rev., s. 1401; Code, s. 779; 1869-70, c. 85, s. 2.)

§ 1397. Commissioners to keep record of trust funds.—The board of commissioners shall keep a proper record of all such trust property or charitable funds, and when necessary shall institute proceedings to recover for the treasurer all such as may be unjustly withheld. (Rev., s. 1402; Code, s. 780; 1869-70, c. 85, s. 3.)

§ 1398. Treasurer to exhibit separate statement as to trust funds.—The county treasurer, whenever he is required to exhibit to the board of commissioners the financial condition of the county, shall exhibit also distinctly and separately the amount and condition of all such trust funds and property, how invested, secured, used, and other particulars concerning the same. (Rev., s. 1403; Code, s. 781; 1869-70, c. 85, s. 4.)

§ 1399. Treasurer to pay no claim unless audited.—It is unlawful for the county treasurer to pay a claim against the county, unless the same has been audited and allowed by the board of commissioners. (Rev., s. 1404; Code, s. 777; 1868, c. 19.)

As to duties of county treasurer, see section 1399.

Claims Audited and Allowed by Commissioners. — It is the treasurer's duty to pay claims audited and allowed by the commissioners. Jones v. Commissioners, 73 N. C. 182, 184; State v. Wilkerson, 98 N. C. 696, 701, 3 S. E. 683.

Warrant or Order Drawn by Commissioners. — An order or warrant drawn by the commissioners upon the county treasurer is the appropriate method of disbursing the public moneys. State v. Wilkerson, 98 N. C. 696, 701, 3 S. E. 683.

Cannot Refuse Claim Allowed by Commissioners. — It is not within the power or duty of the treasurer of the county to refuse to pay a county order issued by the board of commissioners, because he does not think it a just or lawful claim, or for any other reason, which has been passed upon by the board and within its power to act. Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 180, 47 S. E. 399.

§ 1400. Treasurer to deliver books, etc., to successor.—When the right of any county treasurer to his office expires, the books and papers belonging to his office, and all moneys in his hands by virtue of his office, shall, upon his oath, or, in case of his death, upon the oath of his personal representative, be delivered to his successor. (Rev., s. 1405; Code, s. 767; 1868-9, c. 157.)

Cross References. — As to action on treasurer's bonds, see sec. 1388; as to demand unnecessary, see annotations under sec. 1388.

A county treasurer going out of office is bound in contemplation of law to know what moneys he has on hand, and to what specified funds they belong, and to pay over all of the fund he has. Commissioners v. MacRae, 89 N. C. 95, 98.

§ 1401. Action on treasurer's bond to be by commissioners.—The board of commissioners shall bring an action on the treasurer's bond whenever they have knowledge or a reasonable belief of any breach of the bond. (Rev., s. 1406; Code, s. 771; 1868-9, c. 157.)

Cross References. — As to treasurer's bond, penalty, and renewal, see section 1388; as to limitation of actions on official bonds of public officers, see section 439, subsection one.

§ 1402. Officers failing to account to treasurer sued by commissioners.—In case of the failure or refusal of a sheriff, clerk, or other officer to account and pay over, when called on as directed in this article, the treasurer shall report the facts to the board of commissioners who may forthwith bring suit on the official bond of such delinquent officer, and the said board is also allowed to bring suit on the official bond of the clerk of the superior court of any adjoining county. (Rev., s. 1407; Code, s. 775; 1868-9, c. 157, s. 10.)

Cross References. — As to liability of treasurer upon his official bond, see section 1388; as to liability of sheriff upon his official bonds, see section 3930; as to liability of clerk upon his official bond, see section 928; as to liability of constable upon his official bond, see section 973; as to liability of register of deeds, see section 3545; as to actions on official bonds generally, see section 354; as to limitation of actions on official bonds, see section 439, subsection one; as to duty of county commissioners to approve official bonds of county officers, see section 1297, subsection 12.

Commissioners May, but Need Not, Necessarily, Bring Suit. — The section does not make it the imperative duty of the board of commissioners of the county to "bring suit on the official bond of the sheriff or other officer," it provides that they "may forthwith do so." It is then left to their sound discretion whether they will or not. There might be substantial reasons why they would not, and, they might be content to leave it to the county treasurer to bring suit, especially as he is the proper officer to do so. Hewlett v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263; Bray v. Barnard, 109 N. C. 44, 48, 13 S. E. 729.

Liable as Insurer. — It is settled in this State that the bond of a public officer is liable for money that comes into his hands as an insurer, and not merely for the exercise of good faith. Presson v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 12 S. E. 897; State v. Bateman, 102 N. C. 52, 8 S. E. 882, 11 Am. St., 708; State v. Smith, 95 N. C. 396; Havens v. Lathene, 75 N. C. 505; Commissioners v. Clarke, 73 N. C. 255, 257, and other cases therein cited. Bonds of administrators, executors, guardians, etc., only guarantee good faith. Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 7 S. E. 471; 9 Am. St., 17; Atkinson v. Whitehead, 66 N. C. 296; Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 397, 42 S. E. 849.

Taxpayer May Prosecute Suit. — A taxpayer has the right to prosecute a suit against the register of deeds of the county to enforce payment of taxes collected and wrongfully withheld by him when the county commissioners have refused to institute action to recover them; and when such right of action exists, usually appertaining to the exercise of the equitable jurisdiction of the courts, this jurisdiction is not necessarily withdrawn because the Legislature has provided a legal remedy, unless the statute itself shall so direct. Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 90 S. E. 694.

Same—Parties.—While a taxpayer, in his suit independent of the statute, should make the proper county officials parties to his action against a register of deeds for unlawfully withholding fees collected by him, so they may be heard on the question presented, and that the funds, if recovered, should be in proper custody or control, this matter affects the remedy, and may be cured by amendment. Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 90 S. E. 694.

Bonds Subject to Subsequent Legislation. — A learned author says: "It has been held that all laws enacted during the continuing contract of an official bond are also part of the contract, and that the obligors entered into the engagement in view of the possible and probable modification of their liability by the legislative branch of the government." Murfree on Official Bonds, section 193. And to the same effect is People v. Vilas, 36 N. Y. 458; also see Prarie v. Worth, 78 N. C. 159; State v. Bradshaw, 32 N. C. 229, 232; Daniel v. Grizzard, 117 N. C. 105, 106, 110, 23 S. E. 93.

COURTS

SUBCHAPTER I. SUPREME COURT

Art. 1. Organization and Terms

§ 1403. Number of justices.—The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. (Rev., s. 1532; Const., Art. 4, s. 6.)

Cross Reference. — For full treatment of the subject matter of this article, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 833, 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 537.

Historical. — "When first established, the court was composed of three justices, appointed by the general assembly to hold office during good behavior; and the justices themselves appointed one of their number as chief justice. By the Constitution of 1868 the number was increased to five, a chief justice and four associate justices, to be elected by popular vote, and to hold office for eight years and until their successors are qualified. By an amendment in 1875 the number was reduced to three, and in 1887 it was again increased to five, as the court is now constituted." 5 N. C. L. Rev. 5.

§ 1404. Election and term of office.—The justices of the supreme court shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state, as is provided for the election of members of the general assembly. They shall hold their offices for eight years. (Const., Art. 4, s. 21.)

See section 1403, and discussion thereunder.

§ 1405. Oath of office.—The justices, before they act as such, shall, before the governor or some judicial officer, take and subscribe the oaths appointed for the qualification of public officers, and also an oath of office, which shall be certified by the officer taking the same and delivered to the secretary of state, to be safely kept. (Rev., s. 1533; Code, s. 955; R. C., c. 33, s. 3; 1818, c. 963.)

§ 1406. Name of court; where records to be kept.—The court bears the name and style of The Supreme Court of North Carolina, and is a court of record; and the papers and records belonging to the clerk's office thereof shall be constantly kept within the city of Raleigh. (Rev., s. 1536; Code, s. 954; R. C., c. 33, s. 2; R. S., c. 33, s. 2; 1884, c. 660; 1805, c. 674; 1818, c. 962; 1828, c. 13.)

A Court of Record. — "The Supreme Court is a court of record, and the clerk who is appointed by the court for a term of eight years, is required to keep the records of the court in his office in Raleigh." See 5 N. C. Law Rev. 5.

Derived from Constitution. — The Supreme Court is established by, and derives its jurisdiction from, the constitution, and its judicial powers and jurisdiction so prescribed, as well as its methods of procedure, are not subject to legislative control. Rencher v. Anderson, 93 N. C. 105.

§ 1407. Quorum.—Three justices constitute a quorum for the transaction of the business of the court. (Rev., s. 1534; Code, s. 956; 1889, c. 230.)

The court means the three (now five) judges sitting together, consulting and advising one with the other, upon the question before them for judicial decision. State v. Lane, 26 N. C. 434, 435. Upon the death of one, the remaining judges have power and authority to hold court. Id.

§ 1408. Terms of court.—There shall be held at the seat of government of the state in each year two terms of the supreme court, commencing on the first Monday in February and the last Monday in August.

The court shall sit at each term until all the business on the docket shall be determined or continued on good cause shown. In case no one of the justices shall attend the term during the first week thereof, at the end of that time the court shall stand adjourned till the next term, and the causes on the docket be continued. (Rev., s. 1535, 1536; Code, ss. 953, 954; 1901, c. 660; 1887, c. 49; 1881, c. 178; R. C., c. 33, s. 2; R. S., c. 33, s. 2; 1804, c. 660; 1805, c. 674; 1818, c. 932; 1828, c. 13; 1842, c. 15; 1846, cc. 28, 29.)

Editor's Note. — Under the law as it existed prior to 1868, the court held three terms a year, two in Raleigh and one in Morganton. See 5 N. C. Law Rev. 6.

When the Court Has Adjourned. — When the Supreme Court has finished the business of any one term and adjourned, its jurisdiction of a case decided at that term ceases, and it cannot again acquire jurisdiction of it except by petition to rehear or by a new appeal. State v. Marsh, 134 N. C. 184, 197, 47 S. E. 6.

In Ruffin v. Harrison, 91 N. C. 398, it was said, "The court has no power to amend or modify the final decree, entered at the last term, upon an application like this. After final judgment the court cannot disturb it unless upon an application to rehear or for fraud, accident or mistake alleged in an independent action, or perhaps, in some cases a party might be relieved against a 'judgment, order or other proceeding taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect' within a year after the entry of the same..... This of course does not imply that the court has not power to correct the entry of its orders, judgments and decrees so as to make them conform to the truth or what the court did in granting them, or to set aside an irregular judgment in a proper case." State v. Marsh, 134 N. C. 184, 197, 47 S. E. 6.

Art. 2. Jurisdiction

§ 1409. Original jurisdiction.—The supreme court has original jurisdiction to hear claims against the state, but its decision shall be merely recommendatory; no process in the nature of execution shall issue thereon; they shall be reported to the next session of the general assembly for its action. (Rev., s. 1537; Const., Art. IV, s. 9.)

Editor's Note. — This section, conferring jurisdiction on the Supreme Court to render an opinion in cases wherein there are claims against the State, has for it a rather unique purpose. The principle underlying its enactment is the well established one that a sovereign state cannot be sued without its consent. Hithertofore it was questioned whether the court could lend its aid to the Legislature in disposing of important questions of law in cases to which the State was a party. Reynolds v. State, 64 N. C. 461. The realization of the necessity of having recourse to the advice of men who were experts in this particular field, and the extreme difficulty with which the Legislature, unaided, was confronted, coupled with the fact that persons who asserted that they held legal claims against the sovereign State might here find a tribunal before which they might have, in proper cases, the legality of their claims adjudicated, led to the passage of this section. However, the jurisdiction, hereby conferred, is not without its clean-cut limitations which will appear in the cases following.

Purpose. — The original jurisdiction was conferred upon the Supreme Court for the benefit only of such plaintiffs, and to be used only in such cases, as could not obtain a footing in the courts, by reason of the State's being a party against whom the claims were to be asserted. Bain v. State, 86 N. C. 49, 50.

Nature of Claim. — The claim against the State must be such as, against any other defendant, could be reduced to a judgment and enforced by an execution. Bain v. State, 86 N. C. 49, 50.

Same—Question of Law. — The Supreme Court has not original jurisdiction to hear claims against the State in cases in which no question of law is involved. Miller v. State, 134 N. C. 270, 271, 46 S. E. 514; Cowles v. State, 115 N. C. 173, 179, 20 S. E. 384.

This section is applicable only as to the matters of law involved upon facts agreed to, or made to appear, and the Supreme Court does not pass upon conflicting evidence to determine the facts at issue. Calkins Dredging Co. v. State, 191 N. C. 243, 131 S. E. 665; Reynolds v. State, 64 N. C. 461. The adjudication is of the legal validity of the claims. Baltzer v. State, 104 N. C. 265, 10 S. E. 153.

Court Cannot Enforce Judgments. — No power to enforce its judgment is given the court; its decisions are merely recommendatory to the Legislature, which may provide for the enforcement of the claims if it see proper to do so. Baltzer v. State, 104 N. C. 265, 10 S. E. 153.

The Supreme Court renders no judgment in a proceeding in which original jurisdiction is invoked under Const. art. 4, § 9, nor has it power to enforce its decision made in such proceeding process in nature of execution. Its decision is merely recommendatory. Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 291, 141 S. E. 733.

Recovery of Taxes.—When nonresident executors have failed to proceed in the Superior Court, under § 7979, to recover an amount they have paid as an inheritance tax to the State of North Carolina, the method by which the Legislature has authorized the State to be sued is exclusive, and the recommendatory original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court may not be invoked. Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 291, 141 S. E. 733.

Transmission to General Assembly. — Upon the decision of the Supreme Court in favor of the plaintiff upon a claim preferred against the State, the proper course is for the clerk to transmit the proceedings in the cause, together with the judgment of the court, to the Governor to be communicated by him to the General Assembly. Clements v. State, 77 N. C. 142; Horne v. State, 82 N. C. 382.

State May Plead Statute of Limitations. — In proceedings under this section the State has the right to plead the bar of the statute of limitations to prevent a recommendatory decision. Cowles v. State, 115 N. C. 173, 179, 20 S. E. 384. The court said: "It is not for us here to say whether or not there is a moral obligation resting upon the Commonwealth to pay the petitioner a certain sum of money, but whether, under the law that controls such a controversy, when waged between two citizens, the State is indebted to their petitioning citizen." Id.

Set-Off and Counterclaim. — A person indebted to the State, and used on such indebtedness cannot offer as a set-off or counterclaim its indebtedness of the State to him arising out of coupons of the State which are overdue, and which the State legally owns. Battle v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 406, 407. It is otherwise when the claim is in the nature of a payment or credit. Id. See also, Lindsay v. King, 23 N. C. 401.

§ 1410. Procedure to enforce claims against the state.—Any person having any claim against the state may file his complaint in the office of the clerk of the supreme court, setting forth the nature and grounds of his claim. He shall cause a copy of his complaint to be served on the governor, and therein request him to appear on behalf of the state and answer his claim. The copy shall be served at least twenty days before application for relief shall be made to the court. In case of an appearance for the state by the governor, or any other authorized officer, the pleadings and trial shall be conducted in such manner as the court shall direct. If an issue of fact shall be joined on the pleadings, the court shall transfer it to the superior court of some convenient county for trial by a jury, as other issues of fact are directed to be tried, and the judge of the court before whom the trial is had shall certify to the supreme court, at its next term, the verdict and the case, if any, made up and settled as prescribed in cases of appeal to the supreme court. If the state shall not appear in the action by any authorized officer, the court may make up issues and send them for trial, as aforesaid. The supreme court shall in all cases report the facts found, and their recommendation thereon, with the reasons thereof, to the general assembly at its next term. (Rev., s. 1538; Code, s. 948.)

See notes under § 1409, const., art. 4, § 9.

Editor's Note.—This section was first enacted by the General Assembly in 1868. Lacy v. State, 195 N. C. 284, 289, 141 S. E. 886.

In General. — In these proceedings the rights of the petitioner and the liability of the State are determined by the same laws that would govern those rights and that liability if the action were against an individual debtor. Cowles v. State, 115 N. C. 173, 179, 20 S. E. 384.

The Supreme Court, as a rule, will consider only such claims as present serious questions of law and will not take the burden of passing upon those claims which involve mainly issues or questions of fact, although in proper cases the Court may order that issues of fact be tried in the Superior Court, as provided in this section. Cohoon v. State, 201 N. C. 312, 314, 160 S. E. 183.

The recommendatory or original jurisdiction of the Court is confined to claims in which it is supposed that an opinion on an important question of law would be of aid to the General Assembly in determining the merits of a claim against the State. This is true notwithstanding the broad provision of this section that any person having any claim against the State may commence the proceeding by filing his complaint. Id.

The Supreme Court is given original jurisdiction to hear claims against the State, but its decisions are merely recommendatory, and no process in the nature of execution shall issue thereon. Id.

The procedure thus authorized is prescribed by this section, but this procedure must not be construed as exceeding the power conferred upon the Supreme Court by the organic law. Id.

Construction of Section.—Insofar as this section provides for and prescribes the procedure by which a claimant may invoke the original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, conferred by the Constitution, with respect to his claim against the State, it is valid, and enforceable in all respects; when, however, a proceeding has been duly instituted and filed in the Supreme Court, in accordance with the provisions of the statute, the procedure by which the Court will thereafter exercise its power to hear and decide upon the claim is not controlled by the statute. When it appears that an issue or question of law is presented which can be intelligently decided, without determining facts in issue, the Court will proceed to hear and decide such issue or question of law. When it appears that there is no issue or question of law involved no decision will be made and the proceeding will be dismissed. When, however, in order to decide an issue or question of law involved, the Court deems it best to have issues of fact first determined, the Court may or may not follow the provisions of the statute with respect to a trial by jury of such issues. The statute is at most, in this respect, directory. Lacey v. State, 195 N. C. 284, 290, 141 S. E. 886.

Ascertainment of Facts. — The facts are ascertained by reference to the clerk of the Supreme Court or by transferring the issue to a superior court for trial by jury, and when sufficiently informed of the facts the Supreme Court will declare the law. Bledsoe v. State, 64 N. C. 392; Clements v. State, 76 N. C. 199, 201.

The court cannot enforce its judgment, see notes of Baltzer v. State, 104 N. C. 265, 10 S. E. 153, under section 1409.

Duty of Clerk after Decision. — See note of Clements v. State, 77 N. C. 142, under section 1409.

Cited in Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 291, 292, 141 S. E. 733.

§ 1411. Appellate jurisdiction.—The supreme court has jurisdiction to review, upon appeal, any decision of the courts below, upon any matter of law or legal inference. And the jurisdiction of said court over "issues of fact" and "questions of fact" is the same exercised by it before the adoption of the constitution of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, and the court has the power to issue any remedial writs necessary to give it a general supervision and control over the proceedings of the inferior courts. (Rev., s. 1539; Const., Art. IV, s. 8.)

I. IN GENERAL.

See notes under Const. Art. 4, § 8.

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section are, in substance, quite similar to those contained in section 638. Practically the only distinguishing feature is that this section provides for the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over "issues of fact" and "questions of fact," making it the same as was exercised by the court prior to the adoption of the Constitution of one thousand eight hundred and sixty eight. It is thought more advisable and expedient to place the major annotations under section 638, to which reference is hereby made, and to confine the notes to this section to those cases bearing upon the last provision herein contained.

In General. — In our practice, both before and since the establishment of the Constitution of 1868, the Supreme Court has all the power which a court of errors had at common law. Rush v. Steamboat Co., 68 N. C. 72.

Ruling on Question in Lower Court Essential. — The appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is limited to the correction of errors in the rulings below, and when there has been no ruling thereon below, the court cannot pass upon a question presented by the record. Tyson v. Tyson, 100 N. C. 360, 366, 6 S. E. 707.

Same—Exceptions to Referee's Report. — It is required of the trial judge to review and pass upon exceptions to a report of a referee as to the facts found and the conclusions of law thereon, and a pro forma judgment entered by him for any reason cannot be reviewed by the Supreme Court on appeal under this section for it is only decisions of the lower courts which may thus be considered. Overman v. Lanier, 156 N. C. 537, 72 S. E. 575.

An Appeal Essential. — The Supreme Court being strictly an appellate court, except as to claims against the State, its jurisdiction is acquired only by reason of the appeal. James v. Western, etc., R. R., 123 N. C. 299, 301, 31 S. E. 707.

Record Controlling. — On appeal, the record controls as to facts stated therein. Southerland v. Brown, 176 N. C. 187, 96 S. E. 946; Thompson v. Williams, 175 N. C. 696, 95 S. E. 100.

In case of conflict as to occurrences, at the trial, the record will prevail. Howard v. Wright, 173 N. C. 339, 345, 91 S. E. 1032; Bell v. Harrison, 179 N. C. 190, 102 S. E. 200; McDonald v. McLendon, 173 N. C. 172, 91 S. E. 1017.

Second Appeal. — The Supreme Court will not ex mere review a former decision upon a second appeal in the same case. Best v. British, etc., Mortgage Co., 131 N. C. 70, 71, 42 S. E. 456. But the court, on the second appeal, is not precluded under the doctrine of the law of the case from passing on a question not determined on the first appeal. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N. C. 661, 663, 47 S. E. 784.

Same—Party Harmed.—The Supreme Court will not review a ruling of its own, which does not affect injuriously the complaining party, even where the ruling is erroneous. Balk v. Harris, 132 N. C. 10, 16, 43 S. E. 477, and cases cited.

II. ISSUES AND QUESTIONS OF FACT.

A. In General.

Defined.—Issues of fact on those matters alleged on one side and denied on the other, and every question presented under these issues necessary to decide the matter in controversy, should be presented to the jury. Kirk v. Atlanta, etc., Ry. Co., 97 N. C. 82, 2 S. E. 536.

Power of Court.—"The power of the appellate court to review the facts is limited to matters exclusively of equitable cognizance under the former system, and in such cases only when the evidence is written and documentary, so that the higher court is in the same position as the court below." 5 N. C. Law Rev. 16. See also State v. Lilliston, 141 N. C. 857, 867, 54 S. E. 427.

B. Jurisdictional Requisites.

When Jurisdiction Assumed.—The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over issues of fact, under this section, will be assumed upon two conditions: 1. If the matter be of such an equitable nature as a court of equity under the former system took exclusive cognizance of. 2. If the proofs are written and documentary, and in all respects the same as they were when the judge of the court below passed upon them. Worthy v. Shields, 90 N. C. 192.

Since this decision the courts have consistently followed the two foregoing propositions, and have made the two principles conditions precedent to the valid exercise of a hearing on appeal. It necessarily follows from these rules that, (1) if the question presented on appeal is not strictly of an equitable nature, or (2) if the proofs are not written and documentary and in the same form as they were presented to the lower court, then it is not a case over which the Supreme Court can exercise jurisdiction. Herein lies the principle on which the court on appeal has refused to take cognizance of "issues of fact," which were in the court below, tried by a jury, for a fortiori the second proposition noted above will not have been fulfilled. The basis for the exclusion of such "issues of fact" would seem to be that the jury, with all the witnesses before them, are in a better position to weigh all the material evidence and can better reach the logical solution to the issue in controversy. See Howard v. Board, 189 N. C. 675, 127 S. E. 704; Cameron v. Highway Comm'r, 188 N. C. 84, 123 S. E. 465.—Ed. Note.

C. The Principles Applied.

Judgment Must be Equitable in Nature.—The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over "issues of fact," is restricted to interlocutory and final judgments which are exclusively equitable in their nature, and which a court of equity as a distinct and separate tribunal could alone render, under the former system. Young v. Rollins, 90 N. C. 125.

This jurisdiction does not extend to a case which under the former practice would have been an action at law, and in which only errors of law could have been corrected on appeal. State v. Scott, 84 N. C. 184.

Same—Motion for Injunction.—On a motion for an injunction, being an application for equitable relief, it is the right and duty of the Supreme Court, under this section, on an appeal from an order granting or refusing the injunction, to determine the questions of fact as well as of law upon which the propriety of the order depends. Jones v. Boyd, 80 N. C. 258.

Same—Former Acquittal.—No appeal can be taken by the State to any court from the action of an inferior court in sustaining a plea of former acquittal, although such plea is a mixed question of law and fact, and the court erred in not leaving it to the jury. State v. Lane, 78 N. C. 547.

Same—Action of Covenant.—Whether an action of covenant which was strictly an action at law under the former system, but to which an equitable defense can now be made under the new system, falls within the operation of this section was left undecided by the court in Gragg v. Wagner, 77 N. C. 246-7.

When there is any evidence proper to be submitted to the jury, the Supreme Court has no power to interfere with the verdict. Brown v. Power Co., 140 N. C. 333, 52 S. E. 954.

All the Evidence Must Be Sent Up.—The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction, on appeal, to review the evidence and findings of fact of the lower court in an equitable action, unless the same evidence, and the whole of it just as taken below, is sent to such court. Gatewood v. Burns, 99 N. C. 357, 6. S. E. 635.

III. JURY TRIAL.

Generally.—In Leggett v. Leggett, 88 N. C. 108, some doubt is cast upon the question whether, under the provisions of this section in reference to the jurisdiction of the court over "issues of fact" and "questions of fact," a party has the right to have a cause, heretofore cognizable only in a court of equity, tried by the court without the intervention of a jury.

Same—Estoppel.—But where, in such case, a party has of his own accord accepted a trial by jury, he cannot afterwards have the same facts passed upon by the court. Leggett v. Leggett, 88 N. C. 108.

§ 1412. Power to render judgment and issue execution.—In every case the court may render such sentence, judgment and decree as on inspection of the whole record it shall appear to them ought in law to be rendered thereon; and it may at its discretion make the writs of execution which it may issue returnable either to the said court or to the superior court: Provided, that when an execution shall be made returnable as last mentioned, a certificate of the final judgment of the supreme court shall always be transmitted to the superior court aforesaid, and there be recorded: Provided further, that the said superior court may enforce obedience to the execution, and in the event of its not being executed may issue new or further execution or process thereon in the same manner as though the first execution had issued from the said superior court: Provided, also, that in criminal cases the decision of the supreme court shall be certified to the superior court from which the case was transmitted, which superior court shall proceed to judgment and sentence agreeable to the decision of the supreme court and the laws of the state. (Rev., s. 1542; Code, s. 957; R. C., c. 33, s. 6; 1799, c. 520; 1818, c. 963; 1830, c. 2; 1868-9, c. 962.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section are so similar to those contained is section 658 that the practitioner must necessarily take notice of this section last mentioned and the notes placed thereunder. Specific reference to that section, for the various kinds of relief and the essential requisites for each, is here made.

Affirmance as to One Defendant Dismissal as to Other. — Under the technical rules of the common law a different rule prevailed, from that prescribed by this section and section 658, but the court of equity always followed this procedure, which was adopted by this State when the distinction between law and equity was abolished. One court having taken place of both law and equity, a joint judgment may be affirmed as to one defendant, and dismissed as to another. This has been the uniform course and practice since the blending of the two forms of procedure, and is expressly authorized by the sections cited above. The same practice has been followed in the courts of the other states which have adopted the modern system of practice. Kimbrough v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 182 N. C. 234, 236, 109 S. E. 11.

Where a railroad company and the Director General of Railroads have both been joined as parties defendant in an action to recover for a negligent injury, and issues have been submitted as to each, and adverse verdict rendered as to each, there can be no prejudice to the Director General in dismissing the action as to the railroad company and affirming it as to the Director General, and the same may be done under the provisions of C. S., 658 and this section. Kimbrough v. Hines, 182 N. C. 234, 109 S. E. 11.

Errors in Pleadings, etc.—This section requiring the Supreme Court to give such judgment as shall appear to be proper from an "inspection of the whole record" has reference only to essential parts of the record proper, as pleadings, verdict and judgment, and not to those errors occurring during the progress of the trial. McKinnon v. Morrison, 104 N. C. 354, 360, 10 S. E. 513. See also Wyne v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 182 N. C. 253, 109 S. E. 19.

The Supreme Court ought not to render judgment upon an aspect of the case not presented by the pleadings. Oakley v. Noppen, 95 N. C. 60, 61, 62; Bush v. Hall, 95 N. C. 82; Morrison v. Watson, 95 N. C. 479, 481.

Except in proper instances a party to a suit should not be allowed to change his position with respect to a material matter in the course of litigation. Hill v. R. R., 178 N. C. 612. Especially is this true where the change of part is sought to be made between the trial and appellate courts. Ingram v. Yadkin River Power Co., 181 N. C. 359, 107 S. E. 209.

Theory of Lower Court Adopted.—A case is heard and determined in the Supreme Court according to the theory on which it was tried below. Coble v. Barringer, 171 N. C. 445, 88 S. E. 518; Warren v. Susman, 168 N. C. 457, 84 S. E. 760.

Sufficiency of Record Must be Apparent.—The Supreme Court renders judgment upon an inspection of the whole record, and must therefore, be satisfied of the sufficiency of each record. State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 574, 28 S. E. 255.

Judgment in Lower Court Essential.—When the transcript does not show that any court was held, or that any judge was present or gave judgment, it is so defective that the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to act upon it. Boardfoot v. McKeithan, 92 N. C. 561. It must also appear that the court was lawfully organized and held, and all the proceedings had in the action arranged in an orderly manner. Id.

Proceedings to Modify Judgment.—A judgment of the superior court may be modified on appeal where the plaintiff's right to remove adverse claims as a cloud upon his title to lands has been established, so as to enjoin, upon the defendant's appeal, actions pending in the superior court involving the same equity and the same subject-matter, where the parties thereto have been made parties to the case at bar, the proceedings being in the nature of a bill of peace. Ormand Mining Co. v. Gambrill, etc., Mills Co., 181 N. C. 361, 107 S. E. 216.

Parties Not Appealing or Complaining.—Although the plaintiff does not appeal the appellate court may afford him relief upon defendant's appeal, because, by the terms of this section, it should render such judgment as "on an inspection of the whole record it shall appear to them ought in law to be rendered." Ormand Min. Co. v. Gambrill, etc., Mills Co., 181 N. C. 361, 107 S. E. 216.

Errors Which Have to Be Assigned.—Under the provisions of this section the appellate court is required to take notice of all errors appearing upon the face of the record proper, such as defects in the summons, pleadings and the judgment, even though such errors are not assigned. Wilson v. Beaufort Lumber Co., 131 N. C. 163, 164, 42 S. E. 565; Thornton v. Brady, 100 N. C. 38, 40, 5 S. E. 910. When other matters are relied upon, they must be pointed out by an exception on the trial or in the case on appeal. State v. Ashford, 120 N. C. 588, 589, 26 S. E. 915; State v. Cowan, 29 N. C. 239.

II. EXCEPTIONS.

Assignment of Error Generally.—See 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 624.

In General.—On appeal to the Supreme Court, only error as to the law or legal inferences are reviewable upon the record in the case. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Howard, 188 N. C. 543, 125 S. E. 126.

Where the record discloses no error of law or legal inference made upon the trial, the Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether a miscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Rawls v. Lupton, 193 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 175.

The Supreme Court can not consider a question not considered by the trial court, and not affecting the verdict appealed from. Herring v. Warwick, 155 N. C. 345, 71 S. E. 462; Kennedy v. Johnson, 69 N. C. 249; Williamson Co. v. Canaday, 25 N. C. 349.

Error Apparent on Record.—The rule which forbids the hearing of an objection not taken, and which ought to have been taken, at the trial, does not embrace the case where the judge misdirects the jury upon a material question of law, injuriously to the appellant. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 84 N. C. 193.

Failure to State Cause of Action.—An objection that the complaint does not state a cause of action may be taken advantage of at any time, even in the Supreme Court on appeal. McDonald v. MacArthur Bros. Co., 154 N. C. 122, 69 S. E. 832; Tucker v. Baker, 86 N. C. 1; Baker v. Garris, 108 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 2; Jackson v. Jackson, 105 N. C. 433, 11 S. E. 173.

Venue.—In an action against the board of commissioners of one county, brought to the superior court of an adjoining county, objection to the venue must be taken in the trial court, otherwise the objection will be considered as waived. Edwards v. Board, 70 N. C. 571. See, also, McMinn v. Hamilton, 77 N. C. 300.

Objections to special issues submitted to the jury, covering issues presented by pleadings, can not be made on appeal by a party who did not request the submission of other issues. Gross v. McBrayer, 159 N. C. 372, 74 S. E. 915; Graves v. Barrett, 126 N. C. 267, 35 S. E. 539.

Answer to Excluded Questions.—Assignments of error to exclusion of questions asked can not be considered, where the record does not indicate what the answers would have been. Smith v. Commissioners, 176 N. C. 466, 97 S. E. 378; Brinkley v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 168 N. C. 428, 84 S. E. 700; Bryant Timber Co. v. Tilghman Lumber Co., 168 N. C. 154, 84 S. E. 765.

No Presumption of Error.—An assignment of error, to be considered, must be based upon an exception previously taken and appearing in the record, for the court will not presume error. Bailey v. Justice, 174 N. C. 753, 94 S. E. 518.

Where No Exceptions Appear.—No exceptions will be considered on appeal except such as appear in the record and were made in the court below. Phipps v. Pierce, 94 N. C. 514, 516; Taylor v. Plummer, 105 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 266.

Where, by consent of the parties, the Judge frames the issue at the close of the testimony and no exception is made on the trial to such issues or to the evidence or charge, objection can not be raised on appeal that the issues submitted were not such as arose on the pleadings. Exception to the issues should be made on the trial so that the judge may, if he thinks proper, revise and correct them. Wills v. Fisher, 112 N. C. 529, 17 S. E. 73.

III. EFFECT OF DECISION.

A. In General.

Decision Fixes the Law.—The decision of the Supreme Court becomes the law of the case upon the second trial. Davis v. Hilton Lumber Co., 190 N. C. 873, 130 S. E. 156. It is the duty of the superior court to proceed with the case in accordance with this decision and the principles established by the Supreme Court. James v. Western, etc., R. R., 123 N. C. 299, 31 S. E. 707; Ray v. Veneer Co., 188 N. C. 414, 124 S. E. 756.

The Decision Certified.—The requirement of this section that the Supreme Court transmit its "decision" means the results reached by the court, and there is no provision requiring the clerk to certify to a court below the opinion of the court. State v. Ketchy, 71 N. C. 148.

Certified Opinion—Appeal from Interlocutory Orders.—See section 1413.

Final Judgment.—Final judgment may be rendered in the Supreme Court, Alspaugh v. Winstead, 79 N. C. 526. But where the case is sent back to the lower court it is within the discretion of the trial judge to permit the filing of a verified answer where there was a failure to do so in the first instance. Griffin v. Ashville Light Co., 111 N. C. 434, 438, 16 S. E. 423.

B. Power of Superior Court.

Power Limited. — The superior court has no power to modify or change a judgment or decree of the Supreme Court certified to the court below. Its powers are confined to incidental matters of detail necessary to carry the decree into effect, not inconsistent therewith. The rule that the superior courts have authority to vacate or modify decrees made in a cause, at any time before final judgment, does not apply here. Murrill v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 120.

When a final judgment is rendered in the Supreme Court upon an appeal from a final judgment in the superior court, the latter court has power to issue no other process in the case than an execution for its own costs. Grissett v. Smith, 61 N. C. 297.

Judgment for Costs.—Judgment for costs in the Supreme Court is rendered in that court, the superior court has no jurisdiction in that matter. Johnson v. Danville, etc., R. R., 109 N. C. 504, 13 S. E. 881. Midgett v. Vann, 158 N. C. 128, 73 S. E. 801. See section 1256 and the notes thereto.

Motion for New Trial.—Where the Supreme Court has affirmed the judgment on an appeal in a criminal case and the judgment has been certified to the clerk of the Superior Court, under this section and § 1417, the case is in the latter court for the purpose of the execution of the sentence, and a motion for a new trial may be there entertained for disqualification of jurors and for newly discovered evidence. State v. Casey, 201 N. C. 620, 161 S. E. 81; State v. Cox, 202 N. C. 378, 162 S. E. 907.

§ 1413. No judgment on interlocutory order; opinion certified.—When an appeal is taken to the supreme court from any interlocutory judgment, the supreme court shall not enter any judgment reversing, affirming or modifying the judgment, order or decree so appealed from, but shall cause their opinion to be certified to the court below, with instructions to proceed upon such order, judgment or decree, or to reverse or modify the same according to said opinion, and the court below shall enter upon its records the opinion at length, and proceed in the cause according to the instructions. (Rev., s. 1544; Code, s. 962.)

Editor's Note.—It is to be noted that in this section it is required that the opinion shall be certified "with instructions" etc., whereas in the preceding section, the provision, applicable to criminal cases, only required that the decision be certified.

Interlocutory Order Defined. — See sec. 592 and notes thereto.

Procedure Explained.—The appeal, like a writ of error, does not disturb the interlocutory order, but suspends action on it, intended to carry it into effect, until its legality is tested in the court above, and this being decided and certified to the superior court, then, if sustained, that court is directed to proceed upon the judgment as already existing; or if declared erroneous, to reverse or modify it, in conformity to the law declared. Green v. Griffin, 95 N. C. 50, 53.

Effect of Appeal. — Appeals from interlocutory or subsidiary orders, judgments and decrees made in a cause, carry up for review only the ruling of the court upon that specific point. The order of judgment appealed from is not vacated, but further proceedings under it are suspended until its validity is determined. Meanwhile the action remains in the court below. Green v. Griffin, 95 N. C. 50.

If the appeal is from an interlocutory order the cause does not come up to the Supreme Court, but only the order, which is decided and the decision certified to the superior court, to the end that the cause may be proceeded with. Perry v. Tupper, 71 N. C. 380, 383.

Substantial Right Affected.—Before an appeal should be taken from an interlocutory judgment or order, it should affect some substantial right of the appellant. Rogerson v. Lumber Co., 136 N. C. 266, 48 S. E. 647.

Same—Discretion of Court.—However, even though there may be some doubt as to whether an appeal will lie from the interlocutory order, the court may, in its discretion, hear and decide the matter presented. Barnes v. Fort, 169 N. C. 431, 86 S. E. 340; Best v. Best, 161 N. C. 513, 77 S. E. 762.

Motion to Dismiss.—An appeal from the refusal of a motion to dismiss an action is premature and will not lie; the proper procedure is for the movant to except, reserve exceptions and appeal from the adverse decision. Bradshaw v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 172 N. C. 632, 90 S. E. 789.

Criminal Action.—In a criminal action there is no appeal save from a final judgment. State v. Nash, 97 N. C. 514, 2 S. E. 645. And when the record does not show a final judgment the appeal will be dismissed. State v. Hazell, 95 N. C. 623.

Motions.—All proper motions in the action should be made in the superior court, except such motion as may be made affecting the appeal and the action of the Supreme Court therein. Stephens v. Koonce, 106 N. C. 222, 223, 10 S. E. 996.

As to the binding force of the Appellate Court's decision when certified, see note of Murrill v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 120, under section 1412.

When Error Committed by Supreme Court.—If the Supreme Court issues an irregular order, neither the judge of the Supreme Court nor the litigating parties can frustrate it; the remedy is by a petition to the Supreme Court to rehear. Perry v. Tupper, 711 N. C. 380, 382.

§ 1414. Power of amendment and to require further testimony.—The supreme court has power to amend any process, pleading or proceeding either in form or substance for the purpose of furthering justice, on such terms as shall be deemed just at any time before final judgment; and to amend by making proper parties to any case where the court may deem it necessary and proper for the purposes of justice and on such terms as the court may prescribe. And whenever it appears necessary for the purpose of justice, the court may allow and direct the taking of further testimony in any case which may be pending in the court, under such rules as may be prescribed, or may remand the case to the intent that amendments may be made, further testimony taken or other proceedings had in the court below. (Rev., s. 1545; Code, s. 965; R. C., c. 33, s. 17; 1777, c. 115, s. 75; 1785, c. 233; 1792, c. 360; 1831, c. 46.)

I. In General.
II. Pleading.
III. Parties.
IV. Case Remanded.

Cross Reference.

For full treatment of amendments generally, including specific cases wherein they are held allowable, see 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 817, and see section 547 and the notes thereto.

I. IN GENERAL.

Extent of Power.—The Supreme Court can amend as fully as the superior court can do, and in the same instances. Perry v. Perry, 175 N. C. 141, 95 S. E. 98.

But the power given the court under this section is not an unlimited one, even though the provisions of the section have been given a rather liberal construction. In the exercise of the power herein provided for, the courts have allowed the amendments in the light of the primary object for which the section was enacted, namely, to further justice between the parties and not to allow an undeserving party to gain any undue advantage due to some technical omission on the part of his adversary, which should have been pleaded or included at an earlier stage of the litigation.

Hence, where the amendment is of such nature that, to allow it would make the record not conform to or correspond with the facts developed on the trial below, and would be in contradiction of the evidence adduced, and the theory upon which the trial must have proceeded, then the amendment will not be allowed. Ed. Note, See Huyett, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Gray, 126 N. C. 108, 115, 35 S. E. 236.

Same—Facts Cannot Be Found.—Under the provisions of this section the Supreme Court cannot find the facts. All it can do is to remand the case to the end that the lower court can discover them. Bank v. Blossom, 89 N. C. 341, 342.

After Final Judgment.—The Supreme Court has no power to direct or allow amendments to the record after a final judgment therein has been rendered. Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 435, 7 S. E. 566.

Different Case Presented.—The power to amend will not be exercised where the amendment would, perhaps, present a case substantially different from the one tried below and raise a question of law not involved in the present appeal. Bonner v. Stotesbury, 139 N. C. 3, 51 S. E. 781.

Cited in Lipe v. Citizens' Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 24, 29, 173 S. E. 316.

II. PLEADING.

When Nonresident Petitions for Removal.—Where a nonresident defendant claims an interest in lands, in proceedings by a municipality against a resident owner to take it for a public use, and the nonresident has been made a party and files his petition and bond for removal to the federal court for diversity of citizenship, the plaintiff may amend his pleadings on motion granted by the State court, under this section, and set up facts sufficient to show that the claim of the nonresident arose by contract that gave him no interest in the lands within the meaning of the Federal Removal Act. Morganton v. Hutton, etc., Co., 187 N. C. 736, 122 S. E. 842.

Pleading by Guardian.—Where an infant entered a certain pleading by her next friend when it should have been made by her guardian, the objection thereto was such a technical one that it was disregarded, although the court specifically says that had the objection any force whatever, the mistake could readily be cured by allowing an amendment to be made. Hollomon v. Hollomon, 125 N. C. 29, 33, 34 S. E. 99.

Explanation by Parol Proof.—Where a description in a deed is not so uncertain and vague as to render it void, the Supreme Court, where justice requires it, may allow the uncertain part to be aided by parol proof. Allen v. Sallinger, 108 N. C. 159, 160, 12 S. E. 896.

Inadvertence of Judge.—While a judge cannot resettle a case on appeal, yet, where the ends of justice require it, it is his duty to correct such errors as have resulted from inadvertence, mistake, misapprehension, or the like. People v. Teague, 106 N. C. 571, 572, 575, 11 S. E. 330.

Action on Administration Bond.—An objection in the Supreme Court that the action on an administration bond was not brought in the name of the state may be obviated by a motion to amend under this section. Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 291, 9 S. E. 707. But such an amendment will not be allowed when it would destroy a just and legal ground of the appeal which existed when the objection thereto was taken. Grant v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 756, 760.

Failure to File Replication.—Where the plaintiff, in a suit, failed to file a replication to the answer, and the parties proceeded to take proofs in the cause, this was held, a waiver by the defendant of a replication, and the court allowed an amendment under this section. Fleming v. Murphy, 59 N. C. 59.

III. PARTIES.

The Rule Stated.—A bill can be amended as to parties in the Supreme Court. Kent v. Bottoms, 56 N. C. 69, 70, 72.

Same—Guardian ad Litem.—The power to make parties includes the power to appoint a guardian ad litem. Perry v. Perry, 175 N. C. 141, 95 S. E. 98. It is useless to remand the case for such appointment where the interests of the children had been duly protected by this petitioner. Id.

Personal Representative.—Where a claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act has been litigated in the name of the deceased it is not permissible under this section for the personal representative of the deceased, hereafter to be appointed, to come in and make himself a party to the proceeding in the Supreme Court. Hunt v. State, 201 N. C. 37, 39, 158 S. E. 703.

Opposite Party Harmed.—While an amendment substituting parties can be allowed in the Supreme Court, it will not be allowed when it will put the opposite party to a disadvantage. Hodge v. Marietta, etc., R. R., 108 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 1041.

IV. CASE REMANDED.

In General.—The Supreme Court has the power, in a proper case, to remand causes to the end that proper amendments may be made, or further proceedings taken in the court below. Holley v. Holley, 96 N. C. 229, 231, 1 S. E. 553.

Essentials of Transcript Lacking.—Where the transcript of the record fails to set forth facts necessary for the determination of the case on appeal, it will be remanded to the end that the same may be supplied or found by the court below, as the nature of the cause may require. Bank v. Blossom, 89 N. C. 341.

Requisites of Transcript. — See section 645 and notes thereto.

Insanity of Plaintiff.—Where after an appeal and before a hearing, the plaintiff became insane and was committed to an asylum, it was held that the case must be remanded. Jones v. Cotten, 108 N. C. 457, 13 S. E. 161.

Jury Trial.—Upon allegation of inadvertence in including a supersedeas bond in the appeal bond, an issue therein may be remanded to the superior court to be tried by jury. Burnett v. Nicholson, 86 N. C. 728, 730.

§ 1415. Proof of exhibits.—Exhibits or other documents relative to cases pending in the supreme court may be proved by the parol testimony of witnesses to be examined in the court in the same manner and under the same rules as such exhibits or documents may be proved in the superior court, and suitors in the court may have subpœnas to enforce the attendance of witnesses, who shall be liable to the same penalties and actions for nonattendance, and be entitled to the same pay for traveling, ferriage and attendance as witnesses in the superior court: Provided, that witnesses attending the supreme court shall be taxed in the bill of costs and paid by the party on whose behalf they may be summoned. (Rev., s. 1547; Code, s. 963; R. C., c. 33. s. 21; 1820, c. 1070; 1825, c. 1282; 1842, c. 1.)

Regular Practice Explained.—Though witnesses in some instances may be summoned, it has not been the practice. Owing both to the great addition it would make to the already large and steadily increasing volume of business in this court to examine affidavits on questions of fact, the court has adhered to its settled ruling, that it will not pass upon the facts, except as to injunctions and in similar cases, but will take the findings of fact by the judge who tried the cause below as conclusive. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 63, 11 S. E. 244.

§ 1416. Opinions and judgments to be in writing.—The justices shall deliver their opinions and judgments in writing, and the clerk shall make no entry upon the records of the court that any cause pending therein is decided, nor give to any person a certificate of such decision, nor issue execution in such suit, until after the opinion of the court shall have been delivered publicly in open court, and a written copy of the same opinion shall have been delivered to the clerk; which shall afterwards be filed among the records of the court and published in the reports of the decisions made by the court: Provided, that the justices shall not be required to write their opinions in full except in cases in which they deem it necessary. (Rev., s. 1548; Code, s. 964; 1893, c. 379, s. 5; R. C., c. 33, s. 16; 1810, c. 785.)

Editor's Note.—Under the law as it stood prior to 1868, the opinions of the judges were required to be in writing, "with reasons at full length upon which they are founded," the purpose and intent of the statute being to prevent per curiam opinion.

Subsequently the statute was amended and the requirement of "reasons at full length, etc.," was omitted. Still later (in 1893) it was left within the discretion of the judges by the addition of the proviso to decide when the opinions were to be written. This is the situation under the law as it stands today. It has been held in at least one case that even in the absence of the statutory provision placing their discretionary power in the court, that such power exists by force of the constitutional provision giving the court the right to make its own rules of practice. State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814. See also 5 N. C. Law Rev. 20.

Discretion of Court.—The filing of a written opinion in a case is discretionary with the Supreme Court. Parker v. Atlantic, etc., R. R., 133 N. C. 335, 336, 337, 45 S. E. 638.

The writing of the reason at length is discretionary with the court. Bradsher v. Cheek, 112 N. C. 838, 839, 840, 17 S. E. 533.

A judgment may be affirmed without extended opinion. Rogen v. Luff, 202 N. C. 819, 161 S. E. 924.

Applied, opinion deemed necessary, in Wootton v. McGinnis, 201 N. C. 841, 161 S. E. 926; Thrash v. Roberts, 201 N. C. 843, 161 S. E. 925.

§ 1417. Certificates to superior courts; execution for costs; penalty.—The clerk on the first Monday in each month shall transmit by some safe hand, or by mail, to the clerks of the superior courts certificates of the decisions of the supreme court in cases sent from such courts, which shall have been on file ten days; and thereupon the clerks respectively shall issue execution for the costs incurred in the courts from which the cases were sent; and the clerk of the supreme court shall issue execution for the costs incurred in that court, including all publications in newspapers made in the progress of the cause in that court, and by order of the same, and all postage on letters which concern the transfer of original papers. And if the clerk shall fail for the space of twenty days to perform the duty herein enjoined of transmitting the certificates of decisions, he shall forfeit and pay to the party or parties in whose favor the supreme court shall have decided, one hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1549; Code, s. 968; 1887, c. 41; R. C., c. 33, s. 21; 1820, c. 1070; 1825, c. 1282; 1842, c. 1, s. 3.)

See notes to § 1412.

Editor's Note.—This and section 1419 are in pari materia and must be construed together. See Emery v. Raleigh, etc., R. R., 102 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 141.

Generally.—By virtue of this section opinions are certified down on the first Monday in each month, provided they shall have been on file ten days. As opinions are usually filed on Tuesdays, they remain not less than thirteen days and not more than forty-two days in fieri, and, in that time, if there is error (and in criminal cases it should be scrutinized in that time), it can be observed and the matter called to the attention of the court, which, in such cases, on sufficient cause shown, has more than once called up the opinion for reconsideration. If this is not done, the remedy is by application to the Governor. State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 514, 39 S. E. 814.

Effect of Certifying Case.—When the Supreme Court has certified its decision to the court below for judgment there, this court has no further jurisdiction of the case. James v. Western, etc., R. R., 123 N. C. 299, 307, 31 S. E. 707.

Case Certified in Advance of Statutory Time.—The court in its judgment may direct an opinion certified down in advance of the statutory time. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 939, 12 S. E. 268.

Costs.—Judgment for costs in the Supreme Court is rendered in that court; the superior court has no jurisdiction in the matter. Johnson v. Danville, etc., R. R., 109 N. C. 504, 13 S. E. 881. See section 1256 and the note thereto.

Applied in Commissioner of Banks v. Harvey, 202 N. C. 380, 162 S. E. 894.

Cited in Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 256, 148 S. E. 253.

§ 1418. Appeals dismissed.—Suits and appeals pending in the supreme court may be dismissed on failure to prosecute the same, after a rule obtained for that purpose and served on the plaintiff or appellant, his agent or attorney, at least thirty days before the term next ensuing that of entering the rule; when, if the party shall fail to prosecute his suit or appeal, the court shall, at the election of the adverse party, dismiss the suit or appeal at the costs of the plaintiff or appellant, or proceed to hear and determine it. (Rev., s. 1543; Code, s. 967; R. C., c. 33, s. 20; 1848, c. 28; Supm. Ct. Rules, 15, et seq.)

See 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 643 et seq., 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 110.

Failure to Docket Transcript.—An appeal will be dismissed upon a failure of the appellant to docket the transcript as required. Cox v. Kinston, etc., R. R., 177 N. C. 227, 98 S. E. 704.

Same—When Deemed Docketed.—An appeal is deemed docketed when the transcript is received by the clerk of the court. Brafford v. Reed, 124 N. C. 345, 32 S. E. 726.

Failure to Print Record.—The appeal will be dismissed where there is a failure to print record and brief as required. Bradshaw v. Stransberry, 164 N. C. 356, 79 S. E. 302.

Filing of Bond Gives Notice.—An appeal will not be dismissed upon the ground that no notice of appeal was given, where the record shows that an appeal bond was filed and approved by the court. The filing of the bond and its approval in open court is notice to the appellee. Capehart v. Biggs & Co., 90 N. C. 373.

Compliance with Statute Essential.—Compliance with the statutory regulation as to appeals is a condition precedent, without which (unless waived) the right to appeal does not become potential. Hence, it is no defense to say that the negligence is negligence of counsel and not negligence of the party. Cozart v. Assurance Co., 142 N. C. 522, 55 S. E. 411.

The rules of court are not merely directory, and a failure of the appellant to prosecute his appeal in accordance therewith is sufficient ground for dismissal. Wiseman v. Comm., 104 N. C. 330, 10 S. E. 481; Davis v. Wall, 142 N. C. 450, 55 S. E. 350.

Where the appellant has failed to prosecute his appeal as required by the rule of the court, the right of the appellee to dismiss the appeal must be exercised before the appellant has complied with the particular rule in question, and if appellee's motion is made thereafter his right to dismiss at that term is barred by his own laches. McLean v. McDonald, 175 N. C. 418, 95 S. E. 769.

Where an appeal is not prosecuted according to law, the appellee has the right to have a transcript of the record sent up, or a certificate of the clerk that an appeal was taken, and the case docketed and the appeal dismissed. Cross v. Williams, 91 N. C. 496. The court said: "The appellant has no right to take an appeal and bring it up, or abandon it at his will and pleasure; he must bring it up in the established course of procedure." Id.

Laches.—Where a case was remanded from the Supreme Court to the end that the appellant might have a lost record supplied by proper proceedings in the court below, which has not been done, and the record is as defective as when the order of remand was made, though three or four terms of the superior court in that county have transpired and no excuse is rendered for the laches, the case will be dismissed on motion of appellee. Cox v. Jones, 113 N. C. 276, 18 S. E. 199.

Motion to dismiss appeal must be made in writing. Brafford v. Reed, 124 N. C. 345, 32 S. E. 726.

Notice.—No notice is required to be given of a motion to dismiss an appeal when no appeal bond has been filed. Jones v. Asheville, 114 N. C. 621, 19 S. E. 631.

Time for Reinstatement.—Motion to reinstate, upon notice, may be heard not later than the next term. Wiseman v. Comm., 104 N. C. 330, 10 S. E. 481.

Same—Failure to Print.—A motion to reinstate an appeal dismissed must be made at the same term, and will only then be allowed for good cause shown. Pipkin v. Green, 112 N. C. 355, 17 S. E. 534.

Same—Failure to Docket.—A motion to reinstate an appeal dismissed for failure to docket the record at the first term of the court after the trial below is fatally defective where it does not show that the delay was without laches on the part of the appellant. Pipkin v. Green, 112 N. C. 355, 17 S. E. 534.

Same—Insufficiency of Bond.—A motion to dismiss an appeal for insufficiency of bond will not be entertained, unless after written notice, as required by this section. McGee v. Fox, 107 N. C. 766, 12 S. E. 369; Jones v. Ashville, 114 N. C. 621, 19 S. E. 631.

Time.—Motion to dismiss because appellant has failed to perfect his appeal must be made at or before hearing. Hutchinson v. Rumfelt, 82 N. C. 426, 427.

§ 1419. Petition to rehear; execution restrained.—A petition to rehear may be filed during the vacation succeeding the term of the court at which the judgment was rendered, or within twenty days after the commencement of the succeeding term, and upon the filing of such petition the chief justice, or either of the associate justices, may, upon such terms as he sees fit, make an order restraining the issuing of an execution, or the collection and payment of the same, until the next term of said court, or until the petition to rehear shall have been determined. (Rev., s. 1546; Code, s. 966; R. C., c. 33, s. 18; Supreme Court Rules 52, 53, 54.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of this subject, see 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 668. See also section 1417 and notes thereto, Rules of court, 52, 53.

In General.—Petitions to rehear are confined to alleged errors of law or newly discovered evidence. Barcroft v. Roberts, 92 N. C. 250.

Not Absolute Right.—This section cannot be allowed to give the losing party an absolute right to a rehearing, and to have his petition considered by the whole court contrary to its rule governing the practice in such cases. Herndon v. Fire Ins. Co., 111 N. C. 384, 386, 16 S. E. 465.

Mistake or Error of Fact.—The Supreme Court will not rehear upon the ground of mistake or error of fact. Weathersbee v. Farrar, 98 N. C. 265, 3 S. E. 482.

Mistake and Excusable Neglect.—A party against whom a judgment has been entered by mistake, execusable neglect or surprise may make application for petition to rehear. Farrar v. Staton, 101 N. C. 78, 7 S. E. 753.

Compliance with Section Essential.—Petitions to rehear must be filed according to the requirements of this section. Strickland v. Draughan, 91 N. C. 103.

Former Decision Must Be Erroneous.—When questions of law have been considered and decided the court will not reexamine the question and reverse its former decision, unless it clearly appears that it is erroneous. School Directors v. City, 137 N. C. 503, 504, 50 S. E. 279.

Criminal Actions.—Petitions to rehear are not allowable in criminal actions. State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814.

Matters in Transcript Considered.—On petition to rehear a case formerly decided, the Supreme Court will not consider matters not contained in the transcript of the record. Presnell v. Garrison, 122 N. C. 595, 29 S. E. 839.

A petition to rehear must be upon the record as it was at the former hearing. Presnell v. Garrison, 122 N. C. 595, 29 S. E. 839.

Presumption.—Rehearings of decision of cases in the Supreme Court are granted only in exceptional cases and, when granted, every presumption is in favor of the judgment already rendered. Weisel v. Cobb, 122 N. C. 67, 30 S. E. 312.

Court Will Correct Errors.—When a rehearing has been ordered and a manifest error is made to appear, the court will correct it. Hodgin v. Peoples Bank, 125 N. C. 503, 34 S. E. 709, 712.

Burden of Proof.—The burden of showing error is on the petitioner. Webb v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 201, 34 S. E. 395.

Notice.—A purchaser of land, in litigation, bringing a petition to rehear before the expiration of the twenty day period allowed on this section, is conclusively fixed with notice of the fact that motion for rehearing could be applied for at any time within such period. Bird v. Gilliam, 125 N. C. 76, 79, 34 S. E. 196.

Computation of Time.—In computing the time under the provision of this section allowing a petition to rehear to be filed "within twenty days after the commencement of the succeeding term," the first day thereof must be excluded. Barcroft v. Roberts, 92 N. C. 250. The last day must also be excluded when it falls on Sunday. Id. Cited and approved in Cook v. Moore, 95 N. C. 4.

After Case Certified.—After a decision of the Supreme Court has been certified down, the court is without jurisdiction to entertain a motion to recall the mandate and judgment rendered and reconsider it, the only method for such being upon petition to rehear filed according to the rules. Davis v. Southern R. R., 176 N. C. 186, 96 S. E. 945.

Second Rehearing.—A second rehearing is permissible only when the court has reversed or materially changed the original opinion that was sought to be reheard. Nelson v. Hunter, 145 N. C. 334, 59 S. E. 116.

§ 1420. Records to be made.—The court may order the clerk to record such parts of the record of cases as it may deem necessary. (Rev., s. 1550; Code, s. 959.)

§ 1421. Power to make rules of court.—The justices of the supreme court shall prescribe and establish from time to time rules of practice for that court and also for the superior courts. The clerk shall certify to the judges of the superior court the rules of practice for such court, to be entered on the records thereof in each county. (Rev., s. 1541; Code, s. 961; R. C., c. 33, s. 13; 1818, c. 963.)

See note under const. art. 4, § 12.

Generally.—"In North Carolina, the power to prescribe rules for trial courts (superior courts and inferior courts) is vested in the Legislature by the Constitution, but the Legislature has committed it to the Supreme Court. This enables the Supreme Court to make rules for trial courts subject, in North Carolina, to legislative modification." 5 N. C. Law Rev. 275.

The General Assembly is without power to prescribe rules of practice or procedure for the Supreme Court. Lacy v. State, 195 N. C. 284, 141 S. E. 886.

Rules for Subordinate Courts.—The Supreme Court has, by this section, the power to prescribe rules of practice for the subordinate courts. Barnes v. Easton, 98 N. C. 116, 119, 3 S. E. 744.

Rules Mandatory.—The rules of practice made under the power given by this section are not merely directory, but are mandatory and must be observed. Walker v. Scott, 102 N. C. 487, 489, 9 S. E. 488.

In this State the rules of court are the sole code of practice for the Supreme Court and are to be strictly observed. Calvert v. Carstarphen, 133 N. C. 25, 27, 45 S. E. 353.

§ 1421(a). Supreme court to prescribe rules; rules to conform to law.—The supreme court is hereby vested with the power to prescribe from time to time the modes of making and filing proceedings, actions, and pleadings, and of entering orders and judgments and recording the same, and to prescribe and regulate the practice on appeals to the supreme court, and in the trial of actions in the superior court, and before referees: Provided, no rule or regulation so adopted shall be in conflict with this law or any of the provisions of the Consolidated Statutes of 1919. Such rules as may be adopted by the supreme court shall be printed and distributed by the secretary of state as are the reports of the supreme court. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 20.)

Art. 3. Officers of Court

§ 1422. The court may appoint acting attorney-general.—If the attorney-general should fail at any term of the supreme court to attend to the business which by law is assigned him, the court may appoint some counsel learned in the law to discharge his duties during the term. (Rev., s. 1551; Code, s. 969; R. C., c. 33, s. 22; 1846, c. 29.)

§ 1423. Reporter.—The supreme court may employ a reporter of its decisions. (Rev., s. 1552; Code, s. 3363; 1893, c. 379, s. 4; 1897, c. 429.)

§ 1424. Clerk.—The clerk of the supreme court shall be appointed by the court, and shall hold his office for eight years. (Rev., s. 1553; Const., Art. IV, s. 15.)

§ 1425. Clerk's bond and oath of office.—Before undertaking his duties, the clerk of the supreme court shall enter into bond with sufficient surety payable to the state of North Carolina, in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties and for the safe keeping of all records committed to his custody, which bond shall be lodged with the secretary of state; and he shall also before said justices, or one of them, take the oaths which are prescribed for clerks of the superior court, and shall keep his office in the city of Raleigh. (Rev., s. 290; Code, s. 958; R. C., c. 33, s. 9; 1812, c. 829, s. 2; 1818, c. 963, s. 5; 1846, c. 28, s. 3; 1799, c. 520, s. 2.)

Action on official bonds. see section 354 and notes thereto.

§ 1426. Clerk to report money on hand.—The clerk of the supreme court shall, at the beginning of each fall term, produce to the court a statement on oath of all moneys remaining in his hands which have been paid into his office three years or more previous thereto, whether received directly from parties or from his predecessor in office, and is not detained in his hands by special order of the court, specifying therein the name of the person to whom the same is payable, and his address, if known; a copy of which report shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and to the auditor. (Rev., s. 1554; Code, s. 1864; R. C., c. 73; 1823, c. 1186; 1831, c. 3.)

§ 1427. Marshal appointed.—The supreme court may appoint an officer to be styled Marshal of the Supreme Court, removable at will, who shall attend upon the court during its sessions. (Rev., s. 1555; Code, s. 950; 1873-4, c. 34; 1881, c. 306.)

§ 1428. Librarian appointed.—The justices of the supreme court have charge of the law library and may, in their discretion, employ a librarian, who shall perform his duties under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the court. (Rev., s. 5084; Code, s. 3606; 1889, c. 482; 1883, c. 100.)

SUBCHAPTER II. SUPERIOR COURTS

Art. 4. Organization

§ 1429. Number of judges and solicitors.—The state shall be divided into twenty superior court judicial districts, for each of which a judge and a solicitor shall be chosen in the manner now prescribed by law. (1913, cc. 9, 63; Const., Art. 4, s. 10.)

Judge Appointed Prior to Creation of District.—Appointment of a judge of the superior court prior to the date when the act creating the judicial district takes effect is invalid. State v. Shuford, 128 N. C. 588, 38 S. E. 808.

§ 1430. Election and term of office of judges.—The judges of the superior courts shall be elected in like manner as is provided for justices of the supreme court, and shall hold their offices for eight years. (Const., Art. 4, s. 21.)

See section 1403 and note thereto.

§ 1431. Election and term of office of solicitors.—A solicitor shall be elected for each judicial district by the qualified voters thereof, as is prescribed for members of the general assembly, who shall hold office for the term of four years, and prosecute on behalf of the state in all criminal actions in the superior courts, and advise the officers of justice in his district. (Const., Art. 4, s. 23.)

§ 1431(a). Assistant prosecuting attorney in Forsyth County.—The board of County Commissioners of Forsyth County are hereby authorized and empowered to employ a competent attorney of Forsyth County to assist in the prosecution of the criminal docket of the Superior Court of Forsyth County.

The selection of an attorney of Forsyth County to assist the solicitor of the district in the prosecution of the criminal docket of the Superior Court of Forsyth County, the duration of the employment, and the salary to be paid such attorney, shall be entirely within the discretion of the Board of County Commissioners of Forsyth County.

The salary to be paid the attorney for assisting the solicitor of the district in the prosecution of the criminal docket of Forsyth County shall be paid from the general funds of the County of Forsyth, and shall be paid in such manner as shall be prescribed by the Board of County Commissioners of Forsyth County. (1927, c. 129.)

§ 1432. Residence and rotation of judges.—Every judge of the superior court shall reside in the district for which he is elected. The judges shall preside in the courts of the different districts successively, but no judge shall hold the courts in the same district oftener than once in four years, but in case of the protracted illness of the judge assigned to preside in any district, or of any other unavoidable accident to him, by reason of which he shall be unable to preside, the governor may require any judge to hold one or more specified terms in said district in lieu of the judge assigned to hold the courts of the said district. (Const., Art. 4, s. 11.)

See notes under Const., Art. 4, § 11, Code of 1927.

De Facto Judges.—A judge of a superior court who presides in another district by appointment of the Governor, is a de facto judge, and his acts in that capacity are valid. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247, 11 L. R. A. 100; State v. Turner, 119 N. C. 841, 25 S. E. 810.

§ 1433. Oath of office.—Every judge before he shall act as such shall, in open court, or before the governor, or before one of the judges of the supreme or superior courts, or before some justice of the peace, take the oath appointed for public officers, and also an oath of office. The officer or court before whom the judge shall qualify shall cause the judge to subscribe the oaths by him taken, and having certified the same, shall return the oaths to the secretary of state, who shall carefully preserve them; and if any judge shall act in his office before he shall have taken the oaths directed, he shall forfeit and pay two thousand dollars, one-half to the use of the state and the other half to the person who shall sue for the same. (Rev., s. 1497; Code, s. 924; R. C., c. 31, ss. 18, 19; 1777, c. 115; 1806, c. 694, s. 13; 1848, c. 45.)

§ 1434. Vacancies filled.—All vacancies occurring by death, resignation or otherwise in the offices of justice of the supreme or judge of the superior court of the state shall be filled for the unexpired term at the next general election for members of the general assembly held after such vacancy is created. The persons elected at such election shall be commissioned by the governor immediately after the ascertainment of the result in the manner provided by law, and shall qualify and enter upon the discharge of the duties of the office within ten days after receiving such com-

§ 1435. When judge may discharge solicitor.—When any state solicitor, authorized by election or appointment to act as prosecuting attorney for or in behalf of the state of North Carolina, in any of the courts of said state, shall appear at such court, in term time, drunk or intoxicated, or when it shall be brought to the knowledge of the judge presiding at such court that the solicitor whose duty it is to represent the state at such court is in the town in which such court is being held, drunk or intoxicated, at any time, it shall become the duty of such judge and he is hereby directed to immediately discharge such solicitor from the duties of such court, for the term then being held, and appoint some competent attorney to act as state solicitor for the term. The appointee shall be allowed all the fees and compensation belonging to the solicitor for such term. (Rev., s. 1499; 1901, c. 717.)

Editor's Note.—Jurisdiction of the special or emergency judges of matters of mandamus was provided for by the Acts of 1925.

§ 1435(a). Special or emergency judges; jurisdiction; compensation; expenses.—The persons embraced within the provisions of section 3884(a) are hereby constituted special or emergency judges of the superior court under article four (4), section eleven (11), of the constitution of this state, and are authorized to hold the superior courts of any county or district when the judge assigned thereto, by reason of sickness, disability, or other cause, is unable to attend and hold said court, and when no other judge is available to hold the same, and to hold special terms when commissioned so to do by the governor, and as compensation for holding such special terms shall receive their actual expenses and in addition thereto fifty dollars per week, to be paid by the county in which such special term is held.

In case of emergency arising as provided in said section, the governor shall designate the person to act as emergency judge who shall receive his actual expenses only incurred while so acting, to be paid by the treasurer upon warrant of the auditor, upon certificate of the judge: Provided, that the county asking the governor for an emergency judge shall have the privilege of requesting the assignment of a particular judge. Such emergency judges shall be subject to all the regulations respecting superior court judges except as otherwise provided in this law. (1921, c. 125, ss. 2, 3; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 20, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The Acts of 1927, ch. 205, § 3, provided that if the judge regularly assigned to the district in which Orange County is situated be unable, because of another regular term of court in the said district, or for other causes, to hold any term of court provided in section 1443 then the Governor shall assign another judge to hold said term.

This section was discussed in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 131.

§ 1435(b). Jurisdiction in injunction, receivership, and habeas corpus matters.—The special or emergency judges provided for in the preceding section shall at all times have the same jurisdiction in matters of injunction, mandamus, receivership, and habeas corpus as any other superior court judge. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 94, s. 1; 1925, c. 8.)

Editor's Note.—At the fall term of 1923 the Supreme Court held in Dunn v. Taylor, 186 N. C. 254, 119 S. E. 495, that by omitting to include mandamus in the enumeration the Legislature intended to limit the jurisdiction of emergency judges as to mandamus so that such judges could not issue the writ except when holding regular terms. The 1925 amendment inserted the word mandamus so as to overcome this decision and give such judges the power in chambers.

§ 1435(c). Order for hearing; notice to attorneys.—If any special or emergency judge has made any matters returnable before him, and subsequent thereto he should be called upon by the governor to hold court elsewhere, said judge shall make an order directing said matter to be heard before some other judge, setting forth in said order the time and place same is to be heard, and send a copy of said order to the attorney or attorneys representing the parties plaintiff and defendant in such matter. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 94 s. 2.)

§ 1435(d). Governor to make appointment of four special judges.—The governor of North Carolina may appoint four persons who shall possess the requirements and qualifications of special judges as prescribed by article four, section eleven of the constitution, and who shall take the same oath of office, and otherwise be subject to the same requirements and disabilities as are or may be prescribed by law for judges of the superior court, save the requirements of residence in a particular district, to be special judges of the superior courts of the state of North Carolina. Two of the said judges shall be appointed from the Western Judicial Division and two from the Eastern Judicial Division, as now established. The governor shall issue a commission to each of said judges so appointed for a term to begin July first, nineteen hundred thirty-five, and to end June thirtieth, nineteen hundred thirty-seven, and the said commission shall constitute his authority to perform the duties of the office of a special judge of the superior courts during the time named therein. (1927, c. 206, s. 1; 1929, c. 137, s. 1; 1931, c. 29, s. 1; 1933, c. 217, s. 1; 1935, c. 97, s. 1.)

For a discussion of this statute, see Jerome on Civil Procedure, p. 37.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1933, this section was mandatory. It required that the governor shall appoint, etc.

Judicial Notice of Appointment as Special Judge.—The Supreme Court will take judicial notice on appeal of the appointment of a certain person as a special judge under the provisions of this chapter. Greene v. Stadiem, 197 N. C. 472, 149 S. E. 685.

When necessary for the determination of a case on appeal, the Supreme Court will take judicial notice of the counties comprising a judicial district, and that a judge holding a term in one of the counties was a special judge appointed by the Governor under the authority of this chapter. Reid v. Reid, 199 N. C. 740, 155 S. E. 719.

Cited in Bohannon v. Virginia Trust Co., 198 N. C. 702, 153 S. E. 263.

§ 1435(e). Time for appointment.—Each special judge shall be appointed by the governor on or before July first, nineteen hundred and thirty-five, and shall be subject to removal from office for the same causes and in the same manner as regular judges of the superior court; and vacancies occuring in the offices created by this act shall be filled by the governor in like manner for the unexpired term thereof. (1927, c. 206, s. 2; 1929, c. 137, s. 2; 1931, c. 29, s. 2; 1933, c. 217, s. 2; 1935, c. 97, s. 2.)

§ 1435(f). Further appointments. — The governor is further authorized and empowered, if in his judgment the necessity exists therefor, to appoint at such time as he may determine, not exceeding two additional judges, one of whom shall be a resident of the Eastern Judicial Division, and one of whom shall be a resident of Western Judicial Division, whose term of office shall begin from his or their appointment and qualification and to end June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven. That all the provisions of this act applicable to the four special judges directed and appointed shall be applicable to the two special judges authorized to be appointed under this section, except as to the provisions that the appointment shall be made on or before July first, nineteen hundred and thirty-five. (1927, c. 206, s. 3; 1929, c. 137, s. 3; 1931, c. 29, s. 3; 1933, c. 217, s. 3; 1935, c. 97, s. 3.)

§ 1435(g). Extent of authority.—The authority herein pursuant to article four, section eleven, of the constitution of North Carolina, conferred upon the governor to appoint such special judges shall extend to regular as well as special terms of the superior court, with either civil or criminal jurisdiction, or both, as may be designated by the statutes or by the governor pursuant to law. (1927, c. 206, s. 4; 1929, c. 137, s. 4; 1931, c. 29, s. 4; 1933, c. 217, s. 4; 1935, c. 97, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—This section was re-enacted by the amendment of 1935 without change.

§ 1435(h). Jurisdiction as of regular judges.—Such special judges during the time noted in their commission shall have all the jurisdiction which is now or may be hereafter lawfully exercised by the regular judges of the superior courts in the courts which they are appointed or assigned by the governor to hold, and shall have power to determine all matters and injunctions, receiverships, motions, habeas corpus proceedings and special proceedings or an appeal otherwise properly before them; but writs of injunction, orders to show cause, and other remedial or amendatory writs, orders and notices shall be returnable before them only in the county where the suit, proceeding or other cause is pending unless such judge is then holding the courts of that district, in which case the same may be returnable before him as before the regular judge of the superior court; and the same, when issued by any such special judge, may always be made returnable by him before the resident or presiding superior court judge of each district to the same extent and in the same manner as any superior court judge might do in like case. (1927, c. 206, s. 5; 1929, c. 137, s. 5; 1931, c. 29, s. 5; 1933, c. 217, s. 5; 1935, c. 97, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—This section was re-enacted without change by the 1935 amendment.

Special Judge to Hold Single Term—Motion for Alimony. —Where a special judge has been authorized under commission of the Governor to hold a term of court in only one county of a district, he may not issue an order for alimony, attorney's fees and costs in a proceeding in an action for divorce a vinculo, continued to be heard before a judge regularly holding the terms of court in that district and this being determinative of the appeal the question is not presented as to whether it was required that the appellant should make it appear by the Governor's commission, or otherwise, that the regular judge assigned was unable to attend and hold courts, etc. N. C. Const. Art. IV, §§ 10 and 11. Reid v. Reid, 199 N. C. 740, 155 S. E. 719.

§ 1435(i). Salary; expenses; terms; practice of law.—The special judges so appointed shall receive the same salary and traveling expenses as now are, or may hereafter be, paid or allowd to judges of the superior court for holding their regularly assigned courts, and they shall hold all such regular and special terms of court as they may be directed and assigned by the governor to hold, without additional compensation; Provided, that no person appointed under this act shall engage in the private practice of law. (1927, c. 206, s. 6; 1929, c. 137, s. 6; 1931, c. 29, s. 6; 1933, c. 217, s. 6; 1935, c. 97, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—This section was re-enacted without change by the 1935 amendment.

§ 1435(j). Authority to settle case on appeal.—Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit such special judges from setting cases on appeal and making all proper orders in regard thereto after the time for which they were commissioned has expired. (1927, c. 206, s. 7; 1929, c. 137, s. 7; 1931, c. 29, s. 7; 1933, c. 217, s. 7; 1935, c. 97, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—This section was re-enacted without change by the 1935 amendment.

§ 1435(k). Conflicting law repealed.—All laws and clauses of laws which may be in conflict with the seven preceding sections, to the extent of such conflict, are hereby repealed: Provided, that nothing herein shall in any manner affect sections 1435(a) and 3884(a) of the Consolidated Statutes. (1929, c. 137, s. 8; 1931, c. 29, s. 8; 1931, c. 217, s. 8; 1935, c. 97, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—This section was re-enacted without change by the 1935 amendment.

Art. 5. Jurisdiction

§ 1436. Original jurisdiction. — The superior court has original jurisdiction of all civil actions whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is not given to some other court; and of all criminal actions in which the punishment may exceed a fine of fifty dollars, or imprisonment for thirty days; and of all such affrays as shall be committed within one mile of the place where, and during the time, such court is being held; and of all offenses whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is given to justices of the peace, if some justice of the peace shall not within twelve months after the commission of the offense proceed to take official cognizance thereof. (Rev., s. 1500; Code, s. 922; 1899, c. 504, s. 2; Const., Art. IV, ss. 12, 27; 1879, c. 92, s. 11; 1881, c. 210.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Constitutionality of Section.—The General Assembly has constitutional authority to distribute among the other courts prescribed in the Constitution that portion of judicial power and jurisdiction which does not pertain to the Supreme Court. Const., Art. IV, sec. 12; Williams v. Williams, 188 N. C. 728, 125 S. E. 482.

The constitutional jurisdiction of the superior court, generally, may be stated as intermediate between the Supreme Court and the courts of justices of the peace. Mott v. Board, 126 N. C. 866, 36 S. E. 330.

Construction with Other Sections. — This section defining the jurisdiction of the superior court, means only the jurisdiction which is necessary to be set out in good faith to confer original jurisdiction on that court of the action, and must be construed in connection with section 507, authorizing a joinder of additional causes of action, which may be of "any" amount, and sec. 519, par. 2, and sec. 521, pars. 1 and 2, authorizing counterclaims also, without any limitation as to the amount. Either of these three sections is as valid as the other, and all three must be construed together. There is no conflict between them. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Distribution of Jurisdiction Question of Procedure.—The interpretation of the Constitution and statutes as to the distribution of jurisdiction among the superior and inferior courts, and courts of the justices of the peace, involves no rule of property, but only of procedure. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

General Jurisdiction of Superior Court.—The jurisdiction of the superior court is general and not limited, except in the sense that it has been narrowed from time to time by carving out a portion of this general jurisdiction and giving it, either exclusively or concurrently, to other courts. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

The superior court, under the provisions of this section, has exclusive original jurisdiction in all cases when it is not given to some other court. State v. Waldrop, 63 N. C. 507, 508.

The superior court is a court of general common-law jurisdiction, with power to try all actions founded on contract, where the principal sum demanded is above $200, and such other actions which have been or may be allotted to it by the General Assembly, within the limits of the constitution. Walton v. Walton, 80 N. C. 26.

The superior court is one of general jurisdiction, being the highest court of original jurisdiction in the State, and it may take cognizance of all suits, which are not taken from it by statute. State v. Garland, 29 N. C. 48, 49.

A nonresident plaintiff may maintain an action against the initial and nonresident carrier, the cause being transitory. McGovern v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 180 N. C. 219, 104 S. E. 534.

Power to Give Complete Relief.—Where superior court acquires jurisdiction of any part of the matter involved in a suit it will proceed to determine the whole. Baker v. Carter, 127 N. C. 92, 37 S. E. 81.

Action Wrongfully Instituted.—Where an action is wrongfully brought before the clerk of the superior court and is taken to the superior court by appeal, the superior court having original jurisdiction, it will be retained for hearing. Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116; Smith v. Gudger, 133 N. C. 627, 45 S. E. 955; In re Anderson, 132 N. C. 243, 43 S. E. 649.

Whether Action in Tort or on Contract.—To determine whether an action is brought in tort or on contract the complaint alone will be considered, and where the complaint alleges the wrongful demand of one hundred dollars by the defendant of the plaintiff's wife, as money due to the defendant under a mistake in the payment of a check, and alleges that the money was paid the defendant by plaintiff's wife upon insistent demand, the complaint alleges an action in tort within the original jurisdiction of the superior court under const. art. 4, § 27, and this and section 1474, and not an action on contract within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace under § 1473. Roebuck v. Short, 196 N. C. 61, 144 S. E. 515.

Demurrer for Lack of Jurisdiction. — Where it appears from the complaint in an action brought in the superior court that a good cause of action is alleged in the amount cognizable only in the court of the justice of the peace, and recovery cannot be had for the difference in amount necessary to sustain the jurisdiction of the superior court, a demurrer should be sustained. Williams v. Williams, 188 N. C. 728, 125 S. E. 482.

Construction of Complaint.—Allegations of a complaint are construed liberally in the pleader's favor with a view to substantial justice between the parties, and where the question of jurisdiction between the superior court and that of a justice of the peace arises, depending upon the amount involved, and whether the action is ex contractu or ex delicto, the courts are disposed to construe the complaint in favor of the jurisdiction chosen. Mitchem v. Pasour, 173 N. C. 487, 92 S. E. 322.

Quoted in Albertson v. Albertson, 207 N. C. 547, 549, 178 S. E. 352.

II. ACTIONS EX CONTRACTU.

A. Jurisdiction Generally.

Editor's Note.—Reference must be had to section 1473 wherein exclusive original jurisdiction of all civil actions founded on contract, subject to two exceptions therein mentioned, is given to the justices of the peace.

When Jurisdiction Assumed. — By this section exclusive original jurisdiction is conferred on courts of a justice of the peace in actions ex contractu where the amount demanded does not exceed the sum of two hundred dollars, and in the superior court where the demand exceeds that sum, the jurisdiction of the latter court depending upon whether from the pleadings it may be seen that it was made in good faith, and whether the allegations of the complaint sufficiently allege a good cause of action to sustain the jurisdiction sought. Williams v. Williams, 188 N. C. 728, 125 S. E. 482.

Test.—The aggregate sum demanded in good faith is the test of jurisdiction. Boyd v. Roanoke, etc., R. R., 132 N. C. 184, 186, 43 S. E. 631; Martin v. Goode, 111 N. C. 288, 289, 16 S. E. 232.

Amendment after Verdict.—Where a complaint does not state the sum demanded, and a verdict is rendered for less than $200, the trial court may allow the complaint to be amended after verdict so as to make the claim more than $200, and the superior court has jurisdiction if the claim was made in good faith. Boyd v. Roanoke R., etc., Co., 132 N. C. 184, 43 S. E. 631.

B. Essentials.

1. The Amount.

a. In General.

Separate Items.—Where the items of an account are incurred under different contracts, an action may be brought on each item before a justice of the peace, the separate item being less than $200. Copland v. Tel. Co., 136 N. C. 11, 48 S. E. 501.

Under Single Contract.—Where a single contract is made for furnishing certain specified articles, at prices fixed for each, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to "split up" the account and recover upon each item. Jarrett v. Self, 90 N. C. 478.

Action to Recover Loan.—The superior court has not original jurisdiction of an action by a stockholder in an insurance company doing business as a building and loan association, against the company, to recover an overpayment of interest on a loan, where the amount sought to be recovered is less than $200. Gillam v. Life Ins. Co., 121 N. C. 369, 28 S. E. 470.

Waiver of Tort.—The superior court possesses no jurisdiction in actions in which a tort is waived and suit is brought on an implied contract for a claim less than $200. Winslow v. Weith, 66 N. C. 432.

Less Than Statutory Amount.—In an action, founded on an implied contract, by the sheriff against his deputy for a misfeasance in office, the superior court has no jurisdiction where the amount demanded is less than $200. Latham v. Rollins, 72 N. C. 454.

Where Recovery of Jurisdictional Amount Impossible.—The superior court has no original jurisdiction of a legal cause of action, founded on contract, when in no event can the plaintiff recover as much as $200. Howard v. Mutual, etc., Life Ins. Ass'n, 125 N. C. 49, 34 S. E. 199; Sloan v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 126 N. C. 487, 36 S. E. 21.

b. Previous Remission.

The fact that plaintiff has remitted damages in excess of $200 in his action sued on in the justice's court does not necessarily oust the jurisdiction of the superior court in an action brought on the same contract there. Brock v. Scott, 159 N. C. 513, 75 S. E. 724.

But the superior court has no jurisdiction of an action to recover upon a running account of $312, where it is shown that from time to time the defendant had reduced the amount by sundry payments to a sum under $200 at the time the action is brought. Wiserman v. Witherow, 90 N. C. 140.

2. Good Faith.

Generally.—It is the amount demanded in good faith (definable as an honest purpose plus relation to the facts alleged in the complaint as a whole which reasonably tend to support it), that fixes the jurisdiction of the court.

Thompson v. Southern Express Co., 144 N. C. 389, 57 S. E. 18; Wooten v. Biggs Drug Co., 169 N. C. 64, 85 S. E. 140.

While the sum demanded ordinarily determines the jurisdiction, yet the plaintiff must make his demand in good faith and not for the purpose of giving the court jurisdiction. Wiserman v. Witherow, 90 N. C. 140, and cases cited under analysis line "Essentials" II, B.

Bona Fide Contention.—In an action involving the construction of a contract, where it is apparent that there was a bona fide contention for more than $200, the superior court has jurisdiction. Horner School v. Westcott, 124 N. C. 518, 32 S. E. 885.

III. ACTIONS EX DELICTO.

For full treatment of subject matter, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 895.

Constitution and Statute.—Under our Constitution and Statute jurisdiction is conferred upon a justice of the peace concurrent with that of the superior court of all actions of tort wherein the plaintiff, in good faith, states or limits his demand at fifty dollars, or less. Houser v. Bonsal & Co., 149 N. C. 51, 62 S. E. 776, and cases cited.

Failure to Prove Allegation in Entirety.—Where a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the superior court is alleged in good faith, jurisdiction is not lost by failure to prove the allegation in its entirety, and in an action in tort the superior court has jurisdiction though the sum demanded is less than $200. Fields v. Brown, 160 N. C. 295, 76 S. E. 8.

Conversion.—The superior court has jurisdiction of an action for damages for the conversion of property where the amount claimed is one hundred and twenty-five dollars. Asher v. Reizenstein, 105 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 889.

Deceit and False Warranty.—An action for deceit and false warranty, in the sale of a horse, is cognizable in the superior court, though the damages claimed amount only to fifty dollars. Asher v. Gray, 88 N. C. 190.

In Long v. Fields, 104 N. C. 221, 10 S. E. 253, it was said: "It has been settled by a line of decisions in this court, and manifestly upon mature consideration, that where there is a warranty of soundness in the sale of a horse, the vendee may declare in tort for a false warranty and add a count in deceit, or, under the new procedure, a second cause of action in the nature of deceit, and though the sum demanded be less than $200 the action will not be deemed one founded on contract, and the superior court will have jurisdiction." Bullinger v. Marshall, 70 N. C. 520; Ashe v. Gray, 88 N. C. 190; S. C., 90 N. C. 137; Harvey v. Hambright, 98 N. C. 446, 4 S. E. 187.

Same—Proof of Guilty Knowledge.—The complaint being for a tort, sustains the jurisdiction, though the charge of a guilty knowledge of the falsity of the representations which influenced the plaintiff in making the contract of exchange may not have been proved, and for the want of which no issue was asked to be made up. Fields v. Brown, 160 N. C. 295, 300, 76 S. E. 8.

Waiver of Tort.—Plaintiff may waive the tort and sue in contract. Bullinger v. Marshall, 70 N. C. 520; McDonald v. Cannon, etc., Co., 82 N. C. 245, but where this course is pursued, it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to allege in good faith a claim amounting to more than $200. Winslow v. Weith, 66 N. C. 432.

Where, in an action for damages in the sum of $125, for the conversion of certain cotton, the complaint alleged that the plaintiff sold to the defendants two bales of cotton at a certain price per pound on the terms that the price was to be paid down and no title to pass until the price was paid, and the defendants, on getting possession of the cotton, refused to pay the price, it was held, that the superior court had jurisdiction. McDonald v. Cannon, etc., Co., 82 N. C. 245. In such case the plaintiffs might have affirmed the contract and sued for the price agreed to be paid (less than $200), and then a justice of the peace would have had jurisdiction of the action. Id.

IV. CRIMINAL ACTIONS.

A. Generally.

The superior court has original jurisdiction of assaults and batteries; 1st, when a deadly weapon is used; 2nd, when serious damage is done; 3rd, when the offense was committed six months (now twelve months) before the indictment was found, and no justice of the peace has taken cognizance of the offense. State v. Cunningham, 94 N. C. 824. See also, State v. Phillips, 104 N. C. 786, 10 S. E. 463.

As to assault with dangerous or deadly weapon, see 2 N. C. Enc. Dig. 21 et seq., 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 187 et seq.

Jurisdiction Attaches for All Crimes Included.—Having acquired cognizance of an imputed crime, which was assault with intent to commit rape, the court may proceed to dispose of the subordinate misdemeanor, of which it could not have taken jurisdiction as a distinct substantive offense until after the lapse of the specified time without judicial action commenced before a justice, it being not the purpose of the legislation to arrest further proceedings when the assumed jurisdiction was rightful, and neither offense is outside of that jurisdiction ultimately. State v. Reaves, 85 N. C. 553, 554.

Charge Different from Case Made Out.—Where the indictment charges an assault with a deadly weapon, but the proof shows a simple assault, committed within less than six (now twelve) months since the finding of the bill, the jurisdiction of the superior court is not ousted, as the cases in which this would happen are limited to those in which the charge in itself is of a simple assault. State v. Fesperman, 108 N. C. 770, 771, 13 S. E. 14.

Manner of Excepting to Jurisdiction.—Exception to the jurisdiction of the superior court, for that six months (now twelve) had not elapsed, should be made, not by a motion to quash or in arrest of judgment, but by a prayer for instructions to the jury to acquit. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495.

Misdemeanors.—The superior court has exclusive jurisdiction of misdemeanor where the punishment is not limited to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days. Washington v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33.

B. Essentials of Indictment.

Twelve Month Period.—An indictment for an affray need not aver that the offense was committed more than six months (now twelve) before the finding of the bill and that no justice has taken jurisdiction. State v. Moore, 82 N. C. 660.

Failure of Justice of Peace to Assume Jurisdiction. — When the superior court takes cognizance of such cases as the justice of the peace fail to assume jurisdiction of, it is not necessary to aver the fact of their omission in the indictment in order to confer jurisdiction on the superior court. State v. Porter, 101 N. C. 713, 714, 7 S. E. 902. Nor is it material that the offense is alleged to have been committed on a day more than six months (now twelve) before the finding of the indictment, in the indictment itself, or the date is not traversable and is not fixed on the verdict. Id.

Use of Deadly Weapon.—This section does not render it necessary that a bill found by the grand jury of the superior court for an assault and battery should aver that a deadly weapon was used, that any serious damage was done, that six months had elapsed before the finding of the bill, or that the offense was committed within one mile of the court during the session thereof. The defendant, under the plea of not guilty, may negative the existence of the jurisdictional facts. State v. Taylor, 83 N. C. 602.

Matter of Defense. — Upon the trial of an indictment for simple assault, the superior court prima facie has jurisdiction, but it is open to the defendant to show that the offense was committed within six months (now twelve) of the finding of the bill. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495.

V. EQUITABLE JURISDICTION.

Generally.—The superior court possesses the same equitable jurisdiction, when not limited by statute, formerly exercised by courts of equity. Seattle v. Seattle, 141 N. C. 553, 54 S. E. 445.

Interpleader.—Where the controversy involves an action in the nature of a bill of interpleader to determine the right of two adverse claimants to a fund, jurisdiction of the superior court attached upon the ground that it is an exercise of the powers of the court enforceable by will in equity under the old system. Timber Co. v. Wells, 171 N. C. 262, 88 S. E. 327.

Foreclosure of Mortgages.—Because of the equity growing out of the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee when the former seeks to have the mortgaged premises foreclosed for the nonpayment of the debt, the superior court has jurisdiction when the amount secured is for a less sum than two hundred dollars. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Subrogation.—The superior court has jurisdiction of an action by a creditor seeking to be subrogated to the rights of other creditors of the same debtor whose claims he had paid. Fidelity Co. v. Jordan, 134 N. C. 236, 46 S. E. 496.

To Establish Claim against Married Woman.—A proceeding to establish a claim against a feme covert and to have a lien declared for materials furnished, etc., must be brought before a justice, if the amount claimed is under $200. It is when the proceeding is not under the statute, but is a civil action, that the superior court has jurisdiction. Smaw v. Cohen, 95 N. C. 85.

Debtor a Lunatic.—The superior court has jurisdiction to hear and determine an action instituted by a creditor of a lunatic for the recovery of a debt contracted prior to the lunacy. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193.

§ 1437. Concurrent jurisdiction.—In all cases in which by any statute original jurisdiction of criminal actions has been taken from the superior court and vested exclusively in courts of inferior jurisdiction, such exclusive jurisdiction is hereby divested, and jurisdiction of such actions shall be concurrent and exercised by the court first taking cognizance thereof. Appeals shall be, as heretofore, to the superior court from all judgments of such inferior courts: Provided, that this section shall not apply to the counties of Cabarrus, Forsyth, Gaston, Mecklenburg, Surry, and Union. (1919, c. 299; 1923, c. 98.)

Editor's Note.—By the Public Laws of 1923 the county of Union was added to those to which the provisions of this section are not to apply.

Only One Prosecution.—Where two courts have concurrent jurisdiction of an offense, the judgment of that one which first passes judgment is a good defense against a prosecution in the other court for the same offense. State v. Bowers, 94 N. C. 910.

Prisoner Bound Over to Superior Court.—Where a recorder's court and the superior courts have concurrent jurisdiction of a criminal offense and the judge of the former court acts within his powers of committing magistrate, and binds the prisoner over to the superior court, objection that the recorder's court had thereby taken jurisdiction of the offense is untenable, and neither will a motion to quash the indictment, nor a plea in abatement be sustained. State v. Shemwell, 180 N. C. 718, 104 S. E. 885.

Applied in State v. Everhardt, 203 N. C. 610, 166 S. E. 738.

§ 1438. Jurisdiction in vacation or at term.—In all cases where the superior court in vacation has jurisdiction, and all of the parties unite in the proceedings, they may apply for relief to the superior court in vacation, or in term time, at their election. (Rev., s. 1501; Code, c. 10, s. 230; 1871-2, c. 3.)

As to proceedings in vacation. see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 865.

Motions.—After leaving the bench for a term of the superior court to expire by limitation, the juage cannot hear motions or other matters outside of the courtroom except by consent, unless they are such as are cognizable at chambers. May v. Nat. Fire Ins. Co., 172 N. C. 795, 90 S. E. 890.

Interlocutory Order.—It seems that the superior court has power to make an amendment to an interlocutory order in an ancillary proceeding out of term. Coater Bros. v. Wilkes, 94 N. C. 174, 175.

Consent of Parties.—A judge has no power to render judgment after the expiration of the term of court without the consent of parties. Hardin v. Ray, 89 N. C. 364.

Same—Civil Actions.—By consent, the superior court can grant judgment in civil cases in vacation. Coater Bros. v. Wilkes, 94 N. C. 174, 175.

The Resident Judge.—The resident judge of a district has no other power within such district in vacation than any other judge of the superior court. State v. Ray, 97 N. C. 510, 1 S. E. 876.

§ 1439. Appellate jurisdiction.—The superior court has appellate jurisdiction of all issues of law or of fact, determined by a clerk of the superior court or a justice of the peace, and of all appeals from inferior courts for error assigned, in matters of law, as provided by law. (Rev., s. 1502; Const., Art. IV, ss. 12, 27; Code, s. 923.)

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction in general, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 833 et seq., 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. et seq. As to appeal from clerk to judge, see section 633-637 and notes there placed. As to appeals from justices of the peace, see section 1528 and notes thereto. As to appeal from corporation commission, see section 1097 and notes thereto. As to appeal from recorder's court, see section 1546 and notes thereto.

General Appellate Power.—The Constitution and statutes vest in the superior court general appellate and supervisory powers over the judicial action of all the inferior courts of the State. Taylor v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 84, 87 S. E. 987.

Appeals from Justice of Peace. — In cases where bills are found in the superior court, its jurisdiction is original. But in cases of appeal from justices of the peace its jurisdiction is derivative, and it has no more or greater jurisdiction than the justice of the peace had; and if the justice had none, the superior court has none. Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 350, 353, 83 S. E. 627.

§ 1440. Cases transferred from former courts.—All suits, petitions and other proceedings pending in the late courts of equity, and in the late courts of pleas and quarter sessions, and not determined by final judgment or decree, and all such cases wherein any act was decreed to be done or deed to be executed, and said act was not done or deed executed, may be transferred to the superior court of the county in which they were pending, at the instance of any person interested. And the superior court shall have power to make all orders, judgments and decrees that shall be necessary for finally adjudicating and settling the same. (Rev., s. 1503; Code, s. 944; 1871-2, c. 161; 1873-4, c. 183; 1874-5, c. 81; 1876-7, c. 9.)

Who May Transfer.—"Any party interested" has, under this section, the right to have proceedings lately pending in the courts of equity and pleas and quarter sessions, and not determined in final judgment, transferred to the superior court. Herman v. Watts, 107 N C. 646, 651, 12 S. E. 437.

Waiver of Review.—Where, in a suit instituted in the late court of equity, and transferred to the superior court docket under the provisions of this section parties agreed that the judge should find the facts, and that he should examine witnesses orally, and only the substance of the oral evidence was sent up with the record; it was held, that the right to have the findings of fact reviewed by the Supreme Court was waived. Runnion v. Ramsay, 93 N. C. 410.

Art. 6. Judicial Districts and Terms of Court

§ 1441. Number of districts.—The state shall be divided into twenty superior court judicial districts, numbered first to twentieth, composed of the counties hereafter designated in this chapter. (1913, c. 63; 1913, c. 196.)

§ 1442. Eastern and western judicial divisions.—The state shall be divided into two judicial divisions, the Eastern and Western Judicial Divisions. The counties which are now or may hereafter be included in the judicial districts from one to ten, both inclusive, shall constitute the Eastern Division, and the counties which are now or may hereafter be included in the judicial districts from eleven to twenty, both inclusive, shall constitute the Western Division. The judicial districts shall retain their numbers from one up to twenty, and all such other districts as may from time to time be added by the creation of new districts shall be numbered consecutively. (1915, c. 15.)

§ 1443. Terms of court.—A superior court shall be held by a judge thereof at the courthouse in each county. The twenty judicial districts of the state shall be composed of the counties designated in this section, and the superior courts in the several counties shall be opened and held in each year at the times herein set forth. Each court shall continue in session one week, and be for the trial of criminal and civil cases, except as otherwise provided, unless the business thereof shall be sooner disposed of. Each county shall have the number of regular weeks of superior court as set out in this section. (1913, cc. 63, 196.)

Eastern Division

First District

The first district shall be composed of the following counties, and the superior courts thereof shall be held at the following times, to-wit:

Camden—First Monday after the first Monday in March, and the third Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; 1921, c. 105.)

Pasquotank—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March for the trial of civil cases only; third Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks, the first week for the trial of civil cases only and the second week for the trial of criminal cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in March for the trial of civil cases only; ninth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks for the trial of civil cases only; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March for the trial of criminal cases only; fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks for the trial of civil cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in September for the trial of civil cases only; fifth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks for the trial of civil cases only; ninth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks, the first week for the trial of civil cases only and the second week for the trial of criminal cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess., 1913, c. 51; 1921, c. 105; 1923, c. 232; 1929, c. 167; 1933, c. 129.)

Perquimans—Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March, for civil cases only, for which term a special judge to be assigned by the governor; sixth Monday after the first Monday in March; eighth Monday after the first Monday in September. 1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess., 1913, c. 51; 1931, c. 6; 1933, c. 286.)

Chowan—Fourth Monday after the first Monday in March; first Monday after the first Monday in September; fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; 1931, c. 87; 1933, c. 456.)

Gates—Third Monday after the first Monday in March; eleventh Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; 1935, c. 70.)

Dare—Twelfth Monday after the first Monday in March; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51.)

Tyrrell—Seventh Monday after the first Monday in March; fourth Monday after the first Monday in September, and for this term a special Judge may be assigned; fourth Monday before the first Monday in March, for civil cases only. Upon recommendation of the local bar, the board of commissioners for the county of Tyrrell, at their option, may abolish and suspend the opening and holding, in any year, of the term above provided for the week commencing on the fourth Monday before the first Monday in March, by notifying the governor and the judge scheduled to hold said term, at least thirty days prior to the date for opening same, that such term of court is not desired. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; 1919, c. 128, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 23, s. 1; 1921, c. 83; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 19; 1923, c. 124; 1927, c. 23; 1931, c. 92; 1933, c. 126.)

Hyde—Eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March; sixth Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196.)

In addition to the terms of court now provided by law to be held in Hyde County, the following term of court shall be opened and held in each year, except as hereinafter provided, in the manner and at the time herein set forth, to-wit: To convene on the third Monday in August of each year and to continue for one week for the trial of civil cases only. If the judge regularly assigned to the district in which said court is situate be unable because of another regular term of court in said district, or for other causes, to hold any term of court provided in section one hereof, the Governor may appoint a judge to hold such term from among the regular or emergency judges. If in the opinion of the local bar of Hyde County, as attested by a written agreement signed by each and every member thereof, it is not advisable or necessary to hold said additional term of court, and such opinion being attested by a written agreement furnished to and filed with the board of county commissioners of Hyde County on or before the first Monday in August next preceding the day for the convening of said additional term, then such additional term may not be held on the third Monday in August of that year as provided by this act. When said agreement has been signed by each and every member of the local bar as herein provided, then the chairman of the board of county commissioners shall immediately notify the judge who has been assigned to hold said term of said court that said term will not be held and no jury for said term shall be drawn; but, if no such agreement shall be filed on or before the first Monday in August, then it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners to cause the jury to be drawn in the way and manner now prescribed by law for the drawing of a jury for the trial of civil cases in regular terms of superior court. (1913, c. 196; 1935, c. 191.)

Beaufort—Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March for two weeks, the first week for criminal cases only, and the second week for criminal and civil cases; second Monday before the first Monday in March for two weeks for civil cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in March for criminal cases only, no grand jury to be drawn for this term; fifth Monday after the first Monday in March for civil cases only; ninth Monday after the first Monday in March for two weeks; the first week for the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five for the trial of civil cases only; the second week to be a mixed term with the criminal docket having precedence, with a grand jury. After the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five both weeks of said term for the trial of civil cases only. Second Monday after the first Monday in September for the trial of criminal cases with a grand jury in attendance, fourth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks for civil cases only; ninth Monday after the first Monday in September for criminal cases and consent trials and decrees in civil cases; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in September for civil cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; 1919, c. 128, ss. 3, 4; 1927, c. 111; 1931, cc. 4, 8, 87; 1933, c. 3; c. 456, s. 2; 1935, c. 176.)

Thirteenth District

The thirteenth district shall be composed of the following counties, and the superior courts shall be held at the following times, to-wit:

Union—Fifth Monday before the first Monday in March, for criminal cases; third Monday after the first Monday in March, for civil cases; fifth Monday before the first Monday in September, for criminal cases. Sixth Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks, the second week for civil cases only; second Monday before the first Monday in March, and second Monday before the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks; ninth Monday after the first Monday in March; the last three terms for civil cases only.

In the first two terms of court for Union County for the trial of criminal cases, if it shall appear to the clerk of the superior court that the criminal docket will not be sufficient to take up the entire term, he may make or cause to be made a calendar of civil cases as is made at other terms, and such cases shall be tried at such term in the same manner as if it were a civil term.

If it shall appear to the county commissioners for the county of Union, prior to the drawing of a jury or grand jury for any criminal term of court, that there is no prisoner in jail in the county or that the criminal docket at such term is not sufficient to justify the holding of the term, then the clerk is not to make or cause to be made a calendar of civil cases to be tried at said term, and the county commissioners, within their discretion, may not draw a jury or grand jury for such term, and notice shall be given immediately to the judge not to hold said court.

If it shall appear to the board of commissioners of Union County, thirty days before the beginning of the term held the third Monday after the first Monday in March that the condition of the criminal docket, and the number of prisoners in jail, make it necessary that said March term should be used as a criminal term, then said board of commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered within their discretion to draw a grand jury for said term, and to give thirty days' notice in some local paper that criminal cases would be tried at said term, and all criminal process and undertakings returnable to a subsequent term shall be returnable to said March term. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 22; 1915, c. 72; 1917, cc. 28, 117; 1921, c. 55.)

If it shall appear to the county commissioners for the county of Union, prior to the drawing of a jury for the civil term of court to be held the third Monday after the first Monday in March, and/or the civil term to be held on the ninth Monday after the first Monday in March, that the condition of the civil docket does not justify holding said term, then the clerk shall not make, or cause to be made, a calendar of civil cases to be tried at the said term and the county commissioners may not draw a jury for such term and notice shall be given immediately to the judge not to hold said court. (1933, c. 112.)

Anson—Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March, for criminal cases only; first Monday in March for civil cases only; sixth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in March, for civil cases only; first Monday after the first Monday in September, for civil cases only; third Monday after the first Monday in September, for criminal cases only; tenth Monday after the first Monday in September, for civil cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 16; 1923, c. 112; 1927, c. 181; 1929, c. 157.)

Scotland—First Monday after the first Monday in March, for one week for the trial of both criminal and civil cases; eighth Monday after the first Monday in March for one week for the trial of civil cases only; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March for one week for the trial of criminal and civil cases; eighth Monday after the first Monday in September for one week for the trial of civil cases only; twelfth Monday after first Monday in September for two weeks for the trial of criminal and civil cases. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 22; 1917, c. 105; 1923, c. 178; 1933, c. 116.)

Moore—Sixth Monday before the first Monday in March, for the trial of criminal cases only, to continue for one week; third Monday before the first Monday in March, for the trial of civil cases only, to continue for one week; third Monday after the first Monday in March, for the trial of civil cases only, to continue for two weeks; eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, the first week for the trial of criminal cases only and the second week for the trial of civil cases only; third Monday before the first Monday in September, to continue for one week, for the trial of criminal cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks for the trial of civil cases only; fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for one week, for the trial of civil cases only.

Each of the terms designated for the trial of criminal cases shall also have jurisdiction to hear motions in civil actions on notice; and civil cases requiring a jury may, by consent of parties thereto, be tried at such terms. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 30; 1915, c. 64; 1929, c. 229.)

Richmond — Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; fifth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; sixth Monday before the first Monday in September to continue for one week; fourth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week, all for the trial of criminal cases; fourth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; second Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; seventh Monday before the first Monday in September to continue for one week; first Monday in September to continue for one week; ninth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week, all for the trial of civil cases.

Each of the terms designated for the trial of criminal cases shall also be the return term for such civil process as may be returnable at term, and for the hearing of motions in civil actions; and civil cases requiring a jury, may, by consent of the parties thereto, be tried at such criminal terms.

The governor shall assign an emergency, or any other judge, to hold any of the terms of the superior court for Richmond County when the judge regularly holding the courts in said district for any cause is unable to hold any of said terms. (1913, c. 196; 1915, c. 72; 1917, s. 117; 1919, c. 98; 1921, c. 77; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 16; 1923, cc. 112, 184; 1925, c. 241; 1931, c. 82; 1935, c. 3.)

Stanly—Fourth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only; fourth Monday after the first Monday in March; tenth Monday after the first Monday in March, for civil cases only; eighth Monday before the first Monday in September; first Monday in September to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only; fifth Monday after the first Monday in September, for civil cases only; eleventh Monday after the first Monday in September.

Each of the terms set for the trial of criminal cases shall also be the return term for such civil process as may be returnable at term; and for the hearing of motions in civil actions; and for the trial of civil cases requiring a jury where issues are drawn by consent of the parties thereto; and for the trial of actions for divorce and other actions in which no answer has been filed when the time for filing the answer has expired.

The governor shall assign an emergency, or any other judge, to hold any of the terms of the superior court for Stanly County when the judge regularly holding the courts in said district for any cause is unable to hold any of said terms. (1913, c. 196; 1933, c. 240.)

Fourteenth District

The fourteenth district shall be composed of the following counties, and the superior courts thereof shall be held at the following times, to-wit:

Gaston — Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March; first Monday after the first Monday in March; seventh Monday after the first Monday in March; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March; sixth Monday before the first Monday in September; first Monday after the first Monday in September; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for one week, for the trial of criminal cases exclusively; sixth Monday before the first Monday in March; second Monday after the first Monday in March; eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March; fifth Monday before the first Monday in September; second Monday after the first Monday in September; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks, for the trial of civil cases exclusively: Provided, that where there is a conflict in any of the above courts with the terms of court prescribed for Mecklenburg County, a special or emergency judge shall be assigned by the Governor to hold said court in Gaston County, and such special or emergency judge shall have all the powers conferred upon any resident or presiding judge.

At all criminal terms of said court civil trials which do not require a jury may be heard by consent of the parties; and at all criminal terms of said court upon five days notice to the adverse party any order, application for injunction, receivership, motions, etc., may be heard in same manner as at civil terms. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 12; 1915, c. 153; 1919, c. 187; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 39; 1925, c. 237; 1931, c. 242.)

(1929, c. 213.)

Madison—The fourth Monday in February, the fourth Monday in March, the fourth Monday in April, the fourth Monday in May, the fourth Monday in August, the fourth Monday in September, the fourth Monday in October, the fourth Monday in November. (1913, c. 196; 1915, c. 117; 1917, c. 79; 1929, c. 205; 1931, c. 25.)

Twentieth District

The twentieth district shall be composed of the following counties, and the superior courts thereof shall be held at the following times, to-wit:

Cherokee—Sixth Monday before the first Monday in March for civil cases only, fourth Monday after the first Monday in March; fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in March, for the trial of civil causes only: Provided, that upon request of the bar of Cherokee county the board of county commissioners need not draw a jury for this term; fourth Monday before the first Monday in September; ninth Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue two weeks. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 21; 1917, c. 114; 1923, c. 51; 1925, c. 30.)

Graham—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in March; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March, to be held for civil cases only; first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 28; 1917, c. 54; 1927, c. 245, s. 1.)

Swain—Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March, for the trial of civil cases only, to continue for two weeks; a special judge to be assigned for this court; first Monday in March; sixth Monday before the first Monday in September; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks: Provided, that the board of commissioners of Swain County may, when the public interest requires it, decline to draw a grand jury for the July term. (1913, c. 196; 1933, c. 125.)

Haywood—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only; fourth Monday before the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks; ninth Monday after the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only; eighth Monday before the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks; second Monday after the first Monday in September, for civil cases only and the twelfh Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks. (1913, c. 196; 1917, cc. 7, 114; 1923, c. 35, s. 2; 1924, c. 27.)

Jackson—Second Monday before the first Monday in March; eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March, fifth Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks. (1913, c. 196; 1933, c. 107.)

Macon—Sixth Monday after the first Monday in March; second Monday before the first Monday in September, and eleventh Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks. The board of commissioners of Macon county may, for good cause, decline to draw a jury for more than one week for any term of court provided for in this chapter. (1913, c. 196; 1923, c. 35, s. 1; 1927, c. 245, s. 1.)

Clay—Eighth Monday after the first Monday in March, and third Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks. (1913, c. 196; 1927, c. 254, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 240, as amended by c. 456, directed that its provision adding a new term for Cleveland County should be inserted where it appears in brackets. It seems that such added words should have been placed at the end of the paragraph. This new term conflicts with a term of Wautauga County, which was transferred to the Sixteenth Judicial District by Public Laws 1931, c. 424, effective on the same date as c. 456.

When Term Ends.—The term of court ends when the business is disposed of and the judge leaves the bench, and does not necessarily extend to the end of the period prescribed. May v. National etc. Co., 172 N. C. 795, 90 S. E. 890.

When the Term Embraces Sunday.—When a term of court is set by statute to begin on a certain Monday, and to last for "one week," (or two or three weeks, as the case may be), it embraces the Sunday of each week (unless sooner adjourned), and the term expires by limitation at midnight of that day. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N. C. 274, 25 S. E. 875. A verdict entered on Sunday of a week set for the duration of a court, in the absence of an earlier adjournment, is legally entered. Id.

Session at Scene of Crime.—Where at the requests of defendants, a view of the scene of a crime is granted and a short session of the court held there, no prejudicial error is committed under this section. State v. Stewart, 189 N. C. 340, 127 S. E. 260.

Applied in State v. Dalton, 206 N. C. 507, 510, 174 S. E. 422, with reference to Henderson County.

§ 1444. Civil cases at criminal terms.—At criminal terms of court, all civil process may be returned and pleadings filed which may be returned and filed at civil terms; motions in civil actions may be heard upon due notice, and trials in civil actions may be heard by consent of parties. Also motions for confirmation or rejection of referees' reports may be heard upon ten days notice and judgment entered on said reports. (Rev., s. 1507; 1901, c. 28; 1913, c. 196, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 23; 1915, cc. 68, 240; 1917, c. 13; 1931, c. 394.)

At the criminal terms of court in the counties of Anson, Bladen and Robeson, all civil process may be returned and pleadings filed which may be returned and filed at civil terms; civil actions which do not require a jury, motions and divorce cases, including jury trials in divorce cases, may be heard, and other civil actions may be heard by consent of parties. (1913, c. 28; 1915, c. 110; 1917, c. 15.)

At the criminal terms of court in the counties of Anson, Bladen, Cumberland, Durham, Gaston and Robeson, judgments by default final and by default and inquiry may be rendered in civil actions without further notice than that contained in the summons. (1913, c. 28; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 23; 1915, cc. 68, 110, 114; 1917, c. 15; 1919, c. 187; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 39.)

The term "return" means that the process must be brought back and produced in the court whence it issued with such indorsements as the law requires. Watson v. Mitchell, 108 N. C. 364, 12 S. E. 836.

Failure to Give Notice.—It is required by the provisions of this section that due notice be given of motions in civil action to be heard at a criminal term of court, and where the movant has failed to give the statutory notice of his motion, and the superior court has ordered a dismissal of the action, the judgment will be reversed on appeal. Dawkins v. Phillips, 185 N. C. 608, 116 S. E. 723.

§ 1445. No criminal business at civil terms.—No grand juries shall be drawn for the terms of court designated by law as being for the trial of civil cases exclusively, and the solicitors shall not be required to attend nor be entitled to their certificates for attendance upon any exclusively civil terms, unless there are cases on the civil docket in which they officially appear, and no criminal process shall be returnable to any term designated for the trial of civil actions alone. (Rev., s. 1508; 1901, c. 28, ss. 3, 7; 1913, c. 196.)

§ 1446. Rotation of judges.—The judges of the superior court shall hold the courts of the several judicial districts successively, according to the following order and system: The judges resident in the Eastern Judicial Division shall hold the courts for the fall term, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, as follows: The judge of the first district shall hold the courts of the fifth district; the judge of the second, the courts of the sixth; the judge of the third, the courts of the seventh; the judge of the fourth, the courts of the eighth; the judge of the fifth, the courts of the ninth; the judge of the sixth, the courts of the tenth; the judge of the seventh, the courts of the first, the judge of the eighth, the courts of the second; the judge of the ninth, the courts of the third; the judge of the tenth, the courts of the fourth; and the judges of the Eastern Judicial Division shall thereafter successively hold the courts of this division, but may make exchange of the courts as now provided by law.

The judges resident in the Western Judicial Division shall hold the courts for the fall term one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, as follows: The judge of the seventeenth district shall hold the courts of the eleventh; the judge of the eighteenth, the courts of the twelfth; the judge of the nineteenth, the courts of the thirteenth, the judge of the twentieth, the courts of the fourteenth; the judge of the eleventh, the courts of the fifteenth; the judge of the twelfth, the courts of the sixteenth; the judge of the thirteenth, the courts of the seventeenth; the judge of the fourteenth, the courts of the eighteenth; the judge of the fifteenth, the courts of the nineteenth; the judge of the sixteenth, the courts of the twentieth; and the judges resident in the Western Judicial Division shall thereafter successively hold the courts of this division, subject to such exchanges of courts as are now provided by law.

The judge riding any spring circuit shall hold all the courts which fall between January and June, both inclusive, and the judge riding any fall circuit shall hold all the courts which fall between July and December both inclusive. (Rev., s. 1509; Code, s. 1911; 1913, c. 196, ss. 4, 5, 6, 9; 1915, c. 15, ss. 3, 4; 1901, c. 28, ss. 4, 9; R. C., c. 31, s. 20; 1876-7, c. 27; 1879, c. 11; 1885, c. 180; Const. Art. 4, s. 11.)

Validity of acts de facto judge, see sec. 1432 and note.

Constitutional Provisions.—Sec. 22 of Art. IV of the Constitution, requiring the courts to be always open, must be construed in connection with sec. 11 of the same article, and does not apply to the terms of court and matters connected therewith. Delafield v. Mercer Construction Co., 115 N. C. 21, 20 S. E. 167.

A Judge Is Essential.—There can be no session of a court without a judge; hence, when the judge leaves the bench for the term, although no notice is given of the final adjournment, or it is ordered to expire by limitation, the term ends and the judge cannot hear any matters out of the courthouse, except by consent, unless it is "chambers" business. Delafield v. Mercer Construction Co., 115 N. C. 21, 20 S. E. 167.

Injunction—Failure of Judge to Hear Order.—If the judge before whom the order is made returnable fails to hear it, any judge resident in or assigned to or holding by exchange the courts of some adjoining district may hear it upon giving ten days notice to the parties interested. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 591, 17 S. E. 519.

A judge assigned to a district is the judge thereof for six months, beginning either January or July first, and where a restraining order was made returnable before such judge at a place outside of the district, and after the courts were over, but before the end of the term of assignment to the district, such judge had jurisdiction to hear the application and grant the injunction until the hearing. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519.

§ 1447. Exchange of courts.—By consent of the governor the judges may exchange the courts of a particular county or counties; and the judges resident in the western division and the judges resident in the eastern division may exchange courts or circuits with the consent of the governor; but no judge shall hold all the courts in one district oftener than once every four years. When a judge shall die or resign, his successor shall hold the courts of the district allotted to his predecessor. (Rev., s. 1511; Code, s. 913; R. C., c. 31, s. 20; 1879, c. 11; 1915, c. 15, s. 4; Const., Art. 4, s. 11.)

Under Prior Law.—Before the Act of 1879, assigning the judges to the different districts, an exchange of circuits with the consent of the Governor under the Act of 1877 was not in violation of section 11, Art. IV, of the amended Constitution. State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377.

A partial exchange of circuits between two of the judges of the superior court, with the approval of the Governor, is legal. State v. Graham, 75 N. C. 256.

Power of Legislature. — Neither does this prohibitory clause restrict the Legislature from creating an extra term of the superior court of a county and designating the resident judge to hold the same. State v. Monroe, 80 N. C. 373, 374.

Governor's Power.—When the Constitution (and this section) has clothed the Governor with the power to require a judge to hold a court in a district other than that to which he is assigned by the general law, upon certain conditions as to the fulfillment, of which the Governor must of necessity be the judge, and the Governor issues a commission, the Supreme Court will assume that, in fact, the emergency had arisen which would sanction the issuing of the commission, and the same will be recognized as valid if the Governor could, for any reason, have lawfully issued it. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Governor's Authority a Command.—The Governor can require a judge of the superior court to hold a term of the court in a county not within his own district. And when the Governor so authorizes and empowers a judge to hold such court, expressing in the commission that it is done with his consent, and under that authority, the judge holds the court, as between the judge and the suitors in the court, the consent and authority granted by the Governor is equivalent to a command. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136.

De Facto Judge.—Where the Governor issues a commission to one of the judges of the superior courts, authorizing him to hold certain terms of the superior courts, and the judge undertakes to discharge the duties required of him, he is, so far as the public and third persons are concerned a de facto judge so long as he assumes to act in that capacity, and this is so although the commission was issued without authority of law. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Upon Death of Judge.—Upon the death of one of the judges of the superior courts, the Governor has the authority under this section to require one of the other judges to hold one or more specified terms of the courts in the district assigned to the deceased judge. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Prohibitory Clause Considered.—The inhibition contained in this section applies neither to the holding by any judge of the superior court of one or more regular terms of said court by exchange with some other judge, and with the sanction of the Governor, nor to the holding of special terms under section 1450. State v. Turner, 119 N. C. 841, 845, 25 S. E. 810.

Same—Applies to Series of Courts.—The provision that "no judge (of the superior courts) shall hold the courts in the same district oftener than once in four years," is held to apply only to the series of courts forming a district over which a judge, in his riding, is to preside, and has no reference to the courts separately considered. State v. Speaks, 95 N. C. 689, 691.

§ 1448. Court adjourned by sheriff when judge not present.—If the judge of a superior court shall not be present to hold any term of a court at the time fixed therefor, he may order the sheriff to adjourn the court to any day certain during the term and on failure to hear from the judge it shall be the duty of the sheriff to adjourn the court from day to day until the fourth day of the term inclusive, unless he shall be sooner informed that the judge from any cause can not hold the term. If by sunset on the fourth day the judge shall not appear to hold the term, or if the sheriff shall be sooner advised that the judge cannot hold the term, it shall then be the duty of the sheriff to adjourn the court until the next term. (Rev., s. 1510; Code, s. 926; 1901, c. 269; 1887, c. 13.)

Presumption of Adjournment.—Where the record recited that a regular term of a superior court was opened and held Wednesday, instead of on Monday, of the week fixed by the statutes, it will be presumed that the sheriff had duly opened the court and adjourned it from day to day as provided in this section. State v. Weaver, 104 N. C. 758, 763, 10 S. E. 486.

Duty of Defendant to Attend Special Term.—A defendant bound over to answer a criminal charge at a regular term of the superior court, which term is not held in consequence of the absence of the judge, is required to attend an intervening special term subsequently appointed and held. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218.

Implied Power of Judge to Order Adjournment.—The provision in this section that the sheriff should adjourn the court from day to day until the fourth day of the term, and then for the term, in the absence of the judge who was to have held it, under the law, is subject to the provision that this shall be done "unless the sheriff shall be sooner informed that the judge, from any cause cannot hold the term," which implies the power of the judge to order an adjournment to a later day in the term. State v. Wood, 175 N. C. 809, 95 S. E. 1050.

Failure of Sheriff to Adjourn Court.—The provision in this section that where the judge fails to appear at any term until the fourth day thereof, inclusive, the sheriff shall adjourn the court until the next term, does not avoid the acts of any term where, upon the non-appearance of the judge, the sheriff did not in fact adjourn the court, and the judge afterwards actually appeared and held court. Norwood v. Thorp., 64 N. C. 682.

Where the sheriff has not continued a term of the superior court for the absence of the judge to hold the same, the judge may appear at any day within the term, and the proceedings thereafter will be valid. State v. Wood, 175 N. C. 809, 95 S. E. 1050.

All Matters Carried Over.—This section by operation of law carries all matters over to the next term, in the same plight and condition. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218.

Newly Elected Judge.—Where a newly elected judge, as successor to one who was to have held the term of a court commencing on the 30th of December, continuing for several weeks, and designated by the statute as a Spring Term, has ordered the sheriff to adjourn the court from day to day, not exceeding four days, to enable him to take the oath of office and preside, and accordingly he qualifies and holds the court, those of his acts are valid, as an officer de jure. And if not, they are valid as those of an officer de facto, and an exception to the validity of a trial of an action on that ground is untenable. State v. Harden, 177 N. C. 580, 98 S. E. 782.

Adjournment from Day to Day.—Stated in State v. McGinsey, 80 N. C. 377.

Art. 7. Special Terms of Court

§ 1449. Governor may designate judge.—The governor has the power to appoint any judge to hold special terms of the superior court in any county. (Rev., s. 1511; Code, s. 913; 1879, c. 11; Const., Art. 4, s. 11.)

See sections 1447, 1450 and notes placed thereunder.

§ 1450. Governor may order special terms.—Whenever it shall appear to the governor by the certificate of any judge, a majority of the board of county commissioners, or otherwise, that there is such an accumulation of criminal or civil actions in the superior court of any county as to require the holding of a special term for its dispatch, he shall issue an order to the judge of the judicial district in which such county is, or to any other judge of the superior court, requiring him to hold a special term of the superior court for such county, to begin on a certain Monday, not to interfere with any of the regular terms of the court of his district, and hold for such time as he may designate, unless the business be earlier disposed of. The Governor may order a special term of court to be held in any county or district during the holding of a regular term of the Superior Court in such county or district, either by a judge of the Superior Court or by any emergency judge if the dispatch of business requires it. (Rev., s. 1512; Code, s. 914, R. C., c. 31, s. 22; 1868-9, c. 273; 1876-7, c. 44; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 100.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision in this section, which was made a part hereof by the Ex. Sess. of 1924, was, at first, placed by amendment in the Ex. Sess. 1921, under section 1435(a).

In reference to this amendment it is said in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 23 "The purpose of the amendment is not entirely clear, since the original statutes already authorized the Governor to order a special term to be held in any county when necessary, and to designate a judge, including the emergency judges to hold the court."

Section Constitutional. — This section is constitutional. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Particular Class of Cases.—In appointing special terms the Governor is not bound by the certificate of the judge, so far as to confine such terms to the trial of a particular class of cases. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Regular Order Presumed.—When it appears from the record that a cause was tried at a special term of a superior court, it is presumed prima facie that an order for holding it was duly made, and that it was duly held. Sparkman v. Daughtry, 35 N. C. 168.

The power of the governor to order special terms is not restricted to instances where there is accumulation of business, nor when such fact is recited or a reason in the commission is the power of the judge restricted to the trial of indictment found before that term. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 749, 46 S. E. 21. See also note of State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247, under section 1447.

No reason need be assigned by the Governer for calling special terms. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136, 139. He is the sole judge of the evidence necessitating such action. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 977, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Must Appoint Judge.—When the governor has ordered such term as provided in this section to be held in any county of this State, it is the duty of the Governor to appoint one of the judges of the Superior Court to hold such term, and to issue to the judge appointed by him a commission authorizing him to hold such court. State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 94, 179 S. E. 450.

Plea Denying Existence of Court.—A plea of the defendant that the court was unlawfully called because the Governor was absent from the State when he attempted to order the holding of the court is properly overruled. State v. Hall, 142 N. C. 710, 55 S. E. 806.

Arraignment at Former Term.—It in not necessary that a prisoner should be arraigned and plead at a preceding regular term to the special term at which he is tried. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

§ 1451. Compensation of judge.—The judge appointed to hold a special term of court shall attend and hold such court, and shall be paid as compensation therefor at the rate of one hundred dollars per week by the county in which the special term is held. But any judge who is in a district having fewer than twenty regular weeks of court for the six months shall hold without extra compensation, if directed by the governor, enough extra weeks of court to make out twenty weeks for the six months. (Rev., s. 1512; Code, s. 914; 1913, c. 63; 1901, c. 167; R. C., c. 31, s. 22; 1868-9, c. 273; 1876-7, c. 44; 1909, c. 85, s. 1.)

Reduction of Salary.—The Constitution provides that the salaries of the judges shall not be disminished during their continuance in office. The additional compensation of one hundred dollars given to a superior court judge, by this section, for services in holding a special term, is a part of his salary, hence, any statutory provision providing for a reduction thereof is void as being unconstitutional. Buxton v. Comm., 82 N. C. 92.

§ 1452. Notice of special terms.—Whenever the governor shall call a special term of the superior court for any county, he shall notify the chairman of the board of commissioners of the county of such call, and such chairman shall take immediate steps to cause competent persons to be drawn and summoned as jurors for said term; and also to advertise the term at the courthouse and at one public place in every township of his county, or by publication of at least two weeks in some newspaper published in his county in lieu of such township advertisement. (Rev., s. 1513; Code, s. 915; 1868-9, c. 273.)

The certificate forwarded to the executive officer for the notice sent down to the county commissioners constitutes an essential part of the record of the term. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 975, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Cited in State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 92, 179 S. E. 450.

§ 1453. Certificate of attendance.—The clerk shall give the judge a certificate of attendance for the number of days occupied by the court, and the judge shall thereupon be entitled to receive from the commissioners of the county in which the court is held the compensation provided by law. (Rev., s. 1514; Code, s. 918; 1901, c. 167; 1868-9, c. 273; 1909, c. 85, s. 1; 1913, c. 63.)

§ 1454. Grand juries at special terms.—There shall be no grand jury at any special term, unless the same shall be ordered by the governor. (Rev., s. 1515; Code, s. 921; 1868-9, c. 273.)

In the absence of any order of the Governor that a grand jury be drawn at a special term, as provided by this section the indictment returned at said time is void. State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 94, 179 S. E. 450.

§ 1455. Jurisdiction.—The special terms of the superior court held in pursuance of this chapter shall have all the jurisdiction and powers that regular terms of the superior court have. (Rev., s. 1516; Code, s. 916; 1868-9, c. 273.)

See note of State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621, 625, section 1450.

Removal of Cause.—A superior court at a special term has the same power to remove a cause to another county that it has at a regular term. Sparkman v. Daughtry, 35 N. C. 168.

Judgment by Default.—Whether at a regular or special term of the court, notice to the adverse party of a motion in term for judgment by default for want of an answer is not necessary. Reynolds v. Greensboro, etc., Co., 153 N. C. 342, 69 S. E. 248.

Court Held outside Judge's District.—A judge specially commissioned to hold court in a certain county outside his district has the same jurisdiction of matters transferred to that court, by consent, from another county, as the judge of the district comprising both counties, Henry v. Hilliard, 120 N. C. 479, 27 S. E. 130.

§ 1456. Attendance and process at special terms.—All persons and witnesses summoned at the regular or special term, and officers or others who may be bound to attend the next regular term of the court, shall attend the special term, under the same rules, forfeitures and penalties as if the term were a regular term. But no process shall be made returnable thereto except subpœnas, or other process for the attendance of witnesses. (Rev., s. 1517; Code, s. 919; R. C., c. 31, s. 23; 1844, c. 10; 1848, c. 29.)

Duty of defendant to appear, see note of State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218, section 1448.

§ 1457. Subpœnas returnable.—Subpœnas may issue returnable on any day of any special term. (Rev., s. 1518; Code, s. 920; 1868-9, c. 273.)

Art. 8. Special Regulations

§ 1458. Reading the minutes.—Every morning during the term the judge presiding shall order the reading of the minutes of the court for the day preceding, and the minutes of the last day shall be read immediately preceding the final adjournment of the term. (Rev., s. 1519, Code, s. 925; 1861, c. 3.)

§ 1459. Officer attending juries sworn.—When any officer (except such as are appointed to attend the grand jury) shall be appointed or summoned to attend any superior court, the clerk, at the time of the first going out of a jury on the trial of any civil or criminal action, shall administer an oath to such officer, faithfully to attend the several juries that may be put under his care during that term, that shall be charged in the trial of any civil or criminal action; and after such officer shall be once so sworn, he shall be considered to all intents and purposes as acting upon the same oath while attending every jury that he may be called to attend during that term. (Rev., s. 1527; Code, s. 927; R. C., c. 31, s. 36; 1801, c. 592.)

§ 1460. Quakers may wear hats in court.—The people called Quakers may wear their hats in courts of judicature, as elsewhere, according to the custom of their sect. (Rev., s. 1528; Code, s. 943; R. C., c. 31, s. 131; 1784, c. 209.)

§ 1461. Court stenographers.—Upon the request of a judge holding a superior court in any county in the state, the board of county commissioners in such county shall employ a competent stenographer to take down the proceedings of the court, at a compensation not to exceed five dollars per day and actual expenses, to be paid by the county in which the court is held: Provided, that the compensation of said stenographers in counties composing the sixteenth judicial district shall not exceed ten dollars per day.

The judge is authorized to tax a reasonable fee against the losing party in every action, civil and criminal, to be turned into the county treasury towards reimbursing the county, but no fee shall be taxed against a losing party suing in forma pauperis.

Every stenographer so employed shall make three copies of the proceedings in every case appealed to the supreme court, without extra charge, and shall furnish one copy to the attorneys on each side and file one copy with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which any such case is tried, and shall obey all orders of the judge relative to the time in which any such work shall be done: Provided, that the restrictions herein against an extra charge for making copies of the proceedings in cases appealed to the supreme court shall not apply to counties composing the sixteenth judicial district, except Burke, Lincoln and Catawba counties: Provided, that in the counties of Burke, Lincoln and Catawba the court stenographer shall make three copies of the proceedings in every case appealed to the supreme court at a charge of not more than fifteen cents per page for the original copy, which shall be paid by the appellant, and one copy shall be furnished to the clerk of the superior court and one copy to the appellee, without extra charge, and the original to the appellant. (1929, cc. 53, 260, s. 1.)

Every stenographer so employed shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, be duly sworn to well, truly and correctly take down and transcribe the proceedings of the court, except the argument of counsel, and the charge of the court thus taken down and transcribed shall be held to be a compliance with the law requiring the judge to put his instructions to the jury in writing.

This section shall not apply to any county which has a court stenographer authorized by law: Provided, that the board of county commissioners of Mecklenburg county may, by resolution approving this law, bring said county within the provisions of the same: Provided further, that this law shall not apply to the following counties: Alleghany, Brunswick, Caldwell, Camden, Carteret, Caswell, Chatham, Currituck, Dare, Davidson, Davie, Forsyth, Greene, Harnett, Haywood, Hoke, New Hanover, Orange, Pender, Perquimans, Person, Transylvania, Union, Watauga. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 69; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 57; 1927, c. 268; 1933, c. 75, s. 2. Alamance county: See Public Laws, Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 2; 1935, c. 474.)

Editor's Note.—The provisionary clauses applicable to the sixteenth district were placed herein by the Public Laws, Ex. Sess., 1921.

By the Acts of 1927 the county of Surry was stricken from the list of counties to which this section is not to apply. In the same amendment "the compensation of each stenographer so employed shall be not exceeding ten dollars per day and two and one half dollars per day expenses, etc.," but this provision is made to apply to Surry County only.

Public Laws 1929, ch. 45, § 5, authorized the county commissioners of Halifax County to employ a court stenographer. Public Laws 1931, c. 11, s. 5, gave such authority to the commissioners of Northampton county.

Public Laws 1933, c. 75 inserted Harnett County in the list of counties appearing in the last paragraph. For an amendment of this section applicable in McDowell County only, see Acts of 1933, c. 85.

§ 1461(1). Official court reporter for second judicial district.—The resident judge of the second judicial district be, and he is hereby authorized and empowered, to appoint an official court reporter for one or more or all of the counties in said district who shall serve at the will of the resident judge, and whose appointment may be terminated by thirty days' written notice thereof.

The appointment of such reporter or reporters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same, or a certified copy thereof, shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I, ..., do solemnly swear that I will, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the county of ..... in the second judicial district, and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct, or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me, God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of each of the clerks of the superior courts of the counties in which said reporter is to officiate, and recorded and indexed on the minute dockets of said courts.

If on account of sickness, or for other cause, said reporter is unable to attend upon any of the regular courts of said district, and for conflict and special terms, the resident judge may appoint a reporter pro tem for said court or courts, and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above which oath shall be filed with the clerk. In lieu of appointing a reporter pro tem for each of said courts, the resident judge may, in his discretion, appoint a reporter pro tem for a stated period whose duty it shall be to report any and all courts in the county or counties designated in the appointment, which the regular court reporter is for any cause unable to report.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received by such reporter and such reporter pro tem: Provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter or said court reporter pro tem, as the case may be, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any of the courts of this state as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed, in the same manner, and under the same rule governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions. (1933, c. 335.)

§ 1461(2). Official court reporter for fifth judicial district.—The resident judge of the fifth judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint an official court reporter for all of the counties in said district, who shall serve at the will of the resident judge, and whose appointment may be terminated at thirty days written notice thereof.

The appointment of such reporter shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same or a certified copy thereof shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I ....., do solemnly swear that I will to the best of my ability discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the counties of the fifth judicial district and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me, God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of each of the clerks of the superior courts of the counties of said district and recorded and indexed on the minute dockets of said courts.

If on account of sickness or for other cause said reporter is unable to attend upon any regular courts of said district, and for conflict of special terms, the resident judge may appoint a reporter pro tem for said court or courts and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above which oath shall be filed with the clerk. In lieu of appointing a reporter pro tem for said district the resident judge may, in his discretion, appoint a reporter pro tem for a stated period, whose duty it shall be to report any and all of the courts designated in the appointment which the regular court reporter is for any cause unable to report.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received by said reporter and said reporter pro tem, provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

Said court reporter or reporter pro tem must, upon request of counsel when the presiding judge shall find as a fact that same is necessary and so order, deliver to the clerk of the superior court in which said cause is pending a transcript of the evidence in that cause within fifteen days from the adjournment of the term of court in which such evidence was taken.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter or said reporter pro tem as the case may be, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any civil action in any of the courts in this state as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed in the same manner and under the same rules governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions: Provided, however, that such transcript of testimony shall be admissible in evidence only in the cause in which same was taken. (1935, c. 128.)

§ 1461(3). Official court reporter for sixth judicial district. — The resident judge of the sixth judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered, to appoint an official court reporter for one or more, or all of the counties in said district, whose term of office shall be for a period of five years from and after qualification: Provided, however, that said judge shall have the right to remove said reporter for cause at any time.

The appointment of such reporter or reporters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same, or a certified copy thereof shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath provided by law for public officers, and shall in addition thereto take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I, ..., ..., do furthermore solemnly swear that I will, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the sixth judicial district, and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct, or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said reporter resides, and recorded and indexed by him on the minute docket of said court.

In case of sickness, or for other cause, if said reporter fails to attend upon any of the courts of said district, the presiding judge may appoint a reporter pro tem, for said court, and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to in section three hereof, which oath shall be filed with the clerk.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received, by said reporter, and said reporter pro tem, provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

Said court reporter or reporter pro tem must, upon request of counsel when the presiding judge shall find as a fact that same is necessary and so order, deliver to the clerk of the superior court in which said cause is pending a transcript of the evidence in that cause within fifteen days from the adjournment of the term of court in which such evidence was taken.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any of the courts of this State as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed, in the same manner, and under the same rules governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions. (1931, c. 154, s. 5; 1935, c. 420.)

§ 1461(4). Official court reporter for Robeson county. — The court reporter for the superior courts of Robeson county shall be appointed by the resident judge of the ninth judicial district, upon recommendation of the Robeson County Bar Association, to serve for terms of two years, the first such term beginning July first, nineteen hundred thirty-five. (1935, c. 9.)

§ 1461(5). Calendar in Orange County. — Ten days before the convening of any civil or criminal term of the Superior Court of Orange County the clerk of said court shall make out a calendar for the first five days of a one-week term and the first ten days of a two weeks term; said cases shall be placed upon the calendar in the following order: (1) Cases in which the defendants have been bound over by inferior courts and are in jail in default of bail; (2) all other cases in which the defendants are in jail; (3) all cases in which defendants are not in jail; (4) sci fa docket and forfeited recognizances; immediately upon the completion of the calendar the clerk shall have the same printed, giving the name of the defendant, the offense charged and the day of the week and month upon which the case is set for trial, and shall mail a copy of said printed calendar to the solicitor of the district, and upon request, deliver a copy each to the officers of the court, and to the attorneys practicing at the Orange County bar.

It shall be the duty of the solicitor of the district to have all bills for each day's calendar prepared and present the same to the grand jury upon the opening of court each day of the term except Monday of the first week of the term, when they shall be prepared and presented to the grand jury immediately upon the completion of the charge of the court.

The grand jury shall be required to be in attendance at each term of the criminal court, until they have finished all matters presented to them by the solicitor and the court.

Cases shall be tried in the order in which they are on the calendar. If for sufficient reason the State or defendant is not ready for trial at the time the case is reached, the same shall be continued for the term unless otherwise set for trial by the court.

The defendants and witnesses recognized to appear at any criminal term shall in the recognizance be ordered to appear on the first day of the term, as now provided by law, but, in fact shall not be required to appear until the day on which the case is set for trial, and no witness shall prove for attendance prior to the day on which the case is set on the calendar, and the State's witnesses shall receive one dollar and a half per day and mileage at the rate of ten cents per mile one way from the day the case is set for trial on the calendar until discharged: Provided, that should the case be nol prossed or not a true bill found by the grand jury, then the said State's witnesses shall be allowed to prove their attendance and shall be paid for their services by the county: Provided, further, that all witnesses summoned in a civil action shall be required to appear on the day on which the case is set for trial and shall receive pay for each day thereafter as provided herein, to be paid as now provided by law for the paying of witnesses in civil actions.

The provisions in this section shall not apply to capital felonies except as to the attendance of witnesses.

The cases docketed in the Superior Court after the formation of the calendar shall stand for trial at the next term and all civil cases shall be docketed as filed and be heard as filed, or, if for good cause shown to the court such cases cannot be tried then other cases may be tried which have been filed thereafter, in the discretion of the court.

All justices of the peace of Orange County shall within fifteen days after the trial of any cause, either civil or criminal, forward the original papers, with their judgments, to the clerk of the Superior Court.

The County Commissioners of Orange County shall pay all expenses incurred by the clerk in carrying out the provisions of this section. (1927, c. 112.)

§ 1461(6). Calendar in Caswell County.—Ten days before convening of any civil or criminal term of the Superior Court of Caswell County the clerk of said court shall make out a calendar for the first five days of a one-week term and the first ten days of a two-weeks term; said cases shall be placed upon the calendar in the following order: (1) Cases in which the defendants have been bound over by inferior courts and are in jail in default of bail; (2) all other cases in which the defendants are in jail; (3) all cases in which the defendants are not in jail; (4) sci fa docket and forfeited recognizances; immediately upon the completion of the calendar the clerk shall have the same printed, giving the name of the defendant, the offense charged and the day of the week and month upon which the case is set for trial, and shall mail a copy of said printed calendar to the solicitor of the district, and, upon request, deliver a copy each to the officers of the court, and to the attorneys practicing at the Caswell County bar.

It shall be the duty of the solicitor of the district to have all bills for each day's calendar prepared and present the same to the grand jury upon the opening of court each day of the term except Monday of the first week of the term, when they shall be prepared and presented to the grand jury immediately upon the completion of the charge of the court.

The grand jury shall be required to be in attendance at each term of the criminal court, until they have finished all matters presented to them by the solicitor and the court.

Cases shall be tried in the order in which they are on the calendar. If for sufficient reason the State or defendant is not ready for trial at the time the case is reached, the same shall be continued for the term unless otherwise set for trial by the court.

The defendants and witnesses recognized to appear at any criminal term shall in the recognizance be ordered to appear on the first day of the term, as now provided by law, but in fact shall not be required to appear until the day on which the case is set for trial, and no witness shall prove for attendance prior to the day on which the case is set on the calendar.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to capital felonies except as to the attendance of witnesses.

The cases docketed in the Superior Court after the formation of the calendar shall stand for trial at the next term and all civil cases shall be docketed as filed and be heard as filed, or, if for good cause shown to the court such cases cannot be tried then other cases may be tried which have been filed thereafter, in the discretion of the court.

All justices of the peace of Caswell County shall within fifteen days after the trial of any cause, either civil or criminal, forward the original papers, with their judgments, to the clerk of the Superior Court, provided, that the clerk of the Superior Court shall notify the justices of the peace of Caswell County of the provision of this act after its ratification.

The County Commissioners of Caswell County shall pay all expenses incurred by the clerk in carrying out the provisions of this section. (1927, c. 105.)

SUBCHAPTER IIA. COMMISSION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF LAWS.

Art. 8(A). Commission for Improvement of Laws

§ 1461(a). Commission established. — A commission to be known as the commission for the Improvement of the Laws is hereby established. (1931, c. 98, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The duties of the commission created by this section are similar to those heretofore conferred on the Judicial Conference by c. 244 of the Public Laws 1925, which was repealed by Public Laws 1931, c. 451. The Act of 1925 was amended by Public Laws 1927, c. 39.

§ 1461(b). Members of commission. — Said commission shall consist of the attorney-general, the chairman of each of the committees on Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the General Assembly, and the following additional members to be appointed by the Governor on the basis of their interest in and competency for the study of law reform: two members who shall be appointed from the Justices of the Supreme Court and/or the Judges of the Superior Courts; two members who shall be active practitioners in the trial and appellate courts; three members who shall be appointed from the faculties of law in the various universities in this State; and two members, not attorneys at law, who shall be men of proven ability in other occupations. (1931, c. 98, s. 2.)

§ 1461(d). Chairman and executive secretary. —The Governor shall designate one of the members of such commission as the chairman and another as the executive secretary of the commission. (1931, c. 98, s. 4.)

§ 1461(e). Vacancy appointments. — The Governor shall have power to fill vacancies among the unofficial members occasioned by death, resignation or otherwise. (1931, c. 98, s. 5.)

§ 1461(e1). Meetings of commission. — It shall be the duty of such commission to meet twice annually, or more often at the call of the chairman, to consider proposals for the betterment of the law, both substantive and procedural, to conduct such research and investigation as may be appropriate therefor, and to recommend to the General Assembly such specific changes in the existing law as it deems expedient. (1931, c. 98, s. 6.)

§ 1461(e2). Report and recommendations to general assembly. — In advance of each regular session of the general assembly, the commission shall prepare a report and shall embody the recommendation of the commission with drafts of proposed bills, and the reasons for the same, and copies of such report shall be sent to each member of the general assembly not less than thirty days before the beginning of such session. (1931, c. 98, s. 7.)

§ 1461(e3). Compensation. — The members of the commission shall serve without compensation. (1931, c. 98, s. 8.)

SUBCHAPTER IIB. DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURTS.

Art. 8(B). Counties of at Least Twenty-Five Thousand Inhabitants

§ 1461(f). May be established by county commissioners.—That the Board of County Commissioners in the various counties having a county seat with twenty-five thousand or more inhabitants of the State, or the governing authorities in cities of twenty-five thousand or more inhabitants shall have authority to establish a "Domestic Relations Court," which court may be a joint county and city court, as provided in section two of this act or a court for the county or city as may be determined by the governing authorities. (1929, c. 343, s. 1.)

§ 1461(g). Vote on establishment of court; any other city in county with required population may have such court.—In case the Board of County Commissioners and governing authorities of a particular city decide to establish a joint city and county Domestic Relations Court—they voting as separate bodies shall determine whether or not such Domestic Relations Court shall be established. If both bodies shall vote for its establishment, each of them shall record the resolutions in their minutes and upon such consent by both boards, the court shall be established. In counties in which the said joint court is thus established by the Board of County Commissioners and the governing authorities of the county and city such establishment of the court shall not prevent any other city within the territorial limits of the county and having more than twenty-five thousand inhabitants, establishing its own court under section one of this chapter. (1929, c. 343, s. 2.)

§ 1461(h). Jurisdiction.—Said Domestic Relations Court shall have, and is hereby vested with all the power, authority, and jurisdiction heretofore vested by law in the juvenile courts of North Carolina, and said power, authority, and jurisdiction being as fully vested in the Domestic Relations Court as if herein particularly set forth in detail; and in addition thereto the said Domestic Relations Court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction over the following classes of cases:

(a) All cases where any adult is charged with abandonment, non-support, or desertion of any juvenile, or where either spouse is charged with abandonment, non-support, or desertion of the other.

(b) All cases involving desertion of any juvenile by its mother.

(c) All cases involving the custody of juveniles, except where the case is tried in Superior Court as a part of any divorce proceeding.

(d) All cases where assault, or assault and battery, on a juvenile is charged against an adult, or where husband or wife is charged with assault, or assault and battery, upon the other.

(e) All cases in which an adult is charged with causing or being responsible for delinquency, dependency, or neglect of a juvenile.

(f) All bastardy cases within said county.

(g) All cases where adoption of juveniles is sought shall first be brought before the said Domestic Relations Court for full investigation, and such petition and other papers as are now required to be filed with the Clerk of the Superior Court shall be filed with the Clerk of the Domestic Relations Court; and the results of said investigation shall be reported to the Clerk of the Superior Court, together with such recommendation as the Judge of the Domestic Relations Court may make on the question of the adoption, and when such adoption is acted upon by the Clerk of the Superior Court, a copy of all records in the case shall be furnished to the Clerk of the Domestic Relations Court, to be kept as a permanent record of such court.

(h) All cases wherein any person is charged with receiving stolen goods from any juvenile, knowing them to be stolen.

(i) All cases involving violation of the North Carolina School Attendance Law as set forth in Public Laws of North Carolina, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, chapter one hundred, and Public Laws of North Carolina, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, chapter one hundred and thirty-six; and in Consolidated Statutes five thousand seven hundred and fifty-seven and five thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, inclusive; and such other laws relative to school attendance as may hereafter be enacted.

(j) In either case where either parent institutes a divorce action when there is a minor child or children, it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court to refer the case for investigation as to the child, or children, to the Domestic Relations Court, and the Judge of the Domestic Relations Court shall make his recommendations to the Judge of the Superior Court as to the disposition of the child, or children, for the consideration of the Judge of the Superior Court in disposing of the custody of the said child or children. (1929, c. 343, s. 3.)

§ 1461(i). Election of judge and term of office; vacancy appointments; judge to select clerk; juvenile Court officers may be declared officers of new Court.—It shall be the duty of the Board of Commissioners of any county and the governing board of any city, in which a joint Court of Domestic Relations is established, as hereinbefore provided, or of the governing authorities of any city or county in which an independent Domestic Relations Court shall be established, as hereinbefore provided, acting jointly, in the first instance, or independently, in the second instance, to elect [on or before the second Monday in July, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, the term to commence at that time and upon the same date every two years thereafter, a Judge of the Domestic Relations Court and to fix his salary and provide for payment of the same]. If any vacancy should occur in said office during the two years' term, for any cause, it shall be filled for the unexpired term in the same manner and by the same bodies as provided for the election of said Judge.

It shall be the duty of the Judge of the Domestic Relations Court to appoint a Clerk for said court, the salary of said Clerk to be fixed, provided for, and paid by the Board of County Commissioners of any of such counties and the governing board of any of such cities, acting jointly, or independently, when a joint county and city court is not established.

And the officers of the Juvenile Court of any of such cities and of any of such counties, as now constituted by law may be declared to be officers of the Domestic Relations Court.

The probation officers of Domestic Relations Court and their method of appointment shall be the same as now provided for in Consolidated Statutes, five thousand and forty-nine, for probation officers of the Juvenile Court. The salaries of said probation officers, and the necessary equipment for the proper maintenance and functioning of said court, shall be a charge upon such county and such city jointly, or upon the county or city, if it is an independent court. (1929, c. 343, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 221, s. 1, amending this section so as to provide for a Domestic Relations Court in Forsyth County, struck out the words in brackets and inserted in lieu thereof the following: "A judge of the Domestic Relations Court and to fix his salary and provide for the payment of same, his term of office to run from the time of his election to the second Monday in July in each odd numbered year and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The regular term of office shall be for a term of two years and until his successor is elected and qualified."

§ 1461(j). Co-operation of all peace officers.—It shall be the duty of all officers of the counties and of the cities to assist the Domestic Relations Court in any and all ways in the line of their official duty as fully and to the same extent and in the same manner as they heretofore have been authorized and required to do in the case of all other courts. (1929, c. 343, s. 5.)

§ 1461(k). Procedure, practice and punishments.—The procedure, practice, and punishments imposed in the Domestic Relations Court as herein established shall be the same as now provided by law in courts now having original jurisdiction of the various offenses or causes hereinabove enumerated, and the Judge of the said Domestic Relations Court is hereby granted the power to prescribe such rules and fix such modes of procedure, as, in his discretion, will best effect the purposes for which said court is created. (1929, c. 343, s. 6.)

§ 1461(l). Right of appeal to Superior Court; trial de novo.—Wherever in this act criminal jurisdiction is conferred upon the Domestic Relations Court there shall be the same right of appeal from this court as from Recorders' Courts or other inferior criminal courts to the Superior Court, and the same rules and regulations of such appeals from inferior courts shall apply to appeals from this court, and in the Superior Court the trial shall be de novo. This provision shall apply also to the trials in bastardy cases. (1929, c. 343, s. 7.)

§ 1461(m). Offenses before Court to be petty misdemeanors; demand for jury trial; appearance bonds.—All the offenses for the trial of which the Domestic Relations Court is given jurisdiction are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors punishable as now prescribed by law. On the trial before such Domestic Relations Court, if a jury trial is demanded, the cause shall be therewith transferred for trial to some criminal term of the Superior Court of the counties in which the Domestic Relations Court is situated. The defendant or defendants shall be held under an adequate bond to secure his or their attendance at the criminal term of the Superior Court to which the record is transferred. If in the exercise of the jurisdiction hereinbefore conferred upon the Domestic Relations Court, it should appear that a felony has been committed, said court shall have jurisdiction and authority upon proper investigation to bind over the alleged felon in all cases in which probable cause is found, to the Superior Court of the county, under proper bond and recognizances. (1929, c. 343, s. 8.)

§ 1461(n). Pending cases in Juvenile Court transferred to new Court.—All causes pending in the Juvenile Court of the county or city at the time that the organization of any Domestic Relations Court within said county or city, shall be transferred to the Domestic Relations Court for final adjudication. (1929, c. 343, s. 9.)

§ 1461(o). Valid sections of article upheld; counties excepted.—The sections of this article and every part thereof are severable one from the others, and the holding of any section thereof to be invalid or void shall not affect any other section or part thereof: Provided, that this article shall not apply to the counties of Buncombe, Guilford, Durham, Wake, Gaston, New Hanover, Pitt, Wayne, Nash and Edgecombe. (1929, c. 343, s. 10; 1931, c. 221, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck Forsyth from the list of counties in this section.

SUBCHAPTER III. JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Art. 9. Election and Qualification

§ 1462. Constitution, article seven, abrogated; exceptions. — All the provisions of article seven of the constitution inconsistent with this chapter, except those contained in sections seven, nine and thirteen, are hereby abrogated, and the provisions of this article substituted in their place; subject, however, to the power of the general assembly to alter, amend or abrogate the provisions of this article, and to substitute others in their stead, as provided in section fourteen of article seven of the constitution. (Rev., s. 1408; Code, s. 818; 1876-7, c. 141, s. 7.)

For full treatment of this subject, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 372.

§ 1463. Election and number of justices. — At every general election held for members of the general assembly there shall be elected in each township three justices of the peace, and for each township in which any city or incorporated town is situated, one justice of the peace for every one thousand inhabitants in such city or town, who shall hold office for a term of two years from and after the first Monday in December next after their election. (Rev., s. 1409; Code, s. 819; 1876-7, c. 141; 1895, c. 157; 1905, cc. 35, 44, 148; 1907, c. 225; 1909, ss. 177; 716.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 321, appointed justices of the peace for the several counties in the state. Certain acts of such justices were validated by Public Laws 1931, c. 334.

Number Elected.—Under the legislation of 1895, since continued, each township is entitled to elect three justices of the peace on one ballot, and no more, unless the township shall contain a city or incorporated town with as much as 1,000 inhabitants, in that case one additional justice for every 1,000 inhabitants. Mitchell v. Alley, 126 N. C. 84, 35 S. E. 231. A ticket containing more names than the elector has a right to vote for, is to be void, and not counted. Id.

§ 1464. Local modifications as to number and election of justices.—In the city of Wilmington in the county of New Hanover there shall be elected five justices of the peace; and in the counties of Bertie, Caswell, Chowan, Franklin, and Granville the justices of the peace shall be elected by the general assembly, to hold office for the term of two years as provided in the preceding section. In Gastonia Township, in the County of Gaston, there shall be elected five (5) Justices of the Peace; in South Point Township in the County of Gaston, there shall be elected four (4) Justices of the Peace; in River Bend Township, in Dallas Township, in Cherryville Township, and in Crowders Mountain Township, in the County of Gaston, there shall be elected in each township three (3) Justices of the Peace. (Rev., s. 1409; Code, s. 819; 1899, c. 392; 1903, cc. 191, 207, 790; 1905, c. 447; 1907, c. 293; P. L., 1913, c. 771; P. L., 1919, c. 106; 1929, c. 211; 1931, c. 256.)

Editor's Note.—The act of 1929 struck out the provision relating to Edgecombe County. The Act of 1931 added the provision as to Gaston County.

§ 1465. Warren county; election of justices.—Upon a petition of two-thirds of the qualified electors in any township in Warren county, the board of commissioners of the county shall call an election at the time and in the manner appointed for the election of members of the general assembly, for the election of not more than five nor less than three justices of the peace, as the petition shall designate, to be voted for and elected by the voters of the township in which they reside, and who shall hold their office for two years and until their successors are elected and qualified. (Rev., s. 1410; 1905, c. 73, s. 2.)

§ 1466. Vance county; election of justices.—Upon petition of a majority of the qualified voters of any township in Vance county, the board of county commissioners shall call an election, at the time and in the manner appointed for the election of members of the general assembly, for the election of not more than five nor less than two justices of the peace, to be voted for and elected by the voters of the township in which they reside. The justices of the peace so elected shall hold office for a term of two years and until their successors are elected and qualify. (P. L. 1915, c. 648.)

§ 1467. Oath of office; vacancies filled. — Every person elected or appointed a justice of the peace, before his term of office begins or within thirty days thereafter, shall take and subscribe the prescribed oath of office before the clerk of the superior court, who shall file the same. All elections of justices of the peace by the general assembly or by the people shall be void unless the persons so elected shall qualify as herein directed. All original vacancies in the offices of justice of the peace occurring before qualification as provided in this section shall be filled for the term by the governor. All other vacancies shall be filled by the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1411; Code, s. 821; 1901, c. 37.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is not unconstitutional. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 26, 3 S. E. 812.

Duty of Clerk.—It is the duty of the clerk to administer the oath to the justices elected or appointed. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 26, 3 S. E. 812.

Appointed by Clerk.—The authority of the clerks of the superior courts to appoint justices of the peace is confined to vacancies caused by death, resignation or other causes during the term. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 26, 3 S. E. 812.

Misbehavior in Office.—If one elected to an office takes possession of the same and engages in the exercise of its duties and misbehaves by taking unlawful and extortionate fees, he will be liable for such misbehavior, and may be indicted therefor, notwithstanding the fact he had failed to take the oath of office. State v. Cansler, 75 N. C. 442.

§ 1468. Governor may appoint justices. — The governor may, from time to time, at his discretion, appoint one or more fit persons in every county to act as justices of the peace, who shall hold their office for four years from and after the date of their appointment; and, on exhibiting their commission to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which they are to act, shall be duly qualified by taking before said clerk an oath of office and the oaths prescribed for other officers. The governor shall issue to each justice of the peace so appointed a commission, a certificate of which shall be deposited with the clerk of the court and filed among the records, and he shall note on his minutes the qualifications of the justice of the peace. (1917, c. 40; 1927, c. 116.)

Any commission so issued by the Governor or his predecessor shall be revokable by him in his discretion upon complaint being made against such justice of the peace and when he shall be satisfied that the interest of the public will be best served by the revocation of said commission.

Whenever the Governor shall have revoked the commission of any justice of the peace appointed by him, or his predecessor in office, it shall be his duty to file with the clerk of the court in the county of such justice of the peace a copy of said order and mail a copy of same to said justice of the peace.

Any person holding himself out to the public as a justice of the peace, or any person attempting to act in such capacity after his commission shall have been revoked by the Governor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable in the discretion of the court, as provided for in other misdemeanors. (1927, c. 116.)

§ 1469. Forfeiture of office. — When any justice of the peace removes out of his township and does not return therein for the space of six months, he thereby forfeits and loses his office; and any such justice presuming to act thereafter, contrary to this section, unless reelected or reappointed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 1412, 3589; Code, s. 822.)

§ 1470. Resignation. — Justices of the peace wishing to resign must deliver their letters of resignation to the clerk of the superior court, who shall file the same. (Rev., s. 1413; Code, s. 823.)

§ 1471. Removal and disqualification for crime. —Upon the conviction of any justice of the peace of an infamous crime, or of corruption and malpractice in office, he shall be removed from office, and he shall be disqualified from holding or enjoying any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. (Rev., s. 1414; Code, s. 826.)

Criminal Liability. — The functions of a justice of the peace are ministerial, in preserving the peace, hearing charges against offenders and issuing warrants thereon, examining the parties and bailing or committing them for trial, and in the exercise of such functions, if he act corruptly, oppressively or from any other bad motive, he is liable to indictment. State v. Sneed, 84 N. C. 817.

§ 1472. Justice may hold other office.—Any justice of the peace may accept a civil office or appointment of trust or profit, under the authority of the United States, the duties of which confine him to the county where he is resident. (Rev., s. 1415; Code, s. 825; Const., Art. 14, s. 7.)

Art. 10. Jurisdiction

See annotations under Const. Art. 14, sec. 7.

§ 1473. Jurisdiction in actions on contract. — Justices of the peace shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all civil actions founded on contract, except—

1. Wherein the sum demanded, exclusive of interest, exceeds two hundred dollars.

2. Wherein the title to real estate is in controversy. (Rev., s. 1419; Const., Art. 4, s. 27; Code, s. 834.)

Cross Reference.

For full treatment of this subject, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 378 et seq., 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 609 et seq. See sections 1436, 1476 and notes thereto.

I. ACTIONS EX CONTRACTU.

In General.—Every action to recover a sum of money due by contract, not in excess of two hundred dollars, etc., is required by this section to be originally brought in the court of a justice of the peace, unless contrary to some other legislative enactment. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Test of jurisdiction, see notes to section 1436, analysis line "Essentials" II, B.

Judgment a Contract.—A judgment is a contract within the meaning of this section. Moore v. Nowell, 94 N. C. 268.

Counterclaims in excess of the jurisdictional amount of a justice's court may not be recovered in that court, and are allowed to be pleaded only for the purposes of set-off and recoupment as a bar to the plaintiff's demand. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 184 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

In an action before a justice of the peace for a sum due by note and within his jurisdiction, it was held, that a counterclaim consisting of an alleged indebtedness arising out of unadjusted partnership dealings between the parties, could not be allowed; the jurisdiction to settle such matters being in a court of equity. Love v. Rhyne, 86 N. C. 576.

Misjoinder of Causes. — Where two causes are set out and jurisdiction can be attached on only one, the justice of the peace may try that one, rejecting the other. Railroad v. Hardware Co., 135 N. C. 73, 47 S. E. 234.

Waiver of Tort. — Where property is tortiously taken and sold, the owner may waive the tort and maintain an action to recover the proceeds. Brittain v. Payne, 118 N. C. 989, 24 S. E. 711, and cases cited. See also note to section 1436. See note of Winslow v. Weitt, 66 N. C. 432, under section 1436, analysis line "In General, II, B, 1(a).

Same—Construction. — When the plaintiff can bring his action either in tort or upon contract, the courts, in favor of jurisdiction, will sustain the election of the plaintiff. White v. Eley, 145 N. C. 36, 58 S. E. 437.

To sustain jurisdiction over the subject-matter of an action, the court will liberally construe the pleadings in the pleader's favor, and where the question is whether a justice of the peace had jurisdiction in contract, and the movant contends the case was ex delicto, and that it was beyond the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace, the court will sustain its jurisdiction if it reasonably appears from the pleadings that it was tried as ex contractu in the justice's court. Furniture Co. v. Clark, 191 N. C. 369, 131 S. E. 731.

Indivisible Cause. — An indivisible cause of action can not be split in order that separate suits may be brought for the various parts before a justice of the peace. Norvell v. Mecke, 127 N. C. 401, 402, 37 S. E. 452.

Same—Different Contracts. — Where the items of an account are incurred under different contracts an action may be brought on each item before a justice of the peace, the separate items being less than $200. Copeland v. Wireless Tel. Co., 136 N. C. 11, 48 S. E. 501.

A creditor whose account consists of several items, either for goods sold or labor done at different times, each of which is for less than $200, although the aggregate of the account exceeds $200, may sue before a justice for any number of such items not exceeding $200. Boyle v. Robbins, 71 N. C. 130.

Want of Jurisdiction. — The court will ex mero meto take notice of the want of jurisdiction. Hannah v. Richmond etc., R. R., 87 N. C. 351, 352.

Objection on Appeal. — When the pleadings before a justice of the peace, in an action on contract, did not show a want of jurisdiction and no objection was made thereto, such objection cannot be made or appeal to the superior court. Cromer Bros. v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836.

Amount Demanded Controlling.—The justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action upon contract where the summons used as a complaint demands, in good faith, a recovery of $200 or less, though a greater sum could have been demanded. Shoe Co. v. Wiseman, 174 N. C. 716, 94 S. E. 452; Knight v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 84, 42 S. E. 537. The aggregate sum demanded in good faith is the test of the jurisdiction of the court, though this aggregate is made up of several causes of action. Martin v. Goode, 111 N. C. 288, 16 S. E. 232. For treatment of the amount as fixing jurisdiction, and the good faith etc., required, see notes under section 1436, analysis line, "Essentials," II, B.

In an action on contract it is the sum demanded in the summons or complaint that fixes the jurisdiction. Cromer Bros. v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836.

Principal and Interest. — The Constitution and this section limit the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in actions upon contract, to where the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, exclusive of interest; and a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction in an action to recover the balance of the principal due upon a note when it and the interest on the original amount thereof exceeded the sum named. Riddle v. Bridgewater Milling Co., 150 N. C. 689, 64 S. E. 782.

Equitable Causes. — A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to administer or enforce an equitable cause of action. Wilson v. Life Ins. Co., 155 N. C. 173, 71 S. E. 79.

A court of a justice of the peace cannot affirmatively administer an equity, and may only pass thereon as a matter of defense. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Same—Appeal. — When the plaintiff seeks only equitable relief in a court of a justice of the peace, no jurisdiction can be acquired over the subject matter by the superior court on appeal, the proceedings being void ab initio. Wilson v. Life Ins. Co., 155 N. C. 173, 71 S. E. 79.

Applied in Miles Co. v. Powell, 205 N. C. 30, 31, 169 S. E. 828.

II. TITLE TO LAND IN CONTROVERSY.

See section 1476 and sections following and notes thereto.

Jurisdiction. — Justices of the peace can take no jurisdiction over a cause in which title to land is in controversy. Brown v. Southerland, 142 N. C. 225, 55 S. E. 108. They are prohibited by the Constitution as well as impliedly by by this section. Forsythe v. Bullock, 74 N. C. 135, 137.

Mere allegation of the defendant that title is in controversy will not oust justices' jurisdiction. The matter must appear from the evidence or admission of the parties. Hann v. Fletcher, 189 N. C. 729, 128 S. E. 326, 328.

Title Must Be between Parties to Action.—The question of title, which arrests further proceedings before the justice must be one between the original parties to the action; and jurisdiction once acquired can not be divested by the intervention of a stranger to the suit, ascertaining a paramount title in himself. Davis v. Davis, 83 N. C. 71.

Action Dismissed Judgment for Costs.—If it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, the justice shall dismiss the action and render judgment against the plaintiff for costs. Pasterfield v. Sawyer, 132 N. C. 258, 260, 43 S. E. 799; Edwards v. Cowper, 99 N. C. 421, 6 S. E. 792, 793.

Notes Given for Purchase Price of Land.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action to recover a balance due on a note given for the purchase money of land. McPeters v. English, 141 N. C. 491, 54 S. E. 417.

Notes on Contract to Convey Land.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action on a note given for a contract to convey land, the only defense being payment. Patterson v. Freeman, 132 N. C. 357, 43 S. E. 904.

Recovery of Portion Crop as Rent.—In an action to recover one third of the crops due as rent under an alleged contract of lease, which the jury found to exist, a justice of the peace had jurisdiction, as the title to land was not involved. Durant v. Taylor, 89 N. C. 351.

Where, under a will devising all of testator's land to his wife, remainder to his nephew (the plaintiff) in fee, except fifty acres in some suitable place and on certain conditions to defendant, and defendant who was a tenant of the wife, during her life, of 50 acres on which testator had settled, claims title thereto as being in a suitable place and on conditions performed, an action by plaintiff for possession involves the title to land and is not within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. Wright v. Harris, 116 N. C. 460, 21 S. E. 693.

Action between Mortgagor and Mortgagee.—In an action to to recover land the jurisdiction of the justice is excluded where the relation is that of mortgagor and mortgagee or vendor and vendee. Hughes v. Mason, 84 N. C. 473.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.—Because of the equity growing out of the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee when the former seeks to have the mortgaged premises foreclosed for the nonpayment of the debt, the superior court has jurisdiction, when the amount secured is for a less sum than two hundred dollars. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 141.

Landlord and Tenant Act.—A court of a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction under the landlord and tenant act to try title to land. And where it appears that title is involved or that there are equities involved as to the land a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction. Parker v. Allen, 84 N. C. 466.

That the vendee, in a contract for the sale of land, remained silent, when the contract was mutilated under the direction of the vendor, is not sufficient evidence of a change of the relations from vendo and vendee to landlord and tenant, to give a justice of the peace jurisdiction of an action to summarily eject the defendant vendee. Boone v. Drake, 109 N. C. 79, 13 S. E. 724.

In an action by a purchaser of land with warranty to recover a sum of money paid by him to free the land from a lien, the deed will be introduced to prove the covenants, the title to realty will be involved, and a justice would not have jurisdiction. Hann v. Fletcher, 189 N. C. 729, 128 S. E. 328.

Rule of Estoppel Gives Justice Jurisdiction.—The rule which estops a tenant to deny his landlord's title precludes all controversy as to the title in summary proceedings by the landlord, and thus gives a justice of the peace jurisdiction. Credle v. Gibbs, 65 N. C. 192; Davis v. Davis, 83 N. C. 71.

In a proceeding before a justice of the peace under the Landlord and Tenant Act, a defendant who does not deny having entered as the tenant of the plaintiff is estopped from setting up a superior title existing at the date of the lease or subsequently acquired from a third person. Heyer v. Beatty, 76 N. C. 28.

Penalty.—The title to land is not in controversy in a proceeding to recover a penalty prescribed by a town charter for obstructing a street. Henderson v. Davis, 106 N. C. 88, 11 S. E. 573.

§ 1474. Jurisdiction in actions not on contract.—Justices of the peace shall have concurrent jurisdiction of civil actions not founded on contract, wherein the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. (Rev., s. 1420; Const., Art. 4, s. 27; Code, s. 887.)

Cross References. — For discussion of subject generally, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 378 et seq., 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 609 et seq. See notes under sections 1436, 1473.

Editor's Note.—Section 1436 sets out the limits wherein the superior court exercises its original jurisdiction. This section gives the justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction over certain classes of cases. These cases are also cognizable in the superior court since the jurisdiction herein given to the justices of the peace is not exclusive, and hence they fall within what may be termed the residuary clause contained in section 1436.

Generally.—In actions ex contractu justices of the peace have jurisdiction, when the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, but in actions ex delicto, their jurisdiction is limited to cases wherein the value of the property does not exceed fifty dollars. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43.

Justices of the peace have concurrent jurisdiction with the superior courts of actions for torts where the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. Harvey v. Hambright, 98 N. C. 446, 4 S. E. 187.

It is said in Duckworth v. Mull, 143 N. C. 461, 55 S. E. 850, "We think that the decisions of this court, already made, lead necessarily to the conclusion that the clause of this section, comprehends, and was intended to comprehend, all actions ex delicto; that the term, 'property in controversy, here used as determinative of jurisdiction, by correct interpretation, means the value of the injury complained of and involved in the litigation; and where a plaintiff, in good faith, states or limits his demand in actions of this character at fifty dollars or less, the justice, as provided by the statute, has jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court to hear and determine the matter."

Damages.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action for damages not exceeding fifty dollars, and for injury to personal property, though such property be of greater value than fifty dollars. Malloy v. City, 122 N. C. 480, 29 S. E. 880.

Jurisdiction Essential.—A judgment rendered by a justice of the peace in an action in which he has no jurisdiction is void. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43.

Remittance of Excess Will Not Give Jurisdiction.—Where, in an action of claim and delivery, it appears that the value of the property exceeds fifty dollars, it at least ousts the jurisdiction of the justice, and the plaintiff cannot confer jurisdiction by a remitter. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43. See section 1436, analysis line II, B, 1, b.

Priority of Proceedings as Determining Jurisdiction. — Where two or more courts have equal and concurrent jurisdiction of a case, that court in which suit is first brought acquires jurisdiction of it, which excludes the jurisdiction of the other courts. Childs v. Martin, 69 N. C. 126.

Irregular Proceedings.—Where jurisdiction is concurrent, and a case is carried by appeal to the superior court, and the appellant, as in this case, files an answer under leave of the court and goes to trial without objection, the court will have cognizance of the matter by virtue of its original jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action, and by the consent the parties thus manifested, however irregular the proceedings may have been in the justice's court. Boing v. Raleigh & Gaston R. Co., 87 N. C. 360, 364.

Waiver of Court on Appeal.—Plaintiff brought suit in the court of a justice of the peace claiming a debt of fifty dollars, and also possession of a horse and wagon, under a certain mortgage. On appeal from the justice's judgment to the superior court plaintiff offered to remit his claim for the personal property and declare only for the debt. It was held, that he had a right to take such a course in his discretion, and that his honor erred in denying him that privilege. Jones v. Palmer, 83 N. C. 303.

Affidavit of Justice Not Conclusive.—Where the record of the justice of the peace has been lost, and only the judgment showing a recovery of the jurisdictional amount ex contractu appears in the trial on appeal, upon defendant's motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, and affidavit of the justice to the effect that the action was in tort is not conclusive. Furniture Co. v. Clark, 191 N. C. 369, 131 S. E. 731.

§ 1475. Action dismissed for want of jurisdiction; remitter.—Where it appears, in any action brought before a justice, that the principal sum demanded exceeds two hundred dollars, the justice shall dismiss the action and render a judgment against the plaintiff for the costs, unless the plaintiff shall remit the excess of principal, above two hundred dollars, with the interest on said excess, and shall, at the time of filing his complaint, direct the justice to make this entry: "The plaintiff, in this action, forgives and remits to the defendant so much of the principal of this claim as is in excess of two hundred dollars, together with the interest on said excess." (Rev., s. 1421; Code, s. 835; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 3; 1876, c. 63.)

Excess Remitted.—Where the amount recovered exceeds $200, the justice has jurisdiction if the plaintiff remits the excess. Cromer v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836. Brock v. Scott, 159 N. C. 513, 75 S. E. 724.

It is only when the principal sum demanded exceeds $200, that the plaintiff is required to remit the excess above that amount in order to give the justice jurisdiction. Brantley v. Finch, 97 N. C. 91, 92, 1 S. E. 535.

Effect of Remittitur Where Jurisdiction Entirely Derivative.—Where a counterclaim, filed to an action brought before a justice, amounted to more than $200.00, the want of jurisdiction as provided by this section could not be cured by entering a remittitur for the excess in the Superior Court, as the jurisdiction of the Superior Court in appeals from justices of the peace is entirely derivative, and if the justice had no jurisdiction in the action, as it was before him, the Superior Court can derive none by amendment. Perry v. Pulley, 206 N. C. 701, 703, 175 S. E. 89.

Failure to Use Statutory Formula.—Objection to a failure to use the formula provided in this section should be made in the justice's court. Cromer v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 565, 29 S. E. 836.

Waiver. — The plaintiff having remitted the amount of damages arising on contract in excess of $200, so as to confer jurisdiction on the court of a justice of the peace, and having taken a voluntary nonsuit in the superior court on defendant's appeal, is deemed to have waived the excess so remitted in his action on the same contract brought in the superior court, and his recovery is limited to the amount sued for in the justice's court. Brook v. Scott, 159 N. C. 513, 75 S. E. 724.

Remittance of Counterclaim on Appeal.—The jurisdiction of the superior court in appeals from justices of the peace is entirely derivative, and if the justice had no jurisdiction in the action, as it was before him, the superior court can derive none by amendment. So, where a counterclaim, filed to an action brought before a justice, amounted to more than $200, the want of jurisdiction could not be cured by entering a remittitur for the excess in the superior court. Ijames v. McClamroch, 92 N. C. 362.

§ 1476. Title to real estate in controversy as a defense.—In every action brought in a court of a justice of the peace, where the title to real estate comes in controversy, the defendant may, either with or without other matter of defense, set forth, in his answer, any matter showing that such title will come in question. Such answer shall be in writing, signed by the defendant or his attorney, and delivered to the justice. (Rev., s. 1422; Code, s. 836.)

See section 1473 and notes thereto.

Answer in Writing Necessary.—The title to real estate cannot be drawn into controversy by the defendant on a trial in a justice's court except by delivering to the justice an answer in writing that such title will come in question. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87.

The evidence at the trial must tend to show that the title is in issue. Pasterfield v. Sawyer, 132 N. C. 258, 260, 43 S. E. 799. And the trial will proceed until it is apparent that this is true. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 32 S. E. 677.

Mere allegation of defendant that title is in controversy, see note of Hann v. Fletcher, 189 N. C. 729, 128 S. E. 326, section 1473 analysis line II.

Judgment in Action in Which Defenses Should Have Been Set Up as Bar to Subsequent Action Thereon.—A possessory action in ejectment in the court of a justice of the peace terminates in that court upon an issue of title to lands or of equitable rights therein being raised by the defendant, and in the Superior Court the defendant is required to set up his equities, if any he have, and where he fails to do so an independent action by him thereon is barred by the prior judgment, it being assumed that the court rendering the judgment had jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter of the action. Ogburn v. Booker, 197 N. C. 687, 150 S. E. 330.

§ 1477. Title to real estate in controversy, action dismissed.—If it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, the justice shall dismiss the action and render judgment against the plaintiff for costs. (Rev., s. 1423; Code, s. 837.)

See section 1473, 1476 and notes thereto.

"Real Estate" Defined.—The words "real estate" in this section mean freehold estate. Foster v. Penry, 77 N. C. 160, 162.

Allegation in Writing Not Required.—It is not necessary that an allegation in writing that the title to real estate in controversy be made. Edwards v. Cowper, 99 N. C. 421, 423, 6 S. E. 792. But the trial will proceed until it is apparent from the evidence that the question of title is involved. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 32 S. E. 677.

Duty of Justice to Dismiss Action.—When it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, it is the duty of the justice to dismiss the action. Hudson v. Hodge, 139 N. C. 308, 51 S. E. 955.

Stated in Nesbitt v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536, 537, Wright v. Harris, 116 N. C. 460, 462, 21 S. E. 693.

§ 1478. Another action in superior court. — When an action, before a justice, is dismissed upon answer, and proof by the defendant, that the title to real estate is in controversy in the case, the plaintiff may prosecute an action for the same cause in the superior court, and the defendant shall not be admitted in that court to deny the jurisdiction by an answer contradicting his answer in the justice's court. (Rev., s. 1424; Code, s. 838.)

Purpose of Section.—The last clause of this section was passed to prevent the hardship, which would necessarily arise if a defendant could have an action dismissed by a magistrate on his plea that title to real estate is in question, and then, when suit is brought by the same plaintiff for the same cause of action in the superior court, he should be allowed to plead that title to the land did not come in controversy, and have the cause dismissed there. To prevent such absurdity this statute was passed, so that if, on defendant's motion, it is adjudged in the magistrate's court that title to real estate will come in controversy, such finding shall be conclusive between same parties in the new action. Peck v. Culberson, 104 N. C. 425, 427, 10 S. E. 511.

Dismissal upon Answer Essential.—Recourse may not be had to the provisions of this section where it does not appear that the action before the justice was dismissed upon answer and proof by defendant that the title to real estate was in controversy. Brown v. Southerland, 142 N. C. 225, 55 S. E. 108. See also, note of Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87, under section 1476.

Where, however there is a failure to file the written answer with the justice, the defendant is not estopped from filing such answer in the superior court and denying jurisdiction. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87, 88.

§ 1480. Punishment for contempt in certain cases.—If any person shall profanely swear or curse in the hearing of a justice of the peace, holding court, the justice may commit him for contempt, or fine him not exceeding five dollars. (Rev., s. 1426; Code, s. 848; R. C. c. 115; 1741, c. 30.)

§ 1481. Jurisdiction in criminal actions.—Justices of the peace have exclusive original jurisdiction of all assaults and batteries, and affrays, where no deadly weapon is used and no serious damage is done, and of all criminal matters arising within their counties, where the punishment prescribed by law does not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days: Provided, that justices of the peace shall have no jurisdiction over assaults with intent to kill, or assaults with intent to commit rape, except as committing magistrates: Provided further, that nothing in this section shall prevent the superior or criminal courts from finally hearing and determining such affrays as shall be committed within one mile of the place where and during the time such court is being held; nor shall this section be construed to prevent said courts from assuming jurisdiction of all offenses whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is given to justices of the peace if some justice of the peace, within twelve months after the commission of the offense, shall not have proceeded to take official cognizance of the same. (Rev., s. 1427; Const., Art. 4, s. 27; Code, s. 892; 1889, c. 504, s. 2.)

For full treatment of the subject, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 39 et seq., 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 583 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section must be construed in connection with section 1436 which defines the jurisdiction of the superior court in criminal matter. See State v. Cunningham, 94 N. C. 824, 826, see also note of this case under section referred to (1436), analysis line, "Criminal Actions," IV.

Generally. — Until the expiration of six months (now twelve) from the commission of the offense justices of the peace have exclusive jurisdiction of all misdemeanors where the punishment can not exceed a fifty dollar fine or thirty days imprisonment; after the expiration of the six months (twelve) their jurisdiction is concurrent with that of the superior court. State v. Roberts, 98 N. C. 756, 3 S. E. 682.

Constitutionality. — This section is constitutional. State v. Johnson, 64 N. C. 581.

Legislative Power.—It is not competent for the Legislature to confer jurisdiction upon magistrates of any offense of which the punishment by law may exceed the limit as fixed by this section (and the Constitution). State v. Fesperman, 108 N. C. 770, 13 S. E. 14.

Where Punishment Unlimited.—Where the punishment under the particular statutes which the defendant is being tried is unlimited or is not limited to a fine of $50, or imprisonment for thirty days, it is not a case within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Addington, 121 N. C. 538, 27 S. E. 988.

Pleading.—In the case falling within the provisions of this section the pleadings must show affirmatively everything necessary to confer the jurisdiction relied upon. State v. Johnson, 64 N. C. 581.

Same—When Jurisdiction Concurrent.—It is not necessary for a bill of indictment charging assault with a deadly weapon, or with intent to commit rape, to show affirmatively the jurisdiction of the superior court, when that court and a justice's court have concurrent jurisdiction, if the latter court had not "proceeded to take cognizance of the crime within twelve months after its commission" for it is for the defendant to show, as matter of defense, the fact that jurisdiction had been thus taken. State v. Smith, 157 N. C. 578, 72 S. E. 853.

Variance between indictment and proof as affecting jurisdiction, see note to State v. Fesperman, 108 N. C. 770, 13 S. E. 14, section 1436, analysis line, "Criminal Action," IV.

"Deadly Weapon."—A deadly weapon is not one that must, kill or that may kill, but is is one which would likely produce death or great bodily harm, used by the defendant in the manner in which it was used. State v. Sinclair, 120 N. C. 603, 27 S. E. 77. For other illustrative cases showing what is held to be, a deadly weapon, see 2 N. C. Enc. Dig. 21 et seq., 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 187 et seq.

It is material to show whether or not a deadly weapon was used because it is a determining factor in deciding which court has jurisdiction. State v. Murphy, 101 N. C. 697, 701, 8 S. E. 142.

Same—Where Question of Law or Fact.—Whether the weapon used is a deadly weapon is a question of law, where there is no dispute about the facts. State v. Sinclair, 120 N. C. 603, 27 S. E. 77. But where the deadly character of the weapon is to be determined by the relative size and condition of the parties and the manner in which it was used, it is proper and necessary, to submit the matter to the jury with proper instructions. State v. Archbell, 139 N. C. 537, 51 S. E. 801.

"Serious Damage."—The serious injury as used in this section must be such physical injury as gives rise to great bodily pain, mental anguish alone is not serious injury within the meaning of this provision. State v. Nash, 109 N. C. 824, 13 S. E. 874.

Where it was shown that the defendant assaulted the prosecuting witness with his fist, knocked him down, jumped on him and beat him in a cruel manner, stunning him and badly injuring his eyes, but it did not appear that the injuries were permanent, it was held, that this was "serious damage," and a justice of the peace and no jurisdiction of the offense. State v. Shelly, 98 N. C. 673, 4 S. E. 530.

Same—Manner of Excepting.—Exception to the jurisdiction of the superior court, or that no serious damage was done, or no deadly weapon was used, and six months (now twelve) had not elapsed, should be made, not by a motion to quash or in arrest of judgment, but by a prayer for instruction to the jury to acquit. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495. And it may be also taken advantage of under a plea of not guilty. State v. Reaves, 85 N. C. 553; State v. Berry, 83 N. C. 604.

Simple Assault.—In a case of simple assault where no deadly weapon is used and no serious damages inflicted, a justice of the peace has jurisdiction. State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 863.

Upon the trial of an indictment for simple assault, the superior court prima facie has jurisdiction, but it is open to the defendant to show that the offense was committed within six months (now twelve) of the finding of the bill. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495.

Same — Former Conviction and Acquittal. — A plea of former conviction or acquittal before a justice of the peace for a simple assault is a complete defense on a trial for the same offense in the superior court, unless it should appear in the latter that the defendant making the plea had, in fact, used a deadly weapon or inflicted serious injury, in which case, the justice not having jurisdiction, the proceedings before him would be a nullity. State v. Albertson, 113 N. C. 633, 18 S. E. 321.

Under this section a magistrate has original jurisdiction of simple assault and on appeal from an acquittal a plea of former jeopardy is good. State v. Myrick, 202 N. C. 688, 163 S. E. 803.

Affray.—See 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 300 et seq.

Cited in State v. Hefner, 199 N. C. 778, 781, 155 S. E. 879.

Art. 11. Dockets

§ 1482. Justice shall keep docket.—A civil and a criminal docket shall be furnished each justice, at the expense of the county, by the board of county commissioners, in which shall be entered a minute of every proceeding had in any action before such justice. (Rev., s. 1416; Code, s. 831.)

Not One of Record. — A justice's court is not a court of record. Smith Building, etc., Co. v. Pender, 173 N. C. 55, 91 S. E. 524; Williams v. Bowling, 111 N. C. 295, 16 S. E. 176.

This has been the ruling in a great number of cases but in at least one recent case, Harris v. Singletary, 193 N. C. 583, 587, 137 S. E. 724, it is intimated that under the requirements of this section, a justice's court is partly one of record.—Ed. Note.

While the court of a justice of the peace is not a court of record, nevertheless, its judgments are conclusive until reversed, modified or vacated in some proceeding instituted for that purpose; and such court has the same jurisdiction to hear applications to vacate judgments rendered by it as superior courts possess over judgments rendered by them. Whitehurst v. Transportation Co., 109 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. 937.

They may exercise many of the powers of courts of record tribunals. Bailey v. Hester, 101 N. C. 538, 540, 8 S. E. 164.

§ 1483. Entries to be made.—The justice shall enter all his proceedings in a cause tried before him in his docket. No part of such proceedings must be entered on the summons, on the pleadings, or on any other paper in the cause. (Rev., s. 1470, Rule 14; Code, s. 840, Rule 13.)

Time of Docketing. — A judgment of a justice of the peace, not docketed within a year from the date of its rendition, is dormant and its lost validity can not be restored by docketing the same in the superior court, but only by a new action upon it. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 558, 559, 19 S. E. 675.

§ 1484. Dockets filed with clerk.—Each justice of the peace, as often as he has filled his docket, shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court for his county. (Rev., s. 1417; Code, s. 827.)

§ 1485. Dockets, papers, and books delivered to successor.—When a vacancy exists, from any cause, in the office of a justice of the peace, whose docket is not filled, or when such justice goes out of office by expiration of his term, such former justice, if living, and his personal representative, if dead, shall deliver such docket, all law and other books furnished him as a justice of the peace, and all official papers, to the clerk of the superior court for his successor, who is authorized to hear and determine any unfinished action on said docket, in the same manner as if such action had been originally brought before such successor. (Rev., s. 1418; Code, s. 828; 1885, c. 372.)

Art. 12. Process

§ 1486. Action begun by summons.—Civil actions in these courts shall be commenced by the issuing of a summons. (Rev., s. 1444; Code, s. 830; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 9.)

As to summons and process, see § 475 et seq. and the notes thereto.

Service by Publication. — In attachment and publication on a nonresident defendant before a justice of the peace, where defendant's property within the jurisdiction of the court has been levied on, a summons is not required. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 85 S. E. 17. As to service by publication generally, see § 484 and the notes thereto.

§ 1487. Issuance and contents of summons.—The summons shall be issued by the justice and signed by him. It shall run in the name of the state, and be directed to any constable or other lawful officer, commanding him to summon the defendant to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff at a place, within the county, to be therein specified, and at a time to be therein named, not exceeding thirty days from the date of the summons. It shall also state the sum demanded by the plaintiff or the value of the property sued for, where specific property is claimed. (Rev., s. 1445; Code, s. 832; 1874-5, c. 234.)

As to issuance and contents of summons, generally, see § 476 and notes thereto.

To Whom Directed. — The summons in a civil action before a justice of the peace must be directed to "any constable or other lawful officer." McKee v. Angel, 90 N. C. 60, 62.

Special Officer. — A special officer may be deputized to serve the summons issued by a justice of the peace, where the sheriff and coroner are interested. Baker v. Brem, 127 N. C. 322, 37 S. E. 454.

Amount Must Be Stated. — In an action before a justice of the peace, if on contract, the summons should state the amount demanded, if for a tort, it should state the amount of damages claimed, and if for the recovery of specific property, the value of the property and such statement in the summons gives the justice prima facie jurisdiction. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43, 44. A defect in this particular will not be cured by the insertion of the necessary averment in the pleadings or other process. Leathers v. Morris, 101 N. C. 184, 187, 7 S. E. 783.

Same—Omission by Inadvertence.—Where it is made to appear that the court would have jurisdiction if the summons had contained the proper allegation, but it was omitted by mistake or inadvertance, it may, pending the action, permit the necessary amendment. Leathers v. Morris, 101 N. C. 184, 187, 7 S. E. 783.

Same—Conclusiveness as Fixing Jurisdiction.—Where the amount claimed in the summons issued by a justice was $200, and no other complaint was filed, and the amount offered in evidence amounted to $242, but the plaintiff stated that he remitted the excess over $200, it was held that the justice had jurisdiction. Cromer v. Marsh, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836. See section 1436, analysis line, "Previous Remission," II, B, 1, b.

Failure to Serve Summons. — Where a justice issued a summons and warrant of attachment, and publication of the warrant was made, but the summons was not served, a judgment rendered thereon is void for insufficiency of service of summons. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 39 S. E. 61.

After Thirty Days.—When personal service of summons in attachment cannot be made for the absence from the court's jurisdiction of a nonresident defendant having property therein, publication of summons is sufficient if made after the expiration of thirty days subsequent to service of attachment—in this case, one day thereafter—computed from the time of granting the attachment. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 85 S. E. 17.

Presumption as to True Date. — A summons is presumed to bear the true date of its issue, but is competent to show that it was not in fact then issued. Currie v. Hawhive, 118 N. C. 593, 594, 24 S. E. 476.

§ 1488. Service and return of summons.—The officer to whom the summons is delivered shall execute the same within five days after its receipts by him or immediately, if required to do so by the plaintiff. Before proceeding to execute it, he is entitled to require of the plaintiff his fees for the service. When executed he shall immediately return the summons, with the date and manner of the service, to the justice who issued the same. (Rev., s. 1446; Code, s. 833.)

See sections 1486, 1487 and notes thereto. As to summons and process generally, see § 475 et seq., and notes thereto.

In General.—The same requirements as to a proper service of summons in a civil action issuing from the court of a justice of the peace, must be observed by the process officer as from the superior court, section 1500, Rule 16, and where a copy thereof is not served at the time of its reading to the defendant, the service is invalid, and the action will be dismissed on special appearance and motion, when the defendant has preserved this right by a like motion in the court of the justice of the peace. Pass v. Elias, 192 N. C. 497, 135 S. E. 291.

To Whom Returnable.—A summons issued by one justice of the peace cannot be made returnable before another (except in cases of bastardy). Williams v. Bowling, 111 N. C. 295, 296, 16 S. E. 176.

§ 1489. Process issued to another county.—No process shall be issued by any justice of the peace to any county other than his own, unless one or more bona fide defendants shall reside in, and also one or more bona fide defendants shall reside outside of, his county; in which case, only, he may issue process to any county in which any such nonresident defendant resides. (Rev., s. 1447; Code, s. 871; 1876-7, c. 287.)

In General. — This section being a restricted legislative grant of power when exercised, must be strictly pursued. Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 414, 29 S. E. 411. See also, Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799.

The language of the statute would seem to make the question of jurisdiction, or the right to serve process on a defendant outside the county of the justice, to depend somewhat upon the good faith of the plaintiff in joining the defendants as parties. In certain cases, perhaps, it may be so plain that the plaintiff has no real or bona fide claim against the defendant, who is a resident of the county in which the suit is pending, that the question of misjoinder may be presented as one of law. Marler v. Wadesborro Clothing Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366.

Amendment as to Resident Defendant.—Where the summons was issued against a resident of a county and a nonresident of the county, and on the trial the summons was amended on striking out the name of the resident defendant, it was held, that the justice should dismiss the action. Wooten v. Maultsby, 69 N. C. 462.

To Whom Addressed.—When a justice of the peace issues process for nonresident defendants, it must be issued (addressed) to the officer of the county where it is to be served. Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 414, 29 S. E. 411.

Section Not Applicable to Foreign Corporations.—The provisions of this section do not apply to foreign corporations. Fleming Co. v. Southern R. R., 145 N. C. 37, 58 S. E. 793.

The Municipal Court of the city of Greensboro has no jurisdiction under chapter 126, Private Laws of 1931, to determine a cause upon a contract, involving less than $200.00, when the sole defendant is not a resident of Guilford County and summons is served in Lee county as this section and § 1490 are applicable. Miles Co. v. Powell, 205 N. C. 30, 169 S. E. 828.

§ 1490. Civil process in inferior courts. — The process of any recorder's court, county court, or other court inferior to the superior courts of the state when such court is exercising the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace in civil matters, shall run only as does the process of the court of a justice of the peace for the county in which such court is located. (1915, c. 19.)

As to uniform practice in inferior courts where summons issued to run outside of county, see § 478(a).

§ 1491. Endorsement of process to another county.—In all civil actions in courts of justices of the peace where one or more of the defendants may reside in a county other than that of the plaintiff, it shall be lawful for any justice of the peace within the county where such defendant or defendants may reside, upon proof of the handwriting of the justice of the peace who issued the process, to endorse his name on the same, or a duplicate thereof, and such process so endorsed shall be executed in like manner as if it had been originally issued by the justice endorsing it. (Rev., s. 1449; Code, s. 872.)

To whom addressed, see note of Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 29 S. E. 411, under section 1489.

§ 1492. Certificate of clerk on process for another county. — In all cases referred to in the preceding section it shall be lawful for the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the action is brought to certify, under the seal of his court, on the process or a duplicate thereof, that the justice of the peace who issued the same is an acting justice of the peace in his county. And in all such cases it shall be the duty of any sheriff or constable to whom it may be directed to make an entry of the date of its reception, and to execute the same as provided for the service of civil process in courts of justices of the peace, and return it by mail to the justice of the peace from whose court it issued. (Rev., s. 1450; Code, s. 873; 1870-1, c. 60, s. 2.)

See sections 1489, 1491 and notes placed thereunder.

§ 1493. Judgment against defendant in another county.—No justice of the peace shall enter a judgment under the two preceding sections against any defendant who may be a nonresident of his county, unless it shall appear that the process was duly served upon him at least ten days before the return day of the same. (Rev., s. 1451; Code, s. 874; 1876-7, c. 57.)

Section Not Jurisdictional.—The provision of this section, that a justice of the peace shall not enter a judgment against a nonresident defendant unless it shall appear that process was duly served at least ten days before the return day, is not jurisdictional; and where, upon special appearance of defendant for the purpose of dismissing the action, he was given more than ten days thereafter to answer or defend, which he refused to do, the justice's judgment will not be disturbed. Bank v. Carlile, 174 N. C. 624, 94 S. E. 297.

Time of Service on Corporation.—A summons issued by a justice of the peace against a nonresident corporation need not be served ten days before the trial, where served on the secretary of the State Corporation Commission, the nonresident corporation not having appointed an agent in this State upon whom service could be made. Williams v. Iron Belt, etc., Association, 131 N. C. 267, 42 S. E. 607.

§ 1494. Service on foreign corporation.—Whenever any action of which a justice of the peace has jurisdiction shall be brought against a foreign corporation, which corporation is required to mention a process agent in the state, the summons may be issued to the sheriff of the county in which such process agent reside, and when certified under the seal of his office by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the justice issuing such summons resides to be under the hand of such justice, the sheriff of the county to which such summons shall be issued shall serve the same as in other cases and make due return thereof. No justice of the peace shall enter a judgment in such cases against any such foreign corporation unless it shall appear that the process was duly served upon such process agent at least twenty days before the return day of the same. The summons may be made returnable at a time to be therein named, not exceeding forty days from the date of such summons: Provided, this section shall not apply to actions commenced in a county where the defendant has an officer or agent upon whom process may be served: Provided, that any foreign corporation having no process agent in this state, but having an agent who collects money for it, said agent shall be deemed a process agent within the terms of this section, and that this proviso shall apply to existing claims as well as those arising hereafter. Such service can be made in respect to a foreign corporation only when it has property, or the cause of action arose, or the plaintiff resides in this state, or when it cannot be made personally within the state upon the president, treasurer, or secretary thereof. (Rev., s. 1448; 1907, c. 473; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 28.)

As to agents on whom service can be had, see section 483 and note thereto. See also sections 1137, 6414 and notes there placed.

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section is new with the Ex. Sess. of 1920.

Service on Agent Valid.—Under the provision of this section, a summons issued to a foreign corporation in another county where it has a process agent, properly certified under seal of the clerk of the superior court, served on such corporation or the agent more than twenty days before the return day, is valid. Fleming Co. v. Southern R. R., 145 N. C. 37, 40, 58 S. E. 793.

Time of Service.—See note of Williams v. Iron Belt, etc., Association, 131 N. C. 267, 42 S. E. 607 under § 1493.

In General.—The power to punish for contempt is inherent in all courts and is essential to their existence. State v. Aiken, 113 N. C. 651, 653, 18 S. E. 690.

Duty to Attend Court.—The duty of attending court in obedience to a subpoena is incident to citizenship. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 879, 10 S. E. 608.

No Bond Authorized.—A justice of the peace is not authorized to put a witness under bond to appear at a subsequent trial before the justice. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

§ 1496. Subpoena issued to another county. — Justices of the peace, in all civil cases, may issue subpoenas to counties other than their own; such subpoenas shall be authenticated in the same manner as provided by law for the authentication of process. When so authenticated the sheriff, constable or other officer to whom the same is directed shall execute and return the same as provided for the return of process: Provided, that where witnesses attend in counties other than their own under such subpoena they shall receive the same per diem and mileage as witnesses who attend the superior courts: Provided further, that before issuing such subpoenas the party wanting such witness shall deposit with the justice before whom the cause is pending one day's per diem and the mileage of the witness to and returning from place of trial, which amount shall be paid to the witness on his attendance and taxed against the party cast in the trial. (Rev., s. 1453; 1893, c. 436.)

§ 1497. Subpoena duces tecum in case against railroad.—When any action is brought against a railroad company before a justice of the peace, the justice before whom such action is made returnable shall have power to issue a subpoena to any county within the limits of the state, commanding the president or any officer, director, agent, or any one in the employment of such company, to appear before him at the time and place of trial and to produce such books, cards and other papers as the justice shall deem proper, and to give evidence in said cause; and each witness summoned as aforesaid failing or refusing to appear and testify and produce the books and papers aforesaid in obedience to such writ shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of court and fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 1454; 1885, c. 221, s. 2.)

Art. 13. Pleading and Practice

Editor's Note.—For a proviso applicable in Mecklenburg County only, see Public Laws 1933, c. 278.

Duty of Justice.—It is the duty of a justice of the peace, upon affidavit and motion (now a written request) for a removal being filed, to remove the case to another justice residing in the same township, State v. Ivie, 118 N. C. 1227, 24 S. E. 539; and if there be no other justice in the same township he can remove the case to the justice of a neighboring township.

Same—Removal to Improper Justice.—If the case is removed to a justice of a neighboring township when there is another justice in the same township in which the action is commenced, the justice to whom the case is thus removed has no jurisdiction, and his judgment is void. State v. Ivie, 118 N. C. 1227-8, 24 S. E. 539; State v. Warren, 100 N. C. 489, 490, 492, 5 S. E. 662.

Not Applicable to Mayor's Court.—The provisions of this section apply only to courts of justice of the peace and in a prosecution for violation of a town ordinance before a mayor, the defendant is not entitled to a removal. State v. Joyner, 127 N. C. 541, 37 S. E. 201.

§ 1499. Removal in case of death or incapacity. —If any justice of the peace dies or becomes incapacitated by removal, registration or other cause, having any action, civil or criminal, pending before him, which has not been finally determined, such action shall not abate or be discontinued, but the plaintiff in such civil action, or any one on behalf of the state in such criminal action, may remove such action for further and final determination before any other justice of the peace of the same township in which the original action was pending, or before any justice of the peace of the same county when there is no other in the township, by filing the papers in said action with the justice to whom the same is removed and by giving ten days notice to the defendant of such removal; and if the plaintiff in any civil action shall fail to give such notice of removal within ten days from the happening of the death, removal, or resignation, or incapacity of such justice, then the defendant in such action may remove the same by giving like notice to the plaintiff; and if no notice is given by either party to such action within twenty days, then such action shall stand discontinued without prejudice. The justice of the peace before whom such action may be removed shall proceed to try and determine the same, but he shall demand no fees or costs which have heretofore been properly advanced by any party to such action. After such removal either party shall be entitled to all the rights given in the preceding section. (Rev., s. 1456; 1905, c. 121.)

§ 1500. Rules of practice:

Rule 1, Pleadings. The pleadings in these courts are—

1. The complaint of the plaintiff.

2. The answer of the defendant. (Rev., s. 1457; Code, s. 840.)

Rule 2, Complaint. The complaint must state, in a plain and direct manner, the facts constituting the cause of action. (Rev., 1459; Code, s. 840, Rule 3.)

Generally.—When the parties come to trial in a justice's court, the justice should require the plaintiff to state "in a plain and direct manner the facts constituting the cause of action" and a denial by defendant or other facts constituting a defense. Smith v. Newberry, 140 N. C. 385, 53 S. E. 234.

Where two causes of action were set forth in a warrant before a justice of the peace (treated as a complaint), the judge properly submitted the issue upon the cause of action which was sustained by the evidence. Smith v. Newberry, 140 N. C. 385, 53 S. E. 234.

Where Description in Complaint Vague.—In the complaint filed the land was described as adjoining the lands of John P. Liverman, John H. Liverman and Isaac J. Snipes, and containing fifty acres: Held, that the description in the complaint was too vague to be explained by parol testimony, and if the transcript was correctly copied in the complaint, the action might have been dismissed for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or after the evidence was heard the jury might have been told that there was a fatal variance between the allegations and the proof. Blow v. Vaughan, 105 N. C. 198, 10 S. E. 891.

Rule 3, Answer. The answer may contain a denial of the complaint, or of any part thereof, and also a statement, in a plain and direct manner, of any facts constituting a defense or counterclaim. (Rev., s. 1460; Code, s. 840, Rule 4.)

The pendency of another action for the same cause, may be set up in the answer, with other defenses, and any issue arising thereon may be submitted at the same time as the others growing out of the pleadings, with instructions to the jury that, if found for the defendant, the others need not be considered. Montague v. Brown, 104 N. C. 161, 10 S. E. 186.

Same—Waiver.—Unless this defense is set up in the answer or in some way insisted on, before the trial on the merits, it will be considered as waived. Blackwell v. Dibbrell Bros. & Co., 103 N. C. 270, 9 S. E. 192.

Rule 4, Demurrer. Either party may demur to a pleading of his adversary, or to any part thereof, when it is not sufficiently explicit to enable him to understand it, or contains no cause of action or defense, although it be taken as true. (Rev., s. 1461; Code, s. 840, Rule 11.)

Rule 5, Order on demurrer. If the justice deem the objection well founded, he shall order the pleading to be amended on such terms as he may think just; and if the party refuse to amend, the defective pleading shall be disregarded. (Rev., s. 1462; Code, s. 840, Rule 12.)

Rule 6, Pleadings, oral or written. The pleadings may be either oral or written; if oral, the substance must be entered by the justice on his docket; if written, they must be filed by the justice, and a reference to them be made on his docket. (Rev., s. 1458; Code, s. 840, Rule 2.)

In General.—While we liberally construe pleadings filed in the court of a justice of the peace, they must substantially conform to the statutory requirements, i. e., there shall be a complaint and answer; if oral, the justice may enter the substance on his docket, and, if written, the pleadings may be filed and reference made to them on the docket; the complaint must state the facts constituting a defense or counterclaim. Baxter v. Irvine, 138 N. C. 277, 73 S. E. 882.

Written Pleadings.—Where the parties to an action before a justice of the peace have elected to file written pleadings, the pleadings are subject to the rule that material allegations in the complaint not denied by the answer stand admitted. Parker v. Horton, 176 N. C. 143, 96 S. E. 904.

Oral Pleadings.—In actions before justices of the peace the pleadings may be oral, but if so, the substance of them must be entered on the docket, and contain, in a plain and distinct manner, the ground of the action; and if the facts relied on as a defense be new matter, notice of that, also, must be given on the docket, in a plain and direct manner. Montague v. Brown, 104 N. C. 161, 10 S. E. 186.

Applied in Home Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Moore, 207 N. C. 515, 177 S. E. 633.

Rule 7, No particular form for pleadings. Pleadings are not required to be in any particular form, but must be such as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant. (Rev., s. 1463; Code, s. 840, Rule 5.)

Technical Accuracy Not Required.—The pleadings in a justice's court need not be in any particular form or drawn with technical accuracy, but are sufficient if they "enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant," and they may not "be quashed or set aside for want of form, if the essential matters are set forth therein," and ample powers are given the Court to amend either in substance or form, at any time before or after judgment in furtherance of justice. Aman v. Dover, etc., R. Co., 179 N. C. 310, 102 S. E. 392.

Informality or Irregularity.—Pleadings and proceedings in the trial of a cause should be liberally construed so as to prevent a failure of justice because of mere informality or irregularity, especially when the case is tried before a justice of the peace, where this section expressly provides that the pleadings are not required to be in any particular form and are sufficient when they "enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant." Wilson v. Batchelor, 182 N. C. 92, 108 S. E. 355.

Rule 8, No judgment by default. Where a defendant does not appear and answer, the plaintiff must still prove his case before he can recover. (Rev., s. 1464; Code, s. 840, Rule 6.)

Rule 9, Action on account or note. In an action or defense, founded on an account, or an instrument for the payment of money only, it is sufficient for a party to deliver the account or instrument to the justice and state that there is due him thereon from the adverse party a specified sum, which he claims to recover or set off. (Rev., s. 1465; Code, s. 840, Rule 7.)

Note for Purchase of Land.—Where an action to recover interest due upon a note, according to its terms, is cognizable in the court of a justice of the peace, his jurisdiction is not ousted by reason of the note having been executed for the purchase of land. Parker v. Horton, 176 N. C. 143, 96 S. E. 904.

Rule 10, Account or demand exhibited. The justice may at the joining of issue require either party, at the request of the other, at that or some other specified time to exhibit his account or demand, or state the nature thereof as far as may be in his power; and in case of his default, the justice shall preclude him from giving evidence of such parts thereof as have not been so exhibited or stated. (Rev., s. 1469; Code, s. 840, Rule 10.)

Rule 11, Variance. A variance between the evidence on the trial and the allegations in a pleading shall be disregarded as immaterial, unless the court is satisfied that the adverse party has been misled to his prejudice thereby. (Rev., s. 1466; Code, s. 840, Rule 8.)

Rule 12, No process quashed for want of form. No process or other proceeding begun before a justice of the peace, whether in a civil or a criminal action, shall be quashed or set aside for the want of form, if the essential matters are set forth therein; and the court in which any such action shall be pending shall have power to amend any warrant, process, pleading or proceeding in such action, either in form or substance, for the furtherance of justice, on such terms as shall be deemed just, at any time either before or after judgment. (Rev., s. 1467; Code, s. 908; R. C., cc. 3, 62, s. 22; 1794, c. 414.)

Docket Incomplete.—In bastardy proceedings the justice of the peace before whom the trial is had should take the denial of the defendant under oath, before trying the case, so as to make up the issue, and should regularly note it on his docket and in his return; and if the docket is incomplete in this respect the Superior Court judge on appeal should allow the denial to be entered nunc pro tunc. State v. Currie, 161 N. C. 275, 76 S. E. 694.

In State v. Mills, 181 N. C. 530, 533, 106 S. E. 677, the court said: "A clear analysis of this section (which was sec. 908 of the Code) is made by Justice Ashe in State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532, showing that the exercise of the power is discretionary, and that the power itself, by gradual amendment of the statute, is very broad and finally was extended to matters of substance, whereas formerly it related only to matters of form and was confined to civil actions."

Applicable to Final Judgments Only.—Our statutes requiring a motion for a rehearing before a justice of the peace within ten days, etc., this section rule 12, and 1530, allowing fifteen days for appeal from the justice's judgment, etc., apply to final judgments regularly entered, and not to judgments irregularly taken upon defective service, or void for lack of service of summons on the defendant, or other proper process to bring him before the court. Graves v. Reidsville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 109 S. E. 29.

Rule 13, Pleadings amended. The pleadings may be amended at any time before the trial, or during the trial, or upon appeal, when by such amendment substantial justice will be promoted. If the amendment be made after the joining of the issue, and it appears to the satisfaction of the court, by oath, that an adjournment is necessary to the adverse party, in consequence of such amendment, an adjournment shall be granted. The court may also, in its discretion, require as a condition of an amendment the payment of costs to the adverse party. (Rev., s. 1468; Code, s. 840, Rule 9.)

Power Not Reviewable. — The discretionary power to amend a complaint conferred upon a justice of the peace is not reviewable on appeal. State v. Taylor, 118 N. C. 1262, 1264, 24 S. E. 526.

Nature of Amendment Allowable.—The superior court has the power to amend a justice warrant in a criminal action, in form or substance, but the amendment must not change the nature of the offence intended to be charged. State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532; State v. Taylor, 118 N. C. 1262, 24 S. E. 526.

Amendment of Indictment.—An indictment before a justice of the peace may be amended by the trial judge upon the trial in the Superior Court on appeal. State v. Holt, 195 N. C. 240, 141 S. E. 585.

The omission of the name of the party in the complaint, against whom a criminal offense is charged, will not of itself invalidate the indictment, when the warrant of arrest thereto attached and referred to contains his name and clearly indicates him as the person charged, the complaint and warrant being read together, and in this way they are sufficient in form to proceed to judgment upon conviction. State v. Poythress, 174 N. C. 809, 93 S. E. 919.

Words Omitted.—Where a warrant was defective due to the omission of certain words, it was held to be within the discretion of the court to permit an amendment inserting the necessary words. Laney v. Mackey, 144 N. C. 630, 631, 57 S. E. 386.

Allegation of Value Omitted.—Where, in an action of claim and delivery of personal property, the allegation as to the value was omitted in the summons, the Justice of the Peace properly allowed a motion to amend by filling in the blank left for such allegation. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.

Equitable Proceedings.—On the trial of an appeal from a justice of the peace, of an action that sought to recover for a breach of contract, and also to enforce an equity, the trial judge properly allowed an amendment discarding the equitable proceeding. Starke v. Cotton, 115 N. C. 81, 20 S. E. 184.

Rule 14, Tender of judgment. The defendant may, on the return of process and before answering, make an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for an amount, to be stated in such offer, with costs. The plaintiff shall thereupon, and before any other proceeding be had in the action, determine whether he will accept or reject such offer. If he accept the offer, and give notice thereof in writing, the justice shall file the offer and the acceptance thereof, and render judgment accordingly. If notice of acceptance be not given, and if the plaintiff fail to obtain judgment for a greater amount, exclusive of costs, than has been specified in the offer, he shall not recover costs, but shall pay to the defendant his costs accruing subsequent to the offer. (Rev., s. 1471; Code, s. 840, Rule 16.)

In General.—The tender, made under the provision of this section must be a proposition (made before any defence is set up) to pay a specified sum in discharge of the plaintiff's claim, and not a sum in excess of a counterclaim. Rand v. Harris, 83 N. C. 486.

Money Paid into Court.—Money tendered and deposited into court by the defendant with costs accrued, "in full tender of all indebtedness of defendant to plaintiffs, if withdrawn by plaintiffs, pending the litigation, amounts to a satisfaction of their claim, and subjects the plaintiffs to all subsequently accruing costs." Cline v. Rudisill, 126 N. C. 523, 36 S. E. 36.

Rule 15, Continuance. Any justice before whom an action is brought may, on sufficient excuse therefor shown on the affidavit of either party or any person for him, continue such action from time to time for trial; but such continuance shall not exceed thirty days. (Rev., s. 1472; Code, s. 840, Rule 17.)

When a justice of the peace continues a criminal action for malicious prosecution upon a request of the prosecuting witness, and more than thirty days has passed without a trial, in which the prosecutor has remained inactive, the criminal proceeding is terminated under rule 15 of this section. Winkler v. Lenoir, etc., Rock Lines, 195 N. C. 673, 143 S. E. 213.

Rule 16, Chapter on civil procedure applicable. The chapter on civil procedure, respecting forms of actions, parties to actions, the times of commencing actions, and the service of process, shall apply to justices' courts. (Rev., s. 1473; Code, s. 840, Rule 15.)

Cross References.—See section 1486 et seq.; and notes placed thereunder.

Appointment of Next Friend.—There being no statutory special method indicated by which a next friend may be appointed to represent an infant in an action properly brought in a Justice's court, the appointment should be made by the Justice of the Peace, using the same care and circumspection in investigating the fitness of the person to be appointed as is required, by the Clerk, in actions properly brought in the Superior Court. Houser v. Bonsal & Co., 149 N. C. 51, 62 S. E. 776.

Rule 17, Attachment proceedings. The chapter on civil procedure is applicable to proceedings by attachment before justices of the peace, in all cases founded on contract wherein the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, and where the title to real estate is not in controversy. (Rev., s. 1474; Code, s. 853.)

Cross Reference.—See section 798 et seq.

Purpose.—The issuance of a warrant of attachment by a justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the action is only for the purpose of acquiring jurisdiction over a defendant who is a nonresident of the state, and is only incidental to the relief sought in the original action, sec. 819, and the warrant in garnishment may run beyond the limits of the county wherein the action was brought. Mohn v. Cressey, 193 N. C. 568, 137 S. E. 718.

Remedy for Wrongful Issue.—An attachment wrongfully issued from the Justice's Court against a citizen of the State, transiently absent, is remedied by recordari. Merrill v. McHone, 126 N. C. 528, 529, 36 S. E. 35.

Rule 18, Claim and delivery and arrest and bail. The chapter on civil procedure is applicable, except as herein otherwise provided, to proceedings in justices' courts concerning claim and delivery of personal property and arrest and bail, substituting the words, "justice of the peace" for "judge," "clerk" or "clerk of the court," and inserting the words, "or constable" after "sheriff," whenever they occur. (Rev., s. 1475; Code, ss. 849; 889; 1876-7, c. 251.)

Arrest and Bail, see section 767 et seq.
Claim and Delivery, see section 830 et seq.

Rule 19, Actions for damages and for conversion. All actions in a court of a justice of the peace for the recovery of damages to real estate, or for the conversion of personal property, or any injury thereto, shall be commenced and prosecuted to judgment under the same rules of procedure as provided in civil actions in a justice's court. (Rev., s. 1476; Code, s. 888; 1876-7, c. 251.)

Damages Limited to Fifty Dollars. — A Justice of the Peace under this section has jurisdiction of an action for damages, not exceeding fifty dollars, for injury to personal property, though such property be of greater value than fifty dollars. Malloy v. Fayetteville, 122 N. C. 480, 29 S. E. 880.

An action for damages for converting a crop of greater value than fifty dollars is not founded on an implied contract, and hence is not within the cognizance of a justice's court. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84.

Rule 20, Action on former judgment. On the trial of an action founded on a former judgment, the judgment itself shall be evidence of the debt, subject to such payments as have been made. (Rev., s. 1477; Code, s. 844.)

Rule 21, Rehearing of case. When a judgment has been rendered by a justice, in the absence of either party, and when such absence was caused by the sickness, excusable mistake or neglect of the party, such absent party, his agent or attorney, may, within ten days after the date of such judgment, apply for relief to the justice who awarded the same, by affidavit, setting forth the facts, which affidavit must be filed by the justice; whereupon the justice, if he deem the affidavit sufficient, shall open the case for reconsideration; and to this end, he shall issue a summons, directed to a constable, or other lawful officer, to cause the adverse party, together with the witnesses on both sides, to appear before him at a place and at a time, not exceeding twenty days, to be specified in the summons, when the complaint shall be reheard, and the same proceedings had as if the case had never been acted on. If execution has been issued on the judgment, the justice shall direct an order to the officer having such execution in his hands, commanding him to forbear all further proceedings thereon, and to return the same to the justice forthwith. (Rev., s. 1478; Code, s. 845.)

In General.—A new trial cannot be allowed in a justice's court, but the party dissatisfied with the judgment has his remedy only by appeal. But where the judgment is rendered in the absence of either party and such absence is occasioned by sickness of excusable neglect, relief may be had by filing an affidavit before the justice, setting forth the grounds therefor, within ten days after judgment. Gambill v. Gambill, 89 N. C. 201.

This and the other sections of the Code regulating procedure before justices of the peace, which makes the general provisions of the chapter applicable, do not confer on a nonresident defendant the right to a rehearing, or, which is the same thing, a new trial, in the justice's court after judgment, upon failure of personal service and a good defense shown; and the remedy is appeal, so that the action may be heard de novo in the superior court, where he will be permitted to interpose his defense. Thompson v. Lynchburg Notion Co., 160 N. C. 519, 76 S. E. 470.

Inexcusable Neglect.—Where the local agent of an incorporated company appears on the return day of a summons, before a justice of the peace, and procured a continuance for ten days, within which time it had an opportunity to employ counsel to represent it, but it neglected to do so until the day of the trial, when, because of delay in the mail, the counsel was not able to appear until after the trial. It was held, to be inexcusable neglect. Finlayson v. American Accident Co., 109 N. C. 196, 13 S. E. 739.

Justices of the peace have power to rehear cases decided by them, when mistaken, surprise or excusable negligence is shown, and the application is made in ten days after the date of the judgment. After the lapse of that time, they can not rehear their judgments for such cause. Navassa Guano Co. v. Bridgers, 93 N. C. 439.

Statute of Limitations.—Where a judgment was rendered by a Justice of the Peace and upon a rehearing granted by him a similar judgment was rendered, the Statute of Limitations began to run from the date of the latter, the first judgment having been vacated. Salmon v. McLean, 116 N. C. 209, 21 S. E. 178.

Art. 14. Jury Trial

§ 1501. Parties entitled to a jury trial.—When an issue of fact shall be joined before a justice, on demand of either party thereto, he shall cause a jury of six men to be summoned, who shall try the same. (Const., Art. 4, s. 27.)

§ 1502. Jury trial waived. — A trial by jury must be demanded at the time of joining the issue of fact, and if neither party demand at such time a jury, they shall be deemed to have waived a trial by jury. (Rev., s. 1431; Code, s. 857.)

The "Due Process" Clause.—The requirements of the Federal Constitution that no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law does not imply that all trials in the state courts affecting property must be by jury, but it is met if the trial be had according to the settled course of judicial proceedings. Caldwell v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 425, 28 S. E. 554.

Rights Preserved on Appeal. — When a legislative act creates a court of original jurisdiction for the trial of petty misdemeanors and prescribes an appeal to the superior court, the constitutional right of trial by jury is preserved. State v. Shine, 149 N. C. 480, 62 S. E. 1080.

Waiver.—If the defendant, after having been duly summoned, fails to appear and answer before a justice of the peace he thereby waivers and loses the right to demand a trial by jury. Durham v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 595, 598, 10 S. E. 683.

§ 1503. Number constituting the jury. — Six jurors shall constitute a jury in a justice's court, but, by consent of both parties, a less number may constitute it. (Rev., s. 1440; Code, s. 866.)

§ 1504. Jury list furnished.—The clerk of the board of commissioners shall furnish, on demand, to each justice of the peace in the county, a list of the jurors for the township for which such justice is elected or appointed. (Rev., s. 1428; Code, s. 854.)

§ 1505. Names kept in jury box.—Each justice shall keep a jury box, having two divisions marked respectively number one and number two, and having two locks, the key to be kept by the justice. He shall cause the names on his jury list to be written on small scrolls of paper of equal size, and to be placed in the jury box, in division marked number one, until drawn out for the trial of an issue as required by law. (Rev., ss. 1429, 1430; Code, ss. 855, 856.)

Cross Reference.—See section 2313 and notes thereto.

§ 1506. Fees deposited for jury trial. — Before a party is entitled to a jury he shall deposit with the justice the sum of three dollars for jury fees, and the justice shall pay to all persons who attend, pursuant to the summons, as well to those who do not actually serve, as to those who do serve, twenty-five cents each, to be included in the judgment as part of the costs, in case the party demanding the jury recover judgment, but not otherwise. The justice shall refund to the party the fees of all jurors who do not attend. (Rev., s. 1432; Code, s. 869.)

§ 1507. Jury drawn and trial postponed. — When a trial by jury is demanded, the justice shall immediately, in the presence of the parties, proceed to draw the names of twelve jurors from division marked number one of the jury box; and the trial of the cause shall thereupon be postponed to a time and place to be fixed by the justice. (Rev., s. 1433; Code, s. 858.)

Constitutional Provisions.—The method by which jurors are to be selected and summoned is not provided for in the constitution, and no limitation therein upon the power of the General Assembly to regulate it. State v. Brittain, 143 N. C. 668, 57 S. E. 352.

§ 1508. Summoning the jury. — A list of the jurors so drawn shall be immediately delivered by the justice to any constable, or other lawful officer, with an order indorsed thereon, directing him to summon the persons named in the list to appear as jurors at the time and place fixed for the trial; and it is the duty of the officer to proceed forthwith to summon such jurors, or so many of them as can be found, according to the order; and he shall make return thereof at the time and place appointed, stating in his return the names of the jurors summonded by him, for which he shall receive the fee allowed by law for summoning jurors. (Rev., s. 1434; Code, s. 859; 1935, c. 309.)

Editor's Note.—The words "for which he shall receive the fee allowed by law for summoning jurors," at the end of this section were added by Public Laws 1935, chapter 309, which provides: "That this act shall not apply to Beaufort, Brunswick, Cabarrus, Edgecombe, Forsyth, Gaston, Gates, Guilford, Halifax, Martin, McDowell, Orange, Pasquotank, Rowan, Transylvania and Wake Counties."

§ 1509. Selection of jury. — At the time and place appointed, and on return of the order, if the trial be not further adjourned, and if adjourned, then at the time and place to which the trial shall be adjourned, the justice shall proceed, in the presence of the parties, to draw from the jurors summoned the names of six persons to constitute the jury for the trial of the issue. (Rev., s. 1435; Code, s. 860.)

§ 1510. Challenges. — Each party shall be entitled to challenge, peremptorily, two of the persons drawn as jurors. (Rev., s. 1436; Code, s. 861.)

§ 1511. Names returned to the jury box.—The scrolls containing the names of jurors not summoned, if any, and of those summoned but not drawn, and of those drawn but challenged and set aside, must be returned by the justice to his jury box, in division marked number one: Provided, that the scrolls containing the names of such as are not legally liable or legally qualified to serve as jurors shall be destroyed. (Rev., s. 1437; Code, s. 862.)

§ 1512. Names of jurors serving.—The scrolls containing the names of the jurors who serve on the trial of an issue must be placed in the jury box in division marked number two, until all the scrolls in division marked number one have been drawn out. As often as that may happen, the whole number of scrolls shall be returned to division marked number one, to be drawn out as in the first instance. (Rev., s. 1441; Code, s. 868.)

§ 1513. Tales jurors summoned.—If a competent and indifferent jury is not obtained from the twelve jurors drawn, as before specified, the justice may direct others to be summoned from the bystanders, sufficient to complete the jury. (Rev., s. 1438; Code, s. 863.)

§ 1514. No juror to serve out of township.—No person is compelled to serve as a juror in a justice's court out of his own township, except as a talesman. (Rev., s. 1439; Code, s. 867.)

§ 1515. Additional deposit for jury fees on adjournment. — No adjournment shall be granted after the return of the jury, unless the party asking the same shall, in addition to the other conditions imposed on him by law or by the justice, deposit with the justice, to be immediately paid to the jurors attending, the sum of twenty-five cents, such amount to be in no case included in the judgment as part of the costs. On such adjournment, the jurors shall attend at the time and place appointed, without further summons or notice; and the fees for the jury, deposited with the justice in the beginning, shall remain in his hands until the jury are impaneled on the trial, and shall be then immediately paid to the jurors or to the party entitled thereto. (Rev., s. 1442; Code, s. 870.)

§ 1516. Jury sworn and impaneled; verdict; judgment.—The jury shall be sworn and impaneled by the justice, who shall record their verdict in his docket and enter a judgment in the case according to such verdict. (Rev., s. 1443; Code, s. 864.)

Art. 15. Judgment and Execution

§ 1517. Justice's judgment docketed; lien and execution.—A justice of the peace, on the demand of a party in whose favor he has rendered a judgment, shall give a transcript thereof which may be filed and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk of the county where the judgment was rendered. And in such case he shall also deliver to the party against whom such judgment was rendered, or his attorney, a transcript of any stay of execution issued, or which may thereafter be issued, by him on such judgment, which may be in like manner filed and docketed in the office of the clerk of such court. The time of the receipt of the transcript by the clerk shall be noted thereon and entered on the docket; and from that time the judgment shall be a judgment of the superior court in all respects for the purposes of lien and execution. The execution thereon shall be issued by the clerk of the superior court to the sheriff of the county, and shall have the same effect, and be executed in the same manner, as other executions of the superior court; but in case a stay of execution upon such judgment shall be granted, as provided by law, execution shall not be issued thereon by the clerk of the superior court until the expiration of such stay. A certified transcript of such judgment may be filed and docketed in the superior court clerk's office of any other county, and with like effect, in every respect, as in the county where the judgment was rendered, except that it shall be a lien only from the time of filing and docketing such transcript. (Rev., s. 1479; Code, s. 839.)

Generally.—A judgment in a justice's court does not create a lien upon the property of the defendant. To have this effect a transcript of the judgment must be filed and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk of the county wherein the judgment is rendered. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379, 380.

Judgment Conclusive.—Where a judgment was obtained before a justice of the peace and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk, the court has no power upon motion to set aside said judgment and enter the cause upon the civil issue docket. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379.

Amendments of the judgment before the magistrate, or of the transcript, can be made only before the tribunal which gave it, rendered the one or issued the other. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Presumed Regular.—Though the signature of the justice of the peace is not attached to the judgment, it is presumed from the term of the certificate of authentication that it was entered up regularly and in proper form. Surratt v. Crawford, 87 N. C. 372, 374.

Priorities.—If a number of justice's judgment be docketed in the superior court, they will, under this section, be a lien upon the land of the defendant from the time when they were docketed, and will have a priority over a judgment obtained in court by another person against the same defendant at a subsequent time, and though an execution be issued on the latter and the sheriff levies it on the land and advertises it for sale, yet, if before the sale executions are issued on a part of the justice's docketed judgments, and are placed in the hands of the sheriff, the proceeds of the sale of the land must be first applied to the payment of all the justice's judgments. Perry v. Morris, 65 N. C. 221.

Same—Fractional Parts of a Day.—The law takes notice of the fractional part of a day when there is a conflict between creditors arising as to the application of money received on justice's judgment filed and docketed on the same day. Bates v. Hnsdale, 65 N. C. 423.

Where Docketed.—A judgment given by a magistrate in one county cannot be docketed in another, unless previously docketed in the former county; and what is allowed to be docketed in the latter county is the transcript of judgment as docketed in the former. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Docketing in different counties, see section 1520.

Same—Its Nature in Superior Court.—If the judgment has been docketed in the superior court and subsequently vacated by the justice of the peace, the defendant may, upon motion, have the judgment therein set aside; such docketing, however, only operates as a judgment of the superior court for the purposes of lien. Whitehurst v. Merchants, etc., Co., 109 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. 937.

A judgment of a justice of the peace, duly docketed in the superior court, becomes a judgment of the superior court, and may be enforced by execution at any time within ten years from the date of such docketing. McIlhenny v Wilmington, Sav., etc., Co., 108 N. C. 311, 12 S. E. 100. See also section 614 and notes thereto.

The judgment as actually docketed is the only authority for the execution named; the form of the docketed judgment depends upon that of the transcript actually sent. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Effect of Appeals, see section 1518.

§ 1518. Effect of judgment on appeal.—In cases of appeal to the superior court from a justice's judgment docketed in such court, when judgment is rendered in the superior court on such appeal, the lien acquired by the docketing of such justice's judgment shall merge into the judgment of the superior court, and continue as a lien from the date of the docketing of such justice's judgment, and be superior to any other judgment docketed subsequent to the date of the justice's judgment, except prior attachment liens and judgment on the same. The clerk of the superior court shall carry forward and tax into the judgment of the superior court all costs incurred in the justice's court, including transcript and docketing, as well as all costs incurred in the superior court, and shall issue execution only on the judgment rendered in the superior court, and not upon the justice's judgment. When the judgment of the superior court is satisfied, it shall be a satisfaction of the justice's judgment, and the clerk shall note such satisfaction on the record of the justice's judgment. (Rev., s. 1479; 1903, c. 179.)

Effect of Appeal.—An appeal from a judgment of the justice of the peace does not deprive the plaintiff of the right to have the judgment docketed, nor does it take away the lien of the judgment. Durham v. Anders, 128 N. C. 207, 208, 212, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 1519. Entries made by clerk when judgment is rendered.—Whenever a transcript of a judgment taken before a justice of the peace is docketed on the judgment docket of the superior court and the same is afterwards reversed, modified, or affirmed in the superior court on appeal by a final judgment, the clerk of said court shall within ten days thereafter enter on the judgment docket where the said transcript was first docketed, the word "reversed," "modified," or "affirmed," as the case may be, and further refer to the book and page where can be found the judgment reversing, modifying, or affirming the former judgment. Any clerk failing to perform such duties as are required of him in this section shall pay to any person all such damages as he may have sustained by such failure. (Rev., s. 1479; 1907, c. 880.)

§ 1520. Justice's judgment removed to another county.—Any person who may desire to have a justice's judgment in his favor removed to another county to be enforced against the goods and chattels of the defendant must obtain from the justice who rendered the judgment a transcript thereof, under his hand; and must further procure a certificate from the clerk of the superior court of the county where the judgment was rendered, under the seal of his court, that the justice who gave the judgment was, at the rendition thereof, a justice of the county. On such transcript of the judgment, thus certified, any justice in any other county may award execution for the sum therein expressed. (Rev., s. 1480; Code, s. 846.)

Docketing in Different Counties.—The fact that a judgment docketed in one county is afterwards docketed in another, does not deprive it of the lien it had on the defendant's land in the first county. Perry v. Morris, 65 N. C. 221.

Docketing in the county where the judgment was rendered is necessary before the same can be docketed in another county. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Same—The Transcript Docketed.—The transcript is what is allowed, by this section, to be docketed in the county other than that where the judgment was rendered. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

§ 1521. Issue and return of execution.—Execution may be issued on a judgment, rendered in a justice's court, at any time within one year after the rendition thereof, and shall be returnable sixty days from the date of the same. (Rev., s. 1481; Code, s. 840, Rule 14.)

Failure to Docket.—The lost vitality of a judgment not docketed within one year from its rendition cannot be restored by placing it on the docket of the superior court. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 558, 19 S. E. 645; Woodard v. Paxton, 101 N. C. 26, 28, 7 S. E. 469, nor will such docketing in the superior court arrest the running of the statute of limitation. Daniel v. Laughlin, 87 N. C. 433, 434.

Same—Rights Purchaser.—A purchaser under an execution on a judgment of a justice of the peace docketed after the lapse of one year acquires no title although he be a stranger to the judgment and without notice. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 558, 19 S. E. 645.

Execution may be issued by the justice of the peace unless the cause has been removed to the superior court. Bailey v. Hester, 101 N. C. 538, 8 S. E. 164, and he may likewise recall the execution where it is improvidently issued. Id.

Application of Proceeds.—A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to direct the application on a sheriff, of the proceeds of an execution issued by another justice of the peace upon the ground that the latter was null and void. Cary v. Allegood, 121 N. C. 54, 28 S. E. 61.

§ 1522. Levy and lien of execution.—Executions issued by a justice, which must be directed to any constable or other lawful officer of the county, shall be a lien on the goods and chattels of the defendant named therein, from the levy thereof only, but shall not be levied on or enforced in any manner against real estate; but when a justice's judgment shall be made a judgment of the superior court, as is elsewhere provided, the execution shall be capable of being levied and collected out of any property of the defendant in execution, and it shall be a lien on the real estate of said defendant from the time when it becomes a judgment of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1482; Code, s. 841; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 5.)

To Whom Directed. — Execution from a justice's court must be directed to "any constable or other lawful officer of the county," and if it comes into the hands of the sheriff, he must obey it. McGloughan v. Mitchell, 126 N. C. 681, 682. 36 S. E. 164, but a constable cannot serve process addressed to the sheriff, nor can a sheriff serve process addressed to a constable. Id.

Same—Appraisers.—A constable to whom an execution from the court of a justice of the peace has been delivered may summons appraisers and administer to them the prescribed oaths. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 7 S. E. 883.

Personal Property.—It is not necessary, under this section, that the judgment be docketed in the superior court, to entitle the judgment creditor to an execution against personal property. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 373, 7 S. E. 883.

Real Property.—A judgment of a justice of the peace, when duly docketed in the office of the superior court clerk, becomes a judgment of that court to all intents and purposes, and is a lien upon all of the real estate of the defendant in the county. Dysart v. Brandreth, 118 N. C. 968, 23 S. E. 966.

§ 1523. Stay of execution. — In all actions founded on contract, whereon judgments are rendered in justices' courts, stay of execution, if prayed for at the trial by the defendant or his attorney, shall be granted by the justices in the following manner: For any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars, one month; for any sum above twenty-five dollars, and not exceeding fifty dollars, three months; for any sum above fifty dollars and not exceeding one hundred dollars, four months; for any sum above one hundred dollars, six months. But no stay of execution shall be allowed in any action wherein judgment is rendered on a former judgment taken before a justice of the peace. (Rev., s. 1483; Code, s. 842; 1868-9, c. 272.)

§ 1524. Security on stay of execution. — The party praying for a stay of execution shall, within ten days after the trial, give sufficient security, approved by the justice, for payment of the judgment, with interest thereon till paid, and cost; and the acknowledgment of the surety, entered by the justice in his docket and signed by the surety shall be sufficient to bind such surety. If the judgment be not discharged at the time to which execution has been stayed, the justice who awarded the judgment shall issue execution against the principal, or surety, or both. (Rev., s. 1484; Code, s. 843.)

Generally. — An undertaking that the appellant shall pay all costs that may be awarded against him on an appeal from a justice's court, and that if the judgment or any part thereof be affirmed, or the appeal dismissed, the appellant shall pay the amount directed to be paid by the judgment, is in compliance with the statute, and does not restrict the obligation to pay the judgment (if affirmed) as rendered in the justice's court, but the signers are bound to pay such as may be rendered in the superior court against the appellant. It is not necessary, to bind the appellant party to a suit, that he should sign the undertaking. Walker v. Williams, 88 N. C. 7.

Judgment Remains Unimpaired.—Although the execution on the judgment may be stayed on giving it undertaking as herein provided for, the force and effect of the judgment remains unchanged. Dunham v. Andres, 128 N. C. 207, 208, 212, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 1525. Stay of execution on appeal.—In all cases of appeal from justices' courts, if the appellant desires a stay of execution of the judgment, he may, at any time, apply to the clerk of the appellate court for leave to give the undertaking as provided in a subsequent section; and the clerk, upon the undertaking being given, shall make an order that all proceedings on the judgment be stayed. Instead of before the clerk of the appllate court, the appellant may give the undertaking before the justice who tried the cause, who shall indorse his approval thereon. (Rev., ss. 1485, 1486; Code, ss. 882, 883; 1869-70, c. 187.)

Mortgage as Substitute for Undertaking.—There is no statutory provision that allows a mortgage of real or personal property to be given in lieu of the undertaking on appeal from a justice's judgment, required by this section. Comron v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 9 S. E. 317. Yet, if the defendant give and the plaintiff accept such mortgage, it is valid and can be enforced. The stay of the execution is a valuable and sufficient consideration to support the mortgage. Id.

Judgment Remains Unimpaired.—See note of Dunham v. Anders, 128 N. C. 207, 38 S. E. 832, section 1524.

Action on Bond.—In an action on a bond given to stay execution on an appeal from a justice's judgment, it is not necessary to allege that the plaintiff has sustained damage on account of the appeal. McMinn v. Patton, 92 N. C. 371, 375.

§ 1526. Nature of undertaking.—The undertaking shall be in writing, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the justice or clerk making the order, to the effect that if judgment be rendered against the appellant, the sureties will pay the amount together with all costs awarded against the appellant, and when judgment shall be rendered against the appellant, the appellate court shall give judgment against the said sureties. And in the event that said defendant shall prior to entry of the final judgment be adjudicated a bankrupt, then and in that event, the surety or sureties on said bond shall remain bound as if they were co-debtors with the defendant and the plaintiff may continue the prosecution of the action against said sureties, as if they were co-defendants in the cause. (Rev., s. 1487; Code, s. 884; 1879, c. 68; 1933, c. 251, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1933, c. 251, was added the sentence, appearing at the end of this section, which provides for liability of sureties in case defendant is adjudicated a bankrupt.

Substantial Compliance Sufficient.—A literal compliance with the provisions of this section is unnecessary—a substantial compliance is sufficient. McMinn v. Patton, 92 N. C. 371, 375.

Surety's Liability Attaches When Final Judgment Rendered against Principal.—The liability of a surety on a bond given in accordance with this section to stay execution of a judgment of the justice of the peace pending appeal, as provided by § 1525, attaches when or if final judgment is rendered against the principal, and where the principal has been relieved of liability by a discharge in bankruptcy pending the appeal, plaintiff's claim being filed in the schedule in bankruptcy, no final judgment is rendered against the principal, and the surety may not be held liable on the stay bond. Note, this decision was given on the basis that chapter 251, Public Laws of 1933, amending this section, is prospective in effect and does not apply to bonds executed prior to its effect. Sutton v. Davis, 205 N. C. 464, 171 S. E. 738.

Mortgage as substitute for undertaking, see note of Common v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 9 S. E. 317, section 1525.

Effect of Bankruptcy.—Where a judgment was rendered against the defendant before a justice of the peace, and an undertaking filed as provided for by this section, and pending the appeal be obtained a discharge in bankruptcy, it was held, that the sureties were not liable. Laffoon v. Kerner, 138 N. C. 281, 50 S. E. 654.

The Laffoon case, supra, was decided prior to the 1933 amendment to this section and must be read in the light of the law as it existed prior to the amendment. For a discussion of the Laffoon case and the change effected by the 1933 amendment, see 11 N. C. Law Rev., 221.

§ 1527. Execution stayed upon order given. — A delivery of a certified copy of the order, hereinbefore mentioned, to the justice of the peace shall stay the issuing of an execution on the judgment; if it has been issued, the service of a certified copy of such order on the officer holding the execution shall stay further proceedings thereon. A certified copy of such order shall also be served on the respondent, or on his agent or attorney, within ten days after the making thereof. (Rev., s. 1488; Code, s. 885.)

Art. 16. Appeal

§ 1528. No new trial; either party may appeal.—A new trial is not allowed in a justice's court in any case whatever; but either party dissatisfied with the judgment in such court may appeal therefrom to the superior court, as hereinafter prescribed. (Rev., s. 1489; Code, s. 865.)

New Trial Not Allowed.—When both parties to an action are present at the trial in a justice court, and the case is heard and judgment rendered, a new trial cannot be allowed. The party dissatisfied must appeal to the superior court. Froneburger v. Lee, 66 N. C. 333.

Strict compliance with the requirements for perfecting the appeal given by this section is required. Green v. Hobgood, 74 N. C. 234.

Time for Taking.—See note of Hahn v. Guilford, 87 N. C. 172, section 1530.

Rehearing.—See note of Sallmon v. McLean, 116 N. C. 209, 21 S. E. 178, section 1500, Rule 21.

Bastardy Proceeding.—A bastardy proceeding, being a civil action is subject to appeal by either party. State v. Liles, 134 N. C. 735, 736, 742, 47 S. E. 750.

Cited in State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 550, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 1529. Appeal does not stay execution.—No appeal shall prevent the issuing of an execution on a judgment, or work a stay thereof, except as provided for by giving an undertaking and obtaining an order to stay execution. (Rev., s. 1490; Code, s. 875; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 6.)

An appeal from a justice of the peace does not vacate the judgment nor does it suspend its operation. Dunham v. Anders, 128 N. C. 207, 211, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 1530. Manner of taking appeal.—The appellant shall, within ten days after judgment, serve a notice of appeal, stating the grounds upon which the appeal is founded. If the judgment is rendered upon process not personally served, and the defendant did not appear and answer, he shall have fifteen days, after personal notice of the rendition of the judgment, to serve the notice of appeal herein provided for. (Rev., s. 1491; Code, s. 876; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 7.)

This section contemplates and applies to causes of which the court has acquired jurisdiction, and does not affect a case which enables one to obtain relief from a judgment entered against him when the court for lack of service was without jurisdiction to make any orders in any way affecting the rights of person or property. Graves v. Reidsville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 332, 109 S. E. 29.

Justice of Peace Included.—The principal both as to the right and procedure for a defendant against whom service of summons has not been made, or the same waived, to have the judgment set aside applies to the courts of justice of the peace as well as to those of more extensive jurisdiction. Graves v. Reidsville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 109 S. E. 29.

Duty of Justice.—A justice of the peace who takes a case under advisement and later renders judgment must notify the parties thereof to afford them opportunity to appeal in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Blacker v. Bullard, 196 N. C. 696, 146 S. E. 807.

Time.—An appeal must be taken to the next term of the appellate court. Hahn v. Guilford, 87 N. C. 172.

From the decision of a Justice of the Peace in a bastardy proceeding either the woman or the defendant may appeal to the Superior Court, but the appeal must be taken to the next term. The Superior Court has no right to dispense with this requirement. Helsabeck v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 377, 88 S. E. 473. The "next term" means any term, civil or criminal, which begins after the expiration of the ten days allowed for serving the notice of appeal. State v. Fleming, 204 N. C. 40, 42, 167 S. E. 483.

The carbon copy of a letter from the secretary of the Industrial Commission to the attorney for the defendant is not notice of appeal as herein contemplated and cannot be construed as a compliance with this section and § 1531. Higdon v. Nantahala Power, etc., Co., 207 N. C. 39, 41, 175 S. E. 710.

Service of Notice.—Where judgment is given on process not personally served, but served by publication, and the defendant does not appear at the trial, the defendant is entitled to take fifteen days notice of judgment in which to serve notice of his appeal. Thompson v. Lynchburg Notion Co., 160 N. C. 519, 76 S. E. 470.

Same—Discretion.—Although, where an appeal from a justice of the peace is regularly docketed in due time in the superior court, and proper notice of the appeal has not been given, a judge may, in his discretion, permit notice of appeal to be given, yet he has no discretion to revive an appeal lost by delay and to permit the same to be docketed at a subsequent term to the one to which it should have been returned. Davenport v. Grisson, 113 N. C. 38, 39, 18 S. E. 78.

Same—Time of Service.—In an appeal from a justice of the peace to the superior court, notice must be served by an officer (unless service is accepted or the appeal is taken at the trial), and within ten days both upon the justice who tried the case and upon the appellee, and upon failure to give such notice, unless the judge, in his discretion, permits the notice to be given at the trial, the appeal should be dismissed. State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 852, 13 S. E. 843.

Same—Excusable Neglect.—Where the judgment is rendered in the absence of either party and such absence is occasioned by sickness or excusable neglect, relief may be had by filing an affidavit before the justice, setting forth the grounds therefor, within ten days after judgment. Gambill v. Gambill, 89 N. C. 201. See also, Dunn v. Patrich, 156 N. C. 248, 72 S. E. 220.

Actual Service.—Where the defendant is actually served with notice of summons he is bound to take notice of the rendition of judgment. Spaugh v. Boner, 85 N. C. 208, 209.

Service by Officer.—The notice of an appeal from a justice of the peace, when the notice is not given on the trial, must be served by an officer. Clark v. Deloatch Mills Mfg. Co., 110 N. C. 111, 14 S. E. 518.

§ 1531. No written notice of appeal in open court.—Where any party prays an appeal from a judgment rendered in a justice's court, and the adverse party is present in person or by attorney at the time of the prayer, the appellant shall not be compelled to give any written notice of appeal either to the justice or to the adverse party. (Rev., s. 1492; Code, s. 877; 1869-70, c. 187; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 8.)

Party Present.—Where the party is present when the appeal is prayed for, no written notice is required. State v. Crouse, 86 N. C. 617, 620.

Applicability of Estoppel. — Where the defendant upon judgment being rendered against him in a justice's court appealed in open court, and afterwards told the justice not to send up the papers, who thereupon delayed so doing, and thereafter the defendant changed his mind and filed with the clerk of the superior court a bond sufficient to cover the plaintiff's claim and costs: Held, that it was not error in the court below to refuse to dismiss the appeal. Suttle v. Green, 78 N. C. 76.

§ 1532. Justice's return on appeal.—The justice shall, within ten days after the service of the notice of appeal on him, make a return to the appellate court and file with the clerk thereof the papers, proceedings and judgment in the case, with the notice of appeal served on him. He may be compelled to make such return by attachment. But no justice shall be bound to make such return until the fees, prescribed by law for his service, be paid him. The fee so paid shall be included in the costs, in case the judgment appealed from is reversed. (Rev., s. 1493; Code, s. 878.)

Payment of Fees Necessary.—Officers of the court are not complied to perform their duties until fees prescribed by law are paid or tendered them, but they must be demanded by them before laches can be imputed to litigants. West v. Reynolds, 94 N. C. 333, 334, 335.

Statement of Evidence Not Sent Up.—The requirement of this section that the justice file with the clerk, "the papers, proceedings and judgment in the case," does not include a statement of the evidence, unless there was an exception by one of the parties. London v. Headen, 76 N. C. 72, 74.

Liability of Justice.—The sending up an appeal to the superior court by the justice of the peace upon the payment of the cost is a judicial act, and no action for damages will lie against him for failing to send up the papers in apt time. Simonds v. Carson, 182 N. C. 82, 108 S. E. 353.

Power of Justice Ends upon Transmission of Appeal.—After a justice of the peace has transmitted an appeal from his judgment and all the papers to the superior court, he has no power to grant a motion to set aside his judgment for want of jurisdiction. Forbes v. McGuire, 116 N. C. 449, 21 S. E. 178.

Remedy Where Justice Fails in His Duty.—A motion in the superior court for a recordari or an attachment under this section is the remedy given an appellant for the failure of the justice to send up an appeal, and it is no legal excuse for the appellant to show that he had paid to the justice his fees and those of the clerk, and that the justice had failed to docket it as required by the statutes. The appellant would thus make the justice his agent and for his neglect he would be responsible. MacKenzie v. Davidson County Develop. Co., 151 N. C. 276, 65 S. E. 1003.

Failure to Sign Return.—The failure of a justice of the peace to sign the return of notice of appeal does not vitiate the proceedings in the superior court, where the appellant had given notice of appeal and paid the justice's fee, and the appellee made no motion for any purpose, but made a general appearance in the superior court at the trial in person and by attorney. Hawks v. Hall, 139 N. C. 176, 51 S. E. 857.

§ 1533. Defective return amended.—If the return be defective, the judge or clerk of the appellate court may direct a further or amended return as often as may be necessary, and may compel a compliance with the order by attachment. (Rev., s. 1494; Code, s. 879.)

Defective Return.—If the justice's return is defective, the judge may direct a further or amended return. Hawks v. Hall, 139 N. C. 176, 51 S. E. 857.

§ 1534. Restitution ordered upon reversal of judgment.—If the judgment appealed from, or any part thereof, be paid or collected, and the judgment be afterwards reversed, the appellate court shall order the amount paid or collected to be restored, with interest from the time of such payment or collection. The order may be obtained on proof of the facts made at or after the hearing of the appeal, on a previous notice of six days. If the order be obtained before the judgment of reversal is entered, the amount may be included in the judgment. (Rev., s. 1495; Code, s. 886.)

Involuntary Payments.—This section only applies where there has been an involuntary payment of or on the judgment. Cowell v. Gregory, 130 N. C. 80, 81, 40 S. E. 849. See the dissenting opinion, holding that payment of a collectible judgment rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction is involuntary.

Art. 17. Forms.

§ 1535. Forms to be used in justice's court.—The following forms, or substantially similar ones, shall be sufficient in all cases of proceedings in civil actions, provided for in this article:

[No. 28]

Subpoena Duces Tecum

If any witness has a paper or document which a party desires as evidence at the trial, the justice will pursue the form No. 26 as far down as the asterisk (*) and then add the following clause:

And you, S. T., are also commanded to bring with you and there produce as evidence a certain bond (describe particularly) which is now in your possession or under your control together with all papers, documents, writings or instruments in your custody, or under your control. (Conclude as in form No. 26.)

[No. 29]

Form of Oath of Witness

You swear that the evidence you will give as to the matters in difference between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you, God.

[No. 30]

Proceedings against Defaulting Witness

When a witness, under subpoena, fails to attend, the justice will note the fact in his docket by some such entry as the following:

R. P., a witness summoned on behalf of the plaintiff, called and failed.

If the party who suffers by default of the witness wishes to move for the penalty against him, he will serve substantially the following notice on the witness:

(Title as in No. 1)

To R. P.:

Take notice, that on the .... day of ....., 19 ....., the plaintiff in the above action will move G. W. H., Esq., the justice before whom the trial of said action was had, on the..... day of ....., 19 ...., for judgment against you for the sum of ..... dollars, forfeited by reason of your failure to appear and give evidence on said trial as you were summoned to do.

Dated this ..... day of ....., 19 ....
A. B ....., Plaintiff.

The justice will enter the proceedings on the foregoing notice on his docket as follows:

A ..... B ..... against C ..... D ..... } Justice's Court. Motion for penalty against R. P., defaulting witness.

..... day of ....., 19, ..., A. B., above named, appears, and according to a notice filed and duly served on R. P., moved for the penalty of ..... dollars forfeited by the said R. P., by reason of his failure to attend and give evidence on the trial of a cause, wherein A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant, tried before me at my office on the .... day of ....., 19 ....., as appears by entry duly made on my docket; when and where the said R. P., a witness summoned on the part of the plaintiff in that action, was called and did fail.

R. P. appears and assigns for excuse "high water," and offers his own affidavit, which is filed. He also offers as a witness in his behalf S. S., who, being duly sworn, testifies that, (state what S. S. says about the condition of the water at the time). R. P., having no other evidence, closed the case on his part. Whereupon A. B. offered M. Y. as a witness, who, being sworn, testifies (state what witness says).

Neither party having any other evidence, and after hearing all the proofs and allegations submitted for and against the motion, it is adjudged, on motion of A. B., that A. B. do recover of R. P. the sum of ..... dollars, penalty forfeited by reason of the premises, and the further sum of ..... dollars, costs of this motion.

[No. 31]

Form of a Venire

The justice will make a list of the persons drawn by him as jurors, and indorse thereon substantially as follows:

To O. P. M., constable of ..... County:

You are hereby directed to summon the persons named within to appear as jurors before me at my office in your county, on the ..... day of ....., 19 ...., for trial of a civil action now pending between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, then and there to be tried. And have you then and there the names of the jurors you shall summon, with this precept.

Dated this ..... day of ....., 19.....

Judgment upon Demurrer

NOTE.— If the justice thinks the objection raised by the demurrer to the pleadings is well founded, he will make this entry on his docket:

Demurrer to the complaint (or to the answer) filed, heard and sustained; and whereupon it is ordered that the said pleading be amended without cost (or upon payment of costs, as the case may be).

This order to amend the defective pleading is a matter of course, and is the only judgment which the justice can render upon demurrer. He cannot give a final judgment in the cause at this stage, for the party may choose to amend his pleadings and try the case on the facts. If, however, the party refuse to amend the defective pleading, the justice will disregard the same, and proceed to render final judgment, as follows:

The plaintiff (or defendant) having refused to amend his complaint (or his answer) demurred to, it is adjudged that the defendant go without day and recover of the plaintiff the sum of ..... dollars, costs of this action (or that the plaintiff recover of the defendant the sum of ..... dollars, damages, and the further sum of ..... dollars, costs of this action.)

If the justice deem the objection, raised by the demurrer, not well founded, he will enter in his docket as follows:

Demurrer to the complaint (or to the answer) filed, heard and overruled, and he will then proceed to the evidence in the cause.

NOTE.—The following is offered as a general precedent of the manner in which the justice will make the entries in his docket:

[No. 38]

(Title as in No. 1)

....., 19 ..... Summons issued; returnable on the .... instant at my office.

....., 19 ..... Summons returned, served on defendant by O. P. M., constable, on the ....instant, both parties appear, the plaintiff in person, the defendant by R. H. R., Esq., attorney.

The plaintiff complains on a promissory note executed by the defendant to him, dated ....., 19...., payable one day after date, for $....., and also for goods sold and delivered to the defendant, and claims damages for $ .....

The defendant answers and denies each and every allegation in the complaint, and claims a setoff of $..... for wood sold and delivered to the plaintiff, and also of $..... for work and labor performed for the plaintiff.

On joining issue of fact as above, the action is, by consent of parties, adjourned to the ..... instant, at my office.

A venire is also issued at the plaintiff's (or defendant's) demand, returnable at the time and place last mentioned.

....., 19..... The parties appear and proceed to the trial of the cause. The following jurors are returned as summoned upon the venire by O. P. M., constable. (Insert the names of all jurors summoned.) The following jurors, who are returned as summoned, do not appear. (Insert their names.) The following jurors appear according to the summons. (Insert their names.) The following jurors are sworn to try the action. (Insert their names.)

H. P. and J. M., witnesses for the plaintiff, and W. F., a witness for the defendant, are sworn and testify; J. S., a witness on the part of the defendant, is offered, but objected to by the plaintiff on the ground (state the ground), and rejected.

Having heard the evidence (and the arguments of a counsel, if any), the cause is submitted to the jury, who retire, under charge of O. P. M., a constable duly sworn for that purpose, and afterwards return in open court and publicly deliver their verdict, by which they find in favor of the plaintiff for $..... damages; whereupon, I adjudged that the plaintiff do recover of the defendant—

Form of Notice of Appeal to the Superior Court, Where a New Trial on the Whole Matter is to be Had

(Title as in No. 1)

To G. W. H., Esq., a justice of the peace for said county.

Take notice, that the defendant in the above action appeals to the Superior Court from the judgment rendered therein by you on the ..... day of ....., 19...., in favor of the plaintiff for the sum of sixty-five dollars damages and the further sum of three dollars and seventy-five cents costs, and that this appeal is founded upon the ground that the said judgment is contrary to law and evidence.

Dated this ..... day of ....., 19....

W. W. .....
Attorney for Appellant.

[No. 40]

Return to Notice of Appeal

A..... B..... } County of ..... against
C..... D..... }

To the Superior Court of ..... County:

An appeal having been taken in this action by the defendant, I, G. W. H., the justice before whom the same was tried, in pursuance of the notice of appeal hereto annexed, do hereby certify and return that the following proceedings were had by and before me in said action:

On the first of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, at the request of the plaintiff, I issued a summons in his favor and against the defendant, which is herewith sent. Said summons was, on the return day thereof, returned before me at my office; and at the same time and place the parties personally appeared.

The plaintiff complained for goods sold and delivered to defendant to the amount of $75. The defendant denied the right of the plaintiff to recover that amount for the goods, on the ground that he had paid, at or shortly after the purchase of said goods, ... dollars thereon; and he also claimed to have a setoff against the plaintiff to the amount of $85 for board and lodging furnished to plaintiff and work and labor done for him; and he claimed to be entitled to judgment against the plaintiff for $.....

Both parties introduced evidence upon the claims so made by them, and after hearing their proofs and allegations, I rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, on the tenth of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, for $65 damages, and for the further sum of $3.75, costs of the action.

I also certify that on the eleventh of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, the defendant served the annexed notice of appeal on me, and at the same time paid me my fee of $1 for making my return.

All of which I send, together with the process, pleadings, and other papers in the cause. Dated this 15th day of February, 1904.

G. W. H.....
Justice of the Peace.

N. B.—If the cause was tried by a jury, state the fact and set forth the verdict, with the judgment thereon. It is not necessary to set out in the return a copy of any process, pleading, affidavit or other paper. It is sufficient to refer to such a paper as filed and as herewith sent.

[No. 41]

Where the Sum Demanded Exceeds Two Hundred Dollars

It appearing that the sum demanded by the plaintiff in this action exceeds two hundred dollars, it is ordered that the action be dismissed, and judgment is rendered against A. B., plaintiff, for the sum of ..... dollars, costs.

Where the Title to Real Estate is in Question

N. B.—The defendant, if he wishes to make answer to title, must file a written answer to the complaint, setting forth the facts.

Answer of Title

(Title as in No. 1)

The defendant answers to the complaint:

1. That no allegation thereof is true.

2. That the plaintiff ought not to have or maintain his action against the defendant, because the premises mentioned and described in the complaint, at the time when the rent and render, for which said action is brought, is alleged to be due, was and is now the land and freehold of one J. D., and not that of the plaintiff; nor was the plaintiff then, nor is he now, entitled to the possession thereof; and the defendant further answers that the title to said premises was, at the time aforesaid, and is now, in said J. D., and will come in question on the trial of this action.

Dated this ..... day of ....., 19....

C. D....., Defendant

It appearing from the answer and proof of the defendant that the title to real estate is in controversy in this action, it is ordered that the action be dismissed, and judgment is rendered against the plaintiff for ..... dollars, costs.

A. B....., Plaintiff.

[No. 45]

Form of Judgment on Tender

(Title as in No. 1)

N. B.—The justice will state all the proceedings in the action from the issuing of the summons down to the appearance of the parties and the complaint of the plaintiff, and then proceed as follows:

Whereupon, the said defendant, before answering said complaint, made and served an offer, in writing, to allow the plaintiff to take judgment against him for the sum of fifty dollars with costs;* and the said plaintiff thereupon accepted such offer, and gave notice thereof to the defendant in writing; said offer and acceptance thereof being filed;

Now, therefore, judgment is accordingly rendered in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant for the sum of fifty dollars damages, and the further sum of one dollar, costs.

If notice of acceptance is not given, the entry will be as follows:

(Follow the foregoing form down to the asterisk (*) and then add):

And the said plaintiff having refused to accept such offer, the defendant answered the complaint by denying, etc. (state the defense of the defendant down to the judgment, which, in case the plaintiff fails to recover more than the sum mentioned in the offer, will be entered thus):

After hearing the proof and allegations of the respective parties, I adjudge that the plaintiff do recover the sum of fifty dollars damages, and the further sum of one dollar, costs.

I further adjudge that the defendant do recover of the plaintiff the sum of two dollars and seventy-five cents, costs accruing in the action subsequent to the offer of the defendant referred to.

Record of Conviction of a Contempt

The justice will make an entry in his docket stating the particular circumstances of the contempt, of which the following is offered as an example:

Whereas on the.....day of....., 19....., while engaged in the trial of an action (or other judicial act, as the case may be) in which A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant, at my office in.....County, M. B. did willfully and contemptuously interrupt me, and did then and there conduct himself so disorderly and insolently towards me, and by making a loud noise did disturb the proceedings on said trial (or other judicial act) and impair the respect due to the authority of the law; and on being ordered by me to cease making such noise and disturbance, the said M. B. refused so to do, but on the contrary did publicly declare and with loud voice (state whatever offensive words were used): and whereas when immediately called upon by me to answer for the said contempt said M. B. did not make any defence thereto, nor excuse himself therefrom: the said M. B. is therefor convicted of the contempt aforesaid, and is adjudged to pay a fine of five dollars and be imprisoned in the county jail for the term of two days, and until he pays such fine or is duly discharged from imprisonment according to law.

SUBCHAPTER IV. RECORDERS' COURTS

Art. 18. Municipal Recorders' Courts

§ 1536. In what cities and towns established; court of record.—In each city and town in the state, which has acquired a population of one thousand or over by the last federal census, a recorder's court for such municipality may be established, which shall be a court of record and shall be maintained pursuant to the provisions of this subchapter. (1919, c. 277, ss. 1, 2; 1925, c. 32.)

Constitutionality. — Where the question of the constitutionality of this section establishing recorders' courts by a general act is the subject of the action, and pending the appeal the Legislature has withdrawn the effect or operation of the statute from a certain county (Caldwell) wherein the establishment of the court was the subject of injunctive relief, the cause of action abates and the appeal will be dismissed at the cost of each party, and the order restraining the establishment of the particular court will continue to be effective. Coffey v. Rader, 182 N. C. 689, 110 S. E. 106.

§ 1537. Recorder's election and qualification; term of office and salary.—The court shall be presided over by a recorder, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and who shall be of good moral character and, at the time of his appointment or election, a qualified elector of the municipality. The first recorder, upon the establishment of such court, shall be elected by the governing body of the muncipality, either at the time of the establishment of the court or within thirty days thereafter, and he shall hold office until the next municipal election and until his successor is duly elected and qualified. If a vacancy occur in the office at any time, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the governing body of the municipality, at the regular or special meeting called for that purpose. After the first elected recorder each succeeding recorder shall be nominated and elected in the municipality in the same manner and at the same time as is now provided by law for the elective officers of the municipality, and in the general election for such officers. Before entering upon the duties of his office the recorder shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for a justice of the peace, and shall file the same with the clerk of the board of the city or town. The salary of the recorder shall be determined and fixed in advance by the governing body of the city or town, and shall not be increased or decreased during the term of his office, and shall be paid out of the funds of the municipality; Provided, that the governing body of such city or town is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by said recorder; Provided further, that the recorder may also be the mayor of the municipality. (1919, c. 277, s. 2; 1925, c. 32, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The act of 1925 added the two provisos to the section.

Mandamus to Compel Appointment.—When it appears on appeal to the Supreme Court from admitted facts that a board of aldermen of an incorporated town are acting in violation of a command of the statute that they elect a recorder in the manner specified therein, a mandamus will issue, in view of the public interests involved. Battle v. Rocky Mount, 156 N. C. 329, 72 S. E. 354.

Constitutional Provisions.—It is held in State v. Bateman, 162 N. C. 588, 77 S. E. 768, that a former requirement that the recorder must be "a licensed attorney at law" is unconstitutional, on the ground that it does not lie within the power of the legislature to add to the constitutional disqualifications to hold office.

§ 1538. Time and place of holding court. — The court shall be opened for the trial of criminal cases at least one day of each week, to be fixed by the governing body of the municipality, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is legally disposed of. The court shall be held in the city or town hall, or other place provided therefor, and other sessions of the court may be called by the recorder, as necessity may require. (1919, c. 277, s. 3.)

§ 1539. No subsequent change of judgment.— When a case have been finally disposed of and judgment pronounced therein, it shall not thereafter be reopened or the judgment or sentence rendered therein be modified, changed or stricken out by the recorder after the adjournment of the regular weekly term or after the adjournment of any special term called by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 3.)

§ 1540. Procedure in the court.—The recorder shall preside over the court and try and determine all criminal actions coming before him, the jurisdiction of which is conferred by this article, and the proceedings of the court shall be the same as are now prescribed for courts of justices of the peace and for the superior court so far as the same may reasonably apply. (1919, c. 277, s. 9.)

§ 1541. Criminal jurisdiction.—The court shall have the following jurisdiction within the following named territory:

1. Original, exclusive, and concurrent jurisdiction, as the case may be, of all offenses committed within the corporate limits of the municipality which are now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state, including all offenses of which the mayor or other municipal court now has jurisdiction.

2. Original and concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace of all offenses committed outside the corporate limits of the municipality and within a radius of five miles thereof, which is now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state.

3. Exclusive, original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed within the corporate limits of such municipality and outside, but within a radius of five miles thereof, which are below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors.

4. Concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace to hear and bind over to the superior court all persons charged with any crime committed within the territory above mentioned, of which the recorder's court is not herein given final jurisdiction.

5. All jurisdiction given by the general laws of the state to justices of the peace, or to the superior court, to punish for contempt, to issue writs ad testificandum, and other process to require the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the courts. (1919, c. 277, s. 4; 1925, c. 32, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—In the second and third provisions of this section, the five mile radius is new with the acts of 1925, heretofore the jurisdictional limits herein mentioned was confined to a radius of two miles of the corporate limits of the municipality.

§ 1542. Jurisdiction to recover penalties.—The recorder's court shall also have jurisdiction to try all actions for the recovery of penalties imposed by law, or by any ordinance of the municipality in which the court is located, for any offense committed within the corporate limits of the municipality or outside thereof within five miles of the corporate limits, and all such penalties shall be recovered in the name of the municipality. (1919, c. 277, s. 10; 1925, c. 32, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The acts of 1925 extended the radius to five miles of the corporate limits, while under the statute as it formerly stood, the limits was two miles outside the corporate limits.

§ 1543. Disposition of cases when jurisdiction not final. — In all cases heard by the recorder against any person for any offense whereof the court has not final jurisdiction and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a bond or recognizance with sufficient surety to appear at the next succeeding term of the superior court of the county for the trial of criminal cases and in default of such bond or recognizance he shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await trial; but in capital cases such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county without bail. (1919, c. 5.)

§ 1544. Disposition of cases when jurisdiction final.—All persons pleading guilty or convicted in the court of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction shall be fined or imprisoned, according to law, and any person entering a plea of guilty, or who may be convicted of any such offense, shall also pay the costs of the prosecution. (1919, c. 277, s. 7.)

§ 1545. Sentences to be imposed.—When any person is convicted, or pleads guilty, of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction, the recorder may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court is held, and assign him to work on the public roads of the county as provided by law; or when such person is a woman or an infant of immature years, the recorder may sentence him or her to the city or county workhouse or state reformatory, or other penal institution provided by law for such purposes. If there is no chain-gang in the county in which the court is held, the recorder may sentence the person to work upon the public roads of any other county provided with a chain-gang for the working of public roads, as authorized by the general laws of the state. (1919, c. 277, s. 8.)

§ 1546. Appeal to superior court. —Any person convicted of any offense of which the recorder has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court of the county from any judgment or sentence of the recorder, in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from courts of justices of the peace. Upon such appeal the defendant shall be required to give bond or recognizance with sufficient surety for his appearance at the next term of the superior court; and in default thereof the recorder shall commit him to the county jail of the county until he shall give bond or be otherwise discharged by law. (1919, c. 277, ss. 5, 9.)

§ 1547. Costs paid to the municipality.—All cost incurred in issuing warrants and serving the same in cases where the recorder has not final jurisdiction, and for the service of process arising in such case when the process is served by the officer of the municipality, except as hereinafter provided, shall be paid to the municipality; and officers serving process issued from said court shall be allowed the same fees as are now allowed sheriffs in like cases, the same, when collected, to be paid over as herein provided. Where such officer is not an officer of a municipality such costs shall be dealt with as is now provided by law. (1919, c. 277, s. 6.)

§ 1548. Seal of court.—The recorder's court shall have a seal with the impression, "The Recorder's Court of the City of ————," which seal shall be used in the attestation of writs, warrants, or other process, acts, judgments, or decrees of the court, in the same manner and to the same effect as the seal of other courts in the state; but no process issuing from the court, to be executed within the county in which court is held, shall require attestation by seal. (1919, c. 277, s. 11.)

§ 1549. Issuance and service of process.—The recorder may issue process to the chief of police of the municipality in which the court is held, or to the sheriff, constable, or other lawful officer of the county in which the municipality is located, or to any other county in the state; and such process, when attested by the seal of the court, shall run anywhere in the state, and shall be executed by all public officers authorized to execute process, and be returned by them according to law.

The summons, warrant of arrest, and every other writ, process, or precept issuing from a recorder's court or other court inferior to the superior court, except justices of the peace, may be signed by the recorder, vice recorder, or presiding justice of the court, or by the clerk of the court or deputy clerk, where the court has a clerk or deputy. (1919, c. 277, s. 12; 1919, c. 157.)

§ 1550. Vice recorder; election and duties.—The governing body of the municipality shall, at the same time and in the same manner as is provided herein for the election of the first recorder, elect a vice recorder, who shall have the jurisdiction and authority conferred upon the recorder when the recorder shall be prevented from attending to his duties on account of sickness or other temporary disability or by reason of his temporary absence. The vice recorder shall receive the compensation allowed to the recorder for such services for the time that he may render such service, the compensation of the vice recorder to be deducted from the salary of the recorder, and the vice recorder shall be thereafter elected by the governing body of the municipality for the same term as the recorder is elected, and any vacancy occurring in the office of vice recorder shall be filled in the same manner as is provided for the filling of vacancies in the office of recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 13.)

§ 1551. Clerk of court; election and duties; removal; fees.—The clerk of the recorder's court shall be elected by the governing body of the city or town at the same time and for the same term as the vice recorder, and all vacancies in the office of the clerk of the court shall be filled in the manner provided for filling vacancies in the office of vice recorder. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the clerk shall enter into a bond, with sufficient surety, in a sum to be fixed by the governing body of the municipality, not to exceed five thousand dollars, payable to the state, conditioned upon the true and faithful performance of his duties as such clerk and for the faithful accounting for and paying over of all money which may come into his hands by virtue of his office. The bond shall be approved by the governing body and shall be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county. The clerk shall make monthly settlements with the county and city treasurers for all money which has come into his hands belonging to either. The clerk of the governing body of the municipality shall ex officio discharge the duties of the clerk of the court, unless the governing body shall elect some other person to discharge the duties. The governing body of the municipality shall have the right to remove the clerk of the court, either for incapacity or for neglect of the duties of his office; and in case of a vacancy for any cause the office shall be filled in the manner hereinbefore provided. Provided, that the governing body of the municipality is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by the clerk of said court. (1919, c. 277, ss. 15, 18; 1925, c. 32, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section is new with the Acts of 1925.

§ 1552. Clerk to keep records.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to keep an accurate and true record of all costs, fines, penalties, forfeitures, and punishments by the court imposed, and the record shall show the name and residence of the offender, the nature of the offense, the date of the hearing of the trial, and the punishment imposed, which record shall at all times be open to inspection by any of the city authorities, or other person having business relating to the court. The clerk shall keep a permanent docket for recording all the processes issued by the court, which shall conform to the dockets kept by the clerk of the superior court. He shall also keep in proper files, to be provided by the city, a record of all cases which shall be disposed of in the court and the disposition made thereof. (1919, c. 277, s. 17.)

§ 1553. Clerk to issue process.—The clerk of the court shall have all the power and authority now conferred upon justices of the peace to issue warrants for the arrest of all persons charged with the commission of offenses within the territory hereinbefore fixed, which warrants, however, shall be made returnable before the recorder of said court at the next sitting thereof, and shall be issued only upon affidavit made as now required by law to support warrants issued by justices of the peace. The clerk shall also have all power and authority of justices of the peace or clerk of the superior court to issue subpœnas or other process, to run anywhere within the state; and when such subpœnas or other process shall run beyond the county in which the court is located the same shall be attested by the seal of the court, and shall also be signed by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 18.)

§ 1554. Prosecuting attorney; duties and salary.—There shall be a prosecuting attorney in the court, who shall appear for the prosecution in all cases therein and, when specially requested by the governing body of the municipality and the recorder, shall assist in the prosecution of all cases which may be bound over or appealed from the court to the superior court; for his services he shall be paid such amount per annum as may be fixed by the governing body, at the same time and in the same manner as is provided for fixing the salary of the recorder. The prosecuting attorney may, or may not, perform the duties of city attorney, in the discretion of the governing body of the municipality: Provided, that the governing body of any such municipality is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by said prosecuting attorney. (1919, c. 277, s. 16; 1925, c. 32, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section is new with the Acts of 1925.

§ 1555. Jury trial, as in justice's court.—In all trials in the court, upon demand for a jury by the defendant or the prosecuting attorney representing the state, the recorder shall try the same as is now provided in actions before justices of the peace wherein a jury is demanded, and the same procedure as is now provided by law for jury trials before justices of the peace shall apply: Provided, however, that the compensation allowed jurors in all cases wherein the superior court has heretofore had final jurisdiction shall be the same as is allowed jurors in the superior court of the county in which the recorder's court is established. (1919, c. 277, s. 24.)

Editorial Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 115, s. 1, provides that this section shall not apply to the county court of Craven County.

§ 1556. Continuances, recognizances, and transcripts.—The recorder's court shall have the same authority to grant continuances, take bonds and recognizances, and render judgments on forfeited bonds and recognizances, as is now vested by law in the superior courts, and the procedure regulating the issuing and service of notices against defendants and their sureties upon bonds and recognizances, and all other proceedings by taking and enforcing judgments in such cases, shall be the same as in the superior court in like cases. Transcripts of any judgments rendered may be docketed in the superior court of the county in which such court is held, in the same manner and with the same effect as judgments of other courts docketed as provided by law. (1919, c. 277, s. 21.)

§ 1557. Officers' fees; fines and penalties paid.—In each case disposed of by the recorder where the defendant is convicted or pleads guilty, there shall, in addition to other lawful costs, be allowed the following fees, to be taxed as a part of the costs against the defendant, viz: For recorder, one dollar in each case involving the breach of a municipal ordinance and any crime or offense of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, and a fee of two dollars in all other cases; for the prosecuting attorney, one dollar in all cases of violation of municipal ordinances, and of any crime or offense of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, and in all other cases a fee as now provided by law for solicitors prosecuting in the superior court; and for the clerk of such court the same fees as are now allowed to clerks of the superior court in similar cases; but in all cases of the breach of municipal ordinances and cases of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction and in which the defendant pleads guilty, the fee herein allowed a prosecuting attorney may be remitted by the recorder in his discretion. All costs recovered and collected in the court, except as herein otherwise provided, shall belong to the municipality and be paid into the treasury thereof. All fines and penalties collected shall be paid by the clerk of the court to the county treasurer as provided by law, and all fees allowed by law for an arrest or serving other process in a criminal action, when the same shall have been made by the chief of police or other officer who shall be on a salary, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the municipality for the use of the same, and to reimburse it for the expense of maintaining and supporting the court. (1919, c. 277, s. 14.)

§ 1558. County to pay for offenders' work on roads.—Whenever, under any judgment of the court, any defendant is sentenced to work upon the public roads or other public work in the county, or to pay a fine and the costs of the prosecution, or costs only, and the defendant shall in fact work out the sentence or fine and costs, or either, upon the public roads or other public works, as aforesaid, then the county shall be liable for and shall pay to the treasurer of the municipality one-half the amount of the costs taxed in the cause: Provided, the sentence imposed shall be of sufficient length to reimburse the county for one-half of such costs. (1919, c. 277, s. 19.)

§ 1559. Prosecutor may be taxed with costs.—The recorder shall have full power, in any case in which he shall adjudge that the prosecution was not required by the public interests, to tax the prosecutor with the costs of such action; and in the event the recorder shall adjudge that prosecution is frivolous or malicious, he may imprison the prosecutor for the nonpayment of such costs, as provided by law for similar cases in other courts. When the costs are paid, they shall belong to the city. (1919, c. 277, s. 20.)

§ 1560. Justice of the peace to bind defendants to recorder's court; procedure thereon.—In case any justice of the peace residing within the territory above mentioned shall bind any person over for any offense committed within said territory, of which the justice has committing, but not final, jurisdiction, but of which the recorder's court has final jurisdiction, then such justice of the peace, instead of binding the defendant over to the superior court of the county, shall bind him to appear at the recorder's court on the day succeeding the trial before the justice, at ten o'clock a. m. The justice of the peace shall at once turn over the case to the clerk of said court, and the clerk shall, upon receipt of the same, enter the case upon the docket of the court, and the recorder shall try such person either upon the original warrant under which he was bound over or upon a new warrant to be issued by him for such offense. In all cases the recorder shall have the right to amend any warrant issued by him or by the clerk of the court, or sent up by any justice of the peace as hereinbefore provided, in the same manner and to the same extent as justices of the peace are now authorized by law to make amendments to warrants in justices' courts. (1919, c. 277, s. 22.)

§ 1561. Transfer of certain cases to recorder's court.—All cases which shall be pending in any recorder's, police, mayor's, or other municipal court in the counties where the courts herein provided for shall be established shall, after the election and qualification of recorder and other officers authorized and required by this article, be transferred to the recorders' courts of the respective municipalities, to be tried in the manner and in accordance with the procedure provided; but no case pending in the superior court of any county at the time this article takes effect shall be transferred to the recorder's court, except by order of the presiding judge thereof. No cause shall be removed from the recorder's court as is now provided for the removal of cases from one justice of the peace to another. (1919, c. 277, s. 23.)

§ 1562(a). Extension of jurisdiction.—In any city or town within the state of North Carolina, having a population of five thousand inhabitants or more, where there is now maintained a recorder's court under and by virtue of the law, or in which a recorder's court may be hereafter established and maintained, it shall be lawful for the governing body of any such city or town, and the board of county commissioners of the county in which such city or town shall be located, to extend the jurisdiction of the recorder's court in such city or town to the township in which such city or town is located, in the manner described in the following sections. (1921, c. 216, s. 1.)

§ 1562(b). Meeting of town and county authorities; election. — Whenever the governing body of any city or town, as described in the foregoing section, and the board of county commissioners of the county in which the same shall be located, shall desire to extend the jurisdiction of the recorder's court in such city or town to include the whole township, as set forth in the foregoing section, the mayor of such city or town and the chairman of such board of county commissioners shall call a joint meeting of the two boards, to be held at any place within such township as they may agree upon, and if a majority of each of such boards, at such meeting, shall by a joint resolution vote in favor of the extension of the jurisdiction of the recorder's court as herein described, then at such joint meeting the governing body of the town or city, and the board of county commissioners of the county, shall pass a joint resolution calling an election, submitting to the voters of the entire township the question of the extension of said municipal court, and that election shall be conducted by the county commissioners as in the case of county recorder's courts; the result of the election shall be recorded in the minutes of the county commissioners and certified to and recorded in the minutes of the governing body of the town or city; that the form of the ballot shall be "For extension of municipal court," and "Against municipal court," and if by such election such resolution is adopted it shall have the effect of conferring upon the recorder's court in such city or town the same powers, authority, and jurisdiction as to offenses or crimes committed within the township in which such city or town is located as such court would have had if the same had been committed in such city or town: Provided, however, that the extension of the jurisdiction of such recorder's court as herein described shall not have the effect of in any way extending or affecting in any manner whatsoever any ordinance or other law pertaining exclusively to such city or town. (1921, c. 216, s. 2.)

§ 1562(e). Jurisdiction not to extend to other municipalities.—No court hereafter established by the governing body of any city or town shall have jurisdiction over the territory within the corporate limits of any other incorporated city or town, or outside the county in which the city or town establishing such court is located: Provided, that this act shall not apply to the counties of Robeson, Craven, Nash and Edgecombe. (1925, c. 280.)

Art. 19. County Recorders' Courts

§ 1563. Established by county commissioners.— In any county in which a municipal recorder's court may not be established under the provisions of this subchapter, or in which such court has in fact not been established in the county-seat, the board of commissioners may, in their discretion, establish a recorder's court for the entire county, which shall be a court of record and shall be held at the county-seat. (1919, c. 277, s. 25; 1921, c. 110, s. 1.)

Stated in State v. Norris, 206 N. C. 191, 195, 173 S. E. 14.

§ 1564. Recorder's election, qualification, and term of office. — The court shall be presided over by a recorder, who shall have the same qualifications as provided for recorders of municipalities. The first recorder shall be elected by the board of commissioners of the county, either at the time of the establishment of the court or within thirty days thereafter, and shall hold the office until the next regular election wherein county officers are elected, and until his successor shall be duly elected and qualified; and should a vacancy occur in said office at any time, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor with the qualifications herein provided, for the unexpired term, by the board of county commissioners at a regular or special meeting called for that purpose. The successor of the first recorder herein provided for and each succeeding recorder shall be nominated and elected in the county in the same manner and at the same time as is now provided by law for the nomination and election of the elective officers of the county and in the general election for such elective officers. Before entering upon the duties of his office the recorder shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for justices of the peace, and shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county, who shall duly record the same in a book kept for that purpose. The recorder's salary shall be fixed in advance by the board of commissioners, and paid out of the county funds upon vouchers, and shall not be increased or decreased during his term. [Provided, that the county commissioners of any county wherein has been established, or shall be established, a county recorder's court may provide for the compensation of the judge or solicitor of the said court by salary or fees; and in case the said officers are compensated by fees, the same fees fixed by law for services in like cases in the Superior Court shall be paid; and in the case of solicitors those fees which were in force for services in like cases at the time that the solicitors were put upon a salary basis: Provided, that no change be made in the manner of compensating said officers during their term of office. But the part of this section in brackets shall apply to Scotland county only.] (1919, c. 277, s. 25; 1925, c. 171.)

Editor's Note.—The last two provisions of this section are new with the acts of 1925.

§ 1565. Time and place for holding court. — The court shall be open for the trial of all criminal causes of which it has jurisdiction at least one day of each week, to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is transacted by trial, continuance, or otherwise. The session of the court shall be held in the county courthouse or other place within the county provided by the board of commissioners for that purpose. Special sessions of the court may be called by the recorder as the necessities may require. (1919, c. 277, s. 26.)

§ 1566. No subsequent change of judgment. — When any case has been finally disposed of by the recorder and judgment pronounced therein, the case shall not thereafter be reopened or the judgment or sentence rendered therein changed, modified or stricken out by the recorder after the adjournment of the regular weekly term of court or after the adjournment of any special term of court by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 26.)

§ 1567. Criminal jurisdiction.—The court shall have jurisdiction in all criminal cases arising in the county which are now or may hereafter be given to a justice of the peace, and, in addition to the jurisdiction conferred by this section, shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors: Provided, however, that where a special court or recorder's court shall legally exist within such county by virtue of a special act of the legislature passed before the amendments to the constitution in reference thereto, then the county recorder's court, as herein established, shall not have jurisdiction of criminal cases within the territory of such existing recorder's court, so as to interfere with or conflict with the existing recorder's court, but shall have concurrent jurisdiction where the jurisdiction of the two courts covers the same causes or the same subject-matter. This article and the establishment of any court thereunder shall not be construed to repeal, modify or in anywise affect any existing special court or recorder's court by virtue of such former special acts herein referred to. (1919, c. 277, s. 27.)

§ 1568. Jurisdiction and powers as in municipal court.—The recorders of county courts herein provided for shall be vested with all the jurisdiction and authority conferred upon recorders of municipal courts, in like manner and to the same extent as if such jurisdiction and authority had been specifically in this section set forth, in so far as such jurisdiction and authority are applicable to such courts, and the provisions of this subchapter relative to municipal recorders' courts shall in all things apply to the county recorders' courts where same are not inconsistent and in so far as same are practically applicable: Provided, this section shall not take away the jurisdiction of a mayor to try breaches of ordinance when such city has no other municipal court. (1919, c. 277, s. 34.)

§ 1569. Removal of cases from justices' courts.—When, upon written request made before entering on the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace, it shall appear proper for the cause to be removed for trial to some other justice, as is now provided by law, the cause may be removed for trial to the recorder's court of the county. (1919, c. 277, s. 28; 1921, c. 110, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws of 1921 this section read "upon affidavit, etc.," instead of "upon written request, etc.," as it now stands.

Public Laws 1933, c. 277, makes the removal mandatory but applies only in Mecklenburg County.

§ 1570. Defendants bound by justice to recorder's court.—In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the recorder's court as provided in this article, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance or surety to appear at the next succeeding session of the recorder's court of the county, for trial; and in default of such surety such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await a trial: Provided, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the superior court any person accused of a crime within the jurisdiction of the county recorder's court, the clerk of the superior court shall, upon his own motion, transfer all papers in the case to the recorder's court, and the case shall then stand for trial at the next succeeding term of said recorder's court as if the defendant had been bound over to the recorder's court in the first instance: and Provided further, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the recorder's court any person charged with an offense beyond the jurisdiction of said court, the said recorder shall cause the accused person to enter into a new bond with sufficient surety for his appearance at the next succeeding term of the superior court of the county, and shall transmit all papers in the case to the said superior court, but this shall be done without additional cost to the accused person. (1919, c. 277, s. 29; 1921, c. 110, s. 4.)

§ 1570(a). Notice to accused of transfer; trial obligation of bond.—Whenever the clerk of the superior court shall transfer the papers in any case from the superior court to a county recorder's court, he shall at the same time issue a notice to the accused person and his surety, informing them that the cause has been so transferred and requiring accused person to appear at the next succeeding term of said recorder's court for trial, and, upon the service of said notice upon the accused person and his surety, at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the recorder's court, the case shall stand for trial at said term and the bond given by the accused person for his appearance at the next term of the superior court shall in all respects be valid and binding to compel the appearance of the accused person at the said next succeeding term of said recorder's court, and in case said notice is not served on the accused person and his surety at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the recorder's court, then the case shall not be tried without the consent of the accused person until the following term of the recorder's court. (1921, c. 110, s. 5.)

§ 1571. Trials upon warrants; by whom warrants issued. — All trials of criminal causes in said court shall be upon warrant issued by the clerk of the superior court or deputy clerk herein provided for or by the recorder or by any justice of the peace of the county. In either event such warrant shall be issued upon affidavit duly made and subscribed, setting forth the complaint against the defendant: Provided, the recorder shall have authority to amend the warrant and to allow amendment of the affidavit at any time before judgment. (1919, c. 277, s. 30; 1921, c. 110, s. 6.)

§ 1572. Jury trial as in municipal court.—In all trials in county recorders' courts, upon demand for a jury by the defendant or the prosecuting attorney representing the state, a jury shall be had in the same manner and under the same provisions as are set forth in this subchapter in reference to municipal courts, so far as the same may be practically applicable to a county court: Provided, that this section shall not apply to Henderson County. (1919, c. 277, s. 40; 1933, c. 316.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 115, s. 1 provides that this section shall not apply to the county court of Craven County. Public Laws 1929 c. 25, applicable only to Perquimans County provides that this section be amended by adding at the end the following: "Provided, however, that in all cases wherein the Superior Court has heretofore had final jurisdiction, the Recorder may, upon his own motion, transfer the case for trial to the Superior Court of the County."

Public Laws of 1933, c. 316, added the proviso exempting Henderson county from the operation of the section and providing for jury trials in said county. See § 1572(b).

§ 1572(a). Demand for jury trial in Recorder's Court in Craven county.—In all trials in the Recorder's Court for Craven County, upon demand for a jury by the defendant or the Prosecuting Attorney representing the State, the Recorder shall transfer said trial to the Superior Court of Craven County, and the defendant shall execute a new bond in such amount as named by the Recorder for his appearance at the next term of the Superior Court for Craven County. If a jury trial is demanded by either plaintiff or defendant in a civil action pending in the Recorder's Court of Craven County, the Recorder of such court shall immediately transfer said case to the Superior Court of Craven County. (1929, c. 115, ss. 2, 3.)

This section amends the law in regard to the recorder's court of Craven County and provides, inter alia, that upon demand being made for a jury trial in the recorder's court of said county, the cause shall be transferred to the Superior Court of Craven County, to the end that it may there be heard before a jury. State v. Rooks, 207 N. C. 275, 176 S. E. 752.

§ 1572(b). Jury trials in Henderson County recorder's court.—Jury trials may be had in the county court of Henderson County upon demand of any defendant and upon depositing the sum of six ($6.00) dollars to cover jury fees; and the jury shall consist of six men who shall receive one ($1.00) dollar each for their services in each case. Upon demand of any defendant for a jury trial, and depositing the sum required, the jury shall be summoned in the same manner as provided by juries in the courts of justices of the peace. (1933, c. 316, s. 2.)

§ 1573. Sentence imposed; fines and costs paid.—Whenever any person shall be convicted or plead guilty of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction the recorder may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court shall be held, and assign him to work on the public roads of the county where provision has been made therefor; but if no provision has been made for working convicts upon the public roads in the county, then the recorder may sentence such person to be worked upon the public roads of any other county within the judicial district or any county within any adjoining judical district which has made such provision: Provided, that in case the person so convicted or pleading guilty shall be a woman or an infant of immature years, then the recorder may assign him or her to the county workhouse, reformatory, or other penal institution located in the county; or if there be none, any similar institution that may be located outside of the county to which judges of the superior court are authorized to sentence such person under the general laws of the state. All fines imposed by the court shall be collected by the clerk of such court or the deputy clerk thereof on the same manner as the clerk of the superior court collects fines imposed by the superior court; and, where a defendant is convicted and fails to pay the costs of such conviction, the county shall pay such costs as is allowed by law in similar cases before the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 32; 1925, c. 308.)

Editor's Note.—With the Acts of 1925 the convict may be worked in any county within any adjoining judicial district.

§ 1574. Appeals to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the county recorder has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the courts of justices of the peace; and any person tried before the recorder for any offense of which the court has not final jurisdiction shall, upon the recorder's finding probable cause of guilt, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before justices of the peace. (1919, c. 277, s. 33.)

§ 1575. Clerk of superior court ex officio clerk of county recorder's court.—The clerk of the superior court of any county in which a county recorder's court shall be established shall be ex officio clerk of such court. Provided that the clerk of the Superior Court of Columbus county shall be paid a salary of twenty-five dollars per month for his services as clerk of Columbus County recorder's court. He shall keep separate criminal dockets in his office for such court in the same manner as he keeps criminal dockets in the superior court; he shall otherwise possess all the powers and functions conferred upon, and discharge all the duties required of, clerks of the superior court under the general law; and he shall be liable upon his official bond as clerk of the superior court for all of his official acts and conduct in reference thereto. Whenever the clerk of the Superior Court acts ex-officio as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, any assistant clerk or deputy clerk of the Superior Court in his office shall have power and authority to take affidavits, issue warrants and other process, administer oaths to witnesses and to perform any other duty in connection with said court under the direction of the clerk of the Superior Court, and for the acts of said assistant or deputy clerk, the clerk of the Superior Court shall be liable on his official bond to the same extent that he would have been liable if he had done the act himself. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; 1925, c. 232; 1935, c. 345.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence in above section was added by Public Laws 1935, chapter 345, which provides: "This act shall not apply to Recorder's Courts in Bladen, Brunswick, Camden, Gates, Halifax, Martin, Moore, Orange, Perquimans, Forsyth and Vance Counties."

§ 1576. Deputy Clerk may be appointed. — Instead of having the clerk of the Superior Court to act ex-officio as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, the board of commissioners of any county wherein a county Recorder's Court or General County Court may be established may, at the time of the establishment of said court or at the time of fixing the county budget for any succeeding year, call upon the clerk of the Superior Court to appoint a special deputy to act as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, and the clerk of the Superior Court shall within sixty days thereafter appoint a special deputy to act as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, unless the time for good cause shall be extended by the Board of County Commissioners. Said special deputy clerk shall assist the clerk of the Superior Court with the duties of his office and shall have all the power and authority in reference to the county Recorder's Court or General County Court conferred upon the clerk of the Superior Court by the preceding section, and he shall do all things in reference to said Recorder's Court or General County Court under the direction of the clerk of the Superior Court of the county as fully as the clerk of the Superior Court would otherwise be authorized to do. The Board of Commissioners may require and fix the official bond of said special deputy clerk for the faithful performance of his duties and fix his salary, which shall be fixed before he enters upon his duties and shall not be lowered during his term of office. His term of office shall be for the same time as the term of the recorder of said court, unless he shall be sooner removed by the clerk of the Superior Court for cause, and shall cease at any time that the court itself shall cease to exist. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; 1935, c. 346.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed this section in such a manner that a comparison is necessary in order to determine its effect. Section 2 of the amendatory act provides: "That this act shall not apply to Bladen, Brunswick, Camden, Gates, Guilford, Halifax, Lee, Martin, Moore, Orange, Perquimans, Forsyth and Vance Counties."

§ 1577. Compensation of clerk when no deputy appointed.—When no deputy clerk is appointed or elected by the board of commissioners, they are authorized to pay annually to the clerk of superior court an amount fixed by the board, which shall be in addition to any salary or fees theretofore allowed by law to the clerk of superior court, and which shall be in compensation for the services rendered by him as clerk of the county recorder's court. Such compensation shall be paid to the clerk of superior court so long as he shall perform the duties of clerk ex officio of the county recorder's court. (1919, c. 277, s. 36.)

§ 1578. Deputy clerk to take oath of office.—If any deputy clerk shall be appointed as provided in this article he shall take the oath required of deputy clerks under the general law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of him under this article, both of which oaths shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and such deputy clerk is further authorized to perform all duties of deputy clerk under the general law in addition to the duties set forth in this article. (1919, c. 277, s. 38.)

§ 1579. Prosecuting attorney may be elected.—The board of commissioners of any county availing itself of the provisions of this article may elect, at the same time, in the same manner, and for the same term as herein provided for the election of a deputy clerk, a prosecuting attorney for said court, and fix his compensation in such amount as they may deem suitable for the services to be rendered: Provided, that the board may require the county attorney to discharge the duties of prosecuting attorney in said court, and fix his compensation accordingly. (1919, c. 277, s. 38.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 112, applicable only to Montgomery County amended this section by adding at the end the following: "Such Prosecuting Attorney when requested by the Solicitor of the District may assist the Solicitor of the District in preparing and prosecuting the criminal cases going up on appeal from such Recorders' Courts to the Superior Court."

§ 1580. Fees for issuing and serving process.—All justices of the peace, constable and sheriffs issuing or serving warrants or other process returnable to the recorder's court shall have the same fees as are now prescribed by law, which fees shall be collected and paid out in the same manner and by the same officers as collect and distribute such fees in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 31.)

§ 1581. Costs and fees taxed as in municipal court.—There shall be taxed in the county recorder's court the same costs and fees for the benefit of the officers thereof as provided for municipal recorder's court. Such costs and fees shall be collected by the clerk and paid over monthly to the treasurer of the county as county funds to be dealt with by the commissioners. (1919, c. 277, s. 39.)

§ 1582. Courts may be discontinued after two years. — The board of commissioners of any county which has established a county recorder's court under the provisions of this article are authorized, after two years trial of the court, to discontinue the same at any time thereafter if in their judgment the public interest shall require it. If any such court shall be so discontinued, the action or resolution must be taken or adopted at least six months prior to the next general election, and shall not go into effect until the term of office of the recorder shall expire. The governing body of any municipality shall have the same power, to be exercised in the same manner, subject to the same limitations, to abolish municipal recorders' courts. (1919, c. 277, s. 35.)

§ 1582(a). Abolition of Cherokee county court.—The recorder's court for Cherokee county is hereby abolished. (1923, c. 40, s. 2.)

§ 1582(b). Subchapter applies to Henderson county.—The county of Henderson shall come under and be subject to the provisions of this subchapter: Provided, however, that no recorder's court for the County of Henderson shall be established unless and until the same shall be established upon an election held in said county under the provisions of article twenty-three of this subchapter, which election shall not be held at the same time as any general election in said county or in the town of Hendersonville, and provided further that no new registration shall be ordered for said election. (1927, c. 103.)

§ 1582(c). Burke County; transfer of criminal action to superior court upon demand for jury trial.—In all trials of criminal actions in the Recorder's Court for Burke County, upon demand for a trial by jury by the defendant or the Solicitor representing the State, the recorder shall transfer said trial to the superior court of Burke County, and the defendant shall execute a new bond in such amount as named by the recorder for his appearance at the next term of the superior court for Burke County held for the trial of criminal cases. (1931, c. 335, s. 2.)

Art. 20. Municipal-County Courts

§ 1583. Established for entire county. — The governing body of any municipality possessing a population of two thousand or over, as hereinbefore provided, in which the county courthouse is located, and the board of commissioners of the county, shall have the power, at a joint meeting of the two bodies, by joint resolution, in the manner hereinafter provided, to establish a recorder's court so as to include the entire county, outside of other municipalities therein possessing a population of two thousand or over. After the adoption of such joint resolution such municipal recorder's court shall possess all the powers and functions and exercise all the territorial jurisdiction in this subchapter conferred upon both municipal and county recorder's court under the procedure herein provided for, and subject to the provisions herein in reference to concurrent jurisdiction where a special or recorder's court exists under prior special acts in any portion of the county. (1919, c. 277, s. 41.)

§ 1584. Election of recorder.—If the territorial jurisdiction of such municipal recorder's court is extended to the entire county, as set forth in the preceding section, then the first recorder [and the first solicitor] shall be selected for the term and in the manner hereinbefore set forth, by a joint meeting of the governing body of such municipality and the board of commissioners of the county, and such recorder [and such solicitor] shall be thereafter nominated and elected as is provided for herein for the nomination and election of a county recorder. Such recorder shall be a resident of the municipality, and in all other respects the court shall be conducted under the proceedings herein provided for municipal courts [except as hereinafter provided for; provided that the words of this section in brackets shall apply to Lenoir, Onslow and Sampson counties only]. (1919, c. 277, s. 42; 1925, c. 233, s. 1.)

§ 1585. Mayor's jurisdiction continued, when. —In case the jurisdiction of the recorder's court of any municipality in any county shall not be extended in the manner authorized in this article, and no county recorder's court shall be established therein, then the mayors of the various cities and towns in such county shall continue to have all the powers and functions and exercise all the jurisdiction now conferred upon such officials by the general law for municipal corporations. (1919, c. 277, s. 43.)

§ 1585(a). Establishment of municipal county courts in certain counties. — The establishment of the municipal county court herein provided for under this article shall be effected by a joint resolution of the said board of commissioners and the governing body of any such municipality wherein there shall be a concurrent majority voting in favor of such resolution of both said bodies, and such resolution shall be recorded in the minutes of each of the said bodies and shall be in form substantially providing that there shall be established a municipal county court under the provisions of article twenty of chapter twenty-seven of Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, from and after the date to be named therein, and that no further procedure shall be necessary, nor shall any election be necessary prior to the establishment of such court, but same shall be established and continue to exist under the provisions of this article from and after the passage of such joint resolution in accordance with the terms herein provided for. That such municipal county court may be abolished after it has been in existence for two years, either by a joint resolution of the county board of commissioners and the governing body of such municipality, or at the unanimous request of either such body. (1925, c. 233, s. 2.)

§ 1585(b). Jurisdiction conferred. — The governing body of any such municipality and the board of county commissioners shall, by joint resolution and by a concurrent majority of each board, have the power to confer upon such municipal county court jurisdiction to try and determine civil actions, to the same extent and by the same procedure and practice as is fully set out and contained in article twenty-two of chapter twenty-seven of Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, and each section contained in said article twenty-two shall be in all respects applicable to the civil jurisdiction of such municipal county courts as fully as if each said section were here written word for word: Provided, however, that the conditions set forth in section one thousand five hundred eighty-nine of article twenty-two, providing that the city or town shall have a population of not less than ten thousand (10,000) shall not apply to the establishment of municipal county courts herein provided for. (1925, c. 233, s. 3.)

§ 1585(c). Salaries of officers; costs; to what counties applicable. — The board of county commissioners and the governing body of any such municipality shall, by joint resolution wherein there shall be a concurrent majorty of each said board voting in favor of such resolution, provide for the salaries of all officers of such municipal county courts who under the law are entitled to receive salaries, and shall fix the amount of each such salary in advance of the entry of such officers upon their duties, and that such salaries shall not be reduced during the term to which said officers are selected or elected, and the proportionate portion of such salaries to be paid by such municipality and by such county shall be fixed and determined by such joint resolution. That all resolutions provided for hereunder shall be recorded in the minutes of each such body as is hereinbefore set forth. That all costs collected in criminal causes arising within such municipalities, of which the said court has original, exclusive and concurrent jurisdiction as set forth in section one thousand five hundred forty-one of Consolidated Statutes, shall be paid into the treasury of such municipality, and all other costs shall be paid into the treasury of the county to be dealt with as is provided by law. This section and the two preceding shall apply only to Lenoir, Onslow and Sampson counties. (1925, c. 233, s. 4.)

§ 1585(d). Election of clerk.—The governing body of any municipality and the board of commissioners of any county wherein a municipal county court shall be established and ordained under the terms the three preceding sections shall by joint resolution and by a concurrent majority of each board elect a clerk of such court and shall in like manner fill any vacancy in the office of such clerk, and such office of clerk of said court shall be entirely separate and apart from the office of the clerk of the Superior Court in such county and such clerk of the Superior Court of any such county shall be liable to none of the duties, and responsible for none of the penalties attached to such office. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the clerk of such municipal county court shall enter into a bond with sufficient sureties in a sum to be fixed by the joint action of the governing body of any such municipality, and the commissioners of any such county affected, not to exceed five thousand dollars payable to the State, conditioned upon the true and faithful performance of his duties as such clerk, and the faithful accounting and paying over all moneys which shall come into his hands by virtue of said office. Such bond shall be approved by said joint action of the governing body of such municipality, and the board of commissioners of such county affected, and shall be filed with the clerk of the Superior Court of such county. The clerk shall make monthly settlements with the county and city treasurers for all moneys which come into his hands belonging to either. The governing body of any such municipality and the board of commissioners shall have the full power, right and authority to remove such clerk either for incapacity, malfeasance, or neglect of the duties of his office, by joint resolution and by concurrent majority of each board. Both the first clerk of any such court, and every succeeding clerk shall be elected by the method herein provided for, and every such clerk so elected shall hold his office for the same term as the office of the recorder is held, or until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. (1927, c. 170, s. 1.)

§ 1585(e). Duties of clerk.—The duties of such clerk shall be in all respects as are contained and set out as the duties of a clerk of a municipal recorders' court in article eighteen, chapter twenty-seven, Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, save and except that such duties as are contained in said article in said chapter shall be rendered to and made applicable to such municipal county court. The two preceding sections shall apply only to Lenoir, Onslow and Sampson Counties. (1927, c. 170, s. 102.)

Art. 21. Provisions Applicable to All Recorders' Courts

§ 1586. Offenders may be sentenced to city chain-gang. — In case any municipality possessing a population of two thousand or over, as provided for herein, in which a recorder's court shall be established pursuant to the provisions of this subchapter, shall now or hereafter establish and maintain a city chain-gang, or workhouse or other penal institutions for the imprisonment and working of city prisoners, any recorder may sentence any person convicted of any offense committed within said municipality and punishable by imprisonment, to be imprisoned and worked on such city chain-gang, or in such workhouse or other penal institutions, for such time as the recorder may in his discretion determine in accordance with the law. (1919, c. 277, s. 44.)

§ 1587. Recorders' courts substituted for other special courts. — Whenever there has been established in any county, city, or town a recorder's court or other special court, which, under the provisions of this subchapter, might have been established hereunder, whether it shall possess exactly the same jurisdiction and functions or not, the board of commissioners of the county or the governing body of such city or town, or the governing body of such city or town and the board of commissioners of the county acting jointly, may abolish such existing court and adopt any one of the courts herein provided for by appropriate resolution of such boards. (1919, c. 277, s. 45.)

§ 1588. Reports to attorney-general. — The recorder or clerk of any court authorized to be adopted by this subchapter shall make reports to the attorney-general of all criminal actions disposed of by such court in the same manner and to the same extent as is now required by law of the clerks of the superior courts of this state. (1919, c. 277, s. 46.)

Art. 22. Civil Jurisdiction of Recorders' Courts

§ 1589. Civil jurisdiction may be conferred.— The board of county commissioners of any county in which there is a city or town with a population of not less than ten thousand inhabitants, in which there has been established a recorder's court, under the provisions of this subchapter, or in which there is a recorder's court established by law, may confer upon such recorder's court jurisdiction to try and determine civil actions, as hereinafter provided, wherein the party plaintiff or defendant is a resident of such county, or is doing business in the county. Such jurisdiction may be conferred by resolution by the board of county commissioners of any county, entered upon their minutes, and the board of county commissioners of any county may likewise confer civil jurisdiction on the county recorder's court to try and determine civil actions as hereinafter provided wherein one or more of the parties, plaintiff or defendant, is a resident of said county or is doing business therein. (1919, c. 277, s. 47; 1921, c. 110, s. 7; 1933, c. 166.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the Amendment of 1933, Public Laws 1933, c. 166, this section applied in cities or towns of not less than 10,000 "nor more than 25,000" inhabitants. The quoted clause was omitted by the amendment. For act applicable in Carteret County only, see P. L. 1933, c. 379.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 174 increased the jurisdictional amounts here specified from one to three thousand and from five hundred to two thousand dollars respectively, but the act applies only in Mecklenburg county.

For act applicable in Carteret County only, see P. L. 1933, c. 379.

§ 1591. Procedure in civil actions.—The rules of practice, issuing and serving process, and filing pleadings shall conform, as near as may be, to the practice in the superior court: Provided, it shall not be necessary to file written pleadings in any action of which justices of the peace now have jurisdiction. The process shall be returnable directly to the court; and no civil process shall be issued by any recorder's court to any county other than that in which the court is located. (1919, c. 277, s. 56; 1921, c. 110, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment in 1921, it was necessary to file written pleadings in an action of which the justice of the peace had jurisdiction.

For act applicable in Carteret County only, see P. L. 1933, c. 379.

§ 1592. Trial by jury in civil actions.—In all civil actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a trial by jury unless demand for such trial is made before the trial begins. The demand shall be in writing and signed by the party making it, or his attorney, and accompanied by a deposit of five dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. (1919, c. 277, s. 49; 1921, c. 110, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment in 1921 changed the amount of the deposit from three to five dollars.

Public Laws 1929, c. 115, s. 1 provides that this and the following three sections shall not apply to the county court of Craven County.

§ 1593. Jurors drawn and summoned.—If a trial by jury is demanded, the recorder shall continue the cause until a day to be set, and the recorder, together with the attorneys for all parties, shall immediately proceed to the office of the register of deeds of the county and cause to be drawn a jury of eighteen, observing as nearly as may be the rule for drawing a jury for the superior court. The recorder shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the court on the day set for the trial of the action. (1919, c. 277, s. 50.)

See note under preceding section.

§ 1594. Talesmen and challenges.—The recorder shall have the right to call in bystanders according to the practice in the superior court as nearly as the same is applicable, and each party shall have the same causes of challenge as in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 51.)

See note under § 1592.

§ 1595. Jury as in superior court.—The jury shall be a jury of twelve, and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 52.)

See note under § 1592.

§ 1596. Appeals to superior court.—Appeals may be taken from the recorder's court to the superior court of the county in term time, for errors assigned in matters of law, in the same manner as now provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed, and only one copy thereof shall be required. The time for taking and perfecting appeals shall be counted from the end of the term. Upon such appeal the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the recorder's court, or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the superior court an appeal may be taken to the supreme court: Provided, that appeals from a county recorder's court to the superior court of the said county shall be tried de novo in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, ss. 53, 54; 1921, c. 110, s. 11.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision contained in this section is new with the Acts of 1921.

§ 1597. Appeals from justices of the peace.—In all cases where there is an appeal from a justice of the peace, such appeal shall be first heard in the recorder's court, in the manner provided herein for hearing causes within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace originating in the recorder's court. (1919, c. 277, s. 54½.)

One of the objects of this and related sections was to relieve the congested dockets of the Superior Court. State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 175, 170 S. E. 645.

Under the general provisions of this section, an appeal from a conviction of simple assault in a justice's court must first be taken to the recorder's court and not the Superior Court in the counties affected by the act. Id.

§ 1598. Enforcement of judgments.—Orders to stay execution shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the recorder's court may be enforced by executions issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court, as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace; and the judgment, when docketed, shall in all respects be a judgment of the superior court as if rendered by such court, and shall be subject to the same statute of limitations and the statutes relating to revival of executions: Provided, that a judgment of the recorder's court shall not be a lien upon real estate until docketed in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 55; 1921, c. 110, s. 12.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision, herein contained, providing docketing in the superior court before the judgment shall be a lien upon real estate, is new with the Acts of 1921.

§ 1598(a). Fees taxed when county officer on salary; Recorders' court fund.—In cases in which the recorder or judge and the solicitor of the county recorders' court shall be paid salaries, in lieu of fees for such recorder or judge or solicitor, the clerk of the recorder's court shall tax against the defendant who is convicted, or who confesses his guilt, or upon whom judgment is suspended in said court in cases originally within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace a tax fee of three dollars in each case, and in all other cases within the jurisdiction of the said recorder's court a tax fee of six dollars, and these several sums when collected shall be paid over by said clerk to the treasurer or financial agent of the county, to be kept by him as a separate and distinct fund to be known as the recorder's court fund. This fund shall be used only in paying the salary of the recorder and prosecuting attorney of said court, and the other expenses of the court. In all civil actions the clerk shall tax against the losing party the sum of three dollars in cases originally within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace, and the sum of six dollars in all other cases, and all sums so collected shall be disposed of as above provided for tax fees in criminal actions. (1921, c. 110, s. 13.)

Art. 23. Elections to Establish Recorders' Courts

§ 1599. Election required.—The courts provided for in this subchapter shall be established upon elections held as set forth in this article, except county recorders' courts which may be established by the county commissioners of any county without a popular vote. (1919, c. 277, s. 58; 1921, c. 110, s. 14.)

Editor's Note.—The excepting clause in this section was placed herein by the Acts of 1921.

§ 1600. Municipal recorder's court.—The governing body of any city or town which may, under the terms of this subchapter, establish a court, prior to its establishment shall pass a resolution, if in their judgment such court should be established, reciting such fact and calling an election at a date to be fixed, which shall not be less than thirty days nor more than sixty days from the passage of the resolution, at which election there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the city the question of establishing such court. At such election all qualified voters favoring the establishment of such court shall vote a ballot upon which shall be printed or written the words, "For Recorder's Court of the City of ----------," and those opposing the establishing of such court a ballot upon which shall be printed or written, "Against Recorder's Court of the City of----------." (1919, c. 277, s. 58.)

§ 1601. Notice of election.—Notice of such election shall be given, signed by the clerk of the city or town or the mayor thereof, containing in substance the resolution, the date of the election, and a reference to this subchapter, which notice shall be published once a week for four successive weeks prior to said election in some newspaper published in the city or town. (1919, c. 277, s. 59.)

§ 1602. New registration may be ordered.—The governing body of such city or town may in its discretion order a new registration of the voters for any election authorized hereunder. (1919, c. 277, s. 60.)

§ 1603. Manner of holding election.—The election shall be held, reported, and recorded in the city or town, under the laws governing general elections as near as may be applicable to the city or town. The result of the election shall be reported to, canvassed and declared by the governing body of the city or town, and recorded upon the minutes thereof. If the majority of the votes cast is declared in favor of such court, it shall be established, and not otherwise. (1919, c. 277, s. 61.)

§ 1604. Another election after two years.—If the majority of the votes cast at such election is against the court, another election for the same purpose may thereafter be called, but not within less than two years from the first or any succeeding election in reference thereto. (1919, c. 277, s. 62.)

§ 1605. County recorders' courts.—(Repealed by Public Laws 1921, Chapter 110, section 15.)

§ 1606. Municipal courts with jurisdiction over the entire county.—The courts provided for in article twenty of this subchapter shall be established in the following manner: The governing body of the city and the board of county commissioners of the county, at a joint meeting, shall pass a joint resolution calling an election submitting to the voters of the entire county the question of the establishment of said court. The election shall be conducted by the county commissioners as in the case of county recorders' courts; the result of the election shall be recorded in the minutes of the county commissioners and certified to and recorded in the minutes of the governing body of the city. The form of the ballot shall be, "For Municipal-County Court of ..... County," and "Against Municipal-County Court of ------- County." (1919, c. 277, s. 62.)

§ 1607. Expense of elections paid.—The expense of conducting the elections for "municipal courts" and "municipal-county courts" shall be borne by the city or municipality concerned, and the expense of conducting the election for "county recorders' courts" shall be borne by the county concerned. (1919, c. 277, s. 63.)

§ 1608. Certain districts and counties not included.—This subchapter shall not apply to the tenth, except as Granville and Orange counties, [fifteenth], except as to Iredell and Montgomery counties, [sixteenth], except as to Lincoln and Catawba counties, seventeenth, except as to Alexander county, eighteenth, nineteenth, and twentieth judicial districts, except as to Buncombe, Cherokee, Jackson, Haywood, and Swain counties, nor to the eleventh district, except to the county of Caswell; nor shall it apply to the counties of Chatham, Columbus, Johnston, New Hanover, Polk, Madison, and Robeson. (1919, c. 277, s. 64; 1921, c. 110, s. 16; Ex. Sess. 1921, cc. 59, 80; 1923, cc. 19, 40; 1925, c. 162, s. 1; Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 85, s. 24; 1929, cc. 17, 111, 114, 130, 340; 1931, c. 3, c. 19, s. 2; 1933, c. 142, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—By the act of 1925, Pitt County was stricken from this section so that the subchapter is now applicable thereto.

Public Laws 1929 added Alexander, Burke, Catawba, Montgomery and Orange Counties to this section, and struck out Anson County. The first 1931 amendment struck out Halifax County and provided: "Upon the establishment of a County Recorder's Court in the County of Halifax under the general law it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Halifax County to transfer from the docket of the Superior Court of said county to the docket of the Recorder's Court for trial all causes pending in the Superior Court in the jurisdiction of said Recorder's Court." The second amendment of 1931 struck out the words in brackets, but made no reference to the counties excepted.

Public Laws 1933, c. 142, s. 1, repealed Public Laws 1929, c. 17 which added Burke to this section.

By the amendment of 1935 Hyde county was stricken from the list of excepted counties. Sections 2-9 of the amendatory act provided for the establishment of a county recorder's court in Hyde county.

SUBCHAPTER V. GENERAL COUNTY COURTS

Art. 24. Establishment, Organization and Jurisdiction

§ 1608(f). Establishment authorized; official entitlement; jurisdiction.—In each county of this state there may be established a court of civil and criminal jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and which shall be maintained pursuant to this subchapter and which court shall be called the general county court and shall have jurisdiction over the entire county in which said court may be established. In any county in the state in which there is situated a city which has or may have in the future a population, according to any enumeration by the United States census bureau, of more than twenty thousand inhabitants, the commissioners of such county or counties are authorized hereby to establish general county courts as hereinafter provided without first submitting the question of establishing such court to a vote of the people: Provided, that the said enumeration need not be made at a regular decennial census: Provided further, that in the event that the second sentence of this section is acted upon by the commissioners of any county in establishing a general county court, as is herein provided, the said commissioners may make such provisions for holding such courts in such city. (1923, c. 216, s. 1; 1925, c. 242; 1927, c. 74; 1931, c. 17; 1933, c. 405.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 inserted an exception as to Caswell County. This was struck out by the Act of 1933.

In General.—Under this section the Legislature may create courts inferior to Superior Court if provision is made for appeal to the Superior Court. Jones v. Standard Oil Co., 202 N. C. 328, 162 S. E. 741.

The establishment of a General County Court by the board of commissioners of a county under the provisions of this and related sections, will not be held invalid as being an unlawful exercise of legislative power, the jurisdiction of such courts being prescribed by the Legislature and the board of commissioners being clothed merely with the power to find the facts in regard to the necessity and expediency of such court, and their acts in establishing such courts having been ratified by the Legislature. State v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 110.

Enactment of Acts of Commissioners in Creating Courts.—The acts of the county commissioners in the organization of general county courts, heretofore organized, as provided by ch. 216 of the Public Laws of 1923 and ch. 85 of the Public Laws, extra session 1924, and all amendments thereto, were ratified and declared to be the acts of the General Assembly of North Carolina by the Acts 1927, ch. 232, sec. 1.

§ 1608 (f) 1. Creation by resolution of board of commissioners.—If in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county, the public interests will be best promoted by so doing, they may establish a general county court under this article, by resolution which shall, in brief recite the reasons for the establishment thereof, and further recite that, in the opinion of the board of commissioners, it is not necessary that an election be called upon the establishment of such court as herein provided for, and upon the adoption of such resolution the board of commissioners may establish said court without holding such election. (1924, c. 85, s. 24-a.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 246 provided that notwithstanding the provisions of § 1608(f) the Board of County Commissioners of Person County is authorized to establish a County Court for said County in the manner authorized by this section. Said County Court, when so established, shall have the jurisdiction conferred by, and shall in all respects be governed by the provisions of this subchapter.

§ 1608(f) 2. Abolishing the court.—Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under this article, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of county commissioners may, by proper resolution reciting in brief the reasons therefor, abolish said court: Provided, no such court shall be abolished except at the end of the terms of office of the judge and solicitor, unless such judge and solicitor shall voluntarily tender their resignations, setting forth, in brief, that in their opinion the existence of the said court is no longer necessary, in which event the board of commissioners may forthwith abolish the same. (1924, c. 85, s. 24-b.)

§ 1608(f) 3. Transfer of criminal cases.—Upon the establishment of the general county court, as in this article authorized, the clerk of the Superior Court shall immediately transfer from the Superior Court to such general county court all criminal actions pending in the Superior Court of which the general county court has jurisdiction, as in this act conferred, and the general county court shall immediately proceed to try and dispose of such criminal actions. (1924, c. 85, s. 24-c.)

This and related sections modify § 4647. See State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 170 S. E. 645.

§ 1608(f) 3 (a). Court of Henderson County abolished.—The General County Court of Henderson County is hereby abolished, effective on and after the first day of September, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven. (1927, c. 103.)

Editor's Note.—It was further provided in the act from which this section is taken that all cases pending in the General County Court of Henderson County when this act goes into effect shall be transferred to such court as may have jurisdiction, and shall be tried in said court as though the said cases had been originally brought therein.

That no bond or undertaking heretofore entered into conditioned upon the appearance of any defendant before the General County Court of Henderson County shall be invalidated by this act, but the same shall remain in full force and effect and shall require the appearance of the defendant named therein before such court having jurisdiction as the case shall be transferred to for trial under the terms of this act.

That no order, judgment, verdict or decree of the General County Court of Henderson County or ancillary writ issued by said court shall be invalidated by reason of this act, but all papers in all of said cases shall be transferred as hereinbefore provided and shall have the same force and effect as if the same had been rendered and issued in the courts to which said cases are transferred for trial.

§ 1608(f) 3(b). Court of Transylvania County abolished.—The General County Court of Transylvania County, North Carolina, is hereby abolished. (1931, c. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The act from which this section was taken repealed §§ 1608(f)-1608(dd) and all acts amendatory thereto insofar as they related to Transylvania County. The act which went into effect on January 13, 1931, further provided: "The Clerk of the Superior Court shall immediately transfer and docket into the proper docket or record of the Superior Court of Transylvania County, each and every case remaining upon either the Civil or Criminal Docket of said General County Court at the date of the ratification of this act and said criminal and civil cases shall take their places on the docket of said Superior Court in their regular order and shall be duly tried in said Superior Court when reached for trial. Any salary or salaries due to the judge, prosecuting officer or clerk of the said General County Court at the ratification of this act, shall be reported and paid to said judge, prosecuting officer or other officer of said court at the salary provided for by the Board of County Commissioners of Transylvania County at their regular meeting on the first Monday in December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty."

§ 1608(f) 3(c): Repealed by Public Laws 1933, c. 405.

§ 1608(f) 4. Transfer of civil cases.—Transfers may be made in term of any civil action in the superior court to the general county court, and from the general county court to the superior court by the presiding judge of said respective courts, by consent, or upon motion of which due notice has been given, when, in the opinion of the presiding judge of the court from which the transfer is to be made, the ends of justice will be best served and promoted by such transfer. (1924, c. 85, s. 24-d; 1933, c. 127.)

Editor's Note.—This section was rewritten by Public Laws 1933, c. 127. Many changes were effected for a determination of which a comparison with the old section is necessary.

Referring to this section, 11 N. C. Law Rev., 216, says the 1933 amendment amends the Act of 1924, ch. 85, which authorized the judge of the Superior Court to transfer civil actions to the General County Court for trial. The amendment allows the judge of either the Superior Court or the General County Court to transfer cases to the other court for trial, either by consent or by motion upon notice.

§ 1608(f) 5. Costs.—Cost in both criminal and civil actions shall be taxed and collected as now provided by law. (1924, c. 85, s. 24-e.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 422, s. 2, applicable only to Burke County, provided: "In criminal cases in the General County Court there shall be taxed against each defendant who is convicted or who confesses his guilt the following tax fees, to-wit: (1) a tax fee of three dollars ($3.00) in each case for the violation of a town ordinance; (2) a tax fee of eight dollars ($8.00) in each case for the violation of the prohibition laws; and (3) a tax fee of six dollars ($6.00) in all other cases within the jurisdiction of said General County Court. The foregoing tax fees shall be in addition to other costs and the same when collected shall be paid into a separate fund to be known as the court fund and this fund shall be used to pay the salary of the prosecutor and the other expenses of the court and to supplement the salary of the judge. In all civil cases in the General County Court there shall be taxed against the losing party the sum of three dollars ($3.00) in cases originally within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace and the sum of six dollars ($6.00) in all other cases, and all sums so collected shall be paid into the court fund and shall be disposed of as above provided for tax fees in criminal actions."

§ 1608(g). Judge; election, term of office, vacancy in office, qualification, salary, office.—The court shall be presided over by the judge, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and at the time of his election he shall be a qualified elector in the county. The first judge of the court upon the establishment of said court shall be elected by the board of county commissioners within thirty days after the establishment of said court, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officers and until his successor is elected and qualified. If a vacancy occurs in the office of judge of said court, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the board of county commissioners. After the first elected judge by the board of county commissioners, each succeeding judge shall be elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the county at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office and when other county officers are elected, and shall hold his office for a term of four years beginning January first following his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office, as is now provided by law for justices of the peace, and he shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, and (shall not be) decreased during the term of office, and it shall be paid monthly out of the funds of the county. The judge shall reside in the county and shall be provided by the county commissioners with an office at the county-seat. The terms of said court shall be held in the courthouse, but they shall at no time inconvenience or discommode the superior court of the county while the superior court in term is using the courthouse. If in the opinion of the board of commissioners the best interests of the county will be promoted thereby, the said board may appoint such judge, fixing his term of office, in which event the judge so appointed shall hold office pursuant to such appointment, and shall not be elected by a vote as herein provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 2; 1924, c. 85, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1924 by striking out a provision fixing the salary at not less than $3600 not to be increased; by striking the provision denying the judge the power to practice law in other courts, and by adding the last sentence.

§ 1608(h). Terms of court.—The court shall open for the transaction of business and trial of causes the first Monday of each month and continue until all matters before the court are disposed of. (1923, c. 216, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 422, s. 3, applicable only to Burke County amended this section by adding at the end thereof the following : "Provided, however, that special terms of said court may be held at such other times as the judge thereof may designate."

§ 1608(i). Prosecuting officer; duties, election, salary, etc.—There shall be a prosecuting attorney of the general county court, to be known officially as prosecutor, who shall appear for the state and prosecute in all criminal cases being tried in said court, and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the board of county commissioners. He shall be elected by the board of county commissioners for the first term as herein provided for the election of the judge, and thereafter by the qualified electors of the county in the same manner as is provided herein for the election of the judge; and vacancies in the office of the prosecutor shall be filled by the board of county commissioners as they are herein authorized to fill vacancies in the office of judge. If requested to do so by the judge, the prosecutor shall represent the county in prosecution of criminal appeals from this court in the superior court. The salary of the prosecutor shall be paid monthly out of the county funds. If in the opinion of the board of commissioners the best interests of the county will be promoted thereby, the said board may appoint such solicitor, fixing his term of office, in which event the solicitor so appointed shall hold office pursuant to such appointment, and shall not be elected by a vote as herein provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 3; 1924, c. 85, s. 1; 1925, c. 250, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1924 by striking out a provision limiting the salary to a minimum of $1,000. The last sentence was also added by that amendment.

The 1925 amendment struck the word judge in the last sentence and substituted the word solicitor.

§ 1608(j). Superior court clerk as clerk ex officio; salary, bond, etc.—The clerk of the superior court of the county shall be ex officio clerk of the general county court, herein provided for, and in addition to the salary and fees paid him as clerk of the superior court, he shall be paid such additional compensation as the county commissioners of the county may fix, to be paid monthly out of the county funds. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of the superior court. The Clerk of said Court or any deputy thereof, upon application and the making of proper affidavit, as provided by law, shall have power and authority to issue any criminal warrant or warrants in said Court and make the same returnable before the Judge thereof, at any time or times designated for the trial of criminal cases. (1923, c. 216, s. 4; 1931, c. 233.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931, which added the last sentence to this section, provided: "This act shall apply to all District County Courts created or permitted to be created or established by the law passed at this session of the General Assembly. This act shall not apply to the following counties: New Hanover, Caldwell, Henderson, Ashe, Hoke, Lincoln, Wayne, Wilkes, Nash, Edgecombe, Alexander, Rockingham, Duplin, Union, Alleghany, Halifax, Alamance, Clay, Yancey, Dare, Wake, Hertford, Jackson, Mecklenburg, Craven, Vance, Person, Robeson, Johnston, Yadkin, Davidson, Haywood, Pitt, Tyrrell, Hyde, Watauga, Durham, Scotland, Forsyth and Camden."

Same—Deputy Clerk in Burke County.—Public Laws 1931, c. 422, s. 4, applicable only to Burke County, provided: "The Board of Commissioners of any county wherein a General County Court may be established shall have the power to appoint a special deputy clerk, who shall assist the clerk of the Superior Court and shall have all the power and authority in reference to the General County Court conferred upon the clerk of the Superior Court, and shall do all things in reference to said General County Court under the direction of the clerk of the Superior Court of the county as fully as the clerk of the Superior Court is authorized to do. The Board of Commissioners may require and fix the official bond of the said deputy clerk for the faithful performance of his duties and fix his salary, which salary shall be fixed before he enters upon his duties and shall not be raised or lowered during his term of office. His term of office shall be for the same time as the term of the judge of said court, and shall cease at any time that the court itself shall cease to exist. If any deputy clerk shall be appointed as provided in this section he shall take the oath required of deputy clerks under the General Law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of him under this section, both of which oaths shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, and such deputy clerk is further authorized to perform all duties of deputy clerk under the General Law in addition to the duties set forth in this section."

§ 1608(k). Sheriff; duties; additional allowance.—The sheriff of the county or his deputy appointed shall attend upon the terms of this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior courts of the county. The county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may fix for such services in addition to his salary and fees fixed by law. (1923, c. 216, s. 5.)

§ 1608(k) 1. Fees of clerk and sheriff; local provision.—In those counties in which the clerk of the Superior Court and sheriff are paid fees, and not salaries, such clerk and sheriff shall receive the same fees for services rendered in the general county as they would have received had such services been rendered in the Superior Court. [The county commissioners of any county wherein a county court has been established may, upon such investigation as may show the same to be proper, and by resolution at any regular meeting, provide that the judges of said court and the solicitors thereof, or either of them, may receive compensation either by way of salary or fees, as the said board of commissioners may deem best; and in case of said judge or solicitor, or either of them, is compensated for services by fees, the said fees shall be the same as are now established by law, and which are paid in like cases in the Superior Court; and in the case of solicitors those fees which were paid to solicitors of the Superior Court in like cases at the time that the solicitors of the said Superior Court were put on a salary basis: Provided, however, that the manner of compensating the said judges and solicitors, either by salary or fees, shall not be changed during their term of office. Provided further, that the portion of this section in brackets shall apply to Scotland county only.] (1924, c. 85, s. 5½; 1925, c. 172.)

Editor's Note.—The part of this section in brackets was added by Public Laws 1925.

§ 1608(l). Separate records to be kept by clerk; blanks, books and stationery.—The clerk of the said general county court shall keep separate records, criminal and civil, for the use of said court, to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide all such necessary blanks, forms, books and stationery as may be needed by said court. And the said clerk shall keep the same in his office of clerk of the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 6.)

§ 1608(m). Criminal jurisdiction, extent.—The general county court, herein provided for, shall have the following jurisdiction in criminal actions within the county:

1. Original, exclusive and concurrent jurisdiction, as the case may be, of all offenses within said county which are now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state, including all offenses of which mayors of towns or other municipal courts now have jurisdiction.

2. Original and concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace to hear and bind over to the superior court all persons charged with any crime within the territory of the general county court, and of which said court is not herein given final jurisdiction.

3. To punish for contempt to the same extent and in the manner allowed by law to the superior courts of this state; to issue writs ad testificandum and other process to compel the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court in the same manner allowed by law to the superior courts of this state.

4. The general county court shall have jurisdiction in all criminal cases arising in the county which are now or may hereafter be given to a justice of the peace, and in addition thereto shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors. In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the general county court, as herein provided for, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance, or surety, to appear at the next first Monday of the month next succeeding before the general county court for trial, and in default of surety such person shall be committed to the county jail to await trial.

5. In counties in which there is a special court or courts for cities and towns, the jurisdiction of the general county court in criminal actions shall be concurrent with the jurisdiction conferred upon such special courts. (1923, c. 216, s. 13; 1924, c. 85, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The fifth paragraph was added by the 1924 amendment.

In General.—This section as enacted was one of many general provisions applicable to the several courts provided by the act. The last clause has reference to the jurisdiction exercised by the statutory courts in all criminal matters arising in the county which are given to justices of the peace. State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 175, 170 S. E. 645.

§ 1608(n). Civil jurisdiction, extent. — The jurisdiction of the general county court in civil actions shall be as follows:

1. Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county;

2. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contract;

3. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions not founded upon contract;

4. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions to try title to lands and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof;

5. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary and permanent restraining orders and injunctions. (1923, c. 216, s. 14.)

6. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court of all actions and proceedings for divorce and alimony, or either. (1923, c. 216, s. 14; 1935, c. 171.)

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 39.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds subsection (6) to this section.

Chapter 179 of the Public Laws 1935 provided that a subdivision "6. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions for divorce" should be added. The act further provided that it should be applicable in Bertie county only and specified that prior divorces granted by the general court of the county should be validated.

§ 1608(o). Election, requirement of. — The general county court, herein provided for, shall be established upon elections as set forth in this article. (1923, c. 216, s. 20.)

Cited in State v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 145, 170 S. E. 110.

§ 1608(p). Resolution by county commissioners; time for election; ballots. — The board of commissioners of the county shall pass a resolution, if in their judgment such court should be established, reciting such fact and calling an election at a date to be fixed, which shall not be less than thirty days nor more than sixty days from the passage of the resolution, at which election there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the county the question of establishing such court. At such election all qualified voters favoring the establishment of such court shall vote a ballot upon which shall be printed or written the words "For General County Court for-------County," and those opposing the establishment of such court shall vote a ballot upon which shall be printed or written the words "Against General County Court for ..... County." (1923, c. 216, s. 21.)

§ 1608(q). Notice of election; publication.— Notice of such election shall be given at least thirty days prior to the day of election, signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners and containing in substance the resolution passed by the board, the date of the election and a reference to the act creating the court, and which notice shall be published once a week for four successive weeks prior to said election in some newspaper published in the county and a copy thereof shall be posted at the courthouse door. (1923, c. 216, s. 22.)

§ 1608(r). Law governing elections; election officers; registration.—Any election held under the provisions of this law shall be conducted in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for holding elections for the members of the general assembly, except as herein otherwise stated. The board of county commissioners shall appoint the registrars and judges of election and any other election officers necessary for holding said election, and registration and challenge of voters shall be conducted in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be provided for election of the members of the general assembly, except as herein set forth. The said board of county commissioners may or may not, in their discretion, order a new registration for any election held under this law. In case no new registration is ordered the registration books of each voting precinct shall be kept open for twenty days prior to the election for the purpose of allowing electors to register who have not theretofore registered in the township or voting precinct, of their residence, and who are entitled to register for said election; and the registration books shall close on Saturday next preceding the election and the registrar shall transcribe the names of all persons who have registered for former elections in their township, or voting precincts, and are otherwise qualified electors at said election upon a new registration book. The registrars are authorized and directed to register any person legally qualified and entitled to vote in their respective townships or voting precincts who apply for such purpose, in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations now or hereafter may be provided for registering electors for the general election in said county. (1923, c. 216, s. 23.)

§ 1608(s). Count and return of votes; canvass of returns; effect; expense.—The vote cast at said election shall be counted at the close of the polls by the election officers and returned to the clerk of the said board of county commissioners of said county by a member of said election officers on the second day next succeeding the day of said election; and the said board of county commissioners, at their next regular meeting, or at a called meeting, shall tabulate and declare the result of the election, all of which shall be recorded in the minutes of said board of county commissioners, and no other recording and declaring of the result of said election shall be necessary. If a majority of the votes cast at said election is declared in favor of such court, it shall be established, and not otherwise. The expenses of said election shall be paid by the county commissioners out of the county fund. (1923, c. 216, s. 24.)

§ 1608(s) 1. Application of article.—This article shall not apply to any county in which there has been established a court, inferior to the superior court, by whatever name called, by a special act, nor shall this act apply to the following counties: Granville, Henderson, Iredell, New Hanover, Pasquotank, Randolph and Wake, [nor shall it apply to the counties in the sixteenth (16th)], seventeenth (17th), and nineteenth (19th) Judicial Districts, except Buncombe county. (1924, c. 85, s. 24, f; 1925, c. 9; 1927, c. 103, ss. 1, 2; 1929, c. 159, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The county of Randolph was added to the list of counties to which this article does not apply by the 1925 amendment. The 1927 amendment made an exception in the case of Henderson County.

The Act of 1931 struck out the words in brackets.

§ 1608(s)2. Court of Wilson County. — (a) Summons in civil actions shall issue out of the General County Court and be returnable thereto, as summons is issued out of and returnable to the Superior Court.

(b) If the amount in controversy exceeds the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00), summons may issue out of the General County Court to any County in the State under the seal of the said Court.

(c) Complaints shall be filed as is provided for the filing of the complaints in the Superior Court; answers shall be filed as is provided in the filing of answers in the Superior Court; provided, the judge shall not extend the time in which to answer, except upon an affidavit from the defendant or defendants showing good cause and such time shall not exceed twenty days from the time allowed by law, and only one extension shall be granted.

(d) If a demurrer shall be filed to the complaint or to the answer or to any other pleadings, the same shall be heard and determined by the judge within ten days from the filing thereof. If the demurrer is overruled, the party demurring shall have thirty days thereafter within which to plead to the pleadings to which the demurrer was filed.

(e) The judge shall of his own motion and as a matter of course enter judgment by default, final or inquiry, as may be proper, upon the expiration of the time within which to answer, demur, or otherwise plead if no demurrer, answer or other pleading has been filed.

(f) Either party shall be entitled to a trial by jury in civil cases upon demand made in his pleadings. If the plaintiff fails to demand a trial by jury in the complaint, it shall be deemed a waiver by the plaintiff of the right of trial by jury. If the defendant fails to demand a trial by jury in his answer, the defendant shall be deemed to have waived his right of trial by jury. If either party demands a trial by jury, it shall not be necessary for the other party to make demand, and failure to make a demand in such case shall not be deemed a waiver by said party, and the other party cannot thereafter waive the right of trial by jury without the consent of the adversary party. If neither party demands a trial by jury, or if trial by jury is waived by both parties, the judge shall hear the case, find the facts and render the judgment thereon.

(g) Civil actions shall stand for trial at the second term next succeeding the filing of the answer, and shall be tried during that term unless good and sufficient cause shall be shown by affidavit for a continuance. The judge shall at such term call the cases for trial in their order and if the plaintiff is not ready for trial in the absence of good cause shown by affidavit, the action shall be dismissed as of non-suit, according to the course and practice of the Superior Court.

(h) The General County Court shall have jurisdiction to try actions for divorces, according to the course and practice of the Superior Court in such actions.

(i) The judge of the court shall appoint a court reporter who shall be a competent stenographer, said appointment may be made for a term or may be made from court to court. The court shall fix the compensation of the reporter and at the end of the court shall issue an order on the general fund of the county for the payment of such compensation to be paid to said reporter. In the event of an appeal from the judgment rendered by said General County Court to the Superior Court, the reporter shall make and file a transcript in triplicate of said proceedings of the General County Court had in said case, which transcript shall be filed with the record and for such services the said reporter shall not be paid nor receive any extra compensation. The plaintiff and the defendant in said action shall each be entitled to the use of one copy of such transcript, and the other copy shall be for the use of the judge of the Superior Court.

(j) The judge of the General County Court of Wilson County shall not practice in matters, either civil or criminal, in which said court has jurisdiction either concurrent or final.

This Act shall only apply to the General County Court of Wilson County. (1931, c. 61; 1935, c. 29, c. 149, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Under this section Wilson County now has a general county court whose powers and jurisdiction are practically equivalent to (and in respect to jurisdictional amount greater than) the Superior Court of the same county. The situation is still more anomalous in that under the present law, appeals must be taken from this general county court to the Superior Court and thence to the Supreme Court instead of directly to the latter court, since it has been held that under the Constitution the Superior Court is the head of the inferior court system of the state, and as such has appellate jurisdiction over all matters arising in the courts below it. The possibility of double appeals in Wilson County, with the further delay and expense in the administration of justice consequent on such double appeals, is obvious. This needless complication of our present Superior Court system by the creation of these county courts, to say nothing of the resulting absurdities and inconsistencies in our judicial system, could be obviated by the adoption of a constitutional amendment providing for solicitorial districts separate and distinct from the judicial districts, which would make possible the expansion of the Superior Court system along logical, horizontal lines in the effort to relieve congested dockets. The result would be more judicial districts with more Superior Courts and more judges to try cases, instead of more new separate courts with new jurisdictional limits pregnant with many difficulties for the lawyer and the litigant.

It is important to note that the amendment gives to this county court jurisdiction to try divorces, according to the course and practice of the Superior Court in such actions. Hitherto the legislature had conferred the sole original jurisdiction in all applications for divorce and alimony upon the Superior Court. § 1655; Williamson v. Williamson, 56 N. C. 446; Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N. C. 179, 9 N. C. Law Rev. 366.

The amendments of 1935 substituted new provisions (i) and (j) for the former subsections. Public Laws 1935, chapter 149, also provided "as a part of the bill of cost taxed by the clerk of said court against the party adjudged to pay the cost of such action, there shall be taxed therein the sum of two dollars and fifty cents, to be paid to and collected by said clerk and when so collected shall be by said clerk paid over to and into the general funds of the county for the use and benefit of said county. Any and all funds and sums of money which are now in the hands of the clerk of said court and now held by him which were received and collected by him as deposits by plaintiffs bringing actions in said court and which have not been expended as provided for in said act shall be by said clerk paid into the general fund of Wilson county."

Art. 25. Practice and Procedure

§ 1608(t). Procedure in civil actions; return of process.—The rules of procedure, issuing process and filing pleadings shall conform as nearly as may be to the practice in the superior courts. The process shall be returnable directly to the court, and may issue out of the court to any county in the state: Provided, that civil process in cases within the jurisdiction now exercised by justices of the peace shall not run outside of or beyond the county in which such court sits.

Motions for the change of venue or removal of cases from the general county courts to the superior courts of counties other than the one in which said court sits may be made and acted upon, and the causes for removal shall be the same as prescribed by law for similar motions in the superior courts.

The provisions of the chapters of the consolidated statutes on civil procedure and criminal procedure, and all amendments thereof, shall apply as nearly as may be to the general county courts, and the judges and the clerks of said courts, in all causes pending in said courts, shall have rights, privileges, powers and immunities similar in all respects to those conferred by law on the judges and clerks of the superior courts of the state, and shall be subject to similar duties and liabilities: Provided, that this section shall not extend the jurisdiction of said judges and clerks, nor infringe in any manner upon the jurisdiction of the superior courts, except as provided in articles twenty-four and twenty-five of this chapter: Provided, that in any civil action instituted in said general county court, where one or more bona fide defendants reside in said county and one or more bona fide defendants reside out of said county, then in such case summons may be issued out of said general county court against the defendants residing outside of said county as well as those residing in said county, and the said general county court shall have jurisdiction to try the action as against all of said defendants.

All motions and petitions for removal of actions from the general county court to the district court of the United States shall be presented to, be heard and determined by the judge of the general county court, with the right of appeal from any order or ruling of said judge to the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 7; 1925, c. 242, s. 2; 1925, c. 250, s. 2; 1933, c. 128, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Public Laws of 1925, ch. 242, struck this section as it then read and substituted the section as it now reads except that the proviso at the end of the third paragraph was added by ch. 250 of the Acts of 1925.

The last sentence of this section as it now reads, relating to removal from a General Court to the United States District Court, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 128.

§ 1608(u). Trial by jury; waiver; deposit for jury fee.—In all civil actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a jury trial unless demand shall be made therefor before the trial begins. The demand shall be in writing and signed by the party making it, or by his attorney, and accompanied by a deposit of three dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. Any defendant in a criminal action may demand a trial by jury, in which event such defendant shall not be required to deposit the sum of three dollars. Such jury shall be drawn as herein otherwise provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 8; 1924, c. 85, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The last two sentences of this section were added by the 1924 amendment.

Cited in Crafford v. Lafayette Life Ins. Co., 198 N. C. 269, 151 S. E. 249.

§ 1608(v). Continuance if jury demanded; drawing of jury list.—If a jury trial is demanded, the judge shall continue the case until a day to be set, and the judge, together with the attorneys for all parties, shall proceed to the office of the register of deeds of the county and cause to be drawn a jury of eighteen men, observing as nearly as may be the rule for drawing a jury for the superior court. The judge shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county commanding him to summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the court on the day set for the trial of the action. It shall be the duty of the register of deeds to prepare a list of jurors for this the general county court identical with the list prepared for the superior court, and the jury shall be drawn out of the box containing such list. Provided, that the Judge of said Court may in his discretion, if and when a sufficient number of cases are at issue in which jury trial has been demanded to warrant such action, cause a jury of not less than eighteen, not more than twenty-four men to be drawn for a certain week of a term, setting such cases for trial during such time, and in such cases the juries shall be drawn in the same manner as now provided for the drawing of juries for the Superior Court. (1923, c. 216, s. 9; 1931, c. 233, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931, which added the proviso to this section, provided: "This act shall apply to all District County Courts created or permitted to be created or established by the law passed at this session of the General Assembly. This act shall not apply to the following counties: New Hanover, Caldwell, Henderson, Ashe, Hoke, Lincoln, Wayne, Wilkes, Nash, Edgecombe, Alexander, Rockingham, Duplin, Union, Alleghany, Halifax, Alamance, Clay, Yancey, Dare, Wake, Hertford, Jackson, Mecklenburg, Craven, Vance, Person, Robeson, Johnston, Yadkin, Davidson, Haywood, Pitt, Tyrrell, Hyde, Watauga, Durham, Scotland, Forsyth and Camden."

§ 1608(w). Talesmen; challenges.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors according to the practice of the superior court as nearly as the same is applicable, and to direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1923, c. 216, s. 10.)

§ 1608(x). Process; authentication; service; return.—All civil summons in actions begun in the general county court shall be served at least ten days before the return day named therein, and shall be returnable on the first Monday of the month next succeeding the issue thereof, unless the same be issued within less than ten days before the first Monday of the month next succeeding its issuing, in which event it shall be made returnable on the first Monday of the second succeeding month next after the date of the issue thereof; and when the summons shall be issued more than ten days before the first Monday of the month next succeeding its issuing, and shall be executed by the proper officer within less than ten days of the return day named therein, it shall be returned as if executed in proper time, and the case placed on the summons docket and continued to the first Monday of the month next succeeding the return day thereof, at which time it shall be treated in all respects as if that had been the return day named therein. The summons shall run in the name of the state, be signed by the clerk of the court in which the action is brought, and shall be directed to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county. (1923, c. 216, s. 11.)

§ 1608(y). Pleadings; time for filing.—The complaint shall be filed by the return day named in the summons and the answer, demurrer or other pleadings on the part of the defendant shall be filed within twenty (20) days thereafter: Provided, if a copy of the complaint be served on the defendant at the time of the service of the summons, then the defendant shall have only twenty (20) days from the date of such service to file an answer, demurrer or otherwise plead. If the answer contains a counterclaim against the plaintiff or plaintiffs or any of them, such answer shall be served upon the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim is pleaded or against the attorney or attorneys of record of such plaintiff or plaintiffs; the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim shall be pleaded shall have twenty (20) days after the service thereof within which to answer or reply to such counterclaim. If such counterclaim is pleaded against any of the plaintiffs and no copy of the answer containing such counterclaim shall be served as herein provided for, such counterclaim shall be deemed to be denied as fully as if the plaintiff or plaintiffs had filed an answer or reply denying the same. All other replies, if any, shall be filed within twenty (20) days from the filing of the answer. For good cause shown and found by the judge, the judge may extend the time for the filing of any of the pleadings provided for in this act on the part of the plaintiff or on the part of the defendant. (1923, c. 216, s. 12; 1925, c. 250, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1925, the changes making it conform to sections 509, 524 as amended.

§ 1608(z). Appeal to superior court; cases bound over to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the general county court has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court of the county from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from justices of the peace; and any person tried before the general county court for any offense of which said court has not final jurisdiction shall, if probable cause be found, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before a justice of the peace. The judge may, upon proper affidavit, issue criminal warrants returnable before him in or out of term. All persons convicted in said court may be sentenced to the roads, or county farms, or jail, as the judge may determine. (1923, c. 216, s. 15.)

§ 1608(aa). Amendments in pleadings and warrants.—The judge shall have power in his discretion to allow amendments in pleadings and warrants, to the same extent as is allowed in the superior courts of the state. (1923, c. 216, s. 16.)

§ 1608(bb). Jury trials, conduct of.—The jury in the general county court shall be a jury of twelve and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 17.)

§ 1608(cc). Appeals to superior court in civil actions; time; record; judgment; appeal to supreme court.—Appeals in civil actions may be taken from the general county court to the superior court of the county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court except that appellant shall file in duplicate statement of case on appeal, as settled, containing the exceptions and assignments of error, which, together with the original record, shall be transmitted by the clerk of the general county court to the superior court, as the complete record on appeal in said court; that briefs shall not be required to be filed on said appeal, by either party, unless requested by the judge of the superior court. The time for taking and perfecting appeals shall be counted from the end of the term of the general county court at which such trial is had. Upon such appeal the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the general county court, or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the superior court an appeal may be taken to the supreme court as is now provided by law. (1923, c. 216, s. 18; 1933, c. 109.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 109, the exception at the end of the first sentence of this section merely provided that the record might be typewritten and that only two copies should be required. This was omitted and the present exception inserted in lieu thereof.

Assignment of Error.—In the absence of assignments of error appearing in the transcript on an appeal to this Court, the appeal will ordinarily be dismissed on the motion of the appellee. Smith v. The Texas Co., 200 N. C. 39, 41, 156 S. E. 160.

In the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction under this section, the Supreme Court may consider and pass only on the contention of the appellant that there was error in matters of law at the hearing in the Superior Court. This contention must, however, be presented to this Court by assignments of error based on exceptions to specific rulings of the judge of the Superior Court, on the assignments of error appearing in the case on appeal filed in the Superior Court. Id.

Sending Record Up.—Where an appeal is taken from a county court under this section it is not desirable that the entire record in the Superior Court be sent up, but only such parts as relate to the questions to be reviewed with only material exceptions, properly stated, grouped and sufficiently compiled to enable the court to understand them without searching through the record. Baker v. Clayton, 202 N. C. 741, 164 S. E. 233.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 217, where it is pointed out that the 1933 amendment amends this section, so that instead of following the practice in appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, the appellant may file in duplicate the statement of the case on appeal, and this with the original records in the case shall be transmitted to the clerk of the Superior Court as the complete record on appeal. Briefs are not required to be filed by either party, unless requested by the judge of the Superior Court.

§ 1608(dd). Enforcement of judgments; stay of execution, etc.—Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the general county court shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the general county court may be enforced by execution issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace, and the judgment when docketed shall in all respects be a judgment of the superior court in the same manner and to same extent as if rendered by the superior court, and shall be subject to the same statutes of limitations and the statutes relating to the revival of judgments in the superior court and issuing executions thereon. (1923, c. 216, s. 19.)

Art. 25A. District County Courts

§ 1608(dd) 1. May be established in two or more contiguous counties in same judicial district; jurisdiction. — In any two or more contiguous and adjoining counties of any judicial district of this State there may be established, under the general powers and authority contained in sub-chapter five, articles twenty-four and twenty-five, and the several sections of each article [§§ 1608(f)-1608(dd)], except as herein otherwise provided, a court of civil and criminal jurisdiction, maintained pursuant to this sub-chapter and the said articles twenty-four and twenty-five, not inconsistent herewith, a court of record, to be known as and designated a district county court, and containing all the authority, jurisdiction, rights, powers and duties, compensations and fees, as provided in the articles aforesaid, except as herein otherwise provided. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd) 2. Judge of court; election; term of office; oath of office and salary. — The court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and at the time of his election he shall be a qualified elector in one of the counties composing the said district county court.

The first judge of said court, upon its establishment as hereinafter provided, shall be elected by the several boards of commissioners of the counties establishing the said district courts, each board being entitled to one vote to be cast in accordance with the majority vote of each board, at any joint meeting of said boards of commissioners, as hereinafter provided, within sixty days after the establishment, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officers, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Any vacancy arising in the office of judge of said court shall be filled by the several boards of commissioners of the counties establishing the said district court, in joint meeting assembled, which shall be called by the chairman of the board of commissioners of the county in which such judge resided at the time of his death or removal, or resignation.

At the joint meeting of said boards of commissioners when an election of the judge of said court is made, the said commissioners shall also fix the salary of said judge, which salary together with the salary of the prosecuting attorney hereinafter provided for shall be paid from the costs taxed and collected in the trial of all actions in said court to which costs provided for there shall be added a trial fee of five dollars and if there be a deficiency in the payment of said salaries from said costs as herein provided for, the said deficiency shall be proportionately paid by the several counties composing the said district county court, in proportion as the population of each county shall bear to the whole of the counties creating said court, on the basis of the one thousand nine hundred thirty census.

The judge shall reside in one of the counties of said district; he shall take the oath of office prescribed in section 1608(g); hold his terms of court in the county courthouse in each county of his district, and shall not be permitted to practice law during his tenure of office in any of the courts of the State.

His successor shall be nominated and elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the several counties embraced within the jurisdiction of said district at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office and when other county officers are elected, in the same manner, and as provided by law for the nomination and election of judges of the Superior Court, and he shall hold his office for a term of four years beginning January first next following his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified; except, however, in instances of an appointment to fill a vacancy, in which case he shall hold through the unexpired term of his predecessor in office, and until his successor is elected and qualified. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd) 3. Present county courts may be changed to district courts. — That in any county where a county court has been heretofore created and now exists under and by virtue of article twenty-four, sub-chapter five of chapter twenty-seven [§§1608(f)-1608(s)1], where it is desired to change said court from a county court to a district county court, under the provisions of this article, its board of commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefor, abolish the said county court and establish for said county, in the manner provided in this article, a district county court; and in such event, the judge and solicitor of the said county court shall thereupon be named and elected as judge and solicitor of said district county court until the expiration of the time for which they were elected as officers of the said county court, and until their successors are duly elected and qualified. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd)4. When court to be held. — The court shall be open for the transaction of business and trial of cases at least once a week in each county in each month in districts composed of four counties, or less, and at least once in every eight weeks in districts composed of more than four counties, which week or the time of holding said court for each of said counties shall be determined and declared by said joint meeting of said commissioners upon recommendation of the bars of the several counties composing said district, or majority of the resident lawyers of said counties, and certified by said commissioners to each Superior Court clerk of the several counties within the district. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd)5. Prosecuting attorneys. — There shall be a prosecuting attorney of the said district court, known officially as the prosecuting attorney, and he shall appear for the State and prosecute all criminal actions in said county courts of his district; and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the boards of county commissioners of the several counties composing the district.

The said prosecuting attorney shall be elected by the respective boards of commissioners in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the election of a judge thereof. He shall hold his office until January first next following the first general election for county officers, and at the said first general election following his election by the said boards of commissioners, and thereafter at each subsequent general election for county officers, he shall be nominated and elected by the duly qualified electors of the counties composing said district, under the general laws governing the nomination and election of district officers, or solicitors of the several judicial districts.

Any vacancy arising in the said office of prosecuting attorney shall be filled by the board of commissioners of the counties composing the district, in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the election of the judge thereof; and the compensation or salary of the said prosecuting attorney shall be paid by the several counties composing the district in the same proportion, or basis provided for payment of the salary of the judge, and shall be payable monthly out of the funds of the counties composing said district court. If requested to do so by the judge, the prosecuting attorney shall represent the county in prosecuting any appeal of a criminal action from said district court in the Superior Court. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd) 6. Clerks; duties and compensation. —The several clerks of the Superior Court in the several counties of said district court shall ex-officio be clerk of said district court of each and all terms held within the respective counties of each, and subject to all the rights, duties and liabilities provided for in sections 1608(j) and 1608(l). (1931, c. 70, s. 1.)

§ 1608(dd)7. Sheriffs; duties and compensation.—The several sheriffs of the several counties of said district court, or their duly constituted deputies, shall attend upon each term of this court within their respective counties, and be subject to and possess the same power and authority and additional compensation as authorized under § 1608(k). (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd)8. Jurisdiction. — The said county district courts shall have the same criminal and civil jurisdiction as that of the general county court, and as fixed and defined in §§ 1608(m) and 1608(n). (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd) 9. How established and abolished. —The general county district court, herein provided for, shall be established and abolished as provided in this article. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd)10. Procedure to establish. — Upon a petition signed by a majority of the resident licensed attorneys at law, of not less than two counties of the State within any one judicial district, and duly verified to that effect, addressed to and filed with the Governor, praying the establishment of a general county district court for any two or more of the counties named in the petition, the Governor shall transmit a copy of the petition to each of the respective boards of county commissioners, and at the same time he shall issue an order to each of said boards directing a joint meeting of the same at the courthouse of one of the said counties at such time and place as he may designate in said order.

The several boards of commissioners, or any two or more of them, if in their judgment the said court shall be established, shall, at such meeting, or at such later meeting within thirty days thereafter to which they may adjourn, pass a resolution reciting the petition for said court, and declaring the same to be established in and for each of the respective counties thus approving and voting for the said resolution.

A majority vote of two or more of the several boards of commissioners participating in the said proceedings for the passage of the said resolution shall be sufficient for the establishment of said court, and it shall thereupon become an established court in and for the counties voting for the resolution; and thereupon a certified copy of the minutes of said meeting, the said petition and resolution, executed by any one of the commissioners present, attested by one member of each of the several boards participating in the said proceedings and voting for said court, shall be transmitted to the clerk of the Superior Court of the several counties participating and adopting the resolution, and also recorded in the minutes of said commissioners' meetings of the several counties composing the district. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 1608(dd)11. Practice and procedure. — That practice and procedure of the said county district courts shall be the same as that of the general county court, and as prescribed in §§ 1608(t)-1608(dd). (1931, c. 70,)

§ 1608(dd)12. Abolishing the court. — Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under the provisions of this article, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of county commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefor, duly certify the same to the chairman of the board of commissioners of each other county composing, forming and creating the said district court; whereupon the respective boards of commissioners of the several counties embraced in said district court, shall meet at the courthouse of the county in which the judge resides on the third Monday of the month next following the receipt of the certified copy of the resolution aforesaid, or the subsequent and next folowing Monday first and abolish the said county court for the county having adopted the resolution aforesaid, which shall go into effect as to the county abolishing said court at the end of the term to which the judge has been elected. If, upon the abolition of the said county court, as to the county adopting the resolution aforesaid, as many as two other counties forming, composing and making up the said district court, desire the same continued in full force and effect within their respective counties the said commissioners shall readjust the salary and compensation of the judge and prosecuting attorney of said court on the basis hereinbefore provided to take effect at the end of the term to which the said judge has been elected, and the said county court shall continue in full force and effect within the other counties remaining, forming and composing the same, with no impairment of the rights, powers, duties, and authorities conferred by this article. But said court may, at any time, at a meeting held pursuant to a resolution, certified as aforesaid, subject to the provisions hereinbefore recited, abolish the said court in each, all or any of the counties in the districts; and in such event the Clerk of Court shall transfer all cases pending therein to the Superior Court of his respective county. (1931, c. 70.)

SUBCHAPTER VI. CIVIL COUNTY COURTS

Art. 26. Under Chapter 135, Acts of 1925

§ 1608(ee). Establishment.—An inferior court with civil jurisdiction only as hereinafter provided may be established by the board of county commissioners of any county in this State upon the petition of a majority of the resident practicing attorneys within the county. (1925, c. 135, s. 1.)

§ 1608(ff). Jurisdiction.—The said court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in all civil actions, matters, and proceedings, including all proceedings whatever ancillary, provisional and remedial to civil actions founded on contract or tort, wherein the Superior Court now has exclusive original jurisdiction: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

Said court shall have jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions to try title to land and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof: Provided, the sum demanded or the value of property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

The said court shall have jurisdiction with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary restraining orders and injunctions: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000). (1925, c. 135, s. 2.)

§ 1608(gg). Juries in such court; drawing jury; challenges.—In the trial of civil actions in said court either the plaintiff at the time of filing the complaint or the defendant at the time of filing the answer may in his pleadings demand and have a jury trial as provided in the trial of causes in the Superior Court; failure to demand a jury trial at the time herein provided shall be deemed a waiver of the right to a trial by jury. The judge of said court, when in his opinion the ends of justice would be best served by submitting the issues as to the jury, may have a jury called of his own motion and submit to it such issue as he may deem material.

Jurors shall receive the same compensation as is now provided by law for jurors serving in the Superior Court, to be paid out of the treasury of said county on presentation of a ticket duly issued by the clerk of said court; the clerk of said court shall tax the sum of three dollars as cost of jury in all jury cases and the same shall be collected by said clerks and paid into the county treasury of said county.

The commissioners of said county at their regular meeting on the first Monday of April, in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-five, and each two years thereafter, shall cause names of their jury list to be copied on small scrolls of paper of equal size and put into a box procured for that purpose which must have two divisions marked "No. 1" and "No. 2," respectively, and two locks to same, the keys of one to be kept by the sheriff of said county and the other to be kept by the chairman of the board of commissioners of said county, the box to be kept by the clerk of said board, which box shall be marked "County Court." The names in this box shall be drawn for juries acting as jurors in the said county court and when a jury is demanded in said court the sheriff shall cause to be drawn from said box out of partition "No. 1," by a child not more than ten years of age fifteen scrolls and the scrolls so drawn to make the jury shall be put into partition marked "No. 2," and in all other respects the jury shall be drawn as juries are drawn in the Superior Court. The jurors of this court shall have the same qualifications as provided for jurors in the trial of causes in the Superior Court. The said jurors shall be summoned to attend under the mandate from the clerk of said county court directed to the sheriff of said county: Provided, that for sufficient cause the judge of this court may issue an order to the board of county commissioners that no jury be drawn for such term or terms of this court, as may seem best to him.

The challenges allowed in the trial of causes in said county court shall be the same in number and for the same causes as are allowed in the trial of causes in the Superior Court; all jurors drawn from the box shall be regular jurors. The said court shall have the same power to summon tales jurors as the Superior Court now has and when a jury trial is had the jury shall be twelve in number. (1925, c. 135, s. 3.)

§ 1608(hh). Terms; docket.—The judge and clerk of said county court are hereby authorized to fix the terms of said court and to make up the docket of said court upon consulting with the bar association of said county. (1925, c. 135, s. 4.)

§ 1608(ii). Witnesses; how summoned.—Witnesses shall be summoned by subpœna issued by the clerk of said court as now provided for the summoning of witnesses for the trial of causes in the Superior Court and shall be allowed the same compensation to be taxed as cost by the clerk of this court. (1925, c. 135, s. 5.)

§ 1608(jj). Appeals.—Appeals may be taken by either the plaintiff or the defendant from the said county court to the Superior Court of said county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner and under the same requirements as are now provided by law for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed and only one copy thereof shall be required. The time for taking and perfecting the appeals shall be counted from the end of the term. Upon appeals from said county court the Superior Court may either affirm, modify and affirm the judgment of said county court or remand the cause to the county court for a new trial.

The bonds to stay executions shall be the same as now required for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court. The judgment of the Superior Court shall be certified to said county court; final judgment may be rendered unless there is an appeal to the Supreme Court. In case of appeal to the Supreme Court upon filing of the certificate from the Supreme Court to the Superior Court said certificate shall be transmitted by the clerk thereof to the clerk of this court. (1925, c. 135, s. 6.)

An appeal to the Superior Court from the granting or refusal of a restraining order by the county court may be taken to the next term of the Superior Court without the necessity of serving statement of case on appeal, countercase or exceptions, etc., the case having been heard on the pleadings and the record in the Superior Court consisting of the summons, complaint, answer, orders, judgment and assignment of errors. Thomason v. Swenson, 204 N. C. 759, 169 S. E. 620.

§ 1608(kk). How actions commenced.—All actions shall be commenced in said court by summons running in the name of the State and issued by the clerk of said county court and shall be returnable as is provided by law for summons in the Superior Court. The plaintiff shall file and retain complaint on or before the return day of such summons; the defendant shall file a written answer or demurrer and shall make his motion in writing during the term to which the summons is returnable and the case shall stand for trial at the next succeeding term. (1925, c. 135, s. 7.)

§ 1608(ll). Judgments.—The judgments of said court may be enforced by execution issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of said judgment shall be docketed in the Superior Court of said county and become judgments of the Superior Court as now provided for executions and transcripts of judgments from the courts of justices of the peace with the same limitations as are now provided for judgments of justices of the peace. (1925, c. 135, s. 8.)

§ 1608(mm). Process of the court.—The process of said court while exercising the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace shall not run outside of said county. In all other cases these processes shall run as processes issue out of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 135, s. 9.)

§ 1608(nn). Removal of cause before justice.—When, upon affidavit made before entering upon the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace in said county, it shall appear proper for said cause to be removed for trial to some other justice of the peace, as is now provided by law, said cause may be removed for trial of the said county court. (1925, c. 135, s. 10.)

For an amendment applicable in Mecklenburg County only, see Public Laws 1933, c. 279.

§ 1608(oo). Rules of practice. — The rules of practice as prescribed by law for the Superior Court for the trial of all causes shall apply in this court, supplemented, however, by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the judge of this court relating to causes pending therein. (1925, c. 135, s. 11.)

§ 1608(pp). Bonds for costs; duties of clerk.—The statutes about bonds for costs and about suits without bonds for costs that now apply to the Superior Court shall also apply to this court. Wherever the statute provides for a thing to be done by the clerk of the Superior Court or by the judge of the Superior Court or by either, the same thing shall be performed by the clerk of said county court or by the judge of said county court in causes in said county court; this provision shall apply especially to all provisional remedies as now provided by statute except special proceedings. (1925, c. 135, s. 12.)

§ 1608(qq). Costs.—In all causes removed to or brought into the said county court the cost shall be the same as in the Superior Court. All cost shall be paid to or collected by the clerk of said county court in the same manner as in the Superior Court and be paid by the said clerk of said county court into the treasury of said county: Provided, that for the service of process the fees shall be paid to the officer serving the process. The officers shall perform all the duties in said county court as provided in the Superior Court and receive therefor the same fees as allowed for the same service performed in the Superior Court. (1925, c. 135, s. 13.)

§ 1608(rr). Appointment and compensation of judge; substitute; vacancies.—After the ratification of this act and the establishment of such court by any county, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners of such county to immediately notify the Governor who shall appoint a judge to preside over such court, and each fourth year thereafter it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint the judge of each such county court who shall preside over said court, who shall be learned in the law, of good moral character, and who shall at the time of his appointment and qualification be an elector in and for said county; that the said judge shall hold office for a term of four years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. And before entering upon the duties of his office the said judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for the judges of the Superior Court and file the same with the clerk of the Superior Court of said county; and the said clerk shall record the same. Said judge shall receive a salary of one hundred dollars ($100) a week for each week that he is engaged in holding court, payable in equal weekly installments out of the treasury of said county.

The said judge shall not by reason of his office be prohibited from practicing the profession of attorney at law in other courts of this State except as to matters pending in connection with or growing out of said county court.

When the said judge is unable to preside over said court on account of sickness or absence for other cause he shall appoint some other person learned in the law who shall take the same oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for the judge, to act as a substitute judge with all the powers and duties of the judge, and the compensation of said substitute judge shall be paid by the said judge.

Any vacancy occurring in the office of judge shall be filed by the Governor of the State. (1925, c. 135, s. 14.)

§ 1608(ss). Compensation of clerk; vacancy; files, books, stationery, etc.—The clerk of the Superior Court of said county by himself or his deputies shall ex officio perform the duties of clerk of said county court and shall be paid a sum not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) annually, the amount to be determined by the board of commissioners of said county and paid out of the treasury of said county as full compensation for his duties as clerk of said county court. Upon the failure of the clerk of the Superior Court of said county to qualify under this act or in case of any vacancy in the office of clerk of the said county court such vacancy shall be filled by the board of commissioners of said county. The necessary files, books, stationery and other material of that nature shall be furnished to the clerk of said county court by said county. (1925, c. 135, s. 15.)

§ 1608(tt). Stenographer; fees.—There shall be an official stenographer of this court whose duty shall be the same as the official stenographer of the Superior Court of said county. Said stenographer fees shall be the same in amount as the fees of the official stenographer of the Superior Court of said county and shall be taxed as cost. (1925, c. 135, s. 16.)

§ 1608(uu). Procedure.—The procedure of said county court, except that hereinbefore provided, shall follow the rules and principles laid down in the chapter on civil procedure in the Consolidated Statutes and amendments thereto in so far as the same may be adopted to the needs and requirements of the said county court. (1925, c. 135, s. 17.)

§ 1608(vv). Records.—There shall be dockets, files, and records kept of all proceedings in the said county court, conforming as nearly as possible to the records of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 135, s. 18.)

§ 1608(ww). To be court of record.—The said county court shall be a court of record and the clerk thereof shall be provided with a seal of said court. (1925, c. 135, s. 19.)

§ 1608(xx). Pending cases.—All cases pending in the Superior Court of said county and in the courts of the justice of the peace of said county on the date the court is established shall be tried in the courts wherein they are pending. (1925, c. 135, s. 20.)

§ 1608(yy). First session.—The presiding judge of said county court shall hold the first session of said county court within thirty days after his appointment by the Governor, and other sessions shall be held as provided in this article. (1925, c. 135, s. 21.)

§ 1608(zz). Discontinuance of court.—The board of commissioners of any county may discontinue such court on written petition signed by the majority of the practicing attorneys of such county. (1925, c. 135, s. 22.)

§ 1608(aaa). Existing laws not repealed.—The article shall not be construed to repeal chapter twenty-seven of the Consolidated Statutes; chapter two hundred and sixteen of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three or any amendments thereto, (Articles 24 and 25 of this chapter) nor shall it repeal or affect any act establishing any inferior court now existing or that may hereafter be created under the existing law but shall be construed to be supplemental to the existing law and a method by which county courts have been established. (1925, c. 135, s. 23.)

§ 1608(bbb). Article not applicable to certain counties.—The provisions of this article shall not apply to the following counties: Burke, Hyde, Avery, Alexander, Clay, Catawba, Mitchell, Madison, Graham, Swain, Henderson, Dublin, Jackson, Davie, Cherokee, Stockes, Lincoln, Wilkes, Johnston, Person, Pamlico, Wataugu, Haywood, Vance, Robeson, Craven, Caldwell, Hoke, Yancey, Anson, Pender, Macon, Onslow, Bladen, Alleghany and Scotland: Provided, this bill shall not apply to any of the counties of the present Sixteenth and Seventeenth Judicial Districts. (1925, c. 135, s. 24.)

Art. 27. Under Chapter 167, Acts of 1925

§ 1608(ccc). Establishment. — In addition to the plan for a general county court, provided for in chapter two hundred sixteen, Public Laws, session of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, (Articles 24 and 25 of this chapter) and amendments thereto, there may be established by the board of county commissioners in any county, a court of civil jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and which shall be maintained pursuant to this act, and which court shall be called the county civil court, and shall have civil jurisdiction as herein provided. (1925, c. 167, s. 1.)

§ 1608(ddd). Qualification, election, and term of judge; office.—The county civil court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be an attorney at law, and shall reside and be qualified elector in the county during his term of office, and shall be permitted to practice law during his term of office. The first judge of the county civil court shall be elected by the board of county commissioners at the time of the establishment of said court, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officers within said county, and until his successor is elected and qualified, and if a vacancy occurs in the office of judge, it shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the board of county commissioners. Each succeeding judge shall be elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the county at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office in the same manner as other county officers are nominated and elected, and shall hold office for a term of four years, beginning January first, following his election and until his successor is elected and qualified, unless said court is abolished. The judge shall qualify by taking and subscribing an oath of office as is now provided by law for a judge of the Superior Court, which shall be filed with the clerk. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, which shall not be decreased during the term of office; to be paid in monthly installments by the county. The judge shall be provided by the county board of commissioners with an office and a suitable and convenient room for holding court at the county seat. (1925, c. 167, s. 2.)

§ 1608(eee). Substitute judge. — When the judge of said county civil court is unable to hold court on account of sickness, absence, disqualification, or other cause, he shall appoint some other person learned in the law, who shall take the same oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for a judge, to act as substitute judge, who shall be invested with all the powers and duties of the judge, and his compensation during his appointment shall be paid by the said judge. (1925, c. 167, s. 3.)

§ 1608(fff). Terms of court; calendar.—The court shall open for the transaction of business and trial of cases on the first Monday of each month and continue until the matters of the court are disposed of, and it shall be the duty of the judge to prepare a calendar of cases for trial, on which jury cases shall have precedence. (1925, c. 167, s. 4.)

§ 1608(ggg). Clerk of court.—The clerk of the Superior Court of the county shall be ex officio clerk of the court, and in addition to the salary or fees paid him as clerk of the Superior Court, he shall be paid such additional compensation as the county commissioners of the county may fix to be paid monthly out of the county funds, and the board of county commissioners be and are hereby authorized and empowered to provide for salary or fees for such additional deputies as he may need. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him as clerk, to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 5.)

§ 1608(hhh). Sheriff. — The sheriff of the county, or his deputies, appointed, shall attend upon the same terms of this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the Superior Court of the county. The county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may fix for such services, in addition to his salary or fees fixed by law. (1925, c. 167, s. 6.)

§ 1608(iii). Records; blanks, forms, books, stationery.—The clerk of the court shall keep separate records for the use of the said court to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide such necessary blanks, forms, books, and stationery as may be needed by the court, and the clerk shall keep the same in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 7.)

§ 1608(jjj). Juries.—The jury in said court shall be a jury of twelve and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the Superior Court. In all actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a jury trial, unless demand shall be made therefor, as hereinafter provided in writing. The plaintiff in filing the complaint, or the defendant at the time of filing answer, may in the pleadings demand a jury trial, or in cases transferred from the Superior Court to the said court, either party may demand jury trial, in writing, signed by the party making it or his attorney, which must be made at the time of such transfer. Any demand for a jury trial shall be accompanied by a deposit of five dollars ($5.00), to insure the payment of the jury tax, except in cases brought in forma pauperis, provided such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. (1925, c. 167, s. 8.)

§ 1608(kkk). Jury list; summons.—It shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners, upon the establishment of a court as herein provided, and every two years thereafter, to prepare a list of jurors, identical with the list prepared for the Superior Court and subject to the same rules and regulations, and mark said jury box as the county civil court box, from which the jury shall be drawn. The judge of the court shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county to summons the jurors for the court in the same manner as juries are ordered and drawn in the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 9.)

§ 1608(lll). Talesmen.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors, according to the practice of the Superior Court, and to direct the sheriff to summons a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1925, c. 167, s. 10.)

§ 1608(mmm). Procedure, process, pleadings, etc.—The procedure, practice, processes, pleadings and procuring evidence and judgments shall conform as near as may be to the courts having concurrent jurisdiction with this court. (1925, c. 167, s. 11.)

§ 1608(nnn). Appeals.—Appeals in all actions may be taken from the court to the Superior Court of the county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed, and only two copies shall be required; one for the court and the other for the opposing counsel. The time for taking and prosecuting appeals shall be counted from the end of the calendar month of the court at which such trial is had. It shall be the duty of any judge of the Superior Court holding the courts in any county, where a court is established under the provisions of this act, to allot sufficient and adequate time during each regular term of the Superior Court held in such county for the hearing of appeals from the county civil court of such county. Upon such appeal the Superior Court may either affirm or modify and affirm the judgment of the county civil court or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the Superior Court an appeal may be taken to the Supreme Court, as is now provided by law. Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the court shall be the same as in appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, and judgments of said court may be enforced by execution by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days, and transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the Superior Court and become judgments of the Superior Court as is now provided. Transcripts may be docketed in the Superior Court as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace, and when docketed shall in all respects be judgments in the same manner and to the same extent as if rendered by the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 12.)

§ 1608(ooo). Jurisdiction.—The county civil court shall have jurisdiction only in civil matters, and as follows:

(1) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county;

(2) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions founded on contract; wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), exclusive of interest and cost;

(3) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions not founded upon contract; wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), exclusive of interest and cost;

(4) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions to try title to lands and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof;

(5) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary and permanent restraining orders and injunctions. (1925, c. 167, s. 13.)

§ 1608(ppp). Stenographer; fees.—There shall be an official stenographer of the court whose duties and fees shall be the same and taxed as those of the official stenographer of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 14.)

§ 1608(qqq). Disqualification of judge.—Where the judge is disqualified to try any case, it shall be removed for trial to the Superior Court of the county, in which the court is located or ore tenus by the substitute judge. (1925, c. 167, s. 15.)

§ 1608(rrr). Pending cases, transfer.—By consent of plaintiff and defendant any case, within the jurisdiction of the court, pending in the Superior Court may be transferred to the docket of the county civil court, and there tried. (1925, c. 167, s. 16.)

§ 1608(sss). Abolishing court.—This court may be abolished by resolution of the board of county commissioners of any county for such county by giving written notice of such intention six months prior to the end of the term of any presiding judge thereof, to become effective at the end of such term of office; and, in case of the abolition of the court, cases then pending shall be transferred to the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 17.)

§ 1608(ttt). Existing laws not repealed.—This act shall not be construed to repeal any existing laws by which a county court may be created or to effect or repeal any court now or hereafter created under existing laws and shall only be construed to be an additional method by which a county court may be established. (1925, c. 167, s. 18.)

§ 1608(uuu). Article inapplicable to certain counties.—This article shall not apply to the counties of Bladen, Jones, Bertie, Caldwell, Craven, Columbus, Gaston, Henderson, Mitchell, Vance. (1925, c. 167, s. 19.)

SUBCHAPTER VII. COUNTY CRIMINAL COURTS.

§ 1608(1). Counties authorized to establish county criminal courts.—In each county in this State there may be established a court of criminal jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record, and it shall be maintained pursuant to the provisions of this act, and said court shall be called the county criminal court, and shall have jurisdiction over the entire county in which said court shall be established. (1931, c. 89, s. 1.)

§ 1608(2). Established by resolution of county commissioners.—If, in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county, the public interest will be best promoted by so doing, they may establish a County Court under the provisions of this act, by resolution which shall in brief recite the reasons for the establishment thereof, and further recite that in the opinion of the board of commissioners it is not necessary that an election be called for the establishment of said court, as herein provided, and upon the adoption of such resolution the board of commissioners may establish said court without holding such election. (1931, c. 89, s. 2.)

§ 1608(3). Court may be abolished by resolution.—Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under this act, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefore, abolish said court. (1931, c. 89, s. 3.)

§ 1608(4). Transfer of cases from docket of Superior Court.—Upon the establishment of the County Court, as in this act authorized, the Clerk of the Superior Court shall immediately transfer from the Superior Court to such County Court all criminal actions pending in the Superior Court of which the County Court has jurisdiction, as in this act conferred, and the County Court shall immediately proceed to try and dispose of such criminal actions. (1931, c. 89, s. 4.)

§ 1608(5). Appointment of judge; associate judge. — The court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be licensed to practice law, and who, at the time of his election or appointment, shall be a qualified elector in the county. The board of commissioners of the county shall appoint such judge, whose term of office shall be two (2) years from the date of his appointment, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, or until the court shall be abolished, as herein provided. In the event of a vacancy by death or resignation, appointment shall be for the unexpired term of the previous judge. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, and the same shall be paid monthly out of the general county fund. In each county in which the court is established, under the provisions of this act, there shall be appointed by the board of commissioners of said county an associate judge, who shall preside as judge of the county court, and with like authority of the regular judge, in the event of sickness or absence from the county of the regular judge, or in the event that the regular judge should be disqualified by relationship to the parties in interest, or from other cause. The associate judge shall take the same oath of office required by the judge of the county court, and shall be paid such compensation for his services as may be provided by the board of commissioners. The compensation which shall be paid to the associate judge shall be deducted from the salary to be paid to the regular county judge as herein provided. He shall be appointed at the time fixed for the appointment of the judge of the County Court, and for the same term as herein provided for a regular judge of the county, with the authority on the part of the board of commissioners to fill the vacancy in the event of death or resignation. (1931, c. 89, s. 5.)

§ 1608(6). Appointment of prosecuting attorney. — There shall be a prosecuting attorney of said County Court, to be known as the prosecuting attorney, who shall appear for the State and prosecute all criminal cases being tried in said court, and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the board of commissioners, to be paid monthly from the general county fund. The board of commissioners shall appoint such prosecuting attorney, whose term of office shall be two (2) years from the date of his appointment, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, or until the court shall be abolished, as herein provided, except in the event of a vacancy in the office of prosecuting attorney, either by death or resignation, the appointment to fill such vacancy shall be for the unexpired term of the previous prosecuting attorney. (1931, c. 89, s. 6.)

§ 1608(7). Clerk of the Superior Court ex-officio clerk of the County Court unless on salary; term of office; fees; bond. — In those counties in which the Clerk of the Superior Court and sheriff are paid fees and not salaries, such clerks and sheriffs shall receive the same fees for services rendered in a County Court as they would have received had such services been rendered in the Superior Court.

The Clerk of the Superior Court shall, ex-officio, be Clerk of the County Court, and in all counties in which the Clerk of the Superior Court is paid fees, the Clerk of the Superior Court shall have the right and privilege to resign as Clerk of the County Court, and in the event of such resignation the board of commissioners shall have the authority to appoint a Clerk of the County Court, whose term of office shall be two (2) years, and whose term of office shall expire at the time fixed for the termination of the office of the judge of said court, and the appointment of the Clerk of the County Court shall thereafter be made by the board of commissioners at the same time when the appointment of the judge of said is made by said board of commissioners. He will receive the same fees for services rendered as clerks of the Superior Courts. In all counties in which the Clerks of the Superior Court are paid salaries the board of commissioners are authorized, in their discretion, to provide additional compensation to such clerks for their services rendered as Clerk of the County Court.

In the event that the Clerk of the Superior Court shall resign as Clerk of the County Court as herein provided, upon the appointment of a Clerk to the County Court, he shall be required to enter into a bond in such sum as may be fixed by the board of commissioners for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. (1931, c. 89, s. 7.)

§ 1608(8). Oath of judge; prosecuting attorney.—The judge of the County Court, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the prescribed oath required of judges of the Superior Court, and such oath shall be recorded by the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county. The prosecuting attorney, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the prescribed oath required of solicitors of the Superior Court, and said oath shall be recorded by the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county. (1931, c. 89, s. 8.)

§ 1608(9). Court seal.—The County Criminal Court shall have a seal with the impression "County Court of.....County," which shall be used in attestation of all writs, warrants, or other processes, acts, or judgments of said court whenever required, and in the same manner and in the same effect as the seal of other courts of record in the State of North Carolina. (1931, c. 89, s. 9.)

§ 1608(10). Jurisdiction; Appeal; judgment docket. — The jurisdiction of the County Court shall be as follows:

(a) Said court shall have final exclusive and original jurisdiction of all criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony, as now defined by law, except as to offenses over which justices of the peace have final jurisdiction, and all such offenses whereof said court is given jurisdiction are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors.

(b) To punish for contempt to the same extent and in the same manner allowed by law to the Superior Court of this State; to issue writs ad testificandum and other processes to compel the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court in the same manner allowed by law to the Superior Courts of this State.

(c) The judge of the County Court shall have all the power and jurisdiction and authority now conferred by law upon the Superior Court to sentence any person who pleads guilty or who is convicted in said court of a misdemeanor for which the punishment prescribed by law is imprisonment, to be imprisoned in the common jail of the county and to be assigned to work on the public roads of any county, as now provided by law, and the clerk of said court shall issue commitments therefor in the same manner as now provided by law for the Clerks of the Superior Court.

(d) Any person convicted in said court shall have the right of appeal to the Superior Court of said county, and upon such appeal the trial in the Superior Court shall be de novo.

(e) The County Court shall have exclusive preliminary jurisdiction over all offenses whereof exclusive jurisdiction is not given to said court, and shall hear and determine all warrants charging such offenses, and in the event that the court finds probable cause, shall bind the defendant over to the Superior Court, requiring such bond as the court may fix for the appearance of the defendant at the next ensuing term of the Superior Court of said county for the trial of criminal causes; and all justices of the peace issuing warrants wherein the defendant or defendants are charged with the commission of an offense whereof the Superior Court has jurisdiction, shall make said warrants returnable before the said County Court.

(f) The judge of the County Court shall have the same authority as the judge of the Superior Court to render judgments upon all appearance bonds, and such other bonds as are authorized by law, when default has been made. All such judgments shall be certified to and docketed upon the civil judgment docket in the Superior Court of the county in which the court is held, and shall be cross-indexed as other judgments, and shall, from the time of docketing, have the same force and effect as judgments of the Superior Court. (1931, c. 89, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—Civil Jurisdiction of Gates County Court.— Public Laws 1931, c. 241, provided that if the Board of Commissioners of the County of Gates should within six months establish a County Court under the act from which this section is taken, there "shall be conferred upon said County Court civil jurisdiction to try and determine civil actions wherein the party plaintiff or defendant is a resident of that County;" and that §§ 1591-1596 and 1598, shall be applicable to said court when established.

The act further provided: "The jurisdiction of such courts in civil actions shall be as follows:

(a) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of justices of the peace within the County;

(b) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions founded on contract, wherein the amount involved, exclusive of interest and costs, does not exceed five hundred dollars.

(c) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in actions not founded upon contract wherein the amount involved, exclusive of interest and costs, does not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars."

By the acts of 1935 it is directed that a new subsection (g), giving concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace and applicable only in Burke county be added.

§ 1608(11). Jury trials. — In all cases coming before the said County Court a jury may be demanded by either the State or the defendant, or the court may, upon its own motion, order a jury trial in any case where, in the judgment of the court, the ends of justice would be better met by submitting the case to a jury. The board of commissioners of the county in which said County Court is established are hereby required to furnish the clerk of said County Court with a list of jurors of said county, and in any case where a jury trial is to be had a jury of twelve (12) shall be drawn from the said list of jurors so furnished by the board of commissioners. The names of the jurors shall be drawn from the box as now provided in cases in the Superior Court in drawing a special venire: Provided, however, the defendant may waive a jury drawn from the box, in which event the court shall direct the sheriff to summons bystanders or talis jurors to serve as jurors in said cases, and the judge of the County Court shall have like authority as is now existing by the judge of the Superior Court to order the summons of talis jurors to serve in said court where the jurors drawn from the box shall be legally challenged or shall be otherwise disqualified to serve as such jurors. The causes of challenge of jurors in the County Court shall be the same as now provided for challenges of jurors in the Superior Court. The fees of jurors shall be the same as now paid jurors in the Superior Court, and shall be paid from the general county fund, and a jury tax of fifteen ($15.00) dollars in such cases shall be taxed in the bill of costs. (1931, c. 89, s. 11.)

§ 1608(12). Process. — The warrants, subpoenas, and other processes of law issued by said court shall be directed to the sheriff or other unlawful officer of the county to which said process is directed, and service thereof shall be lawfully made when made by the sheriff, deputy sheriff, of the county, or any other constable of said county, or by any rural policeman of said county, or municipal officer, and all warrants and subpoenas and other processes issued by the clerk of said county, when attested by the seal of said county, shall run anywhere in the State of North Carolina, and shall be executed by all officers in the same manner and way as processes now issued by the Superior Court. (1931, c. 89, s. 12.)

§ 1608(13). Duties of judge; bond required on being bound over. — The judge of the County Court shall preside over said court and shall direct and determine all actions coming before him, the jurisdiction of which is conferred by this Act, and in all cases where the defendant or defendants shall crave an appeal to the Superior Court, and in cases where the court has preliminary jurisdiction, and probable cause is found, the defendant shall be required to give bond, with sufficient surety, to be fixed by the court, conditioned upon the defendant's appearance at the next ensuing term of the Superior Court of said county for the trial of criminal causes, and in default thereof the court shall commit the defendant to the common jail of said county until said defendant shall have given bond or otherwise discharged according to law, except in capital cases, when the court shall find probable cause, he shall bind the defendant over to the Superior Court without bond. (1931, c. 89, s. 13.)

§ 1608(14). When prosecuting attorney's fee taxed in bill of costs.—In all cases where the defendant shall plead guilty, or shall be convicted, there shall be taxed in the bill of costs a fee of eight dollars ($8.00) in lieu of prosecuting attorney's fee, which shall be paid by the defendant, and shall be paid into the general county fund. In the event the defendant is confined to jail or confined to jail and assigned to work on the public roads of a county, such fee shall not be taxed as a part of the cost. (1931, c. 89, s. 14.)

§ 1608(15). Complete record to be kept by clerk; docket.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of said court to keep an accurate account and true record of all costs, fines, penalties, forfeitures, and punishments of said court imposed under the provisions of this Act, and said record shall show the name of each offender, the name of the offense, the date of the hearing of the trial, and the punishment imposed, and the board of commissioners shall provide dockets for recording all of the processes issued by said court, which shall conform to the docket kept by the clerk of the Superior Court, and shall also provide proper files to properly keep a record of all cases which shall be disposed of in said court, and the disposition that has been made of the same. (1931, c. 89, s. 15.)

§ 1608(16). Warrants returnable to court. — All warrants for crimes whereof the County Court shall have jurisdiction may be issued by any Justice of the Peace of said county, or mayor of any incorporated town, as provided by law, and shall be made returnable before the County Court at the next ensuing term thereof. (1931, c. 89, s. 16.)

§ 1608(17). Service fees to officers except where they are on salary. — The cost of issuing and serving warrants, subpoenas, and other processes of law by said court shall be payable to the officers issuing or serving them, and shall be payable to the clerk of said court as is now done in cases determined by the Superior Court, except in those counties where officials are paid salaries and are not allowed fees, in which cases the costs so taxed shall be paid into the office of the clerk of said court, to be paid by him to the county treasurer or depository of said county, in the same manner and way as is now provided for similar fees in the Superior Court. (1931, c. 89, s. 17.)

§ 1608(18). Regular and specal terms; place of sessions.—There shall be held a regular term of the County Court established under the provisions of this Act on the second Tuesday in each month: Provided, however, special terms may be held at any time by order of the judge of said court for the purpose of disposing of cases where pleas of guilty shall be entered and for the trial of cases where the defendants are confined to prison. At all regular terms the court shall continue in session until all cases are tried, continued, or otherwise disposed of according to law: Provided, however, the board of county commissioners in any county in which a County Court is established under the provisions of this Act by proper resolution duly entered upon the minutes of said board, may, in the exercise of their discretion, fix other days than the days provided in this Act on which regular terms of said court may be held: Provided, further, when a regular term of the County Court to be held under the terms fixed by this Act shall conflict with a term of the Superior Court in said county, the regular term of the County Court shall be held on the first Tuesday following the termination of said term of the Superior Court, as fixed by law. All sessions of said County Court shall be held in the court house of the county in which said court is established. (1931, c. 89, s. 18.)

§ 1608(19). Judge and prosecuting attorney may practice law in other courts. — In the event of the appointment of a licensed lawyer as judge or prosecuting attorney of said County Court, nothing in this Act shall prevent the said judge or the prosecuting attorney appointed under the provisions of this Act from practicing law in matters in which he is no way connected by reason of his said office, or in courts in the State in matters which have not been heard or will not be heard in the County Court of which he is an officer. (1931, c. 89, s. 19.)

§ 1608(20). General County Court Acts not affected.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to appeal, alter, or amend any law heretofore enacted authorizing the establishment of county courts in the several counties of the State, but this Act shall be construed to be in addition to and supplemental to such acts, and any court established under the provisions of this Act shall be restricted and limited to all the provisions herein contained. (1931, c. 89, s. 20.)

§ 1608(21). Certain counties excepted from provisions of statute.—This Act shall not apply to the counties of Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Brunswick, Buncombe, Camden, Caswell, Catawba, Chowan, Clay, Cleveland, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Dare, Davidson, Davie, Duplin, Durham, Edgecombe, Franklin, Greene, Harnett, Haywood, Henderson, Hertford, Hoke, Hyde, Iredell, Jackson, Johnston, Lincoln, Macon, Madison, Montgomery, New Hanover, Northampton, Orange, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Randolph, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Sampson, Scotland, Stanly, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Vance, Wake, Warren, Watauga, Wayne, Wilkes, Yadkin, Yancey and Richmond. (1931, c. 89, s. 21, c. 270; 1935, c. 8.)

Editor's Note.—Cabarrus county was omitted by the amendment of 1935.

CHAPTER 28

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR

Art. 1. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors

§ 1609. Debts mature on execution of assignment; no preferences.—Upon the execution of any voluntary deed of trust or deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, all debts of the maker thereof shall become due and payable at once, and no such deed of trust or deed of assignment shall contain any preference of one creditor over another, except as hereinafter stated. (Rev., s. 967; 1893, c. 453; 1909, c. 918, s. 1.)

Definition.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors has been defined by the U. S. Supreme Court as "an assignment whereby a debtor, generally an insolvent, transfers to another his property, in trust to pay his debts or apply the property upon their payment." Black Law Dict.

What Constitutes an Assignment.—The Supreme Court has held that where a person, who is insolvent, makes an assignment of practically all his property to secure a pre-existing debt, there being also other creditors, such instrument will be treated as an assignment for the benefit of creditors and subject to the statutes relating thereto, and neither the omission of a small part of the debtor's property nor a defeasanse clause in the instrument will change this result. Bank v. Tobacco Co., 188 N. C. 177, 178, 124 S. E. 158; Powell Brothers v. Lumber Company, 153 N. C. 52, 57, 68 S. E. 926; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 22 S. E. 2; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 23 S. E. 333; Glauton v. Jacobs, 117 N. C. 427, 23 S. E. 335; Cooper v. McKinnon, 122 N. C. 447, 29 S. E. 417; Pearre v. Folb, 123 N. C. 239, 31 S. E. 475; Brown v. Nimocks, 124 N. C. 417, 32 S. E. 743; Taylor v. Lauer, 127 N. C. 157, 37 S. E. 197; Odom v. Clark, 146 N. C. 544, 60 S. E. 513.

Same—Deed to Secure Advancements. — Where the purpose of a deed is to secure payment not only of pre-existing debts but also of debts to be contracted for advancements to aid grantors in carrying on their business then said deed is not a voluntary deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, within the meaning of this and the following section. Commissioner of Banks v. Turnage, 202 N. C. 485, 486, 163 S. E. 451.

Same—Mortgage.—Where a mortgage is made of the entirety of a large estate for pre-existing debts (omitting only an insignificant remnant of property) the mortgage is in effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors secured therein. National Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 23 S. E. 333; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 22 S. E. 2.

Same—Chattel Mortgages.—A chattel mortgage, attempted to be executed by an insolvent corporation owing other creditors, to secure a pre-existing debt on practically all of its property, will be treated as an assignment and void, unless the requirements of the statute have been complied with, and no lien otherwise on the property described therein can be thereby created. Banking, etc., Co. v. Tobacco Co., 188 N. C. 177, 124 S. E. 158.

But a chattel mortgage on a stock of goods, securing the purchase price, can not be deemed an assignment for the benefit of creditors where the secured debt is contemporaneous with the contract of purchase, as a part of one continuous transaction. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

A chattel mortgage of an insolvent corporation, executed and registered before the appointment of a receiver for it, will not be construed under the provisions of this section as in effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors in the absence of the fact that the property covered by the mortgage constitutes practically all of the property of the insolvent. Vanderwal v. Vanco Dairy Co., 200 N. C. 314, 315, 156 S. E. 512.

By Whom Made—Corporations.—A corporation, it is held in the U. S. Supreme Court, through its proper officers, may make an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Potts v. Wallace, 146 U. S. 689, 36 L. Ed. 1135.

Same—Partnership.—In Tracy v. Tuffly, 134 U. S. 206, 33 L. Ed. 879, it is held that a partnership, whether general or limited, may, through its proper officers, make an assignment for the benefit of creditors.

Same—Trustees.—In accordance with the rule that trustees must unite to pass any title to property jointly held by them, where there are two or more trustees of the property of insolvents, all should join therein. Wilber v. Almy, 12 How. 180, 13 L. Ed. 944.

Applies to Sureties.—The provision that all debts of the maker become due at once applies to the sureties upon a note of the assignor. Pritchard v. Mitchell, 139 N. C. 54, 51 S. E. 783.

Effect of Void Assignment.—If a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors becomes void as to creditors its primary and essential purpose is defeated, and it is totally invalid. The assignee does not take the property for his own benefit, but for the benefit of the creditors, and while he holds the legal title they are really the equitable owners to the extent of their claims. Whatever defeats their interest defeats the object of the trust and, consequently, the trust itself. Cooper v. McKinnon, 122 N. C. 447, 450, 29 S. E. 417.

Same—Fraud Need Not Be Shown.—A voluntary conveyance, declared invalid for not complying with the provisions of this and the following sections, is not only void as to bona fide unsecured creditors, but inter partes; and hence it would be unnecessary for such creditors to show fraud in its procurement in order to set it aside. Powell Brothers v. Lumber Company, 153 N. C. 52, 68 S. E. 926.

What Constitutes a Preference.—No preference is given either at common law or in equity, or by statute, for clerk hire in a store for services rendered prior to the appointment of a receiver for the owner, on application of creditors, §§ 859, 860, 1113, par. 6, and no permissible interpretation in favor of such a preference can be derived by analogy to this section and section 1618, applying to a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, or the other sections of chapter 28. Mascot Stove Mfg. Co. v. Turnage, 183 N. C. 137, 110 S. E. 779.

Same—When Certain Creditors Omitted.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors omitting certain other creditors is invalid as a preference. Taylor v. Lauer, 127 N. C. 157, 37 S. E. 197.

Effect of Subsequent Bankruptcy.—Where an assignment for the benefit of creditors was made under this section more than four months before the debtor was adjudged a bankrupt under the federal law, the assignment was valid and whatever was done under it was valid. The court of bankruptcy cannot take retroactive cognizance of trusts beyond four months and hence will merely administer the estate as it exists at the time of the adjudication. In re Carver, 113 Fed. 138, 139.

Assignment Irrevocable.—It has been held in Brings v. Dabney, 19 Wall. 1, 22 L. Ed. 90, that a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, if assented to by the creditors, or a considerable portion of them, becomes irrevocable.

Former Provisions.—This section formerly contained the following paragraph: "A schedule of all preferred debts shall be filed under oath by the assignor in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such assignment is made, stating the names of the preferred creditors, the amount due each, when the debt was made, and the circumstances under which the said debt was contracted, and the said schedule shall be filed within five days of the registration of such deed of assignment."

The object of the act was to give the creditors a convenient opportunity of ascertaining the nature of the preferences, and to put such information, verified by the oath of the assignor, in such form and place as to be equally accessible to all. The provision was construed as mandatory. Brown & Co. v. Nimocks, 124 N. C. 417, 420, 32 S. E. 743; Frank v. Heiner, 117 N. C. 79, 23 S. E. 42; Glanton v. Jacobs, 117 N. C. 427, 23 S. E. 335; National Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 424, 23 S. E. 333.

For other cases construing this provision, see Cooper v. McKinnon, 122 N. C. 447, 29 S. E. 417; Brannock v. Brannock, 32 N. C. 428, 429.

§ 1610. Trustee to file schedule of debts.—Upon the execution of such deed of trust, the trustee, whether named therein or appointed as hereafter provided for, shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said deed of trust is registered, within ten days after the registration thereof, an inventory under oath, giving a complete, full and perfect account of all property that has come into his hands or to the hands of any person for him, by virtue of such deed of trust, and when further property of any kind not included in any previous return comes to the hands or knowledge of such trustee he shall return the same as hereinbefore prescribed within ten days after the possession or discovery thereof. (Rev., s. 968; 1893, c. 453, s. 2.)

Section Mandatory.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors is void unless the formalities of this section are complied with as to filing an inventory of the property, and will be set aside at the suit of a creditor whose debt is not therein provided for. Odom v. Clark, 146 N. C. 544, 60 S. E. 513.

If the provisions of this section are not complied with, the deeds of trust are void. Virginia Trust Co. v. Pharr Estates, 206 N. C. 894, 175 S. E. 186.

Cited in Flowers v. American, etc., Chemical Co., 199 N. C. 456, 154 S. E. 736.

§ 1611. Trustee to recover property conveyed fraudulently or in preference.—It is the duty of the trustee to recover, for the benefit of the estate, property which was conveyed by the grantor or assignor in fraud of his creditors, or which was conveyed or transferred by the grantor or assignor for the purpose of giving a preference. A preference, under this section, shall be deemed to have been given when property has been transferred or conveyed within four months next preceding the registration of the deed of trust or deed of assignment in consideration of the payment of a pre-existing debt, when the grantee or transferee of such property knows or has reasonable ground to believe that the grantor or assignor was insolvent at the time of making such conveyance or transfer. (1909, c. 918, s. 2.)

For a discussion of preference under the Bankruptcy Act, see Wilson v. Taylor, 154 N. C. 211, 70 S. E. 286.

General Effect of Section.—On proper consideration of this section, its terms and purpose, it is clear that the Legislature intended to prohibit and avoid, as a wrongful preference, any and every disposition of real or personal property, absolute or conditional, by which a creditor, in consideration of an existent or antecedent debt and within four months of a general assignment by his debtor, acquires title to such debtor's property or any interest therein or lien thereon, when he knew or had reasonable ground to believe that his grantor or assignor was insolvent at the time the transfer or conveyance was made. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11; Teague v. Howard Grocery Co., 175 N. C. 195, 198, 95 S. E. 173.

Preferences Valid at Common Law.—A debtor unable to pay his indebtedness in full, has an undoubted right, in the absence of a statute, to make preferences in the distribution of his property among the creditors, when the appropriation is absolute and with no reservation for his own benefit to the injury of creditors unprovided for. Guggenheimer v. Brookfield, 90 N. C. 232, 234.

At common law a debtor may, in the exercise of the power arising from the ownership of property, if acting conscientiously and without collusion, prefer certain of his creditors to the detriment or exclusion of the others. United States Rubber Co. v. American, etc., Co., 181 U. S. 434, 45 L. Ed. 938.

Real and Personal Property Included.—This section requiring the trustee in a general assignment for creditors to recover property "conveyed or transferred by the grantor or assignor" in preference, within the four months period, includes within their meaning both real and personal property, and the general methods by which the title is passed or interest therein created and extends to an executed contract of sale. Teague v. Howard Grocery Co., 175 N. C. 195, 95 S. E. 173.

The Four Months' Period.—The four months' period mentioned in this section is to be counted from the time the transfer or conveyance was made, and not from the time of its registration. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11.

Effect of Preference in Deed.—A deed of general assignment for the benefit of creditors, by expressly making a prior mortgage of the grantor's property, wherein an unlawful preference is given, subject thereto, will not, of itself, prevent a recovery of the property conveyed in the mortgage by the trustee in the deed in trust for the general creditors. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11.

A chattel mortgage on a stock of goods to secure the purchase price, the mortgagor retaining possession is not a preference within this section. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

Meaning of Insolvent.—Insolvent means unable to meet liabilities after converting all of the property or assets belonging to the person or estate into money, at market prices, and applying the proceeds, with the cash previously on hand, to the payment of them. Silver Valley Mining Company v. North Carolina Smelting Company, 119 N. C. 417, 418, 25 S. E. 954.

Same—Applied to Corporation.—A corporation is not insolvent, so as to render a mortgage of its property fraudulent, so long as it has property sufficient, if converted into money at market prices, to meet its liabilities. Silver Valley Mining Company v. North Carolina Smelting Company, 119 N. C. 417, 25 S. E. 954.

Debtor Whose Assets Exceed His Indebtedness.—Where a solvent debtor conveys practically all of his property to secure a pre-existing debt, having other creditors at the time, it does not create a preference within the intent and meaning of this section. Flowers v. American, etc., Chemical Co., 199 N. C. 456, 154 S. E. 736.

Right and Duty to Defend Suits.—It is the duty of assignees for the benefit of creditors, who have once accepted the trust, not only to appear, but so far as the nature of the transaction and the facts and circumstances of the case will admit or warrant, to defend suits to set aside the assignments. Chittenden v. Brewster, 2 Wall. 191, 17 L. Ed. 839.

§ 1612. Substitute for incompetent trustee appointed in special proceeding.—When a trustee named in a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors has died or resigned or has in any way become incompetent to execute the trust, the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein said deed of assignment has been registered is authorized and empowered, in a special proceeding in which all persons interested have been made parties, to appoint some discreet and competent person to act as such trustee and to execute all the trusts created in the original deed of assignment, according to its true intent and as fully as if originally appointed trustee therein. (1915, c. 176, s. 1.)

See generally as to appointment of successor to incompetent trustee, section 2582.

§ 1613. Insolvent trustee removed unless bond given; substitute appointed.—Upon the complaint of any creditor of the assignor or trustee in such deed of trust, alleging under oath that the trustee named therein is insolvent, and asking that he be required to give bond or be removed, it is the duty of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such deed of trust is registered, upon a notice of not more than ten days to such trustee, to hear the complaint. If upon such hearing the clerk is satisfied that such trustee is insolvent, he shall remove such trustee and appoint some competent person to execute the provisions of such deed of trust, unless such insolvent trustee shall file with the clerk a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by him, in a sum double the value of the property in the deed of trust, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned that such trustee shall faithfully execute and carry into effect the provisions of said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 969; 1893, c. 453, s. 3.)

In General.—While formerly it was entirely competent for a debtor to assign his property to an insolvent person who was otherwise qualified to execute the provisions of the deed of trust for the benefit of creditors, the policy of the law has since been declared by this section to throw greater safeguards around such transactions by requiring every trustee of this kind to give bond when proper application for that purpose is made to the clerk. Preiss v. Cohen, 112 N. C. 278, 282, 17 S. E. 520.

§ 1614. Trustee removed on petition of creditors; substitute appointed.—Upon the written petition of one-fourth of the number of the creditors of the grantor or assignor whose claims aggregate more than fifty per cent of the total indebtedness of said grantor or assignor, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said deed of trust or deed of assignment is registered, upon a notice of not more than ten days to said trustee of said petition, shall remove said trustee and appoint some competent person to execute the provisions of such deed of trust or deed of assignment. (1909, c. 918, s. 3.)

§ 1615. Substituted trustee to give bond.—Upon the removal or resignation of any trustee it is the duty of the clerk to require the person appointed to execute the provisions of such deed of trust, before entering upon his duties, to file with the clerk a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by him in a sum double the value of the property in said deed of trust, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned that such person shall faithfully execute and carry into effect the provisions of said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 970; 1893, c. 453, s. 3; 1909, c. 918, s. 4; 1915, c. 176, s. 2.)

§ 1616. Only perishable property sold within ten days of registration.—It is unlawful for any trustee, whether named in such deed of trust or appointed by a clerk of the superior court, to sell any part of the property described in such deed of trust within ten days from the registration thereof, unless such property or some part thereof be perishable, in which case he may sell such property as is perishable, according to the powers conferred upon him in said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 971; 1893, c. 453, s. 4.)

§ 1617. Creditors to file verified claims with clerk; false swearing misdemeanor.—All creditors of the maker of such deed of trust shall, before receiving payment of any amount from the said trustee, file with the clerk of the superior court a statement under oath that the amount claimed by him is justly due, after allowing all credits and offsets, to the best of his knowledge and belief. Any creditor who shall knowingly swear falsely in such statement shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 972, 3617; 1893, c. 453, ss. 6, 7.)

Creditors Claiming Estoppel.—Creditors, who claim under a deed of trust and file their claims to share in the proceeds of sale, cannot be heard to impeach its provisions. Chard v. Warren, 122 N. C. 75, 29 S. E. 373.

§ 1618. Priority of payments by trustee.—The trustee, after paying the necessary costs of the administration of the trust, shall pay as speedily as possible (1) all debts which are a lien upon any of the trust property in his hands, to the extent of the net proceeds of the property upon which such debt is a lien; (2) wages due to workmen, clerks, traveling or city salemen, or servants, which have been earned within three months before registration of said deed of trust or deed of assignment, and (3) all other debts equally ratable. (1909, c. 918, s. 5.)

No Discrimination Except as Provided.—Except for the two classes mentioned in this section all discrimination among creditors is forbidden. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 608, 76 S. E. 11.

§ 1619. Trustee to account quarterly; final account in twelve months.—The trustee, whether named in the deed of trust or appointed by a clerk of a superior court, shall within three months from the registration of such deed of trust, and at each succeeding period of three months, file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the same is registered an account under oath, stating in detail his receipts and disbursements and his action as trustee, and within twelve months he shall file his final account of his administration of his trust. The clerk may upon good cause shown extend the time within which the quarterly and final account herein provided for are to be filed. (Rev., s. 973; 1893, c. 453, s. 5.)

§ 1620. Trustee violating duties guilty of misdemeanor.—If any trustee in a deed of trust for the benefit of creditors shall fail to file his inventory, as required by law, or shall knowingly make any false statement in such inventory, or shall knowingly fail to include any property therein, or shall sell any part of the property described in the deed of trust within ten days unless such property so sold be perishable, or shall fail to file either of the quarterly accounts or the final accounts as required by law, or shall knowingly make any false statement in such quarterly or final accounts, or shall knowingly fail to include any property, money or disbursement in such quarterly or final account, he shall, in either case, be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3689; 1893, c. 453, s. 8.)

Art. 2. Petition of Insolvent for Assignment for Creditors

§ 1621. Petition; schedule; inventory; affidavit.—Every insolvent debtor may present a petition in the superior court, praying that his estate may be assigned for the benefit of all his creditors, and that his person may thereafter be exempt from arrest or imprisonment on account of any judgment previously rendered or of any debts previously contracted. On presenting such petition every insolvent shall deliver therewith a schedule containing an account of his creditors and an inventory of his estate, which inventory shall contain—

1. A full and true account of his creditors, with the place of residence of each, if known, and the sum owing to each creditor, whether on written security, on account, or otherwise.

2. A full and true inventory of his estate, real and personal, with the encumbrances existing thereon, and all books, vouchers and securities relating thereto.

3. A full and true inventory of all property, real and personal, claimed by him as exempt from sale under execution.

He shall annex to his petition and schedule the following affidavit, which must be taken and subscribed by him before the clerk of the superior court, and must be certified by such officer:

I, ..., do swear (or affirm) that the account of my creditors, with the places of their residence, and the inventory of my estate, which are herewith delivered, are in all respects just and true; that I have not at any time or in any manner disposed of or made over any part of my estate for the future benefit of myself or my family, or in order to defraud any of my creditors; and that I have not paid, secured to be paid, or in any way compounded with any of my creditors, with a view that they, or any of them, should abstain or desist from opposing my discharge: so help me, God. (Rev., s. 1930; Code, ss. 2942, 2943, 2944; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 1, 2, 3.)

See generally on the subject of insolvency 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 756-764; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 442.

Constitutional Provisions.—The Constitution gives, in express terms, to the Legislature the power to regulate the manner in which a debtor shall surrender his property for the use of his creditors, and he must pursue the regulations which may be thus prescribed, in order to secure his person from arrest for his debts. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C. 371.

When Debtor Not under Arrest.—A petitioner not under arrest must show that he has complied with the provisions of this section and obtain an order of discharge under sections 1622 and 1623. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 72 S. E. 207.

Facts Set Out.—Defendant having filed the schedule of his property, it was not only proper, but necessary, that he should set out the facts showing what right, title, estate and interest he held in the real estate. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 716, 64 S. E. 898.

Defendant in Alienation Suit.—A suit by one charging the defendant with alienating the affections of his wife, and arresting and holding him for bail under the affidavits required, is one entitling the defendant to the benefit of this section for the relief of insolvent debtors. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

§ 1622. Clerk to give notice of petition.—On receiving the petition, schedule and affidavit, the clerk of the superior court shall make an order requiring all the creditors of such insolvent to show cause before said officer, within thirty days after publication of the order, why the prayer of the petition should not be granted, and shall post a notice of the contents of the order at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county where the application is made for four successive weeks; or, in lieu thereof, shall publish the same for three successive weeks in any newspaper published in said county, or in an adjoining county. (Rev., s. 1931; Code, ss. 2945, 2946; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 4, 5.)

§ 1623. Order of discharge and appointment of trustee.—If no creditor oppose the discharge of the insolvent, the clerk of the superior court before whom the hearing of the petition is had shall enter an order of discharge and appoint a trustee of all the estate of such insolvent. (Rev., s. 1932; Code, s. 2947; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 6.)

§ 1624. Terms and effect of order of discharge.—The order of discharge shall declare that the person of such insolvent shall forever thereafter be exempted from arrest or imprisonment on account of any judgment, or by reason of any debt due at the time of such order, or contracted for before that time, though payable afterwards. But no debt, demand, judgment or decree against any insolvent, discharged under this chapter, shall be affected or impaired by such discharge, but the same shall remain valid and effectual against all the property of such insolvent acquired after his discharge and the appointment of a trustee; and the lien of any judgment or decree upon the property of such insolvent shall not be in any manner affected by such discharge. (Rev., s. 1933; Code, s. 2950; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 9.)

Property Subsequently Acquired Liable. — This section protects from future arrests for the same debt such as have surrendered their property; though after-acquired property may be subject to execution and sale, in proper cases. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 13 S. E. 222. See also Brown v. Long, 22 N. C. 138 which holds that the subsequently acquired property of a discharged debtor may be reached in equity.

§ 1625. Suggestion of fraud by opposing creditor.—Every creditor opposing the discharge of the insolvent may suggest fraud and set forth the particulars thereof in writing, verified by his oath; but the insolvent shall not be compelled to answer the suggestions of fraud in more than one case, though as many creditors as choose may make themselves parties to the issues in such cases. (Rev., s. 1934; Code, s. 2948; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 7.)

In Bastardy Proceeding.—A mother of a bastard child, to whom an allowance has been made in bastardy proceedings, is such a creditor of the father of her child as to permit her to oppose the insolvent's discharge by suggesting fraud in answer to his petition. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511. As to bastardy proceedings generally, see §§ 265 et seq., and the notes thereto.

Same—As to Fine and Costs.—When defendant in bastardy proceedings has been ordered to pay a fine and costs and allowance to the mother, only the State can suggest fraud as to the fine and costs. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Answer Does Not Suggest Fraud.—One who has another arrested and held to bail for alienating the affections of his wife does not raise an issue or suggestion of fraud under this section by answering the petition for discharge, and denying a statement therein made by petitioner that he is advised by counsel that, owing to the condition of the title to certain lands scheduled, an execution could not issue against it, as such statement is surplusage. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

All Creditors Notified May Be Joined.—Where a debtor is arrested under different ca. as's at the instance of several creditors, if he applies for his discharge as an insolvent debtor, and fraud is suggested in answer to his application, he has a right to require that all the creditors he may notify shall join in the trial of one ssue and the court will so direct. Williams v. Floyd, 27 N. C. 649.

Same—Where Privilege Waived. — But this is for the case of the debtor, and he may waive the privilege by joining issue with each creditor, and then a verdict in his favor in one case will not discharge him from the responsibility in the case of another creditor. Williams v. Floyd, 27 N. C. 649.

Art. 3. Trustee for Estate of Debtor Imprisoned for Crime

§ 1626. Persons who may apply for trustee for imprisoned debtor.—When any debtor is imprisoned in the penitentiary for any term, or in a county jail for any term more than twelve months, application by petition may be made by any creditor, the debtor, or by his wife, or any of his relatives, for the appointment of a trustee to take charge of the estate of such debtor. (Rev., s. 1943; Code, s. 2974; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 40.)

§ 1627. Superior court appoints; copy of sentence to be produced.—The application must be made to the superior court of the county where the debtor was convicted; and upon producing a copy of the sentence of such debtor, duly certified by the clerk of the court, together with an affidavit of the applicant that such debtor is actually imprisoned under such sentence, and is indebted in any sum, the clerk or the judge may immediately appoint a trustee of the estate of such debtor. (Rev., s. 1944; Code, s. 2975; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 41, 42.)

§ 1628. Duties of trustee; accounting; oath.—The trustee of the imprisoned debtor shall pay his debts pro rata. After paying such debts, the trustee shall apply the surplus, from time to time, to the support of the wife and children of the debtor, under the direction of the superior court. When the imprisoned debtor is lawfully discharged from his imprisonment, the trustee shall deliver to him all the estate, real and personal, of such debtor, after retaining a sufficient sum to satisfy the expenses incurred in the execution of the trust and lawful commissions therefor. The trustee shall make his returns and have his accounts audited and settled by the clerk of the superior court of the county where the proceeding was had, in like manner as provided for personal representatives. Before proceeding to the discharge of his duty, the trustee shall take and subscribe an oath, well and truly to execute his trust according to his best skill and understanding. The oath must be filed with the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., ss. 1945, 1946, 1947; Code, ss. 2976, 2978, 2979; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 43, 45, 46.)

§ 1629. Court may appoint several trustees.—The court has power, when deemed necessary, to appoint more than one person trustee under this chapter; but in reference to the rights, authorities and duties conferred herein, all such trustees shall be deemed one person in law. (Rev., s. 1948; Code, s. 2980; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 47.)

§ 1630. Court may remove trustee and appoint successor.—In case of the death, removal, resignation or other disability of a trustee, the court making the appointment may from time to time supply the vacancy; and all proceedings may be continued by the successor in office in like manner as in the first instance. (Rev., s. 1949; Code, s. 2981; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 48.

Art. 4. Discharge of Insolvent Debtors

§ 1631. Insolvent debtor's oath.—Prisoners in order to be entitled to discharge from imprisonment under the provisions of this article shall take the following oath:

I, ..., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have not the worth of fifty dollars in any worldly substance, in debts, money or otherwise whatsoever, and that I have not at any time since my imprisonment or before, directly or indirectly, sold or assigned, or otherwise disposed of, or made over in trust for myself or my family, any part of my real or personal estate, whereby to have or expect any benefit, or to defraud any of my creditors: so help me, God. (Rev., s. 1918a; Code, s. 2972; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, c. 797, c. 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 31; 1881, c. 76.)

Constitutional.—This section does not contravene the constitutional provision in regard to homestead and personal property exemptions as the prisioner can discharge himself from custody by paying the fine and costs, or, by complying with the provisions of this article and taking the oath prescribed. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 416, 2 S. E. 370.

Liberal Construction.—In Wood v. Wood, 61 N. C. 538 it is stated that ch. 59 of the Rev. Code (the provisions of which are contained in this and the following sections) has always received a liberal interpretation.

Debtor Must Follow Provisions.—The Constitution gives, in express terms, to the Legislature, the power to regulate the manner in which a debtor shall surrender his property for the use of his creditors, and he must pursue the regulations which may be thus prescribed, in order to secure his person from arrest for his debts. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C. 371. Griffin v. Simmons, 50 N. C. 145, 148.

Cited in Moorefield v. Roseman, 198 N. C. 805, 806, 153 S. E. 399.

§ 1632. Persons imprisoned for nonpayment of costs in criminal cases.—The following persons may be discharged from imprisonment upon complying with this article:

Every person committed for the fine and costs of any criminal prosecution. (Rev., s. 1915; Code, s. 2967; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 26; 1933, c. 228, s. 9.)

As to bastardy proceedings, see sections 265-279.

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 228, sec. 9, this section contained a provision which read as follows: "Every putative father of a bastard committed for failure to give bond, or to pay any sum of money ordered to be paid for its maintenance." This provision was omitted by the amendment.

Purpose.—This section was manifestly intended to be construed as permitting a defendant convicted in a criminal proceeding, or found to be the father of a bastard child, to file a petition before the clerk designating the time when he wished to apply for a discharge. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 733, 20 S. E. 511.

Construed with Sections 1356 and 1359.—This section does not repeal those enacted much later, (sections 1356, 1359,) but the latter modify it. State v. Manuel, 20 N. C. 144, 146. All three sections being reenacted into the Revisal at the same time, they must be construed together. State v. Morgan, 141 N. C. 726, 729, 53 S. E. 142.

Where Workhouse Established.—One committed for the fine and costs of a criminal prosecution, after remaining in jail twenty days, may be discharged upon complying with provisions of the next section. State v. Davis, 82 N. C. 610; State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 2 S. E. 370, and this is so, although a workhouse has been established by the county commissioners in accordance with the provisions of sec. 1365. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 2 S. E. 370.

Where Three Indictments Exist.—There were three indictments against a prisoner, to one of which he pleaded guilty, and judgment was suspended on the payment of costs, and he was found guilty on the other two, on one of which he was sentenced to imprisonment for ten days. After remaining in jail for the term of his imprisonment and twenty days additional, the prisoner took the oath prescribed and applied for his discharge; it was held, that he was entitled to his discharge in all three cases. State v. McNeely, 92 N. C. 829.

Not Imprisonment for Debt.—See note to section 276.

Placed in Custody of Sheriff.—An order in bastardy proceedings, placing the defendant in custody of the sheriff was, by necessary implication, an order to imprison upon failure to pay the fine, allowance and costs; and the defendant was properly discharged under this section. State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 18 S. E. 657.

§ 1633. Petition; before whom; notice; service.—Every such person, having remained in prison for twenty days, may apply by petition to the court where the judgment against him was entered, praying to be brought before such court at a time and place to be named in the petition, and to be discharged upon taking the oath hereinbefore prescribed. The applicant shall cause ten days notice of the time and place of filing the petition to be served on the sheriff or other officer by whom he was committed. In cases of conviction before a justice of the peace the clerk of the superior court of the county where the convicted person confined for costs is, may administer the oath and discharge the prisoner. (Rev., s. 1916; Code, ss. 2968, 2969; 1891, c. 195; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 28; 1874-5, c. 11; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 27; 1873-4, c. 90.)

A Proceeding in the Cause.—The application of an insolvent confined for the nonpayment of costs is a proceeding in the cause in which he was convicted, and should be made by petition to the court wherein the judgment against him was entered. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

Where Clerk Refuses to Give Oath.—If the clerk should refuse to allow the prisoner to take the oath, the remedy is by an appeal to the judge holding the courts of that district, and it is intimated that it is irregular for the judge of an adjoining district to release the prisoner on a writ of habeas corpus. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

Twenty Day Provision Mandatory.—Whether a defendant has property or not, he must remain in jail the twenty days, or pay the fine and costs, since the officers could not waive the imprisonment, nor had the judge the power to dispense with it. State v. Davis, 82 N. C. 610, 613.

Neither the judge nor solicitor has the right to allow a defendant in bastardy proceedings to take the insolvent's oath and obtain his discharge without remaining in prison for twenty days. State v. Bryan, 83 N. C. 611.

Effect of Discharge. — The discharge of a debtor from prison, under this section, does not protect the debtor from arrest at the instance of any other creditor than the one at whose suit he was in prison, though such other creditor had notice of the debtor's application to be discharged. Griffin v. Simmons, 50 N. C. 145.

§ 1634. Warrant issued for prisoner.—The clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, before whom such petition is presented shall forthwith issue a warrant to the sheriff, or keeper of the prison, requiring him to bring the prisoner before the court, at the time and place named for the hearing of the case, which warrant every such sheriff or keeper shall obey. (Rev., s. 1917; Code, s. 2970; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 29.)

§ 1635. Proceeding on application. — At the hearing of the petition, if the prisoner has no visible estate, and takes and subscribes the oath or affirmation prescribed in this article, the clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, before whom he is brought, shall administer the oath or affirmation to him, and discharge him from imprisonment; of which an entry shall be made in the docket of the court, and, where the proceeding is before a justice of the peace, the justice shall return the petition and orders thereon into the office of the clerk of the superior court to be filed. (Rev., s. 1918; Code, s. 2971; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 30.)

See generally the annotations under section 1632.

Improperly Discharged. — Where a debtor arrested and imprisoned for fraud did not tender the oath required by section 1631, nor surrender his homestead and personal property exemptions, nor file the petition, nor give the notice required by section 1633, he was improperly discharged upon an affidavit that he had theretofore made an assignment of all his property for the benefit of creditors and that he was at the date of the affidavit insolvent and not worth more than the exemptions allowed him by law as set apart to him. Raisin Fertilizer Co. v. Grubbs, 114 N. C. 470, 19 S. E. 597.

§ 1636. Suggestion of fraud.—The chairman of the board of commissioners, and every officer interested in the fee bill taxed against such prisoner, may oppose his taking the insolvent debtor's oath above prescribed, and file particulars of the suggestion in writing, in the court where the same shall stand for trial as prescribed in this chapter in other cases of fraud or concealment. (Rev., s. 1919; Code, s. 2973; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 32.)

§ 1637. Persons taken in arrest and bail proceedings, or in execution.—The following persons also are entitled to the benefit of this article as hereinafter provided:

1. Every person taken or charged on any order of arrest for default or bail, or on surrender of bail in any action.

2. Every person taken or charged in execution of arrest for any debt or damages rendered in any action whatever. (Rev., s. 1920; Code, s. 2951; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 10.)

As to arrest and bail, see sections 767-797.

Construed with Sections 775 and 777.—This section should be construed with sections 775 and 777, and, so construed, the remedies given by this section are in addition to those given by the other sections mentioned. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

Broad Terms. — The terms of this section are as broad and sweeping as they well can be. They do not, in any view of them as to the purpose intended, imply limitation or discrimination. They plainly embrace "every person" taken or charged to be arrested by virtue of "any order of arrest," not specially for a tort, or for fraud, or other particular cause of action as to which a person may be arrested, but for any cause of action, no matter what may be its nature, if the person is arrested in a case wherein he may lawfully be so arrested. They, in plain, strong terms, embrace any such arrest made or ordered to be made in any action whatever—that is, and action in which a person—a party—may be so arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 492, 13 S. E. 222.

Same—Tort Actions Included. — The benefits of the statute extend as well to those arrested for torts as for debt, and the debt growing out of one is no more a debt and no more entitled to an extraordinary process for its collection than the other. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 13 S. E. 222.

Any Cause Specified in Section 768. — The provisions of this section extend to and embrace every person arrested or to be arrested in a civil action on account of any cause of action specified in sec. 768. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 496, 13 S. E. 222.

Nonresidents Included. — The benefits of the section are not confined to residents of this State. There is no provision in it, or any other statute, within our knowledge, that in terms or by reasonable implication declares that a nonresident shall not be discharged from arrest in a civil action, if he makes the complete surrender of his estate as prescribed. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 496, 13 S. E. 222.

Where Motion to Vacate Denied.—Where a party is under arrest in a civil action and his motion to vacate the arrest has been denied, he may seek his discharge under the provisions of this section. Wingo v. Hooper, 98 N. C. 482, 4 S. E. 463.

Effect on Exemptions.—A judgment debtor against whose person execution has been issued cannot be discharged except by payment, or giving notice and surrender of all property in excess of $50, and the effect of the execution against the person is to deprive him of his homestead and his personal property exemption over and above $50. Oakley v. Lasater, 172 N. C. 96, 89 S. E. 1063.

Meaning of "Debtor and Creditor."—The term "debtor and creditor," employed generally and without precision in the statute as to persons arrested in civil actions, must be taken as meaning and applying to the plaintiff and defendant in the action in which the defendant shall be so arrested. They imply the plaintiff's claiming and suing for damages for which the defendant is liable to him. Such interpretation is allowable and reasonable, with a view to effectuate the intention of the statute as to persons so arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 494, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 1638. When petition may be filed.—Every person taken or charged as in the preceding section specified may, at any time after his arrest or imprisonment, petition the court from which the process issued on which he is arrested or imprisoned, for his discharge therefrom, on his compliance with this chapter. (Rev., s. 1921; Code, s. 2952; R. C., c. 59, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 11.)

Persons Included. — This section in broadest terms embraces "every person taken or charged as in the preceding section specified." Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 493, 13 S. E. 222.

Cause of Action Immaterial. — The debtor is entitled to be discharged upon the honest surrender of his property in the way prescribed, whether the cause of action on account of which he was arrested was a fraudulent debt, or a tort, or of other nature as to which he might be arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 493, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 1639. Petition; contents; verification.—The petition shall set forth the cause of the imprisonment, with the writ or process and complaint on which the same is founded, and shall have annexed to it a just and true account of all his estate, real and personal, and of all charges affecting such estate, as they exist at the time of filing his petition, together with all deeds, securities, books or writings whatever relating to the estate and the charges thereon; and also what property, real and personal, the petitioner claims as exempt from sale under execution, and shall have annexed to it an oath or affirmation, subscribed by the petitioner and taken before any person authorized by law to administer oaths, to the effect following:

I, ..., the within named petitioner, do swear (or affirm) that the within petition and account of my estate, and of the charges thereon, are, in all respects, just and true; and that I have not at any time or in any manner disposed of or made over any part of my property, with a view to the future benefit of myself or my family, or with an intent to injure or defraud any of my creditors: so help me, God. (Rev., s. 1922; Code, ss. 2953, 2954; R. C., c. 59, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 12, 13.)

§ 1640. Notice; length of notice and to whom given.—Twenty days notice of the time and place at which the petition will be filed, together with a copy of such petition and the account annexed thereto, shall be personally served by such debtor on the creditor or creditors at whose suit he is arrested or imprisoned, and such other creditors as the debtor may choose, or their personal representatives or attorneys. If the person to be notified reside out of the state, and has no agent or attorney in the state, the notice may be served on the officer having the claim to collect, or by two weekly publications in any newspaper in the state. (Rev., s. 1923; Code, s. 2955; R. C., c. 59, ss. 3, 20; 1773, c. 100, s. 8; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 14.)

Effect of Notice.—The party arrested and so seeking relief must notify the creditors or plaintiff at whose suit he is arrested, but he may or may not notify other creditors of his application to surrender his property and be discharged from arrest, and only such creditors as may be so notified will be affected by his discharge. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 492, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 1641. Who may suggest fraud.—Every creditor upon whom the notice directed in the preceding section is served may suggest fraud upon the hearing of the petition, and the issues made up respecting the fraud shall stand for trial as in other cases. (Rev., s. 1924; Code, s. 2956; R. C., c. 59, s. 13; 1822, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 15.)

Petitioner May Demand Oath and Jury Trial. — A petitioner is entitled to insist that suggestions of fraud, made by a creditor, shall be verified by the oath of the creditor and tried by a jury; and it is error in a judge to decide upon such suggestions, without submitting them in an issue to a jury. Purvis v. Robinson & Co., 49 N. C. 96. See also, State v. Carroll, 51 N. C. 458, 459.

§ 1642. Where no suggestion of fraud, discharge granted.—If no creditor suggests fraud or opposes the discharge of the debtor, the justice of the peace or the clerk of the superior court before whom the petition is heard shall forthwith discharge the debtor, and, if he surrenders any estate for the benefit of his creditors, shall appoint a trustee of such estate. The order of discharge and appointment shall be entered in the docket of the court, and if granted by a justice of the peace a copy thereof shall be certified by him to the clerk of the superior court, where the same shall be recorded, and filed. (Rev., s. 1925; Code, s. 2957; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, c. 797, c. 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 16.)

Proper Remedy to Secure Damages.—The proper remedy of the party seeking to establish and secure his damages for tort is to have a trustee appointed, under this section, to hold and distribute among creditors when and as soon as all debts are ascertained. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 1643. Continuance granted for cause.—When it appears to the court that any debtor, who may have given bond for his appearance under this chapter, is prevented from attending court by sickness or other sufficient cause, the case shall be continued to another day, or to the next term, when the same proceedings shall be had as if the debtor had appeared according to the condition of his bond, and in the event of his death in the meantime, his bond shall be discharged. (Rev., s. 1926; Code, s. 2959; R. C., c. 59, s. 10; 1822, c. 1131, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 18.)

As to the insolvent's bond, see section 1648 and annotations.

When Sickness Excuses.—The extreme sickness of the principal would excuse his nonappearance, and entitle him and his surety to a continuance if that appeared to the court. But where it was not made to appear, the court could not properly continue it. Buis v. Arnold, 53 N. C. 233, 234.

Sickness of Surety No Excuse. — Under this section the sickness of the surety is no excuse for the default of the principal. Speight v. Wooten, 14 N. C. 327.

§ 1644. Where fraud in issue, discharge only after trial.—After an issue of fraud or concealment is made up, the debtor shall not discharge himself as to the creditors in that issue, except by trial and verdict in the same, or by a discharge by consent. (Rev., s. 1927; Code, s. 2962; R. C., c. 59, s. 17; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 21.)

When Applicable. — The provisions of this section only apply to cases where the defendant is in lawful custody and by virtue of an authority competent to order it. Houston & Co. v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 35, 36.

§ 1645. If fraud found, debtor imprisoned.—If, on the trial, the jury finds that there is any fraud or concealment, the judgment shall be that the debtor be imprisoned until a full and fair disclosure and account of all his money, property or effects be made by the debtor. (Rev., s. 1928; Code, s. 2961; R. C., c. 59, s. 14; 1822, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 20.)

Must Surrender Whole Property. — An insolvent debtor included in his schedule "all his interest in certain property assigned to S. C." On an issue found, the jury found the deed assigning such property fraudulent. It was held, that the debtor should be imprisoned until he should make a surrender of the whole of such property. Hutton v. Self, 28 N. C. 285.

Not in Execution as to Others.—A debtor convicted of fraudulent concealment of his effects, upon an issue between him and A, and ordered into custody thereupon, according to this section, is not in execution at the suit of B, another creditor, in whose case no such concealment was found or suggested. Folsom v. Gregory, 12 N. C. 233.

§ 1646. Effect of order of discharge.—The order of discharge under the last four articles of this chapter, whether granted upon a nonsuggestion of fraud, upon the finding of a jury in favor of the debtor, or otherwise, shall be in like terms and have like effect as prescribed in section 1624; except that the body of such debtor shall be free from arrest or imprisonment at the suit of every creditor, and as to him only, to whom the notice required may have been given; and the notices, or copies thereof, shall in all cases be filed in the office of the superior court clerk. (Rev., s. 1929; Code, s. 2960; R. C., c. 59, s. 11; 1822, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 19.)

Debt Not Discharged.—The discharge of the principal, under the insolvent debtor's law, is not a discharge of the debt. Norment v. Alexander, 32 N. C. 71.

Protects against Those Notified.—The discharge of an insolvent protects him from arrest by those creditors only who had notice of his intention to apply for a discharge. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C., 371; Norment v. Alexander, 32 N. C. 71; Rountree v. Waddill, 52 N. C. 309, 312.

Art. 5. General Provisions Under Articles 2, 3, and 4

§ 1647. Superior court tries issue of fraud.—In every case where an issue of fraud is made up as provided in this chapter, the case shall be entered in the trial docket of the superior court, and stand for trial as other causes; and upon a finding by the jury in favor of the petitioner the judge shall discharge the debtor; if the finding is against the petitioner he shall be committed to jail until he makes full disclosure. (Rev., s. 1935; Code, s. 2949; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 8.)

In General.—Upon the suggestion of fraud an issue is raised which should be entered upon the trial docket of the superior court and stand for trial as other causes. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

When Issue Can Be Made up.—When one sets forth in his schedule that he has made a deed in trust of certain property to satisfy certain creditors and surrender all his interests in the property mentioned in such deed, it is still competent for the opposing creditors to have an issue made up whether the said deed is not fraudulent and to cause the debtor to be imprisoned, until he surrenders the property itself. Adams v. Alexander, 23 N. C. 501.

When Jury Finds Deed Fraudulent.—Where an insolvent debtor, in filing his schedule, only surrenders his interest in certain property, conveyed by a deed in trust, and the jury, upon an issue, find the deed fraudulent, he must be imprisoned until he makes a surrender of the whole property so conveyed. Hutton v. Self, 28 N. C. 285.

§ 1648. Insolvent released on giving bond.—Every debtor entitled under the provisions of this chapter to discharge as an insolvent may, at the time of filing his application for a discharge or at any time afterwards, tender to the sheriff or other officer having his body in charge, a bond, with sufficient surety, in double the amount of the sum due any creditor or creditors at whose suit he was taken or charged, conditioned for the appearance of such debtor before the court where his petition is filed, at the hearing thereof, and to stand to and abide by the final order or decree of the court in the case. If such bond be satisfactory to the sheriff, he shall forthwith release such debtor from custody. (Rev., s. 1936; Code, s. 2958; R. C., c. 59, s. 27; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 17.)

As to giving bond in surety company, see section 339.

When Bond May Be Given. — The insolvent may give bond during the pendency of and until the final determination of the proceedings. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 182, 72 S. E. 207.

Sufficient Compliance. — A condition "to appear and claim the benefit of the act, etc., and not depart without leave," is substantially the same as that prescribed by the act. Mooring v. James, 13 N. C. 254.

Who Prepares Bond.—Whether it is the duty of the officer or the defendant to prepare the bond to be given for the defendant's appearance. Quere? Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Return Day Must Be Certain. — The bond for the defendant's appearance, under this section connected with the execution, is in the nature of process to compel an appearance, and the return day thereof must be certain. Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Where Date in Bond Erroneous.—Where a bond was conditioned for the defendant's appearace at the next term of court to be held upon a stated day, and, at the next term which sat at a date earlier than that mentioned in the bond, the defendant did not appear, it was error to take a judgment against him and his surety for default since there was no default of appearance according to the bond. Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Amount of Bond.—A bond given under this section for the appearance of an insolvent to court, is good if it is for double the original debt, exclusive of interest and costs, and judgment, on motion, may be rendered on it. Williams v. Yarbrough, 13 N. C. 12.

Defendant Cannot Object to Bond.—A defendant who has given bond under this section cannot object to the informality of the bond, and pray a discharge on account thereof. Page v. Winningham, 18 N. C. 113.

Where Ca. Sa. Voidable.—Where a defendant gave bond under the insolvent act, and while he is at large by virtue thereof, he is not entitled to his discharge on account of the fact that the ca. sa. is voidable; nor can he move, under such circumstances, to quash the proceedings on that account. Bryan v. Brooks, 51 N. C. 580.

Defendant Bound to Attend.—The defendant in a ca. sa. bond, given under this section is bound to attend at every term until the cause is finally disposed of. Arrington v. Bass, 14 N. C. 95.

When Condition in Bond Broken. — Where the defendant in the ca. sa. appeared at the return day of the writ, and upon an issue being made up, the cause was continued, and afterwards the defendant made a default; it was held, that the condition of the bond was broken, and the plaintiff entitled to judgment. Mooring v. James, 13 N. C. 254.

§ 1649. Surety in bond may surrender principal.—The surety in any bond conditioned for the appearance of any person under this chapter may surrender the principal, or such principal may surrender himself, in discharge of the bond, to the sheriff or other officer of any court where such principal is bound to appear, in the manner provided in the chapter entitled Civil Procedure, article Arrest and Bail. (Rev., s. 1937; Code, s. 2963; R. C., c. 59, s. 23; 1793, c. 100, s. 7; 1793, c. 380, s. 1; 1822, c. 1131, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 22.)

Cross References.—As to exoneration of bail in arrest and bail, see section 791. As to arrest of defendant by bail, see section 793. As to surrender of defendant by bail, see section 792.

Right of Person Surrendered.—A person who is surrendered in discharge of his bail is entitled to the benefit of this chapter for the relief of insolvent debtors. Smallwood v. Wood, 19 N. C. 356.

Where Surrender to Be Made. — Sureties to a ca. sa. bond taken under this section to protect themselves by a surrender of their principal, must make it in the court to which the ca. sa. is returnable, or to the sheriff of that county; where the writ issues to another county, a surrender to the sheriff of it is a nullity. Mooring v. James, 13 N. C. 254.

Invalid Surrender.—Where a prisoner was brought into open court by his bail, and it was announced, publicly, that he was surrendered, but such was unknown to the sheriff, to the plaintiff, and to the plaintiff's counsel, and he was a stranger to all present, except to the bail and the presiding judge, and upon being ordered in custody, he fled from the court-room and escaped, without having been in the custody of the sheriff, it was held that these facts did not amount to a valid surrender. Roundtree v. Waddill, 52 N. C. 309.

Effect of Judgment against Surety.—When the principal obligor in a bond is regularly called at court, and, failing to appear, judgment is rendered against him and his surety, the surety has no right ex debito justiciae to come in on a subsequent day of the term and have the judgment set aside, in order to allow him to make a surrender of his principal. Reynolds v. Boyd, 23 N. C. 106.

§ 1650. Creditor liable for jail fees.—When any debtor is actually confined within the walls of a prison, on an order of arrest in default of bail or otherwise, the jailer must furnish him with necessary food during his confinement, if the prisoner requires it, for which the jailer shall have the same fees as for keeping other prisoners. If the debtor is unable to discharge such fees, the jailer may recover them from the party at whose instance the debtor was confined. And at any time after the arrest, the sheriff or jailer may give notice thereof to the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, and demand security of him for the prison fees that accrue after such notice, and if the plaintiff fails to give such security then the sheriff may discharge the debtor out of custody. (Rev., s. 1938; Code, s. 2965; R. C., c. 69, s. 5; 1773, c. 100, ss. 8, 9; 1821, c. 1103; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 24.)

Common Law Provision.—By the common law an imprisoned debtor was obliged to support himself, and, if unable to do so, was dependent upon the humanity of the jailer or of others. Veal v. Flake, 32 N. C. 417, 420.

Effect of Section.—Where a man has been arrested and the issue has been continued from term to term, and his sureties have from time to time surrendered him and the issue has been decided against him and he has been committed to prison in all these cases, at the instance of the creditor, it was held, that under this section the creditor is responsible to the jailer for his fees or allowance for the food furnished to the prisoner during the whole time he was confined in jail. Veal v. Flake. 32 N. C. 417.

Where Prison Bounds Allowed.—When a debtor is committed to prison, and is permitted to take the prison bounds, the jailor is not under any obligation, while he continues in the bounds, to furnish him provisions for his support, nor, of course, can the creditor, at whose suit he is confined, be compelled to reimburse the jailor for any sum so expended. Phillips v. Allen, 35 N. C. 10.

Sheriff Cannot Bring Action.—The action against the creditor for the jail fees of an insolvent debtor, given by this section to the jailor, can not be maintained by the sheriff as the jailor's principal. Bunting v. McIlhenny, 61 N. C. 579.

§ 1651. False swearing; penalty.—If any insolvent or imprisoned debtor takes any oath prescribed in this chapter falsely and corruptly, and upon indictment for perjury is convicted thereof, he shall suffer all the pains of perjury, and he shall never after have any of the benefits of this chapter, but may be sued and imprisoned as though he had never been discharged. (Rev., ss. 1940, 3614; Code, s. 2964; R. C., c. 59, s. 25; 1793, c. 100, s. 10; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 23.)

As to punishment for perjury, see section 4364.

§ 1652. Powers of trustees hereunder.—Any trustee appointed under the last four articles of this chapter, as therein contemplated, is hereby declared a trustee of the estate of the debtor, in respect to whose property such trustee is appointed for the benefit of creditors, and is invested from the time of appointment with all the powers and authority, and subject to the control, obligations and responsibilities prescribed by law in relation to personal representatives over the estates of deceased persons; but all debts shall be paid by the trustees pro rata. (Rev., s. 1941; Code, s. 2977; R. C., c. 59, ss. 21, 22; 1773, c. 100, ss. 5, 6; 1827, c. 44; 1830, c. 26, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 44.)

§ 1653. Jail bounds.—Any imprisoned debtor may take the benefit of the prison bounds by giving security, as required by law, except as follows:

1. A debtor against whom an issue of fraud is found.

2. Any debtor who for other cause, is adjudged to be imprisoned until he makes a full and fair disclosure or account of his property. (Rev., s. 1942; Code, s. 2966; R. C., c. 59, s. 27; 1818, c. 964; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 25.)

As to regulations regarding prison bounds, see section 1321.

Art. 6. Practice in Insolvency and Certain Other Proceedings

§ 1653(a). Unlawful to solicit claims of creditors in proceedings. — It shall be unlawful for any individual, corporation, or firm or other association of persons, to solicit of any creditor any claim of such creditor in order that such individual, corporation, firm or association may represent such creditor or present or vote such claim, in any bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding, or in any action or proceeding for or growing out of the appointment of a receiver, or in any matter involving an assignment for the benefit of creditors. (1931, c. 208, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—As to unauthorized appearance for creditor in insolvency, etc., proceedings, see § 199(f).

It would seem that as applied to claims and proceedings in bankruptcy (which cover the great majority of claims and proceedings involving insolvent estates) the prohibition is ineffectual and unconstitutional as being an attempt on the part of the State to regulate the prosecution of claims of the United States. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 348.

CHAPTER 29

DESCENTS

§ 1654. Rules of descent. — When any person dies seized of any inheritance, or of any right thereto, or entitled to any interest therein, not having devised the same, it shall descend under the following rules: (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to descent and distribution in general, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 710-769; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 745, 751. As to the right of aliens to take by descent, see section 192.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 276, for suggested revisal of this section.

Editor's Note.—The English canons of descent were brought to this country by the early colonists and were established and prevailed here in the provincial governments. In North Carolina they survived the Revolution and remained in force until 1784. Certain principles found in the English Act, such as the males inheriting before the females, the eldest son only inheriting, and the half blood being excluded from the inheritance, seemed repugnant to the republican principles of the new land and thus the Legislature was led to make the changes which now distinguish this section from the English Act. For a detailed discussion of this subject, see Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82.

For cases dealing with the former provision governing descent to aliens, see Campbell v. Campbell, 58 N. C. 246; Rutherford's Heirs v. Wolfe, 10 N. C. 272.

Definition.—Descent is the devolution of real property to the heir or heirs of one who dies intestate, the transmission by succession or inheritance. See Bonvier's Law Dict., vol. 1, p. 550.

Kinds of Descent.—Descents are of two sorts lineal, as from father to son, or grandfather to son or grandson; and collateral, as from brother to brother, and cousin to cousin, etc. See Levy v. McCarter, 6 Pet. 102, 8 L. Ed. 34.

A descent may be said to be mediate or immediate, in regard to mediate or immediate descent of the estate or right; or it may be said to be mediate or immediate, in regard to the mediateness or immediateness of the pedigree or degree of consanguinity. Id.

Descent Regulated by Statute.—Descents in this State are regulated, not by the common law, but by statutes. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 340, 93 S. E. 845. And thus are regulated entirely by the Legislature. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19.

By virtue of this section an heir takes only the undevised inheritance of which the ancestor was seized at the time of his death. Gosney v. McCullers, 202 N. C. 326, 327, 162 S. E. 746.

Title Vests Immediately.—Upon the death of an intestate ancestor, the title to his estate descends and vests at once in his heirs; it cannot stand in abeyance and vest in the future like an executory devise. Harris v. Russell, 124 N. C. 547, 32 S. E. 958.

"Lawful Heirs" as Used In Will.—The expression "lawful heirs" in a will, applied to describe those who are to take a bequest of personalty, means such as take that sort of property in cases of intestacy. Nelson v. Blue, 63 N. C. 659. As to wills, see chapter 81.

Rule 1, Lineal descent. Every inheritance shall lineally descend forever to the issue of the person who died last seized, entitled or having any interest therein, but shall not lineally ascend, except as hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 1.)

As to seizin, see notes under rule 12.

Actual or Legal Seizin Unnecessary.—By the terms of this paragraph and paragraph 12, neither actual nor legal seizin is necessary to make the stock in the devolution of estates. Sears v. McBride, 70 N. C. 152; Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 267, 46 S. E. 503.

Descent of Remainders.—Where a remainderman dies before the life tenant, upon the death of the life tenant the remainder descends to the heirs at law of the original remainderman. Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 46 S. E. 503. Distinguishing Lawrence v. Pitt, 46 N. C. 344 and King v. Scoggin, 92 N. C. 99, which cases were decided under the former provisions.

Rule 2, Females inherit with males, younger with older children; advancements. Females shall inherit equally with males, and younger with older children: Provided, that when a parent dies intestate, having in his or her lifetime settled upon or advanced to any of his or her children any real or personal estate, such child so advanced in real estate shall be utterly excluded from any share in the real estate descended from such parent, except so much thereof as will, when added to the real estate advanced, make the share of him who is advanced equal to the share of those who may not have been advanced, or not equally advanced. And any child so advanced in personal estate shall be utterly excluded from any share in the personal estate of which the parent died possessed, except so much thereof as will, when added to the personal estate advanced, make the share of him who is advanced equal to the share of those who may not have been advanced, or not equally advanced. And in case any one of the children has been advanced in real estate of greater value than an equal share thereof which may come to the other children, he or his legal representatives shall be charged in the distribution of the personal estate of such deceased parent with the excess in value of such real estate so advanced as aforesaid, over and above an equal share as aforesaid. And in case any of the children has been advanced in personal estate of greater value than an equal share thereof which shall come to the other children, he or his legal representatives shall be charged in the division of the real estate, if there be any, with the excess in value, which he may have received as aforesaid, over and above an equal distributive share of the personal estate. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, s. 1, Rule 2; 1784, c. 204, s. 2, 1808, c. 739; 1844, c. 51, ss. 1, 2.)

Cross References.—As to advancements generally, see annotations under section 138. As to inventory of property by children advanced, see section 139. As to the right of adopted children to inherit, see section 185.

Priority Abolished.—This rule abolishes the priority of the male over the female line, and places them upon a perfect equality, both as to collateral and lineal descents. Bell v. Dozier, 12 N. C. 333, 334.

Provides for Equality.—This section was never intended to interfere in any case where the parent himself had by his will produced an inequality by giving to one of his children either land or chattels and not to the others. But where he dies totally intestate as to all his property of every kind, then the act provides for an equality, as near as it can, by directing that such of the children as have been advanced by the intestate in his lifetime, in either realty or personalty, shall account for the advancement in the division of both. Jerkins v. Mitchell, 57 N. C. 207, 212.

Owner's Wishes Respected.—This section contains nothing to exclude the intent and circumstances of the case, but leaves in force the ancient principle that the owner of property may dispose of it according to his own desire. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 46, 458, 26 S. E. 38; Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 258, 75 S. E. 1010.

Where the deceased leaves a will disposing of his estate the doctrine of advancements to his child or children has no application. Prevette v. Prevette, 203 N. C. 89, 164 S. E. 623.

Advancements Regulated Early by Statute. — The doctrine of advancements was the subject of statutory enactments in England as early as the reign of Charles II (22 and 23 Car. II., 1682-83). Nobles v. Davenport, 183 N. C. 207, 209, 111 S. E. 180.

Definitions of Advancement.—An advancement is said to be an irrevocable gift in presenti of money or of property, real or personal, to a child by a parent, to enable the donee to anticipate his inheritance or succession to the extent of the gift. 14 Cyc., 162. Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 257, 75 S. E. 1010; Noble v. Davenport, 183 N. C. 207, 111 S. E. 180. For further definition of advancement, see Hollister v. Attmore, 58 N. C. 373; Meadows v. Meadows, 33 N. C. 148; Southern Distributing Co. v. Carraway, 189 N. C. 420, 127 S. E. 427.

An advancement is a gift in praesenti by a parent to a child for the purpose of advancing the latter in life, and thus for the child to anticipate the inheritance to the extent of the advancement. Paschal v. Paschal, 197 N. C. 40, 147 S. E. 680.

Where a son insures his life for the benefit of his mother in case she survives him, and otherwise to his estate, and some of the premiums on the policy are paid by the insured and some by the mother, upon the prior death of the mother her administrator may not recover from the son the premiums paid by the mother on the theory that they were advancements to him to be accounted for, the arrangement appearing to be their joint enterprise. Paschal v. Paschal, 197 N. C. 40, 147 S. E. 680.

Same—Small Presents Not Included.—An advancement is a gift of money or property for the preferment and settling of a child in life, and not such as are mere presents of small value or such as are required for the maintenance or education of the child. The latter are the natural duties of the parent which he is required to perform. Meadows v. Meadows, 33 N. C. 148; Bradsher v. Cannady, 76 N. C. 445; Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 25 S. E. 38.

Applies Only in Case of Total Intestacy.—Under the English statute of distributions, as well as under our act on that subject, it has always been held that no advancements were to be accounted for except in cases of total intestacy. Brown v. Brown, 37 N. C. 309; Jenkins v. Mitchell, 57 N. C. 207, 210.

Hence advancements in land by a father are not to be brought into hotchpot and accounted for in the division among his children of his real estate, unless the father dies totally intestate. Jenkins v. Mitchell, 57 N. C. 207.

Presumption and Burden of Proof.—The doctrine of advancements is based on the idea that parents are presumed to intend, in the absence of a will, an equality of division among their children; hence a gift of property or money is prima facie an advancement, that is, property transferred or money paid in anticipation of a distribution of his estate. Ex parte, Griffin, 142 N. C. 116, 54 S. E. 1007; James v. James, 76 N. C. 331; Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 258, 75 S. E. 1010; Noble v. Davenport, 183 N. C. 207, 111 S. E. 180.

Same—Nominal Consideration.—If land is conveyed by a deed reciting a nominal consideration or natural affection an advancement is presumed, and the burden of proof is then on the grantee or donee to show that an advancement was not intended. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 459, 26 S. E. 38.

Same—Valuable Consideration.—But when the deed recites a valuable and substantial consideration, especially when it is near the full value of the land or other property, the burden then to prove it an advancement is upon the person claiming it to be such. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 156, 459, 26 S. E. 38.

Same—Intention of Parent Governs.—Making proper allowance for the burden of proof, as fixed by the presumption arising out of the nature or circumstances of the gift, the question of whether there was a clear gift, a loan, or an advancement, is to be settled by ascertaining what was the intention of the parent. Melvin v. Bullard, 82 N. C. 34, 40; Harper v. Harper, 92 N. C. 300; Kiger v. Teery, 119 N. C. 456; Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 258, 75 S. E. 1010.

Same — Parol Evidence. — And in the determination of whether a loan, a gift or an advancement was intended parol evidence is admissible. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 458, 26 S. E. 38.

Value Determined.—Ordinarily the value of an advancement is to be determined as of the date of its making, and on an accounting no interest is to be charged against an advancement prior to the death of the testator or intestate, or the time fixed for division, where by will it is extended beyond the death of the parent or testator. Southern Distributing Co. v. Carraway, 189 N. C. 420, 127 S. E. 427. See also, Stallings v. Stallings, 16 N. C. 298, 301; Lamb v. Carroll, 28 N. C. 4.

Where an intestate had put slaves into the possession of his child, and afterwards made a deed of gift of them, the advancement must take effect and be estimated as of the date of the deed and not of the commencement of the possession. Shiver v. Brock, 55 N. C. 137; Ward v. Riddick, 57 N. C. 22.

Examples of Advancement.—Property put into the possession of a child on his setting out in life, suitable to housekeeping and family purposes, is not to be considered as a present but as an advancement. Shiver v. Brock, 55 N. C. 137.

Under this paragraph an estate, pur autre vie, given to a child by an intestate father, is subject to be brought into hotchpot as an advancement in the division of other lands. Dixon v. Coward, 57 N. C. 354.

One-half an estate in land given by an intestate by deed to his daughter and her husband is subject to be brought into hotchpot. Dixon v. Coward, 57 N. C. 354.

Application to Grandchildren.—Grandchildren are bound to bring in the gift to their parents, but not those to themselves. This rule being restricted to gifts from a parent to a child, and not including donations to grandchildren. Headen v. Headen, 42 N. C. 159, 161. See Shiven v. Brock, 55 N. C. 137.

Rule 3, Lineal descendant represents ancestor. The lineal descendants of any person deceased shall represent their ancestor, and stand in the same place as the person himself would have done had he been living. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 3; 1808, c. 739.)

As to the distribution of estates, see section 137 and annotations.

A Copy of English Canon.—This section is an almost verbatim copy of the English canon and should receive the same constructions which have been given to that rule. Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82, 91.

Right of Representation Indefinite.—In rules of the descent of real estate, the right of representation is indefinite, as well among collateral as lineal kindred. Johnston v. Chesson, 59 N. C. 146, 147.

Realty Descends Per Stirpes.—In the descent of real estate, the next collateral relations of the person last seized, who are of equal degree, take per stirpes, and not per capita. Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82; Haynes v. Johnson, 58 N. C. 124; Crump v. Fawcett, 70 N. C. 345.

Personalty Distributed Per Capita.—Where a fund consists solely of personalty, and the claimants at the time of the intestate's death were and are now all in equal degree, the next of kin of the intestate, section 137 requires that the fund shall be distributed per capita. Ellis v. Harrison, 140 N. C. 444, 53 S. E. 299.

Heirs of Trustee Take Nothing.—Where a trustee, in accordance with a provision of the trust, passes his bare legal title to another, there was nothing to descend to his heirs at his death. Fleming v. Barden, 126 N. C. 450, 36 S. E. 17.

Rule 4, Collateral descent of estate derived from ancestor. On failure of lineal descendants, and where the inheritance has been transmitted by descent from an ancestor, or has been derived by gift, devise or settlement from an ancestor, to whom the person thus advanced would, in the event of such ancestor's death, have been the heir or one of the heirs, the inheritance shall descend to the next collateral relations, capable of inheriting, of the person last seized, who were of the blood of such ancestor, subject to the two preceding rules. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 4; 1808, c. 739.)

Editor's Note.—Under rule 5, purchased estates—in the popular sense of the term purchase—descend to the nearest relations of the propositus whether of the paternal or maternal line. While under this rule descended estates and certain excepted purchased estates descend to the nearest relations of the propositus, who were of the blood of the ancestors from whom the estate moved. The purchased estates excepted, including those derived by gift, devise or settlement, are those where the purchaser would have been an heir in case of the ancestor's death, that is, these excepted purchasers are put on the same footing with a descent. The question whether the purchaser or donee would have been an heir is determined as of the time of the purchase. And thus where a purchaser at the time of the purchase would not have been an heir had the ancestor died, rule 5 applies and collateral relations of both paternal and maternal lines inherit, even though a subsequent act of the Legislature made such purchaser an heir. See Burgwyn v. Devereux, 23 N. C. 583.

This fourth rule has for its principal object the securing to the family of the man, by whose industry the property was acquired, the enjoyment of such property in preference to those who have no consanguinity with him. Poisson v. Pettaway, 159 N. C. 650, 652, 75 S. E. 930; Wilkerson v. Bracken, 24 N. C. 315.

In General.—When an estate goes to a person through a series of descents or settlements, and that person dies without issue, it results back to those of his collateral relations who would be heirs of the ancestor from whom it originally descended, or by whom it was originally settled. Wilkerson v. Bracken, 24 N. C. 315; Poisson v. Pettaway, 159 N. C. 650, 632, 75 S. E. 930.

Construed with Rule 6.—This rule and rule 6 are in pari materia and should be construed together, and it was clearly intended that they should be. Paul v. Carter, 153 N. C. 26, 27, 68 S. E. 905.

Under Rules 4, 5 and 6 of this section a grandson of the devisor of lands does not take lands by descent from him when his father is living at the time of his grandfather's death, even though he takes the same lands and interest under the devise that he would have taken under the descent had his father not been living, and he acquires a new estate by purchase, descendible to his heirs at law under the cannons of descent. Peel v. Corey, 196 N. C. 79, 144 S. E. 559.

Applies When There Is no Will.—This rule is confined to cases where there is no other disposition of the land by the will which would interfere with the prescribed course of descent. Kirkman v. Smith, 174 N. C. 603, 606, 94 S. E. 423.

Blood of Ancestor Necessary.—In order for a collateral relation of the half blood to inherit under this paragraph, he must be of the blood of the purchasing ancestor from whom the lands descend. Poisson v. Pettaway, 159 N. C. 650, 75 S. E. 930; Little v. Buie, 58 N. C. 10; McMichal v. Moore, 56 N. C. 471; Noble v. Williams, 167 N. C. 112, 83 S. E. 180.

Collateral Relations Take Per Stirpes.—When lands descend to collateral relations under this section the collateral relations of equal degree take per stirpes and not per capita. Cromartie v. Kemp, 66 N. C. 382; Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82; Haynes v. Johnson, 58 N. C. 124.

Where Contingency Happens.—Under a deed of gift of lands from a father to his son with contingent limitation over to the issue of another son, in the event the former should die without issue, the limitation over is not to the heirs general, but to the children who take on the happening of the contingency which would divest the title of the first taker, and where this contingency has happened and the estate goes over to the contingent remainderman, the latter takes from the grantor under the deed. Stevens v. Wooten, 190 N. C. 378, 130 S. E. 13.

Failure of Contingency.—Where lands were devised to be sold upon the happening of a certain event which failed to happen, it was held that the land was never converted into personalty but remained realty and belonged to the heirs at law of the blood of the testator. Elliott v. Loftin, 160 N. C. 361, 76 S. E. 236.

Examples. — Where a person died intestate and without lineal descendants, the real estate inherited by him from his father descended to his brother, who was his next collateral relation capable of inheriting of the blood of his father. Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 181, 12 S. E. 906, 907.

Where land was devised to a grandson by his paternal grandfather, and the devisee died in the lifetime of his father, it was held that, the devisee not being an heir or one of the heirs of the devisor, the estate passed to his uncles and aunts on the mother's side as well as those on the side of the father. Osborne v. Widenhouse, 56 N. C. 238.

Rule 5, Collateral descent of estate not derived from ancestor. On failure of lineal descendants, and where the inheritance has not been transmitted by descent or derived as aforesaid from an ancestor, or where, if so transmitted or derived, the blood of such ancestor is extinct, the inheritance shall descend to the next collateral relation, capable of inheriting, of the person last seized, whether of the paternal or maternal line, subject to the second and third rules. Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 5; 1808, c. 739.

See editor's note under the preceding rule.

Descended Estate.—Where an estate has been transmitted by descent, and the blood of the acquiring ancestor has become extinct, upon the death of the person last seized intestate and without issue, the estate descends to the nearest collateral relations. University v. Brown, 23 N. C. 387.

Necessary Qualification.—In the descent of acquired estates the only qualifications necessary to a collateral is that he be the nearest relation of the person last seized. Bell v. Dozier, 12 N. C. 333.

Illegitimate Children.—A devise of lands by the testator to his wife for life and at her death to his and her heirs carries the title to the land upon the death of the wife to her illegitimate children as her heirs to the exclusion of his illegitimate child. Battle v. Shore, 197 N. C. 449, 149 S. E. 590.

Illegitimate Not Included.—An illegitimate child is not a collateral relation of, and capable of inheriting from, a legitimate child of the same mother, under this section. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181, 182.

Whether of Whole or Half Blood.—Where a son acquires land by deed from his father and pays a valuable consideration therefor, and dies without lineal descendants prior to his father's death intestate, the land descends to the collateral relations of the son whether of the whole or half-blood, and the inheritance is not limited to the collateral relations of the son who are also of the blood of the father, the grantor. Ex parte Barefoot, 201 N. C. 393, 394, 160 S. E. 365.

Rule 6, Half blood inherits with whole; parents from child. Collateral relations of the half blood shall inherit equally with those of the whole blood, and the degrees of relationship shall be computed according to the rules which prevail in descents at common law: Provided that in cases where the person last seized leaves no issue capable of inheriting, nor brother, nor sister, nor issue of such, the inheritance shall vest in the father, and mother, as tenants in common if both are living, and if only one of them is living, then in such survivor. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule, 6; 1808, c. 739; 1915, c. 9, s. 1.)

In General.—The court, in McMichal v. Moore, 56 N. C. 471, said: "This general provision in favor of the father and mother expressly departs from the principle of keeping the inheritance in the blood of the first purchaser, which, for feudal reasons was strictly adhered to by the common law, and which is retained in our statutes in regard to collateral relations, except for the purpose of preventing an escheat. The parents are by the statute looked upon as lineal relations in the ascending line, and in respect to them the common-law principle is put entirely out of the way." Weeks v. Quinn, 135 N. C. 425, 426, 47 S. E. 596.

Construed with Rule 4.—This rule and rule 4 are in pari materia, and should be construed together and harmonized; and thus construed, the collateral relations of the half blood inherit equally with those of the whole blood, under the provisions of this rule, where, under the requirements of canon 4, they are of the blood of the ancestor from whom the estate was derived. Paul v. Carter, 153 N. C. 26, 68 S. E. 905; Noble v. Williams, 167 N. C. 112, 83 S. E. 180.

Personal Property.—Under this rule, claimants of the half blood are entitled to share equally with claimants of the whole blood in the distribution of personal property. In re Skinner's Estate, 173 N. C. 706, 707, 100 S. E. 882.

When Blood of Ancestor Immaterial.—The surviving father or mother of one seized of land, who dies without leaving issue capable of inheriting, or brothers, or sisters, or the issue of such, will take the inheritance under the proviso in the 6th rule without regard to the question whether such parent is of the blood of the purchasing ancestor. McMichal v. Moore, 56 N. C. 471.

Natural Parent Prevails.—Where a child by adoption dies seized of realty, without leaving a brother or sister, and the property is claimed by both the adopted and natural father, this section confers it upon the latter. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19.

Proviso Conditional.—The word "if" as used in the proviso to this rule is one of condition, and the estate will not vest if it is not complied with, it being, in this case, a condition precedent. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 342, 93 S. E. 845.

Thus the fact that the mother was living at the death of her child is made a condition precedent to the vesting of the estate, and the claimant cannot recover should the propositus have outlived the mother. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 93 S. E. 845.

Widow's Heirs Inherit.—Where one is survived by his daughter and widow, and the daughter inherits an estate from him and dies before the widow, the heirs of the widow, and not those of the husband, inherit the estate, and it is immaterial whether the daughter or widow were in possession. Weeks v. Quinn, 135 N. C. 425, 47 S. E. 596.

Effect of Amendment of 1915.—Upon the death of a minor child who takes an estate in remainder as a new propositus after the death of his mother, under his grandfather's will, without a brother or sister or issue of such, the inheritance is cast, under this rule of the canons of descent before the amendment of 1915, upon the father if living, the amendment having the effect of making the father and mother tenants in common, with the right of survivorship. Semble, under the amendment the devise of these lands of the wife vests her interest in the husband. Allen v. Parker, 187 N. C. 376, 121 S. E. 665.

Rule 7, Unborn infant may be heir. No inheritance shall descend to any person, as heir of the person last seized, unless such person shall be in life at the death of the person last seized, or shall be born within ten lunar months after the death of the person last seized. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 7; 1823, c. 1210.)

When Rule Applies.—This rule applies only where the person last seized has died since the passage of the rule. Rutherford v. Green, 37 N. C. 121.

Inheritance Vests Immediately.—Upon the death of the father seized of lands, his wife then being enciente, the inheritance will immediately vest in the child en ventre sa mere. Deal v. Sexton, 144 N. C. 157, 56 S. E. 691.

Child Born after Ten Months.—An estate is not divested out of one upon whom it has devolved by the birth of a child, more than ten lunar months after the death of the propositus. Britton v. Miller, 63 N. C. 268.

Rule 8, Widow or husband may take as heir. When any person dies intestate leaving none who can claim as heir to such deceased person, but leaving surviving a widow or husband, such widow or husband shall be deemed his heir, and as such shall inherit his estate. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 8; 1801, c. 575, s. 1; 1925, c. 7.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to the amendment of this rule by ch. 7, Pub. Laws 1925, it was provided that a widow should be deemed an heir of her husband when he died leaving none other who could claim as an heir. The amendment makes the rule mutual between husband and wife.

The word "intestate" is inserted in the first line. Construing the original rule before this word was added the Supreme Court held that the rule could only apply to property not devised by the husband. Hence, if the husband's will gave a life estate to the widow, with remainder over to his "legal heirs," and the widow failed to dissent to the will, the rule would not apply. Therefore, in such case, if the husband had no legal heirs, the property, at the death of the wife, would escheat instead of going to the wife's heirs. See Grantham v. Jinnette, 177 N. C. 229, 98 S. E. 724. The addition of the word intestate seems to codify the Grantham v. Jinnette decision. Undoubtedly such terms will be construed to cover a partial, as well as a total, intestacy. See 4 N. C. Law Rev. 15.

When Rule Applies.—In express terms this paragraph provides that the widow shall be heir only when there is no one else who can claim as heir. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 93 S. E. 845; Powers v. Kite, 83 N. C. 156. Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 374, 130 S. E. 21.

Same—No Will.—This paragraph applies only if there is no will, or a will not disposing of the entire estate. Grantham v. Jinnette, 177 N. C. 229, 232, 98 S. E. 724.

Widow Prevails Over Illegitimate Half-Brother. — Decedent left a wife and no descendants or collateral relatives except an illegitimate half-brother. The wife and not the half-brother is the heir in such case. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181.

Rule 9, Illegitimate children inherit from mother. Every illegitimate child of the mother and the descendants of any such child deceased shall be considered an heir: Provided, however, that where the mother leaves legitimate and illegitimate children such illegitimate child or children shall not be capable of inheriting of such mother any land or interest therein which was conveyed or devised to such mother by the father of the legitimate child or children; but such illegitimate child or descendant shall not be allowed to claim, as representing such mother, any part of the estate of her kindred, either lineal or collateral. (Rev., s. 1556, Rule 9; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 10; 1799, c. 522; 1913, c. 71.)

As to illegitimates, see also next section and notes.

In General.—This rule breaks the connection at the mother in the ascending line when it is necessary to pursue that in order to reach the propositus, and expressly prohibits any direct lineal or collateral descent but that mentioned in the first clause, namely, from the mother herself to the illegitimate child or the descendant of any such child deceased, and the descent provided for in rule 10 as between illegitimates themselves and from them or their issue, as therein specially provided. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

Rule Applies Only in Case of Illegitimates.—This rule provides only for descents from a mother who leaves surviving an illegitimate child or descendants of such child. Such a child is an heir of the mother, without regard to whether she leaves or does not leave a legitimate child. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 88, 126 S. E. 181. See also Paul v. Willoughby, 204 N. C. 595, 598, 169 S. E. 226.

Same—And only to Inheritance from Mother.—This rule applies only to inheritance from the mother and not to the inheritance from a legitimate half-brother. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181.

Estate of Kindred Excluded.—This rule excludes the right to inherit, as the representative of an illegitimate mother, any part of the estate of the latter's kindred, either lineal or collateral. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

Inheritance under Will.—Where a testator by his will gave property to a son and three daughters with a provision that, on the death of either of them intestate, or without heirs of his or her body, his or her share should go over, it was held that the intention was not that it should go over on the death of the mother of an illegitimate child, but that the latter was entitled to his mother's share. Fairly v. Priest, 56 N. C. 383.

Rule 10, Heirs of illegitimate. Illegitimate children shall be considered legitimate as between themselves and their representatives, and their estates shall descend accordingly in the same manner as if they had been born in wedlock. And in case of the death of any such child or his issue, without leaving issue, his estate shall descend to such person as would inherit if all such children had been born in wedlock: Provided, that when any illegitimate child dies without issue, his inheritance shall vest in the mother in the same manner as is provided in rule six of this chapter. Provided, further, that when any illegitimate child dies without issue and his mother shall have predeceased said child and left legitimate children, his inheritance shall vest in the legitimate children of his mother in the same manner as provided in rule six of this chapter, but nothing herein shall be construed to allow such illegitimates to inherit from legitimates of the same mother: Provided, further, that when any illegitimate child dies without any of the foregoing but his mother left brothers and sisters, his inheritance shall vest in said brothers and sisters of his mother, or their legal representatives. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 11; 1935, c. 256.)

Editor's Note.—The 1935 act which added the last two provisos to Rule 10 provided: "That this act shall be in full force and effect from and after its ratification (29th April 1935) and shall apply to all estates which have not been actually distributed prior thereto."

Common Law Provision.—At common law there is no collateral descent to or from a bastard. Flintham v. Holder, 16 N. C. 345, 347.

General Effect of Rule.—There is nothing dubious about the rule, but on the contrary its language is plain, direct, and perfectly intelligible. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 341, 93 S. E. 845.

The construction given to this rule is, that if an illegitimate or natural-born child shall die intestate without leaving any child or children, his or her estate shall descend to and be equally divided among his or her brothers and sisters, born of the body of the same mother, and their representatives, whether legitimate or illegitimate, in the same manner and under the same regulations and restrictions as if they had been born in wedlock. Powers v. Kite, 83 N. C. 156, 157.

The illegitimates mentioned in this rule are those who are the children of the same mother, and they inherit as between themselves and their representatives, as if they were legitimate. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 189, 52 S. E. 584.

Representatives Must Be Legitimate.—This rule was construed in Powers v. Kite, 83 N. C. 156. In considering that construction it will be noted that the words "whether legitimate or illegitimate" follow the words "and their representatives." But in Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 236, 13 S. E. 5, Clark, J., held that while the rule allows illegitimate children to be legitimate as between themselves and their representatives, it contemplates that such representatives shall themselves be legitimate representatives of the illegitimate child. Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 374, 130 S. E. 21.

Bastards Cannot Inherit from Legitimate.—The rule does not apply to descents from a legitimate child, and the law in this State, with respects to such descents, is the same now as it was when the opinion in Flintham v. Holder, 16 N. C. 345, 351, was delivered at December Term, 1829. It was then held to be the law that "bastards can never inherit but from the mother and from each other," thus the law remains. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 88, 126 S. E. 181.

Legitimates May Inherit from Bastards. — Where there are children of the same mother, some born in wedlock and some illegitimate, the former class may inherit from the latter. Flintham v. Holder, 16 N. C. 345. Thus where an illegitimate brother died intestate and without issue, his legitimate brothers and sisters shared in the inheritance. McBryde v. Patterson, 78 N. C. 412.

Law Ignores the Father.—There is no half blood between illegitimates; they are treated as children without a father of any kind. The law takes no notice of him, for they trace only through the mother. Ashe v. Camp Mfg. Co., 154 N. C. 241, 243, 70 S. E. 295.

Must Claim through Brother.—A legitimate, who does not claim directly from a brother or sister, or from the issue or heirs of either, but from an illegitimate first cousin, comes within neither the latter nor the reason of this paragraph. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

As between Surviving Brothers and Widow.—Under this rule where an illegitimate son has married, leaving surviving illegitimate brothers and sisters of the same mother, they may collaterally inherit the estate and the inheritance cannot be cast upon his surviving widow, as his heir. Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 130 S. E. 21.

Rule Applies to Issue of Slaves.—Persons born in slavery, of slave parents, and who were not legitimated by their parents marrying subsequent to the war, have the rights of illegitimates between themselves. Hence, when there are two brothers coming under this description, and one dies leaving no issue or mother, the other brother inherits, and is the next in title. (Tucker v. Bellamy, 98 N. C. 31, 4 S. E. 34, and Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 12 S. E. 906, 907, distinguished). Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 13 S. E. 5.

Rule 11, Estate for life of another, not devised, deemed inheritance. Every estate for the life of another, not devised, shall be deemed an inheritance of the deceased owner within the meaning and operation of this chapter. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 12.)

Rule Differs from Older Statutes.—This section was a departure from the English law as settled by 29 Charles II, which enacts (according to the ancient rule of law) that where there is no special occupant in whom the estate may vest, the tenant per autre vie may devise it by will, or it shall go to the executors or administrators, and be assets in their hands for payment of debts; and the other, that of 14 Geo. II, c. 20, which enacts that the surplus of such estate per autre vie, after payment of debts, shall go in a course of distribution like a chattel interest. Brown v. Brown, 168 N. C. 4, 13, 84 S. E. 25.

Rule 12, Seizin defined. Every person in whom a seizin of the provisions of the chapter, shall be deemed to have been seized, if he may have had any right, title or interest in the inheritance. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 13.)

See also as to seizin under rule 1.

Seizin at Common Law.—At the common law, seizin signified the possession or occupation of the soil by a freeholder, one who has at least a life estate in the land. This seizin was of two kinds—seizin in deed or in fact, which was when the person had the actual seizin or possession or occupation of the land with the intent, as is sometimes said, to claim a freehold interest and seizin in law, which was a bare right to possess or occupy the land or freehold, or, as otherwise defined, a right of immediate possession according to the nature of the estate. Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 264, 46 S. E. 503.

Same—Compared with Seizin under Rule.—The seizin, either in law or in deed, of the common law is not the seizin of the statute. The former requires that there shall be either actual possession or the right of immediate possession, while all that is required under the present section to constitute a sufficient seizin for the creation of a new stock of inheritance or stirpes of descent is that the person from whom the descent is claimed should have had, at the time of the descent cast, some right, title or interest in the inheritance, whether vested in possession or not; for the language of the statute is explicit that a person having any such right, title or interest shall be deemed to have been seized thereof. Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 267, 46 S. E. 503.

Trust for Wife Descends to Her Heirs. — The resulting trust in favor of the wife in lands the title to which has been acquired by her husband by deed is now descendible to her heirs under this rule, though she may not have been in separate possession thereof during her life. Barrett v. Brewer, 153 N. C. 547, 69 S. E. 614, cited and distinguished. Tyndall v. Tyndall, 186 N. C. 272, 119 S. E. 354.

New Propositus Created by Will.—A devise of land to testator's two daughters for life, and at the death of either or both of them, then said land shall go to the child or children of each, the child or children representing the mother in interest, it was held, upon the marriage of one of them, and having issue born alive, the issue so born takes by purchase under the will, and is a new propositus for the purpose of descent. Allen v. Parker, 187 N. C. 376, 121 S. E. 665.

Issue of Contingent Remainderman Inherent.—Under the provisions of rule 1 and this rule, a devise to the daughter of the testator and her issue, upon the death of the testator's son without issue, is such an interest as is descendible to the issue of the daughter when she has died before the happening of the contingency. Hines v. Reynolds, 181 N. C. 343, 107 S. E. 144.

Upon an estate to W. during his life, and at his death to his eldest son, not then in esse, with residuary clause to the testator's children; upon the happening of the contingency of the birth to W. of a son, it was held that the son takes upon his birth a vested interest, not depending upon his living longer than his father, and upon the falling-in of the life estate it descends, under our present canons of descent, to his next of kin, and does not fall within the residuary clause. Carolina Power Co. v. Haywood, 186 N. C. 313, 119 S. E. 500.

Rule 13, Issue of certain colored persons to inherit. The children of colored parents born at any time before the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, of persons living together as man and wife, are declared legitimate children of such parents or either one of them, with all the rights of heirs at law and next of kin, with respect to the estate or estates of any such parents, or either one of them. If such children be dead, their issue shall represent them with all the rights of heirs at law and next of kin provided by this section for their deceased parents or either of them if they had been living; and the provision of this section shall apply to the estates of such children as are now deceased or otherwise. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; 1897, c. 153; 1879, c. 73.)

As to marriages between slaves validated, see section 2497 and notes.

Prior to Statute Children Where Illegitimate.—Prior to the passage of this paragraph children born prior to 1868 of colored parents who lived together as man and wife had only the rights of other illegitimates, and could only inherit from their mother, when there was no legitimate child, and from one another. Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 238, 13 S. E. 5.

Relation to Section 2497.—There is this marked distinction between this section and section 2497, which is important in dealing with the competency of the declarations of a parent. Section 2497 deals with marriage, and it is because the relationship of husband and wife is established that the children born in wedlock are legitimate, while this rule does not validate the cohabitation, but simply confers the right to inherit, and this right is limited to the estates of the parents. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 187, 52 S. E. 584; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854.

All Colored Parents Included.—This rule is a valid law as to descents after its passage, and renders legitimate the children of all colored parents living together as man and wife, born before 1 January, 1868, even the children of a woman of mixed blood, whose mother was a white woman, who lived with a slave as his wife at the time of their birth. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 9 S. E. 492.

Rule Legitimates Children Only as to Inheritance.—Persons born in slavery, of slave parents, and who were not legitimated by their parents marrying subsequent to the war, are not legitimated by this paragraph, except to the extent of inheriting from their parents. Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 13 S. E. 5.

Applies to Estate of Parents Only.—This paragraph conveys the right of inheritance upon the children only as to the estate of their parents, not as to collaterals. Tucker v. Bellamy, 98 N. C. 31, 4 S. E. 34; Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 236, 13 S. E. 5; Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 93 S. E. 854; Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 374, 130 S. E. 21.

Operates Only Prospectively.—This rule operates only prospectively and can not divest any estate theretofore acquired. Tucker v. Bellamy, 98 N. C. 31, 33; Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 12 S. E. 906, 907.

No Rights Conferred on Collaterals.—This paragraph legitimates the children of colored parents, who were born before the first day of January, 1868, and merely extends the children's right of inheritance to the estate of the father, which was before that restricted to the estate of the mother, but it does not transmit any title to the plaintiff, who is claiming the land in dispute as heirs of an illegitimate first cousin. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

Illegitimates Excluded.—Where a man and woman, both slaves, cohabited as husband and wife for several years, but separated prior to emancipation and children were born while this relation existed and after the separation the woman entered into a similar relation with another slave, which continued until after the end of the war, when the parties duly acknowledged and had recorded the fact of cohabitation, the children of the last union were legitimate and inherited the lands of which their father died seized and they also inherited the lands of which their mother died seized, to the exclusion of her children born of the first union. Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 12 S. E. 906, 907.

Two Conditions Essential.—The two essential conditions necessary to give effect to this paragraph are cohabitation existing at the birth of the child, and the paternity of the party from whom the property claimed is derived. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 116, 9 S. E. 492; Woodard v. Blue, 107 N. C. 407, 410, 12 S. E. 453; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854; Spaugh v. Hartman, 150 N. C. 454, 64 S. E. 198.

Cohabitation Is a Presumption Only. — The cohabiting does not alone confer legitimacy, though it furnishes presumptive evidence that the child is the issue of the persons thus living and indicating their relations; but the presumed fact is open to disproof, and to be determined, as other facts, upon the force of the evidence adduced, which may be sufficient to overcome the presumption. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 116 9 S. E. 492.

Cohabitation Must Have Been Exclusive.—In order to come within the provision of this paragraph, legitimatizing the children of colored parents living together as man and wife, etc., and thus giving them the rights of inheritance, an exclusive cohabitation must be shown, as signified by the expression, "living together as man and wife," and not casual sexual intercourse. Spaugh v. Hartman, 150 N. C. 454, 54 S. E. 198.

The cohabitation must be exclusive in the sense that it must show a single, not a polygamous, relation. Branch v. Walker, 102 N. C. 34, 40, 8 S. E. 896; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854.

Same—Effect of Single Act of Infidelity.—It was not intended to require that living together as husband and wife should be "enduring or in strict personal fidelity while it continued," Hall v. Fleming, 174 N. C. 167, 93 S. E. 728; or that a single act of infidelity on the part of the parents should have the effect of destroying the provisions of the statutes, primarily enacted to legitimate the offspring. Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854.

Evidence.—The quasi marriage relation necessary to legitimatize the children of colored parents, under the provision of this paragraph may be shown in evidence by reputation, cohabitation, declarations and conduct, under the same general rule of evidence applicable to establish the fact of marriage. Nelson v. Hunter, 140 N. C. 598, 599, 53 S. E. 439, cited and approved; Spaugh v. Hartman, 150 N. C. 454, 64 S. E. 198.

Same—Rule Less Strict Than Where Legal Marriage.—To repeal the inference of paternity, drawn from the mere fact of cohabitation, the same stringent rules do not prevail as in cases of established legal marriage, when, to bastardize the issue, there must be full, affirmative, repelling proof, such as impotency, nonaccess and the like, or the presumption of legitimacy will stand. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 116, 9 S. E. 492.

CHAPTER 30

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

§ 1655. Jurisdiction.—The superior court shall have jurisdiction of complaints for divorce and alimony, or either. (Rev., s. 1557; Code, s. 1282; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 45.)

On the general question of jurisdiction in divorce, see 1 N. C. L. Rev. 95.

Editor's Note.—Divorces have been granted from the earliest time. In England, at the time our government was founded, the question of divorce was handled entirely by the ecclesiastical courts and there seems to have been no common law action of divorce. Since we have never established ecclesiastical courts in this country, the power has been conferred entirely by statute and is one of the powers which is exclusively reserved to the state governments.

The granting of alimony is based upon the duty of support which the husband owes to the wife.

Definition.—Divorce is the legal separation of man and wife, effected, for cause, by the judgment of a court, and either totally dissolving the marriage relation, or suspending its effects so far as concerns the cohabitation of the parties. Black's Law Dict. p. 382.

Power of Federal Courts to Grant Divorces.—All governments possess inherent power over the dissolution of marriages. Haddock v. Haddock, 201 U. S. 562, 569, 50 L. Ed. 867. See, also, Maynard v. Hill, 125 U. S. 190, 31 L. Ed. 654.

But in the United States the authority rests with the states entirely, and not with the federal government. Id.

The courts of the United States have no jurisdiction upon the subject of divorce, either as an original proceeding in chancery, or an incident of a divorce or separation, except the Supreme Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. De La Roma v. De La Roma, 201 U. S. 303, 308, 50 L. Ed. 765.

Superior Court Has Sole Original Jurisdiction.—The Legislature has conferred the sole original jurisdiction in all applications for divorce upon the superior courts. Williamson v. Williamson, 56 N. C. 446, 448; Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N. C. 179.

Faith and Credit Given to Decree.—No faith and credit should be given to a decree of divorce obtained in a state by service of publication in another state, where neither of the parties reside in the state where the decree is rendered, Bell v. Bell, 181 U. S. 175, 177, 45 L. Ed. 804; Atherton v. Atherton, 181 U. S. 155, 45 L. Ed. 794.

§ 1656. Bond for costs unnecessary.—It shall not be necessary for either party to a proceeding for divorce or alimony to give any undertaking to the other party to secure such costs as such other party may recover. (Rev., s. 1558; Code, s. 1924; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 41.)

Husband Liable for Own Costs.—In actions for divorce the husband, whether successful, or unsuccessful is liable for his own costs, and whether he shall pay the wife's costs is in all cases left to the discretion of the court. Broom v. Broom, 130 N. C. 562, 565, 41 S. E. 673.

§ 1657. Venue.—In all proceedings for divorce, the summons shall be returnable to the court of the county in which either the plaintiff or defendant resides. (Rev., s. 1559; Code, s. 1289; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 40; 1915, c. 229, s. 1.)

Section Not Jurisdictional — Waiver.—The provisions of this section is not jurisdictional and may be waived, and the failure therein must be taken advantage of by motion to remove the cause to the proper venue, and not to dismiss. Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 102 S. E. 270.

Change in Common-Law Rule.—The common-law rule that the wife should bring her action for divorce in the domicile of her husband was changed by this section, as amended by chapter 229, Public Laws 1915, making the summons returnable to the county in which either the plaintiff or defendants reside. Wood v. Wood, 181 N. C. 227, 106 S. E. 753.

Where Wife Resides.—A demurrer to an action for divorce brought by the wife in the county of her own residence, when the husband resides in a different county, on the ground that the summons should have been made returnable to the county of his residence, is bad. Wood v. Wood, 181 N. C. 227, 106 S. E. 753.

Same—Forced Residence.—When the acts and conduct of the husband make the wife's condition so intolerable and burdensome as to compel her to leave home, she may maintain her action in the county wherein she has been forced to reside by the conduct of her husband, under the provisions, sec. 1667, and this section. Rector v. Rector, 186 N. C. 618, 120 S. E. 195.

§ 1658. What marriages may be declared void on application of either party.—The superior court in term time, on application made as by law provided, by either party to a marriage contracted contrary to the prohibitions contained in the chapter entitled Marriage, or declared void by said chapter, may declare such marriage void from the beginning, subject, nevertheless, to the proviso contained in said chapter. (Rev., s. 1560; Code, s. 1283; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 33.)

See generally as to void and voidable marriages, section 2495 and annotations.

Editor's Note.—It should be noted that the word "divorce" is frequently used in referring to a decree of nullity in cases where the parties were never validly married as well as in cases where the decree is granted to dissolve a valid marriage. At common law no divorce a vinculo could be granted except for cause existing previous to the marriage —causes which rendered the marriage a nullity. Thus the word divorce was regularly used in cases where there had never really been a marriage.

In Johnson v. Kincade, 37 N. C. 470, the marriage of the parties was declared a nullity because of the mental incapacity of one of the parties at the time of the marriage. (See section 2495). In that decision the court declared that the "plaintiff ought to be, and is divorced from the defendant." See Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488; Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Procedure Similar to Divorce Action.—An action, under this section, to have a marriage declared void, so far as procedure is concerned, is an action for divorce. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 94, 53 S. E. 623; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 607, 10 S. E. 488.

While not technically actions for divorce they come under that heading, in a general way, in that alimony pendente lite may be allowed. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488.

Affidavit Not Necessary.—Actions for annulment under this section will not be dismissed because of each affidavit prescribed in section 1661. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Marriage Not Void Until So Declared by Court. — The court has jurisdiction to declare a marriage in proper cases void ab initio, but they are not so ipso facto, and must be so declared by a decree of the court, for only in the instances set out in the second proviso to section 2495 can they be treated as void in a collateral proceeding. Watters v. Watters, 168 N. C. 411, 414, 84 S. E. 703; State v. Setzer, 97 N. C. 252, 1 S. E. 558.

Formal Decree When Marriage Originally Void.—Though the marriage of a lunatic is absolutely void, without being so declared, yet the court will formally decree its nullity, as well for the sake of the good order of society as the quiet and relief of the party seeking the relief. Johnson v. Kincade, 37 N. C. 470, cited in notes in 40 L. R. A. 737, 744; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488.

What Marriages Absolutely Void.—The only marriages (under section 2495) which are absolutely void are those between a white person and one of negro or Indian blood (or descent to the third generation, inclusive,) and bigamous marriages. The others need to be "declared void." State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 712, 11 S. E. 517.

Same—Ground of Mental Incapacity.—Where one of the contracting parties to a marriage is mentally incapable in law, at the time, to make the contract, it does not ipso facto render the ceremony void, but it is only voidable until set aside by an appropriate action, which will not be decreed when it appears that the party seeking the relief has not been misled or in any manner deceived at the time and has knowingly continued the relationship for years, resulting in the birth of several children of the marriage, for therein he will be held to have ratified the contract of marriage. Watters v. Watters, 168 N. C. 411, 84 S. E. 703.

Same—Same—How Action Brought.—A suit for nullity of marriage on the ground of insanity may be brought either in the name of the lunatic, by her guardian, or in the name of the guardian, though the former is, for some reasons, the preferable course. Crump v. Morgan, 38 N. C. 91, 40 Am. Dec. 447.

Same—Effect of Twenty Years Ratification.—Where a marriage is entered into by one under the legal age, but is followed by a cohabitation of twenty years, the parties acknowledging each other and being recognized as husband and wife, though such marriage in its inception is invalid, by reasons of such ratification by the parties, it will not be declared void. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517.

Former Void Marriage.—A former marriage, which has been decreed to have been void because induced by duress, was void ab initio, and hence does not afford ground for annulment of a later marriage between one of the parties and a third person, though such decree was rendered after the second marriage. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Subsequent Insanity.—Insanity afterwards afflicting a party to a contract of marriage is not a ground for annulment. Watters v. Watters, 168 N. C. 411, 84 S. E. 703.

Suit by Nonresident.—Under this section the courts of this State have jurisdiction of a suit to annul a marriage performed here, although the plaintiff was a nonresident of this State at the time of the commencement of the suit. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 864.

License Issued upon Fraudulent Representations as to Age—Suit by Parent or Register of Deeds.—Where the register of deeds has been induced by fraudulent representations to issue a license for the marriage of a female between the ages of fourteen and sixteen without conforming with § 2494, as to the written consent of her parent, the marriage is voidable only at the suit of the female, and neither the parent nor the register of deeds may maintain a suit to declare the marriage void, though the latter may at most maintain an action to revoke and cancel the license issued by him before the solemnization of the marriage. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 864.

Effect of Decree.—A decree annulling a marriage is final and conclusive and not open to collateral impeachment, although it may be vacated or set aside for good cause on proper application. Its effect is to make the supposed or pretended marriage as if it had never existed, and hence it restores both parties to their former status and to all rights of property as before the marriage. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 41, 75 S. E. 941, 26 Cyc. 920.

Same—Children Legitimate.—The children of a marriage which is subsequently annuled are made legitimate by section 1663. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Appeal from Judgment.—If either party to an action to annul a marriage contract desires to move to set aside the judgment rendered, it must be done in an adversary proceeding after due notice is served upon the other party, and notice to counsel of record in the original action is not sufficient. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

Same Counsel Cannot Represent Both Parties.—A proceeding to set aside a judgment in an action of annulment will be dismissed where the same counsel jointly make the motion representing both parties to the action. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

§ 1659. Grounds for absolute divorce.—

Marriages may be dissolved and the parties thereto divorced from the bonds of matrimony, on application of the party injured, made as by law provided, in the following cases:

For full treatment of divorce, see 4 Enc. Dig. 826 et seq; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 763 et seq.

Divorce Is Entirely Statutory.—It has always been the policy of this state to regard marriage as indissoluble except for the causes named in the statute. Long v. Long, 77 N. C. 304. See also Alexander v. Alexander, 165 N. C. 45, 80 S. E. 890, citing many cases.

Legislative Control.— Subject to the constitutional restriction that "it may not grant a divorce nor secure alimony in any individual case," the question of divorce is a matter exclusively of legislative cognizance. Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 272, 274, 80 S. E. 178.

When Legislature Will Grant a Divorce.—In some states in the absence of constitutional prohibition, when the object of the marriage relation has been defeated by any cause physical, moral or intellectual, and no jurisdiction is vested in the judicial tribunals to grant a divorce, the legislature itself may put an end to the relation in the interest of the parties as well as of society. Maynard v. Hill, 125 U. S. 190, 205, 31 L. Ed. 654.

Facts Must Be Pleaded and Proved.—Divorces are granted only when the facts constituting a sufficient cause, under a proper construction of the law, are pleaded, proved and found by the jury. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 634, 10 S. E. 707; McQueen v. McQueen, 82 N. C. 471.

Decree a Mensa Not a Bar.—Decree of divorce a mensa does not bar subsequent action for absolute divorce under this section. Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 272, 80 S. E. 178.

Recrimination.—The general principle which governs in a case where one party recriminates is that the recrimination must allege a cause which the law declares sufficient for divorce. House v. House, 131 N. C. 140, 142, 42 S. E. 546.

Condonation.—See notes to the section immediately following. See also 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 439, 440.

1. If the husband or wife commits adultery.

Plaintiff Need Not Set Up His Innocence.—A party seeking divorce is not bound to set forth or prove that he has not himself been guilty of adultery or is not in fault. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 637, 10 S. E. 707; Edwards v. Edwards, 61 N. C. 534; Toms v. Fite, 93 N. C. 274.

Adultery Even after Abandonment Sufficient Cause.— Adultery by the wife committed after her husband had wrongfully abandoned her is ground for divorce. Ellett v. Ellett, 157 N. C. 161, 72 S. E. 861. This case overrules Tew v. Tew, 80 N. C. 316.

Both Parties Guilty.—Where both parties are found guilty of adultery and no condonation is proven, the petition will be dismissed. Horne v. Horne, 72 N. C. 530.

Effect of Plaintiff's Death Pending Trial.—Where the plaintiff in a suit for divorce on the ground of adultery dies pending the trial, after it has been entered upon and before the retirement of the jury, if all issues are found by the jury in favor of the plaintiff, judgment of divorce will be entered as of the first day of the term, while the plaintiff was still alive. Webber v. Webber, 83 N. C. 280.

2. If either party at the time of the marriage was and still is naturally impotent.

Editor's Note.—Since the passage of section 2495 impotency of either of the contracting parties renders the marriage void, and prior to the passage of that section it was a ground for annulment of the marriage. Smith v. Morehead, 59 N. C. 360.

Husband Competent Witness.—The husband is a competent witness to prove the impotency of his wife. Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N. C. 179.

3. If the wife at the time of the marriage is pregnant, and the husband is ignorant of the fact of such pregnancy and is not the father of the child with which the wife was pregnant at the time of the marriage.

Pregnancy Must Result.—Unknown illicit intercourse, even though incestuous, prior to marriage will not authorize a decree for divorce under this section unless pregnancy resulted. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 10 S. E. 707.

False Representations.—Where a man is induced to marry a woman by her false representation that she is pregnant by him, he cannot secure a divorce under this section. Bryant v. Bryant, 171 N. C. 746, 88 S. E. 147.

4. If there has been a separation of husband and wife, whether voluntary or involuntary, provided such involuntary separation is in consequence of a criminal act committed by the defendant prior to such divorce proceedings, and they have lived separate and apart for two successive years, and the plaintiff in the suit for divorce has resided in this state for one year. (Rev., s. 1561; Code, s. 1285; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 35; 1879, c. 132; 1887, c. 100; 1889, c. 442; 1899, c. 29; 1903, c. 490; 1905, c. 499; 1907, c. 89; 1911, c. 117; 1913, c. 165; 1917, cc. 25, 57; 1921, c. 63; 1929, c. 6; 1931, c. 397; 1933, c. 71, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—In the case Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 272, 80 S. E. 178 the court held that this subsection, which was first added to the cause for divorce in 1907, was a new and independent cause and should not be construed in connection with the main part of the section which provides that the suit can only be brought by the injured party. In Sanderson v. Sanderson, 178 N. C. 339, 100 S. E. 590 the court practically overrules this part of the Cooke case, supra, and construes this subsection to mean that one who has caused the separation by his own misconduct cannot later use that separation to obtain a divorce. And this construction was refuted in the recent case of Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 108 S. E. 352.

The five year provision was put in by chapter 63, Public Laws 1921 the original paragraph providing for ten years.

The Act of 1929 inserted the following words in subsection 4 of this section: "Whether voluntary or involuntary, provided such involuntary separation is in consequence of a criminal act committed by defendant prior to such divorce proceedings."

In subsection 4 of this section, the period of required living apart for five successive years was changed to two successive years and the requirement that the plaintiff has resided in the state for five successive years was changed to one year. The changes were effected by Public Laws of 1933, c. 71.

In General.—Referring to this and related sections, 11 N. C. Law Rev., 223, says reading the enactments literally, divorces for separation for two years under this section as amended may be had without waiting an additional six months; divorces under the 1931 act as amended may not. See same for further discussion.

Mutual Consent Unnecessary.—It is not necessary to a divorce under this section that the separation between husband and wife should have been by mutual consent. Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 272, 80 S. E. 178.

The word "separation" as used in matrimonial law is defined in Black's Law Dictionary 1073 as "a cessation of cohabitation of husband and wife by mutual agreement" or in the case of a judicial separation "under decree of court." This statute contemplates the addition of "separation" caused by desertion or abandonment, or other wrongful act of the party sued. It certainly does not intend to give an action to one for driving the other from home or who has voluntarily deserted it for the specified period. Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 108 S. E. 352.

An action can be maintained under this section only by the party injured. Reeves v. Reeves, 203 N. C. 792, 794, 167 S. E. 129.

Imprisonment Does Not Constitute Separation.—A separation by the husband from his wife or the wife from the husband for a period of five years by reason of incarceration in a hospital for the insane or in a prison for the commission of a crime, under sentence of a court, is not sufficient to obtain a divorce a vinculo, under our statute. Sitterson v. Sitterson, 191 N. C. 319, 131 S. E. 641; Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 108 S. E. 352.

Abandonment Not Implied.—In an action for divorce a vinculo brought by the husband against the wife, an allegation in his complaint that the adultery was committed without the husband's procurement and without his knowledge or consent, and that he has not cohabited with her since he discovered her acts of adultery, does not imply his abandonment of her or put that matter at issue. Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N. C. 321, 63 S. E. 97.

Abandonment as Defense Must Be Set up in Answer.—In an action for divorce a vinculo brought by the husband against the wife, the defense of abandonment, if relied on, should be set up in the answer, as it is not required of the plaintiff to plead and prove that he has not abandoned his wife. Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N. C. 321, 63 S. E. 97.

Necessary Residence Must Be Established.—For the granting of a divorce for the separation of husband and wife under the provisions of this section, there must not only be evidence but a determinative issue answered in the affirmative as to the necessary period of residence, and a judgment rendered upon an issue establishing a lesser period of residence in this State by the plaintiff is insufficient, and a judgment signed thereon is improvidently rendered. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 130 S. E. 7.

Allegation of Separation Works Estoppel.—If a wife petitions for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony, and alleges in her petition that she separated herself from her husband she is estopped by this averment, and a verdict, that her husband separated himself from her, will not be regarded by the court, unless, upon a proper issue, circumstances of outrage or violence, justifying such separation, be found by a jury. Wood v. Wood, 27 N. C. 674.

Appeal and Error. — Where a husband appeals from a judgment under this section in favor of his wife and assigns error, only in the court's refusing his motion to nonsuit upon the evidence, on the ground that he was insane for a part of the time, it is necessary that the evidence should appear in the record and not in the assignment merely. Brown v. Brown, 182 N. C. 42, 108 S. E. 380.

Where a judgment has been entered granting a divorce under this section, in the absence of finding of the necessary issue as to the plaintiff's residence, a motion in the cause to correct this error or omission is proper, and where such appears to be the only and unrelated error committed, the case will be remanded for the submission of this issue only. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 130 S. E. 7.

Separation without Fault.—It certainly was not intended that this statute should apply to cases where the separation was without fault on either side. While it is in the power of the Legislature to make the misfortune of either party a ground for divorce it has not done so, and the court cannot by judicial construction extend the grounds of divorce beyond the statute. The misconduct of the parties and not their misfortunes are the causes which will justify a divorce. Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 63, 64, 108 S. E. 352.

Cited in Keys v. Tuten, 199 N. C. 368, 369, 154 S. E. 631; Nelson v. Nelson, 197 N. C. 465, 466, 149 S. E. 585.

5. If any person shall commit the abominable and detestable crime against nature, with mankind, or beast.

It shall not be necessary to set forth in the affidavit filed with the complaint in suits brought under subsection four of this section that the grounds for divorce have existed at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, nor to allege or prove such fact. (1933, c. 71, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the first paragraph of this subsection. The last paragraph was added by Public Laws of 1933, c. 71.

§ 1659(a). Divorce after separation of two years on application of either party.—Marriages may be dissolved and the parties thereto divorced from the bonds of matrimony, on application of either party, if and when there has been a separation of husband and wife, either under deed of separation or otherwise, and they have lived separate and apart for two years, and the plaintiff in the suit for divorce has resided in the state for a period of one year. This section shall be in addition to other acts and not construed as repealing other laws on the subject of divorces. (1931, c. 72; 1933, c. 163.)

Editor's Note.—This section is not made an amendment to § 1659, which gives the right of action to the injured party, but either party may maintain the action without regard to the cause for separation. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 368.

By Public Laws of 1933, c. 163, the time of living apart was changed from five to "two" years, and the required residence of the defendant in the State was changed from five years to "one" year. The 1933 amendment also struck out the provision "and no children having been born to the marriage," formerly appearing in this section.

Either party may secure an absolute divorce under this section even though the applicant is the party who commits the wrong, as granting divorces is exclusively statutory and this is an independent act of the General Assembly. Long v. Long, 206 N. C. 706, 708, 175 S. E. 85.

This section automatically reduces the time from ten to two years, in § 1663; the two are cognate statutes dealing with similar questions and are to be construed in pari materia. Howell v. Howell, 206 N. C. 672, 675, 174 S. E. 921.

Jurisdictional Averments.—In an action for divorce on the ground of two years separation, brought by either party under this section, as amended, it is not required that the jurisdictional affidavit, required by § 1661, contain the averment that the facts set forth in the complaint, as grounds for divorce, have existed to the knowledge of plaintiff at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, the legislative intent to this effect being apparent from the proviso in § 1661, dispensing with the necessity that the cause of action should have existed for six months when the grounds for divorce is separation, the period of separation then being prescribed as five years, which was reduced to two years by this section. Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N. C. 397, 174 S. E. 118.

Allegation and Proof That There Are no Children.—Requisite to an action under this section are both allegation and proof that "no children have been born to the marriage." Reeves v. Reeves, 203 N. C. 792, 794, 167 S. E. 129. This case was decided prior to the change effected by the 1933 amendment.—Ed. Note.

§ 1660. Grounds for divorce from bed and board.—The superior court may grant divorces from bed and board on application of the party injured, made as by law provided, in the following cases:

For effect of divorce a mensa or right to administer, see section 12.

Evidence of Acts Occurring "More than Ten Years Ago."—Where the wife sues the husband for divorce a mensa et thoro, under this section, it is not error to admit on the trial evidence of his misconduct occurring "more than ten years ago" when it is a part of the whole course of his dealings coming down to "within six months of the beginning of the action." Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 346, 347, 83 S. E. 625.

Plaintiff Must Petition for Divorce a Mensa.—A decree of divorce a mensa will not be granted in an action where plaintiff petitioned for absolute divorce. Morris v. Morris, 75 N. C. 168.

Effect of Delay in Bringing Action.—An unreasonable delay by one party, after a probable knowledge of the criminal conduct of the other, will, if unaccounted for, preclude such party from obtaining a decree for a separation from bed and board. Whittington v. Whittington, 19 N. C. 64.

But a delay of seven years in filing a petition is sufficiently accounted for by the allegations that at the happening of the matters relied upon for divorce, the petitioner was a nonresident of the State, and is now a pauper. Schonwald v. Schonwald, 62 N. C. 215.

Condonation.—Evidence merely of forgiveness by the plaintiff, in her action for divorce against her husband a mensa et thoro, is insufficient to establish condonation. Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 346, 347, 83 S. E. 625; Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960.

For condonation is forgiveness upon condition, and the condition is, that the party forgiving will abstain from like offenses afterwards. If the condition is violated, the original offense is revived. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

Repetition of the offence nullifies the previous condonation. Collier v. Collier, 16 N. C. 352; Gordon v. Gordon, 88 N. C. 45; Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 346, 83 S. E. 625.

Grounds Available to Husband as Well as Wife.—The grounds for divorce a mensa given by this section are available to the husband as well as to the wife, or as stated by the express language of the statute to "the injured party." Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N. C. 669, 153 S. E. 163.

Only the party injured is entitled to a divorce from bed and board under this section. Carnes v. Carnes, 204 N. C. 636, 637, 169 S. E. 222.

Cited in Brown v. Brown, 205 N. C. 64, 70, 169 S. E. 818.

1. If either party abandons his or her family.

As to abandonment as ground for a divorce a vinculo, see notes to paragraph 4 of the section immediately preceding.

Acts Constituting Abandonment.—Where husband drives his wife from his house, or obtains her removal by stratagem or withholds from her support while there, he is deemed to have abandoned her. Setzer v. Setzer, 128 N. C. 170, 172, 38 S. E. 731.

To constitute abandonment it is not necessary that the husband should leave the state. Witty v. Barham, 147 N. C. 479, 61 S. E. 372.

2. Maliciously turns the other out of doors.

This Section an Instance of Aba..donment in Sec. 1.—The ground for divorce a mensa given the wife under this section, because of being maliciously turned out of doors by her husband, is but an instance of wrongful abandonment provided by subsection 1, and the basic facts of these two suits are the same. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857.

Adverse Ruling in Previous Action.—A denial of alimony in an independent action under sec. 1667 brought by the wife, on the ground that her husband maliciously turned her out of doors, will conclude her upon her cross-bill setting up the same matter in an action thereafter brought by her husband against her for divorce a vinculo. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857.

3. By cruel or barbarous treatment endangers the life of the other.

Revival of Cause.—Much less cruelty or indignity is sufficient to revive a transaction occurring before the condonation, than to support an original suit for divorce. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

Whipping wife, held cause for divorce in Taylor v. Taylor, 76 N. C. 433. For further examples, see Jackson v. Jackson, 105 N. C. 433, 11 S. E. 173; Griffith v. Griffith, 89 N. C. 113.

False Charges of Adultery.—A persistive charge of adultery against a virtuous woman, accompanied by a contemptuous declaration that she was no longer his wife, and by an abandonment of her bed, is such an indignity to her person as would entitle her to a partial divorce and to alimony. Everton v. Everton, 50 N. C. 202, 210.

Communication of Disease.—The communication of an infectious disease by the husband to the wife is not sufficient ground under this subsection. Long v. Long, 9 N. C. 189.

Acts Committed More Than Ten Years before.—A divorce will not be granted for cruel and barbarous treatment where it appears the acts complained of were committed more than ten years before the commencement of the action, and in the meanwhile the parties had continued to reside together. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887.

Causes within Six Months.—Nor will a divorce be granted under this section for causes arising within six months before the commencement of the action. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887; Green v. Green, 131 N. C. 533, 42 S. E. 954. See section immediately following.

4. Offers such indignities to the person of the other as to render his or her condition intolerable and life burdensome.

This Section Remedial.—It would seem that the Legislature purposely omitted to specify the particular acts of indignity for which divorces may in all cases be obtained. The matter is left at large under general words, thus leaving the courts to deal with each particular case and to determine it upon its own peculiar circumstances, so as to carry into effect the purpose and remedial object of the statute. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 234, 72 S. E. 876; Taylor v. Taylor, 76 N. C. 433, 437.

Facts in Each Case Determined.—The acts of the husband which will render the wife's condition intolerable and her life burdensome so as to entitle her to a divorce a mensa are largely dependant on the facts in each particular case, such as the station in life, temperament, state of health, habits and feelings of the plaintiff. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 72 S. E. 876.

Complaint Must Show Plaintiff's Innocence.—The complaint must aver, and facts must be found upon which it can be seen, that the plaintiff did not by her own conduct contribute to the wrongs and abuses of which she complains. Garsed v. Garsed, 170 N. C. 672, 673, 87 S. E. 45; White v. White, 84 N. C. 340.

Same—General Allegation Insufficient.—It is essential that the plaintiff shall specifically set forth in her complaint the circumstances under which the violence was committed, what her conduct was, and especially what she had done to provoke such conduct on the part of her husband. A general allegation that such conduct was "without cause or provocation on her part" is sufficient. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887; Martin v. Martin, 130 N. C. 27, 40 S. E. 822; Everton v. Everton, 50 N. C. 202, 212.

Examples of Sufficient Cause.—Where a drunken husband cursed his wife and drove her from his house, and by demonstrations of violence caused her to leave the bedside of a dying child, and seek safety and protection at a distance of several miles, this is sufficient cause for divorce under this section. Scoggins v. Scoggins, 85 N. C. 348.

To entitle a wife to a divorce from bed and board under this section, the indignity offered by the husband must be such as may be expected seriously to annoy a woman of ordinary sense and temper, and must be repeated, or continued, so that it may appear to have been done willfully and intentionally or at least consciously by the husband to the annoyance of the wife. Miller v. Miller, 78 N. C. 102.

When in an action by the wife for divorce a mensa there is evidence tending to show that the plaintiff, in her married life, was free from blame and that the defendant's conduct was a long course of neglect, cruelty, humiliation, and insult, repeated and persisted in, it is sufficient to bring the cause within the words of this section, that he had offered "such indignities to her person as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome." Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 230, 72 S. E. 876.

Where a petitioner, alleges that her husband had become jealous of her without cause, had shook his fist in her face and threatened her, and declared to her face and published to the neighborhood that the child with which she was pregnant was not his; that her condition had from such treatment become intolerable and her life burdensome, and that she had been compelled to quit his house and seek the protection of her father, it was held that she had set out enough to entitle her to alimony pendente lite. Erwin v. Erwin, 57 N. C. 82.

A divorce from bed and board will be granted the wife if it is shown that the husband made foul and injurious accusations, and refused to bed with her and denied that she was his wife. Green v. Green, 131 N. C. 533, 42 S. E. 954.

5. Becomes an habitual drunkard. (Rev., s. 1562; Code, s. 1286; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 36.)

§ 1661. Affidavit to be filed with complaint; affidavit of intention to file complaint.—The plaintiff in a complaint seeking either divorce or alimony, or both, shall file with his or her complaint an affidavit that the facts set forth in the complaint are true to the best of affiant's knowledge and belief, and that the said complaint is not made out of levity or by collusion between husband and wife; and if for divorce, not for the mere purpose of being freed and separated from each other, but in sincerity and truth for the causes mentioned in the complaint. The plaintiff shall also set forth in such affidavit, either that the facts set forth in complaint, as grounds for divorce, have existed to his or her knowledge at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, and that complainant has been a resident of the state for one year next preceding the filing of the complaint; or, if the wife be the plaintiff, that the husband is removing, or about to remove, his property and effects from the state, whereby she may be disappointed in her alimony: Provided, however, that if the cause for divorce is five [two] years separation then it shall not be necessary to set forth in the affidavit that the grounds for divorce have existed at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, it being the purpose of the section to permit a divorce after a separation of five [two] years without waiting an additional six months for filing the complaint. If any wife files in the office of the superior court clerk of the county where she resides an affidavit, setting forth the fact that she intends to file a petition or bring an action for divorce against her husband, and that she has not had knowledge of the facts upon which the petition or action will be based for six months, she may reside separate and apart from her husband, and may secure for her own use the wages of her own labor during the time she remains separate and apart from him. If she fails to file her petition or bring her action for divorce within ninety days after the six months have expired since her knowledge of the facts upon which she intends to file her said petition or bring her said action, then she shall not be entitled any longer to the benefit of this section. (Rev., s. 1563; Code, s. 1287; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 46; 1869-70, c. 184; 1907, c. 1008, s. 1; 1925, c. 93; 1933, c. 71, ss. 2, 3.)

Editor's Note.—The requirement that the complainant has been a resident of the state for "two years" was changed to "one year" by Public Laws 1933, c. 71. It would seem that the word "two" appearing in the brackets in the section is correct in view of the changes made in sections 1659 and 1659(a).

Purpose of Section.—The affidavit was intended to prevent bad faith and collusion on the part of the parties to the action, and is an indispensable part of the complaint and application, and, if it is wanting, there is no jurisdiction in the courts. Holloman v. Holloman, 127 N. C. 15, 16, 37 S. E. 68.

Requirements Mandatory.—All the requisites mentioned in the affidavit required by this section are mandatory and a failure to set out these averments in the affidavit prevents the superior court from having jurisdiction. Nichols v. Nichols, 128 N. C. 108, 38 S. E. 296; Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 94, 53 S. E. 623.

General Terms Permitted.—The matters in the jurisdictional affidavit in an action for divorce a mensa brought by the wife may be stated in general terms following the language of the statute. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 72 S. E. 876. Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 285, 91 S. E. 960.

Verification According to Statute.—In an application for alimony pendente lite the affidavit and petition must be verified as required by this section. Clark v. Clark, 133 N. C. 28, 45 S. E. 342. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 132 N. C. 22, 43 S. E. 508. And verification of a pleading that it was "sworn and subscribed to" is not sufficient. Martin v. Martin, 130 N. C. 27, 40 S. E. 822.

Six Months Prior Knowledge.—By chapter 93 Pub. Laws of 1925, this section, was amended so that in cases where the cause for divorce is five years (now two years) separation, then the six months prior knowledge need not be alleged in the affidavit, it being the purpose of sec. 1659, par. 4 to permit a divorce after a separation of five years (now two years) without waiting an additional six months for filing the complaint. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 422, 130 S. E. 7.

In all other cases the affidavit must state that the action was not brought within six months from the time the plaintiff first acquired knowledge of the facts stated therein. Clark v. Clark, 133 N. C. 28, 45 S. E. 342.

And unless so stated the divorce will not be granted. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887; Green v. Green, 131 N. C. 533, 42 S. E. 954.

But this need not be alleged in the complaint. Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N. C. 321, 63 S. E. 97.

As to six months period in case of affidavit showing husband about to remove effects, see post, this note, catchline "Removal of Property of Husband."

The proviso, in this section, eliminating the necessity of waiting six months after the expiration of the requisite period of separation, when the ground for divorce is that of separation, still applies with the reduction in time from five to two years. Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N. C. 397, 398, 174 S. E. 118.

Actual Residence.—The residence means actual residence, and a nonresident wife in suing for divorce cannot avail herself of the maxim that "her domicile is that of her husband" where she has not actually satisfied the residence requirement. Schonwald v. Schonwald, 55 N. C. 367.

Where husband and wife establish a residence in the State, the wife, by leaving the State for a temporary purpose, without any intention of changing her residence, does not thereby lose her citizenship. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943.

It is not required that the two years (now one year) residence in the State of the plaintiff in an action for absolute divorce be alleged in the complaint to confer jurisdiction, but it is sufficient if it is set out in the accompanying affidavit. Williams v. Williams, 180 N. C. 273, 104 S. E. 561.

Removal of Property by Husband.—In an action by the wife for divorce a mensa, when the allegations are necessary that the defendant is about to remove himself and property from the State to jeopardize the plaintiff's right to alimony, it is not presumed that the wife would have personal knowledge of her husband's plans or purpose in this regard, and an averment thereof in positive terms and of her personal knowledge is not required. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 230, 72 S. E. 876. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

Where the necessary affidavit is made under this section, in reference to the husband's removal of his property from the State, it is not necessary, in order to get a decree for such separation, to file another complaint six months after the time the facts (upon which alone the decree could be made) are alleged to have occurred. Scoggins v. Scoggins, 85 N. C. 348; Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 72 S. E. 876.

Supplementary Affidavits.—No order should be made to deprive the defendant of his property unless the facts appear upon which the plaintiff's information and belief are founded, and it is proper and sufficient to show such facts in supplementary or additional affidavits. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 230, 72 S. E. 876.

Amendment to Affidavit.—It is discretionary with the trial judge to allow an amendment to the affidavit in an action for divorce. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943. When allowed the facts shown in the amendment must be verified. Foy v. Foy, 35 N. C. 90.

Proof Must Correspond to Allegations.—As the allegations in a petition for a divorce are directed by statute to be sworn to, it is more emphatically required in such a case than in others that the allegations and proofs should correspond; otherwise the court cannot decree a divorce. Foy v. Foy, 35 N. C. 90.

Action to Annul Marriage.—The affidavit required under this section is not necessary in an action to annul a marriage upon statutory grounds. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 699, 146 S. E. 864.

Cited in Keys v. Tuten, 199 N. C. 368, 369, 154 S. E. 631.

§ 1661(a). Effect of answer of summons by defendant.—In all cases upon an action for a divorce absolute, where the plaintiff had caused to be served upon the defendant in person a legal summons, and such defendant answered such summons, whether by verified complaint or unverified complaint, and where the trial of said action was duly and legally had in all other respects and judgments rendered by a Judge of the Superior Court upon issues answered by a judge and jury, in accordance with law, be and the same are hereby declared to have the same force and effect as any judgment upon an action for divorce otherwise had legally and regularly. (1929, c. 290, s. 1.)

§ 1662. Material facts found by jury; parties cannot testify to adultery.—The material facts in every complaint asking for a divorce shall be deemed to be denied by the defendant, whether the same shall be actually denied by pleading or not, and no judgment shall be given in favor of the plaintiff in any such complaint until such facts have been found by a jury, and on such trial neither the husband nor wife shall be a competent witness to prove the adultery of the other, nor shall the admissions of either party be received as evidence to prove such fact. (Rev., s. 1564; Code, s. 1288; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 47.)

Purpose of Section.—The object of this section was to prevent a judgment from being taken by default, or by collusion, and to require the facts to be found by a jury. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 415, 102 S. E. 737; Moss v. Moss, 24 N. C. 55, 58; Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N. C. 605, 81 S. E. 933.

Presumption of Denial.—The provisions of this section that the allegation of the complaint in an action for divorce "are deemed to be denied," applies only to the trial upon the merits, since the facts must be found by a jury. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

The denial by the statute of the plaintiff's allegations in an action for divorce, presumes, as a matter of law, a meritorious defense, and does not require that this be found by the judge in passing upon a motion to set aside a judgment rendered in an action. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 102 S. E. 737.

Same—Applies to Cross Action.—The defendant in an action for divorce a vinculo, may file a cross action for the same relief, and where no reply has been filed by the plaintiff, and no evidence offered by him, an issue is raised by our statute, and upon a verdict on the required issues, a judgment may be rendered upon the cross action if the pleadings and the evidence are sufficient. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 130 S. E. 7.

Same—Time for Answering Not Affected.—The provision of this section, putting in a denial of the plaintiff's allegations in an action for divorce, does not affect the defendant's right to twenty days after completion of the service of summons by publication, in which to answer or demur, etc. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 102 S. E. 737.

Applies to Cross-Action.—This section is applicable to a defendant who files a cross-action, and prays for divorce therein from the plaintiff. Saunderson v. Saunderson, 195 N. C. 169, 172, 141 S. E. 572; citing Cook v. Cook, 159 N. C. 46, 47, 74 S. E. 639.

Where the wife's cross-action for divorce a mensa is sustained by the verdict of the jury, a judgment rendered must accord therewith, and if entered for a divorce absolute upon consent of the parties, the judgment is a nullity. Saunderson v. Saunderson, 195 N. C. 169, 141 S. E. 572.

Verdict of Jury.—In a proceeding for a divorce the issues submitted and the verdict found should be as specific and certain as the facts alleged in the petition. Wood v. Wood, 27 N. C. 674.

Same—Eleven Jurors.—In an action for divorce, a verdict by eleven jurors, consented to by both parties, is valid if for the defendant, but invalid if for plaintiff. Hall v. Hall, 131 N. C. 185, 42 S. E. 562.

Witnesses in Actions on Ground of Adultery.—The statutory inhibition that the husband and wife will not be permitted to testify for or against each other prevails whether under the circumstances of any particular case it would seemingly appear that there was no collusion or otherwise; and the inhibition extends to any and all admissions or confessions by the other, tending to establish the acts of adultery, either in the pleadings or otherwise. Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N. C. 605, 81 S. E. 933.

It is incompetent for the husband to testify that the wife had a certain contagious venereal disease, of which he had been free, under circumstances tending necessarily to establish her improper relations with other men. Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N. C. 605, 81 S. E. 933.

Instruction Not at Variance with Section.—In an action for absolute divorce a charge in reference to the admissions of counsel that the evidence was sufficient to support an affirmative answer to the issues of marriage, separation and residence is held not equivalent to a directed verdict and not to be at variance with the provisions of this section. Nelson v. Nelson, 197 N. C. 465, 149 S. E. 585.

Evidence.—In an action for divorce on the ground of adultery of the wife, evidence that she offered to pay the cost of a criminal prosecution against her alleged paramour was competent, not in any sense as a confession of her guilt, but was tending to show interest in and association with him, and as corroborating other testimony as to adulterous intercourse between the parties. Toole v. Toole, 112 N. C. 153, 16 S. E. 912.

In Vickers v. Vickers, 188 N. C. 448, 450, 124 S. E. 737, the court said:—"On perusal of the record it appears that the affidavit of the wife, charging adultery on the husband, is submitted as part of her evidence pertinent to the inquiry. As an independent fact, such evidence seems to be absolutely forbidden by the statutes and public policy controlling in the matter."

Declaration—Presence of Third Person.—A declaration made by a husband to his wife in the presence of a third party is not such a confidential communication, as is privileged. Toole v. Toole, 112 N. C. 153, 16 S. E. 912.

Same—Of Alleged Paramour.—The declarations of an alleged paramour, made to or in the presence of a party to a suit for divorce a vinculo matrimonii, tending to show that improper familiarities had been or were about to be indulged in between them, and such party's reply to the declarations is admissible as evidence and does not come within the prohibition of this section. Toole v. Toole, 112 N. C. 153, 16 S. E. 912.

§ 1663. Effects of absolute divorce. — After a judgment of divorce from the bonds of matrimony, all rights arising out of the marriage shall cease and determine, and either party may marry again unless otherwise provided by law: Provided, that no judgment of divorce shall render illegitimate any children in esse, or begotten of the body of the wife during coverture; and, Provided further, that a decree of absolute divorce upon the ground of separation for ten successive years as provided in section 1659 shall not impair or destroy the right of the wife to receive alimony under any judgment or decree of the court rendered before the commencement of the proceeding for absolute divorce. (Rev., s. 1569; Code, s. 1295; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 43; 1919, c. 204.)

As to effect of void marriage upon issue, see notes to sec. 1658.

Time Reduced to Two Years.—Section 1659(a) as amended reduces the time in this section from ten to two years. Howell v. Howell, 206 N. C. 672, 174 S. E. 921.

No Permanent Alimony.—Upon the granting of an absolute divorce all rights arising out of the marriage cease and determine and hence the court has no power in such cases to allow permanent alimony. Duffy v. Duffy, 120 N. C. 346, 27 S. E. 28.

Consent Judgment Not Affected.—Where a consent judgment has been entered, a condition of which is that the wife remain unmarried, the subsequent decreeing of a divorce a vinculo to the wife, will have no effect on the judgment. Lentz v. Lentz, 193 N. C. 742, 138 S. E. 12.

For effect of an absolute divorce on the right to administer, see sec. 10. For effect on property rights, see sec. 2522.

§ 1664. Custody of children in divorce.—After the filing of a complaint in any action for divorce, whether from the bonds of matrimony or from bed and board, both before and after final judgment therein, it is lawful for the judge of the court in which such application is or was pending to make such orders respecting the care, custody, tuition and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage as may be proper, and from time to time to modify or vacate such orders, and may commit their custody and tuition to the father or mother, as may be thought best; or the court may commit the custody and tuition of such infant children, in the first place, to one parent for a limited time, and after the expiration of that time, then to the other parent; and so alternately: Provided, that no order respecting the children shall be made on the application of either party without five days notice to the other party, unless it shall appear that the party having the possession or control of such children has removed or is about to remove the children, or himself, beyond the jurisdiction of the court. (Rev., s. 1570; Code, ss. 1296, 1570; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 46.)

For effect of abandonment, see sec. 189. As to habeas corpus to determine custody of children, see secs. 2241 and 2242 and annotations.

In General.—The superior court, in which a suit for divorce is pending, has exclusive jurisdiction as to the care or custody of the children of the marriage, before and after the decree of divorcement has been entered, by this section, and though by proceedings in habeas corpus under the provisions of sec. 2241, the custody of a child of the marriage may be awarded as between parents each of whom claim it. This applies only when the parents are living in a state of separation, without being divorced, or are suing for a decree of divorcement, and where the decree of divorcement has been granted without awarding the custody of minor children of the marriage, the exclusive remedy is by motion in that cause. Quere, whether the statute relating to the juvenile courts, secs. 5039 et seq. confer jurisdiction in such instances. In re Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 114 S. E. 294.

Court May Disregard Agreement between Husband and Wife Regarding Custody of Child.—A deed of separation between husband and wife containing an agreement for the custody of their minor child does not preclude the court, upon granting a decree for absolute divorce in a suit brought subsequent to the deed of separation, from awarding the custody of the child in accordance with this section. In re Albertson, 205 N. C. 742, 172 S. E. 411.

Father Primarily Liable for Support.—The liability of the father primarily to support the children remains after the divorce, as well as before such divorce, and even where the custody of the children has been awarded to the mother. Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 319, 83 S. E. 490. And the order may be made a lien on his land. Ibid. Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N. C. 474, 37 S. E. 502.

Consent Judgments.—Where consent judgment in a suit a mensa et thoro has been entered in the action, without providing for the children, upon motion in the original cause the court has power to make such further orders as it deems proper requiring the father to provide for the support of his children, whether born before or after the rendition of the consent judgment. Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 317, 83 S. E. 489.

Same—Award of Custody Does Not Affect.—Where consent judgment in an action for a divorce a mensa operates as a gift to the wife of an estate in the husband's land, the fact that the court awards custody of the children does not affect it. Morris v. Patterson, 180 N. C. 484, 105 S. E. 25.

Without the consent of the parties to vacate or moderate a properly entered consent judgment, the court is without power to do so. Lentz v. Lentz, 193 N. C. 742, 138 S. E. 12.

Consent Judgment on Issue of Divorce Does Not Divest Jurisdiction as to Custody of Child.—Upon the institution of an action for divorce from bed and board the court acquires jurisdiction of the minor children of the parties which is not divested by a consent judgment on the issue of divorce entered in the cause with approval of the court, especially where such consent judgment expressly provides that either party might thereafter make a motion in the cause for the custody of the children, the court having the power in an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, before or after final judgment, to enter orders respecting the care and custody of the children under this section. Tyner v. Tyner, 206 N. C. 776, 175 S. E. 144.

Judgment out of Term.—Where an absolute divorce has been decreed in an action and a motion is made respecting the custody of a minor child, and the parties agree that the judge should render judgment on the motion out of term and outside the county of trial, the judgment rendered under the terms of the agreement is valid, the judge having authority under this section to render such judgment. Pate v. Pate, 201 N. C. 402, 160 S. E. 450.

Modification of Decree.—Where, in a decree of divorce the father is ordered to pay a certain sum monthly for the support of his infant daughter, and by its first order the court has retained the cause subject to the right of either party at any time to apply for a modification of the order, and pursuant to this provision the court later, upon the father's insolvency, made the sums assessed a charge on the plaintiff's homestead and personal property exemptions when allotted, the modification is authorized by this section as well as by the order of the courts. Walker v. Walker, 204 N. C. 210, 212, 167 S. E. 818.

Appeals by Both Wife and Children.—Upon appeals by the wife and children in separate actions, the appeal of the children will be considered as improvidently taken if the relief sought is identical with that afforded under the judgment obtained in the action of the mother. Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 317, 83 S. E. 489.

§ 1665. Alimony on divorce from bed and board. —When any court adjudges any two married persons divorced from bed and board, it may also decree to the party upon whose application such judgment was rendered such alimony as the circumstances of the several parties may render necessary; which, however, shall not in any case exceed the one-third part of the net annual income from the estate, occupation or labor of the party against whom the judgment shall be rendered. (Rev., s. 1565; Code, s. 1290; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 37.)

Alimony Defined.—See Rogers v. Vines, 28 N. C. 293, 294; Taylor v. Taylor, 93 N. C. 418.

Nature of Alimony.—A decree awarding alimony to the wife or children, or both, is not a debt which has been put in the form of a judgment, but is rather a legal means of enforcing the obligation of the husband and father to support and maintain his wife and children. Witmore v. Markol, 196 U. S. 68, 74, 49 L. Ed. 390.

But alimony decreed to a wife in a divorce of separation from bed and board is as much a debt of record, until the decree has been recalled, as any other judgment for money. Barber v. Barber, 21 How. 582, 595, 16 L. Ed. 226.

Not Permanent.—Alimony is in its nature a provision for a wife separated from her husband, and it cannot continue after reconciliation or the death of either party. Rogers v. Vines, 28 N. C. 293, 297.

Effect of Decree upon Defendant's Property.—The order of a court for alimony operates in personam, by compelling the defendant to pay the alimony or to convey the property accordingly, and does not of itself transfer any title in real estate unless allowed that effect by the law of the place in which the real estate is situated. Barrett v. Failing, 111 U. S. 523, 525, 28 L. Ed. 505.

One-Third of Husband's Estate.—Decree of divorce à mensa may assign one-third of husband's estate to the wife. Davis v. Davis, 68 N. C. 180.

Effect of Wife's Abandonment.—The voluntary abandonment by the wife of her husband without legal justification will not entitle her to alimony in her suit for divorce from bed and board. McManus v. McManus, 191 N. C. 740, 133 S. E. 9.

Appeal.—Whether the wife is entitled to alimony is a question of law upon the facts found and is reviewable upon the appeal by either party. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943.

§ 1666. Alimony pendente lite; notice to husband.—If any married woman applies to a court for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony, or from bed and board, with her husband, and sets forth in her complaint such facts, which upon application for alimony shall be found by the judge to be true and to entitle her to the relief demanded in the complaint, and it appears to the judge of such court, either in or out of term, by the affidavit of the complainant, or other proof, that she has not sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution of the suit, and to defray the necessary and proper expenses thereof, the judge may order the husband to pay her such alimony during the pendency of the suit as appears to him just and proper, having regard to the circumstances of the parties; and such order may be modified or vacated at any time, on the application of either party or of any one interested: Provided, that no order allowing alimony pendente lite shall be made unless the husband shall have had five days notice thereof, and in all cases of application for alimony pendente lite under this or the succeeding section, whether in or out of term, it shall be admissible for the husband to be heard by affidavit in reply or answer to the allegations of the complaint: Provided further, that if the husband has abandoned his wife and left the state or is in parts unknown, or is about to remove or dispose of his property for the purpose of defeating the claim of his wife, no notice is necessary. (Rev., s. 1566; Code, s. 1291; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 38; 1883, c. 67.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—It was formerly held that alimony pendente lite could not be awarded in the absence of a statute conferring this power. Wilson v. Wilson, 19 N. C. 377; Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N. C. 348. In 1852 the Legislature passed an act authorizing the courts upon a petition for divorce and alimony, to decree the petitioner a sum sufficient for her support during the pendency of the suit. See Everton v. Everton, 50 N. C. 202, 206. In the recent case of Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857, the court overrules the former doctrine mentioned supra, and states that the courts possessed the right to grant alimony pendente lite by virtue of the comon law—the practice having come down from the English Ecclesiastical Courts.

This holding has an important bearing on the construction of this statute, making it remedial in its nature, affirmative in its terms and cumulative in its effect and not abrogating the common law existent on the subject nor withdrawing from the court any powers already possessed by them in administering its principles. Medlin v. Medlin, supra, overruling Reeves v. Reeves, supra on this point.

Purpose of the Section.—The purpose of this section is to afford the wife present pecuniary relief pending the progress of the action and to afford the husband some measure of protection in a motion so important, which is made and to be determined before the merits of the controversy are ascertained and the rights of the parties settled regularly by final judgment. Morris v. Morris, 89 N. C. 109, 111.

Alimony When the Wife Is Defendant.—When the wife is the defendant she has a right to claim alimony pendente lite under this section. Webber v. Webber, 79 N. C. 572; Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

And this is true although she may be concluded by the judgment against her in her former and independent action for divorce à mesna under the provisions of the statute. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857.

II. APPLICATION AND PROCEEDINGS THEREON.

An application for alimony pendente lite can be made by motion in the cause. Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N. C. 348.

A motion for alimony pendente lite may be heard anywhere in the judicial district. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943. Also a motion to reduce alimony. Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371, 42 S. E. 822.

But a resident judge holding court in another district can not hear a motion to reduce alimony pendente lite in a suit pending in the district in which he resides. Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371, 42 S. E. 822.

Kind of Divorce Warranted Immaterial.—Upon an application for alimony pendente lite, it is unnecessary to decide whether the petition warrants a divorce a vinculo, or only a divorce à mensa et thoro. Little v. Little, 63 N. C. 22.

III. PREREQUISITES TO AWARD.

A. Entitled to Relief.

Prima Facie Case.—Under this section a petitioner for divorce is entitled to alimony pendente lite upon making out a prima facie case. Sparks v. Sparks, 69 N. C. 319.

Finding Facts as Alleged Sufficient.—Upon a motion for alimony it is sufficient for the court to find that the facts are as alleged in the answer and the affidavits field in support of the motion. Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488.

In an application for alimony it need not be found as a fact that the plaintiff was a faithful, dutiful and obedient wife. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

Where the wife's action is for a divorce à mensa on the ground of abandonment, stating that she was compelled to leave home by the conduct of her husband, the judge, in allowing alimony pendente lite, must find such facts that would justify her in law for so doing, at the time she left her husband, and those that occurred thereafter are insufficient. Horton v. Horton, 186 N. C. 332, 119 S. E. 490.

In an application for alimony pendente lite under this section, it is required that the court find the facts in determining whether the wife is entitled to alimony, her right thereto being a question of law, and it is error for the court to refuse applicant's request for a finding of facts upon which the court denies the application. Caudle v. Caudle, 206 N. C. 484, 174 S. E. 304.

Superior Judge May Leave Charges Open.—Where the allegations of the complaint are sufficient under the terms of this section, and are found to be true and sufficient by the judge of the superior court, in the wife's action for a divorce, à mensa et thoro, the court may leave open the charges made by each of the parties against the other, and award alimony pendente lite, including a reasonable attorney's fee, taking into consideration the circumstances of the case. Hennis v. Hennis, 180 N. C. 606, 105 S. E. 274.

Sufficient Grounds.—Following will be found a few instances in which the courts have passed upon the specific question as to whether certain conduct constituted grounds for divorce and consequently justified the grant of alimony pendente lite. The preceding sections of this article and the notes thereto will furnish many illustrations of sufficient or insufficient facts as grounds for divorce, and will, of course, be valuable in ascertaining when alimony will be granted under this section.—Editor's Note.

Where the facts as found by the judge would, if found by the jury on the final hearing, warrant a divorce from bed and board, they per se constitute sufficient ground to award alimony pendente lite. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

In an action by a wife for a divorce a mensa, where acts of cruelty were alleged as the ground of separation, and also an estimate was made of the value of the defendant's estate, it was held to be sufficient evidence to decree alimony and fix the amount. Pain v. Pain, 80 N. C. 322. Also where acts were alleged which were well calculated to make her condition intolerable and her life burdensome and the bill set forth an estimate of the amount of the defendant's property. Gaylord v. Gaylord, 57 N. C. 74.

B. Necessity for Alimony.

Where the complaint of a feme plaintiff seeking a divorce alleges facts which, if believed, entitled her to the relief demanded, and is supplemented by an affidavit that the husband is trying to dispose of his property and has offered his land for sale with the avowed purpose of leaving the State, and that the children are small and need the mother's care, it is proper to grant an order for alimony pendente lite, and it is also competent for the court to award to the mother the custody of the younger children. Scroggins v. Scroggins, 80 N. C. 319.

Whether the wife, is entitled to alimony, is a question of law, upon the facts found, and reviewable on appeal by either party. Morris v. Morris, 89 N. C. 109; Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943; Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

A married woman is entitled to alimony pendente lite from her husband's estate, when the income from her separate estate is not sufficient for her support and to defray the necessary expenses in prosecuting her suit. Miller v. Miller, 75 N. C. 70.

IV. NOTICE.

Sufficiency.—An order of court continuing the motion for alimony to a future term of court made in the presence of counsel for both parties, is sufficient notice, under the statute, of such motion. Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488.

Time of Hearing Not Specified.—The fact that a notice of a motion for alimony pendente lite, duly served upon the defendant, did not specify the time of hearing, will not invalidate the order allowing the same, it having been heard at a term of court at which the cause stood regularly for trial. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

When Five Days Required.—The provision requiring five days' notice applies only when the motion is heard out of term and parties are fixed with notice of all motions or orders made during the term of the court. Coor v. Smith, 107 N. C. 431, 11 S. E. 1089; Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960; Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

When Dispensed with.—An affidavit of the wife that husband had left the State the day after the filing of the complaint, and that she had good reason to believe that he had left to defeat her claim for alimony, having been selling his property for several months with that purpose in view, dispenses with the necessity for notice. Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

Before Return Term.—Alimony pendente lite may be allowed before the return term if the complaint has been filed. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943.

V. THE ORDER.

A. In General.

Effect of Insufficient Finding.—An order allowing the wife alimony pendente lite her action for divorce may be declared erroneous on appeal for insufficiently full findings of fact therein, but not void. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216; Moody v. Moody, 118 N. C. 926, 23 S. E. 933.

If Allegations Not Controverted.—If the allegations in the complaint are not controverted, it is sufficient if the judge finds that no answer was filed and adjudges alimony to be paid. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

Enforcement.—An order to pay alimony may be enforced by imprisonment for contempt. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334; Pain v. Pain, 80 N. C. 322.

B. Amount.

Discretion of Court.—While the right to alimony involves a question of law, the amount of alimony and counsel fees is a matter of judicial discretion. Davidson v. Davidson, 189 N. C. 625, 127 S. E. 682, 683; Schonwald v. Schonwald, 62 N. C. 215; Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733. Subject to the limitation that it is not in excess of the net income of the defendant. Davidson v. Davidson, 189 N. C. 625, 127 S. E. 682.

Usually One-Third Net Income.—Excepting attorney's fees and expenses, the amount ordinarily allowed pendente lite under this section is not in excess of the amount prescribed by sec. 1665 upon a final judgment for divorce from bed and board; that is, one-third part of the net annual income from the estate and occupation or labor of the party against whom the judgment is rendered. 19 C. J. 222 (532). But this rule is not inflexible, and the amount to be allowed is not arbitrarily fixed by the statute. Davidson v. Davidson, 189 N. C. 625, 127 S. E. 682, 683.

Amount May Be Altered by Court.—Alimony regularly ordered to be paid a wife pendente lite her action for divorce may be increased or reduced in amount by the court from time to time, but that which she has already received in the course and practice of the courts may not be ordered to be given up by her. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

Allowance for Children.—Where in passing upon a motion of feme plaintiff in her action for divorce à mensa for alimony, etc., pendente lite, if the trial judge has found facts sufficient upon the evidence, he may award the custody of the minor children, who have been removed by the defendant from the State, to the plaintiff, with an additional allowance for them from the time they may be placed in her custody. Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960.

Not Reviewable Unless Abuse Shown.—The question of the amount allowed, in proper instances, by the superior court judge to the wife, in her action for divorce à mensa et thoro, is addressed to his sound judgment and discretion, and not reviewable on appeal, unless his discretion is abused. Hennis v. Hennis, 180 N. C. 606, 105 S. E. 274; Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960.

VI. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

In application for alimony pendente lite, it is competent for the husband to controvert the allegations of the complaint by affidavit or answer. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130; Easeley v. Easeley, 173 N. C. 530, 92 S. E. 353; Griffith v. Griffith, 89 N. C. 113.

Where Husband Appeals, Injunction Should Issue.—Where alimony pendente lite is allowed the wife, and the husband appeals from such order, an injunction should be granted to stay execution against the property of the husband pending the appeal. Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

Alimony May Be a Lien.—Where alimony pendente lite has been regularly granted to the wife in her action for divorce against her nonresident husband, who has abandoned her, the court may decree it a lien upon his lands described in the complaint and situated here, and order the sale thereof for its payment; and it is not necessary that the defendant should have had notice of the wife's application therefor. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216; Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N. C. 474, 37 S. E. 502.

When Husband Denies Having Property.—Where the husband denies having any property but admits that he is an able-bodied man, the court may order an allowance without inquiry into the value of his property. Muse v. Muse, 84 N. C. 35.

Deed of Separation May Be Bar.—A deed of separation, in conformity with §§ 2515, 2516, 2529, approved by a consent judgment, may be pleaded as complete bar to the wife's application for alimony pendente lite and for reasonable counsel fees, as provided by this section. Brown v. Brown, 205 N. C. 64, 169 S. E. 818.

New Motion After Failure of Original.—Where a motion to reduce alimony pendente lite has been disallowed, another motion for the same purpose should not be heard unless a different state of facts is shown and a receipt exhibited for a reasonable proportion of the allowance made at the former hearing. Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371, 42 S. E. 822.

Appeal and Error.—The superior court judge, in allowing alimony to the wife pendente lite, under the provisions of this section, must find the essential and issuable facts and set them out in full for the purpose of the appeal, so that the Supreme Court may determine therefrom whether the order appealed from should be upheld, and his general and inconclusive estimate of such facts is insufficient. Horton v. Horton, 186 N. C. 332, 119 S. E. 490; Easeley v. Easeley, 173 N. C. 530, 92 S. E. 353; Morris v. Morris, 89 N. C. 109.

Same—Effect of Demurrer.—In an action for divorce a vinculo, although the admissions of parties are not competent evidence, a demurrer to the petition for divorce admits that facts were alleged and can and will be proved, so as to secure the verdict of a jury. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 10 S. E. 707.

§ 1667. Alimony without divorce.—If any husband shall separate himself from his wife and fail to provide her and the children of the marriage with the necessary subsistence according to his means and condition in life, or if he shall be a drunkard or spendthrift, or be guilty of any misconduct or acts that would be or constitute cause for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, the wife may institute an action in the superior court of the county in which the cause of action arose to have a reasonable subsistence and counsel fees allotted and paid or secured to her from the estate or earnings of her husband. Pending the trial and final determination of the issues involved in such action, and also after they are determined, if finally determined, in favor of the wife, such wife may make application to the resident judge of the superior court, or the judge holding the superior courts of the district in which the action is brought, for an allowance for such subsistence and counsel fees, and it shall be lawful for such judge to cause the husband to secure so much of his estate or to pay so much of his earnings, or both, as may be proper, according to his condition and circumstances, for the benefit of his said wife and the children of the marriage, having regard also to the separate estate of the wife. Such application may be heard in or out of term, orally or upon affidavit, or either or both. No order for such allowance shall be made unless the husband shall have had five days notice thereof; but if the husband shall have abandoned his wife and left the state, or shall be in parts unknown, or shall be about to remove or disposed of his property for the purpose of defeating the claim of his wife, no notice shall be necessary. The order of allowance herein provided for may be modified or vacated at any time, on the application of either party or of any one interested. In actions brought under this section, the wife shall not be required to file the affidavit provided in section 1661, but shall verify her complaint as prescribed in the case of ordinary civil actions: Provided, that the allowances for counsel fees shall not apply to litigation pending March 4, 1921: Provided further, that in all applications for alimony under this section it shall be competent for the husband to plead the adultery of the wife in bar of her right to such alimony, and if the wife shall deny such plea, and the issue be found against her by the judge, he shall make no order allowing her any sum whatever as alimony, or for her support, but only her reasonable counsel fees. (Rev., s. 1567; Code, s. 1292; 1919, c. 24; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 39; 1921, c. 123; 1923, c. 52.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the year 1872 there was no statute regulating the question of alimony without divorce and in this state it was held that this relief in proper cases could be granted by courts of equity. See Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 170, 95 S. E. 149. By ch. 193, Laws 1872 the Legislature provided for this relief but in that act there was no provision whereby the wife could obtain alimony during the determination of the issues involved in her suit. In 1919 however an amendment was added whereby the wife might apply for an allowance for her subsistence during the pendency of her main action. Laws of 1919, ch. 24.

In considering this section therefore it must be noted that two distinct remedies are therein provided—first the action for alimony without divorce—second the application for an allowance for subsistence pendente lite.

Chapter 24, Laws of 1919 made other radical changes in this section. In addition to adding the last four sentences in toto, this amendment added the clauses allowing subsistence for failure to support the children of the marriage or for guilty conduct which would constitute grounds for divorce.

The two sentences which precede the last two sentences of the section as it now reads (the provisions as to notice to the husband) are similar to the requirements of sec. 1666, and the construction of these particular clauses as found in the note to sec. 1666 should be referred to.

Chapter 52, Laws of 1923 amended this section by allowing the husband to plead the adultery of the wife in bar of her right to such alimony. This amendment is certainly a proper one and protects the husband who abandons his wife because of her adultery. 1 N. C. L. Rev. 294.

Independent Suits.—This section only applies to independent suits for alimony. Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N. C. 348, 352; Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72, 40 S. E. 851.

The phrase "may institute an action" as used in this section is permissive and not mandatory. Miller v. Miller, 205 N. C. 753, 754, 172 S. E. 493.

Section 1665, may be considered in an action under this section, in determining the allowance of reasonable subsistence to the wife and children and the allowance of counsel fees based on the defendant's means and condition in life. Kiser v. Kiser, 203 N. C. 428, 166 S. E. 304.

Jurisdiction Not Affected.—The fact that the summons, in a proceeding under this section, of which a judge of the superior court has jurisdiction, was made returnable at term, does not affect the jurisdiction of the judge to hear and determine the matter. Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

Venue of Action.—A wife who has been forced by her husband to leave his home at night and take refuge elsewhere may acquire a separate domicile, and may sue him for alimony without divorce in the county of her residence, and the husband is not entitled to removal to the county of his residence as a matter of right under the provisions of this section and §§ 1657, 469. Miller v. Miller, 205 N. C. 753, 172 S. E. 493.

What Facts Material.—Under this section the only material facts at issue in the action for alimony without divorce are the questions of the existence of the marriage relation and whether the husband abandoned the wife. Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72, 40 S. E. 851; Hooper v. Hooper, 164 N. C. 1, 80 S. E. 64.

But it is not required that an issue involving the validity of the marriage be first determined before the wife may sustain her civil action against her husband for an allowance for a reasonable subsistence and counsel fees pending the trial and final determination of the issue relating to the validity of the marriage. Barbee v. Barbee, 187 N. C. 538, 122 S. E. 177.

Issue of Fact for Jury.—In actions under this section, when there are issues of fact raised, they should be found by a jury. Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149.

And the trial judge may not pass upon the issuable facts in proceedings for alimony without divorce, under this section, upon evidence introduced before him theretofore upon a trial of the husband for criminal abandonment, etc., of which he was acquitted, when the witnesses are present and ready to testify. Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149; Cooper v. R. R., 170 N. C. 490, 87 S. E. 322, cited and distinguished.

Finding of Facts by Judge Unnecessary.—In the wife's application for alimony without divorce, it is not required that the judge hearing the matter shall find the facts as a basis for his judgment, as in proceedings for alimony pendente lite (sec. 1666), although it is necessary that she allege sufficient facts to constitute a good cause of action thereunder. Price v. Price, 188 N. C. 640, 125 S. E. 264; Vincent v. Vincent, 193 N. C. 492, 137 S. E. 426.

Complaint Must Allege Good Cause.—The complaint must allege facts sufficient to constitute a good cause of action under the provision of this section, when the wife proceeds thereunder, for the court to allow her from the estate or earnings of her husband a reasonable support and counsel fees, and when the wife alleges only that she has left her husband because he failed to fulfill his promise to supply certain conveniences, it is insufficient. McManus v. McManus, 191 N. C. 740, 133 S. E. 9.

Indefinite Allegations in Answer.—Vague and indefinite allegations of infidelity on the part of a wife made by a husband in his answer to her complaint in a proceeding for support and maintenance, will not be allowed to affect the question of the husband's liability in such proceedings. Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

Counter Charges Immaterial.—Under the provisions of ch. 24, Laws of 1919, amending this section, it is immaterial what counter charges the defendant makes against the plaintiff, his wife, in her application for necessary "subsistence" pendente lite, for if he has separated from her, he must support her according to his means and condition in life, taking into consideration the separate estate of his wife, until the issue has been submitted to the jury. Allen v. Allen, 180 N. C. 465, 105 S. E. 11.

Previous Contract of Separation.—Where the defendant resists his wife's application for alimony without divorce under this section, upon the ground that there was still in effect a valid contract of separation they both had executed, and appeals from an adverse decision of the trial judge hearing the matter, the record on appeal should set out the written contract of separation so that the Supreme Court may determine whether it was reasonable, just and fair to the wife, and whether in taking her acknowledgment the officer had properly certified that it was not unreasonable or injurious to her, as the statute requires. Moore v. Moore, 185 N. C. 332, 117 S. E. 12.

Where, by an agreement for a separation between husband and wife, the former agreed to pay a certain monthly allowance, and the husband, after paying several installments discontinued the payments, he cannot set up the agreement in bar of her action for a support under this section even though he discontinued the payments because she demanded that the allowance be increased. Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

Where the parties by reason of this section entered into a consent judgment, approved by the court, providing for the payment to the wife of a certain sum monthly and making such sums a lien upon the husband's real estate, and the husband failed to make payments in accordance with the judgment and the wife brought a separate action alleging abandonment, it was held that plaintiff's rights were remitted to the prior judgment. Turner v. Turner, 205 N. C. 197, 170 S. E. 646.

Validity of Separation Agreement Need Not Be First Determined.—Where in proceedings by the wife to secure her subsistence and reasonable counsel fees under this section it is alleged that a separation agreement was procured by fraud, sufficiently pleaded, objection that the validity of the separation contract must be first determined in an independent action is untenable, the statute expressly providing that alimony may be granted "pending the trial and final determination of the issues." Taylor v. Taylor, 197 N. C. 197, 148 S. E. 171.

Wrongful Abandonment of Husband.—This section does not contemplate that a wife who wrongfully abandons and separates herself from her husband should be awarded subsistence and counsel fees. Byerly v. Byerly, 194 N. C. 532, 533, 140 S. E. 158.

Same—Presumption on Appeal.—Where in an action by the wife under this section, she has duly moved the court for alimony pendente lite and an allowance for counsel fees, and the husband has answered and offered evidence to the effect that the plaintiff had abandond him, and that he had not abandoned her, and the record on appeal does not disclose any findings of fact upon the question but only that the trial judge had refused the plaintiff's motion until the jury should determine the issue, the presumption is that the trial judge had held adversely to the plaintiff as to the fact. Byerly v. Byerly, 194 N. C. 532, 140 S. E. 158.

Effect of Prior Divorce in Another State.—No action will lie under this section where it appears that the court of a state having jurisdiction over the parties has declared them not husband and wife. Bidwell v. Bidwell, 139 N. C. 402, 52 S. E. 55.

Does Not Affect Prior Order for Alimony.—A decree of absolute divorce on the ground of separation as provided in § 1659(a) will not affect a prior order for alimony without divorce rendered under this section. Howell v. Howell, 206 N. C. 672, 174 S. E. 921.

Effect of Sec. 4447.—Section 4447 requiring the State to show the husband's willful abandonment of his wife, etc., beyond a reasonable doubt, does not deprive the wife of her civil remedies under the provisions of this section. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 793, 108 S. E. 756.

Amount.—The amount allowed for the reasonable subsistence, cost and attorneys' fees to the wife in her proceedings against her husband under the provisions of this section, is within the sound discretion of the judge hearing the same and having jurisdiction thereof. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863; Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

And the limitation to one-third of the net annual income from the estate, (provided by sec. 1665) which applies when the court adjudges the parties divorced from bed and board, does not apply when the wife institutes the proper proceeding for alimony pendente lite under sec. 1666 nor when she applies for a reasonable subsistence under this section. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863; Hodges v. Hodges, 82 N. C. 122, 124.

The allowance made under this section is not such a "debt" as will give the husband the right to claim his homestead or personal property exemptions. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 143, 110 S. E. 863.

Allowance for Attorney's Fees.—Chapter 24, Laws of 1919 amended this section in regard to "subsistence" of the wife pendente lite. The effect of this amendment was held to be that it superseded the allowance for alimony and hence no allowance for attorney's fees was permissible. Allen v. Allen, 180 N. C. 465, 105 S. E. 11.

By chapter 123, Laws of 1921 the section was further amended. And now, while the allowance to be made by the judge for the "subsistence" of the wife from the earnings or estate of her husband, in her application for alimony without divorce, is not regarded as synonymous with "alimony" and does not in terms include the allowance for attorney's fees, by this amendment the court may now allow her attorney's fees. Moore v. Moore, 185 N. C. 332, 117 S. E. 12.

Modification or Vacation of Order.—Where, within the exercise of his sound discretion, the superior court judge, having jurisdiction, has allowed the wife a reasonable subsistence, attorney's fees, etc., in her proceedings under the provisions of this section, the order of allowance may be thereafter modified or vacated as the statute provides upon application to the proper jurisdiction for the circumstances to be inquired into and the merits of the case determined. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

The amounts allowed for reasonable subsistence and counsel fees upon application for alimony pendente lite are determined by the trial court in his discretion and are not reviewable, although either party may apply for a modification before trial. Tiedmann v. Tiedmann, 204 N. C. 682, 169 S. E. 422.

The husband's "estate," from which the court may secure its order allowing a reasonable subsistence, etc., to the wife in her proceedings under the provisions of this section, includes within its meaning income from permanent property, tangible or intangible, or from the husband's earnings. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863; Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149.

Technical alimony is the allowance made to the wife in suits for divorce, and may be secured by a proportionate part of the husband's estate judicially declared; or if he have no estate, it may be "made a personal charge against him," and it materially differs from a reasonable subsistence, etc., allowable in the wife's proceedings under the provisions of this section, where a divorce is not contemplated, and where, in accordance with this section, the order allowing her such subsistence may secure the same out of the husband's estate. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

"Alimony without Divorce."—While as to technical alimony the ordinary rule is that the title to the property designated, to enforce the order of the court remains in the husband, and it will revert to him upon reconciliation with or the death of the wife, this rule does not apply to an allowance for the reasonable support of the wife, etc., under the provisions of this section, and the words used in the beginning of this section, "alimony without divorce," will not be construed to give the word "reasonable subsistence" for the wife, the meaning of technical alimony. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

Husband's Interest in Estate by Entireties Chargeable.—Where husband and wife own land by entireties, the rents and profits of the husband therein may be charged with the support of the wife and the minor children of the marriage upon his abandonment of her, under the provisions of this section, and for her counsel fees by chapter 123, Public Laws of 1921, in these proceedings; and to enforce an order allowing her alimony and attorney's fees, according to the statutes, a writ of possession may issue (sec. 1668) to apply thereto the rents and profits as they shall accrue and become personalty; and an order for the sale of land conveying the fee simple title for the purpose of paying the allowance is erroneous. Holton v. Holton, 186 N. C. 355, 119 S. E. 751.

Defeasible Fee in Part of Husband's Land.—Where the judge, in the proceedings of the wife for an allowance of reasonable subsistence has impressed a trust upon the husband's land for the enforcement of the decree, the fact that in a part of the land he has only a defeasible fee, cannot prejudice him, and his exception on that ground cannot be sustained. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

Attachment Will Lie.—An attachment against the husband's land will lie in favor of the wife, abandoned by him, for a reasonable subsistence or allowance adjudged by the court, under the implied contract, that he support and maintain her, under the statute declaring and enforcing it and under the order of court; and attachment of the husband's land is a basis for the publication of summons. Walton v. Walton, 178 N. C. 73, 100 S. E. 176.

Wife's Claim Prior.—The wife's inchoate right to alimony makes her a creditor of her husband, enforceable by attachment, in case of her abandonment, which puts every one on notice of her claim and her priority over other creditors of her husband. Walton v. Walton, 178 N. C. 73, 100 S. E. 176.

Statutes of Limitations.—The common law rule that there is no statute of limitations barring an action for divorce obtains in this jurisdiction, applying the rule that the proceedings, as a matter for the court, should have been commenced without unreasonable delay, except in so far as it may have been modified by this section, barring all actions not otherwise provided for in ten years. Garris v. Garris, 188 N. C. 321 124 S. E. 314.

Intervenor in Another Jurisdiction.—Where the wife has obtained an order for support from her husband, declared a lien on his property, under this section, in order for her to intervene in an action in another jurisdiction and claim priority over an attachment therein issued, it is necessary that she should show some valid service of process, or waiver by her husband in an appropriate civil action against him. Whether the lien of the wife will in any event prevail as against the lien of a valid attachment first levied in another court of equal concurrent jurisdiction. Quaere? Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

No Decree before Final Hearing.—When the application is for alimony without divorce it cannot be decreed before the final hearing. Hodges v. Hodges, 82 N. C. 122.

No Final Judgment under Section.—A final judgment cannot be entered under this section as the necessity of such provisions for the wife and children will cease if the parties resume the marriage relation, and cannot properly be continued if the husband procures a divorce for the fault of the wife. Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72, 40 S. E. 851; Hooper v. Hooper, 164 N. C. 1, 80 S. E. 64; Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149.

Infant's Guardian May Subsequently Attack Consent Judgment.—Where the court in proceedings under this section approves a consent judgment, providing for the support and subsistence of the defendant's wife and child, the validity of such consent judgment may be later attacked by the child's authorized guardians on the ground of irregularity and that it is not binding on the minor. In re Reynolds, 206 N. C. 276, 173 S. E. 789.

Contempt.—In Little v. Little, 203 N. C. 694, 166 S. E. 809, the defendant was held in contempt for disobedience of the court's order for him to pay certain weekly sums to his wife under this section.

C. 809, 810, 150 S. E. 925; Brown v. Brown, 205 N. C. 4, 169 S. E. 818; Caudle v. Caudle, 206 N. C. 484, 485, 174 S. E. 304.

§ 1668. Alimony in real estate, writ of possession issued. — In all cases in which the court grants alimony by the assignment of real estate, the court has power to issue a writ of possession when necessary in the judgment of the court to do so. (Rev., s. 1568; Code, s. 1293; 1868-9, c. 123, s. 1.)

Effect of Award of Custody of Children.—Where consent judgment in an action for divorce a mensa operates as a gift to the wife of an estate in her husband's land, the court by awarding custody of the children does not affect it. Morris v. Patterson, 180 N. C. 484, 105 S. E. 25.

Title to Specific Property Remains in Husband.—Where alimony is alloted to the wife in specific property of the husband, the title to such property remains in him, and will revert at the death of the wife or upon a reconciliation. Taylor v. Taylor, 93 N. C. 418.

CHAPTER 31

DOGS

Art. 1. Owner's Liability

§ 1669. Liability for injury to livestock or fowls.—If any dog, not being at the time on the premises of the owner or person having charge thereof, shall kill or injure any livestock or fowls, the owner or person having such dog in charge shall be liable for damages sustained by the injury, killing, or maiming of any livestock, and costs of suit. (1911, c. 3, s. 31.)

Editor's Note.—By the ancient common law dogs were considered as of too base a nature to be the subject of larceny. But now they are deemed property for which an action will lie for wrongful injury. As to liability for wrongfully killing a dog, see Beasley v. Byrum, 163 N. C. 3, 79 S. E. 270; State v. Smith, 156 N. C. 628, 72 S. E. 321.

Property in dogs is recognized by the law and they are protected against wanton and needless injury for which a civil action for damages may be maintained by the owner. Dodson v. Mock, 20 N. C. 282; Mowery v. Salisbury, 82 N. C. 175.

The property in dogs therefore, is not of the same character as that of ordinary domestic animals, in which the right of property is absolute, but it is of an imperfect or qualified nature. Sintell v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 166 U. S. 698, 701, 41 L. Ed. 1169.

The law authorizes the killing of a dog found on a man's premises in the act of attempting to destroy his sheep, calves, conies in a warren, deer in a park or other reclaimed animals used for human food and unable to defend themselves. Parrott v. Hartsfield, 20 N. C. 242; State v. Smith, 156 N. C. 628, 72 S. E. 321.

As to owner's liability for injury by his dog to other persons, see Harris v. Fisher, 115 N. C. 318, 20 S. E. 461; Perry v. Phipps, 32 N. C. 259. See also, 1 Enc. Dig. 347 et seq.

§ 1670. Permitting bitch at large.—If any person owning or having any bitch shall knowingly permit her to run at large during the erotic stage of copulation he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3303; Code, s. 2501; 1862-3, c. 41, s. 2.)

§ 1671. Sheep-killing dogs to be killed. — If any person owning or having any dog that kills sheep or other domestic animal, upon satisfactory evidence of the same being made before any justice of the peace of the county, and the owner duly notified thereof, shall refuse to kill it, and shall permit such dog to go at liberty, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days, and the dog may be killed by any one if found going at large. (Rev., s. 3304; Code, s. 2500; 1862-3, c. 41, s. 1; 1874-5, c. 108, s. 2.)

This section is mentioned in Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C.

219, 252, 51 S. E. 922; Parrott v. Hartsfield, 20 N. C. 242. As to what dogs may be killed, see secs. 1682, 1693.

§ 1672. Failing to kill mad dog.—If the owner of any dog shall know, or have good reason to believe, that his dog, or any dog belonging to any person under his control, has been bitten by a mad dog, and shall neglect or refuse immediately to kill the same, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of fifty dollars to him who will sue therefor; and the offender shall be liable to pay all damages which may be sustained by any one, in his property or person, by the bite of any such dog, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3305; Code, s. 2499; R. C., c. 67.)

Actual Knowledge Unnecessary.—In an action under this section it is not necessary to prove that the biting dog was in fact mad. The words "good reason to believe" apply both to the condition of the biting dog and to the fact that the dog was bitten by a mad dog. Wallace v. Douglas, 32 N. C. 79.

Dog Can Be Destroyed.—If owner refuses to destroy a dog, which is mad or is bitten by a mad dog, he subjects himself to the possibility of a fine and imprisonment and the dog can be destroyed by order of the justice issuing the warrant under this section. Beasley v. Byrum, 163 N. C. 3, 4, 79 S. E. 270.

For the effect of contributory negligence on the part of the person bitten by a mad dog, see Holton v. Moore, 165 N. C. 549, 81 S. E. 779.

As to killing a mad dog, see secs. 1682, 1693.

Art. 2. License Taxes on Dogs

§ 1673. Amount of tax. — Any person owning or keeping about him any open female dog of the age of six months or older shall pay annually a license or privilege tax of two dollars. Any person owning or keeping any male dog, or female dog other than an open female dog of the age of six months or older, shall pay annually on each dog so owned or kept a license or privilege tax of one dollar. (1919, c. 116, ss. 1, 2.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 35, provided that this section shall not apply to Graham County.

Public Laws 1933, c. 90 provided that this section should not apply to Cherokee. Chapter 90 was amended by Public Laws, 1933, c. 301 so as to exempt Macon and Clay counties. Public Laws, 1933, c. 149, repealed §§ 1673-1684, insofar as they apply to Swain County.

Constitutional Exercise of Police Power.—A statute imposing a specified tax upon all persons owning or keeping a dog within a certain county is for the privilege of keeping the dog therein and comes under the police regulations of the county. It is therefore constitutional and valid and will not be restrained. Newall v. Green, 169 N. C. 462, 86 S. E. 291.

§ 1674. License tags; optional with county commissioners.—To every person paying the license or privilege tax prescribed in the preceding section there shall be issued by the sheriff a metal tag bearing county name, a serial number, and expiration date, which shall be attached by owner to a collar to always be worn by any dog when not on premises of the owner or when engaged in hunting. The superintendent of public instruction shall at all times keep on hand a supply of tags to be furnished the sheriffs of the several counties. Provided, that the county commissioners of each county shall, by order duly made in regular session, make an order determining whether the collar and tag shall be applied to that county. (1919, c. 116, s. 2½; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 37.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by ch. 37, Ex. Sess. 1920 by having the metal tags kept by the superintendent of public instruction. They were formerly kept by the commissioner of agriculture.

§ 1675. Dogs to be listed; penalty for failure to list.—It shall be the duty of every owner or keeper of a dog to list the same for taxes at the same time and place that other personal property is listed, and the various tax listers in the state shall have proper abstracts furnished them for listing dogs for taxation, and any person failing or refusing to list such dog or dogs shall be guilty of misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. The owner of the home or lessee of such owner shall be responsible for listing of any dog belonging to any member of his family. (1919, c. 116, s. 3.)

§ 1676. When tax due; penalty for failure to pay.—The license of privilege tax herein imposed shall be due and payable on the first day of October of each and every year, and all persons after December first, thereafter who own or keep a dog or dogs upon which the license or privilege tax is not paid, whether said dog or dogs have been listed or not, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or be imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1919, c. 116, s. 3.)

§ 1677. Receipt for tax a license. — Upon the payment to the sheriff or tax collector of the license or privilege tax aforesaid, such sheriff or tax collector shall give the owner or keeper of such dog or dogs a receipt for the same which shall constitute a license under the provisions of this article. (1919, c. 116, s. 3.)

§ 1678. Tax listers to make inquiry, compile reports; compensation.—The tax listers for each township, town, and city in this state shall annually, at the time of listing property as required by law, make diligent inquiry as to the number of dogs owned, harbored, or kept by any person subject to taxation. The list-takers shall on or before the first day of July in each year, make a complete report to the sheriff or tax collector on a blank form furnished them by the proper authority, setting forth the name of every owner of any dog or dogs, how many of each and the sex owned or kept by such person. The county commissioners may pay the tax listers for such services such amounts as may be just out of the money arising under this article. (1919, c. 116, ss. 4, 6.)

§ 1679. Purchasers to ascertain listing. — Any person coming in possession of any dog or dogs after listing time shall immediately ascertain whether such dog or dogs have been listed for taxes or not, and if not so listed, it is hereby made the duty of such owner or keeper of such dog or dogs to go to the sheriff or tax collector of his county and list such dog or dogs for taxes, and it is made the duty of the owner or keeper of such dog or dogs to pay the privilege or license tax as is herein provided for in other cases. (1919, c. 116, s. 4.)

§ 1680. Permitting dogs to run at large at night; penalty; liability for damage. — No person shall allow his dog over six months old to run at large in the night time unaccompanied by the owner or by some member of the owner's family, or some other person by the owner's permission. Any person intentionally, knowingly, and willfully violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, and shall also be liable in damages to any person injured or suffering loss to his property or chattels. (1919, c. 116, s. 5.)

Valid Exercise of Police Power.—A city ordinance which prohibits the owner from allowing dogs to run at large without muzzles is a valid exercise of the police power. State v. Clifton, 152 N. C. 800, 67 S. E. 751.

For local act applicable to Buncombe. New Hanover, Halifax and Wake counties, see Acts 1925, c. 314.

§ 1681. Proceeds of tax to school fund; proviso, payment of damages; reimbursement by owner.—The money arising under the provisions of this article shall be applied to the school funds of the county in which said tax is collected: Provided, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners, upon complaint made to them of injury to person or injury to or destruction of property by any dog, upon satisfactory proof of such injury or destruction, to appoint three freeholders to ascertain the amount of damages done, including necessary treatment if any, and all reasonable expenses incurred, and upon the coming in of the report of such jury of the damage as aforesaid, the said county commissioners shall order the same paid out of any moneys arising from the tax on dogs as provided for in this article; Provided, that before appointing a jury or making any payment, the commissioners shall satisfy themselves that the claimant listed said property for taxation at the last listing time, if said property was then owned by him. This proviso shall apply only to Chowan county. And in cases where the owner of such dog or dogs is known or can be ascertained, he shall reimburse the county to the amount paid out for such injury or destruction. To enforce collection of this amount the county commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to sue for the same.

Provided, however, no amount shall be paid out under the terms of this article, except upon the findings of three freeholders appointed to ascertain the amount of damages done, expense of treatment, and necessary expenses incurred, and in no event shall the amount allowed be more than the doctor's bill, including medicine and treatment, and the actual loss of time based upon the earning capacity of the person injured, including reasonable expense of travel to the place of treatment, and if injury to property, the actual damage suffered; but this proviso will apply only to Rockingham county: Provided further that this section shall not apply to Davidson, Cumberland, Mecklenburg and Stanly counties. And provided also that all that portion of this section after the word "collected" in line three thereof, shall not apply to Lincoln and Bladen counties. (1919, c. 116, s. 7; 1925, cc. 15, 25, 79; 1933, c. 28; 1935, cc. 30, 361, 402.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by chaps. 15, 25, 79, Public Laws of 1925 by the addition of the three last provisos.

Public Laws 1929, Chapters 31, 79, provides that all that portion of this section beginning with the first "provided" in line five shall not apply to Currituck and Gates Counties. But see § 1684(b).

Public Laws 1931 c. 283, applicable only to McDowell, Forsyth, Orange, Randolph, Watauga and Avery Counties, amended this section by adding at the end thereof the following: "Provided further, that the Board of County Commissioners may adjust and settle claim or claims for such damage without submitting the question to a jury; and: Provided, further, that in no event shall the owner be paid an amount greater than the tax valuation of the property for the then current tax year as shown by the tax list of such owner."

Public Laws 1931, c. 37, applicable only to Wilson County, provided that no part of the taxes paid on dogs pursuant to Public Laws 1919, c. 77 (identical with c. 116), and no part of any taxes collected in such county "shall be liable or used to pay for depredation, damage or injury to persons or property by dogs."

The proviso at the end of this section, relating to Lincoln county, was added by Public Laws of 1933, c. 28. For an act repealing all of the provisos of this section insofar as they relate to Duplin county, see Public Laws 1933, c. 477; for repealing act as to Mitchell and Avery counties, see Public Laws 1933, c. 273. For act applicable to Guilford and Forsyth counties only, see Public Laws 1933, c. 547. For act applicable to Moore county only, see Public Laws 1933, c. 526. For Columbus county, see Public Laws 1933, c. 387, and for act applicable in Pitt only, see Public Laws 1933, c. 561. Public Laws 1933, c. 200 made the local amendment of 1931, applicable also in Onslow county.

The amendments of 1935 added Cumberland, Mecklenburg and Stanly to the list of counties to which the section does not apply. Bladen county was added to the counties to which the section is only partly applicable. The act excepting Cumberland county also provides: "That the proceeds of the direct tax as provided for under chapter one hundred and sixteen, Public Laws of one thousand, nine hundred and nineteen, shall be applied one-half to the general fund of the county, and one-half to the School Fund."

Chapter 50 of the Public Laws of 1935 directs that a proviso be added relating to efforts to determine the ownership of dogs doing damage to live stock, etc., and containing special provisions as to payment. The proviso is applicable only in Alamance county.

Chapter 188 of the Public Laws of 1935 provides for the appointment of three freeholders to ascertain damages done. This act applies only in Caswell county.

Chapter 412 of the Public Laws of 1935 contains a similar provision for appointment of freeholders applicable only in Madison county.

In General.—This section is a police regulation not estopping the defendant in the county's action from establishing any defense available to him under the pleadings, nor does it change the method of procedure as to the burden of proof, or otherwise, except that it limits recovery of the injured person, electing to proceed under this statute, to a sum not exceeding the amount thereunder ascertained. Board v. George, 182 N. C. 414, 109 S. E. 77.

Constitutional.—This section does not deprive the defendant of a jury trial, and it is constitutional. Board v. George, 182 N. C. 414, 109 S. E. 77.

Testimony of Non-Expert Witness.—Admission of judgment of a non-expert witness upon the personal observation of the carcass of the sheep, as to the length of time it had been killed, is not erroneous as the expression of a theoretical or scientific opinion. Board v. George, 182 N. C. 414, 109 S. E. 77.

Right to Trial by Jury.—The ascertainment of damages by three disinterested freeholders, and the payment thereof by county commissioners from the dog taxes, with the right of the county to sue to recover the amount so paid from the owner of the dog if known or discovered, as provided by this section, reserves to such owner the right to a trial by jury in the action of the commissioners, and does not permit recovery in excess of the sum awarded for the damages caused as ascertained under the provisions of the statute. Board v. George, 182 N. C. 414, 109 S. E. 77.

Cost of Assessment.—In an action by the county to recover damages to the person or property sustained by the dog of another, under this section, the reasonable cost of the services of the persons chosen to make the assessment, which is paid by the county, is a part of the money paid on account of the injury or destruction caused by the dog, and defendant's exception thereto will not be sustained. Semble, the question of the reasonableness of this amount is a question for the jury, when aptly and properly raised and presented. Board v. George, 182 N. C. 414, 109 S. E. 77.

§ 1682. Mad dogs, dogs killing sheep, etc., may be killed.—Any person may kill any mad dog, and also any dog if he is killing sheep, cattle, hogs, goats, or poultry. (1919, c. 116; s. 8.)

As to liability of owner who fails to kill sheep-killing dog, see sec. 1671; mad dog, see sec. 1672. As to protected dogs, see sec. 1693.

§ 1683. Dogs, when listed, personal property; larceny of dog a misdemeanor. — All dogs, when listed for taxes, become personal property and shall be governed by the laws governing other personal property: Provided, the larceny of any dog upon which aforesaid tax has been paid shall be a misdemeanor. (1919, c. 116, s. 9.)

Not Larceny.—In the absence of a statute, stealing a dog is not larceny in this State. State v. Holder, 81 N. C. 527. See note to sec. 1669. See also, secs. 1693, 4263.

§ 1684. Failure to discharge duties imposed under this article. — Any person failing to discharge any duty imposed upon him under this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall pay a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or be imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1919, c. 116, s. 10.)

§ 1684(a). Counties excepted from operation of article. — This article shall not apply to the counties of Yancey, Alexander, Cherokee, Madison and Jackson. All dog taxes collected in said counties and not disbursed on February 27, 1923, shall be probated among those having bona fide claims against said fund, and the balance, if any, paid over to the school fund of the county. (1923, c. 84, ss. 2, 3; 1924, c. 14; 1931, c. 27.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section by striking out "Haywood" so as to place that county under the operation of this article known as the State-Wide Dog Law. It had been thought that § 1684(b) repealed this section. However, it seems that the amendment is legislative recognition that this section has not been suspended.

§ 1684(b). This article is hereby made applicable to every county in the State of North Carolina, notwithstanding any provisions in local, special or private acts exempting any county or any township or municipality from the provisions of the same enacted at any General Assembly commencing at the General Assembly of nineteen hundred and twenty-nine: Provided, this act shall not apply to counties that do not participate in the Equalization Fund. All laws and parts of laws, whether general, local, special or private, enacted at any session of the Legislature, as set out above, in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. (1929, c. 318.)

See note to § 1684(a).

As to damages done by dogs in Surrey county, see Public Laws 1933, c. 310.

Art. 3. Special License Tax on Dogs

§ 1685. Nothing in this article abrogated by Art. 2; special tax an additional tax. — Nothing contained in Article 2 of this chapter shall have the effect of abrogating any of the provisions of this article, and the special license tax on dogs provided for under this article shall be in addition to the license tax on dogs provided for under Article 2 of this chapter: Provided that Article 2 shall not be construed as repealing any existing ordinance of any city or town or any ordinance of any city or town hereafter enacted, regulating the keeping or use of dogs in cities and towns. (1919, c. 116, s. 11, Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 53.)

Editor's Note.—The proviso to this section was added by ch. 53, Ex. Sess. 1920.

§ 1686. Special dog tax submitted to voters on petition. — Upon the written application of one-third of the qualified voters of any county in this state made to the board of commissioners of such county, asking that an election be held in said county to adopt the provisions of this article for levying and collecting a special dog tax in said county, it shall be the duty of said board of commissioners from time to time to submit the question of "special dog tax" or "no special dog tax" to the qualified voters of said county; and if at any such election a majority of the votes cast shall be in favor of said special dog tax, then the provisions of this article shall be in full force and effect over the whole of said county, special dog tax hereinafter provided for shall be levied and collected in said county; but if a majority of the votes cast at such election shall be against said special dog tax, then the provisions of this article shall not apply to any part of said county. (1917, c. 206, s. 1.)

§ 1687. Conduct of elections. — Every election held under the provisions of this article shall be held and conducted under the same rules and regulations and according to the same penalties provided by law for the election of members of the general assembly: Provided, that no such election shall be held in any county oftener than once in two years. (1917, c. 206, s. 3.)

§ 1688. Commissioners to provide for registration; ballots and machinery. — The board of commissioners of any county in this state in which an election is to be held under the provisions of this article may provide for a new registration of voters in said county if they deem necessary, or they may provide for the use of the registration of voters in effect at the general election for county officers in said county next preceding the holding of the election hereunder, and they shall appoint such officers as may be necessary to properly hold such election and shall designate the time and places for holding such elections, and make all rules, regulations, and do all other things necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this article; they shall provide ballots without device for all qualified voters in said county, on which shall be written or printed the words "For special dog tax," and also shall provide like ballots on which shall be printed or written the words "Against special dog tax." (1917, c. 206, s. 4.)

§ 1689. Canvass of votes and returns.—At the close of said election the officers holding same shall canvass the vote and certify the returns to the said board of commissioners of said county, and the said board of commissioners shall canvass the said returns and declare the results of said election in the manner now provided by law for holding special-tax school elections. (1917, c. 206, s. 4.)

§ 1690. Contents and record of petition; notice of election. — The qualified voters of any county who shall make written application to the board of commissioners of said county asking that an election be held under the provisions of this article shall designate and insert in said application the amount of special dog tax to be levied and collected in said county, which tax shall not exceed the sum of five dollars nor be less than the sum of one dollar for each dog, whether male or female, and the board of commissioners shall have said written application, specifying the amount of said special dog tax to be voted for in said county, recorded in the records of their proceedings, and shall cause to be published in some newspaper published or circulated in said county, and posted at the courthouse door and five other public places in said county, a notice of the time and places for holding said election and specifying the amount of tax to be voted for in said county. (1917, c. 206, s. 5.)

§ 1691. License tax.—Any person or persons, firm or corporation, owning or keeping any dog or dogs, whether male or female, in any county which shall adopt the provisions of this article for the levy and collection of said special dog tax shall pay annually a license or privilege tax on each dog, whether male or female, such sum or sums as may be designated and inserted in the written application of the qualified voters of said county asking for said election and as recorded in the proceedings of the board of county commissioners of said county, which shall not exceed the sum of five dollars nor be less than the sum of one dollar for each dog: Provided, the tax voted for and levied on female dogs may be greater than the tax on male dogs, but in no event shall said special tax exceed the sum of five dollars, nor be less than the sum of one dollar for any dog, whether male or female. (1917, c. 206, s. 6.)

Local Tax Valid.—The Legislature may empower the authorities of a town to regulate the manner in which dogs may be kept in the said town. Hence a tax levied under this authority is constitutional and valid. Mowery v. Salisbury, 82 N. C. 175.

§ 1692. Collection and application of tax. — The special dog tax voted for under the provisions of this article shall be due and collectible at the same time and in the same manner as provided by law for the collection of taxes on other personal property in said county, and shall be collected by the collector of other taxes in said county in the same manner and under the same penalties provided by law for collection of taxes on other personal property in said county, and shall be applied to the road fund, or school fund, of said county, as may be directed by the board of commissioners of said county. (1917, c. 206, s. 8.)

As to application of the proceeds of the general dog tax, see sec. 1681.

§ 1693. Listed dogs protected; exceptions. — Any person who shall steal any dog which has been listed for taxation as herein provided shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court; and any person who shall kill any dog the property of another, after the same has been listed as herein provided, shall be liable to the owner in damages for the value of such dog. Nothing in this act shall prevent the killing of a mad dog, sheepkilling dog, or egg-sucking dog on sight, when off the premises of its owner, and the owner shall not recover any damages for the loss of such dog. (1917, c. 206, s. 9.)

As to liability for wrongfully killing a dog, see note to sec. 1669. As to listed dogs becoming personal property, see secs. 1683, 4263.

§ 1694. Application of article to counties having dog tax.—Any county in this state which now has a local law taxing dogs may, by election in the manner herein provided for, accept the provisions of this article, and if adopted by a majority of the qualified voters of said county at such election, the local law taxing dogs in such county shall thereby be repealed and annulled, and the provisions of this article shall be in full force and effect in such county. (1917, c. 206, s. 10.)

CHAPTER 31A.

ELECTRIFICATION.

Art. 1. Rural Electrification Authority.

§ 1694(1). Rural Electrification Authority created; appointment; terms of members. — An agency to be known as the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority is hereby created as an agency of the State of North Carolina, such authority to consist of six members to be appointed by the governor of North Carolina; two appointed for the term of two years; two for a term of four years and two for a term of six years, and their successors shall be appointed for a term of four years. (1935, c. 288, s. 1.)

§ 1694(2). Powers.—The purpose of said North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority is to secure electrical service for the rural districts of the State where service is not now being rendered, and it is hereby empowered to do the following in order to accomplish that purpose:

(a) To investigate all applications from communities unserved, or inadequately served, with electrical energy in North Carolina, and to determine the feasibility of obtaining such service therefor.

(b) To employ such personnel as shall be necessary to conduct surveys, assist the several communities to organize and finance extensions of rural distribution lines; to negotiate with power companies and other agencies for the supply of electric energy for and on behalf of the rural communities that desire service.

(c) To contact the power companies and other agencies contiguous to the area and areas desiring service, for the purpose of arranging for the extension by said companies, or other agencies, of service in that community for such extension as may be feasible for the power company, or other agency, contiguous to the area to finance itself.

(d) To make estimates of costs of extension which the power company would not be willing to finance and report such findings to the citizens of the community desiring service or to the corporations organized under this bill, to be known as "electric membership corporations."

(e) To estimate the service charges which said community would have to set up in addition to the rates for energy as may be found necessary in order to make extension self liquidating.

(f) To have authority to call upon the utilities commission of the State to fix such rates and service charges as will be necessary to accomplish the purpose, and the right to petition the utilities commission to require extension of lines by the power companies when, in its opinion, it is proper and feasible.

(g) To have the power of eminent domain for the purpose of condemning rights of way for the erection of transmission and distribution lines, either in its own name, or in its own name on behalf of the electric membership corporations to be formed as provided by law.

(h) To have such right and authority to secure for said local communities or electric membership corporations as may be set up assistance from any agency of the United States government, either by gift or loan, as may be possible to aid said local community in securing electric energy for said community.

(i) To investigate all applications from communities for the formation of electric membership corporations and determine and pass upon the question of granting the authority to form such corporations to provide forms for making such applications; and to do all things necessary to a proper determination of the question of establishment of the local electric membership corporations.

(j) To act as agent for any electric membership corporations formed under direction or permission of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority in securing loans or grants from any agency of the United States government.

(k) To prescribe rules and regulations and the necessary blanks for the electric membership corporations in making applications for grant or loan from any agency of the United States government.

(l) To do all other acts and things which may be necessary to aid the rural communities in North Carolina secure electric energy. (1935, c. 288, s. 2.)

§ 1694(3). Authority not granted power to fix rates or order line extensions; right of suggestion and petition.—The authority itself shall not be a rate making body, and shall have no power to fix the rates or service charges, or to order the extension of lines by the power companies. The function of making rates and service charges and orders for the extension of lines shall remain in the utilities commission of North Carolina, and the authority shall only have the right of suggestion and petition to the utilities commission of its opinion as to the proper rates and service charges and line extensions, and no rate recommended or suggested by the authority shall be effective until approved by the utilities commission: Provided, that if the utilities commission of North Carolina does not have the right under the existing law to fix service charges in addition to the rates prescribed for electrical energy, and the power to order line extensions, such power and authority is hereby granted the utilities commission of North Carolina to fix and promulgate service charges in addition to rates in any community which avails itself of this article, and form a corporation authorized hereunder to be known as electric membership corporation, and to order line extensions when it shall determine that the same is proper and feasible. (1935, c. 288, p. 3.)

§ 1694(4). Organization meeting of authority; chairman and secretary.—Promptly after their appointment the authority shall meet and organize at such meeting, and at the first meeting of each year thereafter, the members shall choose from their number a chairman. They shall also choose a secretary, who shall be a competent engineer and shall fix his salary subject to the approval as provided in chapter two hundred and seventy-seven of the Public Laws of nineteen hundred and thirty-one, as amended by chapter forty-six of the Public Laws of nineteen hundred and thirty-three, codified as section 7521(k) et seq. (1935, c. 288, s. 4.)

§ 1694(5). Compensation and expenses. — All members of the authority, except the chairman and secretary, shall serve without compensation, except for their actual expenses incurred with the performance of their duties. (1935, c. 288, s. 5.)

§ 1694(6). Annual appropriation.—For the purpose of defraying expenses and salaries of the electrical authority as hereby created, there is hereby appropriated from the general fund of the State the sum of ten thousand ($10,000) dollars annually. (1935, c. 288, s. 6.)

Art. 2. Electric Membership Corporations.

§ 1694(7). Title of article.—This article, may be cited as the "Electric Membership Corporation Act." (1935, c. 291, s. 1.)

§ 1694(8). Definitions. — The following terms, whenever used or referred to in this article, shall have the following meanings, unless a different meaning clearly appears from the context:

(a) "Corporation" shall mean a corporation formed under this article.

(b) "Person" shall mean and include natural persons, firms, associations, corporations, business trusts, partnerships and bodies politic.

(c) "Acquire" shall mean acquire by purchase, lease, devise, gift or other mode of acquisition.

(d) "Law" shall mean any act or statute, general, special or local of this State.

(e) "Federal agency" shall mean and include the United States of America, the president of the United States of America, the federal emergency administrator of public works and any and all other authorities, agencies, and instrumentalities of the United States of America, heretofore or hereafter created.

(f) "Board" shall mean the board of directors of a corporation formed under this article. (1935, c. 291, s. 2.)

§ 1694(9). Formation in unserved communities; filing application with rural electrification authority.—When any number of persons residing in the community not served, or inadequately served, with electrical energy desire to secure electrical energy for their community and desire to form corporations to be known as electric membership corporations for said purpose, they shall file application with the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority for permission to form such corporation. (1935, c. 291, s. 3.)

§ 1694(10). Issuance of privilege for formation of such corporation.—Whenever any such application is made by as many as five members of the community, the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority shall cause a survey of said territory to be made and if, in its opinion, the proposal is feasible, shall issue to said community a privilege for the formation of a corporation as hereinafter set out. Whenever an application has been filed by any community with the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority, and its application for formation of an electric membership corporation has been approved, the same may be formed as hereinafter provided. (1935, c. 291, s. 4.)

§ 1694(11). Formation authorized; holding property.—Any number of natural persons not less than three may, by executing, filing and recording a certificate as hereinafter provided, form a corporation not organized for pecuniary profit for the purpose of promoting and encouraging the fullest possible use of electric energy in the rural section of the State by making electric energy available to inhabitants of the State at the lowest cost consistent with sound economy and prudent management of the business of such corporations. Whenever an electric membership corporation is formed in the manner herein provided, all property owned by said corporation and used exclusively for the purpose of said corporation shall be held in the same manner and subject to the same taxes and assessments as property owned by any county or municipality of the State, so long as said property is owned by said electric membership corporation and is used for the purpose for which the corporation was formed. (1935, c. 291, s. 5.)

§ 1694(12). Contents of certificate of incorporation.—The certificate of incorporation shall be entitled and endorsed "Certificate of Incorporation of .....Electric Membership Corporation" (the blank space being filled in with the name of the corporation), and shall state:

(a) The name of the corporation, which name shall be such as to distinguish it from any other corporation.

(b) A reasonable description of the territory in which its operations are principally to be conducted.

(c) The location of its principal office and the post office address thereof.

(d) The maximum number of directors, not less than three.

(e) The names and post-office addresses of the directors, not less than three, who are to manage the affairs of the corporation for the first year of its existence, or until their successors are chosen.

(f) The period, if any, limited for the duration of the corporation. If the duration of the corporation is to be perpetual, this fact should be stated.

(g) The terms and conditions upon which members of the corporation shall be admitted.

(h) The certificate of incorporation of a corporation may also contain any provision not contrary to law which the incorporators may choose to insert for the regulation of its business, and for the conduct of the affairs of the corporation; and any provisions, creating, defining, limiting or regulating the powers of the corporation, its directors and members. (1935, c. 291, s. 6.)

§ 1694(13). Execution and filing of certificate of incorporation by residents of territory to be served.—The natural persons executing the certificate of incorporation shall be residents of the territory in which the principal operations of the corporation are to be conducted who are desirous of using electric energy to be furnished by the corporation. The certificate of incorporation shall be acknowledged by the subscribers before an officer qualified to administer oaths. When so acknowledged, the certificate may be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who shall forthwith prepare a certified copy or copies thereof and forward one to the clerk of the superior court in each county in which a portion of the territory of the corporation is located, who shall forthwith file such certified copy or copies in their respective offices and record the same as other certificates of incorporation are recorded. As soon as the provisions of this section have been complied with, the proposed corporation described in the certificate so filed, under its designated name, shall be and constitute a body corporate. (1935, c. 291, s. 7.)

§ 1694(14). Board of directors; compensation; president and secretary. — Each corporation formed hereunder shall have a board of directors and the powers of a corporation shall be vested in and exercised by a majority of the directors in office. The directors of the corporation, other than those named in its certificate of incorporation, shall be elected annually by the members entitled to vote. The directors must be members and shall not be entitled to compensation for their services. The board shall elect annually from its own number a president and a secretary. (1935, c. 291, s. 8.)

§ 1694(15). Powers of board.—The board shall have power to do all things necessary or convenient in conducting the business of a corporation, including, but not limited to:

(a) The power to adopt and amend by-laws for the management and regulation of the affairs of the corporation. The by-laws of a corporation may make provisions, not inconsistent with law or its certificate of incorporation, regulating the admission, withdrawal, suspension or expulsion of members; the transfer of membership; the fees and dues of members and the termination of memberships on non-payment of dues or otherwise; the number, times and manner of choosing, qualifications, terms of office, official designations, powers, duties and compensation of its officers; defining a vacancy in the board or in any office and the manner of filling it; the number of members, not less than a majority, to constitute a quorum at meetings, the date of the annual meeting and the giving of notice thereof, and the holding of special meetings and the giving of notice thereof; the terms and conditions upon which the corporation is to render service to its members, the disposition of the revenues and receipts of the corporation; regular and special meetings of the board and the giving of notice thereof.

(b) To appoint agents and employees and to fix their compensation and the compensation of the officers of the corporation.

(c) To execute instruments.

(d) To delegate to one or more of the directors or to the agents and employees of a corporation such powers and duties as it may deem proper.

(e) To make its own rules and regulations as to its procedure. (1935, c. 291, s. 9.)

§ 1694(16). Certificates of membership. — A corporation may issue to its members certificates of membership and each member shall be entitled to only one vote at the meetings of the corporation. (1935, c. 291, s. 10.)

§ 1694(17). Corporate purpose.—The corporate purpose of each corporation formed hereunder shall be to render service to its members only, and no person shall become or remain a member unless such person shall use energy supplied by such corporation and shall have complied with the terms and conditions in respect to membership contained in the by-laws of such corporation. (1935, c. 291, s. 11.)

§ 1694(18). General grant of powers. — Each corporation formed under this article is hereby vested with all power necessary or requisite for the accomplishment of its corporate purpose and capable of being delegated by the legislature; and no enumeration of particular powers hereby granted shall be construed to impair any general grant of power herein contained, nor to limit any such grant to a power or powers of the same class as those so enumerated. (1935, c. 291, s. 12.)

§ 1694(19). Specific grant of powers.—Subject to the Constitution of the State, a corporation created under the provisions of this article shall have power to do any and all acts or things necessary or convenient for carrying out the purpose for which it was formed, including, but not limited to:

(a) To sue and be sued.

(b) To have a seal and alter the same at pleasure.

(c) To acquire, hold and dispose of property, real and personal, tangible and intangible, or interests therein, and to pay therefor in cash or on credit, and to secure and procure payment of all or any part of the purchase price thereof on such terms and conditions as the board shall determine.

(d) To render service and to acquire, own, operate, maintain and improve a system or systems.

(e) To pledge all or any part of its revenue or mortgage or otherwise encumber all or any part of its property for the purpose of securing the payment of the principal of and interest on any of its obligations.

(f) The right to apply to the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority for permission to construct or place any parts of its system or lines in and along any state highway or over any lands which now, or may be, the property of this State, or any political subdivision thereof. In all questions involving the right of way, or the right of eminent domain, the rulings of the North Carolina Electrification Authority shall be final.

(g) To accept gifts or grants of money, property, real or personal, from any person or federal agency, and to accept voluntary and uncompensated services.

(h) To make any and all contracts necessary or convenient for the full exercise of the powers in this article granted, including, but not limited to, contracts with any person or federal agency, for the purchase or sale of energy; for the management and conduct of the business of the corporation, including the regulation, of the rates, fees or charges for service rendered by the corporation.

(i) To sell, lease, mortgage or otherwise encumber or dispose of all or any part of its property, as hereinafter provided.

(j) To contract debts, borrow money, and to issue or assume the payment of bonds.

(k) To fix, maintain and collect fees, rents, tolls and other charges for service rendered.

(l) To perform any and all of the foregoing acts and to do any and all of the foregoing things under, through or by means of its own officers, agents and employees, or by contracts with any person or federal agency. (1935, c. 291, s. 13.)

§ 1694(20). Declared public agency of state; taxes and assessments. — Whenever an electric membership corporation is formed in the manner herein provided, the same shall, and is hereby declared to be a public agency, and shall have within its limits for which it was formed the same rights as any other political subdivision of the State, and all property owned by said corporation and used exclusively for the purpose of said corporation shall be held in the same manner and subject to the same taxes and assessments as property owned by any county or municipality of the State so long as said property is owned by said electric membership corporation and is used for the purposes for which the corporation was formed. (1935, c. 291, s. 14)

§ 1694(21). Sale of property.—No corporation may sell, mortgage, lease or otherwise encumber or dispose of any of its property (other than merchandise and property, which in the judgment of the board, is not necessary or useful in operating the corporation) unless authorized so to do (a) by the votes of at least a majority of its members, and (b) the consent of the holders of seventy-five per centum (75%) in amount of the bonds of such corporation then outstanding is obtained. (1935, c. 291, s. 15.)

§ 1694(22). Issuance of bonds.—A corporation formed hereunder shall have power and is hereby authorized, from time to time, to issue its bonds in anticipation of its revenue for any corporate purpose. Said bonds may be authorized by resolution or resolutions of the board, and may bear such date or dates, mature at such time or times, not exceeding forty years from their respective dates, bear interest at such rate or rates, not exceeding six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, be in such denominations, be in such form, either coupon or registered, carry such registration privileges, be executed in such manner, be payable in such medium of payment, at such place or places, and be subject to such terms of redemption, not exceeding par and accrued interest, as such resolution or resolutions may provide. Such bonds may be sold in such manner and upon such terms as the board may determine at not less than par and accrued interest. Any provision of law to the contrary notwithstanding, any bonds and the interest coupons appertaining thereto, if any, issued pursuant to this article shall possess all of the qualities of negotiable instruments. (1935, c. 291, s. 16.)

§ 1694(23). Covenants or agreements for security of bonds.—In connection with the issuance of any bonds, a corporation may make covenants or agreements and do any and all acts or things that a business corporation can make or do under the laws of the State in order to secure its obligations or which, in the absolute discretion of the board, tend to make the obligations more marketable, notwithstanding that such covenants, agreements, acts and things may constitute limitations on the exercise of the powers herein granted. (1935, c. 291, s. 17.)

§ 1694(24). Purchase and cancellation of bonds.—A corporation shall have power out of any funds available therefor to purchase any bonds issued by it at a price not exceeding the principal amount thereof and accrued interest thereon. All bonds so purchased shall be cancelled. (1935, c. 291, s. 18.)

§ 1694(25). Dissolution. — Any corporation created hereunder may be dissolved by filing, as hereinafter provided, a certificate which shall be entitled and endorsed "Certificate of Dissolution of....." (the blank space being filled in with the name of the corporation) and shall state:

(a) Name of the corporation, and if such corporation is a corporation resulting from a consolidation as herein provided, the names of the original corporations.

(b) The date of filing of the certificate of incorporation, and if such corporation is a corporation resulting from a consolidation as herein provided, the dates on which the certificates of incorporation of the original corporations were filed.

(c) That the corporation elects to dissolve.

(d) The name and post-office address of each of its directors, and the name, title and post-office address of each of its officers.

Such certificate shall be subscribed and acknowledged in the same manner as an original certificate of incorporation by the president or a vice-president, and the secretary or an assistant secretary, who shall make and annex an affidavit, stating that they have been authorized to execute and file such certificate by the votes cast in person or by proxy by a majority of the members of the corporation entitled to vote.

A certificate of dissolution and a certified copy or copies thereof shall be filed in the same place as an original certificate of corporation and thereupon the corporation shall be deemed to be dissolved.

Such corporation shall continue for the purpose of paying, satisfying and discharging any existing liabilities or obligations and collecting or liquidating its assets, and doing all other acts required to adjust and wind up its business and affairs, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name. Any assets remaining after all liabilities or obligations of the corporation have been satisfied or discharged shall pass to and become the property of the State. (1935, c. 291, s. 19.)

§ 1694(26). Amendment of certificate of incorporation.—A corporation created hereunder may amend its certificate of incorporation to change its corporate name, to increase or reduce the number of its directors or change any other provision therein: Provided, however, that no corporation shall amend its certificate of incorporation to embody therein any purpose, power or provisions which would not be authorized if its original certificate, including such additional or changed purpose, power or provisions, were offered for filing at the time a certificate under this section is offered. Such amendment may be accomplished by filing a certificate which shall be entitled and endorsed "Certificate of Amendment of..... Electric Membership Corporation" and state:

(a) The name of the corporation, and if it has been changed, the name under which it was originally incorporated.

(b) The date of filing the certificate of incorporation in each public office where filed.

(c) The purposes, powers, or provisions, if any, to be amended or eliminated, and the purposes, powers or provisions, if any, to be added or substituted. Such certificate shall be subscribed in the same manner as an original certificate of incorporation hereunder by the president or a vice-president, by the secretary or the assistant secretary, who shall make and annex an affidavit stating that they have been authorized to execute and file such certificate by the votes cast in person or by proxy by a majority of the members of the corporation entitled to vote. Such certificate shall be filed in the same places as an original certificate of incorporation and thereupon the amendment shall be deemed to have been effected. (1935, c. 291, s. 20.)

§ 1694(27). Application for grant or loan from governmental agency.—Whenever any corporation organized hereunder desires to secure a grant or loan from any agency of the United States government now in existence or hereafter authorized, they shall apply through the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority and not direct to the United States agency, and the said North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority alone shall have the authority to make applications for grants or loans to any corporations created hereunder. (1935, c. 291, s. 21.)

§ 1694(28). Article complete in itself and controlling. — This article is complete in itself and shall be controlling. The provisions of any other law, general, special, or local, except as provided in this article, shall not apply to a corporation formed under this article. (1935, c. 291, s. 23.)

CHAPTER 32

ELECTRIC, TELEGRAPH, AND POWER COMPANIES

Art. 1. Acquisition and Condemnation of Property

§ 1695. Use of public highways.—Any duly incorporated company possessing the power to construct telegraph or telephone lines, lines for the conveying of electric power or for lights, either or all, has the right to construct, maintain and operate such lines along any railroad or other public highway, but such lines shall be so constructed and maintained as not to obstruct or hinder the usual travel on such railroad or other highway. (Rev., s. 1571; Code, s. 2007; 1899, c. 64, s. 1; 1903, c. 562; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 2.)

Constitutionality.—The provisions of secs. 1695-1703, empowering electric power or lighting companies, etc., to condemn lands for the erection of poles, establishment of offices, and other appropriate purposes, are constitutional and valid. Wissler v. Yadkin River Power Co., 158 N. C. 465, 74 S. E. 460.

Application to Foreign Companies.—The right to construct and operate telegraph lines along any railroad or other public highway in the State, and to obtain the right of way therefor by a condemnatory proceeding, is expressly conferred upon any telegraph company incorporated by this or by any other State. North Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Carolina Cent., etc., R. Co., 83 N. C. 489, 496; Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 271, 76 S. E. 267.

No Rights over Private Land.—This section applies to constructing lines along the highway and not to constructing the lines over private land. Wade v. Carolina Tel., etc., Co., 147 N. C. 219, 60 S. E. 987.

An Additional Burden.—A telegraph line along a railroad and on the right of way of the railroad is an additional burden upon the land, for which the landowner is entitled to just compensation. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022; Query v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 178 N. C. 639, 101 S. E. 390; Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 225, 45 S. E. 572 and cases cited. For right of telegraph company to condemn railroad right of way, see sec. 1700. The same rule applies to electric light wires placed along the street. Brown v. Electric Co., 138 N. C. 533, 51 S. E. 62. But the construction of a street passenger railway does not impose any additional servitude upon the property fronting on the street so occupied. Hester v. Traction Co., 138 N. C. 288, 50 S. E. 411 and cases cited.

§ 1696. Electric and hydro-electric power companies may appropriate highways; conditions.—Every electric power or hydro-electric power corporation which may exercise the right of eminent domain under the chapter Eminent Domain, where in the development of electric or hydro-electric power it shall become necessary to use or occupy any public highway, or any part of the same, after obtaining the consent of the board of county commissioners of the county in which such public highway is situate, shall have power to appropriate said public highway for the development of electric or hydro-electric power: Provided, that said electric power or hydro-electric power corporation shall construct an equally good public highway, by a route to be selected by and subject to the approval and satisfaction of the board of county commissioners of the county in which said public highway is situated: Provided further, that said company shall pay all damages to be assessed as provided by law, by the damming of water, the discontinuance of the road, and for the laying out of said new road. (1911, c. 114.)

Where under the provisions of this section, a hydro-electric power company has appropriated a section of a public highway and built another section in lieu thereof, the provisions of the statute that the company pay all damages assessed as provided by law does not entitle the plaintiff to recover damages for the slight change in the road causing inconvenience to him in hauling wood, etc., to and from his market town. Crowell v. Tallassee Power Co., 200 N. C. 208, 156 S. E. 493.

§ 1697. Acquisition of right of way by contract.—Such telegraph, telephone, or electric power or lighting company has power to contract with any person or corporation, the owner of any lands or of any franchise or easement therein, over which its lines are proposed to be erected, for the right of way for planting, repairing and preservation of its poles or other property, and for the erection and occupation of offices at suitable distances for the public accommodation. This section shall not be construed as requiring electric power or lighting companies to erect offices for public accommodation. (Rev., s. 1572; Code, s. 2008; 1899, c. 64; 1903, c. 562, ss. 1, 2; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 3.)

For general provisions as to eminent domain, see sec. 1698 et seq.

Owner Must Grant Easement.—A railroad company, not being the owner of the soil, can not grant an easement to a telegraph company. Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 225, 45 S. E. 572. See also Narron v. Wilmington etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 856, 29 S. E. 356.

Easement by Adverse Possession.—Right of easement may be acquired by adverse and continuous user for the period of twenty years. Teeter v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 172 N. C. 783, 90 S. E. 941.

§ 1698. Grant of eminent domain; exception as to mills and water-powers.—Such telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting company shall be entitled, upon making just compensation therefor, to the right of way over the lands, privileges and easements of other persons and corporations, and to the right to erect poles and towers, to establish offices, and to take such lands as may be necessary for the establishment of their reservoirs, ponds, dams, works, railroads, or sidetracks, or power-houses, with the right to divert the water from such ponds or reservoirs and conduct the same by flume, ditch, conduit, waterway or pipe line, or in any other manner, to the point of use for the generation of power at its said power-houses, returning said water to its proper channel after being so used: Provided, that the provision as to erection of towers shall not apply to any suit pending March 4, 1921, in any of the courts within the state of North Carolina. Nothing in this section authorizes interference with any mill or power plant actually in process of construction or in operation; or the taking of water-powers, developed or undeveloped with the land adjacent thereto necessary for their development: Provided, however, that if the court, upon filing of the petition by such electric power or lighting company, shall find that any mill, excepting cotton mills now in operation, whether operated by water-power or otherwise, together with the lands and easements adjacent thereto or used in connection therewith, or that any water-power, developed or undeveloped, with land adjacent thereto necessary for its development, excepting any water-power, right or property of any person, firm or corporation engaged in the actual service of the general public where such water-power, right or property is being used or held to be used or to be developed for use in connection with or in addition to any power actually used by such person, firm or corporation serving the general public, is necessary for the development of any hydro-electric power plant which is to be operated for the purpose of generating electric power for sale to the general public, and that said electric power or lighting company is unable to agree for the purchase of such property with the owners thereof, and that the failure to acquire such property will affect the ability of such electric power or lighting company to supply power to the general public, and that the taking of such mill or water-power will be greatly more to the benefit of the public than the continued existence of such mill or the continuation of the existing ownership of such water-power, then the court, upon such finding, shall make an order authorizing the condemnation of such property and easements in all respects as in the case of other property referred to in this section: Any provisions in conflict with this chapter in any special chapters granted before January thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and seven, in respect to the right of eminent domain are repealed. (Rev., s. 1733; Code, s. 2009; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 4; 1899, c. 64; 1903, c. 562; 1907, c. 74; 1921, c. 115; 1923, c. 60; 1925, c. 175.)

As to right of eminent domain in general as granted to railroads, school boards, etc., see the following chapter.

Editor's Note.—This section as it stood in 1919 expressly prohibited interference with any mill or power plant actually in process of construction or operation, also the taking of water powers, developed or undeveloped with the necessary adjacent land.

By ch. 60, Laws of 1923 the provision for condemning mills, when to the best interests of the public, was added. Cotton mills are excepted.

Ch. 175, Laws of 1925 added the power to condemn any waterpower developed or undeveloped which is not being held for use or actually used in the furnishing of power to the public.

Thus by these two amendments the Legislature has practically abolished the restrictions which existed in the section in 1919. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 290; 3 N. C. Law Rev. 144.

The General Assembly originally inserted the proviso "water powers, developed or undeveloped, with the necessary land adjacent thereto for their development, shall not be taken," for the purpose of preventing the acquisition of all of the water powers by one or more of the great aggregations of capital. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Hendersonville Light, etc., Co., 169 N. C. 471, 86 S. E. 296.

Right Granted for Public Benefit.—This power of eminent domain is conferred upon corporations affected with public use, not so much for the benefit of the corporations themselves, but for the use and benefit of the people at large. Wissler v. Yadkin River Power Co., 158 N. C. 465, 466, 74 S. E. 460.

Limitation of Right of Eminent Domain.—This section limits the right of eminent domain and any special power claimed by the charter must clearly appear. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Whitney Co., 150 N. C. 31, 63 S. E. 188. See Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Hendersonville Light, etc., Co., 169 N. C. 471, 86 S. E. 296.

A Continuing Right.—The right of eminent domain is not necessarily exhausted by a single exercise of the power, but, within the limits established by the general law or special charter, a subsequent or further exercise of the power may be permissible. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 273, 76 S. E. 267; Thomason v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 318, 55 S. E. 205.

Effect of Federal Statute.—The Act of Congress, entitled "An act to aid in the construction of telegraphs and to secure to the government the use of the same for postal, military and other purposes," approved 24 July, 1866, does not give authority to enter private property without consent of the owner, but provides that where consent is obtained, no State legislation shall prevent the use of such postroads for telegraph purposes by such corporations as avail themselves of its privileges. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Quasi-Public Corporations Have Power.—Where a charter is granted a corporation, conferring quasi-public as well as private powers, the corporation may proceed to condemn lands when so empowered, in pursuance of its business of a quasi-public nature, and this will not be denied it because it was authorized to conduct a business of a private character. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 88 S. E. 349.

Compensation Essential.—Private property may not be taken for public use, directly or indirectly, without just compensation. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022. See secs. 1720, 1721 as to fixing compensation.

Conflict of Claims.—Where the claims of two companies conflict the prior right belongs to that company which first defines and marks its route. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 88 S. E. 349.

Effect of Subsequent Charter.—Where a legislative charter has been granted since this section was passed, the powers given therein are not subject to the restriction of this section. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 88 S. E. 349.

Extent of Rights Usually Determined by Companies.—The extent and limit of the rights to be acquired are primarily and very largely referred to the companies or grantees of the power, and only becomes an issuable question, usually determinable by the court, on allegation of facts tending to show bad faith on the part of the companies, or an oppressive or manifest abuse of their discretion. Love v. R. R., 81 N. C. 432, cited and distinguished. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 76 S. E. 267.

Burden of Proof on Defendant.—Where a quasi-public corporation brings action for condemnation, and the defendant resists upon the ground that the lands or power sought to be taken are protected by the statute, the burden of proof is upon the defendant to bring the lands or water power within the provision of the statute excepting them. Blue Ridge Interurban, R. Co. v. Hendersonville Light, etc., Co., 171 N. C. 314, 88 S. E. 245.

§ 1699. Residences, etc., may be taken under certain cases.—Residence property of vacant lots adjacent thereto in towns or cities, or other residences, gardens, orchards, graveyards or cemeteries, may be taken under the preceding section only when the company alleges, and upon the proceedings to condemn makes it appear to the satisfaction of the court, that it owns or otherwise controls not less than seventy-five per cent of the fall of the river or stream on which it proposes to erect its works, from the location of its proposed dam to the head of its pond or reservoir; or when the corporation commission, upon the petition filed by the company, shall, after due inquiry, so authorize. Nothing in this section repeals any part or feature of any private charter, but any firm or corporation acting under a private charter may operate under or adopt any feature of this section. (1907, c. 74; 1917, c. 108.)

§ 1700. Condemnation on petition; parties' interests only taken; no survey required.—When such telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting company fails on application therefor to secure by contract or agreement such right of way for the purposes aforesaid over the lands, privilege or easement of another person or corporation, it is lawful for such company, first giving security for costs, to file its petition before the superior court for the county in which said lands are situate, or into or through which such easement, privilege or franchise extends, setting forth and describing the parcels of land, privilege or easement over which the way, privilege or right of use is claimed, the owners of the land, easement or privilege, and their places of residence, if known, and if not known that fact shall be stated, and such petition shall set forth the use, easement, privilege or other right claimed, and must be sworn to, and if the use or right sought be over or upon an easement or right of way, it shall be sufficient to give jurisdiction if the person or corporation owning the easement or right of way be made a party defendant.

Only the interest of such parties as are brought before the court shall be condemned in any such proceedings, and if the right of way of a railroad or railway company sought to be condemned extends into or through more counties than one, the whole right and controversy may be heard and determined in one county into or through which such right of way extends.

It is not necessary for the petitioner to make any survey of or over the right of way, nor to file any map or survey thereof, nor to file any certificate of the location of its line by its board of directors. (Rev., s. 1574; Code, s. 2010; 1899, c. 64, s. 2; 1903, c. 562; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 5.)

For the right of condemnation in general, see notes to sec. 1706.

The Petition.—Under this section it is not necessary that a petition asking for the condemnation of a right of way over the right of way of a railroad should state by what tenure the railroad company holds. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

Same—Company Alone Can File.—The company alone has the right to file petition in condemnation proceedings. The landowner is not given such right. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Condemnation Not Confined to Right of Way.—The power of condemnation granted to these companies is not confined to a right of way, delimited by surface boundaries, but may be extended to cutting of trees or removing obstructions outside of these boundaries when required for the reasonable preservation and protection of their lines and other property. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 275, 76 S. E. 267.

No Entry Until Damage Paid.—Under this section a telegraph company seeking to condemn a right of way for its line cannot be authorized to enter into possession and construct its line until the damages have been assessed and paid into court. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

Subsequent Purchaser May Recover.—A purchaser of land subsequent to the taking and erection thereon of a telegraph line may recover permanent damages for the easement taken, and the telegraph company thereby acquires the easement and right to maintain its line thereon. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Permanent Damage Awarded.—Permanent damages may be awarded a landowner who is injured by telegraph poles placed on his land. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022; Lamberth v. Southern Power Co., 152 N. C. 371, 372, 67 S. E. 921. And the company then acquires an easement. Ibid.

Limitation of City Authority.—Authority granted by a city to the defendant electric company to remove a shade tree in front of the plaintiff's home in order to put up its poles and wires does not justify the act of the defendant in removing the tree, the city has no power to deprive the plaintiff of his property for such purpose without compensation. Brown v. Electric Co., 138 N. C. 533, 51 S. E. 62.

When Jury Trial Necessary.—While ordinarily a jury trial is not required in condemnation proceedings, except as to the assessment of damages, the general rule does not apply where the pleadings put at issue the question as to whether the character of the lands is such as to be embraced within the right conferred, or within an exception to that right under the terms of a statute. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Oates, 164 N. C. 167, 80 S. E. 398.

Judgment under Prior Act Necessary.—In order to acquire a vested right under a statute to condemn lands, which has subsequently been repealed, it is necessary to show a finality by judgment in the proceedings before the later act has become effective. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Oates, 164 N. C. 167, 80 S. E. 398.

Condemnation of Railroad Right of Way.—The words "right of way," as used in the second paragraph of this section, are not used as synonymous with "easement," but, as applied to railroads, they include in their meaning the strip of land over which the track is laid through the country, and which is used in connection therewith, whether the railroad company owes only an easement therein or the title in fee. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 90 Fed. 30.

Same—Proceeding against Railroad Does Not Affect Owner.—Condemnation proceedings by a telegraph company against a railroad company to condemn the right of way, to which the landowner is not a party, gives no rights against the landowner, but gives rights only against the parties before the court. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Same—Limitation of Federal Statute.—Rev. St. sec. 5263, authorizing telegraph companies to construct their lines over and along any military or post roads of the United States, does not give such companies the right to build their lines over the right of way of a railroad or other private property without the consent of the owner, or the condemnation of the right of way over such property in accordance with the laws of the state where situated. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

Same—Additional Burden.—See notes to sec. 1695.

§ 1701. Copy of petition to be served.—A copy of such petition, with a notice of the time and place the same will be presented to the superior court, must be served on the persons whose interests are to be affected by the proceeding at least ten days prior to the presentation of the same to the said court. (Rev., s. 1575; Code, s. 2011; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 6; 1899, c. 64, s. 3.)

Failure to Give Prosecution Bond.—Where it appears that the summons was served in time, but that the prosecution bond, made a prerequisite by sec. 493, was not, no vested right in the former statute can be acquired by the further prosecution of the condemnation proceedings. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Oates, 164 N. C. 167, 80 S. E. 398.

§ 1702. Proceedings as under Eminent Domain.—The proceedings for the condemnation of lands, or any easement or interest therein, for the use of telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting companies, the appraisal of the lands, or interest therein, the duty of the commissioners of appraisal, the right of either party to file exceptions, the report of commissioners, the mode and manner of appeal, the power and authority of the court or judge, the final judgment, and the manner of its entry and enforcement, and the rights of the company pending the appeal, shall be as prescribed in Article 2, entitled "Condemnation Proceedings," of the chapter Eminent Domain. (Rev., s. 1576; Code, s. 2012; 1899, c. 64; 1903, c. 562.)

Subsequent Provisions Not Incorporated.—The reference in this section to article 2 of eminent domain incorporates into the telegraph statute the provisions of the railroad statute referred to, only as they existed at the time of the enactment, and not as thereafter amended. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

Proceedings Subsequent to Filing.—This section evidently refers to the proceedings subsequent to the filing of the petition and the service of the required notices. In other words, it refers to the proceedings after the parties are all before the court. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 525, 41 S. E. 1022. Hence sec. 1716, as to filing and service, does not apply. Id.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 408, 151 S. E. 871.

§ 1703. Commissioners to inspect premises.—In considering the question of damages when the interest sought is over an easement, privilege or right of way, the commissioners may inspect the premises or rest their finding on such testimony as to them may be satisfactory. (Rev., s. 1577; Code s. 2013; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 9.)

Art. 2. Intrastate Telegraph Messages

§ 1704. Penalty for nondelivery of intrastate telegraph message.—Any telegraph company doing business in this state shall fail to transmit and deliver any intrastate message within a reasonable time shall forfeit and pay to any one who may sue for same a penalty of twenty-five dollars. Such penalty shall be in addition to any right of action that any person may have for the recovery of damages. Proof of the sending of any message from one point in this state to another point in this state shall be prima facie evidence that it is an intrastate message. (1919, c. 175.)

Editor's Note.—Statutes in other states, similar to this section, have been held highly penal and not capable of being extended by implication to cases which do not come plainly within their terms.

It is generally held that "cipher" messages must be transmitted promptly, but that a regulation requesting that messages delivered for transmission must be in writing is reasonable. However, the sender is not bound by regulations to which he has not consented.

Ordinary Diligence Required.—Telegraph companies are only bound to the exercise of that degree of diligence which a man of ordinary prudence would use under like or similar circumstances. Betts v. Western Union Tel. Co., 167 N. C. 75, 83 S. E. 164; Barnes v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 156 N. C. 150, 72 S. E. 78 and cases cited.

Form of Action.—A party entitled to recover damages from a telegraph company for its failure in its duty to transmit and deliver a message may bring his action either in contract or in tort. Penn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 159 N. C. 306, 307, 75 S. E. 16.

Mental Anguish.—Mental anguish caused by the negligent delay or failure to deliver a telegram is allowed in intrastate messages, as an element of damage. Betts v. Western Union Tel. Co., 167 N. C. 75, 83 S. E. 164; Lawrence v. Western Union Tel. Co., 171 N. C. 240, 88 S. E. 226 and cases cited. And formerly mental anguish was allowed in interstate messages. Penn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 159 N. C. 306, 75 S. E. 16. But, by Act of Congress, 18th June 1910, no recovery is allowed for mental anguish alone in interstate messages whether the negligence occurred in the State or elsewhere. Norris v. Western Union Tel. Co., 174 N. C. 92, 93 S. E. 465.

Sending Message Through Another State Does Not Avoid Liability.—A telegraph company accepting a telegram to be transmitted between points in this State, where a recovery for mental anguish is allowed, may not avoid such liability under the federal decisions by unnecessarily sending the message through another state, when it could have reasonably been otherwise transmitted. Speight v. Western Union Tel. Co., 178 N. C. 146, 100 S. E. 351.

Same—Burden of Proof.—Where a telegraph company has direct available facilities for transmitting an intrastate telegram altogether within the state, and relays it at offices in another state, the burden of proof is upon it to show that it was not done to evade the jurisdiction of the state court. Speight v. Western Union Tel. Co., 178 N. C. 146, 100 S. E. 351.

Validity of Company's Regulation.—A stipulation on the back of the message that in the case of unrepeated messages the sender cannot recover more than $50 is invalid in this state. Young v. Western Union Tel. Co., 168 N. C. 36, 84 S. E. 45; Brown v. Postal Tel. Co., 111 N. C. 187, 16 S. E. 179, citing numerous cases and text books.

Same—Sixty Day Limitation.—The regulations of a telegraph company requiring presentation of claims for damages within sixty days, etc., are valid, and enforceable. Penn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 159 N. C. 306, 75 S. E. 16. Since this is not an attempt to restrict the liability of the company for negligence. Sherrill v. Western Union Tel. Co., 109 N. C. 527, 531, 14 S. E. 94.

CHAPTER 33

EMINENT DOMAIN

Art. 1. Right of Eminent Domain

§ 1705. Corporation in this chapter defined.—For the purposes of this chapter, unless the context clearly indicates the contrary, the word "corporation" includes the bodies politic and natural persons, enumerated in the following section, which possess the power of eminent domain.

§ 1706. By whom right may be exercised.—The right of eminent domain may, under the provisions of this chapter, be exercised for the purpose of constructing their roads, canals, lines of wires, or other works, which are authorized by law and which involve a public use or benefit, by the bodies politic, corporation, or persons following:

1. Railroads, street railroads, plankroad, tramroad, turnpike, canal, telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting, public water supply, flume, or incorporated bridge companies.

2. Municipalities operating water systems and sewer systems and all water companies, operating under charter from the state or license from municipalities, which may maintain public water supplies, for the purpose of acquiring and maintaining such supplies.

3. Persons operating or desiring to operate electric light plants, for the purpose of constructing and erecting wires or other necessary things.

4. Public institutions of the state for the purpose of providing water supplies, or for other necessary purposes of such institutions.

5. School committees of public school districts, public school committees of townships, county boards of education, boards of trustees or of directors of any corporation holding title to real estate upon which any public school, private school, high school, academy, university or college is situated, in order to obtain a pure and adequate water supply for such school, college or university.

6. North Carolina Fisheries Commission.

7. Any educational, penal, hospital or other institution incorporated or chartered by the state of North Carolina, for the furtherance of any of its purposes, such institution being wholly or partly dependent upon the state for maintenance, and such institution shall be in need of land for its location, or such institution shall be in need of adjacent land for necessary enlargement or extension, or for land for the building of a road or roads or a side-track for railroads, necessary for the proper operations and completion of any such institution, and shall so declare through its board of directors, trustees or other governing boards by a resolution inserted in the minutes at a regular meeting or special meeting called for that purpose, such institution shall have all the powers, rights and privileges of eminent domain given under this chapter, to condemn and procure such land, and shall follow the procedure established under this chapter. (Rev., s. 2575; Code, s. 1698; R. C., c. 61, s. 9; 1852, c. 92, s. 1; 1874-5, c. 83; 1907, cc. 39, 458, 783; 1911, c. 62, ss. 25, 26, 27; 1917, cc. 51, 132; 1923, c. 205; 1924, c. 118.)

I. SOURCE OF POWER.

Editor's Note.—The phrase "eminent domain" was first used by Hugo Grotius, celebrated writer and publicist, in 1625. Grotius says, "The property of subjects is under the eminent domain of the State, so that the state or he who acts for it, may use and even alienate and destroy such property, not only in case of extreme necessity, in which even private persons have a right over the property of others, but for ends of public utility, to which ends those who founded civil society must be supposed to have intended that private ends should give way." Grotius De Jure Belli et Pacis, Lib., 3, c. 20.

Thus the right to take private property for public use is one of the inherent attributes of every sovereign state. It lies dormant in the state until the right to exercise it is granted by the state to some public or quasi public corporation or until it is exercised by the state itself. Foltz v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 60 Fed. 316, 317. See also Adirondack R. Co. v. New York State, 176 U. S. 335, 346, 44 L. Ed. 492.

As adopted in 1919 this section contained but five subsections. Subsection 6 was added by ch. 118 Laws of 1924 and subsection 7 by ch. 205 Laws 1923.

Definitions.—Eminent domain is the power of a government to take private property for public uses upon payment of a just compensation. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 195 U. S. 540, 583, 49 L. Ed. 312. It has also been defined to be the right of disposing in case of necessity and for the public safety of all of the wealth of the country. See United States v. Jones, 109 U. S. 513, 519, 27 L. Ed. 1015.

Founded on Necessity.—This power, or right of eminent domain is possessed by the government, and may be exercised by the Legislature or under its authority. Unless vested there, it can not be called into action, and without it neither the government nor the state could hold together. It is peculiarly fit to be wielded by the Legislature—it is a power founded on necessity. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Davis, 19 N. C. 451, 458.

It was a right at common law and is not a right in equity or the creature of a statute. And while the time of its exercise may be prescribed by statute, the right itself is superior to any statute. Kohl v. United States, 91 U. S. 367, 377, 23 L. Ed. 449.

All private property is held subject to the necessities of the government, which may take personal or real property whenever its necessities or the exigencies of the occasion demand. United States v. Lynch, 188 U. S. 445, 465, 47 L. Ed. 539.

All property is held by tenure for the state, and all contracts are made subject to the right of eminent domain. Long Island Water Supply Co. v. Brooklyn, 166 U. S. 685, 692, 41 L. Ed. 1165.

Legislature Has Exclusive Control.—The method of taking land for a public use is within the exclusive control of the Legislature, limited by organic law, and the courts cannot help the injured landowner, where the statute has been strictly followed, until the question of compensation is reached. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.

A public service corporation has no power to condemn land by reasons of its being a riparian proprietor, but only under authority given by a valid statute to do so. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 96 S E. 99.

II. STRICT CONSTRUCTION.

In General.—In construing statutes which are claimed to authorize the exercise of the power of eminent domain, a strict rather than liberal construction is the rule. Such statutes assume to call into active operation a power which, however essential to the existence of the Government, is in derogation of the ordinary rights of private ownership and control which the owner usually had of his property. Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Pennearden Lumber, etc., Co., 132 N. C. 644, 652, 44 S. E. 358; Board v. Forrest, 193 N. C. 519, 137 S. E. 431.

The exercise of the power is in derogation of common right, and all laws conferring such power must be strictly construed. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 25, 10 S. E. 1041. And the right can be exercised only in the mode pointed out in the statute conferring it. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

For example, it has been held that the statutory authority given the county board of education to condemn land for school purposes is in derogation of a common-law right, and its terms will be strictly construed as to the extent or limit of the power given. Board v. Forrest, 193 N. C. 519, 137 S. E. 431.

A corporation furnishing electricity for public use may condemn lands of a private owner necessary for its transmission lines under the provisions of this section, but it is unlawful for a power company to enter upon and take the lands of the owner for such purpose without complying with the statutory procedure. Crisp v. Nanthala Power, etc., Co., 201 N. C. 46, 158 S. E. 845.

Power Not Implied.—The power of eminent domain cannot be implied or inferred from vague or doubtful language, unless the necessity would defeat the grant. Commissioners v. Bonner, 153 N. C. 66, 69, 68 S. E. 970.

If the ligislative act is silent on the subject it is to be presumed that the Legislature intended that the necessary property should be obtained by contract. Commissioners v. v. Bonner, 153 N. C. 66, 69, 68 S. E. 970.

General Act Governs.—The provisions of the general railroad act prevail over provisions in the charter of a railroad company, unless the charter specifically designates and repeals these provisions of the general act. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 27, 10 S. E. 1041.

III. NATURE AND PURPOSE.

Purpose of Grant.—The right of eminent domain is granted because the public interest requires that private property shall be taken for public use under the circumstances and in the manner prescribed by law. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 173, 82 S. E. 5.

The right of eminent domain can only be exercised where the property taken is to be used for the benefit of the public, and under no circumstances can it be taken for a private use, as the taking of the property of one man for the benefit of another is not a constitutional exercise of this power. Strickley v. Highland Bay Gold Min. Co., 200 U. S. 527, 530, 50 L. Ed. 581.

The taking of private lands for turnpike or toll-road purposes is for a public use, and may be acquired for such purposes by proper proceedings before the clerk of the court of the appropriate county under the provisions of this section et seq., when the corporation has been organized under the provisions of our general incorporation law, sec. 4113 et seq., and, has express charter powers to do so. Mountain Retreat Ass'n v. Mt. Mitchell Develop. Co., 183 N. C. 43, 110 S. E. 524.

Draining Public Road.—Digging a ditch across private land for the purpose of draining a public road, amounts to a taking of private property for a public use. State v. New, 130 N. C. 731, 41 S. E. 1033.

Remedy for Abuse.—If, after acquiring the land under condemnation for a public use, a company should devote it to private purposes, there is a remedy by quo warranto and otherwise. Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 315, 78 S. E. 297.

IV. EXTENT OF POWER.

Discretion of Grantees.—A perusal of this entire chapter will clearly disclose that the extent and limit of the rights to be acquired are primarily and very largely referred to the companies or grantees of the power, and only becomes an issuable question, usually determinable by the court, on allegation of fact tending to show bad faith on the part of the companies or an oppressive or manifest abuse of their discretion. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 274, 76 S. E. 267.

A railroad company may use and occupy a right of way acquired by it under condemnation proceedings when, in its own judgment, the proper management and business necessities of the road may require it Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

In Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 325, 111 S. E. 543, the court said:—"In construing this legislation, the court has held that where the general power to condemn exists, the right of selection as to route, quantity, etc., is left largely to the discretion of the company or corporation, and does not become the subject of judicial inquiry except on allegations of fact tending to show bad faith on the part of the company or corporation or an oppressive and manifest abuse of the discretion conferred upon them by the law.

A Continuing Power.—The power of eminent domain conferred on electric public service corporations by this section is not necessarily exhausted by a single exercise of the power, but, within the limits established by the general law or special charter, a subsequent or further exercise of the power may be permissible. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 76 S. E. 267.

Rights Acquired.—Only an easement in lands passes from the owner to a railroad company under condemnation proceedings, divesting all the rights of owners who are parties to the proceedings in such easement during the corporate existence of the company, but allowing them to use and occupy the right of way in any manner not inconsistent with the easement acquired. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461; Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Same—As to Part Not Needed.—To the extent that the right of way is not presently required for the purpose of the road it may be occupied and used by the original owner in any manner not inconsistent with the easement acquired. Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C.

254, 35 S. E. 458; Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

Unless the land is needed for some such use, the occupation and cultivation by the owner of the servient tenement will be disturbed only when it becomes necessary for the company to enter in order to remove something which endangers the safety of its passengers, or which might, if undisturbed, subject the owner to liability for injury to adjacent lands or property. Ward v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 113 N. C. 566, 18 S. E. 211, and Ward v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 358, 13 S. E. 926; Blue v. Aberdeen, etc., R. Co., 117 N. C. 644, 649, 23 S. E. 275.

Land acquired by one railroad company under a legislative grant of the right of eminent domain, and unnecessary for the exercise of its franchise or the discharge of its duties, is liable to be taken under the law of eminent domain for the use of another railroad company. North Carolina, etc., R. Co., v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 83 N. C. 489.

V. TO WHOM GRANTED.

Editor's Note.—The cross references above should be referred to for a list of the various corporations to which the right of eminent domain is especially granted by statute.

Public Service Corporations.—Where a corporation is authorized by its charter to generate and sell electricity, build dams and hydroelectric plants necessary to the generation of such hydroelectric power, and is therein given power of eminent domain to acquire the necessary rights of way and lands for its dams and the ponding of water, such corporation is a public-service corporation and has the power of eminent domain, as provided by this section, and it cannot be successfully contended that its taking of lands for ponding water necessary for one of its dams is a taking of private lands for a private use, nor does the fact that such public-service corporation also engages in private enterprises not connected with its public service alter this result. Whiting Mfg. Co. v. Carolina Aluminum Co., 207 N. C. 52, 175 S. E. 698.

Quasi-Public Corporations.—Where a corporation is authorized to conduct the quasi-public business of operating a street railway, it may exercise the right of eminent domain, in respect to this business given to it by its charter and by this section, notwithstanding it is also authorized to conduct business of a private nature. Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 78 S. E. 297.

The right of a corporation to condemn lands for a public use, having the statutory powers, is not affected or impaired because in the charter it may be given rights of a more private nature to which the right of condemnation may not attach. Mountain Retreat Ass'n v. Mt. Mitchell Develop. Co., 183 N. C. 43, 110 S. E. 524.

The use of the word "commercial railway" in a petition does not indicate that the land is to be used for private purposes, for the company engages in commerce when it carries articles of merchandise for the public Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 78 S. E. 297.

Stockholders of Railroad.—The Legislature may by the exercise of the power of eminent domain authorize the consolidation of railroads and, in effect, condemn the shares of dissenting stockholders. Spencer v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 107, 49 S. E. 96.

Overseer of Roads.—Sec. 3669 giving power to overseers of roads to cut poles on adjacent land is an instance of the exercise on the part of the sovereign of the right to take private property for the use of the public, making compensation. Collins v. Creecy, 53 N. C. 333, cited in note in 42 L. R. A., N. S., 1046.

VI. COMPENSATION ESSENTIAL.

As to determining compensation, see note to section 1721.

Definition of Compensation. — The word compensation imports that a wrong or injury has been inflicted, which must be expressed in money. Money must be paid to the extent of the injury, whether more or less than the value of the property. Bauman v. Ross, 167 U. S. 548, 591, 42 L. Ed. 270.

Necessity for Compensation. — By the general law of European nations and the common law of England it was a qualification of the right of eminent domain that compensation should be made for private property taken or sacrificed for the public use. See Pumpelly v. Green Bay Co., 13 Wall. 166, 20 L. Ed. 557.

This qualification founded on justice and a due regard for basic property rights is applied in North Carolina. Bennett v. Winston-Salem South-Bound R. Co., 170 N. C. 389, 87 S. E. 133.

In Johnston v. Rankin, 70 N. C. 550, the court said, on page 555: "Notwithstanding there is no clause in the Constitution of North Carolina which expressly prohibits private property from being taken for public use without compensation, and although the clause to that effect in the Constitution of the United States applies only to acts by the United States, and not to the government of the State, yet the principle is so grounded in natural equity that it has never been denied to be a part of the law of North Carolina." See Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 520, 41 S. E. 1022.

A citizen must surrender his private property in obedience to the necessities of a growing and progressive state, but in doing so he is entitled to be paid full, fair and ample compensation, to be reduced only by such benefits as are special and peculiar to his land. He has the right to have and enjoy the general benefits which are common to him and to his neighbors, without being required to pay therefor because it so happens that the use of his land is necessary for the needs of the public. Stamey v. Brunsville, 189 N. C. , 126 S. E. 103, 105.

Unconstitutional Unless Compensation Provided.—A statutory amendment to a former statute, which destroys and sensibly impairs vested property rights acquired under the former statute, or which attempts to transfer them either to the public or any other, except under the principles of eminent domain, and upon compensation duly made, is unconstitutional and invalid. Watts v. Lenoir, etc., Turnpike Co., 81 N. C. 129, 130, 106 S. E. 497.

Where a statute makes no provision for compensation, it is to be presumed that the Legislature did not intend that the power of eminent domain should be exercised. Commissioners v. Bonner, 153 N. C. 66, 68 S. E. 970.

When Implied.—Whenever the government in the exercise of its governmental rights takes property, the ownership of which it concedes to be in an individual, it impliedly promises to pay therefor. Lloyd v. Venable, 168 N. C. 534, 84 S. E. 855, 857.

§ 1707. Right to enter on and purchase lands.—Such bodies politic, corporation, or persons, may at any time enter upon the lands through which they may desire to conduct the roads or works authorized under the preceding section and lay out the same, and they may also enter upon such contiguous land along the route as may be necessary for depots, warehouses, engine sheds, workshops, water stations, tool-houses, and other buildings necessary for the accommodation of their officers, servants and agents, horses, mules and other cattle, and for the protection of their property; and shall pay to the proprietors of the land entered on such sum as may be agreed on between them. (Rev., s. 2575; Code, s. 1698; R. C., c. 61, s. 9; 1852, c. 92; s. 1; 1874-5, c. 83.)

Nature of the Right.—The right of entry granted a railroad company under this section, is only for the purpose of marking out the route and designating the building sites desired, to the end that the parties may come to an intelligent agreement as to the price. State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. And without the consent of the owner the company cannot enter by virtue of this section, for the purpose of building its road. Id.

Company Not a Trespasser.—A railroad company, having the right of eminent domain, entering upon and occupying lands for building its tracks, is not a trespasser. Abernathy v. South., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 63 S. E. 180.

§ 1708. Power of railroad companies to condemn land for union depots, double-tracking, etc.—Any railroad company operating a line of railroad in North Carolina whenever it shall find it necessary to occupy any land for the purpose of getting a union depot which has been ordered by the commission, or for the purpose of maintaining, operating, improving, or of straightening its line, or of altering its location, or of constructing double tracks, or of enlarging its yard or terminal facilities, or of connecting two of its lines already in operation not more than six miles apart, shall have the power to condemn such lands needed for such purpose under the provisions of this chapter. More than two acres may be condemned for yard or terminal facilities required for due operation of the railroad. No lands in any incorporated towns shall be condemned under this section until approved by the corporation commission, nor shall any yard, garden or dwelling-house be condemned, unless the corporation commission, upon petition filed by the railroad seeking to condemn, shall, after due inquiry, find that the railroad company cannot make the desired improvement without condemning the yard, garden or dwelling-house, except at an excessive cost. The power to condemn land under this section shall be enforceable and matters arising in regard thereto shall be tried only in the courts created by or under the constitution of this state. No rights granted or acquired under the provisions of this section shall in any way destroy or abridge the rights of the state to regulate or control such railroad company or to exclude foreign corporations from doing business in this state. (1907, c. 458, ss. 1, 2, 3.)

As to when corporation commission may order depots, etc., to be built, see section 1040 et seq.

In General.—This section confers on the roads the incidental right to make such changes in their line and route as are necessary to accomplish the purpose designed and to make the depot available and accessible to the traveling public as contemplated by the act. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

And it was intended to apply to all the cities and towns in the State, where, in the legal discretion of the commissioners, the move is practicable. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

Right of Access to Union Depot. — This section confers upon any railroad company the right to condemn land for the purpose of getting to a union depot required by the order of the Corporation Commission to be built. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563.

Section 3455 Does Not Apply. — Section 3455, requiring that a contemplated change in the route of a railroad in a city can only be made when sanctioned by a two-thirds vote of the alderman, only applies where the railroad of its own volition, and for its own convenience, contemplates a change of route, and not to a case where the Corporation Commission, acting under express legislative authority and direction, requires the railroad to make the change for the convenience of the general public. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

Injunction Will Not Issue.—Where the Corporation Commission, acting under this section, has selected a site after due inquiry, the railroads will not be enjoined, at the instance of citizens and property owners, from erecting the depot, either on the ground that the city is being sidetracked or that their property will be damaged by the proposed change. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

§ 1709. Condemning land for industrial sidings.—Any railroad company doing business in this state, whether such railroad be a domestic or foreign corporation, which has been or shall be ordered by the corporation commission to construct an industrial siding as provided in chapter 21, section 1044, is empowered to exercise the right of eminent domain for such purpose, to condemn property as provided in this chapter, and to acquire such right of way as may be necessary to carry out the orders of the corporation commission. Whenever it is necessary for any railroad company doing business in this state to cross the street or streets in a town or city in order to carry out the orders of the corporation commission, to construct an industrial siding, the power is hereby conferred upon such railroad company to occupy such street or streets of any such town or city within the state: Provided, license so to do be first obtained from the board of aldermen, board of commissioners, or other governing authorities of such town or city. (1911, c. 203.)

Cited in State v. Allen, 197 N. C. 684, 150 S. E. 337.

§ 1710. Condemnation by schools for water supply.—If the school authorities mentioned in subsection 5 of section 1706 shall be unable to agree with the owners of any lands which, or the use of which, it is necessary to appropriate in obtaining a pure and adequate water supply for the school, they shall file a petition for the condemnation of such lands in conformity with the provisions of this chapter. In addition to the particulars required to be set out in section 1716, the petition shall state whether the water supply is desired to be obtained from a spring, from a stream, or by digging artesian wells. The proceedings for such condemnation shall conform to the requirements of this chapter. No greater amount of land in area or width shall be condemned under this section than is necessary to obtain a pure and adequate water supply.

Any person holding title to land upon which any school, public or private, is located is empowered to obtain water supplies from the springs, streams or artesian wells the use of which is acquired under this section by building intakes, reservoirs, digging ditches, laying pipes or doing such other things as may be needful to obtain the water supply. (1907, c. 671.)

As to condemning land for school buildings, see section 5469.

§ 1711. Condemnation for steamboat wharves and warehouses.—Upon the order of the corporation commission that any steamboat company provide wharf and warehouse facilities as may be deemed reasonable and just, at any particular point, such company shall have power to condemn land for such purpose in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 52.)

§ 1712. May take material from adjacent lands.—For the purpose of constructing and operating its works and necessary appurtenances thereto, or of repairing them after they shall have been made, or of enlarging or otherwise altering them, the corporation entitled to exercise the powers of eminent domain may, at any time, enter on any adjacent lands, and cut, dig, and take therefrom any wood, stone, gravel, water or earth, which may be deemed necessary: Provided, that they shall not, without the consent of the owner, destroy or injure any ornamental or fruit trees. (Rev., s. 2576; Code, s. 1702; R. C., c. 61, s. 22; 1874-5, c. 83; 1907, c. 39, s. 2.)

In General.—The power of condemnation granted to these companies is not confined to a right of way, delimited by surface boundaries, but may be extended to cutting of trees or removing obstructions outside of these boundaries when required for the reasonable preservation and protection of their lines and other property. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 275, 76 S. E. 267.

Liability to Adjacent Owners.—A corporation damaging adjacent property while constructing a railroad is liable in damages just as a private individual would be. Staton v. Norfolk, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 278, 16 S. E. 181.

Compensation Granted.—The owner of the land is entitled to compensatory damages for the cutting of cross-ties on land not included in the right-of-way, and the negligent filling of ditches instead of building bridges over them in constructing the roads necessary to remove the timber, and for breaking down fences. Waters v. Greenleaf-Johnson Lumber Co., 115 N. C. 648, 20 S. E. 718.

§ 1713. How material paid for.—If for the value of the damages done to the owner by reason of the acts in the preceding section mentioned the parties may be unable to agree, the same shall be valued in the manner hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 2577; Code, s. 1703; R. C., c. 61, s. 23; 1874-5, 83.)

§ 1714. Dwelling-houses and burial grounds cannot be condemned.—No such corporation shall be allowed to have condemned to its use, without the consent of the owner, his dwelling-house, yard, kitchen, garden or burial ground, unless condemnation of such property is expressly authorized in its charter or by some provision of the Consolidated Statutes. (Rev., s. 2578.)

As to power of electric and telegraph companies to take residences, see section 1699.

Exercise of Discretion Not Permitted.—The principle arising under the general power to condemn, leaving the matter largely within the discretion of the governing authorities seeking condemnation, does not apply to the statutory exceptions. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 822, 111 S. E. 543.

No Application to Tenant Houses.—This section does not apply to tenant houses, but only to the dwellings of the owner of the lands, which is preserved to him for sentimental reasons; and which could not exist where such owner is a corporation renting the dwellings to its tenants. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 169, 82 S. E. 5.

Subsequent Use by Owner Not Protected.—When a provision in a charter of a railroad company or a deed granting it a right of way prohibited it from entering upon the yard, garden, burial ground, etc., of the defendants, but no portion of the right of way was so used at the date of its acquisition, the right of the company would not be interfered with by the fact that it has since been appropriated to such use. Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263; Dargan v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 131 N. C. 623, 625, 42 S. E. 979.

Nuisance a Taking under Section. — The creation and maintenance of a nuisance which sensibly impairs the value of lands of private owners is a taking within the principle of eminent domain and condemnation proceedings thereunder, and within the exception contained in this section, withdrawing dwellings from the effect of the statute. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

Municipal Corporations.—Where a city, under its charter, is given the same power to condemn lands of private owners for municipal purposes that is given to railroads and other public utilities, it is bound by the restrictions placed on them by this section. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

House Not Property of Railroad. — A house standing on the right of way does not become the property of the company. Shields v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 129 N. C. 1, 6, 39 S. E. 582; Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenburg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 82 S. E. 5.

The North Carolina National Park Commission created by Public Acts 1927, c. 48, is an agency of the State created by statute, vested with the power of eminent domain, and is not subject to the limitations provided in this section and § 1715. Yarbrough v. Park Commission, 196 N. C. 284, 145 S. E. 563.

Art. 2. Condemnation Proceedings

§ 1715. Proceedings when parties cannot agree.—If any corporation, enumerated in section 1706 of this chapter, possessing by law the right of eminent domain in this state, is unable to agree for the purchase of any real estate required for purposes of its incorporation or for the purposes specified in this chapter, it shall have the right to acquire title to the same in the manner and by the special proceedings herein prescribed. (Rev., s. 2579; Code, ss. 1943, 2009; 1885, c. 168; 1893, c. 63; 1901, cc. 6, 41, s. 2; 1899, c. 64; 1903, cc. 562, 159, s. 16; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 13.)

As to proceedings when land is condemned for a road, see section 3667. See also note under § 1714.

Not Exclusive Remedy.—It has been held formerly that this statutory remedy, modifying the charters of the railroad companies, is the only one open to one whose land is appropriated as a right of way. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4; McIntire v. Western, etc., Co., 67 N. C. 278.

This doctrine has been limited however as only applying to the preliminary entry upon land and the acquisition of the same for such purposes. And where a railroad or other public service corporation has made the entry, appropriated the right of way, constructed its road and is operating the same, and neither party has seen fit to resort to the statutory method, the owner of the land has the right at his election to sue for permanent damages and on payment of the same the easement will pass to the defendant. Mason v. Durham County, 175 N. C. 638, 641, 96 S. E. 110, citing numerous cases.

Applies to all Railroads.—The method of proceeding, for the condemnation of land by railroad corporations, prescribed by this section, is applicable to all railroads, whether formed under the general law or special act of incorporation. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

Prior Attempt to Agree Mandatory. — The statutory method of condemning a right of way can be exercised only when the parties are unable to agree upon the terms of acquirement. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

Attempt to Acquire Title. — The clause, "the corporation had not been able to acquire title thereto" has no reference to the pecuniary resources of the corporation; it may apply to the owner's refusal to sell except at a price which in the judgment of the corporation is excessive, to cases in which the owner by reason of some disability cannot convey his title, and likewise in other instances. Western Power Co. v. Moses, 191 N. C. 744, 746, 133 S. E. 5.

Thus it is not required of a quasi public-service corporation authorized to condemn land under the provisions of section 1706, that its first endeavor to agree with the owners, when it is made to appear that infants have an interest therein, and otherwise that a title to the lands could not be acquired in this way. Western Power Co. v. Moses, 191 N. C. 744, 133 S. E. 5.

No Right of Entry Until Payment.—In case the parties cannot agree, then the company may proceed to condemn the land, and the company does not acquire the right to enter for the purpose of constructing the road until the amount of the appraisement has been paid into court. State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. 210.

No Application to Trespasser.—The provisions of this section only apply to the mode of acquiring title to real estate and getting a right of way, but it has no application to trespasses committed outside of the right of way in building the road, and for such trespasses the corporations are liable in a civil action. Bridgers v. Dill, 97 N. C. 222, 1 S. E. 767.

Condemnation by Board of Education.—Sections 1715-1723 apply only to those corporations enumerated in section 1706, and have no application to a county board of education condemning land for school buildings, such proceedings are controlled by section 5469. Board v. Forrest, 193 N. C. 519, 520, 137 S. E. 431.

Cited in Winston-Salem v. Ashby, 194 N. C. 388, 139 S. E. 764.

§ 1716. Petition filed; contains what; copy served.—For the purpose of acquiring such title the corporation, or the owner of the land sought to be condemned, may present a petition to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the real estate described in the petition is situated, praying for the appointment of commissioners of appraisal. Such petition shall be signed and verified according to the rules and practice of such court; and if filed by the corporation it must contain a description of the real estate which the corporation seeks to acquire; and it must, in effect, state that the corporation is duly incorporated, and that it is its intention in good faith to conduct and carry on the public business authorized by its charter, stating in detail the nature of such public business, and the specific use of such land; that the land described in the petition is required for the purpose of conducting the proposed business, and that the corporation has not been able to acquire title thereto, and the reason of such inability. The petition, whether filed by the corporation or the owner of the land, must also state the names and places of residence of the parties, so far as the same can by reasonable diligence be ascertained, who own or have, or claim to own or have, estates or interests in the said real estate; and if any such persons are infants, their ages, as near as may be, must be stated; and if any such persons are idiots or persons of unsound mind or are unknown, that fact must be stated, together with such other allegations and statements of liens or encumbrances on said real estate as the corporation or the owner may see fit to make. A summons as in other cases of special proceedings, together with a copy of the petition, must be served on all persons whose interests are to be affected by the proceedings, at least ten days prior to the hearing of the same by the court. (Rev., s. 2580; Code, s. 1944; 1893, c. 396; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 14; 1907, c. 783, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—In Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 23, 10 S. E. 1041 the court states that the reasons for the requirements which are found in this section are based upon past experience. Before this section was passed the roads could locate their route according to their discretion, and they could not be controlled by the courts unless they abused their discretion. The remedy was usually by injunction which caused a great deal of litigation and delay both to the road and to the landowner. It was therefore deemed necessary, so that the landowner might know what land was intended to be appropriated and could have his grievances adjusted, to require the filing of maps, profiles, etc.

Strict Compliance.—This section stating the requisites of a petition in condemnation proceedings, must be strictly complied with, especially by a private corporation as distinguished from a public one or municipality. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683. See also, Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 10 S. E. 1041.

Summons Should Issue. — The proceeding authorized by this section is a special proceeding and a summons should issue as in all other cases. R. R. v. Lumber Co., 132 N. C. 644, 653, 44 S. E. 358.

General Language Permitted.—It is not essential that the particular language of the statute should be used. If the facts alleged plainly show that the petitioner has been unable to acquire title, and the reason why, that is a compliance with the statute. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.

What Petition Must Allege.—It is necessary for the petition in condemnation proceedings to allege, and the burden is upon the petitioner to show, a previous effort to acquire title to the right of way by agreement, and the reason of the failure to do so. In the absence of proof thereof the petition should be dismissed. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683; Power Co. v. Moses, 191 N. C. 744, 746, 133 S. E. 5.

And the petition, whether filed by an answer or by the company, should state the names of all persons interested, and all of them should be in court before the Commissioners are appointed. Hill v. Glendon, etc., Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 259, 18 S. E. 171.

Same—Where Landowner Files.—It is not necessary that the petition filed by a landowner in proceedings for the assessment of damages for land taken by a railroad company for a right of way, shall state that the petitioners and the company have failed to come to an agreement as to the sum to be paid, such averment being necessary only when the railroad company is the actor in such proceedings. Hill v. Glendon, etc., Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 259, 18 S. E. 171; Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 130, 53 S. E. 531.

Map and Profile.—The filing of a proper profile is a condition precedent before an order of condemnation shall be granted. Kinston, etc., R. Co. v. Stroud, 132 N. C. 413, 414, 43 S. E. 913; Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549. But the failure to so file the map and profile may be cured by amendment. R. R. v. Newton, supra; State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. 210. As to map and profile, see section 3471.

Fraudulent Deed May Be Set Aside.—Where a deed for a right of way was obtained from a landowner by fraud on the part of a railroad company, the superior court has jurisdiction to set aside the conveyance, but cannot go further in the same action, and ascertain and enforce payment of damages suffered by the grantor by reason of the appropriation of his land as a right of way by the company, although such appropriation was made by the company under the deed in question. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

Co-tenant Can File Petition.—The fact that a co-tenant of land has granted a right of way to a railroad company will not prevent another owner from instituting proceedings for the assessment of damages sustained by him, nor will such facts prevent the co-tenant, who has made such grant, from becoming a party to the proceedings and having his rights adjusted thereunder, upon a claim that the company had forfeited its right under the grant by failure to comply with the conditions thereof, and this, although such forfeiture did not occur until after the petition was first filed by his co-tenant. Hill v. Glendon, etc., Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 259, 18 S. E. 171.

Clerk Has Jurisdiction.—The charter of a railroad company provided that it might condemn land by a proceeding commenced before a court of record having common law jurisdiction; it was held, that the clerk of a superior court has jurisdiction of such proceeding. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 10 S. E. 1041.

In condemnation proceedings, the statement required by this section, that the plaintiff has not been able to acquire title to the land, and the reason of such inability, is the allegation of a preliminary jurisdictional fact, not triable by the jury and a question of fact for the decision of the clerk in the first instance, and perhaps subject to review by the judge on appeal. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 728, 53 S. E. 531.

Clerk's Finding of Facts Not Final.—The finding of the fact of the clerk upon preliminary allegations, under this section, in condemnation proceedings are not final and may be appealed from. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Section Does Not Apply to Telegraph Companies.—Inasmuch as section 1700 sets forth all the necessary statements for the petition of the telegraph company, and section 1701 provides for its service, only so much of the railroad law as directs proceedings after the petition is before the court is made applicable to telegraph companies, and section 1716 cannot be made to apply to telegraph companies. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 525, 41 S. E. 1022.

Waiver of Preliminary Hearing.—Where it is stipulated by the parties in condemnation proceedings that a hearing before commissioners apppointed by the clerk under the provisions of this section, should be waived, and judgment is rendered determining the amount of damages, and on appeal the Supreme Court affirms the judgment as to the compensation allowed and remands the cause for error in the exclusion of another element of compensation to which defendants are entitled, on the subsequent trial to determine the amount recoverable on such other element of compensation the parties are bound by the stipulation waiving a preliminary hearing by commissioners, and plaintiff's exception to the trial of the issue without such preliminary hearing will not be sustained. State v. Wilmington-Wrightsville Beach Causeway Co., 205 N. C. 508, 171 S. E. 859.

What Constitutes Waiver.—Where a city is sued for damages for running its water-supply pipe on the plaintiff's lands, and it is made to appear that the pipe land is upon the state's highway over the plaintiff's land, the plaintiff, s the dominant owner, may maintain his action, and the denial of this title or right by the defendant is a waiver of its right that the plaintiff should have proceeded before the clerk under this section; and the plaintiff may maintain his action of trespass in the superior court. Rouse v. Kinston, 188 N. C. 1, 123 S. E. 482.

Cited in State v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 199 N. C. 199, 201, 154 S. E. 72.

§ 1717. How process served.—The summons and a copy of the petition shall be served in the same manner as in special proceedings. (Rev., s. 2581; Code, s. 1944; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 14.)

Editor's Note.—In the case of Click v. Western, etc. R. Co., 98 N. C. 390, 4 S. E. 183, referring to a proceeding instituted against a railroad company by the owner of land the court said "This is neither a special proceeding nor a civil action as defined by the code. It is a summary proceeding."

This construction is overruled in Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Permearden Lumber, etc., Co., 132 N. C. 644, 653, 44 S. E. 358, where the court decides, that the Legislature has correctly called this a special proceeding and therefore a summons should issue as in all other cases.

§ 1718. Service where parties unknown.—If the person on whom such service of summons and petition is to be made is unknown, or his residence is unknown and cannot by reasonable diligence be ascertained, then such service may be made under the direction of the court, by publishing a notice, stating the time and place within which such person must appear and plead, the object thereof, with a description of the land to be affected by the proceedings, in a paper, if there be one, printed in the county where the land is situated, once in each week, for four weeks previous to the time fixed by the court, and if there be no paper printed in such county, then in a newspaper printed in the city of Raleigh. (Rev., s. 2582; Code, s. 1944, subsec. 5.)

As to appointment of attorney to represent unknown parties, see section 1728.

§ 1719. When court may direct how papers to be served.—In all cases not herein otherwise provided for, service of orders, notices, and other papers in the special proceedings authorized by this chapter may be made as in other special proceedings. (Rev., s. 2583; Code, s. 1944, subsec. 7.)

§ 1720. Answer to petition; hearing; commissioners appointed.—On presenting such petition to the superior court, with proof of service of a copy thereof, and of the summons, all or any of the persons whose estate or interests are to be affected by the proceedings may answer such petition and show cause against granting the prayer of the same, and may disprove any of the facts alleged in it. The court shall hear the proofs and allegations of the parties, and if no sufficient cause is shown against granting the prayer of the petition, it shall make an order for the appointment of three disinterested and competent freeholders who reside in the county where the premises are to be appraised, for the purposes of the company, and shall fix the time and place for the first meeting of the commissioners. (Rev., s. 2584; Code, s. 1945; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 15.)

Finding of Facts Conclusive. — In condemnation proceedings, when it is proper for the lower court to find the facts, his findings upon competent supporting evidence are conclusive. Johnson City, etc. R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Collateral Attack by Landowner.—The court will not sustain a collateral attack, and deny the right of condemnation, upon a suggestion that the petitioner may exceed its chartered right in the use of the property thus acquired by condemnation. Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 317, 78 S. E. 297.

Same—Charter Cannot Be Attacked. — The charter of a corporation cannot be collaterally attacked, and a direct proceeding must be brought to annul it. But if the charter were on its face inoperative and void, a court would so declare it in any proceedings to condemn lands by virtue of the right of eminent domain claimed thereunder. Kinston, etc., R. Co. v. Stroud, 132 N. C. 413, 414, 43 S. E. 913; Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

Same—Advisability of Project.—The advisability of widening a street is a matter committed by law to the sound discretion of the aldermen, with the exercise of which neither the defendants nor the courts can interfere. It is a political and administrative measure of which the defendants are not even entitled to notice or to be heard. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.

Same—Denial That Land Necessary.—A railroad company is entitled to so much of the right of way as may be necessary for the purpose of the company, and the denial by a person in the possession of a portion of the right of way that the portion in controversy is necessary for the purposes of the company does not raise an issue of fact to be determined by a jury, as the company is the judge of the necessity and extent of such use. Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263.

What Matters Issuable.—A perusal of the entire statute discloses that the extent and limit of the rights to be acquired are primarily and very largely referred to the companies or grantees of the power, and only becomes an issuable question, usually determinable by the court, on allegation of fact tending to show bad faith on the part of the companies or an oppressive or manifest abuse of their discretion. Carolina Cent R. Co. v. Love, 81 N. C. 434, cited and distinguished. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 76 S. E. 267.

Where issuable matters are raised before the clerk under this section he should pass upon these matters presented in the record, have the land assessed through commissioners, as the statute directs, allowing the parties, by exceptions to raise any question of law or fact issuable or otherwise to be considered on appeal to the superior court from his award of damages, as provided by law. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

Rights Protected by Injunction. — And the rights of the parties may be protected in the meantime from interference by an injunction issued by the judge on application made in the cause, and in instances properly calling for such course. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

Appointment of Appraisers.—The judge of the court may appoint the appraisers either in term or vacation, while the clerk can do so only in vacation, and then only as representing the court. Click v. Western, etc., R. Co., 98 N. C. 390, 4 S. E. 183.

No Appeal from Order Appointing Commissioners. — An order appointing commissioners to assess damages is interlocutory, and no appeal will be entertained until after final judgment upon the report of the commissioners. Telegraph Co. v. R. R., 83 N. C. 420; Commissioners v. Cook, 86 N. C. 18; Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Warren, 92 N. C. 620; Hendrick v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 98 N. C. 431, 4 S. E. 184, and cases cited.

§ 1721. Powers and duties of commissioners.—The commissioners, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, shall take and subscribe an oath that they will fairly and impartially appraise the lands mentioned in the petition. Any one of them may issue subpœnas, administer oaths to witnesses, and any two of them may adjourn the proceedings before them from time to time, in their discretion. Whenever they meet, except by the appointment of the court or pursuant to adjournment, they shall cause ten days notice of such meeting to be given to the parties who are to be affected by their proceedings, or their attorney or agent. They shall view the premises described in the petition, hear the proofs and allegations of the parties, and reduce the testimony, if any is taken by them, to writing; and after the testimony is closed in each case, and without any unnecessary delay, and before proceedings to the examination of any other claim, a majority of them all being present and acting, shall ascertain and determine the compensation which ought justly to be made by the corporation to the party or parties owning or interested in the real estate appraised by them. They shall report the same to the court within ten days. (Rev., s. 2585; Code, s. 1946; 1871-2, c. 138, ss. 16-18; 1891, c. 160.)

As to compensation, see further 5 Enc. Dig. 147 et seq. 14 Enc. Dig. 18 et seq.

Editor's Note.—In the published Acts of 1871-72, ch. 138 a large part of section 18 was erroneously printed under section 16. This error was repeated in the Revisal, ch. 99. See note to American Union Tel. Co. v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 83 N. C. 420, 424. In the Code of 1883 section 1946 included sections 16-18 of ch. 138 supra. In the present Code sections 1721 and 1723 both contain a part of section 1946 of the Code of 1883.

Just Compensation.—It seems to be the general rule in this jurisdiction that the compensation which ought justly to be made "just compensation," under our general statute, is such compensation after special benefits peculiar to the land are set off against damages. "The value of the land subject to such special benefits as may accrue to the remainder of the tract." Stamey v. Burnsville, 189 N. C. 39, 126 S. E. 103, 104.

Not an Interference with Right to Jury Trial.—It seems to have been settled in the case of Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Davis, 19 N. C. 451, that the Constitution (Art. 1, Sec. 19), guarantees the right to trial by jury in controversies respecting property, only in cases where, under the common law, the demand that the facts should be so found could not have been refused, and that in fixing the quantum of compensation to the landowner for the right-of-way condemned to the use of a railroad, commissioners do not invade the province that, under the ancient law, belonged peculiarly and exclusively to the jury. The Chowan, etc., R. Co. v. Parker, 105 N. C. 246, 248, 11 S. E. 328.

Basis of Award.—The damages are not assessed upon the idea of a proposed actual dominion, occupation and perception of the profits of the whole right of way by the corporation, but the calculation is based upon the principle that possession and exclusive control will be asserted only over so much of the condemned territory as may be necessary for corporate purposes, such as additional tracks, ditches and houses to be used for stations and section hands. Blue v. Aberdeen, etc., R. Co., 117 N. C. 644, 649, 23 S. E. 275.

Measure of Damages.—In condemnation proceedings the measure of damages is not the difference between the value of the owner's property before and after the taking, but the fair value of the land taken reduced by any special benefits received. Stamey v. Burnsville, 189 N. C. 39, 126 S. E. 103.

The owner of lands, through which a railroad has acquired a right of way by condemnation, is entitled to recover therefor the damages done to the remainder of the tract or portions of the land used by him as one tract, deducting from the estimate the pecuniary benefits of advantages which are special and peculiar to the tract in question, but not those which are shared by him in common with other owners of lands of like kind in the same vicinity. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

Same—Market Value. — In awarding damages to the owner of lands for an easement therein acquired for railroad purposes, there should, as a general rule, be included the market value of the land actually covered by the right of way, subject to modification under special circumstances, as where there is a mineral deposit of the use of which the easement does not interfere. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

Same—General Benefits. — Prior to 1872 in estimating damages the jury were not allowed to deduct any benefits, arising from the railroad under construction, which were common to the owner and all other persons in the vicinity but could set off any benefits peculiar to the particular tract involved. Freedle v. North Carolina R. Co., 49 N. C. 89. At the session of 1871-2 the Legislature changed this rule so that no benefits whatever could be deducted. Code section 1946. This latter provision was repealed in 1891, Laws 1891, ch. 160. The courts have subsequently construed this repeal to mean a restoration of the old rule as stated in Freedle's Case, supra. Southpart, etc., R. Co. v. Platt Land, 133 N. C. 266, 45 S. E. 589.

The Legislature has the power to allow municipal corporations to have the general benefits assessed as offsets against damages in an action to acquire land for a public purpose. But the power or authority must be given either by special charter or general state act. Stamey v. Brunsville, 189 N. C. 39, 126 S. E. 103, 104.

Date When Taken Governs.—For the purpose of determining the sum to be paid as compensation for land taken under the right of eminent domain, the value of the land taken should be ascertained as of the date of the taking, and the land is taken within the meaning of this principle when the proceeding is begun. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Hayes, 193 N. C. 104, 107, 136 S. E. 353.

Only Actual and Direct Damage Considered. — In estimating damages of any kind to lands taken by a railroad company it is only proper to consider actual damages, not those remote or speculative or dependent upon a future possible use of the property. Madison County R. Co. v. Galligan, 161 N. C. 190, 194, 76 S. E. 696.

The owner is entitled to compensation for the actual and direct damages which he may sustain by being deprived of his property. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 173, 82 S. E. 5.

Evidence Admissible.—In a proceeding to condemn land for a right of way, evidence to show the value of the land by its location and surroundings is admissible. Railroad v. Land Co., 137 N. C. 330, 49 S. E. 350. But a tax list is not admissible for that purpose. Id.

Damage to Adjoining Land.—The landowner will be entitled to have included in his assessment damages for injuries to lands adjoining those upon which the railroad is constructed. Hendrick v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 101 N. C. 617, 8 S. E. 236.

The owner of land, a part of which is taken under the right of eminent domain, may recover as compensation not only the value of the land taken, but also the damages thereby caused, if any, to the remaining land. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Hayes, 193 N. C. 104, 107, 136 S. E. 353.

These damages are limited to those which embrace the actual value of the property taken and the direct physical injuries to the remaining property. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 173, 82 S. E. 5.

Additional Burden.—When a railroad company puts additional burdens upon a right of way which it has acquired by condemnation not properly embraced in the general purpose for which it was obtained, the owner is entitled, to compensation for them. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

See further on this subject notes to section 1695.

If plaintiff does not own the land upon which the defendant has constructed its road and imposed a burden, he has nothing to be "taken," and therefore nothing for which he is entitled to compensation. Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 104, 63 S. E. 180.

Diversion of Water.—Damages caused by diversion of water are not covered by the statute, providing for the equipment of a right of way by railroad companies. Ward v. Albermarle, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 168, 16 S. E. 921.

Finding of Commissioners Conclusive.—The finding of commissioners that land taken for railroad purposes received no special benefit is conclusive. Southport, etc., Co. v. Platt Land, 133 N. C. 266, 45 S. E. 589.

Cited in Ayden v. Lancaster, 197 N. C. 556, 560, 150 S. E. 40.

§ 1722. Form of commissioners' report.—When the commissioners shall have assessed the damages, they shall forthwith make and subscribe a written report of their proceedings, in substance as follows:

To the Clerk of the Superior Court of ..... County:

We, ..., commissioners appointed by the court to assess the damages that have been and will be sustained by ....., the owner of certain land lying in the county of ....., which the ..... corporation proposes to condemn for its use, do hereby certify that we met on ..... (or the day to which we were regularly adjourned), and, having first been duly sworn, we visited the premises of the owner, and after taking into full consideration the quality and quantity of the land aforesaid, the additional fencing likely to be occasioned by the work of the corporation, and all other inconveniences likely to result to the owner, we have estimated and do assess the damages aforesaid at the sum of $.....

We have estimated the special benefits which the said owner will receive from the construction of said works to be the sum of $.....

Given under our hands, the ..... day of ....., A. D. 19..... (Rev., s. 2586; Code, s. 1700; R. C., c. 61, s. 17; 1874-5, c. 83.)

Editor's Note.—It was formerly provided that the report of the commissioners should be under seal. In Hanes v. North Carolina R. Co., 109 N. C. 490, 13 S. E. 896 the court held that this provision was not mandatory but directory only and the omission of the seal was not a fatal defect.

Report Need Not State Particulars.—The report of the commissioners will not be set aside because it fails to show in what the benefits assessed consist, where no objection was made when the report was submitted. Wilmington, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 99 N. C. 131, 5 S. E. 237.

Description of Land Not Essential.—A report of the commissioners is not invalid because it does not contain a description of the land, as that can be ascertained by reference to the location of the roadbed and right of way. Hanes v. North Carolina R. Co., 109 N. C. 490, 13 S. E. 896.

But as the easement is conveyed to the petitioner by the report of the commissioners when confirmed, it seems that the said easement should be described therein as fully and correctly as it would be in a grant. Railroad v. Land Co., 137 N. C. 330, 336, 49 S. E. 350.

Cited in Ayden v. Lancaster, 197 N. C. 556, 560, 150 S. E. 40.

§ 1723. Exceptions to report; hearing; appeal; when title vests; restitution.—Within twenty days after filing the report the corporation or any person interested in the said land may file exceptions to said report, and upon the determination of the same by the court, either party to the proceedings may appeal to the court at term, and thence, after judgment, to the supreme court. The court or judge on the hearing may direct a new appraisal, modify or confirm the report, or make such order in the premises as to him shall seem right and proper. If the said corporation, at the time of the appraisal, shall pay into court the sum appraised by the commissioners, then and in that event the said corporation may enter, take possession of, and hold said lands, notwithstanding the pendency of the appeal, and until the final judgment rendered on said appeal. And if there shall be no appeal, or if the final judgment rendered upon said petition and proceedings shall be in favor of the corporation, and upon the payment by said corporation of the sum adjudged, together with the costs and counsel fees allowed by the court, into the office of the clerk of the superior court, then and in that event all persons who have been made parties to the proceedings shall be divested and barred of all right, estate and interest in such easement in such real estate during the corporate existence of the corporation aforesaid. A certified copy of such judgment under the seal of the court shall be registered in the county where the land is situated, and a copy of the same, or the original certified, may be given in evidence in all actions and proceedings as deeds for land are now allowed to be read in evidence. All real estate acquired by any corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of this chapter for its purposes shall be deemed to be acquired for the public use. But if the court shall refuse to condemn the land, or any portion thereof, to the use of such corporation, then, and in that event, the money paid into court, or so much thereof as shall be adjudged, shall be refunded to the corporation. And the corporation shall have no right to hold said land not condemned, but shall surrender the possession of the same, on demand, to the owner or owners, or his or their agent or attorney. And the court or judge shall have full power and authority to make such orders, judgments and decrees, and issue such executions and other process as may be necessary to carry into effect the final judgment rendered in such proceedings. If the amount adjudged to be paid the owner of any property condemned under this chapter shall not be paid within one year after final judgment in the proceeding, the right under the judgment to take the property or rights condemned shall ipso facto cease and determine, but the claimant under the judgment shall still remain liable for all amounts adjudged against him except the consideration for the property. (Rev., s. 2587; Code, s. 1946; 1893, c. 148; 1915, c. 207.)

Exceptions May Be General.—Upon proper denial of the matters alleged in the petition, exceptions to the clerk's order appointing commissioners in condemnation proceedings may be of a general character, and, upon appeal, will present any question appearing upon the record. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Upon Exception Clerk May Fix Compensation. — When the parties except to the report and the clerk sets aside the award he may fix the amount of compensation. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.
